"VIII. And that it shall be lawful to our said sovereign lord the king, his heirs and successors, for non-payment of any such sum or sums of money, profit, commodity, or emolument, or for non-payment of any of them, to distrain in all the manors, lands, and tenements, of every such crafts, corporations, guilds, fraternities, companies, or fellowships of mysteries or crafts, or any of them, by whom, or by the masters, wardens, governors, or other officers or ministers, or master, warden, governor, or minister, of the which any such sum or sums of money, profit, commodity, or emolument, have or hath been paid, bestowed, or employed: and that all and every of the said sums of money, profits, commodities, and emoluments, shall from the feast of Easter next coming, without any manner of inquisition or office to be had or found, be judged and deemed to be in the actual and real possession of our said sovereign lord the king, in like manner and form to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as if the same had been particularly and specially mentioned in this present act.

(1) Part of the issues . . . of . . . lands.—If land be given to a dean and chapter, to pay thereout ten marks annually for a chantry priest, it will not be given to the crown under this act, but only an annual rent of ten marks. Pawles (Dean and Chapter of), Dy. 368. Adams & Lambert's case, 4 Co. 116 (b).

STAT. 1 EDW.
6, c. 14.

"IX. And furthermore be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the king our sovereign lord shall from the said feast of Easter next coming have and enjoy to him, his heirs and successors for ever, all fraternities, brotherhoods, and guilds, being within the realm of England and Wales, and other the king's dominions: and all manors, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments belonging to them or any of them; (other than such corporations, guilds, fraternities, companies, and fellowships of mysteries or crafts, and the manors, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments pertaining to the said corporations, guilds, fraternities, companies, and fellowships of mysteries or crafts above mentioned;) and shall by virtue of this act be judged and deemed in the actual and real possession of our said sovereign lord the king, his heirs and successors, from the said feast of Easter next coming, for ever, without any inquisition or office thereof to be had or found.

Fraternities,
brotherhoods,
and guilds,
given to the king.

"X. And be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that our said sovereign lord the king, his heirs and successors, at his and their will and pleasure may direct his and their commission and commissions under the great seal of England to such persons as it shall please him: and that the same commissioner, or two of them at the least, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, and of the said commission, as well to survey all and singular lay-corporations, guilds, fraternities, companies, and fellowships of mysteries or crafts incorporate, and every of them, as all other the said fraternities, brotherhoods, and guilds within the limits of their commission to them directed, and all the evidences, compositions, books of accompts, and other writings of every of them, to the intent thereby to know what money and other things was paid or bestowed to the finding or maintenance of any priest or priests, anniversary or obit, or other like thing, light or lamp, by them or any of them: as also to inquire, search, and try by all such ways and means as to them shall be thought meet and convenient, what manors, lands, tenements, rents, and other hereditaments, profits, commodities, emoluments, and other things, be given, limited, or appointed to our said sovereign lord the king by this act, within the limits of their commission.

Commissions
shall be directed to several persons, and what their authority
shall be.

"XI. And also that the same commissioners, or two of them at the least, by virtue of this act, and of the commission to them directed, shall have full power and authority to assign, and shall appoint (in every such place where guild, fraternity, the priest or incumbent of any chantry in esse, the first day of this present parliament, by the foundation, ordinance, or the first institution thereof, should or ought to have kept a grammar school (1) or a preacher, and so hath done sithen the feast of St. Michael the Archangel last past,) lands, tenements, and other hereditaments of every such chantry, guild, and fraternity, to remain and continue in succession to a schoolmaster or preacher for ever, for and toward the keeping of a grammar school or preaching, and for such godly intents and purposes, and in such manner and form, as the same commissioners, or two of them at the least, shall assign or appoint: and also to make and ordain a vicar to have perpetuity for ever in every parish church, the first day of this present parliament, being a college, free chapel, or chantry, or appropriated, annexed, or united to any college, free chapel, or chantry, that shall come to the king's hands by virtue of this act, and to endow every such vicar sufficiently, having respect to his cure and charge; the same endowment to be to every such vicar, and to his successors for ever, without

Lands assigned
towards the maintenance of a preacher or schoolmaster.
Endowment of a vicar.

(1) Grammar school: - Among the petitions of the clergy in convocation, to the upper house, ann. 1555, one is, "Item, for schools and hospitals promised in the Statute of Suppression of Colleges." Gibson's Codex, 1203

STAT. I EDW.
6, c. 14.

Assigning one or more priests
in a parish,
and lands for their maintenance.

The commissioners shall assign yearly pensions to every governour, fellow,
and servant, of every chantry,
&c. dissolved.

Money or yearly benefit assured to certain persons out of a chantry, &c. shall be so continued
and paid.

Lands assigned
towards the maintenance of the walls and banks of the sea.

The commissioners' obligation to the favourable execution of
the commis-

any other licence or grant of the king, the bishop, or other officers of the diocesan. And also the said commissioners, or two of them at the least, shall have authority by force of this act, to assign in every great town or parish, where they shall think necessary to have more priests than one, for the ministering of the sacraments within the same town or parish, lands and tenements belonging to any chantry, chapel, or stipendiary priests, being within the same town or parish, the first day of this present parliament, to be to such person and persons, as the said commissioners, or two of them at the least, shall assign or appoint to continue in succession for ever, for and towards the sufficient finding and maintenance of one or more priests within the same town or parish, as by the said commissioners, or two of them, shall be thought necessary or convenient: and as well to make ordinances and rules concerning the service, use, and demeanour of every such priest and schoolmaster, as is aforesaid, to be appointed, as also by what name or names he and they shall from henceforth be named and called. And also that the said commissioners, or two of them at the least, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, and of the said commission to them directed, to assign as well to every dean, master, warden, provost, and other incumbent and minister of any of the said colleges, free chapels, or chantries, being within the limits of their commission, which hereafter shall be dissolved or determined by virtue of this act, as to every stipendiary priest and other priest, whose salary the king shall be minded unto by this act, as to every fellow and poor parson having yearly relief out of any of the said colleges, free chapels, or chantries being within the limits of their commission, such several yearly annuities, pensions, or other recompences during their several lives, as to the same commissioners, or two of them, shall be thought meet and convenient.

"XII. And over that, the said commissioners, or two of them at the least, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, and of the commission to them directed, to inquire and try by such ways and means as they shall think meet and convenient, what money, profit, and benefit any poor person or persons by virtue of any conveyance, assurance, composition, will, device, or otherwise, heretofore had or made, intended or meant to have continuance for ever, had or enjoyed within five years next before the beginning of this present parliament, out of any college, free chapel, or chantry, and other the premises, given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, being within the limits of their commission: and thereupon to make assignments and orders in such manner and form as all and singular such said money, profit, and commodity shall be paid to poor people for ever, according to such said assurance, composition, will, device, or other thing had or made for the same; and to assign and appoint lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, parcel of the premises, for the maintenance and continuance of the same for ever; and also to appoint to fraternities, brotherhoods, and guilds, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, parcel of the premises, towards and for the maintenance of piers, jutties, walls, or banks against the rages of the sea, havens, and creeks. And that all and singular annuities, pensions, and other recompences shall be half-yearly paid to the persons to whom the same ought to be paid, by the king's receiver for the time being, of his lands commonly called the suppressed lands, or other his revenues, lying in the county or city where such college, free chapel, or chantry, or other the premises, given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, the first day of this present parliament, were or remained, without any fee or reward therefore to be paid: the first payment to be begun at the feast of St. Michael the Archangel next coming; and that every such receiver, upon his accoupt, shall have full and due allowance of all such annuities, pensions, and other recompences by him paid, by virtue of any such assignment to be made by the said commissioners, or two of them at the least.

"XIII. And it is ordained and enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that the said commissioners, and every of them, that shall take upon him the execution of any of the said commissions, shall be bound, as he will answer before God, to execute the commission to him and other directed, beneficially towards the deans, masters, wardens, provosts, and other incumbents and ministers

STAT. 1 EDW.
6, c. 14.

Cathedral
churches wherein any chantries,
obits, lamps,
or lights, have been maintained.

The king may alter the names of chantries.

The right of strangers
saved.
2 Roll. 318,
324.

Certain rents and duties saved to every donor, founder,
and governor
of a college,
chantry, &c.
Dyer, 252.

college called St. Maries College of Winchester besides Winchester, of the tion of Bishop Wickham; nor to the college of Eaton; nor to the parish commonly called the chapel in the see in Newton, within the Isle of El-county of Cambridge; nor to any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments them or any of them pertaining or belonging; nor to any chapel made or for the ease of the people dwelling distant from the parish church, or chapel whereunto no more lands or tenements than the church-yard, or house or close doth belong or pertain; nor to any cathedral church where a bishop's see is, within this realm of England or in Wales, nor manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments of any of them, other such chantries, obits, lights, and lamps, or any of them, as at any time within years next before the beginning of this present parliament have been had, maintained within the said cathedral churches, or within any of them, issues, revenues, or profits of any of the said cathedral churches, to which tries, obits, lights, and lamps, it is enacted by the authority aforesaid, that shall extend.

“XX. And it is ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that reign lord the king, at any time during his life (which God long preserve) at his will and pleasure alter and change the name or names of all and chantries, and the foundations of the same, being in any of the colleges or halls of any of the said universities, according as to his godly wisdom be thought meet and convenient:

“XXI. Saving to all and every person and persons, bodies politick and rate, their heirs and successors, and the heirs and successors of every of them than the masters, wardens, ministers, governors, rulers, priests, incumbents, lows, and brethren of the said colleges, chantries, free chapels, and premises, given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, and the
of them and every of them; and other than such as be or pretend to be patrons, or donors of the premises or any of them, or of any part or parcel and the heirs, successors, and assigns of every or any of them; and other as be or were feoffees, recoverers, comessors, grantees, or devisees of any premises, to or for any of the uses, purposes, or intents abovementioned, use of any of the said colleges, free chapels, chantries, or other the premises limited, or appointed by this act to the king, or to the intent to employ or profits thereof to the use of the masters, rulers, incumbents, or min-them or any of them; and other than such person and persons and bodies and corporate, their heirs, successors, and assigns, as claim or pretend estate, right, title, interest, use, possession, or condition of, in, or to the pre-any part or parcel thereof, by reason of any feoffment, fine, bargain, and by any other ways, means, or conveyance to them made of any estate of ance, without the said late king's licence, assent, consent, or agreement, out the licence, assent, or agreement of the king's majesty that now is, by the said deans, masters, wardens, ministers, governors, rulers, priests, or bents, or by the founders, donors, or patrons of them or of any of them,) a right, title, claim, possession, interest, rents, annuities, commodities, com-offices, fees, leases, liveries, livings, pensions, portions, debts, duties, and profits, which they or any of them lawfully have, or of right ought to might have had, in, of, or to any of the premises, or in, of, or to any part thereof, in such like, manner, form, and condition, to all intents, respect structions, and purposes, as if this act had never been had or made, and as the said chantries, colleges, and other the said promotions, had still con-and remained in their full being; and saving to all and every patron, founder, or governor of any such college, chantry, free chapel, stipendiary and other the premises, given, limited, or appointed to the king by this the donor, feoffor, and giver of the aforesaid lands, tenements, or hereditaments them or any of them, or to any uses or purposes before mentioned, all such services, rents-ack, rents-charge, fees, annuities, profits, and offices; and leases for term of life, lives, and years, whereupon the accustomed rent or received, as they or any of them lawfully had, perceived, and enjoyed in, out, or of any of the said promotions, or out of any of the said lands, tenements, or hereditaments, before the first day of this present parliament.

XXII. And over that, it is ordained and enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that all and every person and persons being in life, which have or hath for any sum of money, to him or them paid, bargained, or sold, any manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments aforesaid, whereunto the king or sovereign lord is intitled by virtue of this act, shall repay to such person as bought any of the said manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, or to his executors or assigns, upon a request therefore made, or within three months after next ensuing the same request, as much money as he or they received for the purchase of any thing so by him or them sold; and for non-payment thereof such person and persons as purchased or bought the said lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, or any parcel thereof, and their executors and administrators, shall be compelled by the authority of this present parliament to sue and maintain an action of debt at the common law of this realm, against such person or persons as bargained or sold to him or them, or to their testator, any of the premises belonging to any college, chantry, free chapel, or other promotion spiritual; in such action of debt no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be admitted or taken.

XXIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every of the said chantries, colleges, and free chapels, and other the premises given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, and all the mansion-houses, manors, lands, tenements, possessions, and hereditaments, and other the premises belonging to them, they be, given, limited, and appointed to the king by this act, and every part and parcel of them, which by authority and virtue of this act been sold, adjudged, and deemed, or shall be in the king's majesty's possession and control, or which the king shall be intitled unto by virtue of this act, shall be in the order, survey, and governance of our sovereign lord the king's court of the augmentations and revenues of his crown, or in such other court as the king at any time hereafter shall assign, name, or appoint, and so shall and may be granted, given, and set to farm by the chancellor, officers, and ministers of the same court, or of any other court so to be appointed, in such manner and form as other manors, lands, and tenements appointed to the same court of augmentations and revenues of his grace's crown, or other court so to be appointed, been to be granted or letten: and that all the farms, issues, revenues, and profits coming and growing of the same premises, and of every part thereof, shall be taken and received to the king's use, by the officers and ministers of the same court or courts, in such manner and form as is used and had of other manors, lands, and tenements, and of the issues, revenues, and profits of the same, committed to the order, rule, survey, and governance of the said court of the augmentations and revenues of the king's crown, or of any other court so to be appointed; any act, statute, ordinance, custom, or usage, heretofore had, made, or used to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXIV. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any of the said masters, wardens, ministers, rulers, governors, priests, incumbents, or members of any such college, chantry, free chapel, or of any the premises given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, or of any of them, sithence the three and twentieth day of November in the xxxvii. year of the reign of the said late king, have made any lease under his or their common seal or otherwise, for term of years, life, or lives, of their said colleges, chantries, free chapels, or of other the premises or of any part thereof, or of any manors, lands, tenements, possessions, or hereditaments whatsoever they be, to them or to any of them united or annexed, belonging or appertaining, upon the which leases the usual and old rents and farms accustomed to be yielded and reserved, or more, by the space of twenty years next before the said three and twentieth day of November, are not reserved and yielded, shall be utterly void and of none effect: and that all other leases and grants hereafter made of any of the premises given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, shall be as good, available, and effectual in the law, to all intents,

Stat. 1 Edw.
6, c. 14.

Every person that hath sold any lands due to the king by this act shall repay the money.

All chantries, free chapels, &c. Lands shall be in the order of the court of augmentations.

Lessee made by the governors, not reserving the old rent, shall be void.
1 Roll. 202

STAT. 1 EDW.
6, c. 14.

Lands whereof
the governors
of any colleges,
&c. were seized
to their own uses.

Lands, annuities, &c. not united to the said colleges, &c. but granted
by King Henry 8, or by the king that now
is.

Every person
which had rent or yearly profit
out of the lands of any chantry, &c.
shall enjoy
them.
Dyer, 313.
1 Co. 47.
Het. 28, 41.

If a governor
have compounded for his first-fruits, the payment thereof shall cease.

Money payable out of the premises yearly into the exchequer.

Assurances made by King Henry 8, or King Edward 6, or by the licence of constructions, and purposes, as if this act had never been had or made; any thing in this act, or any other act heretofore had or made, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

“XXV. Provided always, and be it further ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act or any thing therein contained shall not extend to any manors, lands, tenements, possessions, or hereditaments, which the said masters, wardens, ministers, chantry priests, incumbents, or other the said governors, officers, ministers, or rulers of the premises or of any of them, hath or is or hereafter shall have or be possessed or seized of in fee-simple, fee-tail general or special, for term of life, term of years, or otherwise, to his or their own proper uses, by inheritance or purchase, and not being at any time united or annexed to his or their said colleges, free chapels, chantries, or other the premises given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act: nor shall extend to any manors, lands, tenements, possessions, rents, annuities, and yearly pension or pensions, or to any yearly sum or sums of money, being not united or parcel of any of the said colleges and other the premises aforesaid, or any of them, heretofore given or granted by the said late king, or given or granted, or hereafter to be given or granted by the king our sovereign lord, to any of the said deans, masters, wardens, ministers, chantry priests, incumbents, governors, or rulers of the premises or of any of them, for term of life only, under his great seal of England, or under the seal of the court of the augmentations and revenues of the king's crown, or any other of the king's seals of any of his courts; any thing contained in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

“XXVI. Provided alway, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that as well all and every patron, donor, founder, and giver of any of the said promotions or premises, or giver, donor, or feoffor of any their lands, tenements, possessions, or other hereditaments, as all and every person and persons, bodies politick and corporate, which before the making of this act, lawfully without fraud or covin had or enjoyed any manner of rent or other yearly profits to be taken, perceived, or had of any chantries, colleges, free chapels, or other the premises given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, or out of any manors, lands, tenements, or other possessions of them or any of them, shall have and enjoy the same in like manner and form as they should or ought to have done, if the said colleges, chantries, free chapels, and other the premises given, limited, or appointed to the king by this act, had still remained and continued in esse and full being; any thing in this act mentioned to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

“XXVII. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any such governor, ruler, warden, master, incumbent, minister, or other, having any of the said spiritual promotions or incumbents, have or shall compound for the first-fruits of any such spiritual promotions, according to the laws and statutes of this realm, and the days of payment of any part thereof not expired before the first day of this parliament, that all sums of money so to be due and payable thence the said first day of this parliament, shall cease and be not paid, asked, or demanded; any bond, recognizance, surety, or other thing had or made to the contrary notwithstanding.

“XXVIII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such rents, services, issues, profits, and other sums of money payable out of or for any of the premises, or any of them, in the king's court of exchequer, shall continue and be continually and yearly levied, charged, or paid in the same court, in such manner and form as heretofore hath been used; any law, custom, unity of possession in the king's highness, or other thing to the contrary notwithstanding, and as though the said promotions, manors, lands, tenements, and other the premises, had not come to the king's hands or possession.

“XXIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every letters patents made by the said late King Henry the Eighth, or by the king's majesty that now is, or hereafter to be made by his highness, to any person or persons, or to any archbishop or bishop, of any of the said colleges, chantries, free chapels, or other the premises, or any part or parcel of them, or of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments belonging or appertaining, or that did belong or appertain to them or to any of them, and all fines, gifts, grants, feoffments, recoveries, and all other assurances and conveyances thereof had or made by the assent, consent, or licence under the great seal of England, of the said late King Henry the Eighth, or of the king's majesty that now is, to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, by any chantry priest, master, warden, minister, ruler, governor, or other having any of the said promotions, of any of the said colleges, chantries, free chapels, or other the premises, or any of them, or of any part, parcel, or member of the same, shall stand and be in their forces and effects, and shall be good and effectual in the law for such estates and interests given, granted, limited, or appointed in any of the gifts, grants, assurances, or conveyances thereof had or made, according to their purport, form, and matter, and according to the true intent and meaning of the same assurances, and shall be by authority of this act good, perfect, and available, as well against the king, his heirs and successors, as against the said chantry priests, wardens, masters, rulers, governors, and other having any of the said promotions, and their successors and the successors of every of them, as also against the founders, donors, and patrons of the same, and the ordinary of them and of every of them, and the heirs and successors of every of them: any law, statute, ordinance, or other thing to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

XXX. And where divers and sundry bishops, deans, archdeacons, treasurers, prebendaries, chantry priests, masters, provosts, rulers, governors of any deaneries, archdeaconries, treasurerships, prebends, free chapels, chantries, or colleges within this realm of England and other the king's majesty's dominions, or any of the patrons, founders, donors of any of the bishopricks, treasurerships, deaneries, chantries, free chapels, or other the said spiritual promotions, of their voluntary wills and minds, for divers good and reasonable causes and considerations, by deed or deeds enrolled, or by other writings or conveyances, heretofore given and granted to the late king of famous memory, Henry the Eighth, late king of England, and to his heirs, or to our sovereign lord the king that now is, and to his heirs, divers of their deaneries, archdeaconries, treasurerships, prebends, chapels, chantries, and colleges, or any other ecclesiastical or spiritual promotions last before remembered; and of all or some part of the manors, lands, tenements, tithes, pensions, annuities, rents, reversions, and other revenues, hereditaments, possessions, emoluments, and profits to the same bishopricks, deaneries, archdeaconries, treasurerships, prebends, chapels, chantries, colleges, and other like promotions, benefices, offices and dignities, or to any of them belonging, appertaining, united or annexed, or which the said bishops, deans, archdeacons, treasurers, chantry priests, masters, provosts, rulers, governors, and other ecclesiastical or spiritual officers, or ministers, or any of the said patrons, donors, or founders, or any of them, had or enjoyed in the right, or by reason of any of the same promotions, offices, or dignities.

XXXI. Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every gifts and grants heretofore made to the said late king, and to his heirs, or to our sovereign lord the king that now is, and to his heirs, by any archbishop, bishop, dean, archdeacon, treasurer, prebendary, master, provost, governor, or other the said ecclesiastical or spiritual person or persons, or by any patrons, donor, or founder of any of the said deaneries, chantries, or other of the said spiritual or ecclesiastical promotions, or of all or any of the manors, lands, tenements, tithes, rents, reversions, pensions, portions, annuities, or other hereditaments, revenues, emoluments, profits, or commodities, to any of the said benefices, offices, prebends, promotions, or dignities belonging, appertaining, united, or annexed, or which any of the same archbishops, bishops, deans, archdeacons, treasurers, masters, provosts, prebendaries, rulers, governors, officers or ministers, patrons, founders or donors, had or enjoyed, or have or enjoy, or ought to have or enjoy, in the right, or by reason or means of any of the same promotions, offices, or dignities, shall be good and effectual in the law to all intents and purposes; saving to all and every person and persons, and bodies politic and corporate, their heirs, successors, and assigns, and to the heirs, successors, and assigns of every of them, (other than the archbishops, bishops,

STAT. 1 EDW.
6. c. 14.

either of them,
of any colleges,
&c. or their lands.

A confirmation of all grants made to the king of any spiritual promotions by the governors
thereof.
11 Co. 78.

A saving of the right of others.

STAT. I EDW.
6, c. 14.

deans, archdeacons, treasurers, prebendaries, rulers, governors, wardens, provosts, givers and grantors of any of the premises, and their heirs, successors, and assigns; and other than such ecclesiastical or spiritual person, bodies politic or corporate, as are or pretend to be founders, donors, patrons, or ordinaries of the premises, or any of them,) all such rights, titles, interests, claims, entries, reversions, remainders, fees, offices, annuities, lands, tenements, hereditaments, profits, commodities, and emoluments, as they or any of them have or should, or ought to have had, of, in, or to the premises next above mentioned, or any part thereof, as if this act had never been had or made; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

This act extendeth not to a parson or vicar.

“XXXII. Provided always, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend to make good or effectual any gift, grant, bargain, sale, or alienation made by any parson or vicar of their parsonages or vicarages, or of any part or parcel thereof, or of any thing to them or any of them belonging or appertaining.

Lord Cobham for the college of Cobham.

“XXXIII. Provided also, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in anywise extend to hinder or prejudice George Brook Knight, Lord Cobham, his heirs or assigns, for or concerning the late college of Cobham, in the county of Kent, or the manors, lands, tenements, or possessions thereof; any thing above mentioned to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

This shall not extend to the corporation of any city, borough, or town.

“XXXIV. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this present act, nor any thing therein contained, shall in any wise extend to be prejudicial or hurtful to the general corporation of any city, borough, or town within this realm, or any other the king's dominions, no shall extend to any the lands or hereditaments of them or any of them; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Colleges, chantries, &c. within the duchy of Lancaster.

“XXXV. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such of the said colleges, free chapels, chantries, or other the premises, here appointed and given to the king's highness by the authority of this act, as be within the duchy of Lancaster, and all manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments pertaining or belonging to the same colleges, free chapels, and chantries, shall after the said feast of Easter next coming, be within the survey and order of the court of the duchy of Lancaster, in such manner and form as other the premises be assigned or appointed by authority of this act to be in the survey and order of the court of the augmentations and revenues of the king's crown, or other court by the king to be assigned; and that all commissions that hereafter shall be awarded by virtue and force of this act concerning such colleges, free chapels, chantries, and other the premises as be within the said duchy of Lancaster, shall be awarded under the great seal of England, and shall be certified into the same court of the duchy of Lancaster; any thing abovesaid to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Dyer, 232.

The college or chantry of Attleborough in Norfolk.

“XXXVI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to the college or chantry of Attleborough, in the county of Norfolk, which the said late King Henry the Eighth gave to Robert, late Earl of Sussex, and to his heirs; but that Henry, now Earl of Essex, son and heir to the said late earl, his heirs and assigns, shall and may, by the authority of this act, have and enjoy the said college and chantry, and all manors, lands, tenements, advowsons, tithes, pensions, portions, and other hereditaments thereunto belonging or appertaining; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Altering the nature and condition of obits.

“XXXVII. Provided always, and by the authority aforesaid be it enacted, that the king's majesty, at any time when it shall seem to him good, may give authority to certain his grace's commissioners, to alter the nature and condition of all manner of obits, as well within the universities of Cambridge and Oxford, as in any other place within this his grace's realm of England and Wales, being not suppressed nor annihilate by virtue of this present act, and the same obits so altered to dispose to a better use, as to the relief of some poor men being students, or otherwise.

"XXXVIII. Provided also, and be it enacted by authority aforesaid, that it shall not be lawful to any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, by reason of any remainder, use, or condition, to enter into, claim, or challenge any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, for the non-doing, not naming or non-finding of any such priest or priests, or poor folks as is aforesaid, obit, anniversary, light or lamp, from henceforth to be founded or done; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XXXIX. Provided always that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall in any wise extend to any lands, tenements, possessions, or hereditaments whatsoever, that any master, dean, prebendary, warden, or chantry, or any stipendary priest of any college, chantry, prebend, fraternity, guild, or any other corporations, have or held of any person or persons by copy of court roll, or at all according to the custom of any manor or manors; nor give or grant any copyhold lands to the king's highness.

"XL. And also provided that the king's highness, his heirs or successors, shall not in any wise have, hold, enjoy, or take, by virtue of this act, or any article herein contained, any manner of copyhold lands, tenements, possessions, or hereditaments whatsoever they be; but that all and every of the said persons and incumbents shall have, hold, and enjoy the same during their lives towards their pension and yearly living, paying their rents and doing their customs and services thereof as and accustomed; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XLI. Provided that this act shall not extend to any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, assigned, appointed, or intended for the finding and maintenance of any chantry priest, or stipendary priest, which by any former right and good title, without fraud or coven, were lawfully recovered from the possession of any such chantry priest or stipendary priest, before the first day of October, in the said seven and thirtieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, which lands, tenements, and hereditaments were not charged nor chargeable to the payment of the perpetual tenth; any thing in this act to the contrary hereof notwithstanding.

"XLII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular grants, licences, confirmations, and letters patents, which our late sovereign lord King Henry the Eighth, or our sovereign lord the king that now is, have made under the great seal of England to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, of any college, chapel, or chantry, now being in esse or standing, or now not being in esse or not standing, or of any lordships, manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments annexed, united, belonging, or appertaining to any college, chapel, or chantry now being in esse or standing, or now not being in esse or not standing, or of any other thing or things mentioned or expressed in this act, and all and every matter and thing mentioned, expressed, or contained in any such grant, licence, confirmation, or letters patents, shall from henceforth be deemed, taken, expounded, and judged good and effectual in the law, according to the words, sentences, meanings, intents, form, and effects of the same grants, licences, confirmations, and letters patents, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as if the said act, and the said act made in the said seven and thirtieth year of the said late King Henry the Eighth, had never been had or made; and that this act, or the said act made in the said seven and thirtieth year of the reign of our said late sovereign lord King Henry the Eighth, or any clause, article, sentence, or other thing therein contained, shall not extend to any colleges, chapels, chantries, or other thing or things mentioned in this act, now being in esse or standing, or now not being in esse or not standing, or to any manors, lands, tenements, possessions, revenues, or hereditaments annexed, united, belonging, or appertaining to any college, chapel, chantry, or other thing mentioned in this act, now being in esse, or standing, or now not being in esse, or not standing, or to any other thing or things mentioned or expressed in this act, which any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, have had or obtained by the assent, licence, confirmation, grant, or letters patents of the said late king, or of the king's majesty that now is; nor shall extend to any manors, lands, tenements, revenues, possessions, hereditaments, or

STAT. 1 EDW.
6, c. 14

No person shall take advantage of any condition for not finding of any priest, obit, light, &c. This statute shall give no copyhold land to the king.

Who shall have the copyhold lands.

Lands recovered from a chantry priest by good title.

A confirmation of letters patents made by King Henry 8, or King Edward 6, of any chantry, &c. or of lands united to them.

37 Hen. 8. c. 4.

STAT. 1 EDW.
6, c. 14.

other thing or things mentioned, expressed, or contained in any such licence, confirmation, grant, or letters patents: but that every such person and persons, bodies politick and corporate, their heirs, successors, and assigns, and the heirs, successors, and assigns of every of them, shall have, hold, and enjoy all and every the same colleges, chapels, chantries, manors, lands, tenements, revenues, possessions, and hereditaments, and all and every other thing and things whatsoever, as by them had or obtained by the assent, licence, confirmation, grant, or letters patents of the said late king, or of the king's majesty that now is, according to the words, sentences, form, effect, meaning, and intent of the same licences, confirmations, grants, and letters patents; this act, or the said act made in the said seven and thirtieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, or any clause, article, sentence, matter, or thing mentioned, expressed, or contained in any of the same acts to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 1.

V. STAT. 2 & 3 EDWARDI 6, c. 1 (1). A.D. 1548.

"An Act⁽²⁾ for Uniformity⁽³⁾ of Service and Administration of the Sacraments throughout the Realm."

Revised by 1 Eliz. c. 1,
s. 14.
The penalty
for not using uniformity of service, and administration
of sacraments,
&c.

"Where of long time⁽⁴⁾ there hath been had in this realm of England and in Wales divers forms of Common Prayer, commonly called the Service of the Church, that is to say, The Use of Sarum⁽⁵⁾, of York, of Bangor, and of Lincoln; and besides the same now of late much more divers and sundry forms and fashions have been used in the cathedral and parish churches of England and Wales, as well concerning the matins or morning prayer and the evensong, as also concerning the holy communion, commonly called the Mass, with divers and sundry rites and ceremonies concerning the same, and in the administration of other sacraments of the church; and as the doers and executors of the said rites and ceremonies, in other form than of late years⁽⁶⁾ they have been used, were pleased therewith

(1) This statute was confirmed by Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 1, and repealed by 1 Mar. sess. 2, c. 2; which Stat. of 1 Mar. is repealed by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2; and this act, so far as it relates to the church, is made perpetual by Stat. 5 Ann. c. 5.

(2) An Act:—A bill for a uniformity of service: "Que communi omnium procerum assensu, conclusa est except' comite Darby, Episcopis London', Dunelm', Norwiche', Carlisle', Hereford', Wigorn', Westminster', Ciestreu', et Domino Dacres, et Domino Windsor." Journ. Proc. Jan. 15.

(3) Uniformity:—Vide Stat. 3 & 4 Edw. 6, c. 10. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 12.

(4) Of long time:—In the earlier ages of the church, every bishop had a power to form a liturgy for his own diocese; and, if he kept to the analogy of faith and doctrine, all circumstances were left to his own discretion. Afterwards, the practice was, for the whole province to follow the service of the metropolitan church; which also became the general rule of the church: "Institutio missarum sicut in metropolitana ecclesia agitur, ita in Dei nomine, in omnibus provinciis, tam ipsius missæ ordo, quam psallendi, vel ministrandi, consuetudo servetur." De Consecr. Dist. 2, c. 31. And, "De iis, qui contra apostoli voluntatem circumferuntur omni sento doctrine, placuit huic sancto concilio, ut metropolitana sedis auctoritate cuncti unusquisque provincie cives, rectoresque ecclesiarum, unum, eundemque in psallendo teneant modum, quem in metropolitana sede cognoverint institutum. nec ali-qua diversitate cujusque ordinis, vel sedis, à metropolitana se patiantur sede distare. Sic enim justum est, ut inde unusquisque sumat regulas magisterii, unde honoris consecrationem accipit, ut juxta majorum decreta, sedes, quæ unicuique sacerdotali dignitatis est mater, sit ecclesiasticæ magnæ rationis." Dist. 12, c. 13. Conc. Tolet. Which Lyndwood (De Fer. c. Angl. Eccl. Us. Sar.) owns to be the common law of the church, and intimates, that the use of several services in the same province, as in England, was not to be warranted, as by long custom.

(5) The Use of Sarum:—Lyndwood, (ibid.) speaking of the Use of Sarum, says, "Quæ tota provincia [Cantuariensis] hunc usum sequitur;" and adds, as one reason of it, "Episcopus namque Sarum in collegio episcoporum est preceptor, et temporibus quibus archiepiscopus Cantuariensis solenniter celebrat divina, presente collegio episcoporum, chorum in divinis officiis regere debet, & observantia, et consuetudine antiqua."

(6) Of late years:—The Latin service, as they had been used in England before, continued during Henry the Eighth's reign, without any alteration, except, some rasures of collects for the Pope, and of the office of Thomas à Becket, and of some other parts, whose days were, by the king's injunctions, no more to be observed. (1 Burn. 292. But such rasures or deletions were so few, that the old mass-books, breviaries, and other rituals, continued to serve, without any expressions, and Queen Mary, having called a

other not using the same rites and ceremonies were thereby greatly offended; and albeit the king's majesty, with the advice of his most entirely beloved uncle, the lord protector, and other of his highness' council, hath heretofore divers times assayed to stay innovations or new rites concerning the premises; yet the same hath not had such good success as his highness required in that behalf; whereupon his highness, by the most prudent advice aforesaid, being pleased to bear with the frailty and weakness of his subjects in that behalf, of his great clemency hath not been only content to abstain from punishment of those that have offended in that behalf, for that his highness taketh that they did it of a good zeal; but also to the intent a uniform, quiet, and godly order should be had concerning the premises, hath appointed the Archbishop of Canterbury, and certain of the most learned and discreet bishops, and other learned men of this realm, to consider and ponder the premises; and thereupon having as well eye and respect to the most sincere and pure Christian religion taught by the Scripture, as to the usages in the primitive church, should draw and make one convenient and meet order, rite, and fashion of common and open prayer and administration of the sacraments, to be had and used in his majesty's realm of England and in Wales; the which at this time, by the aid of the Holy Ghost, with one uniform agreement, is of them concluded, set forth, and delivered to his highness, to his great comfort and quietness of mind, in a book entitled 'The Book of the Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, after the use of the Church of England.' Wherefore the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, considering as well the most godly travel of the king's highness, of the lord protector, and of other his highness' council, in gathering and collecting the said archbishop, bishops, and learned men together, as the godly prayers, orders, rites, and ceremonies in the said book mentioned, and the considerations of altering those things which be altered, and retaining those things which be retained in the said book, but also the honour of God and great quietness, which by the grace of God shall ensue upon the one and uniform rite and order in such common prayer and rites and external ceremonies to be used throughout England and in Wales, at Calice, and the marches of the same, do give to his highness most hearty and lowly thanks for the same. And humbly prayen, that it may be ordained and enacted by his majesty, with the assent of the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular person and persons that have offended concerning the premises, other than such person and persons as now be and remain in ward in the Tower of London, or in the Fleet, may be pardoned thereof; and that all and singular ministers in any cathedral or parish church, or other place within this realm of England, Wales, Calice, and the marches of the same, or other the king's dominions, shall, from and after the feast of Pentecost next coming, be bounden to say and use the mattens, evensong, celebration of the Lord's Supper, commonly called the Mass, and administration of each of the sacraments, and all their common and open prayer, in such order and form as is mentioned in the same book, and none other or otherwise. And albeit that the same be so godly and good, that they give occasion to every honest and conformable man most willingly to embrace them, yet lest any obstinate person who willingly would disturb so godly order and quiet in this realm should not go unpunished, that it may also be ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any manner of parson, vicar, or other whatsoever minister, that ought or should sing or say common prayer mentioned in the said book, or minister the sacraments, shall after the said feast of Pentecost next coming refuse to use the said common prayers, or to minister the sacraments in such cathedral or parish church, or other places as he should use or minister the same, in such order and form as they be mentioned and set forth in the said book; or shall use, wilfully and obstinately standing in the

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 1.

Innovators not punished, for
that they did it upon good zeal.

The Book of Common Prayer, by the aid of the Holy Ghost, is set forth by the bishops and learned men of the realm.

The penalty for not using the Book of Common Prayer,
and other rites
and ceremonies, according to the use of the Church of England.
Using any other manner
of prayer.

and destroyed the rased books, required all parishes to furnish themselves with new complete ones, and enacted, (1 Mar. sess. 2, c.

2, s. 3,) that the service should stand as it was most commonly used in the last year of King Henry the Eighth.

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 1.

The penalty for depraving the book or anything contained therein.

The penalty for the first offence.

The penalty for the second offence.

The penalty for the third offence.

The penalty by plays, songs, or tunes, to deprave the Book of Common Prayer, or to compel any to use other prayer.

The penalty for the first offence.

The penalty for the second offence.

same, any other rite, ceremony, order, form, or manner of mass, openly or privily, or matins, evensong, administration of the sacraments, or other open prayer than is mentioned and set forth in the said book; (open prayer in and throughout this act, is meant that prayer which is for other to come unto or hear, either in common churches or private chapels or oratories, commonly called the Services of the Church;) or shall preach, declare, or speak any thing in the derogation or depraving of the said book, or any thing therein contained, or of any part thereof: and shall be thereof lawfully convicted according to the laws of this realm, by verdict of twelve men, or by his own confession, or by the notorious evidences of the fact, shall lose and forfeit to the king's highness, his heirs and successors, for his first offence, the profit of such one of his spiritual benefices or promotions as it shall please the king's highness to assign or appoint, coming and arising in one whole year next after his conviction: and also, that the same person so convicted shall for the same offence suffer imprisonment by the space of six months, without bail or mainprise; and if any such person once convict of any such offence concerning the premises, shall after his first conviction oftsoons offend and be thereof in form aforesaid lawfully convicted, that then the same person shall for his second offence suffer imprisonment by the space of one whole year, and also shall therefore be deprived, ipso facto, of all his spiritual promotions (1); and that it shall be lawful to all patrons, donors, and grantees of all and singular the same spiritual promotions, to present to the same any other able clerk, in like manner and form as though the party so offending were dead; and that if any such person or persons, after he shall be twice convicted in form aforesaid, shall offend against any of the premises the third time, and shall be thereof in form aforesaid lawfully convicted; that then the person so offending and convicted the third time, shall suffer imprisonment during his life. And if the person that shall offend and be convict in form aforesaid concerning any of the premises, shall not be beneficed nor have any spiritual promotion, that then the same person so offending and convict shall for the first offence suffer imprisonment during six months, without bail or mainprise; and if any such person not having any spiritual promotion, after his first conviction shall oftsoons offend in any thing concerning the premises, and shall in form aforesaid be thereof lawfully convicted, that then the same person shall for his second offence suffer imprisonment during his life.

"II. And it is ordained and enacted by the authority abovesaid, that if any person or persons whatsoever, after the said feast of Pentecost next coming, shall in any interludes, plays, songs, rhimes, or by other open words, declare or speak any thing in the derogation, depraving, or despising of the same book or of any thing therein contained, or any part thereof; or shall by open fact, deed, or by open threatnings, compel or cause, or otherwise procure or maintain any parson, vicar, or other minister in any cathedral or parish church, or in any chapel or other place, to sing or say any common and open prayer, or to minister any sacrament otherwise or in any other manner or form than is mentioned in the said book: or that by any of the said means shall unlawfully interrupt or let any parson, vicar, or other ministers in any cathedral or parish church, chapel, or any other place, to sing or say common and open prayer, or to minister the sacraments, or any of them, in any such manner and form as is mentioned in the said book; that then every person being thereof lawfully convicted in form above said, shall forfeit to the king our sovereign lord, his heirs and successors, for the first offence ten pounds. And if any person or persons, being once convicted of any such offence, oftsoons offend against any of the premises, and shall in form aforesaid be thereof lawfully convicted, that then the same persons so offending and convict shall for the second offence forfeit to the king our sovereign lord, his heirs and successors, twenty pounds; and if any person, after he in form aforesaid shall have been twice convict of any offence

(1) Deprived, ipso facto, of all his spiritual promotions:—Any incumbent refusing to use the Book of Common Prayer, or speaking or preaching anything in derogation thereof, being twice convicted, shall, under this act, and Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2, ipso facto, be deprived, without any sentence of deprivation. Caudrey's case, 5 Co. 8. Poph. 29. Godolph. Rep. Deprivation, 309.

concerning any of the premises, shall offend the third time, and be thereof in form aforesaid, do not pay the sum to be paid by virtue of his conviction, in such manner and form as the same ought to be paid, within six weeks next after his conviction, that then every person so convicted, and so not paying the same, shall for the same first offence, instead of the said ten pounds, suffer imprisonment by the space of three months, without bail or mainprise. And if any person or persons, that for his second offence concerning the premises shall be convicted in form aforesaid, do not pay the sum to be paid by virtue of his conviction, in such manner and form as the same ought to be paid within six weeks next after his said second conviction; that then every person so convicted, and not so paying the same, shall for the same second offence, instead of the said twenty pounds, suffer imprisonment during six months, without bail or mainprise.

"III. And it is ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every justices of Oyer and Determiner, or justices of assize, shall have full power and authority in every of their open and general sessions to inquire, hear, and determine all and all manner of offences that shall be committed or done contrary to any article contained in this present act, within the limits of the commission to them directed, and to make process for the execution of the same, as they may do against any person being indicted before them of trespass, or lawfully convicted thereof.

"IV. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every archbishop and bishop shall or may at all time and times, at his liberty and pleasure, join and associate himself by virtue of this act to the said justices of Oyer and Determiner, or to the said justices of assize, at every of the said open and general sessions to be holden in any place within his diocese, for and to the inquiry, hearing, and determining of the offences aforesaid.

"V. Provided always, that it shall be lawful to any man that understandeth the Greek, Latin, and Hebrew tongue, or other strange tongue, to say and have the said prayers heretofore specified of mattens and evensong in Latin, or any such other tongue, saying the same privately, as they do understand.

"VI. And for the further encouraging of learning in the tongues in the universities of Cambridge and Oxford, to use and exercise in their common and open prayer in their chapels (being no parish churches) or other places of prayer, the mattens, evensong, litany, and all other prayers, (the holy communion, commonly called the Mass, excepted,) prescribed in the said book, in Greek, Latin, or Hebrew; any thing in this present act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VII. Provided also, that it shall be lawful for all men, as well in churches, chapels, oratories, or other places, to use openly any psalms or prayer taken out of the Bible, at any due time, not letting or omitting thereby the service or any part thereof mentioned in the said book.

"VIII. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the books concerning the said services shall at the costs and charges of the parishioners of every parish and cathedral church be attained and gotten before the feast of Pentecost next following, or before; and that all such parishes and cathedral churches, or other places where the said books shall be attained and gotten before the said feast of Pentecost, shall, within three weeks next after the said books so attained and gotten, use the said service, and put the same in ure according to this act.

"IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person or persons shall be at any time hereafter impeached or otherwise molested of or for any of the offences above mentioned hereafter to be committed or done contrary to this act, unless he or they so offending be thereof indicted at the next general sessions, to be holden before any such of the justices of Oyer and Determiner, or

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 1.

The penalty
for the third offence.

Justices of oyer, determiner, and assize shall have power to hear and determine those offences.

A bishop may join with the justices.

Who may use prayers in another language.

When the service books shall be gotten.

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 1.

justices of assize, next after any offence committed or done contrary to the tenor of this act.

"X. Provided always, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular lords of the parliament, for the said offences above mentioned, shall be tried by their peers.

Chief officers of cities and corporate towns may hear and determine these offences.

"XI. Provided also, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the mayor of London, and all other mayors, bailiffs, and other chief officers of all and singular cities, boroughs, and towns corporate within this realm, Wales, Calice, and the marches of the same, to the which justices of assize do not commonly repair, shall have full power and authority, by virtue of this act, to inquire, hear, and determine the offences abovesaid, and every of them years, within fifteen days after the feast of Easter and St. Michael the Archangel, in like manner and form as justices of assize and Oyer and Determiner may do.

The offences
inquirable and punishable by the ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

"XII. Provided always, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular archbishops and bishops, and every of their chancellors, commissaries, archdeacons, and other ordinaries, having any peculiar ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall have full power and authority, by virtue of this act, as well to inquire in their visitations, synods, and elsewhere within their jurisdiction, at any other time and place, to take accusations and informations of all and every the things above mentioned, done, committed, or perpetrated within the limits of their jurisdiction and authority, and to punish the same by excommunication, excommunication, sequestration, or deprivation, and other censures and process, in like form as heretofore hath been used in like cases by the King's ecclesiastical laws.

But once
punished for
one offence.

"XIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, that whatsoever person offending in the premises, shall for the first offence receive punishment of the ordinary; having a testimonial thereof under the said ordinary's seal, shall not for the same offence afterwards be convicted before the justices; and likewise receiving for the said first offence punishment by the justices, he shall not for the same offence afterwards receive punishment of the ordinary; any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.

VI. STAT. 2 & 3 EDWARDI 6, c. 13. A.D. 1548.

"An Act for Payment of Tithes(1)."

In what manner tithes ought to be paid.

27 Hen. 8,
c. 20.
32 Hen. 8, c. 7.
1 Roll. 13, 90,
354.
13 Co. 23, 48.
Savil, 131.
Godb. 211,
pt. 30.
18 Edw. 3,
St. III. c. 7.
45 Edw. 3, c. 3.
5 Hen. 4, c. 11.
2 Inst. 648.
March, 21.
2 Bulst. 85,
183.
1 Bulst. 108.

"Where in the parliament holden at Westminster the iv. day of February, in the xxvii. year of the reign of the late king of most famous memory, King Henry the VIII., there was an act made concerning payment of tithes predial and perzonal; and also in another parliament holden at Westminster the xxiv. day of July, in the xxxii. year of the reign of the said late King Henry the VIII., another act was made concerning the true payment of tithes and offerings; in which several acts many and divers things be omitted and left out, which were convenient and very necessary to be added to the same: in consideration whereof, and to the intent the said tithes may be hereafter truly paid, according to the mind of the makers of the said acts, be it ordained and enacted by the king our sovereign lord, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that not only the said acts made in the said xxvii. and xxxii. years of the reign of the said late King Henry the VIII., concerning the true payment of tithes, and every article and branch therein contained, shall abide and stand in their full strength and virtue; but also be it further enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that every of the king's subjects shall from henceforth truly and justly, without fraud(2) or guile,

(1) It may be here observed, that Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 71, and Stat. 1 Vict. c. 69, have essentially changed the law respecting tithes, but it has been considered expedient to affix notes to Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, illustrative of the law as it existed previously to the enactment of such statutes. Vide

Stephens on Clerical Law, tit. TITHES.

(2) Justly, without fraud.—Where a man set out the tithes justly, and soon after reaped them away, he was held to come within the letter of this statute, and to be guilty of fraud. Heale v. Sprat, 2 Inst. 649.

set out, yield, and pay, all manner of their predial tithes (1) in their proper way they rise and happen, in such manner and form as hath been of right (2) and paid within forty years (3) next before the making of this act, or of custom (4) ought to have been paid; and that no person shall from henceforth take or carry away any such or like tithes, which have been yielded or paid in the said forty years, or of right ought to have been paid, in the place or titheable of the same, before he hath justly divided or set forth for the tithe the tenth part of the same, or otherwise agreed for the same tithes with the patron (5), vicar, or other owner, proprietary, or fermor of the same tithes;

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.

Every person shall set forth and pay his predial tithes.

2 Inst. 611.
3 Leon. 204.
1 Mod. 50.
Raymond, 14.

Predial tithes:—By these words are intended the tithes of such products of the soil as are renewed yearly, either spontaneously or by culture, as tithes of corn, wheat, and the like; (Norton v. Clarke, 1 Mod. 428;) but they are confined to things of a natural nature, and are not extended to personal tithes, as the tithes of calves, lambs, cherries, and pears. 2 Inst. 611.

As hath been of right:—These words import that tithes to be yielded in specie within forty years. 2 Ibid. 650.

Within forty years:—The reason of this limitation to forty years was that, as thirty years in the ecclesiastical law make a prescription for the church, so forty years are a prescription against the church. Doubitoffle v. Cro. Jac. 452. Sed vide Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 27, s. 43, & Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 100, as to the period of limitation, in the ecclesiastical courts must now be observed.

Of right or custom:—i. e. by custom, de modo decimandi. 2 Inst. 611.

Or otherwise agreed . . . with the patron.—In Alston (Clerk) v. Atlay, (7 A. 19,) the plaintiff being incumbent of a living of C. which was under the value accepted the living of O. with cure of the same. Afterwards, the patron of C. sold the living to L., and L. presented a clerk, who was instituted and inducted, and subscribed the articles. It was held, that the presentation against the patron, was void, by the acceptance of O., and disannexed from the advowson; that, consequently, it passed by the sale; that L.'s presentee was incumbent; and that plaintiff, not having been ousted, de facto, might sue for the living; and that it made no difference, as to whether the patron of C. or his venditor, or did not know, of the plaintiff's sale of O.;—Lord Denman observing, that the question is, whether the plaintiff had been seised of the living, by the second presentation; that depends upon the question, whether the right to present passed by the sale. The sale of a living actually void at the time of such right, for that turn, does not make any difference. It is not contended that the living, being void, de facto, at the time of sale, was not a living not being of the value of 8*l.*, &c. Hen. 8, c. 13, ss. 9 & 10, does not apply. But, by what may be called a compositio, or adoption of the canon of the council of Constance, (vide Watson's Clergyman's Law, 3d ed. cit. Stately v. Ullithorn, Hardr. 13) the living was voidable at the election of the patron, who might immediately present. It is said, that this is within the same mischief, as if the living were actually void, and that, therefore, the sale did not pass the right to present upon such an avoidance. If we so held, we should be making the law, not declaring it. There is nothing more dangerous than to argue that, because, in one case, the mischief is the same as in another, therefore the law existing as to the latter case, is to be extended to the former, as to which no such law exists, written or unwritten. No case has hitherto gone so far as to enable us to say, that the first living can here be treated as void." Sed vide Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 11.

In Hiscocks v. Wilmot, (Gow's N. P. C. 197,) it was held, that in an action by a vicar, or his lessee, on Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, for not setting out tithes, the plaintiff must either produce the endowment, or prove a prescriptive perception of the tithes;—Mr. Justice Holroyd observing, "Without the production of the endowment, or proof of a prescriptive perception of the small tithes by the vicar and his predecessors, I cannot conclude, as a necessary inference of law, that the vicar is, in this case, entitled to the small tithes. Generally speaking, a vicar is endowed with the small tithes of the vicarage; but his title depends wholly upon the endowment, or upon prescription and usage, which are evidence of an endowment. And it does not follow, as a necessary consequence of law, that the vicar can in all cases claim, against the rector, the small tithes arising within the vicarage. Without evidence, therefore, either of an endowment, or of prescriptive enjoyment, I do not think, that the plaintiff can make out his claim to the small tithes."

In debt, on Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, s. 1, for not setting out tithes, when the declaration stated, that they were within forty years next before the statute, of right yielded and payable, and yielded and paid, evidence that the lands had always been remembered to be in pasture, and had never within living memory paid any tithe, was held not to be sufficient to defeat the action. Mitchell v. Walker, 5 T. R. 260.

Where a parson had entered into an agreement with the occupiers of land for the retaining their tithes, it was held that, an action could not be maintained for not setting out the tithes, until the agreement or composition had been determined. Wyburd v. Tuck, 1 B. & P. 465.

Compositions were not apportionable under Stat. 11 Geo. 2, c. 19. Williams v. Powell

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.

Hardres, 315.

The penalty for carrying of corn or hay before tithes be set forth, or for letting the parson to carry it.

Co. pl. f. 161.
2 Bulst. 228,
283.

3 Bulst. 278.

under the pain of forfeiture of treble value(1) of the tithes so taken or away.

1 Vent. 126. Carth. 361. Cro. Eliz. 608, 621, 766. Cro. Car. 513.

"II. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that at all times soever, and as often as the said predial tithes shall be due, and at the tithes of the same, it to be lawful to every party to whom any of the said tithes to be paid, or his deputy or servant, to view and see(2) their said tithes justly and truly set forth and severed from the nine parts, and the same to take and carry away(3): and if any person carry away his corn or hay, or his predial tithes, before the tithe thereof be set forth; or willingly withhold tithes of the same or of such other things whereof predial tithes ought to be paid, or do stop or let the parson, vicar, proprietor, owner, or other their deputies, farmers, to view, take, and carry away their tithes(4) as is above said; by (Clerk), 10 East, 69; see vide Aynsley v. Wordworth, 2 V. & B. 331.

In Bradshaw & Swanton, (Carth. 70,) prohibition was prayed to the Consistory court upon the suggestion of a composition, made for all manner of tithes for two years, and the libel was for tithes arising within such time; but the prohibition was denied, and it was resolved, that no prohibition will lie upon any composition, whether for life or years, for any tithes; and that therefore the proper remedy was to appeal to the Arches, if the Consistory court should refuse a plea of composition.

A new trial was granted, where the declaration omitted to state, that the tithes were payable, and of right ought to be paid, and there was no evidence of their ever having been paid. Mansfield (Lord) v. Clarke, 5 T. R. 264, n. Et vide Kinaston v. Clark, Ibid. 265, n.

In Butt (Clerk) v. Howard, (4 B. & A. 655,) a declaration in debt for tithes, under Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, omitting to state, that the tithes had been yielded and paid, and of right ought to have been paid, within forty years next before the passing of the act, was held to be bad, even after verdict.

It seems that a lessee and farmer of tithes, could not have declared against an occupier, under Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, as owner and proprietor. Stevens v. Aldridge, 5 Price, 334.

Evidence that the parishioners had treated with a proprietor for a composition, was not alone sufficient to establish his possession of the tithes in an action on this statute. Wyburd v. Tuck, 1 B. & P. 458.

(1) Treble value:—To be recovered, not in the ecclesiastical, but in the temporal courts, by action of debt; and the forfeiture belonged, not to the king, but to the party grieved. Dagg v. Penkeron, Cro. Jac. 70. Rex v. Elliot (Sir John), Cro. Car. 608.

But besides the treble value nothing was to be recovered in the temporal court; that is, neither the tithes themselves, nor any satisfaction for them; that being out of the jurisdiction of those courts, and wholly in the spiritual court. Ibid. Penn's case, 2 Brownl. 7. Honycomb v. Swete (Clerk), Cro. Jac. 668. Which was the reason why in all suits upon this statute, the action was not laid for subtraction of tithes, but for a contempt of the statute, in not setting them out;

and being a contempt, the action lay against the person, and could not be brought against the executor; though it is said that where the suit was continued against executors, a prohibition hath been granted. And the executor might have had a writ upon this statute, for tithes not paid during the life of the testator. Holliford, 1 Sid. 88. Mr. Justice N. case, 1 Vent. 30. Wilks v. Russell (Sir T.), 95. 1 Keb. 682.

Nor could either damages or costs be recovered with the treble value; but the statute had not expressly given that costs were particularly given by Stat. 3, c. 11, where the single value did not exceed 20 nobles. Dagg v. Penkeron, Jac. 70. Day v. Pecknell, Mo. 50.

It was optional with the plaintiff, whether he would take a writ of inquiry or not, in an action founded on Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, to recover the treble value of tithes. Hodgetts, 1 Bing. 182.

It has been considered, that an action on the treble value was not within the Statute of Limitations.

(2) View and see:—In Gale & Emery, 23,) where the question was, whether the occupier was bound to give notice to the parson, before he set out the tithes, and the severance, it was determined, that the occupier was not bound; for though the ecclesiastical courts required such notice, the common law required no such thing; and as the statute only said "it shall be lawful to view," this was the intent of the Legislature was that the parishioners should give notice, and a prohibition was granted.

(3) Quietly to take and carry away:—In an action on the case might have been maintained at common law, for obstruction of the party taking his tithes; but a farmer bonâ fide stopped up an arable, the rector could not claim the tithes to his convenience. James (Clerk) v. C. & M. 266.

(4) Do stop or let the parson to view, take, and carry away their tithes:—In an action on the Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, for the treble value of tithes, to be set out, it was not enough for the defendant to show the existence, in the custom in the parish to set out the tithes, instead of the tenth mow; for the value was well as existence, of such a custom, thereof the said tithe or tenth is lost, impaired, or hurt; that then upon due proof thereof made before the spiritual judge or any other judge to whom heretofore he might have made complaint, the party so carrying away, withdrawing, setting, or stopping, shall pay the double value (1) of the tenth or tithe so taken, withdrawn, or carried away, over and besides the costs (2), charges, and expenses of the suit in the same: the same to be recovered before the ecclesiastical judge according to the king's ecclesiastical laws.

STAT. 2 & 3
Edw. 6, c. 13.

Godb. 245,
pl. 342.
Moor, 528.
Hob. 218.
Cro. Jac. 57,
68, 70, 318.

2 Roll. 54. Het. 123. March, 57.

partly triable in this form of action, though unusual in its nature, being given to the party injured, and his only remedy at common law was for the subtraction of the tithe due to him. Phillips v. Davies, 8 East, 178.

In debt upon Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, for not setting out a tenth, as the tithe of hay, the plaintiff was entitled to recover upon his common law right, unless there was evidence of some certain good modus or customary payment in lieu of the common law tithe; and though the plaintiff gave in evidence a terrier of 1696, stating a custom to take the eleventh cock of hay in a certain advanced state of preparation; and though his own and the defendant's witnesses stated other varying modes of payment; yet the former not being conclusive, and the jury not finding the eleventh cock of hay renderable, no other specific customary mode of tithing, the plaintiff was held entitled to recover. Maudsley (Clerk) v. Maudsley, 15 East, 641.

Where a composition for tithes had been paid by the farmer, and two years before an action of debt brought on Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, for not setting out the tithes, the vicar, in a conversation with the farmer, demanded his tithes vicarial, on which the other tendered him 40s., (the annual composition,) which the vicar refused to take, but assigned no reason for his refusal; this was held to be no evidence of a notice to determine the proposition, which notice ought to be unequivocal; and it was held also, that the farmer not having denied the vicar's right to tithe in kind before the action brought, was not precluded from taking the objection to the action at the trial, for want of a proper notice to determine the composition, analogous to a notice to quit land, by putting the vicar to the strict proof of his right to tithe in kind. Fell (Clerk) v. Willmott, 12 East, 83.

In debt for subtraction of tithes of any particular article, the plaintiff, though he alleged the tithe of that article to have been granted, yielded, and paid, and of right due and payable, on the land in question thirty years next before the making of the statute of Edward 6, need not have proved, that the particular article was cultivated there at that time; but it was incumbent on the defendant to prove, that it was not. Hallwell (Clerk) v. Troppe, 2 N.R. 173. 2 Taunt. 55.

A layman, lessee of the tithes of certain houses, which the rector let by auction in separate lots every year, proved a sufficient title to enable him to recover on the Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, for not setting out tithes, if he proved, that he received payment for tithes in a former year. Genson v. Wells, 8 Taunt. 342.

In an action on Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, by the plaintiff, as owner of the tithe of hay, against the defendant, as occupier of a close, for not setting out the tithe, copies of a bill and answer, in a suit by the vicar for tithe of hay against S. L., then occupier of the close, and from whom defendant purchased, denying the vicar's right, and setting up a right in the ancestor of plaintiff, on which the vicar abandoned the suit, were holden evidence against the defendant. Dartmouth (Countess) v. Roberts, 16 East, 334.

(1) Double value:—Where double value was claimed under this statute, it was requisite to mention it in the libel, otherwise prohibition might have been issued; (2 Inst. 650; Anon. March, 157;) and the reason why only the double value, &c., was by this branch to be recovered in the ecclesiastical court, whereas by the former branch, the treble could be recovered, was, that in the ecclesiastical court, the tithes themselves might have been recovered, (which in the temporal court could not have been done,) and therefore the whole value recovered in the ecclesiastical court was equivalent to the treble forfeiture at the common law. But then the libel must have been so ordered, as not to be grounded directly upon the statute for more than the double value, for if the single damages, (i. e. the value of the tithes,) were also grounded upon it, this would have been interpreted a suing in the spiritual court for treble value, and a prohibition would have gone.

(2) Costs:—The plaintiff was held to be entitled to full costs in an action on the statute of Edward 6, for treble value of tithes not set out, where there was a verdict for him, subject to a reference, and the arbitrator directed a verdict to be entered for 11.10s., the treble value. Pedley v. Frampton, 2 Chitt. 155.

In an action of debt for the penalty of the Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, for not setting out tithes, with a count in the declaration for the single value; after a demurrer to the declaration, the parties submitted to arbitration, and the arbitrator awarded the single value to be less than 20 nobles (6d. 13s. 4d.): it was held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to costs on the counts for the penalty, under the Stat. 8 & 9 Gul. 3, c. 11, s. 5, the value not having been found by a jury; but the court allowed him to have the costs taxed on the count for the single value. Barnard v. Moss, 1 Hen. Black. 107.

Where the proceeding in the cause was under Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, a motion to enforce payment of costs in a suit for subtraction of tithes, notwithstanding an appeal under Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 7, was rejected. Fife v. Blunt, 2 Curt. 914.

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.
Tithe of cattle feeding in a waste where the parish is not known.

Lands discharged of tithe by prescription or composition.

2 Co. 44 13 Co. 42. Co. pl. 452, 454, 457. 2 Roll. 479.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all person which hath or shall have any beasts or other cattle tithable, grazing, or depasturing in any waste or common ground, whereof the parish is certainly known, shall pay their tithes for the increase of the said cattle in the said waste or common, to the parson, vicar, proprietor, portionary, or other their farmers or deputies of the parish, hamlet, town, or other where the owner of the said cattle inhabiteth or dwelleth.

"IV. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person shall be sued or otherwise compelled to yield, give, or pay any tithes for any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, which by the statutes of this realm, or by any privilege (1) or prescription (2), are not charged.

(1) Privilege.—Which was acquired either by the bulls of popes, or canons of general councils, or the grants of exemption to particular orders of religious.

(2) Prescription.—The difference between custom and prescription is this: Custom is that which gives right to a province, county, hundred, city, or town, and is common to all within the respective limits, in pleading of which it is alleged, that in such a county, &c., there is, and time out of memory hath been, such a custom used, and approved therein.

Prescription is that, which gives a right to some particular person, with respect to some particular house, farm, or other thing, in pleading of which it is alleged, that all they whose estate he hath in such land, have time out of mind paid so much yearly, &c., in full satisfaction of all tithes, arising on those lands.

To make a good prescription by the canon law, (Extra. l. i., t. 23, c. 10, v. Pacificus; Ibid. l. 2, t. 26, c. 5, v. Noverit; Ibid. l. 2, t. 26, cc. 10, 15,) the essential conditions are: 1. That it be pacificus et continuus. 2. That the person who prescribes be bonæ fidei possessor. 3. That no part of it be tempore hostilitatis. 4. Nor tempore vacationis ecclesiæ.

Custom and prescription are either de non decimando, or de modo decimandi.

i. De non decimando: concerning which, the general rule is, that none but spiritual persons and corporations, being by common law capable of tithes in perannuity, may so prescribe, as to be wholly freed from tithes, without any recompense or consideration for them. But this general rule is delivered in the books of law under several exceptions, as, 1. "That the king, as mixta persona, may prescribe de non decimando; by the same reason, that, as such, he is capable of tithes; but it hath been adjudged, that a churchwarden, though his office is a kind of spiritual office, may not prescribe generally in non decimando for lands given for the reparation of the church. Hertford (Earl of) v. Leech, Jon. (Sir W.), 387. Pigot v. Heron, Mo. (Sir P.), 483. 1 Roll. Abr. Dimes (H), 653. 2. That the lessee, tenant at will, and copyholder, of a spiritual person, though a layman, shall in this respect enjoy the exemption of the lessor, &c., who is supposed to reap the benefit of it, in reserving the greater rents, by reason of such exemption. Le Seigneur Cromwell's case, 2 Co. 78. Crouch v. Fryer, 2 Co. 785. 3. That a county or part of a county may well plead a custom de non decimando in respect of this or that particular thing, which hath been pleaded and allowed in the tithe milk of ewes, and of tithe of corn in the wild of Kent, and in forty pence in the wild of Sussex. But a single person may not prescribe de non decimando for tithes, nor may any larger district custom absolutely, to have their lands freed from the payment of all tithes, with nothing in lieu. And lest this allowance of custom de non decimando to laymen, in such case, should seem to break in upon the general rule, a distinction hath been set on it, that it is for such kind of tithes as are custom only, as of wood, &c., which do not allow to be due of common right. 1 Roll. Abr. Dimes (H), 653, 654.

In the case of the Corporation of St. Edmund's v. Evans, (1 Com. 661) the question, whether a layman could prescribe in non decimando against a proprietor, the court resolved, that the foundation for such a distinction, against a defendant might prescribe against a proprietor, any more, than against a spiritual person, which it was admitted could not.

In Hick v. Woodson, (2 Salk. 392; 1 Ld. Raym. 137,) upon prohibition the plaintiff declared of a hundred such a hundred to pay no tithe for the payment of cattle-barren. But a writ was awarded, because agistment is a common right; and the court took notice, that a hundred or a county may prescribe in a non decimando for tithes, that is in its nature de jure titheable by no one single person, or his estate; and more, by the same reason, can the hundred, which consists but of many single estates. "But of things which in themselves are not titheable de jure, a hundred or a county may prescribe in a non decimando, they are discharged in such case of custom to the contrary, and they do insist on their ancient right, and that hath not prevailed against it."

Under this head of prescription, it will not be improper to add some observations concerning prescription against the church.

"Placuit hinc sanctæ, magneque ecclesiæ, at res, et privilegia, quæ Dei conconsuetudine pertinent, et sive à divinis imperatoribus, sive ab aliis Dei in scriptis donata, et ab eis per triginta possessa sunt, nequaquam à præsulibus eorum quæcunque particularis per potestatem subtrahat, autamenta quælibet auferat; sed sint in potestate, ac jussu præsulibus ecclesiasticis intra triginta annorum spatio ecclesiis possessa fuisse noscantur. Ergo secularium contra præsentem legem egerit, tanquam sacrilegus iudicis donec se correxerit, et ecclesiæ privilegia, seu res restituerit, anatema." Caus. 16, q. 3, c. 8.

de terra, quam habetis in parochia eorum de plautio, per triginta annos eis persolvistis, eas sibi de cætero integras servatis: Licet enim privilegiorum ecclesiæ beneficio fratribus cisterciensis indultum fuerit, quod de laboribus nullas decimas persolvere debeant; religio tamen indulto tanto tempore retrahere voluistis; cum liberum sit de suo juri renunciare; eoque modo testis vos in hac parte fuerit." Extra. 23, c. 6.

actorum patrum sanctiones statuentes averunt, et nos irrefragabiliter convincit, ut omnes possessiones ad singulas ecclesias nostrorum fratrum pertinentes, à per triginta annos possessæ sunt, et sacri abasque synodali proclamatione perpetuo teneantur." Extra. l. 2, t. 26, ad autem te scire volumus et tenere, reversus ecclesias, minorem præscriptionem quadraginta annorum, romana non admittit, licet quidam canones decem tricennalem; et ecclesia se potius ecclesiam quadragenariam temporis descriptione tueri de re illa quam in quadraginta annis noscitur possidere. Verum si de præscriptione et inter partes fuerit mota questio, ab parte testes recipi debent; et si propter interruptionem, præscriptio non tenet.

Modus decimandi. 'Modus decimandi' lands, tenements, or hereditaments, given to the parson and his successors, or an annual certain sum, or other ways, time out of mind, to the parson and his successors, in full satisfaction of all the tithes in kind of place.' The case De Modo Decimandi, 13 Co. 40. And this may be pleaded by the lord of a manor for the tithes of his lands, or account of lands of the gift of one lord of the manor, and held by the lord and his successors time out of mind, in a parish or hamlet for this or that tithe, by reason of lands enjoyed by the lord, time whereof, &c., within such parish or hamlet; and lastly, by any private agreement for his own lands, or part thereof, for the liberation of a certain sum of money, or recompense.

To make a good custom or prescription must have these four qualifications: 1. modus must be something for the use and interest of the parson, and therefore finding straw for the body of the church, the finding a rope for a bell, the paying five shillings to the parish clerk, the paying a quit rent to the lord of the manor; when these have been urged as discharges from tithes in kind, the modus's have been held not to be good. Case of Skinner, March, 65.

"ii. The modus must not be, one tithe paid in consideration of another, as, not tithes of other kinds, to be discharged of tithes for dry cattle, not so much for every cow and calf, for tithe of herbage. Ingolby v. Johnson, Cro. Eliz. 786. 12 Co. 45. Norton v. Briggs, 1 Ld. Raym. 242. But where the question was, whether ten fleeces of wool and two lambs for all tithes, was a good prescription, the court of Exchequer was divided, and Ward (Chief Baron), with Smith, held, that it was the same thing as a modus in money, provided the payment was to be made whether there were sheep or no. York (Archbishop of) v. Newcastle (Duke of), 2 Salk. 656.

"iii. It must be something in kind different from the thing that is due, and therefore a load of hay in lieu of tithe hay, or certain sheaves of corn for all tithes of corn, is not a good prescription; (Brooksbie's case, Cro. Eliz. 173;) but this holds only (as the books tell us) in case the things are de jure titheable, and not by custom only; (York (Archbishop of) v. Newcastle (Duke of), 2 Salk. 656;) nor do they seem to disallow it, if it be to pay part of the same thing in another manner, as to pay thirty eggs for all eggs, which he is bound to pay whether he has hens or no, and to pay at a certain time.

"iv. It must be something certain and durable; (Couper v. Andrews, Hob. 10;) because the tithe in kind is an inheritance certain, and it is against nature, that it should be extinguished by a recompence not as certain and durable, at least, though not so valuable. For this reason, fourpence to be paid yearly, by two persons inhabiting two such houses, in consideration of all tithes, was adjudged ill, (Perry v. Soam, Cro. Eliz. 139,) because the houses may decay, or none live in them, as was also, for the same reason, a pretended modus to pay four shillings for every day's ploughing of wheat, and two shillings for every day's ploughing of barley, it being uncertain how much every day's ploughing was. Took v. Ledgierd, 1 Keb. 612. Upon the like foundation of uncertainty, rests the custom of having all the milk so many mornings and evenings from the 9th of May, till a young lamb yeaned should be heard to bleat, in lieu of tithe milk; which the court disallowed, because by such a modus the parson may have nothing; as, suppose a lamb should be heard to bleat before the 9th of May, and so the payment of two shillings in the pound, of the improved rent in lieu of all tithes, was held to be nought; for that is to rise and fall as the land is let, and the parson cannot know it; whereas, every modus ought to be as certain, as the duty which is destroyed by it. York (Archbishop of) v. Newcastle (Duke of), 2 Salk. 657. Startup v. Dodderidge, 2 Ld. Raym. 1158.

"In Byne v. Dodderidge, (1 Ld. Raym.

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.

STAT. 2 & 3 with the payment of any such tithes, or that be discharged by any real (1).
EDW. 6, c. 13.

696.) the modus suggested was, that they used to pay 2s. in the pound of the rent reserved, and the court declared, "1. That this cannot be a modus, it amounting to as much as the tithes in kind, but it may be a composition. 2. A custom cannot be applied to rents reserved from time to time upon frequent new reservations."

"In Carleton v. Brightwell, (2 P. Wms. 462.) it was insisted on, that the inhabitants of such a tenement, with the lands usually enjoyed therewith, had been accustomed to pay such a modus for tithe corn. To which it was said by the court, "This is quite uncertain, the house may fall down and be uninhabited, and then no modus will be payable; also, nothing can be more uncertain than lands usually enjoyed with the tenement, since the lands let with a farm-house may probably be often shifted."

"In Chapman v. Monson, (2 P. Wms. 565,) the modus under dispute was, that every occupier of land within such a parish, living out of the parish, should pay fourpence an acre for all pasture land within the parish, but if he live within the parish, should pay tithes in kind; and the modus was declared to be good. And to the objection, that by this rule, foreigners were more favoured than the parishioners, it was answered, in summing up the evidence, that they who have not the benefit of the parson's care, should answer the less duty to him; but declared at the same time, that though every modus must be supposed to have had a reasonable commencement, yet as to the necessity of showing now, that it is reasonable, seemed not to be so clear; because this modus having been from time immemorial, none can know, but that there were such circumstances in those ancient times, as might make such a composition reasonable, though at present they may not be discoverable. It is enough, at this time of day, that before the restrictive statutes the parson, patron, and ordinary, might bind the revenues of the parson, and that all these modus's must have had their commencement from an instrument signed by all the three; but that there could be no colour to say, that because such instrument in so great a length of time may be lost, therefore the modus shall be lost also.

"As every consideration will not make a good modus, so a modus, though founded upon good consideration, may be several ways discharged, and tithes become due in kind. As, 1. Where land is converted to other uses; as where the prescription is for hay and grass specially in so many acres of land, if the land is converted into a hop garden, or tillage, the prescription is gone. 1 Rol. Abr. Diemes (E), 651. 2. By the alteration or destruction of the thing, for which the modus was paid; (1 Rol. Abr. Diemes (F), 652;) as, where two fulling mills were under the same roof, and turned into a corn mill; where also there was one pair of stones in a mill, and another pair was added; and where the water-course was altered by the owner, and the mill was pulled down and reedified; in all these cases it was held that the modus was gone. 3. By payment of the consideration, or payment of tithes in kind, for so long a time, as to destroy the possibility of making such custom or prescription was; but interruption for some short time only discharge it, especially if made by the tenant to the prejudice of the lessor." Parker, 2 Bulst. 240. Gibson's Cod. 675.

(1) Composition real.—This is the case of archbishops and bishops to Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 19, and in the case of other ecclesiastical corporations and congregations, previously to Stat. 13 Eliz. where the incumbent, together with the patron and ordinary, made an agreement executed under their hands, that certain lands should be discharged from the payment of tithes in specie, in lieu of a recompense to the incumbent in money, or in lands, to him and his successors for ever, or in some other way for their benefit and advantage. This is in the canon law, (Extra. l. i. t. 36,) and follows: "Statuimus ut si super decimis, et aliquam personam ecclesiasticam assensu episcopi, vel archiepiscopi compositio facta fuerit, rata, et inconvalescat."

The nature and cognizance of compositions will best appear from the writ, which is in the Register. 38 (b):) "Rex, tali iudici salutem, monstravit nobis A. tenens quandam partem manerii de D. quod licet E. nuper de manerio predicti per quoddam indentatum dedisset et concessisset persone ecclesie de D. quatuor acras cum pertinentiis in eodem manerio, et tenend' eidem E. et successoribus personis ecclesie predictae imperpetuum idem F. per predict' scriptum de voluntate episcopi Lincolnie diocesis predicti et I. tunc patroni ecclesie predictae, concessisset pro se et successoribus quod idem E. heredes et assignati imperpetuum essent quieti de decimis rum e lacticiniorum in manerio predicto pro dictis quatuor acris terris sic et concessisset, idemque E. heredes et assignati sui semper hactenus a tempore concessio predictae de decima vitalium et lacticiniorum infra manerium predict' quieti et suevissent; G. tamen nunc persona predictae tenens predictas quatuor acras terre, predict' A. assignatum predicti wardi, super decimam huiusmodi vitalium et lacticiniorum in eodem manerio standam trahit in placitum coram, seculari iudice, et occasione occasione iniquitatis et ipsam et occasione occasione iniquitatis, in eversionem concessio nationis predictarum, et predicti A. diem non modicum et gravamen. Et discussio huiusmodi donationis et concessio de laico feodo in regno nostro in curia nostra et non alibi tractari debet; vobis prohibemus ne placitum laicum feodum in regno nostro tangat."

"V. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such barren heath or waste ground(1), other than such as be discharged for the payment of tithes by act of parliament, which before this time have lain barren and paid no tithes by reason of the same barrenness(2), and now be or hereafter shall be improved and converted into arable ground or meadow, shall from henceforth, after the end and term of seven years(3) next after such improvement fully ended and determined, pay tithe for the corn and hay growing upon the same; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"VI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any such barren, waste, or heath ground, hath before this time been charged with the payment of any tithes, and that the same be hereafter improved or converted into arable ground or meadow; that then the owner or owners thereof shall, during seven years next following from and after the same improvement, pay

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.
The tithe of barren heath or waste ground.
Dyer, 170.
Cro. Eliz. 475.
Moor, 909.
Cro. Car. 208.

in curia Christianitatis, nec quicquam in hac parte, quod in enervationem dicti scripti et donationis et concessionis predictarum, nec in curia nostra et non alibi tractari debeat, sicut predictum est, cedere poterit, attentatis seu attentari facietis quovis modo, &c."

But since Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 19, and Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10, no real compositions, any more than alienations, can be made, since all grants are thereby expressly restrained and made void, which are not according to the tenour of those statutes. Where a real composition hath been made, if the lands discharged thereby be transferred or granted to another, the holder or grantee shall have the benefit of it. Hyndorne v. Holme, Jon. (Sir W.), 369.

1. Barren heath or waste ground:—By this was understood, ground that would not bear corn without very great cost in the manuring. Witt v. Buck, 3 Bulst. 166.

The rule of law for determining what was barren ground within Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, was, whether the land was of such a nature as to require an extraordinary expense in the manuring or tilling to bring it into a proper state of cultivation, and not whether, it was not in its nature so fertile as, after being ploughed and sown, to produce of itself without manuring or tillage, a crop worth more than the expense of ploughing, sowing, and reaping. Warwick v. Collins, 2 M. & S. 349.

But land which was of a good natural quality, was liable to tithe immediately, notwithstanding Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, s. 5, although the expense attending the breaking it up and tilling it, exceeded the return made to the farmer in the several first years of cultivation. Ibid. 5 Ibid. 166.

2) By reason of the same barrenness:—All the books agree, that the land exempted by this clause, must have been such, as was barren in its own nature, and could not, without extraordinary cost and charge, have been made fruitful; i.e., with Coke, "quoad agriculturam: for albeit it doth yield some fruit, yet if it be barren land, quoad agriculturam, as to tillage, which this branch meant to advance and encourage, it is within this act." 3 Inst. 655. Berry v. Perry, 3 Bulst. 65.

Possell, Justice, (2 Ld. Raym. 991.) having laid down this doctrine of barrenness simple natura, adds, "and not land, upon which wood or the like grew before, which is afterwards burnt, and the land converted into tillage."

From this necessary condition of a natural barrenness, divers lands, which at first sight seemed to be within the act, have been denied the benefit of it, by express resolutions and judgments. As, 1, marsh and sandy land gained from the sea; (2 Inst. 656;) 2, land that hath been overflown for a term of years and is regained; (Sherington v. Flewood, Cro. Eliz. 475;) 3, fenny lands drained; (Anon. Mo. (Sir F.), 430;) 4, lands full of thorns and bushes made arable, or meadow land, by grubbing; (Sherington v. Flewood, Ibid. 909; Cro. Eliz. 475; 2 Inst. 656;) 5, land that hath been barren by neglect only. In all these cases, although the owners are at great charges in recovering and improving; yet the lands recovered and improved, not being barren in their own nature, but by accident only, were not entitled to the benefit of this clause, but were titheable immediately. And therefore, (as to the third article,) when an act was made for draining of certain fens, (4 Jac. 1, c. 13, s. 3,) a special proviso was added, to free them from paying any manner of tithes, until the feast of St. Michael the Archangel next ensuing the end of seven years, after the time limited for the draining thereof.

Whether land was barren or not, was triable at common law, and not in the spiritual court; but it must have been first pleaded there, and then if the spiritual court would not allow the plea, prohibition might have been granted. Anon. 1 Keb. 253. Cookson's case, Ibid. 387.

(3) Seven years:—The seven years during which heath or waste ground, which had lain barren and paid no tithes by reason of the barrenness, but which was afterwards improved and converted into arable ground or meadow, was exempt from tithe by the Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, s. 5, began to run from the time when some act had been done to make the land more productive than it was before; and therefore where barren land had been allotted and inclosed by commissioners in 1821, under an Inclosure Act, and the allottee in that year turned on his cattle, but did no act to render the land more productive; it was held, that the seven years did not then begin to run, and that he was not liable to pay tithe of corn in 1828. Ross v. Smith (Clerk), 1 B. & Ad. 907 any person or tithe as was paid for the same before the said improvement; any act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"VII. And be it also further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person exercising merchandises, bargaining and selling(1), clothing, handicraft, or any other faculty, being such kind of persons, and in such places, as heretofore within these forty years have accustomedly used to pay such personal tithes, as they ought to pay, (other than such as been common day-labourers(2),) shall yearly at or before the feast of Easter pay(3) for his personal tithes the tenth part of his clear gains, his charges, and expenses, according to his estate, condition, or degree, to be therein abated, allowed(4), and deducted.

"VIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, that in all such places where handicraftsmen have used to pay their tithes within these forty years, the same custom of payment of tithes to be observed and to continue; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"IX. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person refuse to pay his personal tithes in form aforesaid, that then it shall be lawful to the ordinary of the same diocese where the party that so ought to pay the said tithes is dwelling, to call the same party before him, and by his discretion to examine him by all lawful and reasonable means, other than by the parties own corporal oath, concerning the true payment of the said personal tithes.

"X. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person and persons which by the laws or customs of this realm ought to make or pay their offerings, shall yearly from henceforth well and truly come and pay his or their offerings to the parson, vicar, proprietor, or their deputies or farmers of the parish or parishes where it shall fortune or happen him or them to dwell or abide; and that at such four offering-days(5), as at any time heretofore within the space of four years last past hath been used and accustomed for the payment of the same, and in default thereof to pay for their said offerings at Easter then next following.

"XI. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to any parish which stands upon and towards the sea-coasts, the commodities and occupying whereof consisteth chiefly in fishing, and have by reason thereof used to satisfy their tithes by fish; but that all and every such parish and parishes shall hereafter pay their tithes according to the laudable customs, as they have heretofore of ancient time within these forty years used and accustomed, and shall pay their offerings as is aforesaid.

"XII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend in any wise to the inhabitants of the city of London and Canterbury, and the suburbs of the same, or to any other town or place that hath used to pay their tithes by their houses, otherwise than they ought or should have done before the making of this act; any thing contained in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

The ordinary may examine him that refuseth to pay his tithe.

The ordinary may examine him that refuseth to pay his tithe.

Payment of offerings.

Tithe of fish.

Payment of tithes by houses. Latch, 89.

(1) Selling.—The parson of a parish in Bristol, (Dolley v. Davies, 2 Bulst. 141.) libelled in the spiritual court against an inn-keeper to have tithes of the profits of his kitchen, stable, and wine cellar, and set forth in his libel, that he made great gain in selling of his beer, having bought it for 500*l.*, and sold it for 1000*l.*, of which gain he ought to have tithe per communem legem Anglie. Upon which occasion, the clerk of the papers informed the court, that when one had libelled for tithes of the gains of 10*l.* for 100*l.* put out, a prohibition was granted; and it was also granted in this case.

(2) Day-labourers.—It was resolved in Ellis & Drake, (1 Rol. Abr. Dinner(A), 646,) that servants of the plough should not pay any tithes of their wages, there being, (as was then said,) as much reason, that the servants of the plough, as that the cattle of the parson, should be exempt from tithes.

(3) Pay.—To the church in which he receives the sacraments: "Noveris igitur, quod æquum est, ut illi ecclesie decime personales reddantur ab eis, in qua ecclesie percipiunt sacramenta."

(4) Allowed.—This is the rule of the canon law: "Scias, quod in totis decimis merè personalibus — deducuntur expensæ, tam in re, quam citra rem, et extra rem, factæ." Lyndw. de Dec. Quoniam. c. Negotiationis.

(5) Offering-days.—Christmas, Easter, Whitsuntide, and the feast of the Dedication of the parish church, were the usual days of offering.

XIII. And be it further enacted by authority aforesaid, that if any person substract or withdraw any manner of tithes, obventions, profits, commodities, or other duties beforementioned, or any part of them, contrary to the true meaning of this act, or of any other act heretofore made, that then the party so substracting or withdrawing the same, may or shall be convented and sued in the king's ecclesiastical court, by the party from whom the same shall be substracted or withdrawn, to the intent the king's judge ecclesiastical shall and may then and there hear and determine the same according to the king's ecclesiastical laws; and that it shall not be lawful unto the parson, vicar, proprietor, owner, or other their officers or deputies, contrary to this act, to convent or sue such withholder of tithes, obventions, and other duties aforesaid, before any other judge than ecclesiastical. And if any archbishop, bishop, chancellor, or other judge ecclesiastical, give any sentence in the foresaid causes of tithes, obventions, profits, emoluments, or other duties aforesaid, or in any of them, (and no appeal ne prohibition hanging) and the party condemned do not obey the said sentence, that then it shall be lawful to every such judge ecclesiastical to excommunicate the said party so as he is condemned and disobeying; in the which sentence of excommunication, if the said party excommunicate wilfully stand and endure still excommunicate by the space of forty days next after, upon denunciation and publication thereof in the parish church, or the place or parish where the party so excommunicate is dwelling or most abiding, the said judge ecclesiastical may then at his pleasure refer the king in his court of chancery, of the state and condition of the said party so excommunicate, and thereupon to require process de excommunicato to be awarded against every such person as hath been so excommunicate.

XIV. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any party at any time hereafter, for any matter or cause (1) before rehearsed (2), limited, or granted by this act, to be sued or determined in the king's ecclesiastical court, before the ecclesiastical judge, do sue for any prohibition in any of the king's courts, where prohibitions (3) before this time have been used to be granted, that in every such case the same party, before any prohibition shall be granted to them, shall bring and deliver to the hands of some of the justices or judges of the same court where such party demandeth the prohibition, the very true copy of the libel depending in the ecclesiastical court, concerning the matter wherefore the party demandeth the prohibition, subscribed or marked with the hand of the party; and under the copy of the said libel shall be written the suggestion whereby the party so demandeth the said prohibition: and in case the said suggestion, by two honest and sufficient witnesses at the least, be not proved (4) true

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.

Suits for withholding of tithes shall be in the ecclesiastical court. 1 Bulst. 67. See 4 Bar. 2095.

Excommunication of the party condemned.

A copy of the libel shall be delivered to the judges before a prohibition granted. 1 Leon. 286. 2 Leon. 212.

Dyer, 242.
Cro. Eliz. 736.
Cro. Car. 208.

Matter or cause.—If the suggestion be upon a personal contract or agreement, it need not have been proved to be in contract, according to this statute, but only to modus, and not to modus or leases or contracts. Tanbush v. Smith, 1 Co. 102, 119. Anon. Litt. But both have been held by some. Reynolds v. Rye, 11. 55; Stowds v. Hawkins, 1 W. 231, but others hold this to be of general extent; affirming that, though it took place in suggestion of arrears, exemptions on Stat. 27 Hen. 8, c. 1, barren lands, &c. And by the Stat. 27 Hen. 8, c. 1, it seems to be of the obligation to bring in suggestion, and (by consequence) must be general.

Proved.—2 Salk. 554; 2 Ld. Raym. 1311. The court agreed, that this was restricted to suits for small as well as for large.

Before rehearsed.—This act extendeth only to praelial and personal tithes, but not to it rehearsed Stat. 27 Hen. 8, c.

20, and Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 7, both which statutes extend unto all kinds of tithes, viz. praelial, personal, and mixed, and to offerings also; therefore this branch also extended to them all. 2 Inst. 662.

(3) Prohibitions.—Vide Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 21.

(4) Proved.—This is to be understood under two limitations; one with regard to the degrees of proof, the other with regard to the clearness of the evidence. Austin v. Pigot, Cro. Eliz. 736. Mo. (Sir F.), 911. i. With regard to the degrees, it was sufficient, that enough was proved upon which to ground a prohibition, though the suggestion was not shown to be strictly and wholly true; so when the suggestion was for twenty acres of pasture, and as many acres of wood, in lieu of tithes, and proof was only made of the wood; for wool and lamb, and the witnesses only proved as to the lamb; for 100 acres, when there were only 60; for 20s. by way of modus, when the sum was 40s. In these cases the proofs were adjudged to be sufficient, because enough was proved to show, that

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 13.

A consultation granted for default of proving a suggestion.
Carth. 463.
Het. 147.
1 Roll. 55.
2 Roll. 125.
Moor, 573.
pl. 783.

Of what things
a judge ecclesiastical shall not hold plea.
13 Edw. 1.
St. I. c. 5.
9 Edw. 2.
St. I. c. 1, 2, 5.
1 Edw. 3.
St. II. c. 11.
18 Edw. 3.
St. III. c. 7.
45 Edw. 3, c. 3.
2 Inst. 663.

No tithes of marriage goods shall be paid in Wales, &c.

in the court where the said prohibition shall be so granted, within (1) six months (2) next following after the said prohibition shall be so granted and awarded: and then the party that is letted or hindered of his or their suit in the ecclesiastical court by such prohibition, shall upon his or their request and suit, without delay, have a consultation (3) granted in the same case in the court where the said prohibition was granted; and shall also recover double costs and damages against the party that so pursued the said prohibition, the said costs and damages to be assigned or assessed by the court where the said consultation shall be so granted: for which costs and damages the party to whom they shall be awarded may have an action of debt, by bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's courts of record, wherein the defendant shall not wage his or their law, nor have any essoin or protection allowed or admitted.

"XV. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to give any minister or judge ecclesiastical any jurisdiction to hold plea of any matter, cause or thing, being contrary or repugnant to or against the effect, intent, or meaning of the statute of Westminster Second (4), the fifth chapter, the statutes of Articuli cleri (5), Circumspecte agatis (6), Silva cadua (7), the treatise De regis prohibitionibus (8), or against the statute of Anno primo Edwardi Tertii, the tenth chapter (9), or any of them, ne yet hold plea in any matter whereof the king's court of right ought to have jurisdiction; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XVI. Provided nevertheless, where heretofore such a custom hath been in many parts of Wales, that of such chattel and other goods as hath been given to the marriage of any person, their tithes have been exacted and levied by the persons and curates in those parts: which custom being dissonant from any part of this realm, as it seemed when the said country of Wales was through civil dissension uncultured, for want of other sufficient profits that might otherwise grow to the curates and ministers there, to have been for that time tolerable: so now the country being well manured and husbanded, and the tithe is duly paid thereof of corn, hay, wool, and cheese, and of other increase of all manner of cattle, as it is commonly in all other parts of this realm, the same custom seems to be grievous and unreasonable, specially where the benefices are else sufficient for the finding of the said ministers and curates: that it be therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the first day of May next coming no such tithes of marriage the court Christian ought not to have holden plea thereof, but if proof was neither made of the modus laid, nor of any other modus, then the suggestion was not proved. Case de Prohibition, Yelv. 55. Webb v. Petts, Noy, 44. Goddard & Tiler's case, Hetl. 100.

ii. As to the clearness of the evidence, it was sufficient in this case, if the witnesses declare, as to the matter of the suggestion, that they believed it, or had known it so, or had heard it, or that there was a common fame of it. Ford v. Woodham, Noy, 28. Wallsinghams & Stone's case, Litt. 155. Bennet & Shell, Palm. 377.

(1) Within:—If there had been no certainty in the first proof, it could not have been supplied by good proof after the six months, but if good proof was made within the time, it might have been certified or recorded after the time. Ibid.

(2) Six months:—i.e. six calendar months, (not to be reckoned by twenty-eight days to the month,) and to be computed from the teste of the writ: which months were to be in term, and the vacation no part of the time, as it was held in Copley v. Collins, Hob. 179. Sharp v. Hubbard, 2 Mod. 58. Foy v. Lister, 2 Ld. Raym. 1172. But in Skinner's case, the proof was declared to be good, although in time of vacation, and the case is Moore (Anon. Mo. (Sir F.), 573, was denied. Skinner's case, Noy, 30. Foy v. Lister, 1 Salk. 554.

(3) Consultation:—After which the party might have had a new prohibition upon the same libel; (Strowde v. Hoskins, 100. See W.), 231; Pool v. Gardner, Carth. 40.) as much as the Stat. 30 Edw. 3, ante 21, against prohibition after consultation, extended not to those consultations for defect of proof within six months, but only to consultations which were granted upon the matter of the suggestion. See ride Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 2.

(4) Westminster Second:—Stat. 13 Edw. 1, St. I., c. 5, s. 4, ante 18.

(5) Statutes of Articuli cleri:—Ante 33—40.

(6) Circumspecte agatis:—Stat. 13 Edw. 1, St. IV. c. 1, ante 24.

(7) Silva cadua:—Stat. 45 Edw. 1, c. 3, ante 72.

(8) De regis prohibitionibus:—My Lord Coke says this is the treatise entitled, "Prohibitio formata super Articulis."

(9) Anno primo Edwardi Tertii, the tenth chapter [St. II.]:—Ante 44.

to be exacted or required of any person within the said dominion of Wales, or thereof of the same; any thing in this act contained, or any other act, custom, or prescription had or made to the contrary hereof notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 & 3
 EDW. 6, c. 13.

VII. STAT. 2 & 3 EDWARDI 6, c. 19(1). A.D. 1548.

STAT. 2 & 3
 EDW. 6, c. 19.

As touching Abstinence from Flesh in Lent, and other usual Times."

Albeit the king's subjects now having a more perfect and clear light of the true Word of God, through the infinite mercy and clemency of almighty God, by the hands of the king's majesty, and his most noble father of memory, promulgate, shewed, declared, and opened, and thereby perceiv-ing that every day or one kind of meat of itself is not more holy, more pure, or more clean than another, for that all days and all meats be of their nature of one purity, cleanness, and holiness, and that all men should by them live to the glory of God, and at all times and for all meats give thanks unto Him, of which meats none can defile Christian men or make them unclean at any time, to whom all meats be lawful and pure, so that they be not used in disobedience or vice;
 yet forasmuch as divers of the king's subjects, turning their knowledge therein to sensuality, where they should thereby increase in virtue, have of late years more than in times past broken and contemned such abstinence, which hath been used in this realm upon the Fridays and Saturdays, the Embring days, and other days, commonly called Vigils, and in the time commonly called Lent, and other accustomed times: the king's majesty, considering that due and godly abstinence is a mean to virtue, and to subdue men's bodies to their souls and spirit, and considering also specially that fishers and men using the trade of living by fishing on the sea may thereby the rather be set on work, and that by eating of fish much flesh shall be saved and increased, and also for divers other considerations and commodities of this realm, doth ordain and enact, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all manner of statutes, laws, constitutions, and orders, concerning any manner of fasting or abstinence from any kinds of meats heretofore in this realm made or used, shall from the first day of May next coming lose their force and strength, and be void and of none effect, &c."

[Expired.]
 Eating of flesh
 on certain days
 and times
 forbidden.
 5 & 6 Edw. 6,
 c. 3.

Embring days,
 Lent.

All laws concerning fasting
 repealed.

VIII. STAT. 2 & 3 EDWARDI 6, c. 20(2). A.D. 1548.

STAT. 2 & 3
 EDW. 6, c. 20.

As touching Benefices, for not paying of his Tenths due to the King, the same being demanded, shall be deprived of that Benefice."

Where in the parliament holden upon prorogation at Westminster the third of November, in the six and twentieth year of the reign of the most excellent King Henry the Eighth, father to our sovereign lord the king's majesty now is, amongst other things concerning the payment of one annual pension the tenth part of all possessions of the church, spiritual and temporal, granted to the king, to his heirs, it was enacted, ordained, and established, that every ecclesiastical person, and other, having any ecclesiastical promotion or dignity, specified in the said act, which did not duly pay the said tenth part, and by the said act were certified by the archbishop, bishop, or other authorized in the said act, should upon such certificate, made according to the tenor of the said act, be deprived ipso facto of all such dignities and promotions spiritual, that by such incumbent making such default, had at the time of any such certificate made, or at any time after, as by the said act more plainly may appear.

And forasmuch as the pain limited in the said statute, in such form and manner as in the same is expressed, is very sore and dangerous unto all the king's faithful and obedient subjects of the clergy, whereof divers sithen the making of the said statute, intending none otherwise than most willingly, and with good

The inconveniences ensuing by the Stat. of 26 Hen. 8, c. 3,
 touching de-

1. Vide Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 5, s. 15. Stat. (2) Repealed by Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 4.
 2. Stat. 35 Eliz. c. 7, ss. 8 & Revived by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 4. Vide Stat. 2
 & 3 Ann. c. 11.

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 20.

privation of all
a man's spiritual livings for lack of payment of the tenth of one.

The penalty
for default of payment of tenths shall be the forfeiture
of that only benefice out of the which the same is due.

heart, that payment should be made of the said tenths by them due, without fraud or delay, to such officers, and at such times as by the said statute is appointed and declared, by the default and negligence of their farmers, and other whom they have trusted to make payment thereof, and by divers other sinister means, being certified or making default of payment thereof, have incurred the pain and danger of the said statute, with the loss and deprivations of all the spiritual promotions whereof they were then incumbents, being also made unable to take any other, to the utter undoing of such persons, and the like peril and danger of many other the king's most humble and faithful subjects of the clergy, against whom the like things may be practised and attempted hereafter: for the moderation of such pain, and to the end that the king's majesty, our sovereign lord that now is, and his heirs and successors, may be truly answered and satisfied of the said yearly pension or annual rent of the tenth part, united and knit to his imperial crown in manner and form as in the said act is contained:

"III. The king's said faithful and most obedient subjects, the clergy of this realm, do most humbly beseech his majesty, that it may be enacted and established by his highness, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any sum of the said annual pension being once due, and demanded according to the manner and form specified in the said act, be not truly contented and paid unto such archbishop or bishop, or their ministers and officers, or to such other person or persons, or their ministers or servants, as shall have the charge of collection thereof, every year yearly at the time of the said act expressed, and thereupon certificate made into the king's majesty's court of first-fruits and tenths, in writing under the seals of any archbishop or bishop, or of such as be limited and charged to the collection of the said pension by the said former act; then every incumbent so making default and certified, shall be judged deprived ipso facto of that only dignity, benefice, or other ecclesiastical promotion, by what name soever it be called, whereof such certificate shall be made; so that such dignity, benefice, or other ecclesiastical promotion, whereof any incumbent making such default of payment shall be judged deprived as is aforesaid, shall be clearly void and destitute of incumbent in the law, to all intents and purposes as if such incumbent making such default of payment were dead in deed.

"IV. And that no incumbent making such default of payment shall be therefore made unable to take or enjoy any other benefice or promotion spiritual, or incur any penalty, forfeiture, or loss to be paid by them, their executors, or assigns for the same default, other than in this present act is heretofore expressed: any thing in the said former act, or any other statutes or acts, contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"V. Provided always, that the said former act concerning the payment of the said yearly rent and pension, amounting to the tenth part of every such dignity, benefice, or promotion spiritual, and every other act touching the same, and all articles, clauses, and sentences in them or any of them mentioned, expressed, or contained, now being in his or their force and effect, other than such as by the present act be already qualified or moderated, shall stand and abide in all laws their full strength, effect, and virtue; any thing in this present act contained notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 21.

All laws prohibiting spiritual persons to marry, who by God's law may marry, shall be void.

IX. STAT. 2 & 3 EDWARD 6, c. 21 (1). A.D. 1548.

"An Act to take away all positive Laws made against Marriage of Priests."

"Although it were not only better for the estimation of priests, and other ministers in the church of God, to live chaste, sole, and separate from the company of women, and the bond of marriage, but also thereby they might the better intend to the administration of the Gospel, and be less intricated and troubled with the charge of household, being free and unburdened from the care and cost

(1) Enforced by Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. Made perpetual by Stat. 2 Jac. 1 c. 12.
12. Repealed by Stat. 1 Mar. sess. 2 c. 2. s. 50.

g wife and children, and that it were most to be wished, that they would y and of their selves endeavour themselves to a perpetual chastity and from the use of women: yet forasmuch as the contrary hath rather n, and such uncleanness (1) of living, and other great inconveniences, not be rehearsed, have followed of compelled chastity, and of such laws as inhibited those (such persons) the godly use of marriage; it were better ar to be suffered in the commonwealth, than those which could not con- sult after the counsel of Scripture live in holy marriage, than feignedly sh worse enormity outward chastity or single life:

Be it therefore enacted by our sovereign lord the king, with the assent of a spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament 4, and by the authority of the same, that all and every law and laws canons, constitutions, and ordinances heretofore made by authority of y, which do prohibit or forbid marriage to any ecclesiastical or spiritual r persons, of what estate, condition, or degree they be, or by what name s cover they be called, which by God's law may lawfully marry, in all y article, branch, and sentence, concerning only the prohibition for the t of the persons aforesaid, shall be utterly void and of none effect: and manner of forfeitures, pains, penalties, crimes, or actions which were in laws contained, and of the same did follow concerning the prohibition for tages of the persons aforesaid, be clearly and utterly void, frustrate, and of et, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as well concerning marriages e made by any of the ecclesiastical or spiritual persons aforesaid, as also ch hereafter shall be duly and lawfully had, celebrate, and made betwixt m which by the laws of God may lawfully marry.

Provided alway, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this y thing therein contained, shall not extend to give any liberty to any r marry without asking in the church, or without any ceremony being d by the order prescribed and set forth in the book intituled, 'The Book on Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments, &c.,' any thing above d to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, ing therein contained, shall not extend to alter, change, revoke, repeal, wise to disannul any decree, judgment, sentence, or divorce heretofore had ut that all and every such decree, judgment, sentence, and divorce, shall d be of such like force, effect, strength, and degree, to all intents, con- a, and purposes, as they were in before the making of this act, and as his act had never been had ne made; this act or any thing therein con- the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 21.

The benefits which would ensue if priests and ministers did live chaste, sole, and unmarried.

No marriage without asking in the church.

Decrees and divorces heretofore made.

X. STAT. 2 & 3 EDWARDI 6, c. 23 (2). A.D. 1548.

Repeal of an Act made in the thirty-second Year of King Henry the 8, which was made, that Marriage contracted in the Face of the Church, consummated with Bodily Knowledge, to be deemed lawful, any former Contrary notwithstanding."

Whereas in the xxxij. year of the reign of the late king of famous memory, Henry the Eighth, because that many inconveniences had chanced in this breaking and dissolving of good and lawful marriages, yea, whereupon fine issue and children had followed, under the colour and pretence of a contract made with another, the which contract divers times was but very proved, and often but surmised by the malice of the party who desired solved from the marriage which they liked not, and to be coupled with

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 23.

Part of the Statute of Precontracts repealed.

Uncleanness:—Exclusive of the abominations detected by the commissioners for religious houses in the reign of Henry VIII. It appears from the metropolitanical records of Archbishop Warham, that in the two dioceses of Bangor and St. David's, above eighty priests were actually presented for incontinence. Warham, Reg. f. 222, 227, &c.

(2) Vide Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1. Stat. 5 & 6 Gul. 4, c. 54

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 23.

A repeal of so much of the statute of 32 Hen. 8, c. 34, as maketh that marriage indissoluble, which is solemnized in the church, and consummated with bodily knowledge and fruit of child.
15 Vin. 622.

another, there was an act made, that all and every such marriages, as with the church of England should be contracted and solemnized in the face of the church, and consummate with bodily knowledge, or fruit of children or child being between the parties so married, should be by the authority of the said parliament deemed, judged, and taken to be lawful, good, just, and indissoluble, notwithstanding any precontract or precontracts of matrimony not consummated with bodily knowledge, which either of the persons so married, or both, had made with any other person or persons before the time of contracting that marriage which was solemnized or consummated, or whereof such fruit is ensued or may ensue, the same act more plainly may appear: since the time of which act, although the same was godly meant, the unruliness of men hath ungodly abused the same, and divers inconveniences (intolerable in manner to Christian ears and followed thereupon, women and men breaking their own promises and made by the one unto the other, so set upon sensuality and pleasure, that in the contract of matrimony they might have whom they more favoured desired, they could be content by lightness of their nature to overturn all that they had done afore, and not afraid in manner, even from the very church-door marriage-feast, the man to take another spouse, and the spouse to take another husband, more for bodily lust and carnal knowledge, than for surety of faith, truth, or having God in their good remembrance, contemning many times the commandment of the ecclesiastical judge, forbidding the parties having made contract to attempt to do any thing in prejudice to the same:

"II. Be it therefore enacted by the king's highness, the lords spiritual, temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, that concerning precontracts, the said former statute shall from the first day of May coming cease, be repealed, and of no force or effect, and be reduced to the same order and order of the king's ecclesiastical laws of this realm, which immediately before the making of the said statute in this case were used in this realm: so that the said first day of May, when any cause or contract of marriage is presented to have been made, it shall be lawful to the king's ecclesiastical judge of that diocese to hear and examine the said cause: and (having the said contract affirmed and lawfully proved before him) to give sentence for matrimony (1), concerning the same, as touching solemnization, cohabitation, consummation, and tractation, as becometh the said judge to have, with inflicting all such pains upon the disobedient and defaulters thereof, as in times past before the said statute the king's ecclesiastical judge ought and might have done, if the said statute had never been made; any clause, article, or sentence in the said statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"III. Provided always, and be it enacted, that this act do not extend to annul, dissolve, or break any marriage that hath or shall be so solemnized and consummated before the said first day of May next ensuing, by title or colour of any precontract, but that they be and be deemed of like force and effect as if they had been so contracted, without a previous release or discharge of the contract, marry and will be good cause with them of a dissolution of a second marriage, and of decrees in the first contract's being perfected into a marriage."

(1) Give sentence for matrimony:—In Collins & Jewell, (6 Mod. 155; 2 Salk. 437,) it was said by Chief Justice Holt, and agreed to by the whole bench, "That if a contract be per verba de presenti, it amounts to an actual marriage, which the very parties themselves cannot dissolve by release or other mutual agreement, for it is as much a marriage in the sight of God, as if it had been in facie ecclesie, with this difference, that if they cohabit, before marriage in facie ecclesie, they are for that punishable by ecclesiastical censures, and if, after such contract, either of them lies with another, they will punish such offender as an adulterer."

To which he added, the rest except Potwell asserting, "That if the contract be per verba de futuro, and after, either of the parties so contracting, without a previous release or discharge of the contract, marry and will be good cause with them of a dissolution of a second marriage, and of decrees in the first contract's being perfected into a marriage."

In case of a contract per verba de futuro, prosecution may be either in the court, concerning the point, whether the contract or not, or in the temporal court, for damages, but not in both. Ibid.

If there be an express promise by the man, and it appear that the woman has promised it, and by her actions at the time behaved herself so, as if she agreed to the matter, though there be no actual consummation, yet that shall be sufficient evidence of a promise on her side. Ibid. 172.

meanings, constructions, and purposes, as if this act had never been had made; any thing in this present act notwithstanding.

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 23.

"IV. Provided also, that this act do not extend to make good any of the other causes to the dissolution or disannulling of matrimony, which be in the said act spoken of and disannulled, but that in all other causes and other things therein mentioned, the said former act of the xxxij. year of the late king of famous memory do stand and remain in its full strength and power; any thing in this act notwithstanding."

A confirmation of the residue of the said
statute of 32
Hen. 8, c. 38.

XI. STAT. 2 & 3 EDWARDI 6, c. 39 (1). A.D. 1548.

STAT. 2 & 3
EDW. 6, c. 39.

"The King's general and free Pardon confirmed by Parliament."

[Clerke convict shall be discharged upon the general pardon, without other suit. . . . Stealing of any goods or chattels out of churches excepted.]

XII. STAT. 3 & 4 EDWARDI 6, c. 10 (2). A.D. 1549.

STAT. 3 & 4
EDW. 6, c. 10.

"An Act (3) for the abolishing and putting away of divers Books and Images."

"Where the king's most excellent majesty hath of late set forth and established by authority of parliament, in uniform, quiet, and godly order for common and open prayer, in a book, entitled 'The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, after the Church of England,' to be used and observed in the said church of England, agreeable to the order of the primitive church, much more comfortable unto his loving subjects than other diversity of service, as heretofore of long time hath been used, being in the said book ordained, nothing to be read but the very pure word of God, or which is evidently grounded upon the same; and in the other, things corrupt, untrue, vain, and superstitious, and, as it were, a preparation to superstition; which, for that they be not called in, but permitted to remain undefaced, do not only give occasion to such perverse persons as do impugn the order and godly meaning of the king's said Book of Common Prayer, to continue in their old accustomed superstitious service, but also minister great occasion to diversity of opinions, rites, ceremonies, and services: be it therefore enacted by the king our sovereign lord, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in the present parliament assembled, that all books called Antiphoners, Missals, Grailes, Processionals, Manuals, Legends, Pies, Porturesses, Primers in Latin or English, Books of Hours, Journals, Ordinals, or other books or writings whatsoever heretofore used for service of the church, written or printed in the English or Latin tongue, other than such as are or shall be set forth by the king's majesty, shall be by authority of this present act clearly and utterly abolished, extinguished, and forbidden for ever to be used or kept in this realm, or elsewhere, within any the king's dominions.

Certain books and images
shall be abolished.
2 & 3 Edw. 6,
c. 1.
3 Jac. 1, c. 5.

"II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons, of what estate, degree, or condition soever he, she, or they be, body natural or corporate, that now have or hereafter shall have in his, her, or their custody, any the books or writings of the sorts aforesaid, or any images of stone, timber, alabaster, or earth, graven, carved, or painted, which heretofore have been taken out of any church or chapel, or yet stand in any church or chapel, and do not before the last day of June next ensuing deface and destroy, or cause to be defaced and destroyed, the same images and every of them, and deliver, or cause to be delivered, all and every the same books to the mayor, bailiff, constable, or churchwardens of the town where such books then shall be, to be by them delivered over openly within three months next following after the said delivery, to

Images taken out of, or yet remaining in churches, shall be destroyed.

Popish books
shall be first delivered to the

(1) Repealed.

(2) Repealed by Stat. 1 Mar. St. 11. c. 2, which act is repealed by Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 25,
s. 44.

(3) An Act—"Allata à domo comuni belle," for the abolishing and putting away

of divers books and images: "Conclusa, dissentien', Comite Derby, Episcopis Dunelm', Coven' et Lichen', Carlolen', Wigorn', Westm', et Cicestr', et Dominis Morly, Sturton, Windsor, et Wharton." Journ.
Proc.

STAT. 3 & 4
EDW. 6, c. 10.

mayor, &c.,
and then by him to the bishop, &c., to be burnt or otherwise defaced.

The penalty of mayor, &c., or bishop, &c.,
omitting their duty herein.

Justices of assize and peace shall hear and determine these offences.

Primers set out by Hen. 8,
being purged,
may be still retained.

Images upon tombs shall still remain.

STAT. 3 & 4
EDW. 6, c. 11.

the archbishop, bishop, chancellor, or commissary of the same diocese, to the intent the said archbishop, bishop, chancellor, or commissary, and every of them, cause them immediately either to be openly burnt or otherwise defaced and destroyed: shall for every such book or books willingly retained in his, her, or their hands or custody within this realm, or elsewhere within any the king's dominions, and not delivered as is aforesaid, after the said last day of June, and be thereof lawfully convict, forfeit and lose to the king our sovereign lord for the first offence xl. s., and for the second offence shall forfeit and lose (being thereof lawfully convict) iv. li. and for the third offence shall suffer imprisonment at the king's will.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any mayors, bailiffs, constables, or churchwardens, do not, within three months after receipt of the same books, deliver, or cause to be delivered, such books so by them received, to the archbishop, bishop, chancellor, or commissary of their diocese; and if the said archbishops, bishops, chancellors, or commissaries, do not, within forty days after the receipt of such books, burn, deface, and destroy, or cause to be burned, defaced, or destroyed, the same books and every of them; then they and every of them so offending, shall lose and forfeit to our sovereign lord the king, being thereof lawfully convict, xl. li. The one half of all such forfeitures shall be to any of the king's subjects that will sue for the same in any of the king's courts of record, by bill, plaint, action of debt, or information; in which action no essoin, protection, wager of law, or other delay shall be allowed.

"IV. And for better execution of the same act, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that as well justices of assize in their circuits, as justices of peace within the limits of their commission in the general sessions, shall have full power and authority to inquire of the offences aforesaid, and to hear and determine the same, in such form as they may do in other such like cases.

"V. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person or persons may use, keep, have, and retain any Primers in the English or Latin tongue, set forth by the late king of famous memory, King Henry the Eighth, so that the sentences of invocation or prayer to saints in the same Primer be blotted or clearly put out of the same; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VI. Provided always, that this act, or anything therein contained, shall not extend to any image or picture set or graven upon any tomb in any church, chapel, or church-yard, only for a monument of any king, prince, nobleman, or other great person, which hath not been commonly reputed and taken for a saint, but that such pictures and images may stand and continue (1) in like manner and form as if this act had never been had nor made; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

XIII. STAT. 3 & 4 EDWARD 6, c. 11 (2). A.D. 1549.

"An Act that the King's Majesty may nominate and appoint two-and-thirty Persons (3) to peruse and make Ecclesiastical Laws."

(1) Stand and continue:—"And this shall not be done by any person on his own authority, but he ought to have the licence of the ordinary." Frances v. Ley, Cro. Jac. 366.

"And," Dr. Godolphin says, "if any shall do so without the licence of the ordinary, he shall bind him to his good behaviour, but the meaning is only, that he may be bound to his good behaviour, not by the ordinary, but by a temporal judge, as in Pricket's case, where the offender was bound to his good behaviour, not by the ordinary, but by the lord chief justice of the court of King's Bench." 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 337.

(2) Expired.

(3) Persons:—"There was a nomination of eight persons pursuant to this statute, and the method taken for carrying on this work, and the progress made in it, on the foot of Henry the Eighth's scheme, are thus set forth in the preface to the Reformatio legum (p. penult.): "Nec longum erit, quo regis voluntati satisfactum sit. Ita enim, tanquam pensum, in varias distributa opera, felicitate non minori, quam celeritate, confecta est, hoc observato ordine: ut decem et triginta in quatuor classes æquæ proportionis ita dividerentur, ut in singulis octonariis duo episcopi duo item theologi, rursusque duo juris utriusque, similiter et communis juris, consulti totidem conficerentur."

XIV. STAT. 3 & 4 EDWARDI 6, c. 12(1). A.D. 1549.

STAT. 3 & 4
EDW. 6, c. 12.

Form and Manner (2) of making and consecrating of Archbishops, Bishops, Priests, Deacons, and other Ministers of the Church, as by six Prelates, and six other Men of this Realm learned in God's Law, by the King to be appointed and assigned, or by the most number of them, shall be devised for that purpose, and set forth (3) under the Great Seal before the first of April next coming, shall be lawfully exercised and used (4), and none other."

XV. STAT. 3 & 4 EDWARDI 6, c. 24(5). A.D. 1549.

STAT. 3 & 4
EDW. 6, c. 24.

"An Act of the King's Majesty's most free and general Pardon."

A confirmation by Parliament of the king's pardon of all heresies, treasons, felonies, murder, felonies, offences, trespasses, &c., saving such which in the pardon be excepted."

XVI. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 1(6). A.D. 1552.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 1.

An Act for the Uniformity of Service and Administration of Sacraments throughout the Realm."

Where there hath been a very godly order set forth by the authority of Parliament, for common prayer and administration of the sacraments, to be used in mother tongue within the church of England, agreeable to the word of God the primitive church, very comfortable to all good people desiring to live in christian conversation, and most profitable to the estate of this realm, upon the Uniformity of prayer and administration of sacraments shall be used in the church.

Interquos sic denique conventum est quod in singulis classibus conclusum esset, id per reliquas classes servandum atque inspicendum transiret. Quanquam verò, ex hoc ipso numero, octo potissimum selecta in capita, quibus prima operis præfatio, quasque materiæ præparatio committeretur; quorum nomina, regia in Edwardi VI. comprehensa, videre licet. . . . negotii præfuit Tho. Cranmerus episcopus Cantuariensis. Orationis laudem splendorem addidit Gualterus Hadley, vir disertus, et in hac ipsa juris facultate imperitus. Quin nec satis scio, an Chert. viri singularis, eidem negotio adfuerit manus. Quo factum est, uti stylo concinnate sint istæ leges, pro communi cæterarum legum more.

Nec dubium, quin parlamentari auctoritate sanctiones istæ constabiles, atque obsequium usum consecrate fuissent, si non paulò longior suppetisset. . . . This design of a body of ecclesiastical having been defeated by the death of Edward 6, rested until the year 1562, it was proposed in convocation to move the clergy, that certain learned men, bishops here, might be appointed to set down ecclesiastical orders and rules in all ecclesiastical matters for the good government of the church of England, as should by them be thought most meet. And the same in the present session of parliament, whatsoever shall order or set down within one month, to be effectual, and for law confirmed by act of parliament, at or in this session.

Afterwards, by the endeavours of Archbishop Parker, it was set afoot in the parliament of the 13 Eliz., and by a leading member recommended to the consideration of the House of Commons; but, after that, no additional trouble seems to have been taken with it." Gibson's Codex, 952. D'Ewea, 167.

(1) Expired. Sed vide 1 Mar. Sess. 2, c. 2. Stat. 2 Jac. 1, c. 25, s. 48.

(2) Form and Manner:—The bishop employed by Pope Innocent the Eighth, to revise and correct the Roman pontificals, complains of the difficulties of the work, as arising from the vast variety: "Rei enim vetustate, ecclesiarum multitudine, temporum et prælatorum varietate, effectum est, ut vix duo aut tres codices inveniantur, qui idem tradunt, eodem modo; quot libri, tot varietates; ille deficit, hic superabundat; alius nihil omnino de eâ re habet; raro aut nunquam conveniunt." Gibson's Codex, 100.

(3) Set forth:—The printed form, which was agreed upon, in accordance with the tenour of this statute, was in many respects essentially the same with that, which was confirmed by parliament in the 5 & 6 of Edw. 6, except the introite's, and the putting of the pastoral staff into the hands of the bishop, with some other minor circumstances, which were omitted.

(4) Lawfully exercised and used:—Heath, bishop of Worcester, one of the six bishops appointed for devising of the new form, refused to subscribe it, when finished, and for such his refusal was committed to the Fleet.

(5) Expired.
(6) Vide Stat. 8 Eliz. c. 1. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 12.

Repealed by Stat. 1 Mar. sess. 2, c. 2, which is repealed by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2, and Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 25, s. 48; and this act is now made perpetual by Stat. 5 Ann. c. 5, as to the establishment of the church.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 1.

which the mercy, favour, and blessing of Almighty God is in no wise and plentifully poured as by common prayers, due using of the sacraments, often preaching of the gospel, with the devotion of the hearers: and notwithstanding, a great number of people in divers parts of this realm, their own sensuality, and living either without knowledge or due fear, wilfully and damnable before Almighty God abstain and refuse to go to parish churches and other places where common prayer, administration of sacraments, and preaching of the word of God, is used upon Sunday and days ordained to be holy-days.

March, 25.

Every person shall resort to his parish church or chapel upon Sundays and holidays.

"II. For reformation hereof, be it enacted by the king our sovereign with the assent of the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the feast of All Saints next coming, all and every person and persons inhabiting within this realm, other the king's majesty's dominions, shall diligently and faithfully (without lawful or reasonable excuse to be absent) endeavour themselves to go to their parish church or chapel accustomed; or upon reasonable let thereof, to some other place where common prayer and such service of God shall be used in lawful sort, and then and there to abide orderly and soberly during the time of prayer, preachings, or other service of God there to be used and ministered, under pain of punishment by the censures of the church.

"III. And for the due execution hereof, the king's most excellent majesty, the lords temporal, and all the commons, in this present parliament assembled, doth in God's name earnestly require and charge all the archbishops, bishops, other ordinaries, that they shall endeavour themselves, to the uttermost of their knowledges, that the due and true execution thereof may be had throughout all their dioceses and charges, as they will answer before God for such evils, wherewith Almighty God may justly punish his people for neglect and disobedience to his wholesome law.

They which come not to church may be punished by the censures of the church.

"IV. And for their authority in this behalf, be it further likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular the same archbishops, bishops, and all other their officers exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, as well in spiritual as in temporal, as not exempt, within their dioceses, shall have full power and authority to act to reform, correct, and punish by censures of the church, all and singular persons which shall offend within any their jurisdictions or dioceses, against the feast of All Saints next coming, against this act and statute; any statute, privilege, liberty, or provision heretofore made, had, or suffered to be in force, contrary notwithstanding.

The Book of Common Prayer, with
the form of consecrating
bishops,
priests,
deacons.
1 Edw. 6, c. 2.

"V. And because there hath arisen in the use and exercise of the common service in the church heretofore set forth, divers doubts, questions, and manner of the ministration of the same, rather by the curiosity of some and mistakers, than of any other worthy cause; therefore, as well to give plain and manifest explanation hereof, as for the more perfection of the same, of common service, in some places where it is necessary to make the same more plain and fashion of service more earnest and fit to stir Christian people to the honouring of Almighty God; the king's most excellent majesty, with the assent of the lords and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, hath caused the aforesaid order of common service, called 'The Book of Common Prayer,' to be faithfully and godly perused, explained, fully perfect, and by the aforesaid authority hath annexed and added thereto, explained and perfected, to this present statute: adding also a form of making and consecrating of archbishops, bishops, priests, and deacons, with like force, authority, and value as the same like aforesaid book, entitled 'The Book of Common Prayer,' was before, and to be accepted, received, used, and followed in like sort and manner, and with the same clauses of provisions and to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as by the act of parliament in the second year of the king's majesty's reign was ordained, limited, enacted, and appointed for the uniformity of service and administration of the

2 & 3 Edw.
6, c. 1.

throughout the realm, upon such several pains as in the said act of parliament is expressed. And the said former act to stand in full force and strength, to all uses and constructions, and to be applied, practised, and put in ure, to and for publishing of 'The Book of Common Prayer,' now explained and hereunto added, and also the said form of making of archbishops, bishops, priests, and hereunto annexed, as it was for the former book.

I. And by the authority aforesaid it is now further enacted, that if any person or persons inhabiting and being within this realm, or any other of his majesty's dominions, shall after the said feast of All Saints willingly and lawfully hear and be present at any other manner or form of common prayer, administration of the sacraments, of making of ministers in the churches, or of other rites contained in the book annexed to this act, than is mentioned and set forth in the said book, or that is contrary to the form of sundry provisions and provisions contained in the aforesaid former statute, and shall be thereof convicted according to the laws of this realm, before the justices of assize, justices of Oyer and Terminer, justices of peace in their sessions, or any of them, by the verdict of twelve men, or by his or their own confession or otherwise, shall for the first offence suffer imprisonment for six months, without bail or mainprise; and for the second offence, being likewise convicted as is above said, imprisonment for one whole year; and for the third offence, in like manner, imprisonment during his or her life. And for the more knowledge to be given thereof, and better observance of this law, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular justices shall, upon one Sunday every quarter of the year, during one whole year following the foresaid feast of All Saints next coming, read this present act in every church at the time of the most assembly, and likewise once in every year following; at the same time declaring unto the people, by the authority of the statute, how the mercy and goodness of God hath in all ages been showed to his people in their necessities and extremities, by means of hearty and faithful prayers to Almighty God, especially where people be gathered together with one faithful mind to offer up their hearts by prayer, as the best sacrifices that Christian men can yield."

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 1.

The penalties for being present at any other common prayer or sacraments.
Altered as to the penalty by 1 Eliz. c. 2.
ss. 7, 8.

XVII. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 2(1). A.D. 1552.

[An Act for the Provision and Relief of the Poor.]

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 2.

XVIII. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 3(2). A.D. 1552.

[An Act for the keeping Holy-Days and Fasting-Days.]

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 3.

Forasmuch as (3) at all times men be not so mindful to laud and praise God, and to resort to and hear God's holy word, and to come to the holy commun-

Which days
only in the

Obsolete.

Partly repealed by Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 43.

Forasmuch as:—The basis upon which he stood in this particular, from the year of the reign of Henry 8, will appear from the decree made in convocation at London, and confirmed by the king's authority, the tenour of which is as follows:—A copy of thacete made for thabrogation of the holy dayes, according to the note late sent by the King's Hyghnes Bysshops, with his Graces straight commandment, to signifie his farther pleasure, that all Colleges, Religious Houses, and within theyr Diocesse, for the publication and also effectual and universal observance of the same. An. 1536." Coll. 47.

Forasmuch as the number of holy-dayes was excessively growen, and yet dayly more and more by mens devocyon, yea rather supersticyon, was like further to increase, that the same was and sholde be not onely prejudiciall to the common weale, by reason that it is occasion as well of moche sloth and ydelnes, the very nouryshe of theves, vacaboundes, and of dyvers other unthriftynesse and inconvenyencies, as of decaye of good mysteryes and artes, utyle and necessary for the common welthe, and losse of mans fode, many tymes, beyng cleene destroyed through the superstitious observance of the said holy-dayes, in not takinge thoportunitie of good and serene wheather offered upon the same in time of harvest, but also pernycious to the soules of many men, whiche beyng enteyed by the lycencious vacacyon and libertye of those holy-dayes, do upon the same commonly use and practyse more excesse, ryote, and superfluitie than upon any other dayes; and

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 3.
year shall be holy-days, and
which shall be fasting-
days.
This act is not on the Roll.

Wherefore
some days are more called holy-days than other.

nion and other laudable rites, which are to be observed in every Christian congregation, as their bounden duty doth require; therefore, to call men to remembrance of their duty, and to help their infirmity, it hath been wholesomely provided, that there should be some certain times and days appointed, wherein the Christians should cease from all other kind of labours, and should apply themselves only and wholly unto the aforesaid holy works, properly pertaining unto true religion; that is, to hear, to learn, and to remember Almighty God's great benefits, his manifold mercies, his inestimable gracious goodness, so plentifully poured upon all his creatures, and that of his infinite and unspeakable goodness, without any man's desert; and in remembrance hereof, to render unto him most high and hearty thanks, with prayers and supplications for the relief of all our daily necessities; and because these be the chief and principal works wherein man is commanded to worship God, and to properly pertain unto the first table; therefore, as these works are most commonly, and also may well be called God's service, so the times appointed specially for the same, are called holy-days; not for the matter and nature either of the time or day, nor for any of the saints' etc. whose memories are had on those days, (for so all days and times considered are God's creatures, and all of like holiness,) but for the nature and consistence of those godly and holy works, wherewith only God is to be honoured, and the congregation to be edified, whereunto such times and days are sanctified and hallowed; this is to say, separated from all profane uses, and dedicated and appointed, not unto any saint or creature, but only unto God and his true worship; neither is it to be thought that there is any certain time or definite number of days prescribed in holy scripture, but that the appointment both of the time and also of the

sith the sabboth-day was ordeyned for man's use, and therefore ought to gyve place to the necessitie, and behove of the same when soever that shall occurre; mouch rather any other holy-day institute by man. It is therefore by the Kyng's Hyghnes auctorite, as supreme head in earth of the Church of Englande, with the common assente and consent of the prelates and clergy of this his realme in convocacyon, lawfully assembled and congregated, among other thynges decreed, ordeyned, and established.

"Fyrst, that the feast of dedicacyon of the church shall in all places throughout this realm be celebrated and kept on the fyrst Sunday of the moneth of Octobre for ever, and upon none other day. Item, that the feast of the patron of every church within this realm, called commonly the church holy-day, shall not from henceforth be kepte or observed as a holy-day, as heretofore hath been used, but that it shall be lafulfull to all and singular persons resydent or dwellinge within this realme, to go to their work, occupation, or mystery, and the same truly to exercise and occupy upon the said feast, as upon any other workyng-day, excepte the said feast of the church holy-day be such as must be ells universally observed, as a holy-day by this ordinance following.

"Also, that all those feasts or holy-days which shall happen to occurre, eyther in the harvest time, which is to be compted from the fyrst day of July unto the xxix. day of Septembre, or ells in the terme time at Westmynster, shall not be kepte or observed from henceforth as holy-dayes, but that it may be lafulfull for every man to go to his work or occupation upon the same as upon any other workyng-day; except alwayes the feastes of the Apostles, of our blessed Lady, and of Saynt George. And also such feasts as wherein the King's Judges at Westmynster Hall do not use to sytte in judgment, all which shall be kepte holy and solennes of every man, as in tyme past have been accustomed. Provided alwayes, that it may be lafulfull unto all prestes and clerkes, as well secular as regular, in the foresayd holy-dayes now abrogate, to syng or saye their accustomed servyce for those holy-dayes in their churches, so that they do not the same solempnely, nor do ryng to the same after the manner used in hygh holy-dayes, as is commaunde or indiet the same to be kepte or observed as holy-dayes.

"Finally, that the feast of the Nativite of our Lord, of Easter, of the Nativite of Saynt John the Baptyste, and of Saynt Michael, shall be from henceforth compted, and accepted, and taken for the iiiij. general offering dayes.

"And for further declaracyon of the premises, be it known, that Easter terme begynneth always the xviii. day after Easter, rekenyng Easter-day for one, and endeth the Monday next after thascenyon day. Trinite terme begynneth always the Wednesday next after thoctaves of Trinite Sunday, and endeth the xi. or xii. day of July. Mychelmas terme begynneth the ix. or x. day of October, and endeth the xxviii. or xxix. day of November. Hilary terme begynneth the xxiii. or xxiv. day of January, and endeth the xii. or xiii. day of February.

"In Easter terme upon thascenyon day. In Trinite terme upon the Nativite of Saynt John Baptist. In Mychelmas terme upon Alhollon day. In Hilary terme upon Candlemas-day, the kyng's judges at Westmynster do not syt in judgment, nor upon any Sundayes."

number of the days, is left by the authority of God's word to the liberty of Christ's church, to be determined and assigned orderly in every country, by the discretion of the rulers and ministers thereof, as they shall judge most expedient to the true setting forth of God's glory, and the edification of their people: be it therefore enacted by the king our sovereign lord, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all the days hereafter mentioned shall be kept and commanded to be kept holy-days, and none other; that is to say, all Sundays in the year, the days of the feast of the Circumcision of our Lord Jesus Christ, of the Epiphany, of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin, of Saint Matthew the Apostle, of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin, of Saint Mark the Evangelist, of Saint Philip and Jacob the Apostles, of the Ascension of our Lord Jesus Christ, of the Nativity of Saint John Baptist, of Saint Peter the Apostle, of Saint James the Apostle, of Saint Bartholomew the Apostle, of Saint Matthew the Apostle, of Saint Michael the Archangel, of Saint Luke the Evangelist, of Saint Simon and Jude the Apostles, of All Saints, of St. Andrew the Apostle, of Saint Thomas the Apostle, of the Nativity of our Lord, of Saint Stephen the Martyr, of Saint John the Evangelist, of the Holy Innocents, Monday and Tuesday in Easter-week, and Monday and Tuesday in Whitsun-week; and that none other day shall be kept and commanded to be kept holy-day, or to depart from lawful bodily labour.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 3.

All these days shall be kept holy-days, and none other.

11. And it is also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every even or day next ensuing before any of the aforesaid days of the feasts of the Nativity of our Lord, of Easter, of the Ascension of our Lord, Pentecost, and the Purification and the Annunciation of the aforesaid Blessed Virgin, of All Saints, and of all the said feasts of the Apostles, (other than (1) of Saint John the Evangelist, and Philip and James,) shall be fasted, and commanded to be kept and observed, and that none other even or day shall be commanded to be fasted.

Which days
shall be commanded and kept fasting-
days.

Other than—"Omnium apostolorum jejunia sunt in observatione jejuniis celebranda, prout vigiliis Apostolorum Philippi et Jacobi, et Beati Johannis Evangeliste ipsorum solennitas infra octavam Paschalem, latius autem infra octavam Domini celebratur." Decret. l. 3, tit. 6, c. 2. 1 Spl. 518.

It may be here observed, that "by the rubric the tables of vigils, and fasts, and days of abstinence, to be observed in the year, is understood (which although not in words, yet in substance is the same with what is here expressed) viz. the evens or vigils before the Nativity of our Lord, the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin, Easter-day, Ascension-day, Pentecost, St. Matthias, St. John Baptist, St. Peter, St. James, St. Bartholomew, St. Matthew, St. Simon and St. Jude, St. Andrew, St. Thomas, All Saints. And if any of these feasts fall upon a Monday, then the vigil or fast day shall be kept upon the Saturday, and not upon the Sunday, next before it.

Vigil was so called a vigilia, because Christian people were not only to fast, but to watch or wake by night and pray.

The days of fasting or abstinence prescribed by the rubric, are as follows: '1. The four days of Lent. 2. The Ember-days, in the four seasons: being the Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday after the first Sunday in Lent, the feast of Pentecost, September the 14th, and December the 13th. 3. The Rogation-days; being the Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, before Holy Thursday, or the Ascension of our Lord. 4. All the Fridays in the year, except Christmas-day.

"The Ember-days were fasts observed in the church very early, and particularly by the church of England in the Saxon times, who called them ymbryne dagas, from whence (and not from embers, or from the Greek embryas, as some have conjectured,) our name of Ember-days is to be derived. The Saxon embryne (says Dr. Marshall) signifies a circle, a circuit, or course; and therefore they may be not improperly called the circular fasts, or fasts in course, being observed in the four seasons on which the circle of the year turns, and accordingly called by the canonists jejunia quatuor temporum, or fasts of the four quarters of the year.

"Respecting the Rogation-days Dr. Grey says, 'The Rogation-days were so called from the extraordinary prayers and supplications which, with fasting, were at this time offered to God by devout Christians.' Grey, Abr. Cod. 101.

"But Dr. Godolphin says, (Repert. 129.) 'the Rogation-days had their names from certain rules or ordinances for abstinence, or days of fasting, which the Bishop of Rome recommended to be observed by the Western churches, before that he assumed the power of compulsion; and which therefore he called by the gentle name of rogation: and thence the week of abstinence, a little before the feast of Pentecost, was called the Rogation-week, the time of abstinence being appointed at the beginning by that ordinance which was

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 3.

Punishment of offenders by
the ecclesiastical law.

Abstinence
from flesh in Lent, Fridays, and Saturdays.
2 & 3 Edw. 6,
c. 10.
[Expired.]

When the Saturday shall be fasted instead of the Sunday.

In what cases
some persons may labour
upon the holy-day.

Knights of the Garter may solemnise
St. George's feast.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 4.

The penalty for striking or drawing a

"III. And it is enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall be lawful to all archbishops and bishops in their dioceses, and to all other having ecclesiastical or spiritual jurisdiction, to inquire of every person that shall offend in the premises, and to punish every such offender by the censures of the church, and to enjoin him or them such penance as shall be to the spiritual judge by his discretion thought meet and convenient.

"IV. Provided always, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to abrogate or take away the abstinence from flesh in Lent, or on Fridays and Saturdays, or on any other day which is already appointed so to be kept by virtue of an act made and provided in the third year of the reign of our sovereign lord the king's majesty that now is, saving only of those evens or days whereof the holy-day next following is abrogated by this statute; any thing above-mentioned to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"V. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that when and so often as it shall chance any of the said feasts (the evens whereof be by this statute commanded to be observed and kept fasting-day) to fall upon the Monday (1); that then, as it hath always been heretofore accustomedly used, so hereafter the Saturday then next going before any such feast or holy-day, and not the Sunday, shall be commanded to be fasted for the even of any such feast or holy-day; any thing in this statute before mentioned or declared to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"VI. Provided always, and it is enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall be lawful to every husbandman, labourer, fisherman, and to all and every other person or persons, of what estate, degree, or condition he or they be, upon the holy-days aforesaid, in harvest, or at any other time in the year when necessity shall require, to labour, ride, fish, or work any kind of work, at their free wills and pleasure; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"VII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall be lawful to the knights of the right honourable Order of the Garter, and to every of them, to keep and celebrate solemnly the feast of their order, commonly called St. George's feast, yearly from henceforth the xxij. xxij. and xxiv. day of April, and at such other time and times as yearly shall be thought convenient by the king's highness, his heirs and successors, and the said knights of the said honourable order, or any of them, now being, or hereafter to be; any thing to the contrary in this act heretofore mentioned to the contrary notwithstanding."

XIX. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 4 (2). A.D. 1552.

"Against Quarrelling and Fighting in Churches and Church-yards (3)."

"Forasmuch as of late divers and many outrageous and barbarous behaviours and acts have been used and committed by divers ungodly and irreligious persons, by quarrelling (4), brawling (5), fraying, and fighting openly in churches and church-yards, called rogatio, and not lex, decretum, statutum, or the like." 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 313.

(1) Upon the Monday:—"Sanctorum quoque vigiliis, quorum festivitates oportet secundum feriâ celebrari, in precedenti sunt Sabbato jejundare." Decret. l. 3, tit. 46, c. 2.

(2) Partly repealed by Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 31.

(3) Vide etiam Stat. 27 Geo. 3, c. 44. The object of Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4, was not to protect private individuals from personal offence, but to protect the church and churchyards from profanation, and to preserve order and decency in the meetings which may be held within them; in fact, to prevent them from being converted into scenes of human passion and malice, of disturbance and violence.

Such statute leaves nothing to the discretion of the judge, but the duration of the suspension, ad ingressum ecclesie. Houl v. Dash, 2 Lee (Sir G.), 511.

The ecclesiastical court has jurisdiction in offences of brawling, independently of Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4. Taylor v. Mordaunt, 1 Curt. 482. Jenkins v. Barrett, 1 Hag. 15.

(4) By quarrelling:—"Qui in tropheo pugnaverit, 120 solidis notam mactet." Leg. Inq. c. 6.

(5) Brawling:—"It has been held, that this offence is committed by expostulations and uttered to a clergyman about the pulpit for the purpose of sedition v. Hatchard, 1 Add. 96;) upon to the jurisdiction of the court to maintain a suit for "brawling" by stat. over-ruled. Dawe v. Will-130. Clinton v. Hatchard, 1 must a parishioner for "brawling" by reading a "notice of vestry" in divine service, without due have been admitted. Dawe v. Will-130.

as to the admissibility of articles, brawling, the question is, whether to sustain a substantive charge of riot in a sacred place. Jarman v. Hagg, 356.

Articles against a clergyman for brawling, and for insulting, and disobedient conduct in the church, in part proved, the court is to be more careful, and consider in 75l. nomine expensarum. v. ley, 1 Curt. 480.

Articles of brawling in church, where the parties are implicated, which is most immaterial; each is bound to abstain, failing to abstain, incurs a charge, and it is unimportant whether the charge is against the promoter or the first aggressor, Palmer v. England v. Hurcomb, 141.

Articles may promote articles under this v. Dash, 2 Lee (Sir G.), 514.) Articles of brawling must be set forth, and the witnesses must be observed in the being a criminal suit; the articles must be so specific, as to afford an opportunity for defence, and considering, whether it is a fit promotion of his office, but it is not words of brawling used by Hutchins v. Denziloe, 1 Lee v. Matthews, 3 Hagg. 174. Agutter, Ibid. 356. Footo v. Lee (Sir G.), 266.

Articles of violent conduct, and great noise, at a vestry held in a room in church, the court suspended the ingressu ecclesie, for fourteen days under the circumstances, condemned only in 35l. nomine expensarum v. Wise, 3 Hagg. 360.

The court will sometimes inquire into the conduct of the promoter, but it will presume against him, unless there be strong proof to the contrary. Ibid.

There is no defence to a criminal charge of brawling in a church at a vestry held in North v. Dickson, (1 Ibid.) A defendant for such an offence, was condemned for a fortnight ab ingressu ecclesie and in costs.

Articles of smiting, at a vestry attended by persons, and held in a room in the churchyard, are, ratione within Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4, very slight ecclesiastical character, in a case, where the promoter, a defendant, was proceeding vindictively in the articles exaggerated the smiting, and suppressed his own brawling expressions, which provoked the smiting—the judge directed the matter to stand over for private arrangement; but that failing, the court on a subsequent day pronounced the brawling and smiting proved, decreed the defendant to be imprisoned twenty-four hours for smiting, and ultimately condemned him in costs. Lee v. Matthews, 3 Ibid. 169.

In a vestry meeting for civil purposes, as a full latitude of discussion must be allowed, mere coarse expressions do not constitute "brawling;" but on proof of an act of "smiting," the court is bound, whatever may be the origin of the dispute, to proceed to award punishment under Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4, and Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 127. Hoile v. Seales, 2 Ibid. 566.

But it is questionable whether one who chides and brawls in a vestry-room, partly in and partly out of a church-yard, incurs thereby the penalties of Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4, s. 1. Williams v. Goodyer, 2 Add. 463.

It is likewise doubtful, whether the gross abuse of a minister, while presiding at a meeting of his parishioners in vestry, be not an ecclesiastical offence, and punishable, as such, by the general ecclesiastical law; although it be not liable to be dealt with, as a "chiding and brawling" within Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4, by reason, that the vestry was clearly not held in a consecrated place, i.e. within a church or church-yard. Ibid.

Proceedings under Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4, s. 1, must be supported by two witnesses on the specific charge. Hutchins v. Denziloe, 1 Consist. 181. But it is not necessary, that the witnesses should depose, that the party proceeded against chided, brawled, and quarrelled; it is sufficient if they prove, that words of brawling were used. Footo v. Richards, 1 Lee (Sir G.), 265.

Where articles against a churchwarden, for "quarrelling, chiding, and brawling by words," and for "smiting," have been pronounced not to be proved; an order has been made, that the costs shall be paid by the promoter. Cory v. Byron, 2 Curt. 396.

Where articles against a clergyman for brawling have been sustained, the court is not empowered to require a certificate of good behaviour during suspension. Burder v. Langley, 1 Eccles. Notes of Cases, 542.

Where articles against the defendant, (a churchwarden,) for brawling in church, were pronounced to be proved; and the defendant was suspended, and condemned in full costs; the case was held to afford no ground for mitigated costs. Palmer v. Raffey, 2 Add. 141.

In articles against three defendants for brawling in a church, which were held as having been proved, the defendants were suspended and condemned in full costs—the case of no one of the three, either looking to his own conduct, or to that of the promoter, being held to be a case for mitigated costs. England v. Hurcomb, Ibid. 306.

In Field v. Cosens, (3 Hagg. 178,) a defendant, on giving an affirmative issue, was suspended ab ingressu ecclesie for a month,

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 4.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 1.
weapon in a church or church-yard.
Het. 86.

The penalty for smiting in a church, &c.

yards (1): therefore it is enacted by the king our sovereign lord, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person whatsoever shall, at any time after the first day of May next coming, by words only, quarrel, chafe, or brawl in any church or church-yard, that then it shall be lawful unto the ordinary of the place where the same offence shall be done, and proved by two lawful witnesses, to suspend (2) every person so offending; that is to say, if he be a layman, ab ingressu ecclesie, and if he be a clerk, from the ministration of his office, for so long time as the said ordinary shall by his discretion think meet and convenient, according to the fault.

"II. And further it is enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons after the said first day of May shall smite or lay (3) violence and condemned in costs for brawling on two occasions at a vestry held in the chancel.

Where articles against the defendant, (a sidesman,) for brawling in church, were pronounced to be proved; the defendant was suspended and condemned in the sum of 50*l. nomine expensarum*, this being held (in contradistinction to a former case arising out of the same general transaction) to be a case, in which the prosecutor was not entitled to his full costs. Palmer v. Tjjon, 2 Add. 196.

Articles for brawling, at a vestry held in the vestry-room within the church-yard, being proved, the court suspended the defendant ab ingressu ecclesie for one week, but did not condemn him in the whole costs, in consequence of irritating expressions having been proved to have been used by the promoter. Williams v. Hall, 1 Curt. 597.

Where a suit for brawling in church was instituted before the commissary of the bishop of the diocese, it was holden, that it might be removed by letters of request into the court of Arches. Exp. Williams, 4 B. & C. 313.

(1) Churches and church-yards:—Where a person of the name of Delthick, (Cro. Eliz. 224.) struck another in the church-yard of St. Paul's, London, the court were clearly of opinion, that cathedral churches were within the meaning of this statute.

In Wenmouth v. Collins, (2 Ld. Raym. 830,) a prohibition was prayed, to stay a suit in the ecclesiastical court, for brawling in the belfry, and striking a man there, upon suggestion of this statute, and that all statutes are construable by the common law. But the court denied a prohibition; "because this offence was conusable in the ecclesiastical court before this statute, ratione loci; and that the statute, though it provides a penalty, does not alter the jurisdiction."

(2) To suspend:—Prohibition to the spiritual court was prayed upon this statute, because costs were there given, and it was denied; "the costs being there pro expensis litis, otherwise, if it had been pro damnis." Largo v. Alton, Cro. Jac. 162.

(3) Lay:—Churchwardens, or perhaps private persons, who whip boys for playing in the church, or pull off the hats of those who obstinately refuse to take them off themselves, or gently lay their hands on those who disturb the performance of any part of divine service, and turn them out of the church, are not within the meaning of the statute.

In Reynolds v. Monkton, (2 M. & M. 384,) it was held, that churchwardens have a discretionary power to appropriate the pews in the church amongst the parishioners, and may remove persons intruding on pews already appropriated;—Mr. Baron Rolfe, in summing up to the jury, stating, "I think that the churchwardens have a right to exercise a reasonable discretion in directing when the congregation shall sit; and if the defendant used no unnecessary force, he had a right to remove the plaintiff from the pew in question to another seat. If, in the exercise of a fair discretion, the churchwardens thought it more convenient, that the pew should be occupied by Gaylard's family, and not by the plaintiff, and if the removal could be effected without public scandal, or the disturbance of divine service, the defendant was justified. You are to say, whether any unnecessary violence was used."

In Williams v. Glenister, (2 B. & C. 699,) where the parish clerk refused to read in church, a notice which was presented to him for that purpose, and the person presenting it, read it himself at a time when as part of the church service was actually going on; it was held, that although a contumacia might be justified in removing him from the church, and detaining him until the service was over, yet he could not legally detain him afterwards in order to take him before a magistrate;—Chief Justice Abbott observing, "It appears to me that the 1 Mar. St. II. c. 3, merely gave to the common law, recognition of an offence which was before punishable by the ecclesiastical law; in order to be within that statute, the party must maliciously, wilfully, or of purpose, molest the person celebrating divine service. Had the notice been read by the plaintiff, whilst any part of the service was actually going on, we might have thought that he had done it on purpose to molest the minister; but the act having been done during an interval, when no part of the service was in the course of being performed, and the party apparently supposing, that he had a right to give such a notice, I am not prepared to say, that the 1 Mar. St. II. c. 3, warranted his detention, in order that he might be taken before a justice of peace. Neither does the case come within the Toleration Act, 1 G. & M. c. 18. That only applies where the thing is done wilfully, and hands (1) upon any other, either in any church or church-yard, that then ipso facto (2) every person so offending shall be deemed excommunicate, and be excluded from the fellowship and company of Christ's congregation.

"III. And also it is enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person after the said first day of May shall maliciously strike any person with any weapon in any church or church-yard, or after the same first day of May shall draw any weapon (3) in any church or church-yard, to the intent to strike another with the same weapon, that then every person so offending, and thereof being convicted by verdict of xii. men, or by his own confession, or by two lawful witnesses, before the justices of assize, justices of Oyer and Determiner, or justices of peace in their sessions, by force of this act, shall be adjudged by the same justices before whom such person shall be convicted, to have one of his ears cut off. And if the person or persons so offending have none ears, whereby they should receive such punishment of purpose maliciously, to disturb the congregation or misuse the preacher. The detention of the plaintiff after the time when the service ended, was therefore illegal, and he ought not to disturb the verdict, which has been found."

1. Shall smite or lay violent hands:—If one be assaulted in a church, or within a church-yard, he may not beat the other or draw a weapon there, although the other assaulted him, and it be therefore in his own defence, for it is a sanctified place, and he may be punished for that by this statute. And it is the same in any of the king's courts, or within view of the courts of justice, because a force in that case is not justifiable, though in a man's own defence. Francis v. Ley, Cro. Jac. 367.

A threatening posture is not smiting under the statute. Jenkins v. Barrett, 1 Hagg. 15.

2. Ipro facto:—But notwithstanding that the words of the statute be so expressed, that he who smites another shall ipso facto be deemed excommunicate, yet there ought to be a precedent conviction at law, which must be transmitted to the ordinary, or else the excommunication must be declared in the spiritual court upon the proper proof of the offence there, for it is implied in every penal law, that no one shall incur the penalty thereof, till he be found guilty upon a lawful trial; also it must be intended in the construction of this statute, that the excommunication ought to appear judicially, because otherwise there could be no absolution.

In Wilson (Clerk) v. Greaves, (1 Burr. 240,) a prohibition was moved for on this clause, and the suggestion was, that there ought to have been a previous conviction at law. But it was held: that it was not necessary upon this clause, because it was an offence at common law, and a man might be punished for it; but besides this, he might be ipso facto excommunicated by the ordinary. If there be a conviction at law, the ordinary may use it as a proof of the fact, but he can proceed without any such previous conviction. And the proceedings of the two courts being diverso intuitu, it was no objection, that a man would be twice punished for the same offence, because this is common in many cases, for the temporal courts proceed to punish, the ecclesiastical to amend.

But there must be a sentence declaratory, if made in the spiritual court, otherwise the excommunication would not have effect; for no excommunicatus capiens could issue without a significavit from the spiritual judge, and no significavit could issue, but upon some proceedings before the said judge, nor otherwise could the party ever be absolved. Hulson v. Chapman, C. T. H. 190. And a plea of excommunication in the plaintiff ipso facto, because he had smitten, &c., without showing an excommunication by the ordinary, or under his seal, was ruled to be ill. Sonham v. Trundle, Cro. Eliz. 919.

In Hutchins v. Denziloe, (1 Consist. 181,) Lord Stowell observed, "This is a proceeding on the statute of Edward 6, an act certainly made on the exigency of the times at the Reformation, when there prevailed great heats and animosities on religion, which were likely enough to break out in churches. The act did not create the offence, as it subsisted by the common law before the statute was enacted, and there is no doubt that the ecclesiastical court had a right to interfere to correct or punish any act of disturbance of the public worship. A party may now proceed either upon the statute or upon the ancient law, for wherever (Wenmouth v. Collins, 2 Ld. Raym. 850,) the statute leaves an offence as it found it, and only introduces additional punishment, a party may proceed on either." Vide etiam Newbery v. Goodwin, 1 Phill. 282. Jenkins v. Barrett, 1 Hagg. 15. Exp. Williams, 4 B. & C. 313.

(3) Or . . . shall draw any weapon:—It has been holden, that if a man took up a stone in the church-yard, and offered to throw it at another, or having a hatchet or axe in his hand, offered to strike another therewith, it was not an offence within these words; for these are not such weapons as may properly be said to be drawn, as a sword or dagger. Watson's Clergyman's Law, c. 34.

In a criminal suit for smiting, under Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 4, it was held, that the proof must not admit of a doubt, and where two concurrent sentences pronounced the smiting proved, but the evidence was not conclusive, such sentences were reversed, and both parties left to pay their own costs. Scales v. Hoile, 3 Hagg. 371.

Wilson (Clerk) v. Greaves, (1 Burr. 240,) will illustrate what constituted the offence of smiting at common law.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 4.

The penalty for drawing or smiting with a weapon in the church, &c.
2 Leon. 188.
Cro. Jac. 462.
Cro. Eliz. 224, 231.
Cro. Car. 464.
1 Roll. 90.
Dyer, 275, pl. 48.
See 1 Bur. 243.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 4.

ment as is before declared, that then he or they to be marked and burned in the cheek with an hot iron, having the letter F therein, whereby he or they may be known and taken for fray-makers and fighters; and besides that, every such person to be and stand ipso facto excommunicated, as is aforesaid."

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 9.

XX. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 9 (1). A.D. 1552.
"An Act for the taking away of the Benefit of the Clergy from certain Offenders."

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 10.

XXI. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 10 (2). A.D. 1552.
"An Act for the avoiding of Clergy from divers Persons."

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 11.

XXII. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 11 (3). A.D. 1552.
"An Act for the Punishment of divers Kinds of Treasons."

[Any spiritual person offending against Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 11, by deserting the king, shall forfeit the profits of his promotions during life; but the king shall provide for the cure.]

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 12.

XXIII. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 12 (4). A.D. 1552.
"An Act touching the Declaration of a Statute made for the Marriage of Priests, and for the Legitimation of their Children."

The marriage of priests and other spiritual persons shall be adjudged lawful.
2 & 3 Edw. 6,
c. 21.

"Albeit that at the session of this parliament holden by prorogation at Westminster the fourth day of November in the second year of the reign of the king's majesty that now is, it was ordained and enacted by the authority of the same parliament, that all and every law and laws positive, canons, constitutions, and ordinances, before that made by the authority of man only, which then did prohibit and forbid marriage to any ecclesiastical and spiritual person or persons, of what estate, condition, or degree they then were, or by what name or names soever they then were called, which by God's law might lawfully marry, and all and every article, branch, and sentence concerning only the prohibition for the marriage of the persons aforesaid, should be utterly void and of none effect: and that all manner of forfeitures, pains, penalties, crimes, or actions, which were in the said laws contained, or of the same did follow, concerning the prohibition for the marriage of the persons aforesaid, should be clearly and utterly void, frustrate, and of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as well concerning marriage afore that time made by any of the ecclesiastical or spiritual persons aforesaid, as also such which thereafter should be duly and lawfully had, celebrated, and made betwixt the persons which by the laws of God might lawfully marry: yet since the making of the said act, divers evil disposed persons perversely taking occasion of certain words and sentences in the same act comprised, said and do untruly and very slanderously report of priests' matrimony, saying that the same statute is but a permission of priests' matrimony, as usury and other unlawful things be now permitted, for the eschewing of greater inconvenience and evils, so that thereby the lawful matrimony of priests, in the opinion of many, and the children procreate and born in such lawful matrimony rather be of a greater number of the king's subjects accounted as bastards, than lawfully born, to the great slander, peril, and dishonour of such children: which untrue slanderous reproach of holy matrimony doth not only rebound to the high dishonour of Almighty God, but also to the king's majesty's dishonour, and his high court of parliament, and the learned clergy of this realm, who have determined the same to be most lawful by the law of God in their convocation, as well by their common assent, as by the subscription of their hands: and that most of all to be

(1) Repealed by Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 27.
(2) Repealed by Stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 64.
(3) Expired.

(4) Repealed by Stat. 1 Mar. ann. 2 c. 1 but revived, and made perpetual by Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 25, s. 50.

lamented, through such uncomely railings of matrimony and slanderous reproaches of the clergy, the word of God is not heard with reverence, followed with diligence, the godly proceedings of the king's majesty not received with due obedience, and thereby the wealthy men of this realm discouraged to nourish and bring up their children in learning, so as it is to be feared, lest in place of good learning and knowledge shall creep in ignorance, and for learned men, unlearned ambitious men and flatterers, to the great displeasure of Almighty God, and to the peril of the whole state of God's true religion within this realm, if speedy remedy be not provided herein:

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 12.

"II. Therefore it is enacted by the king our sovereign lord, with the assent of lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same parliament, that the matrimony of every man and every priest and other ecclesiastical and spiritual person and persons herebefore had, celebrated, and made, and the matrimony of every priest and other ecclesiastical and spiritual person, which shall hereafter duly be had, celebrated, and made, shall be adjudged, deemed, and taken for true, just, and lawful matrimony, to all intents, constructions, and purposes: and that all and every children and child born in any such matrimony, shall be deemed, judged, reputed, and taken, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, to be born in lawful matrimony, and to be legitimate and inheritable to lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, in and by any of their fathers, mothers, and other ancestors, in like manner and form, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as any other children born in lawful matrimony betwixt any of the king's lay-subjects be inheritable: and that by the authority aforesaid, as well all and every priest and other ecclesiastical and spiritual person and persons be and shall be enabled to be tenants by the curtesy, after the death of their wives, of such lands, tenements, and other hereditaments as their wives shall happen to be seised of, of estate in fee-simple or estate in fee-general, during the espousals; as also every wife of every such priest and other ecclesiastical person, shall be enabled to claim, demand, have, and enjoy dower of such lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, whereof her husband during the espousals between them were seised, of estate in fee-simple or fee-tail general in her own right, in like manner and form, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as any other husband or wife may or might claim, demand, have, or enjoy; any statute, ordinance, canon, constitution, prescription, or custom had, made, or used in this realm, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Priests' children shall be legitimate, and inherit their ancestors' lands.

Priests shall be tenants by the curtesy, and their wives endowable of their lands.

"III. Provided alway, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to give liberty to any person to marry without asking in the church, or about the ceremonies according to the Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, nor shall make any such matrimony already made, or hereafter to be made good, which are prohibited by the law of God for any other cause.

Asking in the church.

"IV. Provided also, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to alter, change, revoke, repeal, or otherwise to disannul any decree, judgment, or sentence of divorce heretofore had or made, or to change or alter the possession or inheritance of any lands or tenements already descended; but that every and every of them shall remain, continue, and be of such like force, effect, length, and degree, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as they were before the making of this act; this act or any thing therein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

Divorces already made.

XXIV. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 13(1). A.D. 1552.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 13.

An Act for the Declaration of an Act made in the thirty-first Year of King Henry the Eighth, touching Religious Persons. Every Religious Person shall be inheritable to his Ancestor only from the time of his Deraignment. No Religious Person shall inherit by force of any former Right grown before his Deraignment."

(1) Expired.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 16.

The penalty
for buying or selling some sort of offices.
3 Bulst. 91.
1 Roll. 157,
236.
2 Salk. 468.
3 Lev. 289.
2 Vent. 187,
213, 267.

Hob. 75.
Cro. Jac. 269.

XXV. STAT. 5 & 6 EDWARDI 6, c. 16. A.D. 1552.

"Against buying and selling of Offices."

"For the avoiding of corruption which may hereafter happen to be in the officers and ministers in those courts, places, or rooms, wherein there is requisite to be had the true administration of justice or services of trust; and to the intent that persons worthy and meet to be advanced to the place where justice is to be ministered, or any service of trust executed, should hereafter be preferred to the same, and no other:

"II. Be it therefore enacted by the king our sovereign lord, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person or persons at any time hereafter buy or sell any office (1), or offices, or deputation of any office, or offices, or any part or parcel of any of them, or receive, have, or take any money, fee, reward, or any other profit, directly or indirectly, or take any promise, agreement, covenant, bond, or any assurance to receive or have any money, fee, reward, or other profit directly or indirectly, for any office or offices, or for the deputation (2) of any office or offices or any part of any of them; or to the intent that any person or persons have, exercise, or enjoy any office or offices, or the deputation of any office or offices, or any part of any of them; which office or offices, or any part or parcel of them, shall in any wise touch or concern the administration or execution of justice (3), or the receipt, controlment, or payment of any of the king's highness

(1) Any office.—It was resolved in the case of Dr. Trevor, (3 Inst. 148; 12 Co. 78; Cro. Jac. 269,) concerning the chancellorship of Landaff, that offices in ecclesiastical, as well as temporal courts, are within this statute. For although they concern matters principally pro salute animarum, yet they also concern matters about matrimony and legitimation, which touch the inheritance of the subjects, and about matters of legacy for chattels real and personal, and in that respect, are courts of justice.

The rule in the Canons of 1640, is thus: The holy synod doth decree and ordain, that "no reward shall be taken for any chancellor's, commissary's, or official's place, under the heaviest censures of the church." Can. xi. 1610.

(2) For the deputation.—In Culliford v. De Cardonell, (2 Salk. 466,) the defendant was made deputy to the plaintiff in his office, and if he pay the plaintiff half the profits, then, &c. The defendant pleaded this statute; but the determination of the court was, "This bond is not within the statute, because the condition is not to pay him so much in gross, but half the profits, which must be sued for in the principal's name, for they belong to him, though out of them a share is to be allowed to the deputy for his service." But in Godolphin v. Tudor, (Ibid. 468,) where the deputy was to have the fees, and in consideration thereof was to pay 200*l.* per annum, and save the principal harmless; this was declared to be within the statute. And it was declared by the court, "that where an office is within the statute, and the salary is certain, if the principal make a deputation, reserving a lesser sum out of the salary, it is good. So, if the profits be uncertain, arising from fees, if the principal make a deputation, reserving a sum certain out of the fees and profits of the office, it is good; for in these cases the deputy is not to pay, unless the profits rise to a much. And though a deputy, by his constitution, is in place of his principal, and has no right to the fees, they still remain to be the principal's; so that, as to him, he is only reserving a part of his own, and giving away the rest to another. But where the reservation or agreement is not to come out of the profits, but to pay generally a certain sum, it must be paid, at all events, and such bond is void by the statute."

The doctrine in Lyndwood, Lyndesey, Ne Prelati, c. Ut omnia, v. Ad prelatum, 282,) upon this head, is as follows: "Sed bene jurisdictionem spirituales assuetudine cui pro suo salario certum summam, et officialis respondeat sibi pro integro hoc bene licet; si autem habens jurisdictionem talem velit eam committere alteri, solvat sibi certum precium, et pro labore sibi retineat residuum hoc non licet, recipiens tali modo officio suo privatus et a clero perpetuo amovendus."

(3) Execution of justice.—In the cited case of Dr. Trevor, it was resolved that the offices of commissary and registrar were included within this statute, and therefore, in Woodward v. Fox, (2 Vent. 267; 3 Lev. 289,) which was concerning the office of register to the Archbishop of Huntingdon, the question, whether the profit of a registership, in consideration of which was void by this statute, was waived and given up by the defendant, because it had been resolved in Dr. Trevor's case, Woodward it concerned administration of justice.

And my Lord Coke, in his report of Dr. Trevor's case, having particularly named the offices of the chancellor and registrar, leaves it with an et cetera, and thereby implies it to have been the sense of the court that all other ecclesiastical officers, who in any way concerned in the administration of justice, are likewise included in this statute.

treasure, money, rent, revenue, account, aulnage, auditorship, or surveying of any of the king's majesty's honours, castles, manors, lands, teneiments, woods, or hereditaments; or any of the king's majesty's customs, or any other administration, or necessary attendance to be had, done, or executed in any of the king's majesty's custom house or houses; or the keeping of any of the king's majesty's towns, castles, or fortresses, being used, occupied, or appointed for a place of strength and defence; or which shall concern or touch any clerkship to be occupied in any manner of court of record, wherein justice is to be ministered; that then all and every such person and persons that shall so bargain or sell any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, or that shall take any money, fee, reward, or profit, for any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations of any of the said offices, or any part of any of them, or that shall take any promise, covenant, bond, or assurance for any money, reward, or profit, to be given for any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations of any of the said office or offices, or any part of any of them, shall not only lose and forfeit all his and their right, interest, and estate which such person or persons shall then have, of, in, or to any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, or any part of any of them, or of, in, or to the gift or nomination of any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, for the which office or offices, or for the deputation or deputations of which office or offices, or for any part of any of them, any such person or persons shall so make any bargain or sale, or take or receive any sum of money, fee, reward, or profit, or any promise, covenant, or assurance to have or receive any fee, reward, money, or profit: but also that all and every such person or persons, that shall give or pay any sum of money, reward, or fee, or shall make any promise, agreement, bond, or assurance for any of the said offices, or for the deputation or deputations of any of the said office or offices, or any part of any of them, shall immediately, by and upon the same fee, money, or reward given or paid, or upon any such promise, covenant, bond, or agreement had or made for any fee, sum of money, or reward to be paid as is aforesaid, be adjudged a disabled person (1) in the law, to all intents and purposes, to have, occupy, or enjoy the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, or any part of any of them, for the which such person or persons shall so give or pay any sum of money, fee, or reward, or make any promise, covenant, bond, or other assurance, to give or pay any sum of money, fee, or reward.

"III. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every such bargain, sales, promises, bonds, agreements, covenants, and assurances, as be before specified, shall be void (2), to and against him and them by whom any such bargain, sale, bond, promise, covenant, or assurance, shall be had or made.

"IV. Provided alway, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend (3) to any office or offices, wherof any person or persons is or

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6. c. 16.

The bargains and assurances shall be void.
Cro. Eliz. 529.

Stiles, 29.
To what offices
this statute

(1) Disabled person:—In the case of Sir Arthur Ingram, (3 Inst. 154; Rex v. Norman Bishop of), Cro. Jac. 386; Hob. 75,) it was resolved by the Lord Chancellor Bacon, and Chief Justice Coke, to whom the king had referred it, that the disability here intended, is such, that the person is utterly disabled, during life, to take the same office, although it afterwards becomes void by the death of any other, and a new grant be made unto him, and that it is such a disability as the king himself cannot dispense with. But the statute not having said, who shall dispose of the office, upon such forfeiture and disability; that point came under consideration in Woodward v. Fox, (2 Vent. 188, 267,) and two things were resolved. 1. That the right of disposing the registership so forfeited, devolved to the crown. 2. That the king might make a new register, before office found, or the appearing of the title by any matter of record.

(2) Shall be void:—In Bella & Gale, (3 Keb. 813,) the obligation was, to pay 40*l.* per annum, so long as he should have and exercise the office of register of the Archdeacon of Chichester; but the court would not allow the bond to be void on this statute, because the money was not expressly said to be made payable for the office. The thing forbidden, is, the taking any bond, to receive profit directly or indirectly for any office: and if a bond be given to receive 40*l.* per annum for the office, it would be the receiving of profit directly for it. But it should seem that 40*l.* to be paid yearly, so long as he should exercise the office, savours strong enough of a payment for that office, to be called the receiving of profit, indirectly.

(3) Extend:—This statute, respecting the sale of offices, does not extend to Jamaica or to the colonies. Rex v. Vaughan, 4 Burr.

STAT. 5 & 6
EDW. 6, c. 16.
shall not extend.

Acts done by an officer removable shall be good.

A bargain for an office before the first day of March, &c.

Offices given by the two chief justices or justices of assize.

shall be seized of any estate of inheritance (1); nor to any office of parkership, or of the keeping of any park, house, manor, garden, chase, or forest, or to any of them; any thing in this act heretofore mentioned to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"V. Provided also, that if any person or persons do hereafter offend in any thing contrary to the tenor and effect of this act, yet that notwithstanding all judgments given, and all other act and acts executed or done by any such person or persons so offending by authority or colour of the office or deputation which ought to be forfeited, or not occupied, or not enjoyed by the person so offending as is aforesaid, after the said offence so by such person committed or done, and before such person so offending for the same offence be removed from the exercise, administration, and occupation of the said office or deputation, shall be and remain good and sufficient in law to all intents, constructions, and purposes, in such like manner and form as the same should or ought to have remained and been if this act had never been had or made.

"VI. Provided also, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend to any bargain, sale, gift, grant, nomination, bond, covenant, promise, agreement, or assurance, whatsoever it be, of or for any the office or offices, deputation or deputations aforesaid, or any part of any of them had, made, done, concluded, or agreed before the first day of March next coming, but that the same bargain, sale, gift, grant, nomination, bond, covenant, promise, agreement, or assurance had, made, done, concluded, or agreed before the said first day of March, shall always remain, continue, and be in such force, strength, and effect, as if this act had never been had or made; any thing before in this act mentioned to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"VII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend or be prejudicial or hurtful to any of the chief justices of the king's courts commonly called the King's Bench or Common Pleas, or to any of the justices of assize that now be or hereafter shall be, but that they and every of them may do in every behalf, touching or concerning any office or offices to be given or granted by them or any of them, as they or any of them might have done before the making of this act; any thing above mentioned to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 7 EDW.
6, c. 1.

XXVI. STAT. 7 EDWARDI 6, c. 1(2). A.D. 1553.

"An Act for the true answering of the King's Majesty's Revenue."

[Bishops not to be made accountable for tenths otherwise than as they had been accustomed.]

STAT. 7 EDW.
6, c. 2.

XXVII. STAT. 7 EDWARDI 6, c. 2. A.D. 1553.

"An Act for the establishing, uniting, or dissolving of certain Courts newly erected by the King that dead is."

STAT. 7 EDW.
6, c. 4.

XXVIII. STAT. 7 EDWARDI 6, c. 4 (3). A.D. 1553.

"An Act that all Patentees of Collectorships of Tenths be bound by Resignance."

STAT. 7 EDW.
6, c. 14.

XXIX. STAT. 7 EDWARDI 6, c. 14 (4). A.D. 1553.

[An Act concerning the King's general Pardon.]

[Except burglaries of churches, and robberies of goods in churches.]

2494. Culliford v. Cardonell, 1 Com. 2, n. (2).

(1) Estate of inheritance:—Means only offices of which subjects are seized of estates of inheritance. Huggins v. Bambridge, Willes, 246.

Vide Stephens on Nisi Prius, 1253, 1254. 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 44-46.

(2) Expired.

(3) Vide Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 11. Superseded by Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 20.

(4) Expired.

STATUTA MARIÆ⁽¹⁾

A.D. 1553.

	Page		Page
I. Stat. 1 Mar. Sess. 1, c. 1	345	V. Stat. 1 Mar. Sess. 2, c. 5	350
II. Sess. 2, c. 1	346	VI. Sess. 3, c. 9	350
III. c. 2	346	VII. c. 10	350
IV. c. 3	347

I. STAT. 1 MARIÆ, SESS. 1, C. 1(2). A.D. 1553.

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 1, C. 1."An Act repealing and taking away certain Treasons, Felonies, and Cases of Præmunire."

"Forasmuch as the state of every king, ruler, and governor of any realm, dominion, or commonalty, standeth and consisteth more assured by the love and favour of the subject toward their sovereign ruler and governor, than in the dread and fear of laws made with rigorous pains and extreme punishment for not obeying of their sovereign ruler and governor; and laws also justly made for the preservation of the commonweal, without extreme punishment or great penalty, are more often for the most part obeyed and kept, than laws and statutes made with great and extreme punishments, and in special such laws and statutes so made, whereby not only the ignorant and rude unlearned people, but also learned and expert people, minding honesty, are often and many times trapped andured, yea, many times for words only, without other fact or deed done or perpetrated:

The state of a king standeth more assuredly by the love of his subjects, than in fear of laws.

"II. The queen's most excellent majesty, calling to remembrance that many, well honourable and noble persons, as other of good reputation within this her grace's realm of England, have of late (for words only, without other opinion, fact, or deed) suffered shameful death not accustomed to nobles: her highness therefore for her accustomed clemency and mercy, minding to avoid and put away the occasion and cause of like chances hereafter to ensue, trusting her loving subjects will, for her clemency to them shewed, love, serve, and obey her grace the more heartily and faithfully, than for dread or fear of pains of body, is contented and pleased that the severity of such like extreme, dangerous, and painful laws, shall be abolished, annulled, and made frustrate and void.

"III. Be it therefore ordained and enacted by the queen our sovereign lady, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from henceforth none act, deed, or offence, being by act of parliament or statute made treason, petty treason, or misprision of treason, by words, writing, cipheryng, deeds, or otherwise whatsoever, shall be taken, had, deemed, or adjudged to be high treason, petty treason, or misprision of treason, but only such as be declared and expressed to be treason, petty treason, or misprision of treason, in or by the act of parliament or statute made in the xxv. year of the reign of the most noble king of famous memory, King Edward the Third(3), touching or concerning treason or the declarations of treasons, and none other; nor that any pains of death, penalty, or forfeiture in any wise ensue or be to any offender or offenders, for the doing or committing any treason, petty treason, or misprision of treason, other than such as be in the said statute made in the said xxv. year of the reign of the said King Edward the Third, ordained and provided; any act or acts of parliament, statute or statutes, had or made at any time heretofore, or after the said xxv. year of the

No act or offence shall be treason, petty treason, or misprision, but such as be declared by the statute of 25 Edw. 3, St. V. c. 2.

(1) If a statute speak of the king, generally and indefinitely in his politic capacity, it will extend to all his successors, and to a queen, if the crown descend to a female. 12

Co. 110.

(2) Vide Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 25, s. 3.

(3) Ant. 58.

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 1, c. 1.

Certain persons exempted out of the benefit of this statute.

All offences made felony, or in the case of premunire since anno 1 Hen. 8, repealed.

reign of the said late King Edward the Third, or any other declaration in matter to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"IV. Provided always, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act of parliament, or any thing therein mentioned, shall not in any wise extend to give any manner of benefit, advantage, or commodity to any person or persons, being the last day of September last past arrested or imprisoned for treason, pety treason, or misprision of treason, or to any person or persons before being indicted of treason, pety treason, or misprision of treason, or being outlawed or attainted of treason, pety treason, or misprision of treason, before the said last day of September last past, or being commanded to keep his or their house or houses, or other men's houses, or otherwise excepted out of the queen's highness' most gracious pardon given the day of her coronation, but that they and every of them, for any the offences before mentioned, perpetrated, committed, or done by them or any of them, before the said last day of September, shall suffer such pains of death, losses, and forfeitures of lands and goods, as in cases of treason, as though this act had never been had made; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"V. And be it further ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all offences made felony, or limited or appointed to be within the case of premunire, by any act or acts of parliament, statute or statutes, made sithence the first day of the first year of the reign of the late king of famous memory King Henry the Eighth, not being felony before, nor within the case of premunire, and also of and every branch, article, and clause mentioned or in any wise declared in any of the same statutes, concerning the making of any offence or offences to be felony, or within the case of premunire, not being felony nor within the case of premunire before, and all pains and forfeitures concerning the same, or any of them, shall from henceforth be repealed, and utterly void and of none effect."

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 2, c. 1.

II. STAT. 1 MARIE, SESS. 2, c. 1. A.D. 1553.

"An Act declaring the Queen's Highness to have been born in a most just and lawful Matrimony; and also repealing all Acts of Parliament and Statutes of Divorce had or made to the contrary."

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 2, c. 2.

III. STAT. 1 MARIE, SESS. 2, c. 2 (1). A.D. 1553.

"A Repeal of the Statute of 1 Edw. 6, c. 1, made against such as shall speak irreverently of the Body and Blood of Christ; and of the Statute of 1 Edw. 6, c. 2, touching the Election of Bishops; and of the Statute of 2 Edw. 6, c. 1, concerning the Uniformity of Service, and Administration of the Sacraments; and of the Statute of 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 21, made to take away all positive Laws ordained against the Marriage of Priests; and of the Statute of 3 & 4 Edw. 6, c. 10, made for the abolishing of divers Books and Images; and of the Statute of 4 & 5 Edw. 6, c. 12, made for the ordering of Ecclesiastical Ministers, and of the Statute of 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 1, made for the Uniformity of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments; and of the Statute of 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 2, made for the keeping of Holy-days and Fasting-days (2); and of the Statute of 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 12, touching the Marriage of Priests and Legitimation of their Children. All such Divine Service and Administration of Sacraments as were most commonly used in England in the last Year of Henry 8, shall be used through the Realm, after the twentieth Day of December, A.D. 1553, and as the Kind of Service nor Administration of Sacraments."

(1) Repealed by Stat. 1 Elis. c. 2. Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 25, s. 48.

(2) Holy-days and Fasting-days:—"In the 1st of Queen Elizabeth, a bill to revive the act of parliament made anno 5 Edw. 6, for keeping of holy-days and fasting-days, was brought into parliament, but passed not; so that the repeal of Queen Mary remained upon this act till Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 25, by which the repeal was repealed; and it is a rule, that by repealing of a repeal, the first act is revived." 2 Inst. 686.

"In the mean while, the Calendar, before the Book of Common Prayer had directed

IV. STAT. 1 MARIE, SESS. 2, c. 3. A.D. 1553.

"An Act against Offenders of Preachers and other Ministers in the Church."

"Forasmuch as it is most necessary, in every Christian commonwealth, to provide that tranquillity and peace may be preserved and continued amongst the people, and specially in holy church, in the time of divine service, the administration of sacraments, and sacramentals, as before this time it hath been accustomed in holy church within this realm; and that all things being contrary thereunto, or that are, or may be in disturbance thereof, may by foresight be eachewed and avoided, and remedy therefore in due time provided, as well for the preservation of the queen's highness' peace, as for a universal quietness and order to be used within this realm.

"II. Be it therefore enacted by the queen our sovereign lady, the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person or persons of their own power and authority, at any time or times after the xx. day of December next coming, do or shall willingly and of purpose, by open and overt word, fact, act, or deed, maliciously or contemptuously molest, let, disturb, vex, or trouble, or by any other unlawful ways or means disquiet or misuse any preacher or preachers that now be, or that at any time or times hereafter shall be, licensed, allowed, or authorized to preach by the queen's highness, or by any archbishop or bishop of this realm, or by any other lawful ordinary, or by any of the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, or otherwise lawfully authorized or charged by reason of his or their cure, benefice, or other spiritual promotion or charge, in any of his or their open sermon, preaching, or collation, that he or they shall make, declare, preach, or pronounce, in any church, chapel, churchyard, or in any other place or places, used, frequented, or appointed, or that hereafter shall be used, or appointed to be preached in.

"III. Or if any person or persons, after the said xx. day of December next coming, shall maliciously, willingly, or of purpose molest, let, disturb, vex, disquiet, or otherwise trouble, any parson, vicar, parish priest, or curate, or any lawful priest, preparing, saying, doing, singing, ministering, or celebrating the mass, or other such (1) divine service, sacraments, or sacramentals, as was most commonly most holy-days should be observed, and in the statutes published by the queen in the second year of her reign, one was, that there should be other holy-days observed, besides the Sundays, but only such, as be set out for any days, as in the Stat. anno 3 & 6 Edw. 6. and in the new kalendar authorized by the queen's majesty, who appears in other statutes, as she did probably in this,) to have greatly disliked the parliament's intermeddling in matters of religion, the ordering of which she reckoned one great branch of the royal supremacy." Gibson's Codex, 245.

The whole statute of which this repeal is a part, was, as previously observed, repealed by Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 25, s. 48, in these words: "And be it further enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that an act made in the 1st year of the reign of Queen Mary, entitled, An Act for the repeal of certain Statutes made in the time of King Edward the Sixth, shall stand repealed and void." From whence it was noted and urged, at a grand committee of lords and commons, (12 Co. 7.) that Queen Mary's repeal being repealed, King Edward's remained still in force, and that by consequence all bishops made contrary to the tenor of that act since the said repeal, 1 Edw. 6. were illegally made, having been made by election, and not by donation, or by the single authority of the king's letters patents. But upon consideration had of this matter by command of the king, it was answered and resolved by Popham (Chief Justice), Coke (Attorney), the Chief Baron, and other Justices, then attendant on parliament, that although the said act 1 Mar. be repealed, yet the act 1 Edw. 6. is not now in force, but remains repealed; and that, principally for this cause, that the foregoing act, 25 Hen. 8, c. 20, which directs the making of bishops by election, (though repealed by 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 8.) was revived, expressly and by name in 1 Eliz. c. 1, s. 7, and by consequence did revive and re-establish the ancient method of election and confirmation. From hence it follows, (says my Lord Coke,) that the act of 1 Eliz. reviving the 25 Hen. 8, hath repealed the act of 1 Edw. 6." Gibson's Codex, 113, 114. 12 Co. 8.

(1) Other such:—In Poul Moone's case, (Jon. (Sir T.), 159.) who was committed to gaol upon this statute for disturbing a minister in saying common prayer; it was urged in his behalf, that the statute was made only against those who should give disturbance in the celebration of the mass, or of such service as was in use ann. ult. Henry 8. But the court resolved, that "it extends to the divine service now established, and that the word (such) hath not reference

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 2, c. 3.

The penalty of disturbing of preachers and ministers in the church. 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 1. 5 & 6 1 dw. 6, c. 1.

Disturbing by word or deed a preacher in his sermon. 2 Bulet. 47. 53. Aley, 50.

Molesting a priest preparing or celebrating mass or other service. 1 Mod. 168. Jones (Sir T.), 159.

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 2, C. 3.

Abusing the blessed sacrament of the body and blood of Christ, or breaking any altar or crucifix.

The punishment of the offender for any of the crimes aforesaid.

frequented and used in the last year of the reign of the late sovereign lord King Henry the Eighth, or that at any time hereafter shall be allowed, set forth, authorized by the queen's majesty.

"IV. Or if any person or persons, at any time or times after the said xx. day of December, shall contemptuously, unlawfully, or maliciously, of their own power or authority, pull down, deface, spoil, abuse, break, or otherwise unreverently handle or order, the most blessed, comfortable, and holy sacrament of the Body and Blood of our Saviour Jesus Christ, commonly called the Sacrament of the Altar, being or that shall be in any church or chapel, or in any other decent place, or the pix or canopy wherein the same sacrament is or shall be; or unlawfully, contemptuously, or maliciously, of their own power and authority, pull down, deface, spoil, or otherwise break any altar or altars, or any crucifix or crucifixes that now or hereafter shall be in any church, chapel, or churchyard; that every such offender and offenders in any the premises, his or their aider, procurer, or abettor, aiders, procurers, or abettors, immediately and forthwith after any the said act or acts, or other the said misdemeanors so committed, done, or made, or any time or times after, shall be apprehended, arrested, and taken by any constable or constables, churchwarden or churchwardens, of the said parish, town, or place where the said offence or offences shall be so committed, made, or done, or by any other officer or officers, or by any other person (1) or persons then present at the time of the said offence or offences so unlawfully committed, made, or done.

"V. Which person or persons so apprehended, taken, or arrested, with convenient speed shall be brought and carried to any justice of peace within the said shire, or within any city, borough, liberty, or town corporate wherein justice of peace be, where the said offence or offences shall be so committed, done, or made: and that the said justice of peace, upon due accusation thereupon had made by the apprehender or apprehenders, or other person or persons, of any of the said person or persons so offending, forthwith shall commit the said person or persons so apprehended, arrested, and taken, to safe keeping and custody, as in the discretion of the said justice shall be thought most meet and convenient, so that within six days next and immediately after the said accusation so had made to the said justice, the said justice with one other justice of peace in the said shire, city, borough, liberty, or town corporate, shall diligently examine the said person or acts, offence or offences aforesaid.

"VI. And if they the said two justices of peace shall upon their said examination find or perceive the said person or persons so accused guilty of any of the said offence or offences whereof he or they shall be so accused, and that by sufficient witnesses, or by his or their own confession or confessions, that the said person or persons so accused is or are guilty of the said offence or offences, and immediately with convenient speed the said two justices shall commit and award the said person or persons so accused as is aforesaid, to the gaol of or for the said shire, city, borough, liberty, or town corporate where the said offence or offences was so committed, made, or done, there to remain without bail or mainprise, by the space of three months then next ensuing, and further to the next quarter sessions to be holden within the said shire, city, borough, liberty, or town corporate, next after the end of the said three months; at which said quarter sessions, the said person or persons so committed to the gaol as is aforesaid, upon their reconciliation and repentance in that behalf before the said justices of peace at the said sessions, shall be delivered and discharged out of prison and gaol, upon sufficient surety of his good abearing and behaviour, to be then and there taken by the said justices for one whole year then next ensuing, as by the discretion to the manner or quality of the service, but to the authority establishing it."

(1) By any other person:—In the case of Glover & Hyde, (1 Mod. 168.) where an action of trespass, of assault, and battery, was brought, for laying hands on the disturber; it was declared by the court, that at common law, a person disturbing divine service, might be removed by any other person there present, as being all concerned in the service of God that was then performing; that the disturber was a nuisance to the altar, and might be removed by the same person of law, that allows a man to abate a nuisance. Vide etiam, 1 Russell on Crimes, Greaves, 301.

discretions of the said justices then and there being, or of the more part of them, shall be thought meet and convenient; and if the said person or persons so in gaol as is aforesaid, will not be reconciled and repent at the said quarter sessions, that then the said person or persons immediately in time convenient, shall be further awarded and committed to the said gaol by the said justices, or by the more part of them, there to remain without bail or mainprise, until he or they so committed and awarded to gaol as is aforesaid, shall be reconciled, and be penitent, for his or their said offence or offences.

"VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons, at any time or times after the said xx. day of December, of their own authority and power, willingly and unlawfully do rescue any offender or offenders, so apprehended, taken, or arrested as is aforesaid, or will disturb, hinder, or let the said offender or offenders, so offending as is aforesaid, to be apprehended, taken, or arrested, that then every one of the said rescuers or disturbers shall suffer like imprisonment as is aforesaid, and further shall pay, forfeit, and lose for a fine, for every of his or their said offences, five pounds to the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors.

"VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any of the offenders aforesaid be not taken, apprehended, or arrested immediately in time convenient, as is aforesaid, but do escape or go away, that then the said escape shall be lawfully presented before the justices of peace in the said shire, city, borough, liberty, or town corporate, at the next quarter sessions to be holden where the said escape was made and suffered, and that then the inhabitants of the parish where the said escape was so suffered, shall forfeit and lose to the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, for every such escape five pounds, to be levied and taken as other like amerciaments and fines before this time hath been levied and taken upon any village, hundred, or town, for the escape of any murderer or other felon, for not making pursuit upon hue and cry, according to the Statute of Winchester, and the statute made and provided in the third year of the worthy King Henry the Seventh.

"IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular justices of peace, justices of assize, justices of Oyer and Determiner, and all and singular mayors, bailiffs, and justices of peace within any city, borough, or town corporate, in any parts within this realm, within the limits of their commission or commissions, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, after the said xx. day of December, to inquire of all and singular the offences and misdemeanors aforesaid, and to hear and determine the same, and to set the fines and amerciaments of the said offender or offenders as is aforesaid.

"X. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend to abrogate and take away the authority, jurisdiction, power, and punishments of the ecclesiastical laws (1) now standing and remaining in their force, of or for the punishment of any the offences and misdemeanors aforesaid, but that the authority, power, jurisdictions, and punishments of the said ecclesiastical laws of and for any of the offences and misdemeanors aforesaid, shall stand in full power and strength, and to be used and exercised in all and in every thing, as though this act had never been had and made; this present act, or any thing therein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

(1) Ecclesiastical laws.—Upon indictment before justices of peace for saying, "preaching was but prating, and bearing of service more edifying than two hours' preaching;" the party was convicted, and fined 100 marks. And the error assigned to reverse the judgment was, that this was not any offence inquirable by indictment, and before justices of peace, but only before the high commissioners; which point was referred to Sir H. Yelverton (Attorney General), to consider thereof; and he certified, that it was not inquirable before them, and of that opinion was the court, but they would advise. Gibson's Codex, 305. In another report of the same case it is said, that though the words are spiritual, yet one may be indicted for them, as seditious words against the state of the church, and as drawing after them a temporal evil, namely, the disturbance of the peace. 2 Rol. Abr. Indictment (1), 78.

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 2, c. 3.
Godb. 246,
pl. 343.

The penalty for rescuing an offender, or disturbing the arrest.

The penalty if an offender be not taken, but doth escape.

13 Edw. 1,
St. 11. c. 1.
3 Hen. 7, c. 1.

What magistrates shall have authority to inquire of
and punish the offenders.

The jurisdiction of the law
ecclesiastical
saved.

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 2, c. 3. "XI. Provided always, and be it enacted, that whatsoever person offending in the premises, shall for any of the offences afore recited receive punishment of the ordinary, having a testimonial thereof under the said ordinary's seal, shall not for the same offence afterwards be convicted before the justice: and in likewise receiving for the said offences punishment by the justice, he shall not for the same offence afterwards receive punishment of the ordinary; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding."

There shall be but one punishment for one offence.

Farther provisions relating hereto, see 1 Eliz. cc. 1 & 2; 13 Eliz. c. 12; 23 Eliz. c. 1; 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4; 15 Car. 2, c. 6; 1 Geo. & Mar. St. I. c. 18; 5 Ann. c. 5; and 23 Geo. 2, c. 28.

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 2, c. 5. V. STAT. 1 MARIE, SESS. 2, c. 5(1). A.D. 1553.
"An Act for the Limitation of Prescription in certain Cases."

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 3, c. 9. VI. STAT. 1 MARIE, SESS. 3, c. 9(2). A.D. 1553.
"The Queen during her Life(3) shall have Authority, by Writing to be sealed with the Great Seal of England, to make and prescribe to all those Churches Cathedral and Collegiate, that were erected and established by King Henry the Eighth, and to the Deans, Probendaries, and Ministers of the same, and to their Successors, such Statutes and Orders for the good Governance(4) of every of them, and of the Lands and Possessions of every of the same Churches, as shall seem good to her; and to alter, change, augment, or diminish the same, as occasions shall serve; and to ordain and establish Statutes, Ordinances, and Foundations for the Government of such Grammar Schools as were erected by King Henry the Eighth, or by King Edward the Sixth, and of the Ministers and Scholars of the same; and to alter and transpose other Statutes and Ordinances there heretofore made."

STAT. 1 MAR.
SESS. 3, c. 10. VII. STAT. 1 MARIE, SESS. 3, c. 10. A.D. 1553.
"The Repeal of a Statute (not printed) made anno 2 Edw. 6, touching the Consolidation and Union of the Parish Churches of Onger and Grensted, in the County of Essex: and they shall be several Parishes as they were before, and James Morris and his Heirs shall have the Presentation of the said Parsonage of Onger."

(1) For the Statutes of Limitation, and the decisions thereon, vide Stephens on Nisi Prius, 2893-2935.

(2) Expired.

In this statute it is recited, that King Henry the Eighth's statutes were not indented, but in the commission which was issued under this statute, it is also specified, that they were not under the great seal. 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 100.

(3) During her Life:—In the last year, of which this direction was given by Cardinal Pole (Archbishop), at the opening of the convocation: "Deinde voluit Reverendissimus, statuta ecclesiarum noviter erectarum aut mutatarum à regularibus ad seculares, expendi per Episcopos Lincoln' Cestræ & Petriburg'. Item et Nicolao Wotton, Cens. Edmundo Stuard, Winton, et Seth Hound Wigorn. Ecclesiarum Decanis: et que consideranda sunt, referri Reverendissimo, et primum commodè poterant." Reg. Cos. 1557, Sess. 2.

(4) Governance:—The clause in the foundation charter, is thus: "Per presentes volumus etiam et ordinamus,—quos prædicti decanus et præbendarii dicti, ac curia exhibebunt, et occupabunt, secundum constitutionem, regulas, et statuta, et per nos quodam indenturâ in posterum fieri specificand' et declarand'." 1 Burn. App. 361.

STATUTA PHILIPPI & MARIE.

A.D. 1554—1558.

	Page		Page
I. Stat. 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 6	351	VI. Stat. 3 & 4 P. & M. c. 8 [Ir.]	352
II. c. 8	351	VII. c. 9 [Ir.]	352
III. c. 17	351	VIII. c. 10 [Ir.]	352
IV. 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 4	352	IX. c. 11 [Ir.]	352
V. c. 14	352

I. STAT. 1 & 2 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 6 (1). A.D. 1554.

STAT. 1 & 2
P. & M. c. 6.

"A Reviewer of the Statute of 5 Rich. 2, St. II. c. 5, concerning arresting of Heretical Preachers; and of the Statute of 2 Hen. 4, c. 15, touching repressing of Heresies and Punishment of Hereticks; and of the Statute of 2 Hen. 5, c. 7, concerning the Enormity of Heresy and Lollardy, and the Suppression thereof."

II. STAT. 1 & 2 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 8 (2). A.D. 1554.

STAT. 1 & 2
P. & M. c. 8.

"An Act repealing all Articles and Provisions made against the See Apostolick of Rome, since the twentieth Year of King Henry the Eighth, and for the establishment of all Spiritual and Ecclesiastical Possessions and Hereditaments conveyed to the Laity."

III. STAT. 1 & 2 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 17 (3). A.D. 1554.

STAT. 1 & 2
P. & M. c. 17.

"An Act touching Leases hereafter to be made by certain Spiritual Persons."

"Where in the parliament begun and holden at Westminster the eighth day of June in the xxviii. year of the reign of our late king of famous memory, Henry the Eighth, and there continued and kept until the dissolution of the same parliament the eighteenth day of July next following, one act entitled, 'An Act for the institution of the First-fruits in the time of Vacation to the next Incumbent,' was made and made, wherein are certain clauses for leases then made and to be made by spiritual and ecclesiastical persons, to endure and be in force for term of six years, if the incumbents did resign their said spiritual promotions, or if the same should otherwise become void by the only act of the same incumbents, as by the same act more at large may appear: to the intent the parsons and vicars, and others having cure of souls, may the better attend, and be the more vigilant in their ministry and function.

"II. Be it enacted by the king our sovereign lord, and by the queen our sovereign lady, with the assents of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that as much of the same act as doth concern the making good of the said leases, ne any clause, sentence, provision, or article therein contained, shall extend or be construed or adjudged to extend to any lease that shall be made by any parson, vicar, or any other having any spiritual promotion after the feast of the Purification of our Lady next coming(4)."

So much of the statute of 28 Hen. 8, c. 11, as concerneth the ratifying of a lease made by a spiritual person of his benefice to a layman, for some years after the lessor's resignation or death, altered. Dyer, 255, pl. 7. The statute of 28 Hen. 8, c. 11, shall not extend to leases hereafter to be made by spiritual persons.

(1) Repealed by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1, s. 15. (4) Vide Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20. Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11. Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 11. Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 9. Stat. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 27. Stat. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 108.
(2) Repealed by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1, s. 2.
(3) Vide Stat. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 27. Stat. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 108.

STAT. 2 & 3
P. & M. c. 4.

IV. STAT. 2 & 3 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 4 (1). A.D. 1555.

"The Payment of the First-fruits of Spiritual Livings to the Queen shall cease. The yearly Tenths heretofore paid to the Queen by the Statute of 26 Hen. 8. c. 3, shall be employed to other Godly Uses. Parsonages inappropriate, Tithes, Glebe Lands, and other Ecclesiastical Livings, renounced by the Queen. by this Act shall not extend to Tenths reserved upon Letters Patents."

STAT. 2 & 3
P. & M. c. 14.

V. STAT. 2 & 3 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 14. A.D. 1555.

[Authority given to the Dean and Chapter of Hereford, to re-edify four ancient Mills.]

STAT. 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 8.
[Ir.]

VI. STAT. 3 & 4 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 8 (2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1554.

"An Act repealing Statutes and Provisions made against the Sea Apostates of Rome, sithence the twentieth Year of King Henry the Eighth, and also for the establishment of Spiritual and Ecclesiastical Possessions and Hereditaments conveyed to the Laity."

STAT. 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 9.
[Ir.]

VII. STAT. 3 & 4 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 9 (3). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1554.

"An Act for reviving of three Statutes made for the Punishment of Heresies."

STAT. 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 10.
[Ir.]

VIII. STAT. 3 & 4 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 10 (4). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1554.

"An Act for the Discharge of the First-fruits."

STAT. 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 11.
[Ir.]

IX. STAT. 3 & 4 PHILIPPI & MARIE, c. 11 (5). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1554.

"An Act whereby certain Offences be made Treasons; and also for the Amendment of the King and Queen's Majesties' Issue."

(1) Repealed by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 4.

(2) Partly repealed by Stat. 2 Eliz. c. 1.
(1.)

(3) Repealed by Stat. 2 Eliz. c. 1. (1.)

(4) Repealed by Stat. 2 Eliz. c. 1. (1.)

(5) Expired.

STATUTA ELIZABETHÆ.⁽¹⁾

A.D. 1558—1603.

	Page		Page
I. Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1	353	XXIX. Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 5	433
II. c. 2	363	XXX. c. 7	433
III. c. 3	370	XXXI. c. 11	434
IV. c. 4	371	XXXII. c. 14	435
V. c. 19	379	XXXIII. 18 Eliz. c. 3	436
VI. c. 22	384	XXXIV. c. 6	436
VII. 2 Eliz. c. 1 [Ir.]	385	XXXV. c. 7	437
VIII. c. 2 [Ir.]	391	XXXVI. c. 11	437
IX. c. 3 [Ir.]	395	XXXVII. 23 Eliz. c. 1	440
X. c. 4 [Ir.]	401	XXXVIII. 27 Eliz. c. 2	444
XI. c. 7 [Ir.]	403	XXXIX. c. 3	447
XII. 5 Eliz. c. 1	403	XL. c. 11	447
XIII. c. 5	408	XLI. 29 Eliz. c. 6	447
XIV. c. 9	408	XLII. 31 Eliz. c. 6	447
XV. c. 23	408	XLIII. 35 Eliz. c. 1	461
XVI. c. 28	415	XLIV. c. 2	463
XVII. 8 Eliz. c. 1	416	XLV. c. 3	468
XVIII. c. 13	420	XLVI. c. 7	468
XIX. 12 Eliz. c. 1 [Ir.]	420	XLVII. c. 14	468
XX. 13 Eliz. c. 1	420	XLVIII. 39 Eliz. c. 5	469
XXI. c. 2	420	XLIX. c. 6	480
XXII. c. 4 [Ir.]	424	L. c. 8	480
XXIII. c. 5	424	LI. c. 22	480
XXIV. c. 8	424	LII. c. 28	481
XXV. c. 10	424	LIII. 43 Eliz. c. 2	481
XXVI. c. 12	428	LIV. c. 4	481
XXVII. c. 20	432	LV. c. 8	503
XXVIII. c. 29	433	LVI. c. 9	504

I. STAT. 1 ELIZABETHÆ, C. 1 (2). A.D. 1558.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

An Act (3) to restore (4) to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all Foreign Powers repugnant to the same."

"Most humbly beseech your most excellent majesty, your faithful and obedient subjects the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this your present parliament assembled, that where in time of the reign of your most dear father, of happy memory, King Henry the Eighth, divers good laws and statutes were made and established, as well for the utter extinguishment and putting away of usurped and foreign powers and authorities out of this your realm, and other highness' dominions and countries, as also for the restoring and uniting to the imperial crown of this realm, the ancient jurisdictions, authorities, superiorities, and pre-eminences to the same of right belonging or appertaining, by reason whereof we your most humble and obedient subjects, from the xxv. year of the reign of your said dear father, were continually kept in good order, and were discharged of divers great and intolerable charges and exactions before that time

All ancient jurisdiction restored to the crown.

A repeal of divers statutes, and revivor of

(1) The same discrepancy of dates between English and Irish statutes, to which allusion has been made, (ante 117.) exists in this subsequent reigns.

(2) Vide Stat. 8 Eliz. c. 1. Stat. 16 Car. c. 11. Stat. 13 Car. 2, c. 12. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32.

(3) An Act—This act was passed in the House of Lords, "Dissentien' Archiep. Ebor. Episcopus Sulp. Vicecom. Mountague, Ep. Winton. Wigorn' Landaven' Coven' Westm' Cestren' Carlolen' et Abbate Westm'." and the speeches made against the bill (by Heath, archbishop of York, and Scot, bishop of Chester,) are printed in the Annals of the Reformation, for the first twelve years of Queen Elizabeth. Gibson's Codex, 42.

(4) To restore:—In Caudrey's case, (5 Co. 8.) it was stated, that this was not a statute introductory of a new law, but declaratory of the old; which is true, with regard to a general right of jurisdiction in the crown, over the state ecclesiastical; but it does not apply to the entire statute. Vide post. 357, n. (1) (2).

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.
others, and all foreign power
abolished.
1 & 2 P. & M.
c. 8.

1 Roll. 162.
1st. 121.

A repeal of the statute of 1 & 2 P. & M.
c. 8.

A revivor of the statutes
hereafter
specified, viz.
23 Hen. 8,
c. 9.
24 Hen. 8,
c. 12.

25 Hen. 8,
not printed.

25 Hen. 8,
c. 19.

25 Hen. 8,
c. 20.

25 Hen. 8,
c. 21.

26 Hen. 8,
c. 14.

unlawfully taken and exacted by such foreign power and authority as was usurped, until such time as all the said good laws and statutes by parliament made in the first and second years of the reigns of the late King and Queen Mary, your highness' sister, entitled, 'An Act repealing all Articles, and Provisions made against the See Apostolick of Rome since the twentieth year of King Henry the Eighth, and also for the establishment of all and Ecclesiastical Possessions and Hereditaments conveyed to the Laity,' clearly repealed and made void, as by the same act of repeal more at large and may appear; by reason of which act of repeal, your said humble subjects have been brought under an usurped foreign power and authority, and do yet remain in that bondage, to the intolerable charges of your loving subjects, if some (by the authority of this your high court of parliament, with the assent of your highness) be not had and provided:

"II. May it therefore please your highness, for the repressing of usurped foreign power, and the restoring of the rights, jurisdictions, and eminences appertaining to the imperial crown of this your realm, that enacted by authority of this present parliament, that the said act made in the first and second years of the reigns of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, and all and every branches, clauses, and articles therein contained, (other than branches, clauses, and sentences as hereafter shall be excepted,) may from the first day of this session of parliament, by authority of this present parliament, be repealed, and shall from thenceforth be utterly void and of none effect:

"III. And that also for the reviving of divers of the said good statutes made in the time of your said dear father, it may also please your highness, that one act and statute made in the xxiii. year of the reign of the late King Henry the Eighth, entitled, 'An Act, that no Person shall be cited to answer in any Diocese wherein he or she dwelleth, except in certain cases;'

"IV. And one other act made in the xxiv. year of the reign of the said late King, entitled, 'An Act, that Appeals in such cases, as hath been used to be sued to the See of Rome, shall not be from henceforth had nor used, in this Realm;'

"V. And one other act made in the xxv. year of the said late king, entitled, 'An Act, for the restraint of Payment of Annates and First-fruits of Archbishopricks and Bishopricks to the See of Rome;'

"VI. And one other act in the said xxv. year, entitled, 'An Act, for the Submission of the Clergy to the King's Majesty;'

"VII. And also one act made in the said xxv. year, entitled, 'An Act, for the better regulating the Payment of Annates or First-fruits to the Bishop of Rome, and for the electing and consecrating of Archbishops and Bishops within this Realm;'

"VIII. And one other act made in the said xxv. year, entitled, 'An Act, concerning the Exoneration of the King's Subjects from Exactions and Contributions heretofore paid to the See of Rome, and for having Licences and Indulgences within this Realm, without suing further for the same;'

"IX. And one other act made in the xxvi. year of the said late king, entitled, 'An Act for Nomination and Consecration of Suffragans within this Realm;'

(1) Nomination and Consecration of Suffragans within this Realm.—It was an ancient custom in the church, when a bishop grew very aged, or otherwise unfit to discharge the episcopal office, for him to take a coadjutor, or for a coadjutor to be given to him; originally, the coadjutor succeeded to the bishoprick upon its vacancy; but, in later times, he became only an assistant, during the life of the bishop.

For the appointment of coadjutors, there are many rules in the canon law; (Extra. l. i., t. 31, c. 15; Sext. Decret. l. 3, t. 5, c. 1; Caus. 7, q. 1, cc. 1, 4, 5, 6, 13, 17, 18;) but the authority that seems to be the most conclusive upon the subject, and upon the subsequent practice of the church in England was apparently founded, in the decretal Epistle of Innocent the Third to the Archbishop of Arles. Decret. l. 3, c. 1. "Ex parte tua fuit propositum, quod Aurasienensis episcopus gravi morbo ferè per quadriennium laboraret, quod pastorale officium non posset exercere; princeps terræ illius, civitatis ejusdem, à te postulant manus ipsius, cum sis metropolitanus coram te providere. Verum cum ipsum ad compellere non possis, nec debemus nec afflicto afflictio sit addenda, si

"X. And also one other act made in the xxviii. year of the reign of the said late king, entitled, 'An Act for the Release of such as have obtained pretended Licences and Dispensations from the See of Rome;' and all and every branches, works, and sentences in the said several acts and statutes contained, by the authority of this present parliament, from and at all times after the last day of this session of parliament, shall be revived, and shall stand and be in full force and strength, to all intents, constructions, and purposes: and that the branches, sentences, and words of the said several acts, and every of them, from thenceforth shall and may be judged, deemed, and taken to extend to your highness, your heirs and successors, as fully and largely as ever the same acts, or any of them, did extend to the said late King Henry the Eighth, your highness' father.

"XI. And that it may also please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that so much of one act or statute made in the xxxii. year of the reign of your said dear father King Henry the Eighth, entitled, 'An Act concerning Precontracts of Marriages, and touching Degrees of Consanguinity,' as in the time of the late King Edward the Sixth, your highness' most dear brother, by one other act or statute, was not repealed;

"XII. And also one act made in the xxxvii. year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, entitled, 'An Act that Doctors of the Civil Law, being married, may exercise Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction;' and all and every branches

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

28 Hen. 8,
c. 16.

The sentences and branches in the aforesaid statutes shall extend to the queen.

32 Hen. 8,
c. 38.

2 & 3 Edw. 6,
c. 23.

37 Hen. 8,
c. 17.

ipius miserie miserendum, eò quòd idem vir bonus extiterit, et ecclesiam salubriter sibi commissam gubernaverit: nos volentes tam episcopo quam ecclesie, providere, mandamus, quatenus illi coadjutorem associet, vitam providum et honestum: per quem tam episcopo, quam populo, utiliter consulatur."

Three coadjutors were included in one commission given by Archbishop Peckham, Reg. f. 23 (a), to the Bishop of London; and the powers given were, to collate to benefices of the patronage of the see, to institute clerks presented by others, and to grant "commendas canonicas, in suis causis," i. e. dispensations to hold a second benefice, for a time, without institution; (Ibid.) the granting of which was in the power of the bishops, and they, in fact, frequently granted it. And, by another instrument, the same archbishop committed, causidam singulis, to one of those three; with this limitation, that he should not set it to any institutions or collations, but with consent of the other two.

It should, however, be remarked, that in the appointment, none of the three were bishops, but presbyters only, viz. the Dean and Treasurer of St. Paul's, and the Archdeacon of Colchester; the discharge of the mere episcopal duties being probably undertaken by a suffragan bishop. In like manner, it existed in the diocese of Lichfield, under the same archbishop; (Ibid. 26 b.) who having required the bishop to provide a suffragan for the mere spiritual purposes of his diocese, in the words previously cited; enjoins him, in the same instrument, not to collate to any benefice, "absque coadjutoris vestri consilio pariter et consensu;" which coadjutor had been appointed before, and was the Archdeacon of Chester; to whom also, in the same commission, the archbishop assigns one hundred marks by way of salary, to be paid him out of the bishoprick, at Midsummer and Christmas.

In the time of the same archbishop, (Peck.

103(a),) a coadjutor was given to Robert, bishop of Sarum; and a dispute arising concerning the method of appointing him, (occasioned, as it should seem, (Ibid. 143,) by some pretended immunities or compositions, probably that, for the supplying of jurisdiction, sede vacante,) a twofold expedient was thought of: either for the bishop to name two or three of the chapter, who, being capitularly approved, might be presented to the archbishop to choose one; or for the chapter to name, and the archbishop to choose.

By these instances it appears, that, in England, whatever the practice might be in ancient times and in other countries, the two ends of orders and of jurisdiction voluntary, in case of the inability of a bishop, were answered by two several persons; the first under the name of suffragan, and the second under the name of coadjutor. And though, in subsequent times, little mention has been made of the last, yet curators or coadjutors to the beneficed clergy, in the like circumstances, have been very common, both before and since the Reformation.

The Reformatio Legum (51(b),) urges, that, by parity of reason, coadjutors ought to be assigned to bishops: "Quemadmodum episcopi ministris inferioribus, cum jam vel propter morbum desperatum, vel propter senectutem, ecclesiam ministrare diutius non possint, adjutores apponere debent: sic etiam illis, ob eandem causam, ab archiepiscopo dabantur, modò noster consensus interveniat." Peck. 76(a), 96(a), 178(a). Islip, 155(a).

In the canon law, (Extra. l. 3, t. 6, c. 6,) direction is given for a coadjutor to an archdeacon, as follows. "Archidiacono, quem morbo paralytico laborantem, officium lingue asseris amisisse, coadjutor est meritò adhibendus." And, in our records, there are many instances, modern as well as ancient, of coadjutors given also to other dignitaries, and to incumbents of benefices. Gibson's Codex, 137, and authorities therein cited.

the articles in the said two acts last mentioned, and not repealed in the said late King Edward the Sixth, may from henceforth likewise stand, revived, and remain in their full force and strength, to all intents and purposes, any thing contained in the said act of repeal before mentioned, or any other cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

A repeal of the statute of 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 8, shall continue repealed.

"XIII. And that it may also please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all other laws and statutes, branches and clauses of any act or statute, repealed and made void by the act of repeal, made in the time of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, in this present act specially mentioned and revived, shall stand, remain repealed and void, in such like manner and form as they were before the day of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

A revivor of the statute 1 Edw. 6, c. 1.

"XIV. And that it may also please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that one act and statute made in the first year of the late King Edward the Sixth, your majesty's most dear brother, 'An Act against such Persons as shall unreverently speak against the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ, commonly called the Sacrament of the Altar, for the receiving thereof under both Kinds,' and all and every branches, articles, clauses, and sentences therein contained, shall and may likewise from the last day of this session of parliament be revived, and from thenceforth shall and may remain, and be in full force, strength, and effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, in such like manner and form as the same was at any time in the first year of the reign of the said late King Edward the Sixth; any law, statute, or other matter to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

A repeal of the statute of 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 6. 5 Rich. 2, St. II. c. 5. 2 Hen. 4, c. 15. 2 Hen. 5, c. 7.

"XV. And that also it may please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that one act and statute made in the first and second years of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, entitled, 'An Act for the reviving of three Statutes made for the Punishment of Heresies;' and also the said three statutes mentioned in the said act, and the same act revived, and all and every branches, articles, clauses, and sentences therein contained in the said several acts and statutes, and every of them, shall be from the last day of this session of parliament deemed and remain utterly repealed, and of none effect, to all intents and purposes; any thing in the said act, or any of them contained, or any other matter or cause, to the contrary notwithstanding.

The abolishing of foreign authority.

"XVI. And to the intent that all usurped and foreign power and authority, spiritual and temporal, may for ever be clearly extinguished, and never to be used or obeyed within this realm, or any other your majesty's dominions or countries, may it please your highness that it may be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate spiritual or temporal, shall at any time after the last day of this session of parliament use, exercise any manner of power, jurisdiction, superiority, authority, pre-eminence, or privilege spiritual or ecclesiastical, within this realm, or within any other your majesty's dominions or countries that now be, or hereafter shall be, but from thenceforth the same shall be clearly abolished out of this realm, and out of your highness' dominions for ever; any statute, ordinance, custom, constitution, or any other matter or cause whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Co. pl. fol. 465, 487. Ecclesiastical jurisdiction annexed to the crown. 1 Leon. 176.

"XVII. And that also it may likewise please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such jurisdiction, power, leges, superiorities, and pre-eminences spiritual and ecclesiastical, as by any statute or ecclesiastical power or authority hath heretofore been, or may lawfully be exercised or used for the visitation of the ecclesiastical state and persons, for reformation, order, and correction of the same, and of all manner of heresies, schisms, abuses, offences, contempts, and enormities, shall for ever be united and annexed to the crown of this realm.

"XVIII. And that your highness, your heirs and successors, kings or of this realm, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, by letters patents under the great seal of England, to assign, name, and authorize (1) when and as often as your highness, your heirs or successors, shall think meet and convenient, and for such and so long time as shall please your highness, your heirs or successors, such person or persons being natural-born subjects to your highness, your heirs or successors, as your majesty, your heirs or successors, shall think meet, to exercise, use, occupy, and execute under your highness, your heirs and successors, all manner of jurisdictions, privileges, and pre-eminences, in any wise touching or concerning any spiritual or ecclesiastical jurisdiction, within these your realms of England and Ireland, or any other your highness' dominions and countries: and to visit (2), reform, redress, order, correct, and amend all such errors, heresies, schisms, abuses, offences, contempts, and enormities (3) whatsoever,

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

The queen may assign commissioners to exercise ecclesiastical jurisdiction. Repealed by 16 Car. 1, c. 11, s. 3.

(1) To assign, name, and authorize—

My Lord Coke states, that it was resolved in Candrey's case, (5 Co. 1 (a).) that if this act had never been made, the king or queen of England, for the time being, might have made such an ecclesiastical commission, by the ancient prerogative and law of England. But it is said by Bishop Stillingfleet, (Eccles. Ca. pt. 2, 67.) that the series of instances which Lord Coke produces out of our ancient histories and laws, have been found, upon examination, not to come up to the case in hand; which is not, whether the King, by the law of England, had not a jurisdiction over the state ecclesiastical, exclusive of the Pope, and antecedent to any statute made for that purpose; but, (as the same right reverend prelate states it,) "Whether our ancient law doth give the King a power, by virtue of his ecclesiastical jurisdiction, to appoint commissioners, by an extraordinary way of jurisdiction, to proceed in primâ instantiâ, against persons by ecclesiastical censures;" (Id. 85.) for the proof of which, (as he particularly shows,) there is not one instance among the many alleged by my Lord Coke, that is sufficient, or that comes up to the point.

(2) To visit—Lord Coke considers, (Candrey's case, 5 Co. 1 (a).) that this branch was inserted out of necessity; for that the bishops, and most of the clergy, being then private, it was necessary to raise a commission to deprive them who would not deprive themselves, and to have a more summary proceeding than by the ordinary and prolix course of law required. But Bishop Stillingfleet (Eccles. Ca. pt. 2, 67 et seq.) believes, that they were rather deprived by a particular commission for that purpose; which the queen might grant, in virtue of this act, by the same reason, that she issued particular commissions into every county, to execute the powers contained and specified in such statute.

Life of Archbishop Parker, 147.
In Ireland, so early as the thirteenth century, a visitation was made of the archdiocese of Dublin, the record of which visitation is generally styled the Crede Mihi: copies of the document still exist, and by one of them, in the British Museum, it appears, that the original was written about the end of the reign of Henry 3. Soon after, a general survey or valuation of the churches of Ireland was instituted, as is found by some fragments of the valuation still remaining in the Exchequer in England: the valuation so made is generally called "Pope Nicholas' Taxation," and was executed in the reign of Edward 1; there is a writ from King Edward 3, ordering a new visitation of the diocese of Ireland to be made, though no such visitation has as yet been discovered. The most important document of that description, which next occurs, is the Repertorium Viride, or account of the former and present state of his own archdiocese, made by John Alan, archbishop of Dublin, in the reign of Henry 8. The original record, thus compiled, has continued in the possession of the archbishop's successors; and when we find copies of it were made for preservation in the libraries of Christ Church and St. Patrick's Cathedrals, Trinity College, &c. where they now remain, it may be fairly presumed, that it was formerly a document in considerable estimation. During the reign of Queen Elizabeth, many visitations of the dioceses of Ireland were made; some of them pursuant to order of state, and records of most of them are still to be seen in the MSS. Library of Trinity College, Dublin.

(3) Offences, contempts, and enormities:—The High Commission Court, which was erected in virtue of this clause, being abolished by Stat. 16 Car. 1, c. 11, the extent and exercise of that authority are now matters of mere speculation and curiosity; but, during the period that such court existed, there were many and great contests between it and the courts of Westminster Hall, concerning the extent of the jurisdiction assigned and limited by this statute; the commissioners, on the one hand, not confining themselves to such crimes as might properly be called enormous, (heresy, schism, polygamy, incest, and recusancy,) but taking cognizance of adultery, alimony, defamation, laying violent hands on a clerk, misbehaviour of clergymen in their functions, and the like; the cognizance of which, the judges affirmed to belong of right to the standing ecclesiastical courts, and not to the enormities, within the meaning of this statute; alleging further, that the exercise of jurisdiction, in these and the like cases, by the high commissioners, would not only prejudice all the bishops of England in their ecclesiastical jurisdiction, but would be also grievous to the subject, who must be drawn up from all the remote parts of the realm, when, before their own diocesan, they might receive justice at their own doors. Much of

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.
Moor, 755,
pl. 1043.
Cro. Car. 113.

Who are com-
pellable to take
the oath:
ecclesiastical
persons and officers, judge,
justice, mayor, temporal officer, he that hath the queen's fee.

The oath of the queen's supremacy.
Repealed by 1 Gul. & Mar.
sess. 1, c. 8,
s. 2.
1 Bulst. 199.

The penalty
for refusing
the oath.

which by any manner of spiritual or ecclesiastical power, authority, c tion, can or may lawfully be reformed, ordered, redressed, corrected, re amended, to the pleasure of Almighty God, the increase of virtue, and vation of the peace and unity of this realm; and that such person or p be named, assigned, authorized, and appointed by your highness, yo successors, after the said letters patents to him or them made and del aforesaid, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, and letters patents (1) under your highness, your heirs and successors, to es and execute all the premises, according to the tenour and effect of the patents; any matter or cause to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding

"XIX. And for the better observation and maintenance of this, please your highness that it may be further enacted by the authority that all and every archbishop, bishop, and all and every other person, and other ecclesiastical officer and minister, of what estate, eminence, or degree soever he or they be or shall be, and all and every judge, justice, mayor, and other lay or temporal officer and minister, other person having your highness' fee or wages, within this realm, or highness' dominions, shall make, take, and receive a corporal oath (2) Evangelist, before such person or persons as shall please your highness or successors, under the great seal of England to assign and name, and to take the same according to the tenour and effect hereafter following is to say,

"I A. B. do utterly testify and declare in my conscience, that highness is the only supreme governor (3) of this realm, and of all other ness' dominions and countries, as well in all spiritual or ecclesiastical causes, as temporal; and that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, tate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-authority ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm; and therefore I renounce and forsake all foreign jurisdictions, powers, superiorities, ties, and do promise, that from henceforth I shall bear faith and true the queen's highness, her heirs and lawful successors, and to my power and defend all jurisdictions, pre-eminences, privileges, and authorities, belonging to the queen's highness, her heirs and successors, or united to the imperial crown of this realm. So help me God, and by the
this book."

"XX. And that it may also be enacted, that if any such archbishop, any other ecclesiastical officer or minister, or any of the said temporal lords, or any of the said knights, or any of the said burgesses, or any of the said clerics, or any of the said lay officers or ministers, shall peremptorily or obstinately refuse or delay to comply with the said request, command, or injunction, in that behalf lawfully made, then, in such case, the said archbishop, or other ecclesiastical officer or minister, or any of the said lords, knights, burgesses, clerics, or lay officers or ministers, so refusing or delaying, shall be liable to the penalties, forfeitures, and punishments, therein expressed, as in and by the said Statute, in that behalf made, shall more fully appear, which Statute, in that behalf made, shall be taken, used, and construed, in all points, as the said Statute, in that behalf made, shall in that behalf extend, unto the said archbishop, or other ecclesiastical officer or minister, or any of the said lords, knights, burgesses, clerics, or lay officers or ministers, so refusing or delaying, as by the said Statute, in that behalf made, shall more fully appear."

this kind is to be met with in the reports of that time, particularly in my Lord Coke, who strenuously resisted the encroachments of the High Commission; and he and the other judges restrained them, in many instances, by prohibitions. Roper's (Sir Anthony) case, 12 Co. 47. 4 Inst. 332. Gibson's Codex, 45, and authorities therein cited.

(1) Of the said letters patents.—The letters patents or commission, (one copy of which is printed at large in the Life of Archbishop Grindal, App. 64.) empowered the commissioners, to fine and imprison; which they accordingly practised, in many cases; and the practice was allowed by the greater part of the justices assembled at Serjeants' Inn to consider of it; (Gibson's Codex, 15:) with this limitation, that the fine ought to be reasonable, and the imprisonment only for a moderate time. But the commission being in its nature ecclesiastical, and limited, by the express words of the statute, to offences punishable by spiritual or ecclesiastical power and it being also found, that divers imprisoned in the reign of Queen had been delivered by habeas that, though fines had been impos-reign, none of them had been in these considerations, and upon mature examination of the several act, it was resolved by all the just Common Pleas, (9 Jac. 1.) that did not warrant a commission to prison; which resolution, and for it, are contained in the 4th 324.

(2) Oath.—The form of the altered by Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 8.

(3) Supreme governor. — would not take the title of "Supreme governor" on account of a scruple having been raised about it, by one Lever, a minister of the State, in the effort, (as appears by a letter from him to Dr. Parker; 2 Burn App. 332) to make it a law. Besides, it is probable this title is more offensive to the popish party (than to the Unitarian party) than that other of "Supreme governor."

to take or receive the said oath; that then he so refusing shall forfeit and lose only during his life all and every ecclesiastical and spiritual promotion (1), benefice, and office, and every temporal and lay promotion and office, which he hath solely at the time of such refusal made; and that the whole title, interest, and incumbency, in every such promotion, benefice, and other office, as against such person only so refusing, during his life shall clearly cease and be void, as though the party so refusing were dead.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

"XXI. And that also all and every such person and persons so refusing to take the said oath, shall immediately after such refusal be from thenceforth, during his life, disabled to retain or exercise any office or other promotion which he at the time of such refusal hath jointly, or in common, with any other person or persons.

"XXII. And that all and every person and persons, that at any time hereafter shall be preferred, promoted, or collated to any archbishoprick or bishoprick, or to any other spiritual or ecclesiastical benefice, promotion, dignity, office, or ministry: or that shall be by your highness, your heirs or successors, preferred or promoted to any temporal or lay office, ministry, or service within this realm, or in any your highness' dominions, before he or they shall take upon him or them to receive, use, exercise, supply, or occupy any such archbishoprick, bishoprick, promotion, dignity, office, ministry, or service, shall likewise make, take, and receive the said corporal oath (2) before mentioned, upon the Evangelist, before such persons as have or shall have authority to admit any such person to any such office, ministry, or service, or else before such person or persons as by your highness, your heirs or successors, by commission under the great seal of England shall be named, assigned, or appointed to minister the said oath.

"XXIII. And that it may likewise be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any such person or persons, as at any time hereafter shall be promoted, preferred, or collated, to any such promotion spiritual or ecclesiastical, benefice, office, or ministry, or that by your highness, your heirs or successors, shall be promoted or preferred to any temporal or lay office, ministry, or service, shall and do peremptorily and obstinately refuse to take the same oath so to him to be offered: that then he or they so refusing shall presently be judged disabled in the law to receive, take, or have the same promotion spiritual or ecclesiastical, or the same temporal office, ministry, or service within this realm, or any other your highness' dominions, to all intents, constructions, and purposes.

"XXIV. And that it may be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person and persons temporal, suing livery or oustre le maine out of the hands of your highness, your heirs or successors, before his or their livery or oustre le maine sued forth and allowed, and every temporal person or persons doing any homage to your highness, your heirs or successors, or that shall be received into service with your highness, your heirs or successors, shall make, take, and receive the said corporal oath before mentioned, before the lord chancellor of England, or the lord keeper of the great seal for the time being, or before such person or persons as by your highness, your heirs or successors, shall be named and appointed to accept or receive the same.

He that sueth livery or oustre le maine.

He that doth homage to the queen.

He that shall be received into the queen's service.

"XXV. And that also all and every person and persons taking orders, and all and every other person and persons which shall be promoted or preferred to any degree of learning in any university within this your realm or dominions, before he shall receive or take any such orders, or be preferred to any such degree of learning, shall make, take, and receive the said oath by this act set forth and declared as is aforesaid, before his or their ordinary, commissary, chancellor, or vice-chancellor, or their sufficient deputies in the said university.

He that taketh orders.

He that taketh degrees in any university.

"XXVI. Provided always, and that it may be further enacted by the autho-

(1) Promotion, &c.—The penalty of refusing is here much moderated; being high treason, in Stat. 28 Hen. 8, c. 10, (ante 205.) and Stat. 35 Hen. 8, c. 1, (ante 287.)

(2) The said corporal oath:—i. e. the oath of supremacy; but which was altered by Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 8.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

He that hath estate of inheritance in a temporal office, first refuseth, and then taketh
the oath.

rity aforesaid, that if any person, having any estate of inheritance in any temporal office or offices, shall hereafter obstinately and peremptorily refuse to swear and take the said oath as is aforesaid, and after at any time during his life shall willingly require to take and receive the said oath, and so do take and accept the same oath before any person or persons that shall have lawful authority to administer the same; that then every such person, immediately after he hath so received the said oath, shall be vested, judged, and deemed in like estate and possession of the said office, as he was before the said refusal, and shall and may use and exercise the said office in such manner and form as he should or might have done before such refusal; any thing in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XXVII. And for the more sure observation of this act, and the utter extinguishment of all foreign and usurped power and authority, may it please your highness, that it may be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons dwelling or inhabiting within this your realm, or in any other your highness' realms or dominions, of what estate, dignity, or degree soever he or they be, after the end of thirty days next after the determination of the session of this present parliament, shall by writing, printing, teaching, preaching, express words, deed, or act, advisedly, maliciously, and directly affirm, hold, stand with, set forth, maintain, or defend, the authority, pre-eminence, power or jurisdiction, spiritual or ecclesiastical, of any foreign prince, prelate, person, state or potentate whatsoever, heretofore claimed, used, or usurped within this realm, or any dominion or country being within or under the power, dominion, or obedience of your highness; or shall advisedly, maliciously, and directly put in execution any thing for the extolling, advancement, setting forth, maintenance, or defence of any such pretended or usurped jurisdiction, power, pre-eminence, or authority, or any part thereof; that then every such person and persons so doing and offending, their abettors, aiders, procurers, and counsellors, being thereof lawfully convicted and attainted, according to the due order and course of the common laws of this realm, for his or their first offence shall forfeit and lose (1) unto your highness, your heirs and successors, all his and their goods and chattels, as well real as personal.

The penalty of
the maintenance of foreign authority.
Dyer, 363.

The forfeiture
for the first
offence.

"XXVIII. And if any such person so convicted or attainted shall not have or be worth of his proper goods and chattels to the value of twenty pounds at the time of his conviction or attainder, that then every such person so convicted or attainted, over and besides the forfeiture of all his said goods and chattels, shall have and suffer imprisonment by the space of one whole year, without bail or mainprise.

Forfeiture of the second
offence.

"XXIX. And that also all and every the benefices, prebends, and other ecclesiastical promotions and dignities whatsoever, of every spiritual person so offending, and being attainted, shall immediately after such attainder be utterly void to all intents and purposes, as though the incumbent thereof were dead; and that the patron and donor of every such benefice, prebend, spiritual promotion, and dignity, shall and may lawfully present unto the same, or give the same, in such manner and form as if the said incumbent were dead; and if any such offender or offenders, after such conviction or attainder, do afterwards commit or do the said offences, or any of them, in manner and form aforesaid, and be thereof duly convicted and attainted, as is aforesaid; that then every such offender and offenders shall for the same second offence incur into the dangers, penalties, and forfeitures ordained and provided by the Statute of Provision and Præmunire, made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second.

16 Rich. 2,
c. 5.

The penalty of the third
offence.

"XXX. And if any such offender or offenders, at any time after the said second conviction and attainder, do the third time commit and do the said offences, or any of them, in manner and form aforesaid, and be thereof duly convicted and

(1) Shall forfeit and lose.—These penalties are according to Stat. 1 Edw. 6, c. 12; whereas in Henry the Eighth's time, Stat. 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, (anté 152,) made the penalty

a præmunire, and Stat. 28 Hen. 8, c. 18, (anté 205,) constituted the offence to be treason; and both, in the first instance.

attainted, as is aforesaid; that then every such offence or offences shall be deemed and adjudged high treason, and that the offender or offenders therein, being thereof lawfully convicted and attainted, according to the laws of this realm, shall suffer pains of death, and other penalties, forfeitures, and losses, as in cases of high treason by the laws of this realm.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

"XXXI. And also that it may likewise please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no manner of person or persons shall be molested or impeached for any of the offences so committed or perpetrated only by preaching, teaching, or words, unless he or they be thereof lawfully indicted within the space of one half year next after his or their offences so committed: and in case any person or persons shall fortune to be imprisoned for any of the said offences committed by preaching, teaching, or words only, and be not thereof indicted within the space of one half year next after his or their such offence so committed and done; that then the said person so imprisoned shall be set at liberty, and be no longer detained in prison for any such cause or offence.

Within what time an offender shall be impeached.

"XXXII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in anywise extend to repeal any clause, matter, or sentence contained or specified in the said act of repeal made in the said first and second years of the reigns of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, as doth in any wise touch or concern any matter or cause of præmunire, or that doth make or ordain any matter or cause to be within the case of præmunire; but that the same, for so much only as toucheth or concerneth any case or matter of præmunire, shall stand and remain in such force and effect, as the same was before the making of this act; any thing in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

All things touching the præmunire in 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 8, s. 40, do continue in force.

"XXXIII. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend or be prejudicial to any person or persons for any offence or offences committed or done, or hereafter to be committed or done, contrary to the tenor and effect of any act or statute now revived by this act, before the end of thirty days next after the end of the session of this present parliament; any thing in this act contained, or any other matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

Offences committed against statutes revived.

"XXXIV. And if it happen that any peer of this realm shall fortune to be indicted of and for any offence that is revived or made præmunire or treason by this act; that then he so being indicted shall have his trial by his peers, in such like manner and form as in other cases of treason hath been used.

Trial of peers.

"XXXV. Provided always, and be it enacted as is aforesaid, that no manner of order, act, or determination for any matter of religion, or cause ecclesiastical, had or made by the authority of this present parliament, shall be accepted, deemed, interpreted, or adjudged at any time hereafter, to be any error, heresy, schism, or schismatical opinion; any order, decree, sentence, constitution, or law, whatsoever the same be, to the contrary notwithstanding.

No matter of religion, &c. made by this parliament shall be adjudged heresy or schism.

"XXXVI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such person or persons to whom your highness, your heirs or successors, shall hereafter by letters patents, under the great seal of England, give authority to have or execute any jurisdiction, power, or authority spiritual, or to visit, reform, order, or correct any errors, heresies, schisms (1), abuses, or enormities, by virtue of this act (2), shall not in any wise have authority or power to order, determine, or

Commissioners may adjudge such things to be heresy as are warranted by the Scripture, or the

(1) Heresies, schisms:—"Inter hæresim, et schisma hoc interesse arbitrantur, quod hæresis perversum dogma habeat, schisma propter episcopalem dissensionem ab ecclesia pariter separat. Quod quidem in principio hæresis ex parte intelligi potest: ceterum nullum schisma non aliquam sibi confingit hæresim, ut rectè ab ecclesiâ recessisse videatur." CAUS. 24, q. 3, c. 26.

(2) By virtue of this act:—"Which act, so far as concerneth the High Commission court, being repealed by Stat. 16 Car. 1, c. 11, it follows, that this branch, which extended only to that court, is also repealed, but, saith my Lord Coke, while that commission stood, 'albeit this proviso extendeth only to the High Commissioners, yet seeing in the High Commission there be so many bishops, and other divines, and learned men, it may serve for a good direction to others, especially to the diocesan, being a sole judge in so weighty a cause.'" Gibson's Codex, 351.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

first four general councils. For farther provisions relating hereto, see c. 2. And farther, 13 Eliz. c. 12; 23 Eliz. c. 1; 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4; 15 Car. 2, c. 6; 1 Gul. & Mar. St. I. c. 19; 5 Ann. c. 5; Geo. 2, c. 28.

None shall be indicted or arraigned, but by two witnesses.

A proviso for them that give relief to offenders.

Chetwood's appeal to the court of Rome.

adjudge any matter or cause to be heresy, but only such (1) as heretofore have been determined, ordered, or adjudged to be heresy, by the authority of the canonical Scriptures, or by the first four general councils, or any of them, or by any general council wherein the same was declared heresy by the express words of the said canonical Scriptures, or such as hereafter shall be ordered, or determined to be heresy by the high court of parliament of this realm, or by the assent of the clergy in their convocation; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XXXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person or persons shall be hereafter indicted or arraigned for any of the offences made, ordained, revived, or adjudged by this act, unless there be two or more witnesses or more, to testify and declare the said offences whereof he is indicted or arraigned; and that the said witnesses, or so many of them as shall be living and within this realm at the time of the arraignment of such person so indicted, shall be brought forth in person face to face before the court so arraigned, and there shall testify and declare what they can say against the party so arraigned, if he require the same.

"XXXVIII. Provided also, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons shall hereafter happen to give any relief, comfort, or in any wise be aiding, helping, or comforting, to the person or persons of any that shall hereafter happen to be an offender in any matter or cause touching heresy, schism, or treason revived or made by this act; that then such relief, aid, or comfort given shall not be judged or taken to be any offence, unless there be sufficient witnesses at the least, that can and will openly testify and declare that the person or persons that so gave such relief, aid, or comfort, had not any knowledge of such offence committed and done by the said offender, at the time such relief, aid, or comfort, so to him given or ministered; any thing in this act contained, or any other matter or cause to the contrary in any wise standing.

"XXXIX. And where one pretended sentence hath heretofore been made by the Consistory in Paul's before certain judges delegate, by the authority of the late Cardinal Poole, by reason of a foreign usurped power and authority, against Richard Chetwood, Esq., and Agnes his wife, by the name of Agnes Chetwood, at the suit of Charles Tyrrel, gentleman, in a cause of matrimony controverted between the said Richard and Agnes, as by the same pretended sentence more plainly doth appear, from which sentence the said Richard and Agnes have appealed to the court of Rome; which appeal doth there remain, and yet undetermined:

"XL. May it therefore please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if sentence in the said appeal shall happen to be

In the 5th year of James the First, Nicholas Fuller, (12 Co. 41.) was convened before the high commissioners, for heresy, schism, and other erroneous opinions, and for slandering the authority of the High Commission. Whereupon he moved for a prohibition, and obtained it; and it stood quoad the slander, (which, they said was punishable by the courts of common law,) but quoad the heresy, schism, &c. consultation was granted. After which, such commissioners proceeded and convicted him of schism and erroneous opinions, and imprisoned him, and fined him 200*l.* but, the same term, he moved for a habeas corpus, and it was granted.

(1) But only such:—The ground of making this limitation, was a retrospect of the times of popery, in which everything was adjudged

heresy, that the church of Rome did to call by that name, (vide Stat. 25 c. 21.) how far soever, in its own nature being fundamental, and how contrary to the Gospel and the ancient doctrine of the catholic church; such as speaking against pilgrimages, against the worship of saints, against the necessity of auricular confession, and the like. Agreeably to this is the description, which the canon law gives of heresy: "Qui in ecclesia Christi in aliquod, pravumque sapient: si coram sanum, rectumque sapient, resistit: maciter, suaque pestifera, et mortalis emendare nolunt, sed defrausant, hæretici sunt." Cause 10 c. 31. Vide 1 De Lolme on the Constitution, by Stephens, 178-207.

the said court of Rome for and in the behalf of the said Richard and Agnes, for the reversing of the said pretended sentence, before the end of three score days next after the end of this session of this present parliament, that then the same shall be adjudged and taken to be good and effectual in the law, and shall and may be lawfully pleaded, and allowed in any court or place within this realm; any thing in this act, or in any other act or statute contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 1.

"XLI. And if no sentence shall be given at the court of Rome in the said appeal for the reversing of the said pretended sentence before the end of the said three score days, that then it shall and may be lawful for the said Richard and Agnes, and either of them, at any time hereafter, to commence, take, sue, and prosecute their said appeal from the said pretended sentence, and for the reversing of the said pretended sentence, within this realm, in such like manner and form as was used to be pursued, or might have been pursued within this realm, at any time since the twenty-fourth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, upon any sentences given in the court or courts of any archbishop within this realm.

"XLII. And that such appeal as so hereafter shall be taken or pursued by the said Richard Chetwood and Agnes, or either of them, and the sentence that herein or thereupon shall hereafter be given, shall be judged to be good and effectual in the law to all intents and purposes; any law, custom, usage, canon, constitution, or any other matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XLIII. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that where there is the like appeal now depending in the said court of Rome between Robert Harcourt, merchant of the staple, and Elizabeth Harcourt, otherwise called Elizabeth Robins, of the one party, and Anthony Fidell, merchant-stranger, on the other party; that the said Robert, Elizabeth, and Anthony, and every of them, shall and may, for the prosecuting and trying of their said appeal, have and enjoy the like remedy, benefit, and advantage, in like manner and form as the said Richard and Agnes, or any of them, hath, may, or ought to have and enjoy; this act or any thing therein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

An appeal between Robert Harcourt and Anthony Fydell.

1 Hale's P. C.
404.

II. STAT. 1 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 2 (1). A.D. 1558.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 2.

An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer and Service in the Church, and Administration of the Sacraments."

"Where at the death of our late sovereign lord King Edward the Sixth there remained one uniform order of common service and prayer, and of the administration of sacraments, rites, and ceremonies of the church of England, which was set forth in one book, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer, and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies in the Church of England;' authorized by act of parliament holden in the fifth and sixth years of our said late sovereign lord King Edward the Sixth, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments;' the which was repealed and taken away by act of parliament in the first year of the reign of our late sovereign lady Queen Mary, to the great decay of the due honour of God, and discomfort to the professors of the truth of Christ's religion.

13 & 14 Car.
2, c. 4.

5 & 6 Edw. 6,
c. 1.

A repeal of the statute of 1 Mar. sess. 2, c. 2.

"II. Be it therefore enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that the said statute of repeal, and every thing therein contained, only concerning the said book (2), and the service, administration of the sacraments, rites, and ceremonies

And the Book of Common Prayer shall be of effect.

1) Vide Stat. 8 Eliz. c. 1. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Powell v. Maltburn (Clerk), 3 Wils. 355. 2) Black. v. Sir W. J. 851.

2) Only concerning the said book:—"The book of consecrating and ordaining, being not expressly named in this repeal and revived, some persons raised a scruple, whether that book, 5 Edw. 6, did not still stand condemned by law, and, by consequence, whether the ordinations performed according to it, did not remain illegal? But the answer is clear, that neither was it expressly named, in that part of the repeal of Queen Mary, which relates to Stat. 5 Edw. 6, and that for a plain reason; because, having by that statute been made part of the Common Prayer, it was judged to be effectually repealed by the parliament of Queen Mary, and revived by that of Queen Elizabeth, under the general title of the book, of which it was a part." Gibson's Codex, 100. Dyer, 234(a).

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 2.

1 Leon. 295.

The Book of Common Prayer shall be used.
8 Eliz. c. 1.

The alterations of the book
set forth.
5 & 6 Edw. 6,
c. 1.

The forfeiture
of those which

nies, contained or appointed in or by the said book, shall be void and of no effect, from and after the feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist (1) next coming; and that the said book, with the order of service, and of the administration of sacraments, rites, and ceremonies, with the alterations and additions therein added and appointed by this statute, shall stand and be, from and after the said feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist, in full force and effect, according to the tenor and effect of this statute; any thing in the aforesaid statute of repeal to the contrary notwithstanding.

"III. And further be it enacted by the queen's highness, with the assent of the lords and commons (2) in this present parliament (3) assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular ministers (4) in any cathedral or parish church, or other place within this realm of England, Wales, and the marches of the same, or other the queen's dominions, shall from and after the feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist next coming, be bounden to say and use the matins, even-song, celebration of the Lord's supper, and administration of each of the sacraments, and all the common and open prayer, in such order and form as is mentioned in the said book, so authorized by parliament in the said fifth and sixth years of the reign of King Edward the Sixth, with one alteration or addition of certain lessons (5) to be used on every Sunday in the year, and the form of the Litany altered and corrected (6), and two sentences only added (7) in the delivery of the sacrament to the communicants, and none other or otherwise.

"IV. And that if any manner of parson, vicar, or other whatsoever minister, that ought or should sing or say common prayer mentioned in the said book,

(1) Nativity of St. John Baptist.—For a month and more, after Queen Mary's death, the service continued as before, nothing being forbidden, except the elevation; but, December 27, the queen set forth a proclamation, (Stry. Ref. App. 3.) to charge and command all manner of her subjects, as well those that be called to ministry in the church, as all others, that they do forbear to preach or teach, or to give audience to any manner of doctrine or preaching, other than to the Gospels and Epistles, commonly called the Gospel and Epistle of the day, and to the Ten Commandments, in the vulgar tongue, without exposition, or addition of any manner, sense, or meaning to be applied or added; or to use any other manner of public prayer, rite, or ceremony in the church, but that which is already used, and by law received, or the common Litany used at this present, in her majesty's own chapel, and the Lord's Prayer, and the Creed, in English; until consultation may be had by parliament, by her majesty, and her three estates of this realm, for the better concubation and accord of such causes, as at this present are moved in matters and ceremonies of religion.

(2) Of the lords and commons.—The assent of the "lords spiritual," is not stated; because all the bishops present dissented: "Read tertiâ vice, et conclusa; dissentientibus Archiepiscopo Eborac', Marchione Wint. Comite Salop. Vice-Comite Mountague, Episcopis London', Elien', Wigorn', Landaven', Coven', Exon', Cestren', Carlhol', ac Dominis Morley, Stafford, Dudley, Wharton, Rich, et North." D'Ewes, 28.

(3) This present parliament.—Which was not opened and begun on the 23rd of January, as the common statutes have it; but the members having been summoned to meet on that day, were by writ discharged from attendance, by reason of the Queen's indisposition, till the 25th, on which day the parliament was opened; (Ibid. 3.) and, two days after, an indictment upon this statute was held by all the justices of both benches to be insufficient, (Dyer, 203(a.), because it was said, "Contra formam injunctam. statuti inchoat' et tent' apud Westmonaster' 23 die Januarii;" but it seems to have been implied, that this is a general act, and need not be particularly recited.

(4) All and singular ministers.—In an action upon this statute, brought against a popish priest, for saying of mass, it was held by the whole court, that he was within the purview of this statute, it appearing clearly by the next clause. (a. 1.) that the design of the parliament was, to abolish the superstitious service, and to establish the new service in its place. Dyer, 205(a.).

(5) Certain lessons.—Two years after this, the queen issued her commission to the archbishop and three others, to peruse the order of the lessons throughout the whole year, and to cause some new calendars to be imprinted; which were finished, and sent to the several bishops to see them observed in their dioceses, in the month of February, 1560. Stry. Ref. 218. Parl. App. 28.

(6) Altered and corrected.—By the insertion of the clause "From the tyrannies of the Bishop of Rome, and all his detestable enormities," which had been adopted in the reign of Edward the Sixth.

(7) Two sentences only added.—Of the two forms now used at the delivering of the bread and wine; the first part of each (the word Life, inclusive,) was in the book of the second year of King Edward 6, but not the second part; but in the book of the fifth year, was the second part, without the first; and the alteration made by virtue of this act, was the inserting of both as they now stand.

or minister the sacraments, from and after the feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist next coming, refuse to use the said common prayers, or to minister the sacraments in such cathedral or parish church, or other places as he should use to minister the same, in such order and form as they be mentioned and set forth in the said book; or shall, wilfully or obstinately standing in the same, use any other rite (1), ceremony, order, form, or manner of celebrating of the Lord's supper, openly or privily, or mattens, even-song, administration of the sacraments, or other open prayers, than is mentioned and set forth in the said book; (open prayer in and throughout this act, is meant that prayer which is for others to come unto, or hear, either in common churches, or private chapels or oratories, commonly called the service of the church;) or shall preach, declare, or speak (2) any thing in the derogation or depraving of the said book, or any thing therein contained, or of any part thereof, and shall be thereof lawfully convicted, according to the laws of this realm, by verdict of twelve men, or by his own confession, or by the notorious evidence of the fact, shall lose and forfeit to the queen's highness, her heirs and successors, for his first offence, the profit of (3) all his spiritual benefices or promotions coming or arising in one whole year next after his conviction; and also that the person so convicted shall for the same offence suffer imprisonment for the space of six months, without bail or mainprise.

"V. And if any such person once convict of any offence concerning the premises, shall after his first conviction afterwards offend, and be thereof in form aforesaid lawfully convicted (4), that then the same person shall for his second offence suffer imprisonment by the space of one whole year, and also shall therefore be deprived, ipso facto, of all his spiritual promotions; and that it shall be lawful (5) to all patrons or donors of all and singular the same spiritual promotions, or of any of them, to present or collate to the same, as though the person or persons so offending were dead.

"VI. And that if any such person or persons, after he shall be twice convicted in form aforesaid, shall offend against any of the premises the third time, and use any other service than the Book of Common Prayer. Godb. 118, pl. 137. 3 Mod. 78.

STAT. 1 ELIZ. c. 2.

The penalty for depraving the Book of Common Prayer.

The penalty for the second offence.

The penalty for the third offence.

(1) Any other rite:—A person of the name of Fleming was indicted, (1 Leon. 255. vide Godb. 119.) upon this statute, and punished according to it, because he had given the sacrament of baptism in a different form to that, which is hereby prescribed. In Rex v. Sparks, (3 Mod. 79.) an indictment for using alias preces in the church, and quo modo, seems to have been judged insufficient, because such prayers may be used upon some extraordinary occasion, and be no crime: and it was said, that the indictment ought to have alleged, that the defendant used other forms and prayers, instead of those enjoined, which were neglected by him; for otherwise every person may be indicted, that useth prayers before his sermon, other than such, which are required by the Book of Common Prayer.

(2) Preach, declare, or speak:—In the 31st of Elizabeth, Robert Caudrey (Clerk), (5 Co. 1. a.) was deprived of his benefice before the high commissioners; as well for that he had preached against the Book of Common Prayer, as also for that he refused to celebrate divine service according to the said book; which deprivation, though not prescribed by this statute for the first offence, was declared to be good, because the ecclesiastical judge might lawfully inflict such sentence before the making of this statute, and is not inhibited, (on the contrary, the ancient power is reserved,) by this statute. Vide Caudrey's case. Godb. 163.

(3) The profit of:—A clerk was indicted upon this statute at the quarter-sessions, for using alias preces, &c. and was fined 100 marks, and it was held by the whole court to be ill; because, though the justices of peace were supposed to have power in their sessions to inquire into this matter, yet they could inflict no other punishment than that which is directed by the statute. Rex v. Sparks, 3 Mod. 79.

(4) Lawfully convicted:—So that although an offender, after the first offence, commit another; and after the second, many more; yet shall he not be deprived for any of the latter offences, unless judicially convicted, (Caudrey's case, 5 Co. 1. a.; 2 Inst. 479.) so as the second offence, for which he must be deprived, must be committed after such judicial and solemn conviction and punishment; (and also the second indictment ought to make mention of the first indictment; especially, if the second be before other justices.) Upon this foundation, when one was indicted "pro auditu trium privatar missar' tribus separabilibus diebus," and that upon several indictments, and found guilty upon all three; he was only fined 100 marks for the first. Dyer, 323. (b.)

(5) It shall be lawful:—This power given to the patron implies an immediate voidance, without declaration; especially if interpreted according to the judgments given upon Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 12. in case of deprivation for not subscribing the articles. Vide post. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 12. Baker v. Brent, Cro. Eliz. 679.

"XIII. And if any person or persons, that for his second offence concerning the premises, shall be convict in form aforesaid, do not pay the said sum to be paid by virtue of his conviction and this statute, in such manner and form as the same ought to be paid, within six weeks next after his said second conviction; that then every person so convicted, and not so paying the same, shall for the same second offence, in the stead of the said sum, suffer imprisonment during twelve months, without bail or mainprise.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 2.

"XIV. And that from and after the said feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist next coming, all and every person (1) and persons inhabiting within this realm, or any other the queen's majesty's dominions, shall diligently and faithfully, having no lawful or reasonable excuse (2) to be absent, endeavour themselves to resort to their parish church or chapel accustomed, or upon reasonable let (3)

Every person shall resort to the church upon the holydays.
Godb. 148, pl. 191.

which he puts it, seems to determine it in favour of the executors, viz. that it was by the act of God, that his body could not sustain the imprisonment of the six months, which he chose in lieu of the forfeiture.

(1) All and every person:—"Except dissenters qualified by the Act of Toleration, who resort to some congregation of religious worship allowed by that act. 1 Gul. 3, c. 38, ss. 2, 16. And persons who shall take the oaths, and come to some congregation or place of religious worship permitted to Roman Catholics by Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32, s. 9.

"But they who repair to no place of public worship, are still punishable as before that act, or Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. And if the churchwardens shall happen to present a person who possibly may go to some other place, the proof thereof rests upon the person presented, and the absence from church justifies the presentment." 3 Burn's E. L. by Bullimore, 405, 406.

But by Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 38, no petty presentment is, in future, to make or to deliver any presentment respecting popish recusants, persons absenting themselves from their parish church or any other place of religious worship, profane swearers and cursers, or whether the poor are well provided for.

(2) Reasonable excuse:—"In the case of Elizabeth Dormer, an exception was taken to the indictment, because these words were omitted, "Non habens aliquam rationabilem causam:" but it was agreed, that these words might have come from the other side, and were not to be put into the indictment.

(3) Upon reasonable let:—"Lyndwood, De Clandest. Desp. c. 1. upon the words "Ecclesiis parochialibus," says, "Quarum parochiales consistit in multis, puta quod in diebus festis parochiani in ipsis missas audire debent, et non alibi;" and by the common law or practice of the church of England, no person can be duly discharged from attending his own parish church, or permitted in resorting to another, unless he be first duly licensed by his ordinary, who is the proper judge of the reasonableness of his request, and grants him letters of licence under seal, to be exhibited, (as there shall be occasion,) in proof of his discharge. These are very common in our ecclesiastical records; (Reg. Grindal, 313(a); Whitg. 2nd, 164(b); Ibid. 3rd, 102(a); Bancr. 132(a); Abb. 2nd, 232(a); Ibid. 3rd, 110(b), 142

(a); Laud. 232(a), 275(b); De Winston (Parson) v. Brown, 2 Roll. 455;) and as the practice is an excellent means to preserve parochial communion and order in the church; so, having been the law of the church both before and since the making of these statutes, it seems reasonable, that no person should be admitted to plead such let in any court, without exhibiting his letters of licence from the ordinary. In order to which, the temporal courts have gone so far, as to declare, that when one was libelled against in the spiritual court for not coming to his parish church, and there alleged his repairing to another by reason of the great distance of his own, the court would not allow the plea, and refused to grant a prohibition, even though custom was pleaded in his behalf. Dr. Gibson, (Codex, 291,) conceived, "that if he had first represented to the ordinary, the inconvenience of repairing to his parish church, and the convenience of one more near, and had thereupon obtained letters of licence, and exhibited them; these had been a full and legal warrant to him, upon that article of absenting from his parish church."

In Britton v. Standish, (6 Mod. 188,) prohibition was prayed in the court of King's Bench, to stay proceedings in the spiritual court, upon a libel against one for not coming to his parish church on Sunday, and though Holt (Chief Justice), seemed at first to be of opinion, that the convenience of hearing divine service in the parish church was rather a right, than an obligation, upon the parishioners, and if that was the sense of Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2, prohibition ought to go; yet Powell was clearly of another mind, and averred, not only that the spiritual court had jurisdiction in this matter, but that the reason why parishioners are obliged to come to their own church, is, because the parson has the care of their souls, and he cannot discharge that care, if they come not to hear him. And at another day, when a prohibition was moved for in the like case, (Ibid. 190,) Holt himself, having viewed the authorities, and Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2, was clear, that if the libel be grounded upon that statute, the spiritual court may compel people to come to their parish church, because this statute does directly subject them to the ecclesiastical law.

In Anon. (1 Skin. 101,) it appeared, that a citizen of Bristol had a country house, and frequently received the sacrament in the parish church there, and also frequently at

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 2.

One justice may convict the offender,
&c. by 3 Jac.
1, c. 4, s. 27.
2 Roll. 438,
455.
March, 98.
The forfeiture
for not coming
to church.
24 Eliz. c. 1.
11 Co. 56.
1 Roll. 89.

The ordinary
may punish offenders by
the censures of
the church.

Which justices
may punish
these offences.

A bishop may
join with the justices to inquire of offenders.

thereof, to some usual place where common prayer and such service of God be used in such time of let, upon every Sunday, and other days ordained to be kept as holy-days, and then and there to abide orderly (1) and during the time of the common prayer, preaching, or other service of God to be used and ministered; upon pain of punishment by the censure of the church, and also upon pain that every person so offending shall forfeit for such offence twelve pence, to be levied by the churchwardens of the parish, such offence shall be done, to the use of the poor of the same parish, of the lands, and tenements of such offender, by way of distress.

"XV. And for due execution hereof, the queen's most excellent majesty, lords temporal, and all the commons, in this present parliament assembled, God's name earnestly require and charge all the archbishops, bishops, and ordinaries, that they shall endeavour themselves to the uttermost of the ledges, that the due and true execution hereof may be had through the diocese and charges, as they will answer before God, for such evils and wherewith Almighty God may justly punish his people for neglecting the same and wholesome law.

"XVI. And for their authority in this behalf, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular the said archbishops, bishops, and other their officers exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, as well in place as not exempt, within their diocese, shall have full power (2) and authority to act to reform, correct, and punish, by censures of the church, all and persons which shall offend within any their jurisdictions or diocese, after the feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist next coming, against this statute; any other law, statute, privilege, liberty, or provision heretofore made, had, or suffered, to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XVII. And it is ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every justices of Oyer and Determiner, or justice of assize (3), shall have full power and authority in every of their open and general sessions, to inquire and determine all and all manner of offences that shall be committed, contrary to any article contained in this present act, within the limits of their commission to them directed, and to make process for the execution of the same as they may do against any person being indicted before them of the same lawfully convicted thereof.

"XVIII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every archbishop and bishop shall or may at all time and times at his own liberty and pleasure, join and associate himself, by virtue of this act, to the cathedral, but not at his own parish church in Bristol; for which he was cited into the ecclesiastical court and excommunicated. He pleaded such facts, and moreover, that one of the surrogates of the court, but the Sunday before, had with his own hand given him the sacrament. Upon which the court of King's Bench awarded a prohibition.

Where a person went to a customary chapel within the parish, it was held to be a good excuse; but that it must be pleaded. Britton v. Standish, 6 Mod. 190.

But where the plea in the spiritual court was, that the church in question was not his parish church, and the plea was refused; a prohibition was granted, because that court could not intermeddle with the precincts of parishes. Anon. 1 Bulst. 159.

(1) To abide orderly.—It is not enough to come, unless he also abide; nor enough to abide when he is come, unless he come so as to be present at the several parts of divine service, and also remain there throughout, orderly and soberly, the clause being penned conjunctively, and so the guilt and forfeiture incurred by the violation of one branch. Vide Can. 1640, Mannock's case, Godb. 148.

The constitutions of Egbert, archbishop of York, enjoin, "Sacerdote verbum faciente, qui egressus de auditorio non communicetur;" and which is declared the fourth council of Carthage. Ibid. Agath. c. 47. 1 Aurelian. c. 26.

(2) Shall have full power.—By this article at least, they certainly have by the laws of the church, without any statute, in all points, except tending of their power to place. But it was the making of a statute in this and many other cases, first a power of cognizance in the temporal matters which till then had been cognizable in the spiritual courts, merely of a spiritual nature. Gibb. d. 202.

(3) Justices of assize.—Not of the peace in their sessions, as is testified by mistake, in the first year of James the Second. Nez v. Sparks, 1 justices of Oyer and Determiner, or to the said justices of assize, at every of the said open and general sessions to be holden in any place within his diocese, for and to the inquiry, hearing, and determining of the offences aforesaid.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 2.

"XIX. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the books concerning the said services shall, at the costs and charges of the parishioners (1) of every parish and cathedral church, be attained and gotten before the said feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist next following; and that all such parishes and cathedral churches, or other places, where the said books shall be attained and gotten before the said feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist, shall within three weeks next after the said books so attained and gotten use the said service, and put the same in ure according to this act.

At whose charges the Book of Common Prayer shall be gotten.

"XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person or persons shall be at any time hereafter impeached or otherwise molested of or for any of the offences above-mentioned, hereafter to be committed or done contrary to this act, unless he or they so offending be thereof indicted at the next general sessions to be holden before any such justices of Oyer and Determiner or justices of assize, next after any offence committed or done contrary to the tenor of this act.

Within what time offenders shall be impeached. Godb. 148, pl. 191.

"XXI. Provided always, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular lords of the parliament, for the third offence above-mentioned, shall be tried by their peers.

Trial of peers.

"XXII. Provided also, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the mayor of London, and all other mayors, bailiffs, and other head officers of all and singular cities, boroughs, and towns corporate within this realm, Wales, and the marches of the same, to the which justices of assize do not commonly repair, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, to require, hear, and determine the offences abovesaid, and every of them, yearly within fifteen days after the feast of Easter, and St. Michael the Archangel, in like manner and form as justices of assize and Oyer and Determiner may do.

Chief officers of cities and boroughs shall inquire of offenders.

"XXIII. Provided always, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular (2) archbishops and bishops, and every of their chancellors, commissaries, archdeacons, and other ordinaries, having any peculiar ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, as well to inquire in their visitation, synods, and elsewhere within their jurisdiction at any other time and place, to take accusations and informations of all and every the things above-mentioned, done, committed, or perpetrated within the limits of their jurisdictions and authority, and to punish the same by admonition, excommunication, sequestration, or deprivation, and other censures and process, in like form as heretofore hath been used in like cases by the queen's ecclesiastical laws.

The ordinary's jurisdiction in these cases.

"XXIV. Provided always, and be it enacted, that whatsoever persons offending to the premises shall for their offences first receive punishment of the ordinary, having a testimonial thereof under the said ordinary's seal, shall not for the same offence afterwards be convicted before the justices: and likewise receiving for the said offence punishment first by the justices, shall not for the same offence af-

None shall be punished above once for one offence.

(1) Of the parishioners:—It will be perceived, that the charges were to be liquidated by the parishioners; and were not to be divided as in some other cases, between the person and the parishioners.

(2) All and singular:—Where a person (Caudrey's case, 5 Co. 1 (a).) was deprived by the high commissioners for the first offence; it was alleged against the validity of such deprivation, that though the High Commission might be within this proviso, yet the commissioners ought not to have deprived him for the first offence, but to have proceeded according to the form and order of this act, against which it was, that the offence was committed. But this objection was overruled by the court, not only because the statute is affirmative, and hath not the clauses, "not otherwise," or "in no other manner or form," or the like, by which negative words, ecclesiastical jurisdiction and process might be thought to be abrogated; but chiefly, because the ecclesiastical judge, before this act, had power to punish such crime with deprivation, and the act doth not only not take away, but confirm to him, all the power which he had before; and, to pursue the form prescribed in the act, would be, to punish according to the temporal, and not according to the ecclesiastical, law.

STAT. 1 ELIZ. c. 2. soons receive punishment of the ordinary; any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Ornaments of the church and ministers. "XXV. Provided always, and be it enacted, that such ornaments of the church (1) and of the ministers thereof, shall be retained and be in use, as was in this church of England by authority of parliament, in the second year of the reign of King Edward the Sixth, until other order (2) shall be therein taken by the authority of the queen's majesty, with the advice of her commissioners appointed and authorized under the great seal of England for causes ecclesiastical, or of the metropolitan of this realm.

"XXVI. And also, that if there shall happen any contempt or irreverence to be used in the ceremonies or rites (3) of the church, by the mis-using of the order appointed in this book, the queen's majesty may, by the like advice of the said commissioners or metropolitan, ordain and publish such further ceremonies or rites, as may be most for the advancement of God's glory, the edifying of his church, and the due reverence of Christ's holy mysteries and sacraments.

All laws and ordinances made for other service shall be void.

Further provisions, see 13 Eliz. c. 12; 23

"XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all laws, statutes, and ordinances, wherein or whereby any other service, administration of sacraments or common prayer, is limited, established, or set forth to be used within this realm, or any other the queen's dominions or countries, shall from henceforth be utterly void and of none effect. Made perpetual by 5 Anne, c. 1, as to the establishment of the church."

Eliz. c. 1; 15 Car. 2, c. 6; 1 G. & M. St. I. c. 18; 23 Geo. 2, c. 28.

STAT. 1 ELIZ. c. 3.

III. STAT. 1 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 3 (4). A.D. 1558.

"An Act for Recognition of the Queen's Highness to the Imperial Crown of the Realm."

"II. For which causes we your said most loving, faithful, and obedient subjects, representing the three estates (5) of your realm of England, . . ."

(1) Ornaments of the church.—Pursuant to this clause, the queen (anno Regni 3) granted a commission to the Archbishop, Bishop of London, Dr. Bill, and Dr. Haddon, to reform the disorders of chancels, and to add to the ornament of them, by ordering the commandments to be placed at the east end. Stry. Park. App. 28.

(2) Until other order.—Which other order, (at least in the method prescribed by this act,) was never made; and therefore, legally, the ornaments of ministers in performing divine service, are the same now as they were in the 2nd of Edward 6.

(3) Ceremonies or rites.—Pursuant to this clause, the queen granted a commission to the Archbishop, the Bishop of London, Dr. Bill, and Dr. Haddon, her ecclesiastical commissioners, to peruse the order of the lessons throughout the whole year, and to cause some new kalendars to be imprinted; whereby such chapters or parcels of less edification may be removed, and others more profitable may supply their rooms. Which commission is stated at length, in the Register of Archbishop Parker, and published by Mr. Strype, as is also the Archbishop's mandate to the Bishop of London, for publishing the alterations by them made. Stry. Park. 29, App. Park. Regist. 215 (a), 228 (a).

(4) Expired.

(5) Three estates.—That the bishops, distinct from the lords temporal, are one of these three estates, is proved by Buss Stillingfleet, (2 Eccles. Ca. 385,) from the language of parliament in many places, where the king is mentioned, as distinct from the three estates; and if the king be not one, the bishops of course must be so. In the Parliament Roll of 21 Rich. 2, it is said that many ordinances have been disannulled, because the state of the clergy were not present in parliament, at the making of them. So that the distinction, between estates of the kingdom, and estates in parliament, is if the bishops were one of the first, and not of the second, is merely notional, and leaves one estate unrepresented in parliament; whereas, in this statute, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, are spoken of as representing the three estates, in parliament; and there is this passage in the Parliament Roll of 23 Hen. 6: "It is considered and declared by the whole body of this realm, now represented by all the estates of the same, assembled in the present parliament." Gibson's Codes, 125. Vide 1 De Lolme on the English Constitution by Stephens, 134, 135.

IV. STAT. 1 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 4(1). A.D. 1558.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 4."An Act for the Restitution of the First-fruits to the Crown."

"In their most humble wise beseech your most excellent majesty, your faithful and humble subjects the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons of this your realm, in this present parliament assembled, that where in the parliament of your most noble father, of famous memory, King Henry the Eighth, holden at Westminster upon prorogation the third day of November in the six and twentieth year of his prosperous reign, it was enacted, ordained, and established by the authority of the same parliament, amongst other things, that his highness, his heirs and successors, kings of this realm, should have and enjoy from time to time, to endure for ever, of every such person and persons, which at any time after the first day of January then next ensuing should be nominated, elected, perfected, presented, collated, or by any other means appointed to have any archbishoprick, bishoprick, abbacy, monastery, priory, college, hospital, archdeaconry, deanery, provostship, prebend, parsonage, vicarage, chantry, free chapel, or other dignity, benefice, office, or promotion spiritual within this realm, or elsewhere within any of the king's dominions, of what name, nature, or quality soever they were, or to whose foundation, patronage, or gift soever they did belong, the first-fruits, revenues, and profits for one year of every such archbishoprick, bishoprick, abbacy, monastery, priory, college, hospital, archdeaconry, deanery, provostship, prebend, parsonage, vicarage, chantry, free chapel, or other dignity, benefice, office, or promotion spiritual aforesaid, whereunto any such person or persons should after the said first day of January be nominated, elected, perfected, presented, collated, or by any other means appointed: and that every such person or persons, before any actual or real possession, or meddling with the profits of any such archbishoprick, bishoprick, abbacy, monastery, college, hospital, deanery, provostship, prebend, parsonage, vicarage, chantry, free chapel, priory, or other dignity, benefice, office, or promotion spiritual, should satisfy, content, and pay, or compound, or agree to pay to the king's use at reasonable days, upon good sureties, the said first-fruits and profits for one year:

A rehearsal of the statute of 26 Hen. 8, c. 3, touching first-fruits and tenths given to the king.

The first-fruits.

"II. And it was further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the first-fruits of benefices, before that time accustomed to be paid to the Bishop of Norwich within his diocese, and to the Archdeacon of Richmond within his archdeaconry, or any other person or persons within this realm, or any other the king's dominions, should from the said first day of January cease and be extinct; and no longer be paid but only to the king's highness, his heirs and successors, in such form as is before-mentioned:

"III. And further it was enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, for more augmentation and maintenance of the royal estate of his imperial crown, should yearly have, take, enjoy, and receive, united and knit to his imperial crown for ever, one yearly rent or pension, amounting to the value of the tenth part of all the revenues, rents, farms, tithes, offerings, emoluments, and of all other profits, as well called spiritual as temporal, appertaining or belonging, or that from thenceforth should belong to any archbishoprick, bishoprick, abbacy, monastery, priory, archdeaconry, deanery, hospital, college, house collegiate, prebend, cathedral church, collegiate church, conventual church, parsonage, vicarage, chantry, free chapel, or other benefice or promotion spiritual, of what name, nature, or quality soever they were, within any diocese of this realm, or in Wales; the said pension or annual rent to be yearly paid for ever, to the said late king, his heirs and successors, at the feast of the Nativity of our Lord God, and the first payment thereof to begin at the feast of the Nativity of our Lord God, which should be in the year of our Lord God 1535, and to be paid yearly by such as should be appointed to have the collection thereof, before the first day of April next following after the said feast of the Nativity of our Lord God, as in the said act more plainly it doth appear:

The tenths.

"IV. And where also one other act was made and established in the said par-

26 Hen. 8,
c. 17.

(1) Vide Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 11. Stat. 6 Ann. c. 27. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 20.

- STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 4. liament the said twenty-sixth year, that no farmer of spiritual persons should be compelled or charged to pay for their lessors first-fruits or yearly pension for the tenth granted unto the king's highness, notwithstanding any covenant, contract, bond, or other thing made to the contrary, as by the same act more plainly appeareth.
- 27 Hen. 8,
c. 8. "V. And where also at one other session of the same parliament, holden by prorogation at Westminster in the twenty-seventh year of the reign of your said father, one other act was made and established, that the king's spiritual assigns should be deducted and allowed of the tenth of their spiritual promotions for the year for which they should pay the first-fruits, as in the said act also more at large appeareth.
- 28 Hen. 8,
c. 11. "VI. And where also in one other parliament of the said late king, holden at Westminster in the twenty-eighth year of his reign, amongst other things, it was enacted and ordained, that the year in which the first-fruits of every benefice and spiritual promotion should be paid, should begin, and be accounted immediately after the avoidance thereof: and that the tithes, commodities, revenues, casualties, and profits thereof (chantries only excepted) in the time of vacation, should belong and appertain to the next incumbent, towards the payment of the first-fruits; as by the same act more at large appeareth.
- 32 Hen. 8,
c. 22. "VII. And where also in one or other parliament, holden upon prorogation at Westminster in the thirty-second year of the reign of the said late king, one act was made and established, that bishops upon their accounts of and for the yearly tenth should be discharged by their oaths, of payment of such sum or sums of money of the said annual rent or tenth, as they could not lawfully levy: and also an order appointed how the king should be answered of the tenth of any benefice and spiritual promotion, omitted in the original or former certificate of benefices and spiritual promotions made in the exchequer; as by the same act last mentioned more at large appeareth.
- 32 Hen. 8,
c. 45. "VIII. And where also in the same session and parliament holden in the said thirty-second year of the reign of your highness' said noble father, and by authority of the same parliament, one court was erected, established, and made, for the better answering of the said first-fruits and tenths unto the king, called the Court of First-fruits and Tenths; as in the same Act of Erection thereof more fully appeareth.
- 32 Hen. 8,
c. 47. "IX. And where also in the same session and parliament one other act was made, whereby the Bishop of Norwich for the time being (being before that discharged from the collection of the tenth within his diocese) should be charged and chargeable for ever, for and with the collection of the same tenth within his diocese, and make payment thereof, as other bishops should or ought to do within their dioceses; as by the same act more plainly appeareth.
- 34 & 35 Hen.
8, c. 1. "X. And where also in one other parliament of the said late king, holden at Westminster upon prorogation in the thirty-fourth year of his reign, one act was established and made concerning collectors and receivers, to make payment of their receipts within three months next after the same should be due and paid to the king's use, under certain penalties therein expressed; as by the same act more at large appeareth.
- 34 & 35 Hen.
8, c. 17. "XI. And where also in the same session and parliament it was enacted and established, that the new erected Bishops of Chester, Gloucester, Peterborough, Bristol, Oxford, and their successors for ever, should pay their tenths reserved upon their letters patents on their several erections, only in the said court of the first-fruits and tenths for ever; as by the same act more at large appeareth.
- 37 Hen. 8,
c. 21. "XII. And where also in the parliament of the said late king, holden at Westminster in the thirty-seventh year of his reign, one act intituled, 'An Act for the Union of Churches not exceeding the value of Six Pounds,' was established and made, wherein is contained a saving to the king of the first-fruits and tenths of all churches and chapels not exceeding the value of six pounds, that then were or from thenceforth should be united and consolidated in one; as in the same act and saving more largely appeareth.

"XIII. And where also in the parliament of your highness' dearest brother of worthy memory, King Edward the Sixth, holden at Westminster upon prorogation in the second year of his reign, one act was made, that by the certificate of the bishop of any diocese within this realm, or any of the dominions of the same, of recusance or non-payment of any tenth of any benefice or spiritual promotion, the incumbent should lose but that benefice or promotion only; as by the same act more plainly appeareth.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 4.
2 & 3 EDW. 6,
c. 20.

"XIV. And where also in one other parliament of the said late King Edward, holden at Westminster in the seventh year of his reign, one act was made and established, declaring how and in what sort the under-collectors of the tenth in every diocese, appointed by the bishop, should be bound to discharge the bishops of that collection, and a longer day given for the payment of the tenth: and how the king should be answered of the tenth for the time of vacation of every benefice and spiritual promotion, and that the patents of the collection of tenths should be good only during the incumbency of the grantors; as in the same act more at large is contained.

7 EDW. 6,
c. 4.

"XV. And where also in the second session of parliament of our late sovereign lady Queen Mary, your majesty's dearest sister, holden at Westminster in the first year of her reign, one act was made and established, whereby full power and authority was given and appointed unto her highness, at her will and pleasure to alter, change, unite, transpose, dissolve, or determine, as well the said court of first-fruits and tenths, as the court of augmentations of the revenues of the king's crown, and other courts therein expressed, and to reduce the same courts, or any of them, into one, two, or more court or courts, or to unite and annex the said courts or any two or more of them together, or to any other of her majesty's courts of record, as to her it should be thought most convenient and best; for the better, sure, and more speedy answering of her yearly revenues, casualties, and profits, then answerable in the said courts, or any of them, as in the same act more at large is expressed: by vigour and authority of which act, the said late queen by her grace's four several letters patents, whereof two bear date the three and twentieth day of January in the first year of her reign, and the other two, the four and twentieth of January in the same year, did not only dissolve, determine, and extinguish the said courts, commonly called and intituled, 'The Court of the Augmentations and Revenues of the King's Crown,' and 'The Court of the First-fruits and Tenths,' and the jurisdiction and authority thereof; but also did unite, transpose, and annex the said courts of augmentations of the revenues of the king's crown, and of the first-fruits and tenths so dissolved, to the court of the exchequer, there to be and continue as a member and parcel of the same court of the exchequer; and did appoint all and singular the revenues, casualties, profits, and hereditaments then answerable in the said courts, to the order, rule, survey, and governance of the said court of the exchequer, there to be answered and accounted for ever, in such order, manner, and form, as in the said letters patents, and in two schedules unto the said letters patents annexed, is mentioned and declared, as by the tenor and purport of the said letters patents and schedules signed with her highness' hand, more plainly may appear.

1 MAR. SESS. 2,
c. 10.

Queen Mary dissolved the court of first-fruits and augmentations;

and annexed them to the exchequer.

"XVI. By reason of all which said premises, not only the said perpetual revenues of the first-fruits and tenths granted by the said act in the twenty-sixth year of the reign of your highness' most noble father, in augmentation and maintenance of the crown of this realm, but also the tenths and yearly rents reserved nomine decimarum, by any letters patents of your said noble father, sithence the said four and twentieth year of his reign, and of your said dearest brother and sister, or of any of them, made to any bishop and his successors, or to any cathedral church, dean and chapter, college, or any other ecclesiastical and spiritual person or persons, or corporations, and their successors for ever; and also all and every the rents, revenues, issues, and profits of all and singular rectories, parsonages, and benefices impropriate, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, portions, and other profits and emoluments ecclesiastical and spiritual to the same belonging, being in the hands and possession of your said dearest sister, at the said four and twentieth

26 HEN. 8,
c. 3.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 4.

day of January, were ordered, answerable, and accounted for in the said court of the exchequer, and were therein well and justly answered and paid unto her highness' use and behoof, like as the same had been unto the said two noble kings her said father and brother by the space of twenty years, without grief or contradiction of the prelates and clergy of the realm, to the great aid, relief, and supportation of the inestimable charges of the crown of this realm, which daily since the time of the making of the said first act have increased and grown more and more.

Queen Mary's zealous, but not politick respect.

"XVII. Which thing, although the said late queen might and did manifestly feel and perceive to be most true, yet she upon certain zealous and inconvenient respects, not sufficiently nor politickly enough weighing that matter, not having due consideration and regard to the maintenance and upholding, and good continuance of the estate of the imperial crown of this realm in succession, which rather needed an augmentation, than any diminution, procured and willed an act of parliament to be made and provided in the second and third years of the reign of King Philip her late husband and her, that all payments of the said first-fruits should from thenceforth cease and be clearly extinct and determined for ever: and that as well all the said benefices and spiritual promotions, as the possessors, owners, and incumbents thereof, and their successors, should from and after the eighth day of August in the said second and third years, and so from thenceforth at all times for ever, be clearly exonerated, acquitted, and discharged against the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, her heirs and successors, of and from the payment and payments of all and every the said first-fruits, in as ample and large manner and form, as they were before the making of the said act of the first and original grant thereof, in the said six and twentieth year of the reign of the said late king your noble father, and as though the same had never been had or made.

By the statute
made 2 & 3
P. & M. c. 4,
the payment of
first-fruits and tenths ceased.

26 Hen. 8,
c. 3.

"XVIII. And further, that neither the said perpetual pension, annual rent, or tenth, granted by the said first act of the six and twentieth year of the said late King Henry, nor also the said several annual rents or tenths reserved nomine decimarum by and upon the said several letters patents of the said late king and queen made to spiritual persons and corporations, as is aforesaid, or any of them, from and after the feast of St. Michael the Archangel then last past, should any now be paid or payable unto the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, her heirs or successors; but that as well all the said archbishopricks, bishopricks, and other benefices, dignities, deans and chapters, colleges, corporations, and spiritual promotions aforesaid, as also the possessors, owners, proprietaries, and incumbents of the same, and their successors, from and after the said feast of St. Michael the Archangel, should be clearly exonerated, acquitted, and discharged of and from the payment thereof, against them and the heirs and successors of the same late queen for ever.

"XIX. And furthermore, that the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, her heirs and successors, from and after the said feast of St. Michael the Archangel should not receive, perceive, take, and enjoy any the issues, revenues, profits, or commodities of the said rectories, parsonages, benefices, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, portions, and other profits and emoluments ecclesiastical and spiritual aforesaid, or of any of them, or of the reversion or reversions of them or any of them; but in and by the said act the same late king and queen clearly gave over, renounced, and relinquished, as well the said rectories, parsonages, benefices, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, portions, and other profits and emoluments ecclesiastical and spiritual aforesaid and every of them, and the reversion and reversions of them and every of them, and all their right, title, use, interest, and demand of, in, or to the same, from them and the heirs and successors of the said late queen for ever, as also the said perpetual pension, annual rent, and tenth, and also the said yearly rents reserved nomine decimarum upon the said several letters patents, and all their right, title, and interest which they or either of them, or the heirs or successors of the said late queen, had or might have had in or to the same.

"XX. The same yearly pension, tenths, yearly rents, parsonages, emoluments, and profits to be perceived, taken, received, counted, employed, used, and disposed by the late reverend father in God Reginald Pool, late cardinal and legate, and such other persons as he should name and appoint, and such other as were specially limited in the said act, to and for certain uses, purposes, and intents mentioned in the same act, with divers provisions and a saving in the same expressed and contained, as by the same more at large appeareth.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
C. 4.

"XXI. We your said humble and obedient subjects, the lords spiritual and temporal and commons in this your present parliament assembled, calling to our remembrance the huge innumerable and inestimable charges of the royal estate and imperial crown of this realm, and how the same is left unto your majesty at this your first entry thereunto, greatly diminished, as well by reason of the said act made in the said second and third years of the said King Philip and Queen Mary, as otherwise, do conceive at the bottom of our hearts great sorrow and heaviness, as subjects careful for their natural liege sovereign lady, upon whom dependeth the surety, worldly joy, and wealth of us all; and being no less affected towards your majesty's most royal person, and the preservation and maintenance of the same, and of the estate and succession of your majesty's said crown, than were the first grantors of the said first-fruits and tenths towards your highness' most noble father, and his said royal estate, at the time of their said grant thereof to him made, do account of very right and good congruence no less than our most bounden duty, to move your highness, and therewith do most humbly beseech the same, that the great disherison and decay committed and done to the crown, and estate royal of this your realm, and the succession thereof, by reason of the said act made in the said second and third years of the reign of the said King Philip and Queen Mary, may at this present parliament be reformed and avoided, and that with your highness' favour and royal assent, it may be enacted, ordained, established, and provided by authority of this parliament, in manner and form hereafter ensuing:

2 & 3 P. & M.
C. 4.

"XXII. That is to say, that the said act made in the second and third years of the reign of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, and all articles, clauses, and sentences therein contained, shall be from and after the first day of this present parliament utterly and clearly repealed, made void, and of no force ne effect; and all authorities and liberties granted, limited, and appointed in and by the said act to the said late Cardinal Pool, or made or derived, by force, strength, or colour of the same act, by or from the said late cardinal, to any other person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, to cease and be utterly void and determined: and that the said first-fruits, and all payments thereof, from and after the said first day of this parliament shall be revived, and have their being and continuance again, and be deemed and adjudged to all intents, constructions, and purposes, in the queen's highness' most royal person, her heirs and successors, and united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm, of and in such like and the same estate, interest, title, quality, sort, degree, and condition, and in as ample and beneficial manner and form, as the same was or were in the person and possession of the said late Queen Mary, at and before the said eighth day of August, in the said Act of Extinguishment, mentioned and expressed; the same Act of Extinguishment, or any letters patents, or any other matter or thing had, done, or suffered by the said late queen to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

A repeal of the statute
2 & 3 P. & M.
C. 4.

The first-fruits
revived.

"XXIII. And also that as well so much of the said perpetual and annual tenth and pension granted by the said act made in the said twenty-sixth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, as also so much of the said yearly rents reserved upon the said several letters patents nomine decimæ; and also so many of the said rectories, parsonages, and benefices impropriate, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, portions, and other profits and emoluments, ecclesiastical and spiritual, aforesaid, and the reversion and reversions thereof, and all rents, emoluments, and profits incident to the same, as were in the hands and possession of the said late Queen Mary, at and before the said eighth day of August, shall from the feast of St. Michael the Archangel last past be vested, adjudged, and deemed, actually and really in the seisin and possession of our said sovereign lady Queen Elizabeth, her heirs and successors, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, of and in such like and the same estate, interest, order, degree, quality, sort,

The tenths revived, and rents reserved
upon patents
and promotions ecclesiastical.
26 Hen. 8,
C. 3.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 4.

and condition, and as fully, wholly, largely, and beneficially, as the same were in the seisin and possession of the said late Queen Mary, at and before the said eighth day of August: and that as well the said first-fruits and tenths, and the order thereof, as also the said annual rents reserved nomine decimar, and the said rectories, parsonages, benefices, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, patronages, and other profits and emoluments, ecclesiastical and spiritual, aforesaid, and every of them, and the reversion and reversions of them, and of all rents and profits unto the same or any of them incident or belonging, shall be within the said order, survey, rule, and governance of the said court of the exchequer, in every degree, sort, and condition, as they were at and before the said eighth day of August, the said act made in the said second and third years, or any other matter or thing to the contrary thereof, notwithstanding.

The before-rehearsed
statute revived.

“XXIV. And that so much of all and every the said acts and statutes first recited, or of any other act or statute touching or concerning the order, levy, true answering, and payment, or qualification of the said first-fruits and tenths, and of the said rectories, parsonages, and benefices impropriate, and of the same revenues, emoluments, and profits thereof, and of all other the premises, and also the charge, discharge, or alteration of them or any of them, or any matter or thing in any wise sounding or tending thereunto, which were standing and being in force, effect, and unrepealed, at and before the said eighth day of August, (except only the said acts of the erections of the courts of augmentations, and first-fruits and tenths,) shall be, remain, and continue in their full and perfect strength and forces, and be observed and put in due execution, according to the tenors and purports of the same and every of them.

The queen
shall have the advowson of vicarages belonging to rectories, &c.

“XXV. And that the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, by authority of this present parliament, shall from the said first day of this present parliament have, hold, possess, and enjoy for ever, the advowsons, gifts, and patronages of all vicarages, belonging or incident to any of the said rectories and parsonages impropriate, in the same sort, quality, condition, and degree, to all intents and purposes, as the same were in the person and possession of the said late Queen Mary, at and before the said eighth day of August; any thing or act done by the same late cardinal, or any grant or grants by letters patents made by the said late Queen Mary, of the said advowsons and patronages or any of them, to any ecclesiastical or spiritual person or persons, or any spiritual corporation, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding:

A saving of
the right of others.

“XXVI. Saving to all and every person and persons, bodies politick and corporate, and their heirs, executors, successors, and assigns and every of them, (other than such persons as be mentioned and named in any letters patents made by the said Queen Mary the said eighth day of August, or at any time sithence, or during only by or under the authority and strength of the same act or letters patents or any of them,) all such right, title, interest, estate, offices, leases, grants, annuities, pensions, fees, corodies, rents, and other yearly profits and commodities, as they or any of them ought or should have had, perceived, or enjoyed, of, in, or by reason of any of the parsonages, rectories, or of any other the premises, in case the said former act now repealed, and this present act of repeal, had never been had or made; any thing in the same acts or either of them contained or amounting to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

How pensions shall be paid.

“XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the said feast of St. Michael the Archangel last past, and so from thenceforth from time to time, the said pensions, annuities, rents, corodies, fees, and other yearly payments, shall be paid and payable only by our said sovereign lady, her heirs and successors, at the receipt of the exchequer, or in such other places, as the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, shall appoint, to all and every person and persons that ought to have and enjoy the same, in such sort, order, and form, as the same should or ought to have been paid and payable, in case the said act now repealed had never been had or made; any thing therein or else in this act contained to the contrary thereof, in any wise notwithstanding.

They that were

“XXVIII. And be it further enacted by authority aforesaid, that all and singular incumbents, proprietaries, tenants, farmers, lessees, and occupiers of the premises or any part thereof, their heirs, executors, and assigns, which the said first day of this present parliament were behind, or in any arrearages of and with the rents, farms, tenths, or other revenues, profits, or duties, by them or any of them due and payable, for or by reason of the premises or any of them, shall and may be by the authority of this act severally chargeable, accountable, and answerable to the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, in and at the said court of the exchequer, of and for the same arrearages and duties as other accomptants be and shall be in the same court; any thing in the said act now repealed, in this act, or any other matter or cause to the contrary thereof, in any wise notwithstanding.

"XXIX. And yet nevertheless the queen's most excellent majesty, at the humble request of her said subjects, of her abundant grace and bountifulness, is pleased and contented that it be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular vicarages not exceeding the yearly value of ten pounds, after the rate and value upon the records and books of the rates and values for the first-fruits and tenths now remaining in the exchequer, or that shall hereafter come and remain in the same court; and also all and singular parsonages not exceeding the yearly value of ten marks, after the like rate and valuation, and the incumbents thereof and of every of them, their executors, administrators, successors, and sureties and every of them, from the said feast of St. Michael the Archangel last past, shall be free and clearly discharged and acquitted for ever against the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, of and from the said first-fruits; any thing in the said act of first-fruits and tenths, made in the said six and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, or in this act of repeal, or any other act or acts before recited, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"XXX. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any incumbent of any such promotion spiritual as is aforesaid, charged or chargeable to the payment of the said first-fruits, happen to live to the end of one half year next after the last avoidance of the same promotion spiritual, so as he hath received, or without fraud or covin might lawfully have received or enjoyed, the rents or profits of that half year, and before the end of the other half year then next following shall happen to die, or to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the said promotion spiritual, by judgment in any action at the common law, without fraud or covin, that then every such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, and sureties, shall be charged and chargeable but only with the fourth part of the first-fruits due to be paid for such his promotion, and with no more of the said first-fruits: any thing in this act contained, or any bond or writing to be made for the payment of the said first-fruits, or any other matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XXXI. And if it shall happen any such incumbent to live by the space of one whole year next after the last avoidance of the same spiritual promotion, and after before the end of one half year then next following shall fortune to die, or to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the said promotion spiritual, by judgment in any action at the common law, without fraud or covin; that then every such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, and sureties shall be charged and chargeable but only with the moiety and one half of the first-fruits due to be paid for such his promotion spiritual, and with no more of the same first-fruits; any thing in this act contained, or any bond or writing obligatory to be made for the payment of the same first-fruits, or any other matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XXXII. And if it shall happen any such incumbent to live to the end of one whole year and a half next after the last avoidance of such promotion spiritual, and after and before the end of six months then next following shall fortune to die, or to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the said promotion spiritual, by judgment in any action at the common law, without fraud or covin; that then every such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, and sureties, shall be

STAT. 1 ELIS.
c. 4.

in arrearages
for rents, &c.
shall pay the same to the queen.

2 & 3 P. & M.
c. 4.

Vicarages not exceeding x. li.
shall pay no
first-fruits.

Parsonages not exceeding ten marks shall pay
no first-fruits.

26 Hen. 8,
c. 3.

The charge of the incumbent which liveth half a year after the avoidance.

His charge which liveth a whole year, &c.

The charge of him which liveth a year
and a half, &c.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 4. charged and chargeable but only with three parts of the first-fruits of the promotion spiritual, in four parts to be divided, and with no more; any thing to the contrary in this act contained, or any bond or writing obligatory had or made for the payment of the said first-fruits, or any other matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

The charge of him which liveth two whole years after, &c.

“XXXIII. And if it shall happen any such incumbent to live till the two whole years next after the last avoidance of the same his promotion, and not to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the same promotion as is aforesaid, that then such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, shall content and pay to our said sovereign lady the queen, her heirs and successors, the whole first-fruits due to be paid for the same promotion according to the statute aforesaid.

Grants made to the universities or the colleges in them, and to Eaton and Winchester colleges.

“XXXIV. Provided also, and be it enacted, that all grants, immunities, liberties given to the universities of Cambridge and Oxford, or to any college or hall in either of the said universities, and to the colleges of Eaton and Winchester, and unto every or any of them, by our late sovereign lord King Henry the eighth or any other of the queen's highness' progenitors or predecessors, or by act of parliament, for or touching the release or discharge of the said first-fruits and tenths, or any part thereof, shall be always and remain in their full strength and effect, and that all such lawful conveyances and assurances in the law as were made before the making of this act, to either of the said universities of Cambridge, or to any college or hall within any of them, by what name whatsoever they or any of them be incorporated or named, of any of the said colleges or benefices impropriate, or of any part of the same, or of any patronage for the maintenance of students or learning, shall be as good and effectual in the law to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as though this act had never been made.

The chapel of St. George in Windsor.

“XXXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the statutes and canons of the free chapel of St. George the Martyr, within the castle of Windsor, and all the possessions and hereditaments of the same free chapel, deanery, and canons, by whatsoever name or names they be incorporated or known, shall be exonerated, and shall stand for ever discharged of the tenths and first-fruits before mentioned; any thing in this act, or any other act or statute to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Leases for years or three lives.
Cro. Eliz. 207.
430, 690.

“XXXVI. Provided also, and be it enacted, that all leases made before the first day of December last past, for xxi. years, or three lives at the most, by any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, being lawfully seized of or in any of the said parsonages impropriate, or of or in any other the premises, wont commonly to be let or set to ferm, then being out of lease, or whereof there was not, at the time of the making of the said lease or leases, any former lease to endure above one year then to come at the most, and upon which new lease or leases the old yearly rent accustomedly wont to be paid for the same, by the space of twenty years last past before the making of such lease or leases, or more yearly rent reserved and payable during the said term; and all other lawful grants by them or any of them heretofore made of any office or offices in old time wont commonly to be granted, and all gifts and grants of any parsonage or parsonages impropriate, heretofore belonging to the archdeaconry of Wells in the county of Somerset, or to the incumbent of the same office or dignity, or to the incumbent of the same benefice, given and restored, shall be as good and effectual in the law, as though this act, or any thing contained therein, had not been had or made.

The Archdeacon of Wells charged with payment of first-fruits.

“XXXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said archdeaconry, and all rectories and spiritual promotions given, assigned, limited, or appointed to the same, and all and every incumbent and incumbents which hereafter shall be presented, collated, preferred, and admitted unto the said archdeaconry, and the rectories and spiritual promotions thereunto limited and appointed, or appertaining and belonging, shall stand, remain, and be charged and chargeable with the payment of the first-fruits and tenths for the same to the queen's highness, her heirs and successors, in such like manner and form as other

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 19.

be repaired with the restitution of revenues meet for the same, and having and fully accorded to restore to the same imperial crown the first-fruits and described, "in temporalibus," where temporal interests only were conveyed, such as the tithes or patronage of the benefice; but the cure of souls resided in an endowed perpetual vicar.

In the first species, the religious house had the cure of souls, and all rights, and performed the duties of the church by its own members, or by stipendiary curates; and the distinction on this point is summarily described, in a passage from the proceedings of the court of Audience: "Cum ecclesia conceditur alicui monasterio, pleno jure, in temporalibus, tunc episcopi debent instituere vicarium perpetuum; ubi vero unitur mensæ episcopali, vel abbatiali, et spectat ad illam, pleno jure, tam in spiritualibus, quam in temporalibus,—tunc ponitur in ea presbyter temporalis, ad nutum removibilis ad exercitum curæ, quæ principaliter residet in coenobio mensæ unita." Selden on Tithes, c. 12. Ayliffe's Parer. 86. This description of these two species of appropriation is frequently mentioned by Hostiensis in his Aurea Summa. ("Ubi ecclesia ad monasterium pertinet pleno jure, habet monasterium in ea institutionem, destitutionem, investituram, fidelitatem, obedientiam, correctionem, et quedam alia: episcopus nihilominus desuper est; nisi privilegium, vel prescriptio, vel contraria consuetudo obest; sed ubi pleno jure non pertinet, tunc habet ibi monasterium temporalia, et representationem presbyteri vicarii tantum, qui non debet ab episcopo recipi, nisi per monachos sufficiens portio assignetur.") On a further discussion, how the bishop could grant such powers in pleno jure, being greater than what he himself possessed, the answer is, "Non potest transferre, nisi ex causâ, puta, propter paupertatem mensæ religiosorum, quæ non sufficit ad sustentationem ipsorum," &c. De Officio Ordinarii, l. i., 296, et seq.)

Against holding benches, pleno et utroque jure, great complaints were made in the Gallican church, in which, on no subject, was dissatisfaction more loudly or more frequently expressed. And it is mentioned, as a fundamental maxim in that church, that, since the council of Constance, (A.D. 1414, Conc. Gener. t. 12, 254;) it has become a legitimate cause of revocation in that kingdom.

In England, it was ordained by the Constitution of Othobon, that all religious houses, which possessed churches in proprio usus, should present vicars, with competent endowment, to the diocesan, for institution, within the space of six months; and that if they failed so to do, the bishop was empowered to fill up the vacancy: this, however, proved insufficient against the power of the monks. The civil legislature next interfered, and passed the statutes 15 Rich. 2, c. 6. (antè 88;) and 4 Hen. 4, c. 12, (antè 96;) which require, that vicarages should be regularly endowed. Such was the general and legal character of appropriations in England, by the canon law, and by the statutes of the realm. The vicarage became a benefice, the cure of souls, and the monks held in fief, in some sort, as a lay fee. Trigg, 1 Vern. 42.

But after the Statute of Impræmunation, the monks were too subtle and crafty to be bound by the law, and still, nevertheless, appropriations, as annexed to the benefice, as before, under the plea of inability to support themselves. The monks, omnes ad mensam, for the sustentation of the monks, were always presumed, in law, to be in utroque jure, and it was an universal maxim, that they were never vacant, but that there was a perpetual plenarity; as it is held, that the canon "De supplicantiis," (X. 1. 10. 2; Clem. 1. c. 3) gave the right of presentation on benefices, not apply to such appropriated monks, who thus may be said to be the immortal incumbents, had the souls remaining in them, and the vicar, whom they employed, was a mere stipendiary.

From this root sprung the plea of appropriation, without a vicarage; and this is the origin of the curacies, in which the impropricator provided divine service—but not a curate, not instituted, but only by the bishop; and might reckon himself under no obligation to present a vicar for institution, but might provide for the service of the church, as the monks did in a censured curate. Since that time, the Statute of Dissolution enact, that benefices should be held as they were held by the dissolved religious benefice, who has obtained what was before above described, ad mensam, pleno jure, would have the complete title, as indultus, and beneficiary. The impropricator should take orders, perform the offices of the church, and institution, only taking the oath in later statutes. And it would be a circumstance of not being in any way prevented him from exercising episcopal rights, in full form, as the monks, the monks, did before, which was not so in ordinary impropriation, which there had been a vicarage, because the vicar holds by some title of the impropricator.

In the presumption of the canon law, monks were held to be impropriators in ordinary and common way: as is said in the canon: "Semper præsumo contra nisi auctoritatem episcopi probaverint." Aur. Summ. 297. And the presumption is still more strongly confirmed by the law of England, by the Statute of Appropriations, and the further provision, that the provisions of that statute should be observed. The presumptions of the canon law are, that the benefice, though impropriated, is not impropriated pleno et utroque jure, and if so, that there is an endowed vicar, to whom the cura animarum belongs.

parsonages inappropriate, for the increase of the revenue thereof, he also desires to devise some good means, whereby the said revenue of tenths and inappropriate offices might be in the governance and disposition of the clergy of this realm, being most apt for the same, in such sort as yet thereby the said imperial crown should not be in any wise diminished in the said restored revenue.

II. And therefore beseech your majesty, that it may be enacted by the authority of this present parliament, in manner and form hereafter following; to say, upon the vacation (1) and avoidance of every archbishoprick or bishoprick within this your realm of England and Wales, and other your highness' dominions, it shall and may be (2) lawful for your highness to elect and take, and to take into your hands and real possession, as much and so many of the honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, being parcel of the possessions of any such archbishoprick or bishoprick so being void, as the clear yearly value of all your majesty's parsonages appropriate and yearly tenths (3) within every such archbishoprick or bishoprick shall yearly amount and extend unto; and for the trial of every value of such honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, it shall and may be lawful for your highness from time to time, to direct your letters of commission (4) under your highness' great seal of England into every such archbishoprick or bishoprick, so being void, to such persons as your majesty shall think meet and convenient, giving them authority thereby to survey such honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, parcel of the possessions of the same archbishoprick or bishoprick so being void, as to your majesty shall be thought meet and convenient to be taken into your highness' hands and possession, and thereupon to certify the very clear yearly value thereof, over all charges and reprises, into your highness' court of exchequer, at such day and time as by the said commission shall be limited and appointed; and after such certificate into the said court of exchequer of the clear yearly value of such honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, so had and made, it shall and may be lawful for your highness, by your letters patents, to give and assure unto such archbishop and bishop, and his successors, as shall be preferred and consecrated archbishop or bishop of such archbishoprick or bishoprick so being void, so much and so many of your yearly tenths, tithes, and parsonages appropriated, being within the same archbishoprick or bishoprick, as shall be of as much, or of more yearly value, as the said honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, so certified by your said court of exchequer, be certified unto; and that immediately upon every gift and grant made by your highness, and the same by your majesty under

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 19.

5 Co. 2.
Cro. Jac. 112.
1 Jac. 1, c. 3.

The queen empowered to take into her hands, on the avoidance of any bishoprick, so much of the possessions as shall be of the value of all the queen's parsonages appropriate, &c. within the bishoprick, assuring the parsonages, &c. to the promoted bishop.

(1) Vacation.—Soon after this, there being an avoidance of all, or almost all, the bishopricks, the courtiers had a present opportunity, (which, no doubt, was in their view, at the time of making the act,) of getting for themselves (by grants) the best possessions of the archbishops and bishops.

(2) It shall and may be.—This bill was opposed by the bishops, as highly prejudicial to the church; and their dissent, at the third reading, is particularly expressed in the Journal. Journ. Sup. Dom. Apr. 6. After which, it was again opposed upon the third reading, in the House of Commons; but such was the opinion of the court, and the expectations of the "bishop's manors" among the courtiers, that it was carried and passed there by 134 to 90. Journ. Com. Apr. 17.

(3) Parsonages . . . tenths.—To many of the parsonages, appertained decayed and ruinous houses, besides the slender provision for vicars and curates, which was necessary to be augmented, with a certain respect of the ill payment of the tenths, as such payment was to be made by the poorer clergy. Gibson's Codex, 651.

(4) Letters of commission.—Archbishop Parker, and four bishops elect, petitioned the queen, (Stry. Ref. 98-101,) that she would not make use of the power which the parliament had given her; and offered 700 marks yearly during their lives, and continuance in their bishopricks, to be exempt from such exchanges; which example was designed to be followed by other bishops, upon their consecrations to other sees. But the prey which the courtiers had in view, was too tempting to be easily relinquished; and therefore, soon after the parliament had been prorogued, the queen appointed commissioners to survey the several vacant bishopricks, (which were now, about fourteen, vacant either by death or deprivation,) and also other commissioners, to consider which of the lands she should take into her hands, and what impropriations and tenths it would be convenient to grant instead of them.

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 19.

your signet or sign manual signified unto your treasurer and barons of your court of exchequer, together with your pleasure for the retaining and keeping the said honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments certified unto your said court of exchequer, in lieu and place of the said tithes, and parsonages appropriate, the same and such honours, castles, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, as so shall then be certified in your said court of exchequer, shall be adjudged, vested, and deemed, by authority of this present parliament, actually and really in your highness, your heirs and successors, and be from thenceforth united and annexed to the imperial crown of this your realm for ever, and from thenceforth shall be in the order, service, and governance of your said court of exchequer, in such like manner and form as other your highness' possessions and hereditaments be at this present.

"III. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no act, or any thing herein contained, shall not extend to give any liberty or privilege to your highness, to take from any such archbishoprick or bishoprick the mansion-houses, commonly used for the habitation or dwelling of an archbishop or bishop, or any the demean lands commonly used or occupied by any such mansion or dwelling-house or houses or any of them, or to take any other lands or tenements commonly used and kept in the manurance, tillage, and manual occupation of any archbishop or bishop, for the maintenance of his and good housekeeping; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"IV. Saving to all and every person and persons, bodies politick and corporate, their heirs and successors, and to the heirs and successors of every of them other than the said archbishops and bishops and their successors, all such estate, title, term, interest, rent, profit, offices, or commodities, as they or any of them have, should, might, or ought to have had, in or to any honours, castles, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments whatsoever, in such like manner, form, and condition, to all intents and purposes, as if this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"V. And be it further (1) enacted (2) by the authority aforesaid, that no grants (3), feoffments, fines, or other conveyance or estates, from the first of this present parliament, to be had, made, done, or suffered by any archbishop, or any honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments being parcel of the possessions of his archbishoprick or bishoprick, or by bishops, &c.

Conveyances
other than, &c.
made void.
1 Inst. 44 (a).

(1) And be it further:—The long leases which a bishop, (with consent of dean and chapter,) might have made before this statute, were in some measure alienations, with regard to the succeeding bishops, during the continuance of such leases. Sarum's (Levesque de) case, 10 Co. 60 (a).

(2) Enacted:—This statute is merely disabling, and the disability which is hereby laid on the bishops, is this, that notwithstanding Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28, (ante 262,) bishops might continue to make such long leases, as they had usually done, in case those leases were confirmed; by this statute, they are absolutely prohibited from granting any leases, but for twenty-one years, or three lives, though with confirmation; and the power which a bishop acquired to let a lease for twenty-one years, or three lives, so as to bind the successor, was owing not to this statute, (which is wholly disabling,) but to Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28; and for that reason, the conditions and limitations prescribed by such statute, were obliged to be observed in the leases of bishops for twenty-one years, or three lives, otherwise they would not have bound the successors, without confirmation.

For example, if a bishop let a new lease when the old lease would have ended at one year, this was good, without confirmation, because Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28, obliged him to do it; but if he let a new lease more than one year remained of the old, that case confirmation was necessary, to bind the successor, as it was at common law, this not being within Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28.

(3) All gifts, grants:—The rule of canon law is this: "Sine exceptione cernimus, ne quis episcopus de rebus suis suæ quidquam donare, vel vendere audeat, nisi fortè aliquando faciat, ut meliores prospectat; et cum cleri tractatu atque consensu ad eligat, non sit dubium profuturum ecclesiæ." "Episcopus rebus ecclesiæ, tanquam commendatis, non tanquam propriis, irrita enim episcoporum venditio et cælatio rei ecclesiasticæ erit, absque conventu et subscriptione clericorum." 12, q. 2, c. 52.

(4) Other hereditaments:—The design of this statute, being to preserve bishopricks from the successors, to preserve bishopricks from belonging to any the same archbishopricks or bishopricks, to any Stat. 1 Eliz.

bodies politick or corporate, other than to the queen's highness, c. 19.

It hath been extended, in tion, to a prohibition of the new (though not directly in-the foregoing terms). For at erect new offices at plea-salaries to the officers, and to bind his successors, the
he would be manifestly dene thing is to be said of the
the fee or salary belonging fee; which power of augmen-same reason.) is also re-ler (Bishop of) v. Freedland, ster (Bishop of) v. Freed- 47;) as when the keepership granted with the ancient fee, pasturâ pro duobus equis in his was void; and it hath been ancient fee be less than 5*l.*, made with a fee of 5*l.* entire,
would be void, as well for
as the overplus; but if the ancient and new fee, were as several sentences, the grant for the office, and ancient fee, the new. Chichester (Bi- shof) v. Freedland, Cro. Car. 47. Chester Freedland, Ley. 71. Ely's
case, 2 Brownl. 137.
adjudged, that the offices of missary, official, register, vicars within the words
his statute, as well as the the bishoprick. The general statute in the case of bi-Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10, in the ecclesiastics, being to preserve successors, against any illegal present possessors; it hath the, the general rule in the common law, that no offices of granted by bishops, or other persons, as such, in any larger shall appear to have been his statute, and Stat. 13 Eliz.
v. Lamb (Sir John), Cro.
(Sir W.), 264. say Lord Coke, (Sarum's (Le- 10 Co. 61 (a).) "if the office
ent and necessary, the grant
the ancient fee, is not any di-revenue, nor impoverishing
and therefore, for necessity, by construction exempted eral restraint of this act."
granting it for the life of adds, "if bishops should not grant such offices of service for the life of the grantees, estates should depend upon
upon the death, translation, top, then able persons would in such offices, or at least large their office with any ala-ve not such certain estates their predecessors had in equity of granting for life amounts to no more than for one life; and therefore, where a bishop grants an office for two or more lives, it must be under the sanction of custom, i. e., because such patent hath usually been for two or more lives, and hail been so granted before the present act was made. Such is the principle; and in it there is no difference between bishopricks of the old and of the new foundation, since the new, as well as old, are capable of coming under this rule. Walker v. Lamb (Sir John), Cro. Car. 258. Ridley v. Fomel, 3 Keb. 474.

2 Lev. 138.

The same is the law, and the reason of it,
concerning grants of offices in reversion;
(i. e., to have and enjoy such office, after the death of the present grantee for life;) for there can be no pretence, that such second grant is necessary, or for the advantage of the bishoprick; and therefore, nothing can make it legal but custom, and particular instances, or an instance, of such grant, before the making of the statute. Ibid. 2
Rol. Abr. Office (H), 154. Young v. Fow- ler, Cro. Car. 555. Sarum's (Levesque de) case, 10 Co. 62. Et vide Co. Lit. 3 (b), n. 5.

But though there be but one such instance of a grant for two or more lives, (Yonge v.
Stowell, Jon. (Sir W.), 311,) or of a grant in reversion, before this statute, the law will presume, that it hath been usually and anciently so granted; nay, it is said, that if there be an instance near the time, (Jones
v. Beau, 4 Mod. 17,) though after it, and no instances appear to the contrary, the courts will be favourable to such grants, upon a presumption, that they followed the like precedents, though now lost; which seems not, by any means, to agree with what the books say, on other occasions, concerning the equity and intention of this statute, as designed for the benefit of the successors, and by consequence to be interpreted most strongly in their favour.

But to the end that unquestionable grants of ancient established offices, may be good against the successor of a bishop; they must,
in the first place, be grants of one office, singly, for two offices, which have been usually granted apart, cannot be granted by one patent, though to the same person; and, in the next place, they must be confirmed by the dean and chapter, (though they be but for one life,) because they are grants at common law, and not warranted by this statute, and must therefore pass, as they usually did at common law, before this statute. Scambler
v. Waters, Cro. Eliz. 636. Chichester
(Bishop of) v. Freedland, Cro. Car. 50.

In like manner, the grants of new offices, (if of necessary use to the bishop,) and of new fees annexed to such offices, shall be good, and bind the successor; as was declared in the case of the Bishop of Ely, (Cro. Car. 48,) who granted the keeping of his house and garden, with 3*l.* per annum, to one for life; and it was adjudged to be good against the successor, because the office was

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 19.

Moor, 253,
pl. 400.
Moor, 778,
pl. 1078.
Cro. Eliz. 874.
Cro. Car. 16, 47.
8 Vin. 564.
See 1 Bur. 221.

her heirs or successors, whereby any estate or estates should or may pass from same archbishops or bishops or any of them, other than for the term of xxi. years or three lives, from such time as any such lease, grant, or assurance shall be made, and whereupon the old accustomed (1) yearly rent (2) or more, shall be reserved, and payable yearly during the said term of xxi. years or three lives, shall be utterly void (3) and of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes in law, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 1 ELIZ.
c. 22.

VI. STAT. 1 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 22 (4). A.D. 1558.

"An Act giving Authority (5) to the Queen during her Life to make Orders in Collegiate Churches and Schools."

necessary, and the fee thought reasonable by the court. But, on the other hand, where the foundation of the grant to a civilian for life, was "pro consilio impenso, et impendendo," and an annual pension was annexed to the office; judgment was given against the grant, as not binding the successor, though it was alleged to be the ancient fee; because this was a voluntary thing, to make an election of one man to be of his counsel, and not an office; and peradventure the next bishop would not make such election. Chester (Bishop of) v. Freeland, Ley, 75.

In Jones v. Pugh, (2 Salk. 465; Carth. 213,) the Bishop of Landaff had granted the office of vicar-general to two persons, "habend', conjunctim et divisim, exercead' per se vel sufficiens' deputatum." It appeared, and was made part of the cause by the counsel on both sides, that this office had been anciently and usually granted to two, "conjunctim et divisim," and to the survivor of them. But it was objected, that a judicial office could not be granted to two; for if they differ, nothing can be done. But the answer was, that the same may be said of four judges, as in the court of King's Bench, and in ministerial offices, as two sheriffs. And the court held the grant good, and said, if an office be granted to two, and one dies, the office does not survive, but determines; as if there be two sheriffs, and one dies, the other cannot act; otherwise if granted to two, and the survivor of them.

(1) Accustomed.—The accustomed rent mentioned in this statute, and in Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10, ought to be understood of the rent reserved upon the last lease, and not upon the first; for that rent having been altered since, cannot be called the accustomed rent. Gibson's Codex, 736. Morrice v. Antrobus, Hardr. 326. Antè n. (2), 266.

(2) Yearly rent.—For this reason, a grant of the next avoidance of a benefice, is void against the successor; because it is one of those things which are incorporeal, and lie in grant only, and such an interest, out of which a rent cannot be reserved.

(3) Utterly void.—This statute was intended for the benefit of the successor; agreeably to which, this expression, though absolute and unlimited, hath been interpreted a voidance against the successor, but not against the grantor; who may, in many cases, be bound for his own time, by the directions of this, and Stat. 32 Eliz. c. 28, (antè 262,) be not punctually obeyed. Nay, even the grant of things not given as, of the next avoidance, or of an annuity, or of tithes for three lives, &c., has been held to bind the bishop who made the grant. (4) Expired.

(5) Authority.—Pursuant to the authority vested in the queen by this act, there have been a confirmation procuratoris of the statutes of King Henry 8, for the several churches, until they were reviewed and reformed. For so it was in the church of Peterborough, by Bishop Scambler's letter to the king, concerning those statutes. "After the church was erected, there came to the same statutes for the government thereof, his majesty's name, and so have we not without regard; the rather, the confirmation made of them by your visitors, appointed for that place and tries adjacent, anno primo of your happy reign." Stry. App. 103.

Afterwards, (special powers for which having been inserted in the body of the ecclesiastical commission,) new statutes prepared by the archbishop and others, finished in the month of July, 1562, several bodies were ready for the confirmation; but such confirmation (for reason, or by what accident, appears never obtained. Stry. Part. 341.

Three years after that, the like almost word for word, were inserted in the ecclesiastical commission granted to bishop Grindal, and others; which follows:

"And whereas, there were diverse and collegiate churches, grammar schools, and other ecclesiastical corporations founded, or ordained by the late King our most famous memory, our dear father King Henry 8, and by our late dear brother King Edward 6, and by our late sister Queen Mary, by the late Lord Cardinal Pole, &c., the statutes, rules, and statutes whereof, be none at all, or altogether imperfect, made at such time as the crown and government of this realm was subject to the usurped authority of the see of Rome, be in some points contrary, diverse, and pugniant to the dignity and prerogative

VII. STAT. 2 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 1. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1560.

As restoring to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the State Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all Foreign Power repugnant to the same."

Thus humbly beseech your most excellent majesty, your faithful and obedient the Lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, that where in the time of the reign of your most dear father by memory, King Henry the Eighth, divers good laws and statutes were established, as well for the utter extinguishment and putting away of all such foreign powers and authorities out of this your realm, as also restoring and uniting to the imperial crown of this realm, the ancient laws, authorities, superiorities, and pre-eminences to the same, of right and appertaining, by reason whereof, we your most humble and obedient subjects, from the twenty-eighth year of the reign of your said dear father, have been kept in good order, and were disburdened of divers great and heavy charges and exactions before that time unlawfully taken and exacted, and foreign power and authority as before that was usurped, until such time as your said good laws and statutes, by one act of parliament made in the third year of the reigns of the late King Philip and Queen Mary, your sister, intituled, 'An Act repealing all Statutes, Articles, and Provisions against the See Apostolique of Rome, sithence the twentieth year of King Henry the Eighth, and also for the abolishment of Spiritual and Ecclesiastical Honours and Hereditaments conveyed to the Laity,' were clearly repealed and abolished, as by the same act of repeal more at large doth and may appear, by which act of repeal, your said humble subjects were eftsoons brought from an usurped foreign power and authority, and yet do remain in that bondage, and intolerable charges of your loving subjects, if some redress, by the authority of this your high court of parliament, with the assent of your highness,

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 1. [Ir.]

Eng. 1 Eliz.
c. 1.

Divers good statutes made in the time of King Henry 8, against usurpations and exactions of foreign power which statutes were repealed by 3 & 4 P. & M. c. 8.

The subjects thereby brought under usurped foreign power.

down, the laws of this our realm, and the true state of religion within the same. Therefore do give full power and authority unto us, or six of you, of whom we have the forenamed Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishops of London, Winchester, Norwich, Chichester, Rochester, for the time being, Gabriel Gooden, William Dey, or Thomas Watts, alone or more; to cause and ordain in our said singular the ordinances, rules, and statutes of all and every the said cathedral, collegiate churches, grammar schools, and other ecclesiastical corporations, with their several letters patents, writings, touching, and in anything their several erections and foundations brought and exhibited before you, as is aforesaid; willing that you, &c., upon the exhibition thereof, take diligent and deliberate view, and examination of the said statutes, ordinances, letters patents and decrees, to make speedy and unfeigned redress of the enormities, disorders, superfluous or wants, of all and sundry the said statutes, rules, and ordinances, and to advertise us of the same, to order and statutes, as you, or any of you, shall think meet and convenient to be made, and set forth for the better rule of the said several churches, and foundations, and to increase and revenues of the same; and that they tend to the honour of Almighty God, the increase of virtue and unity in the said places, and the public weal and tranquillity of this our realm; to the intent we may thereupon further proceed to the altering, making, and establishing of the same, and other statutes, rules, and ordinances, according to an act of parliament thereof made in the first year of our reign."

But nothing appears to have been done, in pursuance of those powers, although the inconveniences and mischiefs of wanting a certain rule, appear evidently by the tenour of the letter of Bishop Scambler, to which allusion has been made. The bishop, after a complaint of non-residence, the want of discipline, and his own fruitless endeavours to reform what was amiss, adds, "(One chief and sole cause, in a manner, of all this matter, besides the perverseness of men's natures, being the uncertainty of the authority of the statutes of the said church, the froward and disobedient always pretending for their defence, that the same were and are of no force, and that they stand at liberty to do or not to do the premises at their pleasure; because they are not extant under the great seal, and indented." Whereupon, his prayer to the queen, is, "Let not then, I most humbly beseech you, the matter of government of these houses, (for they, all that are of your father's foundation, be in like uncertainty of the authority of their statutes, and especially this church, where I am,) stand any longer doubtful; but let it be by your most sacred majesty decided and determined, under what rules and orders they shall live."

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 1. [1a.]

For remedy
thereof, and restoring the rights of the crown.

Said act, 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 8,
repealed,
except as hereafter.

The statute
28 Hen. 8,
c. 19. and 28
Hen. 8, c. 6,
revived.

So much only of the statute
33 Hen. 8,
c. 6, as concerns degrees of consanguinity, revived.

All other statutes and clauses repealed by 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 8,
and not in this act specified
and revived, continue
repealed.

An act 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 9,
for reviving
three statutes
of heresy, and also the said
three statutes,
repealed.

No foreign power to exercise ecclesiastical jurisdiction in this realm.

be not had and provided. May it therefore please your highness, for the
of the said usurped foreign power, and the restoring of the rights, jur-and pre-eminences appertaining to the imperial crown of this your re-it may be enacted by authority of this present parliament, that the said in the third and fourth years of the reigns of the said late King Philip and Mary, and all and every branch, clauses, and articles therein contained, of such branches, clause, and sentences, as hereafter shall be excepted, may, last day of this session of parliament, by authority of this present parliarepealed, and shall from thenceforth be utterly void and of none effect;
also for the reviving of divers of the said good laws and statutes made in
of your said dear father, it may also please your highness, that one act made in a parliament holden at Dublin, the first of May, in the eighttieth year of the said late King Henry the Eighth, and after prorogued, and continued, as by the roll of the said parliament more at large appear-tuled, 'The Act of Appeals;' and also one act made in the said paintituled, 'The Act of Faculties;' and also all and every branches, w-sentences in the said several acts and statutes contained by authority of the parliament, from and at all times after the last day of this session of pa-shall be revived, and shall stand and be in full force and strength, to al-constructions, and purposes; and that the branches, sentences, and w-said several acts, and every of them, from thenceforth shall and may be deemed, and taken, to extend to your highness, your heirs and sucfully and largely as ever the same acts, or any of them, did extend to the Henry the Eighth, your highness' father.

"II. And that it may also please your highness, that it may be authority of this present parliament, that so much only of one act or stain a parliament begun at Dublin, the thirteenth of June, in the thirty-th-the reign of your said dear father King Henry the Eighth, and after adjourned, and continued, as by the rolls of the said parliament more appeareth, intituled, 'An Act for Marriage,' as doth touch and concern consanguinity, may from henceforth likewise stand and be revived, and full force and strength, to all intents and purposes; any thing in this repeal before mentioned, or other matter or cause to the contrary notwith-

"III. And that it may also please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all other laws and statutes, branches and clauses of any act or statute repealed and made void by the of repeal, made in the time of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary in this present act specially mentioned and revived, shall stand, remain repealed and void, in such like manner and form as they were before the of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"IV. And that it may also please your highness, that it may be the authority aforesaid, that one act or statute made in the third and four-of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, intituled, 'An Act for the Three Estates made for the Punishment of Heresies;' and also the statutes mentioned in the said act, and by the same act revived, and all branches, articles, clauses, and sentences contained in the said several statutes, and every of them, shall be from the last day of this session of pa-deemed and remain utterly repealed, void, and of none effect, to all in-purposes; any thing in the said several acts or any of them contained, or matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

"V. And to the intent that all usurped and foreign power and author-tual and temporal may for ever be clearly extinguished, and never to be obeyed within this realm; may it please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no foreign prince, person, preor potentate, spiritual or temporal, shall at any time after the last session of parliament, use, enjoy, or exercise any manner of power, jusuperiority, authority, pre-eminence, or privilege spiritual or ecclesiastical this realm, but from henceforth the same shall be clearly abolished of realm for ever; any statute, ordinance, custom, constitutions, or other matter or cause whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

“VI. And that also it may likewise please your highness, that it may be established and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such jurisdiction, privileges, superiorities, and pre-eminences spiritual and ecclesiastical, as by any spiritual or ecclesiastical power or authority hath heretofore been or may lawfully be exercised or used for the visitation of the ecclesiastical state and persons, and for reformation, order, and correction of the same, and of all manner errors, heresies, schisms, abuses, offences, contempts, and enormities, shall for ever by authority of this present parliament be united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm; and that your highness, your heirs and successors, kings or queens of this realm, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, by letters patents under the great seal of England or of this realm, and the lord deputy and other governor or governors of this realm for the time being, shall have likewise full power and authority by virtue of this act, by letters patents to be made by his or their warrants under the great seal of this realm, to assign, name, and authorize, when and as often as your highness, your heirs and successors, or the lord deputy, governor or governors of this realm for the time being, shall think meet and convenient, and for such and so long time as shall please your highness, your heirs or successors, or the lord deputy, governor or governors of this realm for the time being, such person or persons being natural born subjects to your highness, your heirs or successors, as your majesty, your heirs or successors, or the lord deputy, governor or governors of this realm for the time being, shall think meet to exercise, use, occupy, and execute, under your highness, your heirs and successors, all manner of jurisdiction, privileges, and pre-eminences, in any wise touching or concerning any spiritual or ecclesiastical jurisdiction within this your realm of Ireland, and visit, reform, redress, order, correct, and amend all such errors, heresies, schisms, abuses, offences, contempts, and enormities whatsoever, which by any manner spiritual or ecclesiastical power, authority, or jurisdiction, can, or may lawfully be reformed, ordered, redressed, corrected, restrained, or amended, to the pleasure of Almighty God, the increase of virtue, and the conservation of the peace and unity of this realm; and that such person or persons so to be named, assigned, authorized, and appointed by your highness, your heirs or successors, or by the lord deputy, governor or governors of this realm for the time being, in manner aforesaid, after the said letters patents to him or them made and delivered as is aforesaid, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, and of the said letters patents under your highness, your heirs or successors, to exercise, use, and execute all the premises according to the tenour and effect of the said letters patents; any matter or cause to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

“VII. And for the better observation and maintenance of this act, may it please your highness, that it may be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every archbishop, bishop, and all and every other ecclesiastical person and other ecclesiastical officer and minister, of what estate, dignity, pre-eminence, or degree soever he or they be, or shall be, and all and every temporal judge, justice, mayor, and other lay or temporal officer and minister, and every other person having your highness' fee or wages within this realm, shall make, take, and receive a corporal oath upon the Evangelists before such person or persons as shall please your highness, your heirs or successors, under the great seal in England, or of this realm, or the lord deputy, or other governor or governors of this realm for the time being, by letters patents to be made by his or their warrant under the great seal of this realm, to assign and name, to accept and take the same, according to the tenour and effect hereafter following, that is to say,

“I, A. B., do utterly testify and declare in my conscience, that the queen's highness is the only supreme governor of this realm, and of all other her highness' dominions and countries, as well in all spiritual or ecclesiastical things or causes, as temporal, and that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm, and therefore I do utterly renounce

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 1. [1a.]

Such jurisdiction annexed to the crown.

The queen by letters patents under the great seal of England, or of this realm, or the governors by letters patents under the great seal of this realm, may assign natural-born subjects, to exercise the same.

Who compellable to take the oath of supremacy. Ecclesiastical persons and officers, judge, justice, mayor, temporal officer, he that hath the queen's fees or wages.

The oath.

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 1. [In.]

Repeated by
3 G. & M.
c. 2, Eng., and another oath appointed.
Penalty for refusing the oath.

Forfeiture of office and promotion, during life.

Persons to take
the oath.

He that sueth
livery or ouster-le main, that doth homage
to the queen,
or received into the queen's service, that takes orders or degrees in the university.

and forsake all foreign jurisdictions, power, superiorities, and authorities, and promise, that from henceforth I shall bear faith and true allegiance to the highness, her heirs and successors, and to my power shall assist and defend the queen's highness, her heirs and successors, or united and annexed to the royal crown of this realm, so help me God, and by the contents of this book.

"VIII. And that it may be also enacted, that if any such archbishop, or any other ecclesiastical officer or minister, or any of the said temporal justicer, or any other lay officer or minister, shall peremptorily, or obstinately refuse to take or receive the said oath, that then he so refusing shall forfeit, lose, only during his life, all and every ecclesiastical and spiritual promotion, benefice, and office, and every temporal and lay promotion and office which he shall hold at the time of such refusal made; and that the whole title, interest, incumbency, in every such promotion, benefice, and other office, as against such person only so refusing during his life, shall clearly cease and be void as if the party so refusing were dead, and that also all and every such persons, so refusing to take the said oath, shall immediately after such refusal from thenceforth, during his life, be disabled to retain or exercise any office or promotion, which he at the time of such refusal had jointly or in common with any other person or persons; and that all and every person and persons that at any time hereafter shall be preferred, promoted, or collated to any archbishopric, bishoprick, or to any other spiritual or ecclesiastical benefice, promotion, office, or ministry, or that shall be by your highness, your heirs or successors preferred or promoted to any temporal or lay office, ministry, or service in this realm, before he or they shall take upon him or them to receive, use, exercise, supply, or occupy any such archbishoprick, bishoprick, promotion, office, ministry, office, or service, shall likewise make, take, and receive the said oath before mentioned, upon the Evangelist, before such persons as have authority to admit any such person to any such office, ministry, or service, or else before such person or persons as by your highness, your heirs or successors by commission under the great seal of England, or of this realm, or by the deputy, or other governor or governors of this realm for the time being, by patents to be made by his or their warrant under the great seal of this realm, shall be named, assigned, or appointed to minister the said oath.

"IX. And that it may likewise be further enacted by authority of parliament, that if any such person or persons as at any time hereafter shall be preferred, or collated to any such promotion spiritual or ecclesiastical benefice, office, or ministry, or that by your highness, your heirs or successors, shall be promoted or preferred to any temporal or lay office, ministry, or service, shall peremptorily and obstinately refuse to take the same oath as to him to be so promoted or preferred, that then he or they so refusing shall presently be judged disabled in the future to receive, take, and have the same promotion spiritual or ecclesiastical, the temporal office, ministry, or service within this realm, to all intents, contents, and purposes.

"X. And that it may be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person and persons temporal, suing livery or ousterlemain out of the hands of your highness, your heirs or successors, before his or their livery or ousterlemain sued forth and allowed, and every temporal person or persons, taking any homage to your highness, your heirs or successors, or that shall be received into service with your highness, your heirs or successors, shall make, take, and receive the said corporal oath before mentioned, before the lord chancellor of England, or keeper of the great seal for the time being, or before such person or persons as by your highness, your heirs or successors, or by the lord deputy, or governor or governors of this realm for the time being, by letters patents made by his or their warrants under the great seal of this realm, shall be named, assigned, or appointed to accept and receive the same; and that also all and every person and persons taking orders, and all and every other person and persons which shall be promoted or preferred to any degree of learning, in any university that after shall be within this your realm, before he shall receive or take any such orders, or be preferred to any such degree of learning, shall make, take, and receive the said oath, by this act set forth and declared as is aforesaid, before his or their ordinary, commissary, chancellor or vice-chancellor, or their sufficient deputies in the said university.

"XI. Provided alway, and that it may be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person having any estate of inheritance in any temporal office or offices, shall hereafter obstinately and peremptorily refuse to accept and take the said oath as is aforesaid, and after at any time during his life shall willingly require to take and receive the said oath, and so to take and accept the same oath, before any person or persons that shall have lawful authority to minister the same, that then every such person immediately after he hath so received the same oath, shall be vested, judged, and deemed in like estate and possession of the said office, as he was before the said refusal, and shall and may use and exercise the said office in such manner and form as he should or might have done before such refusal; any thing in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XII. And for the more sure observation of this act, and the utter extirpation of all foreign and usurped power and authority, may it please your highness, that it may be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons dwelling or inhabiting within this your realm, of what estate, dignity, or degree soever he or they be, after the end of thirty days next after the determination of this session of this present parliament, shall by writing, printing, teaching, preaching, express words, deed, or act, advisedly, maliciously, and directly affirm, hold, stand with, set forth, maintain, and defend, the authority, pre-eminence, power, or jurisdiction spiritual or ecclesiastical, of any foreign prince, prelate, person, state, or potentate whatsoever heretofore claimed, used, or usurped within this realm, or shall advisedly, maliciously, and directly put in ure or execute any thing for the extolling, advancement, setting forth, maintenance, or defence of any such pretended or usurped jurisdiction, power, pre-eminence, or authority, or any part thereof, that then every such person and persons so doing and offending, their abettors, aiders, procurers, and counsellors being thereof lawfully convicted and attainted according to the due order and course of the common law of this realm, for his or their first offence shall forfeit and lose unto your highness, your heirs and successors, all his and their goods and chattels, as well real as personal, and if any such person so convicted or attainted shall not have or be worth of his proper goods and chattels to the value of twenty pounds, at the time of such his conviction or attainder, that then every such person so convicted and attainted over and besides the forfeiture of all his said goods and chattels, shall have and suffer imprisonment by the space of one whole year without bail or mainprise; and that also all and every the benefices, prebends, and other ecclesiastical promotions and dignities whatsoever, of every spiritual person so offending and being attainted, shall immediately after such attainder be utterly void to all intents and purposes, as though the incumbent thereof were dead; and that the patron and donor of every such benefice, prebend, spiritual promotion and dignity, shall and may lawfully present unto the same, or give the same in such manner and form as if the said incumbent were dead; and if any such offender or offenders, after such conviction or attainder, do oftsoons commit or do the said offences or any of them in manner and form aforesaid, and be thereof lawfully convicted and attainted as is aforesaid, that then every such offender or offenders shall for the same second offence incur into the dangers, penalties, and forfeitures, ordained and provided by the Statute of Provision and Premunire, made within the realm of England in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second, and if any such offender or offenders, at any time after the said second conviction and attainder, do the third time commit and do the said offences, or any of them, in manner and form aforesaid, and be thereof duly convicted, and attainted as aforesaid, that then every such offence or offences shall be deemed and adjudged high treason, and that the offender and the offenders

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 1. [In.]

He that has estate of inheritance in temporal office, refusing, and afterwards taking the oath, shall be vested in, and use such office, as before refusal.

Penalty of maintaining or defending foreign authority.

First offence, forfeiture of goods and chattels: a year's imprisonment besides, if he has not 20*l*.; if an ecclesiastical person, his benefice to be void, as if dead, and the patron may present.

Second offence, premunire, 16 Rich. 2, c. 5.

Third offence, high treason.

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
C. 1. [1a.]

Offenders by words only, to be prosecuted
within half a year.

This act not to repeal any clause in 3 & 4
P. & M. c. 8,
concerning premunire.

Not to prejudice persons for offences committed against statutes revived by this act, before the end of thirty days after this session.
Peers indicted,
to be tried by peers, as in other cases of treason and premunire.

No order by this parliament
for matter of religion, shall be deemed error, heresy,
or schism.

Commissioners to execute spiritual jurisdiction, shall not adjudge
anything heresy, but what so judged
by the canonical Scriptures, or the first four general councils, or any other general council, or
by parliament.

therein, being thereof lawfully convicted and attainted according to the laws of this realm, shall suffer pains of death, and other penalties, forfeitures, and losses, as in cases of high treason, by the laws of this realm.

"XIII. And also that it may likewise please your highness, that it may be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no manner of person or persons shall be molested or impeached for any the offences aforesaid, committed or perpetrated only by preaching, teaching, or words, unless he or they be thereof lawfully indicted within the space of one half year next after his or their offences so committed; and in case any person or persons shall fortune to be imprisoned, for any of the said offences committed by preaching, teaching, or words only, and be not thereof indicted within the space of one half year next after his or their said offence so committed and done, that then the said person so imprisoned shall be set at liberty, and be no longer detained prisoner for any such cause or offence.

"XIV. Provided always, and be it enacted by authority aforesaid, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend to repeal any clause, matter, or sentence contained or specified in the said act of repeal made in the said third and fourth years of the reigns of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, as doth in any wise touch or concern any matter in case of premunire, or do make or ordain any matter or cause to be within the case of premunire, but that the same, for so much only as toucheth and concerneth any case or matter of premunire, shall stand and remain in full force and effect as the same was before the making of this act; any thing in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XV. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend or be prejudicial to any person or persons for any offence or offences committed or done, or hereafter to be committed or done, contrary to the tenour and effect of any act or statute revived by this act, before the end of thirty days next after the end of this session of this present parliament; any thing in this act contained, or any other clause or clause to the contrary notwithstanding. And if it shall happen that any peer of this realm shall fortune to be indicted of and for any offence that is revived or made premunire or treason by this act, that then the said peer or peers so indicted, shall be put to answer to every such indictment before such peer or peers of the realm, of English blood, as by the lord deputy, or governor or governors of the realm shall be by commission appointed under the broad seal, and to have his and their trial by his and their peers, and to receive and have such like judgment upon the same trial of his or their peers, or making open confession of the same offence or offences, as in other cases of treason or premunire hath been used.

"XVI. Provided always, and be it enacted as is aforesaid, that no manner of order, act, or determination for any matter of religion or cause ecclesiastical, made or made by the authority of this present parliament, shall be accepted, deemed, interpreted, or adjudged at any time hereafter to be any error, heresy, schism, or schismatical opinion; any order, decree, sentence, constitution, or law whatsoever the same be to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XVII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such person or persons to whom your highness, your heirs or successors, shall hereafter by letters patents under the great seal of England, or of this realm, or the lord deputy, or other governor or governors of this realm, for the time being, by letters patents to be made by his or their warrant under the great seal of the realm, give authority to have or execute any jurisdiction, power, or authority spiritual, or to visit, reform, order or correct any errors, heresies, schisms, abuses or enormities, by virtue of this act, shall not in any wise have authority or power, or order, determine, or adjudge any matter or cause to be heresy, but only such as heretofore hath been determined, ordered, or adjudged to be heresy, by the authority of the canonical Scriptures, or by the first four general councils, or any of them, or by any other general council, wherein the same was declared heresy, by the express and plain words of the said canonical Scriptures, or such as hereafter shall be ordered, judged, or determined to be heresy by the high court of parliament of this realm; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XVIII. And be it further enacted by authority aforesaid, that no person or persons shall be hereafter indicted or arraigned for any the offences made, ordained, revived, and adjudged by this act, unless there be two sufficient witnesses or more to testify and declare the said offences, whereof he should be indicted or arraigned, and that the said witnesses, or so many of them as shall be living and within this realm at the time of the arraignment of such person so indicted, shall be brought forth in person, face to face before the party so arraigned, and there shall testify and declare what they can say against the party so arraigned, if he require the same.

"XIX. Provided and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons shall hereafter happen to give any relief, aid, or comfort, or in any wise be aiding, helping, or comforting to the person or persons of any that shall hereafter happen to be an offender in any matter or case of premunire or treason revived or made by this act, that then such relief, aid, or comfort given shall not be judged or taken to be any offence, unless there be two sufficient witnesses at the least, that can and will openly testify and declare, that the person or persons that so gave such relief, aid, or comfort, had notice and knowledge of such offence committed and done by the said offender, at the time of such relief, aid, or comfort, so to be given or ministered; any thing in this act contained, or any other matter or cause to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 1. [IR.]

Two witnesses face to face necessary upon any offence
within this act.

And upon giving relief, &c. to any offender, two witnesses
necessary that the party had notice of the offence.

VIII. STAT. 2 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 2. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1560.

"An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer and Service in the Church, and the Administration of the Sacraments."

"Where at the death of our late sovereign lord King Edward the Sixth, there remained one uniform order of common service, prayer, and of the administration of sacraments, rites, and ceremonies in the church of England, which was set forth in one book, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer, and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies in the Church of England,' authorized by act of parliament, holden in the said realm of England, in the fifth and sixth years of our said late sovereign lord King Edward the Sixth, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformitie of Common Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments;' the which was repealed and taken away by act of parliament in the said realm of England, in the first year of the reign of our late sovereign lady Queen Mary, to the great decay of the due honour of God, and discomfort to the professors of the truth of Christ's religion. Be it therefore enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that the said book, with the order of service, and of the administration of sacraments, rites, and ceremonies, with the alteration and additions therein added and appointed by this statute, shall stand and be from and after the feast of Pentecost, next ensuing, in full force and effect, according to the tenour and effect of this statute.

"II. And further be it enacted by the queen's highness, with the assent of the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular ministers in any cathedral or parish church, or other place within this realm of Ireland, shall from and after the feast of Saint John Baptist, then next ensuing, be bounden to say and use the mattens, even-song, celebration of the Lord's supper, and administration of each of the sacraments, and all their common and open prayer, in such order and form as is mentioned in the said book so authorized by parliament, in the said fifth and sixth years of the reign of King Edward the Sixth, with one alteration or addition of certain lessons to be used in every Sunday in the year, and the form of the Litany altered and corrected, and two sentences only added in the delivery of the sacrament to the communicants, and none other or otherwise; and that if any manner of parson, vicar, or other whatsoever minister that ought or should sing or say common prayer mentioned in the said book, or minister the sacraments from and after the feast of Saint John the Baptist aforesaid, refuse to use the said common prayers, or to minister

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 2. [IR.]

Eng. 1 Eliz.
c. 2.
Eng. 5 & 6
Edw. 6. c. 1,
for uniformity
of the common prayer, being repealed by 1 Mar. sess. 2,
c. 2, Eng.
The Book of Common Prayer, with
the order of service, sacraments, &c.
and the alterations and additions by this statute, shall be in force,

And used by
all ministers.

Alterations of the book set forth.
Lessons on Sunday.
Form of the Litany.
Addition of two sentences

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 2. [1a.]
in delivery of the sacrament.
Penalty on ministers
refusing to use said form, or using any
other.
Preaching or speaking in derogation of said book;
And convicted thereof by verdict, confession, or notorious evidence of the fact:
For first offence, forfeiture of the profits of his benefice for one year, and
six months imprisonment.
Second offence,
imprisonment
one year; and deprivation,
and patron may present as if offender dead.
Third offence,
deprivation and imprisonment
during life.
If not bene-ficed, for first offence, one year's imprisonment; for
the second,
during life.

For depraving
or despising
said book,
or causing other prayer to be said or sung,
or interrupting
the minister.

First offence,
after conviction, 100
marks;

Second offence,
400 marks.

the sacraments in such cathedral or parish church, or other places as he should use to minister the same, in such order and form as they be mentioned and set forth in the said book, or shall wilfully or obstinately (standing in the same) use any other rite, ceremony, order, form, or manner of celebrating of the Lord's supper openly or privily, or mattens, evensong, administration of the sacraments, or other open prayers, is mentioned and set forth in the said book; (open prayer in and throughout this act, is meant that prayer which is for other to come unto, or hear, either in common churches or privy chapels, or oratories, commonly called the service of the church;) or shall preach, declare, or speak any thing in the derogation or depraving of the said book, or any thing therein contained, or of any part thereof, and shall be thereof lawfully convicted according to the laws of this realm, by verdict of twelve men, or by his own confession, or by the notorious evidence of the fact, shall lose and forfeit to the queen's highness, her heirs and successors, for his first offence, the profit of all his spiritual benefices or promotions coming or arising in one whole year next after his conviction, and also the person so convicted shall for the same offence suffer imprisonment by the space of six months without bail or mainprise; and if any such person once convicted of any offence concerning the premises, shall after his first conviction oftsoons offend and be thereof in form aforesaid lawfully convicted, that then the same person shall for his second offence suffer imprisonment by the space of one whole year, and after shall therefore be deprived (ipso facto) of all his spiritual promotions; and that it shall be lawful to all patrons or donors of all and singular the same spiritual promotions, or any of them, to present or collate unto the same as though the person or persons so offending were dead; and that if any one person or persons, after he shall be twice convicted in the form aforesaid, shall offend against any of the premises the third time, and shall be thereof in form aforesaid lawfully convicted, that then the person so offending and convicted the third time, shall be deprived (ipso facto) of all his spiritual promotions, and also shall suffer imprisonment during his life; and if the person that shall offend and be convicted in form aforesaid, concerning any of the premises, shall not be beneficed, nor have any spiritual promotion, that the same person so offending and convicted shall for the first offence suffer imprisonment during one whole year next after his said conviction, without bail or mainprise; and if any such person not having any spiritual promotion, after his first conviction shall oftsoons offend in any thing concerning the premises, and shall in form aforesaid be thereof lawfully convicted, that then the same person shall for his second offence suffer imprisonment during his life.

"III. And it is ordained and enacted by the authority abovesaid, that if any person or persons whatsoever, after the said feast of Saint John Baptist, shall in any interludes, plays, songs, rhymes, or by other open words, declare or speak any thing in derogation, depraving, or despising of the same book, or of any thing therein contained, or any part thereof, or shall by open fact, deed, or by open threatenings compel or cause, or otherwise procure or maintain any priest, vicar, or other minister, in any cathedral or parish church, or in chapel, or in any other place, to sing or say any common and open prayer, or to minister any sacrament otherwise, or in any other manner and form than is mentioned in the said book, or that by any of the said means shall unlawfully interrupt, or let any person, vicar, or other minister in any cathedral or parish church, chapel, or any other place, to sing or say common and open prayer, or to minister the sacraments or any of them, in such manner and form as is mentioned in the said book, that then every such person being thereof lawfully convicted in form aforesaid, shall forfeit to the queen our sovereign lady, her heirs and successors, for the first offence an hundred marks; and if any person or persons, being once convicted of any such offence, oftsoons offend against any of the last recited offences, and shall in form aforesaid be thereof lawfully convicted, that then the same person so offending and convicted, shall for the second offence forfeit to the queen our sovereign lady, her heirs and successors, four hundred marks; and if any person, after he in form aforesaid shall have been twice convicted of any offence concerning any of the last recited offences, shall offend the third time, and be thereof in form aforesaid lawfully convict, that then every person, so offending and convict, shall for his third offence forfeit to our sovereign lady the queen all his goods and chattels, and shall suffer imprisonment during his life. And if any person or persons, that for his first offence concerning the premises shall be convict in form aforesaid, do not pay the sum to be paid by virtue of his conviction, in such manner and form as the same ought to be paid, within six weeks next after his conviction, that then every person, so convict, and so not paying the same, shall for the same first offence, instead of the said sum, suffer imprisonment by the space of six months without bail or mainprise; and if any person or persons, that for his second offence concerning the premises shall be convict in form aforesaid, do not pay the said sum to be paid by virtue of his conviction and this statute, in such manner and form as the same ought to be paid, within six weeks next after his said second conviction, that then every person, so convicted and not so paying the same, shall for the same second offence, in the stead of the said sum, suffer imprisonment during twelve months without bail or mainprise; and that from and after the said feast of Saint John Baptist all and every person and persons inhabiting within this realm shall diligently and faithfully, having no lawful or reasonable excuse to be absent, endeavour themselves to resort to their parish church or chapel accustomed, or upon reasonable let thereof to some usual place, where common prayer and such service of God shall be used in such time of let, upon every Sunday and other days, ordained and used to be kept as holy days, and then and there to abide orderly and soberly during the time of the common prayer, preachings, or other service of God, there to be used and ministered, upon pain of punishment by the censures of the church, and also upon pain that every person so offending shall forfeit for every such offence twelve pence, to be levied by the churchwardens of the parish where such offence shall be done, to the use of the poor of the same parish, of the goods, lands, and tenements of such offender by way of distress; and for the due execution thereof the queen's most excellent majesty, the lords temporal, and all the commons in this present parliament assembled, do in God's name earnestly require and charge all archbishops, bishops, and other ordinaries, that they shall endeavour themselves to the uttermost of their knowledges, that the due and true execution hereof may be had throughout their dioceses and charges, as they will answer before God for such evils and plagues, wherewith Almighty God may justly punish his people for neglecting this good and wholesome law.

"IV. And for their authority in this behalf, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular the same archbishops, bishops, and all other their officers, exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction as well in place exempt as not exempt within their dioceses, shall have full power and authority by this act to reform, correct, and punish by censures of the church all and singular persons which shall offend within any their jurisdictions or dioceses after the said feast of Saint John Baptist against this act and statute; any other law, statute, privilege, liberty, or provision heretofore made, had, or suffered, to the contrary notwithstanding.

"V. And it is ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every justices of the peace, gaol delivery, of Oyer and Determiner, or justices of assize, shall have full power and authority in every of their open and general sessions to inquire, hear, and determine all and all manner of offences that shall be committed or done contrary to any article contained in this present act, within the limits of the commission to them directed, and to make process for the execution of the same, as they may do against any person being indicted before them of trespass, or lawfully convicted thereof.

"VI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every archbishop and bishop shall and may at all time and times at his liberty and pleasure join and associate himself by virtue of this act to the said justices of the peace, gaol delivery, of Oyer and Determiner, or to the said justices of assize, at every of the said open and general sessions to be holden in any place within his diocese for and to the inquiry, hearing, and determining of the offences aforesaid.

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 2. [1st.]

Third offence, forfeiture of goods and chattels, and imprisonment for life.

If said sum for first offence not paid in six weeks, instead thereof imprisonment for six months; for second offence, if not paid, twelve months.

All persons not having reasonable excuse, shall resort to their parish church on holy-days, on pain of censures of church and 12d. levied by the churchwardens, to use of the poor, by way of distress.

Ordinaries required and charged to put this act in execution. And have power to punish by censures of the church.

Justices of peace, &c. may hear and determine said offences, and make process for execution.

The bishop may join with said justices in the inquiry at the open sessions within his diocese.

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 2. [1s.]

Books provided at cost of the parishioners.

Indictment at the next general assizes.

Lords for said
third offence,
to be tried by
their peers.

Head officers of corporations
to which said
justices do not commonly repair, may in like manner
inquire of said
offences yearly in fifteen days
after Easter and Michaelmas.
Ordinaries, &c.
may inquire and punish as heretofore by the ecclesiastical
laws.

No one to be punished twice
viz. by the justices and ordinary, for same offence.

Such ornaments of the church and ministers to be retained, as in 2 Edw. 6, until other order by the queen, &c.
who may publish further ceremonies or rites.

"VII. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that books concerning the said services shall, at the costs and charges of the parishioners of every parish and cathedral church, be attained and gotten before the feast of Saint John the Baptist; and that all such parishes and cathedral churches or other places where the said books shall be attained and gotten before the feast of Saint John Baptist aforesaid, shall within three weeks next after the said books so attained and gotten, use the said service, and put the same in writing to this act.

"VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any person or persons shall be at any time hereafter impeached or otherwise molested for any of the offences above mentioned, hereafter to be committed or done contrary to this act, unless he or they so offending be thereof indicted at the next session to be holden before any such justices of the peace, gaol delivery, and Determiner, or justices of assize next after any offence committed contrary to the tenor of this act.

"IX. Provided always, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular lords of the parliament, for the third offence mentioned, shall be tried by their peers, before such peer of this realm of blood, as by the lord deputy, or other governor or governors of this realm at the time being, shall be by commission appointed under the broad seal.

"X. Provided also, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the mayor of Dublin, and all other mayors, bailiffs, and other head officers of all and singular cities, boroughs, and towns corporate within this realm, which justices of peace, or of gaol delivery, or assize, do not commonly repair, shall have full power and authority, by virtue of this act, to inquire, determine the offences abovesaid, and every of them, yearly within fifteen days after the feast of Easter and Saint Michael the Archangel, in like manner as justices of the peace, gaol delivery, assize, and Oyer and Determiner, do.

"XI. Provided always, and be it ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular archbishops, and bishops, and every of their commissaries, archdeacons, and other ordinaries, having any peculiar or spiritual jurisdiction, shall have full power and authority by virtue of this act, to inquire in their visitation, synods, and elsewhere within their jurisdiction, any other time and place, and to take accusations and informations of every the things abovesaid, done, committed, or perpetrated within their jurisdiction, and to punish the same by admonition, sequestration, or deprivation, and other censures and penalties, in like form as heretofore hath been used in like cases by the queen's ecclesiastical laws.

"XII. Provided always, and be it enacted, that whatsoever person in the premises, shall for the offence first receive punishment of the ordinary, having a testimony thereof under the said ordinaries' seals, shall not for the same offence afterwards be convicted before the justices, and likewise, receiving punishment by the justices, he shall not for the same offence afterwards receive punishment of the ordinary: any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, that such ornaments of the church, and of the ministers thereof, shall be retained and be in use, as were in the church of England by the authority of parliament, in the second year of the reign of King Edward the Sixth, until other order shall be therein taken by the authority of the queen's majesty, with the advice of her commissioners, and authorized under the great seal of England, or of this realm, for canonical or ecclesiastical, or by the authority of the lord deputy, or other governor or governor of this realm for the time being, with the advice of the council of this realm, or by the great seal of this realm, and also that if there shall happen any offence of irreverence to be used in the ceremonies or rites of the church, by the authority of the orders appointed in this book, the queen's majesty may by the authority of the said commissioners, or the lord deputy, or other governor or governor this realm for the time being, with the advice of the council of this realm, to ordain and publish such further ceremonies or rites, as may be most for the advancement of God's glory, the edifying of this church, and the due reverence of Christ's holy mysteries and sacraments. STAT. 2 ELIZ. c. 2. [14.]

"XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all laws, statutes, and ordinances wherein or whereby any other service, administration of sacraments, or common prayer is limited, established, or set forth to be used within this realm, shall from henceforth be utterly void and of none effect. All laws and ordinances for other service, void. Eng. 5 Ann. c. 5.

"XV. And forasmuch as in most places of this realm, there cannot be found English ministers to serve in the churches or places appointed for common prayer, or to minister the sacraments to the people, and that if some good mean were provided, that they might use the prayer, service, and administration of sacraments set out and established by this act, in such language as they might best understand, the due honour of God should be thereby much advanced; and for that also, that the same may not be in their native language, as well for difficulty to get it printed, as that few in the whole realm can read the Irish letters. We do therefore most humbly beseech your majesty that with your highness' favour and royal assent, it may be enacted, ordained, established, and provided by the authority of this present parliament, that in every such church or place, where the common minister or priest hath not the use or knowledge of the English tongue, it shall be lawful for the same common minister or priest to say and use the matins, even song, celebration of the Lord's supper, and administration of each of the sacraments, and all their common and open prayer in the Latin tongue, in such order and form as they be mentioned and set forth in the said book established by this act, and according to the tenor of this act, and none otherwise, nor in other manner: any thing before expressed and contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding." Where the minister cannot speak English, he may use the Latin tongue in the service, in such form as in said book, and according to the tenor of this act, and no otherwise.

IX. STAT. 2 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 3(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1560.

STAT. 2 ELIZ. c. 3. [14.]

"An Act for the Restitution of the First-fruits, and Twentieth Part, and Rents reserved nomine Tenth or Twentieth, and of Parsonages Improprate(2) to the Imperial Crown of this Realm."

"In their most humble wise beseeching your most excellent majesty, your faithful and humble subjects the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons of this your realm in this present parliament assembled, that where in the parliament of your most noble father of famous memory, King Henry the Eighth, holden at Dublin, the first day of May, in the xxviii. year of his prosperous reign, and after prorogued, adjourned, and continued as by the roll of the same parliament more at large appeareth, it was enacted, ordained, and established by the authority of the same parliament, amongst other things, that his highness, his heirs and successors, kings of the realm of England, should have and enjoy from time to time to endure for ever, of every such person and persons, which at any time after the first day of that parliament should be nominated, elected, prefected, presented, collated, or by any other means appointed to have any archbishoprick, bishoprick, archdeaconry, deanery, prebend, parsonage, or vicarage, within the land and dominion of Ireland, of what name, nature, or quality soever they be, or to whose foundation, patronage, or gift soever they belong, the annat, commonly called within this land, the one first-fruits, revenues, and profits for one year, of every such archbishoprick, bishoprick, archdeaconry, deanery, prebend, parsonage, and vicarage aforesaid, whereunto any such person or persons should at any time or times after the said first day of that parliament be nominated, elected, prefected, presented, collated, or by any other means appointed, and that every such person and persons before any actual or real possession, or meddling with the profits of any such archbishoprick, bishoprick, deanery, prebend, parsonage, or vicarage, should satisfy, content, and pay, compound or agree to pay to the king's Eng. 1 Eliz. c. 4. 2 Geo. 1, c. 15. 10 Geo. 1, c. 7.

Recital of 28 Hen. 8, c. 8, for first-fruits.

(1) Partly repealed by Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4. (2) Improprate :—Vide ante 379, n. (2).

ments thereof, and their successors, should from and after the eighth day of in the second and third years of the said late king and queen, and so from forth at all times for ever to be clearly exonerated, acquitted, and discharged the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, her heirs and successors, of the payment and payments of all and every the said first-fruits, in as and large manner and form as they were before the making of the said acts first and original grants thereof in the said eight and twentieth year of the of the said late king your noble father, and as though the same had never and ne made: and further, that neither the said perpetual pension and rent or tenth mentioned and contained in the said act, made in the said of twentieth year of the reign of the said noble King Henry the Eighth, the several rents and tenths, reserved by and upon any letters patents of of noble father sithence the said eighth and twentieth year of his reign, our said dearest brother, and the said King Philip and Queen Mary, or them, for and in the name of a tenth, or any of them, from and after the
 of that parliament should not be paid or payable unto the said late king n, her heirs or successors, but that as well all and singular the archbishops, bishopricks, and other benefices, dignities, deans, and chapters, corporations, and spiritual promotions aforesaid, as all and every possessor, proprietary, and incumbent of the same, and their successors, and every of m and after the said first day of that parliament, should be clearly id, acquitted, and discharged of and for the payment of the said perpetual annual rents, or tenths aforesaid, and of the said tenths reserved upon the patents, and of every of them against them, and the heirs and succehe same late queen for ever; and furthermore, that the said late King id Queen Mary, her heirs and successors, from and after the first day of liament, should not receive, perceive, take, and enjoy any the issues, profits, or commodities of any the rectories, parsonages, benefices, glebe thes, oblations, pensions, portions, and other profits and emoluments eccleor spiritual, which the said late king and queen then had and enjoyed by inheritance, in right of the said late queen, or of any of them, or of the or reversions of them, or of any of them, but in and by the said act the e king and queen clearly gave over, renounced, and relinquished, as well rectories, parsonages, benefices, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, and other profits and emoluments, ecclesiastical and spiritual aforesaid,
 y of them, and the reversion and reversions of them and every of them, their right, title, use, interest, and demand of, in, or to the same, from id the heirs and successors of the same late queen for ever, as also the said pension, annual rent and tenth, and also yearly rents reserved for and in e of a tenth, upon the said several letters patents, and all the right, title, rest, which they or either of them, or the heirs or successors of the said n, had or might have had in or to the same; the same yearly pension, yearly rents, parsonages, emoluments, and profits to be perceived, taken, converted, employed, used, and disposed by the late reverend father in rinald Poole, late cardinal and legate, and such other persons as he should appoint, and such other as been specially limited in the said act, to and in uses, purposes, and intents mentioned in the same act, with divers and savings in the same expressed and contained, as by the same more appeareth: we your said humble and obedient subjects, the lords spiritual oral, and the commons in this your present parliament assembled, calling remembrance the huge, innumerable, and inestimable charges of the royal imperial crown of this realm, and how the same was left unto your at your first entry thereunto, greatly diminished as well by reason of the made in the said third and fourth years of the said King Philip and ary, as otherwise, do conceive at the bottom of our hearts great sorrow nes, as subjects careful for their natural and liege sovereign lady, upon tendeth the surety, worldly joy, and wealth of us all; and being no less wards your majesty's most royal person, and the preservation and main-

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
 c. 3. [1a.]

P. & M. c. 10,
 these payments
 to cease.

Considering the innumerable charges of the crown, and how much the royal estate diminished.

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
C. 3. [14.]

For remedy
thereof.
Enacting part.

Repeal of
3 & 4 P. & M.

Payment of
first-fruits
revived.

The twentieth part, &c. revived and an-nexed to the crown, in as ample manner
as before.

The said statutes 28 Hen.
8, revived.

tenance of the same, and of the estate and succession of your majesty's said crown, than were the first granters of the said first-fruits and twentieth part toward your highness' most noble father and his said royal estate at the time of their said grants to him thereof made, do account of very right and good congruity to less than our most bounden duty to move your highness, and therewith and humbly to beseech the same, that the great disherison and decay, committed and done to the crown and estate royal of this your realm and the succession thereof by reason of the said act made in the said third and fourth years of the reign of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, at this parliament be referred and avoided, and that with your highness' favour and royal estate it may be enacted, ordained, established, and provided by authority of this parliament in manner and form hereafter insuing, that is to say, that the said act made in the third and fourth years of the reign of the said late King Philip and Queen Mary, and all articles, clauses, and sentences, therein contained, shall be from and after the first day of this present parliament utterly and clearly repealed, made void, and of no force ne effect; and all liberties and authorities granted, limited, and appointed, in and by the said act to the said late Cardinal Poole, or made or derived by force, strength, or colour of the same act by or from the said late cardinal to any other person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, to cease and be utterly void and determined; and that the said first-fruits and all payments thereof from and after the said first day of this parliament shall be revived, and have their being and continuance again, and be deemed and adjudged to all intents, constructions, and purposes in the queen's highness' most royal person, her heirs and successors, and united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm and in such like, and the same estate, interest, title, quality, sort, degree, and condition, and in as ample and beneficial manner and form, as the same was or was in the person or possessions of the said late Queen Mary, and before the said eighth day of August, the said act of extinguishment mentioned and expressed in the said act of extinguishment, or any letters patents, or any other matter or thing, had, done, or suffered by the said late king and queen, or any of them, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding: and also that as well as the said perpetual and annual twentieth part and pension granted by the said act, made in the said eight and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, as also so much of the said yearly rents, reserved upon the said several letters patents nomina decima or vicesima partis, and also so many of the said rectories, parsonages, and benefices impropriate, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, portions, and other profits and emoluments ecclesiastical and spiritual aforesaid, and the reversion and reversions thereof, and all rents, emoluments, conditions, and profits incident to the same, as were in the hands and possessions of the said late Queen Mary at and before the said first day of the said parliament holden in the said third and fourth years, shall from the twentieth day of November in the first year of the reign of our said sovereign lady Queen Elizabeth be vested, adjudged, and deemed actually and really in the person and person of her majesty, her heirs and successors, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, and in such like and the same estate, interest, order, degree, quality, sort, and condition, and as fully, wholly, largely, and beneficially, as the same were in the seisin and possession of the said late Queen Mary at and before the said first day of the said parliament in the said third and fourth years: and that as well the said first-fruits and twentieth part, as also the said annual rents reserved nomina decima or vicesima, and the said rectories, parsonages, benefices, glebe lands, tithes, oblations, pensions, portions, and other profits and emoluments ecclesiastical and spiritual aforesaid, and every of them, and the reversion and reversions of them, and of all rents and profits unto the same or any of them incident or belonging, shall be ordered and answerable in and at the queen's highness' court of the exchequer, in every degree, sort, and condition, as they were at and before the said first day of the said parliament in the third and fourth years aforesaid; the said statute made in the said third and fourth years, or any other matter or thing to the contrary thereof notwithstanding; and that all and every the said acts and statutes made in the said eight and twentieth year of the said late King Henry the Eighth, and all articles, clauses, and sentences in them and every of them contained, shall be, remain, and continue in their full and perfect strength and forces, and be observed and put in due execution according to the tenour and purports of the same, and of every of them; and that the queen's majesty, her heirs, and successors, by authority of this present parliament shall from the said first day of this present parliament have, hold, possess, and enjoy for ever the advowsons, gifts, and patronages, of all vicarages belonging or incident to any of the said rectories and parsonages impropriate in the same sort, quality, condition, and degree, to all intents and purports, as the same were in the person and possession of the late Queen Mary at and before the said first day of the said parliament, in the said third and fourth years; any thing or act done by the same late cardinal, or any grant or grants by letters patents made by the said late Queen Mary of the said advowsons and patronages, or any of them, to any ecclesiastical or spiritual person or persons, or any spiritual corporation, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding; saving to all and every person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, and their heirs, executors, successors, and assigns, and every of them, other than such persons as be mentioned and named in any letters patents, made by the said Queen Mary at any time sithence the said first day of the said parliament in the said third and fourth years, or claiming only by or under the authority and strength of the same act or letters patents, or any of them, all such right, title, interest, estate, offices, leases, grants, annuities, pensions, fees, corrodies, rents, and other yearly profits and commodities, as they or any of them ought or should have had, perceived, or enjoyed of, in, or by reason of any the parsonages, rectories, or of any other the premises, in case the said former act now repealed and this present act of repeal had never been had ne made; any thing in the same acts, or any of them contained or sounding to the contrary thereof, in any wise to the contrary notwithstanding.

"II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the said twentieth day of November, and so from thenceforth from time to time, the said pensions, annuities, rents, corrodies, fees, and other yearly payments, shall be paid and payable only by our said sovereign lady, her heirs and successors, at the receipt of the exchequer, or in such other places as the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, shall appoint, to all and every person or persons, that ought to have and enjoy the same, in such sort, order, and form, as the same should or ought to have been paid and payable, in case the said act now repealed had never been had ne made, any thing therein or else in this act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular incumbents, proprietaries, tenants, fermors, lessees, and occupiers of the premises, or any part thereof, their heirs, executors, and assigns, which the said first day of this present parliament were behind or in any arrearages of and with the rents, farms, tenths, twentieth part, or other revenues, profits, or duties, by them or any of them, due and payable for or by reason of the premises, or any of them, shall and may by the authority of this act be severally chargeable, accomptable, and answerable to the queen's majesty, her heirs, and successors, in and at the said court of the exchequer, of and for the same arrearages and duties, as other the accomptants been and shall be in the same court; any thing in the said act now repealed in this act, or any other matter or cause to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"IV. And yet nevertheless, the queen's most excellent majesty at the humble request of her said subjects, of her abundant grace and bountifulness, is pleased and contented, that it be enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular vicarages, not exceeding the yearly value of six pounds, thirteen shillings, four pence, after the rate and value upon the records and books of the rates and values of the first-fruits and twentieth part, now remaining in the exchequer, or that shall hereafter come and remain in the same court, and also all and singular parsonages, not exceeding the yearly value of five pounds after the like rate and

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 3. [1a.]

The queen to have advowson of vicarages belonging to rectories, &c.

Saving the rights of others.

Pensions, &c. how to be paid.

Arrear of rents, &c. chargeable to the queen.

Vicarages not exceeding 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* and parsonages 5*l.* after the books of rates in the exchequer, discharged from first-fruits.

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
C. 3. [1a.]

Incumbent living half a year after last avoidance, so as he hath, or without fraud might have received the profits, and before end of the other half year dying, or lawfully evicted, chargeable only with the fourth part of first-fruits. If he lives one year, chargeable with a moiety.

Living a year and a half, chargeable with three parts.

Living two years, chargeable with the whole.

Leases before 20th December, 1 Eliz. for twenty-one years, or three lives, of the premises, commonly let to farm, then out of lease, or only one year to come, and valuation, and the incumbents thereof, and every of them, their executors, administrators, successors, and sureties, and every of them, from the said twentieth of November shall be free and clearly discharged and acquitted for ever against the said queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, of and from the said first-fruits any thing in these acts of the first-fruits, made in the said eight and twenty year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, or in this act or any other act or acts before recited, to the contrary thereof, in any way withstanding.

"V. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the incumbent of any such promotion spiritual, as is aforesaid, charged or charged to the payment of the said first-fruits, happen to live to the end of one whole year next after the last avoidance of the same promotion spiritual, so as he hath, or without fraud or covin, might lawfully have received and enjoyed, the profits of that half year, and before the end of the other half year then next following shall happen to die, or to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the promotion spiritual by judgment in any action at the common law, without fraud or covin, that then every such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, and sureties, shall be charged and chargeable but only with the fourth part of the first-fruits due, to be paid for such his promotion, and with no more of the first-fruits; any thing in this act contained, or any bond or writing obliging the payment of the said first-fruits, or any other matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding: and if it shall happen any such incumbent to live by the end of one whole year next after the last avoidance of the same promotion spiritual, and after before the end of one half year then next following shall fortune to die, or to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the said promotion spiritual by judgment in any action at the common law without fraud or covin, that then every such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, and sureties, shall be charged and chargeable but only with the moiety and one half of the first-fruits due to be paid for such his promotion spiritual, and with no more of the first-fruits; any thing in this act contained, or any bond or writing obliging the payment of the same first-fruits, or any other matter or cause to the contrary, notwithstanding. And if it shall happen any such incumbent to live to the end of one whole year and half next after the last avoidance of the same promotion spiritual, and after and before the end of six months then next following, shall fortune to die, or to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the said promotion spiritual by judgment in any action at the common law without fraud or covin, that then every such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, and sureties, shall be charged and chargeable but only with three parts of the first-fruits of the same promotion spiritual, in four parts to be divided, and with no more; any thing in this act contained, or any bond or writing obliging the payment of the first-fruits, or any other matter or cause to the contrary, notwithstanding. And if it shall happen any such incumbent to live by the end of two whole years next after the last avoidance of the same promotion spiritual, and not to be lawfully evicted, removed, or put from the said promotion spiritual, as is aforesaid, then every such incumbent, his heirs, executors, administrators, and sureties, shall content and pay to our said sovereign lady the her heirs and successors, the whole first-fruits due to be paid for the same promotion spiritual, according to the statutes aforesaid.

"VI. Provided also, and be it enacted, that all leases made before the twentieth day of December in the first year of your majesty's reign for one year, or three lives at the most, by any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, being lawfully seized of or in any of the said parsonages impropriate or in any other the premises, wont commonly to be set or let to farm, then out of lease, or whereof there was not at the time of the making of the lease or leases any former lease to endure above one year then to come at the time upon which new lease or leases the old yearly rent accustomed wont to be paid for the same the space of twenty years last before the making of such lease, or more yearly rent is reserved and payable during the said term, other lawful grants by them or any of them heretofore made of any office or offices, in old time wont commonly to be granted, shall be as good and effectual in the law, as though this act or any thing therein contained had not been had or made.

years last reserved, and also grants of offices wont to be granted,

"VII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority of this parliament, that no person or persons presented, instituted, or inducted, at any time since the first day of this present parliament, or that shall be presented, instituted, or inducted on this side of the feast of the Annunciation of our blessed lady Saint Mary next coming, to any the said spiritual or ecclesiastical promotions, chargeable to or with the payment of the first-fruits, or one year's profits of such promotion, shall incur any penalty or forfeiture by entering into any of the said spiritual or ecclesiastical promotions, or by taking the profits thereof for the non-payment or not compounding of or for the first-fruits thereof; so that he, or any other for him, shall or do compound for the same first-fruits according to the true meaning of this statute before the said feast of the Annunciation of our blessed lady Saint Mary; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VIII. Provided also, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend to charge any hospital founded and used, and the possessions thereof employed, to and for the relief of poor people, or any school or schools, or the possessions or revenues of them, or any of them, with the payment of any twentieth part or first-fruits; any thing in this act before mentioned to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

X. STAT. 2 ELIZABETHÆ, C. 4. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1560.

"An Act for the Conferring and Consecrating of Archbishops and Bishops within this Realm."

"Forasmuch as the elections of the archbishops and bishops by deans and chapters within the queen's majesty's realm of Ireland at this present time be as well to the long delay as to the great costs and charges of such persons, as the queen's majesty giveth any archbishoprick or bishoprick unto: and whereas the said elections be in very deed no elections, but only by a writ of conge d'estire, have colours, shadows, or pretences of elections, serving nevertheless to no purpose, and seeming also derogatory and prejudicial to the queen's prerogative royal, to whom only appertaineth the collation and gift of all archbishopricks, and bishopricks and suffragan bishops within this her highness' realm: for a due reformation hereof, be it therefore enacted by the queen's highness with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from henceforth no such conge d'estire be granted, nor election of any archbishop or bishop by the dean and chapter made, but that the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, may by their letters patents under the great seal of England or of this realm, or the lord deputy, or other governor or governors of this realm for the time being, having instructions, letters missive, or other warrant signed by the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, for the same purpose, may by letters patents to be made by his or their warrant under the great seal of this realm at all times when any archbishoprick or bishoprick be void, confer the same to any person, whom the queen, her heirs or successors, shall think meet; the which collation so by letters patents made in manner aforesaid, and delivered to the person whom the queen, her heirs or successors, shall confer the same archbishoprick or bishoprick, or to his sufficient executor and attorney, shall stand to all intents, constructions, and purposes, to as much and the same effect as though conge d'estire had been given, the election duly made, and the same confirmed; and that upon that the said person, to whom the said archbishoprick, bishoprick, or suffraganship is so conferred, collated, or given, may be consecrated, and sue his livery or unster le maine, and do other things, as well as all the said ceremonies and elections had been done and made.

"II. And be it likewise enacted by the said authority, that every such colla-

STAT. 2 ELIZ. C. 3. [IR.]

upon which the old rent for twenty shall be valid.

Persons presented, &c. since the first day of this parliament, or on this side the feast of Annunciation next, not to incur penalty or forfeiture, so that they compound before the Annunciation.

Hospitals for the poor, and schools, not to be charged with first-fruits or twentieth part.

STAT. 2 ELIZ. C. 4. [IR.]

Eng. 1 Edw 6, c. 2.

Elections of bishops by deans and chapters, being to the delay, costs, and charges of the persons.

And being only shadows of elections.

And derogatory to king's prerogative.

No such election to be made or conge

d'estire granted, but the queen, or deputy, &c. by warrant may by letters patents collate such persons as the queen, &c. shall think fit.

Upon which the person collated may be consecrated, &c. as if all said ceremonies observed.

XI. STAT. 2 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 7. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1560.

STAT. 2 ELIZ.
c. 7. [Ir.]

"An Act for the Restitution of the late Priory or Hospital of St. John's, Jerusalem, in Ireland, and of all the Manors, Lordships, Commandries, and Hereditaments of the same, to the Imperial Crown of this Realm."

XII. STAT. 5 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 1 (1). A.D. 1562.

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 1.

"An Act for the Assurance of the Queen's Royal Power over all Estates and Subjects within her Dominions."

"For preservation of the queen's most excellent highness, her heirs and successors, and the dignity of the imperial crown of this realm of England, and for the avoiding both of such hurts, perils, dishonours, and inconveniences, as have hitherto befallen, as well to the queen's majesty's noble progenitors, kings of this realm, as for the whole estate thereof, by means of the jurisdiction and power of the see of Rome, unjustly claimed and usurped within this realm and the dominions thereof, and also of the dangers by the fautors of the said usurped power, at this time grown to marvellous outrage and licentious boldness, and now requiring more sharp restraint and correction of laws, than hitherto in the time of the queen's majesty's most mild and merciful reign have been had, used, or established:

"II. Be it therefore enacted, ordained, and established, by the queen our sovereign lady, and the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that if any person and persons, dwelling, inhabiting, or residing within this realm, or within any other the queen's dominions, seignories, or countries, or in the marches of the same, or elsewhere within or under her obedience and power, of what estate, dignity, pre-eminence, order, degree, or condition soever he or they be, after the first day of April, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand five hundred sixty-three, shall by writing, cyphering, printing, preaching, or teaching, deed or act, advisedly and wittingly hold or stand with, to extol, set forth, maintain, or defend the authority, jurisdiction, or power of the Bishop of Rome, or of his see, heretofore claimed, used, or usurped within this realm, or in any dominion or country, being of, within, or under the queen's power or obedience; or by any speech, open deed or act, advisedly and wittingly attribute any such manner of jurisdiction, authority, or pre-eminence to the said see of Rome, or to any bishop of the same see for the time being, within this realm, or in any the queen's dominions or countries: that when every such person or persons so doing or offending, their abettors, procurers, and counsellors, and also their aiders, assistants, and comforters (2), upon purpose, and to the intent to set forth, further, and extol the said usurped power, authority, or jurisdiction of any of the said bishop or bishops of Rome, and every of them, being thereof lawfully indicted or presented within one year next after any such offences by him or them committed, and being lawfully convicted or attainted at any time after, according to the laws of this realm, for every such default and offence, shall incur into the dangers, penalties, pains, and forfeitures ordained and provided by the Statute of Provision and Præmunire, made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second.

The penalty for maintaining the authority of the bishop or see of Rome. 28 Hen. 8, c. 10. 13 Eliz. c. 2.

16 Rich. 2. c. 5.

"III. And it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that as well justices of the peace in their circuits, as justices of the peace within the limits of their commissions and authorities, or two of every such justices of the peace at the least, whereof one to be of the quorum, shall have full power and authority, by virtue of this act, in their quarter or open sessions, to inquire of all offences, contempts and transgressions, perpetrated, committed, or done contrary to the true meaning of the

What justices may inquire of, and certify the offences aforesaid.

1 Vide post, Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 2. Stat. 23 Geo. 2, c. 28. Stat. 1 & 2 Gul. 4, c. 9.

2 These abettors, procurers, and counsellors, and also their aiders, assistants, and comforters — An indictment against any such person must be, knowing the principal to be a maintainer of the jurisdiction of the Pope; and to say, against the form of the statute only, is not sufficient. 3 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 145.

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 1.

The penalty for default of certificate of the said offences.

The justices of the King's Bench may hear and determine the offences
aforesaid.

These shall take the oath set forth anno
1 Eliz. c. 1.

Takers of
ecclesiastical orders, degrees
in the universities, schoolmasters, utter-barristers, readers, ancients,
prothonotaries,
attorneys, phil-
izers, sheriffs,
escheators,
feodaries,
officers at the
common law, officer of any court.

1 Eliz. c. 1.

The bishop
may tender the

premisses, in like manner and form as they may of other offences against the queen's peace; and shall certify every presentment afore them or any of them had or made concerning the same, or any part thereof, before the queen, her heirs and successors, in her or their court, commonly called the King's Bench, within forty days next after any such presentment had or made, if the term be then open; and if not, at the first day of the full term next following the said forty days; upon pain that every of the justices of assize, or justices of the peace, before whom such presentment shall be made, making default of such certificate, contrary to this statute, to lose and forfeit for every such default one hundred pounds to the queen's highness, her heirs and successors.

"IV. And it is enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the justices of the King's Bench, as well upon every such certificate, as by inquiry before themselves, within the limits of their authorities, shall have full power and authority to hear, order, and determine every such offence done or committed contrary to the true meaning of this present act, according to the laws of this realm, in such like manner and form to all intents and purposes, as if the person or persons against whom any presentment shall be had upon this statute, had been present upon any matter or offence expressed in the said statute made in the said second year of the reign of King Richard the Second.

"V. And moreover, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that as well all manner of persons expressed and appointed in and by the act made in the first year of the queen's majesty's reign that now is, intituled, 'An Act restoring to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all Foreign Powers repugnant to the same,' to take the oath expressed and set forth in the same: as all other persons which have taken or shall take orders, commonly called ordines sacros, or ecclesiastical orders, have been or shall be promoted, preferred, or admitted to any degree of learning in any university within this realm or dominions to the same belonging: and all schoolmasters and public and private teachers of children; as also all manner of persons and persons that have taken or hereafter shall take any degree of learning in the common laws of this realm, as well utter-barristers as benchers, readers, ancients in any house or houses of court, and all principal treasurers, and all as be of the grand company of every inn of Chancery, and all attorneys, prothonotaries and philizers, towards the laws of this realm, and all manner of sheriffs, escheators, and feodaries, and all other person and persons which have taken or shall take upon him or them, or have been or shall be admitted to any ministry or office, in, at, or belonging to the common law, or any other law or laws, do, to, or for the execution of them, or any of them, used or allowed, or at any time hereafter to be used or allowed, within this realm or any of the dominions or countries belonging, or which hereafter shall happen to belong, to the crown or dignity of the same; and all other officers or ministers of or towards any court whatsoever, and every of them, shall take and pronounce a corporal oath upon the Evangelists, before he or they shall be admitted, allowed, or suffered to take upon him or them to use, exercise, supply, or occupy any such vocation, office, degree, ministry, room, or service, as is aforesaid, and that in the open court whereunto he doth or shall serve or belong: and if he or they do not or shall not serve or belong to any ordinary or open court, then he or they shall take and pronounce the oath aforesaid, in an open place before a convenient assembly, to witness the same, and before such person or persons as have or shall have authority by common use or otherwise, to admit or call any such person or persons, as is aforesaid, to any such vocation, office, ministry, room, or service, or else before such person or persons, as by the queen's highness, her heirs or successors, by commission under the great seal of England, shall be named or assigned, to accept and take the same, according to the tenour, effect, and form of the same oath verbatim, which is, and as it is already set forth to be taken, in the aforesaid act made in the first year of the queen's majesty's reign.

"VI. And also be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that every archbishop and bishop within this realm, and dominions of the same, shall

And be it also further enacted by the authority of this present parliament that if any person or persons appointed or compellable by this act, or by the statute made in the said first year, to take the said oath; or if any person or persons to whom the said oath by any such commission or commissions shall be appointed to be tendered, as is aforesaid, do or shall, at the time of the said oath tendered, refuse to take or pronounce the said oath in manner and form therein contained, that then the party so refusing, and being thereof lawfully indicted or convicted within one year next after any such refusal, and convicted or attainted hereafter, according to the laws of this realm, shall suffer and incur the penalties, pains, and forfeitures, ordained and provided by the Statute of Treason and Premunire aforesaid, made in the sixteenth year of the reign of Richard the Second.

And furthermore be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person and persons, having authority to tender the oath aforesaid, shall within forty days next after such refusal or refusals of the said oath, if the term be open, and if not, then at the first day of the full term next following the said refusal, make true certificate under his or their seal or seals of the names, and degrees of the person or persons so refusing the same oath, before the judge or judges, or his or their heirs or successors, in her or their court, commonly called the King's Bench, upon pain that every of the said persons having such authority to tender the said oath, making default of such certificate, shall for every such default forfeit and pay unto the queen's highness, her heirs or successors; and that the sheriff of the county where the said court, commonly called the King's Bench, at the time be holden, shall or may by virtue of this act impanel a jury of the county, to inquire of and upon every such refusal and refusals; which jury shall or may upon every such certificate, and other evidence to them in that behalf shewed, be given, by virtue of this act, proceed to indict the person and persons so refusing in such sort and degree, to all intents and purposes, as the same jury shall think fit of any offence or offences against the queen's majesty's peace, perpetrated, committed, or done within the same county, of and for which the same jury is so sworn.

And for stronger defence and maintenance of this act, it is further enacted, and established by the authority aforesaid, that if any such person or persons, as is aforesaid, of the first part or branch of this statute, that by writing, cyphering, printing, preaching, or teaching, deed or act, shall or may wilfully hold or stand with, to extol, set forth, maintain, or defend

The penalty for the first refusal of the oath.

16 Rich. 2.
c. 5.

Certificate of refusal into the King's Bench. Savil, 47.

Dyer, 234.

Indictment of the offender.

It shall be treason the second time to maintain the authority of the bishop or

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 1.

No corruption of blood or forfeiture of dower for any attainder by this act.

How the oath expressed anno
1 Eliz. c. 1,
shall be expounded.

In what courts
and places this act shall be published.

"XI. And also, that if any the persons above named and appointed by this act to take the oath aforesaid, do after the space of three months next after the first tender thereof, the second time refuse to take and pronounce, or do not take and pronounce the same, in form aforesaid to be tendered, that then every such offender or offenders, for the same second offence and offences, shall forfeit, lose, and suffer such like and the same pains, forfeitures, judgment and execution, as is used in cases of high treason.

"XII. Provided always, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, nor any attainder to be had by force and virtue of this act, shall not extend to make any corruption of blood, the disheriting of any heir, forfeiture of dower, nor to the prejudice of the right or title of any person or persons, other than the right or title of the offender or offenders, during his, her, or their natural lives only.

"XIII. And that it shall and may be lawful to every person and persons, to whom the right or interest of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, after the death of any such offender or offenders, should or might have appertained, if no such attainder had been, to enter into the same, without any ouster le main to be sued, in such sort as he or they might have done, if this act had never been had nor made.

"XIV. Provided also, that the oath expressed in the said act made in the said first year, shall be taken and expounded in such form as is set forth in an admonition (1) annexed to the queen's majesty's injunctions, published in the first year of her majesty's reign; that is to say, to confess and acknowledge in her majesty, her heirs and successors, none other authority than that was challenged and long used by the noble King Henry the Eighth and King Edward the Sixth (2); and the said admonition more plainly may appear.

"XV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act shall be openly read, published, and declared at every quarter-sessions by the clerk of the peace, and at every leet and law-day by the steward of the court, and once in every term in the open hall of every house and houses of court and chancery, &c.

(1) Admonition:—Which admonition was in the following words:

"The queen's majesty being informed, that in certain places of the realm, sundry of her native subjects being called to ecclesiastical ministry of the church, be, by sinister persuasion and perverse construction, induced to find some scruple in the form of an oath, which by an act of the last parliament is prescribed to be required of divers persons, for the recognition of their allegiance to her majesty; which certainly never was meant, nor by any equity of words or good sense can be thereof gathered; would, that all her loving subjects should understand, that nothing was, is, or shall be meant or intended by the same oath to have any other duty, allegiance, or bond required by the same oath, than was acknowledged to be due to the most noble kings of famous memory, King Henry the Eighth, her majesty's father, or King Edward the Sixth, her majesty's brother.

"And further, her majesty forbiddeth all manner her subjects to give ear or credit to such perverse and malicious persons, which most sinisterly and maliciously labour to notify to her loving subjects, how by words of the said oath it may be collected, that the kings or queens of this realm, possessors of the crown, may challenge authority and power of ministry of divine service in the church, wherein her said subjects be much abused by such evil disposed persons. For certainly her majesty neither doth, nor ever will challenge any authority, than that was challenged and lately used by the said noble kings of famous memory, King Henry the Eighth, and King Edward the Sixth, what is, and was of ancient time, due to the imperial crown of this realm, that is, under that to have the sovereignty and rule over all manner of persons born within these her realms, dominions, and countries, of what estate, rank, ecclesiastical or temporal, soever they be, as no other foreign power shall or ought to have any superiority over them. And if any person, that hath conceived any other sense of the form of the said oath, shall except the same oath with this interpretation, sense, or meaning, her majesty is well pleased to accept every such in that behalf as her good and obedient subjects, and shall acquit them of all manner of penalties contained in the said act, against such as shall peremptorily or obstinately take the same oath."

(2) King Edward the Sixth:—In whose reign the Reformatio Legum thus expresses the notion then entertained of the royal supremacy: "Rex tam in archiepiscopos, episcopos, clericos, et alios ministros, quam in laicos infra sua regna et domina, plenam jurisdictionem, tam civilem quam ecclesiasticam habet, et exercere potest. nec omnis jurisdictio et ecclesiastica et secularis ab eo tanquam ex uno et eodem fonte derivantur."

the times, and by the persons thereunto to be limited and appointed by the lord chancellor or keeper of the great seal for the time being.

"XVI. And be it further enacted, that every person which hereafter shall be elected or appointed a knight, citizen, or burgess, or baron for any of the five parts, for any parliament or parliaments hereafter to be holden, shall from henceforth, before he shall enter into the parliament-house, or have any voice there, openly receive and pronounce the said oath before the lord steward for the time being, or his deputy or deputies for that time to be appointed: and that he which shall enter into the parliament-house without taking the said oath, shall be deemed no knight, citizen, burgess, nor baron for that parliament, nor shall have any voice, but shall be to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as if he had never been returned nor elected knight, citizen, burgess, or baron for that parliament, and shall suffer such pains and penalties, as if he had presumed to sit in the same without election, return, or authority.

"XVII. Provided alway, that inasmuch as the queen's majesty is otherwise sufficiently assured of the faith and loyalty of the temporal lords of her high court of parliament; therefore this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall not extend to compel any temporal person, of or above the degree of a baron of this realm, to take or pronounce the oath abovesaid, nor to incur any penalty limited by this act, for not taking or refusing the same; anything in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XVIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that charitable giving of reasonable alms (1) to any of the offender or offenders above specified, without fraud or covin, shall not be taken or interpreted to be any such abatement, procuring, counselling, aiding, assisting, or comforting, as thereby the giver of such alms shall incur any pain, penalty, or forfeiture appointed in this act.

"XIX. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that if any peer of this realm shall hereafter offend contrary to this act or any branch or article thereof, that in that and all such case and cases they shall be tried by their peers, in such manner and form as in other cases of treasons they have used to be tried, and by none other means.

"XX. Provided also further, and be it enacted, that no person shall be compelled by virtue of this act to take the oath above-mentioned, at or upon the second time of offering the same, according to the form appointed by this statute, except the same person hath been, is, or shall be an ecclesiastical person, that had, hath, or shall have in the time of one of the reigns of the queen's majesty's most noble father, brother, or sister, or in the time of the reign of the queen's majesty, her heirs or successors, charge, cure, or office in the church; or such person or persons as had, hath, or hereafter shall have, any office or ministry in any ecclesiastical court of this realm, under any archbishop or bishop, in any the times or reigns aforesaid; or such person or persons as shall wilfully refuse to observe the orders and rites for divine service, that be authorized to be used and observed in the Church of England, after that he or they shall be publicly by the ordinary, or some of his officers for ecclesiastical causes, admonished to keep and observe the same; or such as shall openly and advisedly deprave by words, writings, or any other open fact, any of the rites and ceremonies at any time used and authorized to be used in the Church of England; or that shall say or hear the private mass prohibited by the laws of this realm; and that all such persons shall be compellable to take the oath upon the second tender or offer of the same, and incur the penalties for not taking of the said oath, and none other.

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 1.

Every knight, citizen, and burgess of the parliament, shall take the said oath before the lord steward or his deputy.

None of or above the degree of a baron shall be compelled to take the said oath.

Charitable giving of alms to offenders shall be no cause of forfeiture.

Peers offending shall be tried by their peers.

Who only shall be compelled to take the oath upon the second tender.

(1) Charitable giving of reasonable alms:—This special clause of giving alms not to make an aider or comforter, if the alms be reasonable and without covin, though the offender be not imprisoned nor under bail, is in accordance with the principles of the common law; and it seems even by the common law, if a physician or surgeon minister help to an offender sick or wounded, though he know him to be an offender even in treason, this makes him not a traitor, for it is done upon the account of common humanity; but it will be misprision of treason if he know it, and do not discover him. 3 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 145.

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 1.

It is not lawful to slay one attainted in a premunire.
25 Edw. 3.
St. V. c. 22.

Punishments
inflicted by former laws.

Upon what proof only any person may be indicted.

"XXI. And forasmuch as it is doubtful, whether by the laws of this realm there be any punishment for such as kill or slay any person or persons attainted in or upon a premunire: be it therefore enacted by authority aforesaid, that it shall not be lawful to any person or persons, to slay or kill any person or persons in any manner attainted, or hereafter to be attainted, of, in, or upon any premunire, by pretence, reason, or authority of any judgment given, or hereafter to be given, as or upon the same, or by pretence, reason, or force of any word or words, thing or things contained or specified in any Statute, or Law of Provision and Premunire or in any of them; any law, statute, or opinion, or exposition of any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XXII. Saving always the due execution of all and every person and persons attainted, or to be attainted, for any offence whereupon judgment of death now is or ought to be, or hereafter may lawfully be given, by reason of this statute or otherwise; and saving always all and every such pains of death, or other hurt or punishment, as heretofore might, without danger of law, be done upon any person or persons that shall send or bring into this realm, or any other the queen's dominions, or within the same, shall execute any summons, sentence, excommunication, or other process against any person or persons, from the Bishop of Rome for the time being, or by or from the see of Rome, or the authority or jurisdiction of the same see.

"XXIII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person or persons shall hereafter be indicted for assisting, aiding, maintaining, comforting, or abetting of any person or persons for any the said offences, in extolling, setting forth, or defending of the usurped power and authority of the Bishop of Rome, unless he or they be thereof lawfully accused by such good and sufficient testimony or proof, as by the jury by whom he shall so be indicted, shall be thought good, lawful, and sufficient, to prove him or them guilty of the said offences."

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 5.

XIII. STAT. 5 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 5. A.D. 1562.

"An Act touching Politick Constitutions for the Maintenance of the Navy."

[Ss. XIV.—XXIII., XXXVI.—XXXIX., LI., respecting abstinence from flesh meat, repealed.]

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 9.

XIV. STAT. 5 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 9. A.D. 1562.

"An Act for Punishment of such as shall procure or commit any wilful Perjury."

[S. XI., rights of the ecclesiastical court to punish for perjury, reserved.]

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 23.

XV. STAT. 5 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 23(1). A.D. 1562.

"An Act for the due Execution of the Writ De Excommunicato Capiendo."

The order of awarding and returning the writ of excom-municato capi-endo: what is to be done upon the party's appearance,
and what if he cannot be found, and the cause of awarding this writ.
4 Inst. 219.
Cro. El. 144.
1 Bulstr. 122.

"Forasmuch as divers persons offending in many great crimes and offences appertaining merely to the jurisdiction and determination of the ecclesiastical courts and judges of this realm are many times unpunished for lack and want of the good and due execution of the writ de excommunicato capiendo, directed to the sheriff of any county, for the taking and apprehending of such offenders: the great abuse whereof, as it should seem, hath grown for that the said writ is not returnable into any court that might have the judgment of the well-executing and serving of the said writ according to the contents thereof; but hitherto have been left only to the discretion of the sheriffs and their deputies, by whose negligences and defaults for the most part the said writ is not executed upon the offenders as it ought to be: by reason whereof such offenders be greatly encouraged to continue their sinful and criminous life, much to the displeasure of Almighty God, and to the great contempt of the ecclesiastical laws of this realm

(1) Vide Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 127. Stat. Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 93. Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Gul. 4, c. 70, ss. 13 & 14. 4, c. 41, s. 28. Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 27.

Therefore, for the redress thereof, be it enacted by the queen's most high Majesty, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that after the first day of May next coming, every writ of excommunicato capiendo shall be granted and awarded out of the high court of Chancery, to any person or persons within the realm of England, shall be made in the term, and returnable before the queen's highness, her heirs and successors in that court commonly called the King's Bench (1), in the term next after the same writ; and that the same writ shall be made to contain at the days between the teste and the return thereof: and after the same writ so made and sealed, that then the said writ shall be forthwith brought to the court (2) of King's Bench, and there, in the presence of the justices, read and delivered of record to the sheriff or other officer to whom the execution thereof shall appertain, or to his or their deputy or deputies: and if it shall or may appear to the justices of the same court for the time being that the same writ so delivered of record be not duly returned before the day of the return thereof, or that any other default or negligence hath been committed in the not well serving and executing of the said writ; that the justices of the said court shall and may, by authority of this act, assess a fine or amercement upon the said sheriff or other officer in whom such default shall be committed, to the discretion of the said justices shall be thought meet and convenient: and the amercement so assessed shall be estreated into the court of exchequer, unless amercements have been used.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the sheriff or other officer to whom such writ of excommunicato capiendo, or other process by writ or writs shall be directed, shall not in any wise be compelled to bring the person or persons as shall be named in the said writ or process, into the court of the King's Bench at the day of the return thereof; but shall be at liberty to return the same writ and process thither, with declaration briefly how and where he hath served and executed the same, to the intent that there the justices may then further therein proceed, according to the tenor of this present act.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if the said sheriff or other officer to whom the execution of the writ so appertain, do or shall return that the party or parties named in the writ cannot be found within his bailiwick; that then the said justices of the said court for the time being, upon every such return, shall award one writ against the said person or persons named in the said writ of excommunicato capiendo, returnable in the same court in the term-time, two months after the teste thereof, with a proclamation to be contained within the writ, that the sheriff or other officer to whom the said writ shall be directed, shall be at liberty to return the same writ and process thither, with declaration briefly how and where he hath served and executed the same, to the intent that there the justices may then further therein proceed, according to the tenor of this present act.

Bench.—Before this statute, a writ of excommunicato capiendo was returnable into Chancery; and it was quashed if undue; and judgment of that, by this statute, is referred to the court of King's Bench. See David's (the Bishop of) case, 1056.

Into the said court.—It was held (Cro. Jac. 567,) that this writ is to be brought into the court of King's Bench, and the several clauses contained in this clause of the writ, are to be precisely pursued, and should be brought and delivered into the court, and for default thereof, the writ would be discharged. Par. Car. 583. Rex v. Colgate,

(3) Capias.—The penalties of this act were only inflicted upon those who were excommunicated for some of the causes specified in sect. 13; the capias, accordingly, could not be with penalty, in any other case; (Brown's case, Latch, 174; Anon. Sid. 181;) or, if it issued so by mistake, a supersedeas would have been granted by the court upon motion; and, if the party were taken, the court would, upon pleading, (after the habeas corpus was granted and returned,) have discharged him from the penalties, though not from the imprisonment. In consideration of which pleading, and the trouble and charge that attended it, it was said, that he might have an attachment against the plaintiff. Sterling's case, 1 Roll. 174.

STAT. 5 ELIZ. c. 23.

Awarding and returning of excommunicato capiendo.

1 Salk. 293.

Cro. Jac. 567.

Cro. Car. 583.

1 Sid. 165, 285.

The sheriff shall be amerced for not returning of the writ.

What shall be done with the body of the excommunicate.

If the sheriff return non est inventus.

First capias.

Cro. Jac. 566.

Latch, 174.

1 Sid. 181.

1 Roll. 174.

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 23.

Ten pounds
forfeiture for not appearing upon the first capias.

Second capias.

Twenty pounds
forfeiture upon
the second
capias.

Third capias.

Twenty pounds
forfeit upon the third
capias.
Awarding of capias infinitely, and xx.
li. forfeit upon every of them.

writ shall, within six days next after such proclamation, yield his or their body or bodies to the gaol or prison of the said sheriff or other such officer, there to remain as a prisoner, according to the tenour and effect of the first writ of communicato capiendo, upon pain of forfeiture of ten pounds: and thereupon the said sheriff or other officer to whom such writ of capias shall be directed, shall make return of the same writ of capias into the said court of the King's Bench, and that he hath done in the execution thereof, and whether the party named in the said writ have yielded his body to prison or not.

"V. And if upon the return of the said sheriff it shall appear that the party or parties named in the same writ of capias, or any of them, have not yielded the bodies to the gaol and prison of the said sheriff or other officer according to the effect of the same proclamation; that then every such person that so shall make default, shall for every such default forfeit to the queen's highness, her heirs and successors, ten pounds; which shall likewise be estreated by the said justices into the said court of Exchequer, in such manner and form as fines and assessments there taxed and assessed are used to be.

"VI. And thereupon the said justices of the King's Bench shall also award forth one other writ of capias, against the person or persons that so shall be returned to have made default, with such like proclamation as was contained in the first capias, and a pain of twenty pounds, to be mentioned in the said second writ and proclamation: and the sheriff or other officer to whom the said writ of capias shall be so directed, shall serve and execute the said second writ in such like manner and form as before is expressed for the serving and executing of the said first writ of capias. And if the sheriff or other officer shall return upon the said second capias, that he hath made the proclamation according to the tenour and effect of the same writ, and that the party hath not yielded his body to prison according to the tenour of the said proclamation, that then the said party that so shall make default, shall for such his contempt and default forfeit to the queen's highness, her heirs and successors, the sum of twenty pounds; which said sum of twenty pounds the said justices of the King's Bench for the time being shall likewise cause to be estreated into the said court of Exchequer, in manner and form aforesaid.

"VII. And then the said justices shall likewise award forth one other writ of capias against the said party, with such like proclamation and pain of forfeiture, as was contained in the said second writ of capias; and the sheriff or other officer to whom the said third writ of capias shall so be directed, shall serve and execute the said third writ of capias in such like manner and form as before in this act is expressed and declared, for the serving and executing of the said third and second writs of capias. And if the sheriff or other officer to whom the execution of the said third writ shall appertain, do make return of the said third writ of capias, that the party upon such proclamation hath not yielded his body to prison according to the tenour thereof; that then every such party for every such contempt and default shall likewise forfeit to the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, other xx. li., which sum of xx. li. shall likewise be estreated into the said court of the Exchequer in manner and form aforesaid: and thereupon the said justices of the King's Bench shall likewise award forth one writ of capias against the said party, with like proclamation and like pain of forfeiture of xx. li. And that also the said justices shall have authority by this act, infinitely to award new process of capias, with such like proclamation and pain of forfeiture of xx. li. as before limited, against the said party that so shall make default in yielding of his body to the prison of the sheriff, until such time as by return of some of the said writs before the said justices, it shall and may appear, that the said party hath yielded himself to the custody of the said sheriff or other officer, according to the tenour of the said proclamation; and that the party upon every default and contempt by him made against the proclamation of any of the said writs so infinitely to be awarded against him, shall incur like pain and forfeiture of xx. li., which shall likewise be estreated in manner and form aforesaid.

* VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that when any person or persons shall yield his or their body or bodies to the hands of the sheriff or other officer, upon any of the said writs of capias, that then the same party or parties that shall so yield themselves, shall remain in the prison and custody of the said sheriff (1) or other officer, without bail (2), baston, or mainprize, in such like

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 23.

The offender yielding his body shall be committed to prison.

(1) Shall remain in the . . . custody of the said sheriff:—In Slipper v. Mason, (2 A. Rayn. 788,) the plaintiff obtained sentence against the defendant for 210*l.* for non-payment of tithes and costs. The defendant for non-payment was excommunicated and arrested upon an excommunicato capiendo, and the sheriff let him escape. The plaintiff brought a special action against the sheriff, and had a verdict against him for the 10*l.* It was moved in arrest of judgment, that the action would not lie. But it was adjudged, that the action could be maintained; and the court relied upon the case, where it was held, that an action could be sustained against the sheriff for suffering a man to escape, who had been arrested upon a capias ultionatum after outlawry upon certiorari process.

(2) Without bail:—Under Stat. 3 Edw. 1, c. 15, (ante 7,) the sheriff derived no authority to replevy persons excommunicated, taken at the request of the bishop, either by the common writ, de homine replegiando, or without writ, that is, ex officio; but in Hall v. King, (1 Bulst. 122,) all the judges agreed, that a person taken by force of a capias upon this statute was bailable by the court of King's Bench; except Williams, who held, that the statute dispenneth only with the penalty of 10*l.*

If due caution be offered by the party excommunicated, and admitted by the bishop, then the bishop may command the sheriff to deliver him out of prison. Which caution, in the civil law, is of three sorts: 1. Fide juratoria, as where a man bindeth himself with sureties to perform somewhat. 2. Pignoratitia, or realis cautio; as when a man exchange goods, or mortgageth lands, for the performance. 3. Juratoria: when the party which is to perform any thing, taketh a corporal oath to do it. (For the doctrine of the civil law on the subject of putting in cautions, vide Justinian's Inst. l. 4, tit. 11, with the Commentaries of Vinnius and Huber.)

Respecting such cautions Bishop Gibson observes, (Codex, 1063,) that the last of them, viz. an oath "de parendo juri et stando mandatis ecclesie, in forma juris," is that, which is often accepted by ordinaries; and as to the second, it is expressly mentioned in the Ancient Register, (ff. 65(a), 67(b),) and hath always been acknowledged in the temporal courts to be good in law. But as to the first, under which is comprehended the taking of a bond for performance, it was declared, in Hall v. King, (1 Bulst. 122,) to be against law; but as that was only a judgment given by the way, it was urged, when the same matter came under consideration again, in Exon (Bishop of) v. Star, (Raym. 417, 226; 2 Lev. 36,) that by the tenor of the writ the choice of the caution is left to the discretion of the ordinary, and that caution by obligation, is as much a caution as either of the other two, and more for the ease of the party than a pledge, and that this was the constant use and practice of the ecclesiastical courts. Upon this, Hale doubted, whether it was good or not; but Wild held it was good, saying, such bonds had been frequent, and that they had been allowed in the court of Common Pleas. But the cause being moved again, the court would not proceed in it, because the excommunication and offence were taken off by the king's general pardon.

If good and sufficient caution be offered, and not admitted, then a writ to the bishop is provided in the Register, to command him, (after having taken sufficient caution,) to order the person to be delivered. Gibson's Codex, 1063. And if the bishop do not deliver him upon such writ, then the party may have another writ to the sheriff, to command him to apply personally to the bishop, and admonish him to deliver the party, after having taken sufficient caution; and if the bishop will not do the same in presence of the sheriff, then the sheriff to deliver him. Ibid. Reg. 66(a), et seq. Fitz. N. B. 62 (b), 63. 3 Black. Com. by Chitty, 101.

And the reason thereof is, that by the excommunication the party is disabled to sue any action, or to have any remedy for any wrong done unto him, so long as he shall remain excommunicate.

In cases of this sort, the party grieved may have his action upon the case, (Beaurain v. Scott (Str W.), 3 Camp. 388,) against the bishop; in like manner, as he may, when the bishop doth excommunicate him for a matter which belongeth not to ecclesiastical cognizance. Also the bishop, in those cases, may be indicted at the suit of the king. 2 Inst. 623.

In like manner, if one appear in the spiritual court, and be excommunicated for refusing to answer, where he is not bound by the law to answer, (as, for instance, when he cannot obtain a copy of the libel,) prohibition is granted, with a clause to absolve and deliver the party. Gibson's Codex, 1063. Scurr v. Burrell (Dr.), Sid. 232. 12 Co. Prohibition, 76. 10 Vin. Abr. Excommunication, 527 (G).

"But although, in case the party excommunicated rests in the sentence given against him, there is no legal means for his deliverance, but submission and caution as is aforesaid; yet if he appeal from such sentence to a superior ecclesiastical judge, this puts the party in the same state that he was in before the sentence given;—which the law orders, by reason of the present doubtfulness, whether it was valid or invalid. Add to this, that by appeal, the judge à quo doth cease to be his judge in that cause; and if the party was imprisoned, and were to continue so, he would thereby be hindered from the prosecution of his appeal, which may happen to prove just. Wherefore, upon allegation

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 23.

1 Bulstr. 122.

The forfeiture
of a sheriff for a false return.

The bishop's authority to receive submission, and deliver the excommunicate.
Regist. 66, 67.
2 Lev. 26, 36.
Raym. 225.

manner and form, to all intents and purposes, as he or they should or ought to have done, if he or they had been apprehended and taken upon the said writ of excommunicato capiendo.

"IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any sheriff or other officer by whom the said writ of capias or any of them shall be returned, as is aforesaid, do make an untrue return upon any of the said writs, that the party named in the said writ hath not yielded his body upon the said proclamations, or any of them, where indeed the party did yield himself according to the effect of the same, that then every such sheriff or other officer, for every such false and untrue return shall forfeit to the party grieved and damaged by the said return, the sum of forty pounds; for the which sum of forty pounds the said party grieved shall have his recovery and due remedy by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the queen's courts of record; in which action, bill, plaint, or information, no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be admitted or allowed for the party defendant:

"X. Saving and reserving to all archbishops and bishops, and all others having authority to certify any person excommunicated, like authority to accept and receive the submission and satisfaction of the said person so excommunicated, in manner and form heretofore used, and him to absolve and release (1), and the same to signify, as heretofore hath been accustomed, to the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, into the high court of chancery; and thereupon to have such aid for the deliverance of the said person, so absolved and released from the sheriff.

in behalf of the party against whom the writ is gone out, that he hath appealed, and upon proof made thereof by an authentic instrument, a writ of supernedeas, (without any appearance of a scire facias proceeding,) is provided for him in the Register." Gibson's Codex, 1063. Powell v. Harman, Moore (Sir T.), 849.

"But the usual way, (especially in cases where it is doubtful whether objections may not lie against his being delivered,) is, the issuing a scire facias to warn the bishop and the party prosecuting, to show cause why the sheriff should not surcease from attaching the excommunicate, or why he should not deliver him, if he be in prison. And if the bishop in cases of office, and the prosecutor in cases of instance, do not appear in Chancery, the party is delivered; but if they appear, and not the party, then a re-attachment goes forth to imprison him." 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 259. Reg. 68, 69.

In Rex v. St. David's (Bishop of), (1 Salk. 294,) the defendant was taken upon a writ of excommunicato capiendo, and being in custody in Newgate, prayed a habeas corpus, and was brought into court thereupon; and it appeared by the return, that the writ of excommunicato capiendo was not yet returnable; the court held, "that one taken on a writ of excommunicato capiendo cannot come into this court but by habeas corpus; and if he be brought in before the writ is returnable, he shall not be allowed to plead, or move, to quash the writ."

But in Rex v. Theed, (Str. 43; 10 Mod. 350,) "after the writ had been opened, and entered of record, it was delivered out, in order to take up the defendant; and before the return, the defendant moved, and had it superseded; for the court said, they could judge of it by the entry, and since it appeared the defendant could not be legally detained upon it if he was taken; it was proper to supersede it, to prevent the writ being restrained of his liberty, contrary to law; that the intent of the statute, which directs the writ to be delivered in open court, was to apprise the court of the nature of the cause; that this was now to be considered as a writ improvidè emanavit; and they were not to wait till the return, till all the inconveniences which they should have prevented by not issuing the writ had happened." The writ of excommunicato capiendo, in this case, was in a writ pro reformatione morum generally, and held to be within the authority of Rex v. Gapp, (111. 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 259,) which was a writ negotio pro reformatione et correctione morum. And, in Rex v. Munnery, (111. 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 259,) a writ of excommunicato capiendo was quashed, being only for not appearing to answer certis articulis animæ suæ salutis ac rerumque correctionem concernentibus. In these and similar cases, to use the expression of Mr. Justice Blackstone, (3 Black. Com. by Chitty, 103,) the courts of Westminster Hall exercise "a parental authority, correcting the excesses of inferior courts, and keeping them within their legal bounds; but on the other hand, they afford them a powerful assistance in repressing the insolence of obstinate delinquents, and reserving their jurisdiction from that contempt which they want of sufficient compulsive powers, could otherwise be sure to attend it."

(1) Absolve and release.—If a person be excommunicated by divers excommunications, for divers offences, and produce letters of absolution from one sentence, he shall not be discharged until he be absolved from them all. 1 Inst. 134.

If after a person is excommunicated, there comes a general act of pardon, which pardons all contempts, it seems that the sentence is taken away, without any formal absolution. 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 260.

custody or prison, as heretofore they or any of them had, or of right ought or might have had; any thing in this present statute specified or contained to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"XI. Provided always, that in Wales, the counties palatines of Lancaster, Chester, Durham, and Ely, and in the Cinque Ports, being jurisdictions and places exempt, where the queen's majesty's writ doth not run, and process of capias from hence not returnable into the said court of the King's Bench, after any significavit being of record in the said court of Chancery, the tenour of such significavit by mittimus shall be sent to such of the head officers of the said county of Wales, counties palatines, and places exempt, within whose offices, charge, or jurisdiction the offenders shall be resident; that is to say, to the chancellor or chamberlain for the said county palatine of Lancaster and Chester, and for the Cinque Ports to the lord warden of the same, and for Wales and Ely, and the county palatine of Durham, to the chief justices or justices there: and thereupon every of the said justices and officers to whom such tenour of significavit with mittimus shall be directed and delivered, shall by virtue of this statute have power and authority to make like process to the inferior officer and officers to whom the execution of process there doth appertain, returnable before the justices there at their next sessions or courts, two months at the least after the date of every such process; so always as in every degree they shall proceed in their sessions and courts against the offenders, as the justices of the said court of King's Bench are limited by the tenour of this act in term times to do and execute.

"XII. Provided also, and be it enacted, that any person, at the time of any process of capias aforementioned awarded, being in prison, or out of this realm in the parts beyond the sea, or within age, or of non sane memoria, or woman covert, shall not incur any of the pains or forfeitures aforementioned, which shall grow by any return or default happening during such time of nonage, imprisonment, being beyond the sea, or non sane memoria; and that by virtue of this statute the party arrested may plead every such cause or matter in bar of and upon the distress, or other process that shall be made for levying of any of the said pains or forfeitures.

"XIII. And that if the offender against whom any such writ of excommunicato capiendo shall be awarded, shall not in the same writ of excommunicato capiendo have a sufficient and lawful addition (1), according to the form of the statute of prince of Henry the Fifth, in cases of certain suits whereupon process of exigent are to be awarded: or if in the significavit (2) it be not contained (3), that the excom-

STAT. 3 ELIZ.
c. 23.

Process out of liberties where the queen's writ runneth not.

Certain persons discharged
of the penalty
aforesaid.
1 Shower, 16.

Addition
according to the Stat.
1 Hen. 5. c. 5.
1 Salk. 294.
3 Mod. 42, 89.

1. Shall not in the same writ . . . have a sufficient and lawful addition:—In Alpine v. Sangway, (1 Salk. 294,) the defendant was excommunicated for a certain cause of justification of marriage, and taken upon a capias, and brought up by habeas corpus; and exception was taken to the writ, that therein no addition was given to the defendant, but the court held, that for any of the causes mentioned in the statute, the defendant's addition ought to be in the writ, but that in other cases no addition was necessary.

2. In the significavit:—The judgment of the court which was before in Chancery, is, as previously observed, now in the court of the King's Bench, in consequence of the writ's being returnable to that court; by reason of which, the court of Chancery cannot judge what the cause of excommunication is.

3. If in the significavit it be not contained, &c.—In Rex v. Fowler, (1 Ld. Raym. 619,) Holt, (Chief Justice,) observed, "At common law the cause had no need to be shown in the writ of excommunicato capiendo, but it was sufficient to say, that the party was excommunicate pro contumacia manifesta: but in the significavit it ought to be shown. And now since Stat.

5 Eliz. c. 23, the cause ought to be shown in the writ."

In Rex v. Fowler, (1 Salk. 293,) "the return to a writ of habeas corpus was, that Fowler was taken and in custody by a writ of excommunicato capiendo, and the excommunication was in the writ recited to be pro quibusdam causis subtractionis decimarum, sive aliorum jurium ecclesiasticorum; and because this return was uncertain, the court was moved, that he might be discharged; and the question was, whether this return was uncertain, or whether that uncertainty would vitiate the writ;" and the court resolved: 1. "That the return was uncertain, for that the alia jura might be such matters as were out of their jurisdiction, and they ought to show the matter was within their jurisdiction, for of that the king's courts are to be judges, and not they themselves. 2. The cause of excommunication must be set forth in the writ. At common law, the writ de excommunicato capiendo was always general, pro contumacia, not containing a special cause. And the writ was returnable in Chancery, and founded on a significavit or a certificate of the bishop, which certificate set forth the cause before, and the party could not be discharged but by superseas in Chan-

STAT. 5 ELIZ. c. 23. Latch, 174, 204. Cro. Car. 197, 199. 1 Roll. 175. 1 Jones, 226. Latch, 204. 2 Jones, 89. 1 Show. 17. Causes of excommunication. Addition with a nuper.

munication doth proceed upon some cause or contempt of some original matter of heresy, or refusing to have his or their child baptized, or to receive the holy communion as it is now commonly used to be received in the church of England, or to come to divine service now commonly used in the said church of England, or error in matters of religion or doctrine now received and allowed in the said church of England, incontinency, usury, simony, perjury in the ecclesiastical court, or idolatry: that then all and every pains and forfeitures (1) limited against such persons excommunicate by this statute, by reason of such writ of excommunicato capiendo wanting sufficient addition, or of such significavit coming (2) all the causes aforementioned, shall be utterly void in law; and by way of plea to be allowed to the party grieved.

"XIV. And if the addition shall be with a nuper of the place, then in every such case, at the awarding of the first capias with proclamation, according to the form aforementioned, one writ of proclamation (without any pain expressed, ery, if the cause were insufficient. But now the cause must be set forth in the writ de excommunicato capiendo itself, because by the statute of 5 Eliz. the writ is made returnable in this court, which would be to no purpose, if the cause were not to be set forth in the writ, and this court judge of that cause. 3. The court held, they might discharge the party upon the insufficiency of the return. Before Stat. 5 Eliz. there were no discharges in this court on excommunicato capiendo's, but where a man was excommunicated pending a prohibition; now the case is altered, for this court may quash the writ of excommunicato capiendo, or award a supersedeas, because this court are judges of the cause, and have it before them, and the party cannot go into Chancery for a supersedeas now, because the writ is returnable here. Accordingly, the writ was quashed, and this special entry was made on the habeas corpus, viz. that the party was discharged, because the writ de excommunicato capiendo was quashed."

In Rex v. Byre, (Str. 1067; sed vide Esp. Little, 3 Atk. 479.) "two significavits were quashed, being only said to be in a cause which came by appeal concerning a matter merely spiritual. For per Lord Talbot, 'We are not to lend our assistance but where it appears clearly they have jurisdiction, and are not to trust them to determine what is a matter merely spiritual. It is no more than saying, it is within their jurisdiction, which is never endured. In Fowler's case, (Salk. 293,) it was in causis juriurum ecclesiasticorum, and held not sufficient.'"

In Rex v. Payton, (7 T. R. 153,) it was held, that a writ de excommunicato capiendo, which stated, that the defendant was excommunicated in a cause of defamation and slander merely spiritual, was good. If the sentence of the greater, instead of the lesser, excommunication be pronounced, it is only a ground of appeal, and the court of King's Bench will not quash a writ de excommunicato capiendo for that objection. It is not necessary, that the defendant should be resident in the diocese at the time of the excommunication; it is sufficient, if he were there at the time of the citation. As to the method of proceeding to obtain the discharge of a party; vide Rex v. Blake, 2 B. & Ad. 139; Rex v. Hewitt, 6 A. & E. 547.

Austen v. Dugger, (1 Add. 307,) has, however, established the principle, that if a party for non-payment of costs be committed under an erroneous process, that cannot fairly be ascribed to the party taking it out, or be shown to have occurred to other party material or any incompetent, and be in consequence released, the court is bound, at the application of the party to whom they are still due, to issue a rescission for the payment of such costs.

But a party will not be discharged from this writ by showing, that the sum for which he was attached is less than the 20*l*. prescribed by Stat. 48 Geo. 3, c. 123, because it is committed for contempt. Vide Esp. Kaye, 1 B. & Ad. 652.

(1) Pains and forfeitures:—This statute did not take away or affect the excommunicato capiendo at common law. (Idem, 1 Sid. 181.) but, in the particular cases mentioned in this clause, gives a greater penalty to enforce it. "And therefore, the writ does not only issue upon excommunication in many other cases, but, (as hath been already adjudged,) though a capias with proclamations and penalties go forth, in a matter not within this statute, and the person is then upon imprisonment, and prays to be discharged because the matter for which he was excommunicated, (though of a spiritual nature) is not within this statute; yet nothing can be discharged but the penalties, and, where any new writ obtained,) the excommunication and imprisonment may remain, as at common law, and not be discharged but by absolute in due form." Hugh's case, Cro. Car. 197, 199. Hughes v. Bendy, 12 (Sir W.), 226. Brown's case, Latch. 204. Beverly v. Powell, Jon. (Sir T.), 89.

(2) Significavit wanting:—In Rex v. Sneller, (ut. Gibson's Codex, 1658, upon motion for a supersedeas to the writ, by reason that the significavit was general and uncertain; it was said by my Lord Chancellor that a supersedeas could not be granted upon that ground. But if the excommunication were not for any of the offences within Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 23, and the significavit did not express the same, the remedy expressly appointed by that statute, is a habeas corpus, and upon the return of it, the parties shall be discharged. But it being then alleged, that an appeal was brought, and security given to prosecute it with effect, a supersedeas was awarded, the lord chancellor saying, that the appeal was a supersedeas of itself.

shall be awarded into the county where the offender shall be most commonly resident at the time of the awarding of the said first capias, with pain in the same writ of proclamation, to be returnable the day of the return of the said first capias with pain, and proclamation thereupon at some one such time and court, as is prescribed for the proclamation upon the said first capias with pain: and if such proclamation be not made in the county where the offender shall be most commonly resident in such cases of additions of nuper, that then such offender shall sustain no pain or forfeiture by virtue of this statute, for not yielding his or her body, according to the tenour aforementioned; anything before specified to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 23.

XVI. STAT. 5 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 28. A.D. 1562.

STAT. 5 ELIZ.
c. 28.

"An Act for the translating of the Bible and the Divine Service into the Welsh Tongue."

"Whereas the queen's most excellent majesty, like a most godly and virtuous Princess, having chief respect and regard to the honour and glory of God, and the souls' health of her subjects, did in the first year of her reign, by the authority of her high court of parliament, chiefly for that purpose called, set forth a Book of Common Prayer and Order for the Administration of Sacraments in the vulgar English tongue, to be used through all her realm of England, Wales, and the marches of the same, that thereby her highness' most loving subjects understanding in their own language the terrible and fearful threatenings rehearsed in the Book of God against the wicked and malefactors, the pleasant and infallible promises made to the elect and chosen flock, with a just order to rule and guide their lives according to the commandments of God, might much better learn to love and fear God, to serve and obey their prince, and to know their duties towards their neighbours; which book being received as a most precious jewel with an unspeakable joy of all such her subjects as did and do understand the English tongue, the which tongue is not understood of the most and greatest number of all her majesty's most loving and obedient subjects inhabiting within her highness' dominion and country of Wales, being no small part of this realm, who therefore are utterly destitute of God's holy Word, and do remain in the like or rather more darkness and ignorance than they were in the time of papistry. Be it therefore enacted by the queen our sovereign lady, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the Bishops of Hereford, Saint David, Asaph, Bangor and Llandaff, and their successors, shall take such order amongst themselves for the souls' health of the flocks committed to their charge within Wales, that the whole Bible, containing the New Testament and the Old, with the Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, as is now used within this realm in English, to be truly and exactly translated into the British or Welsh tongue; and that the same so translated, being by them viewed, perused and allowed, be imprinted to such number at the least, that one of either sort may be had for every cathedral, collateriate and parish church, and chapel of ease, in such places and countries of every the said dioceses where that tongue is commonly spoken or used, before the first day of March, anno Dom. one thousand five hundred sixty-six. And thenceforth that day forth, the whole Divine Service shall be used and said by the curates and ministers throughout all the said dioceses where the Welsh tongue is commonly used, in the said British or Welsh tongue, in such manner and form as is now used in the English tongue, and differing nothing in any order or form from the English book: for the which books so imprinted, the parishioners of every of the said parishes shall pay the one half or moiety, and the parson and curate of every of the said parishes (where both be), or else the one of them where there is but one, shall pay the other half or moiety: the prices of which books shall be appointed and rated by the said bishops and their successors, or by three of them at the least; the which things if the said bishops or their successors neglect to do, then every one of them shall forfeit to the queen's majesty, her

The Bible and Book of Common Prayer to be translated into the Welsh tongue.

STAT. 5 ELIZ. c. 28. heirs and successors, the sum of forty pounds, to be levied on their goods and chattels.

"II. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every minister or curate within the dioceses before said, where the Welsh tongue is commonly used, shall, from the feast of Whitsuntide next ensuing, until the foresaid day of March, which shall be in the year one thousand five hundred sixty and six, at all times of communion declare or read the Epistle and Gospel of the day in the Welsh tongue, to his or their parishioners in every of the said churches, and churches, and also once every week, at the least, shall read or declare to their said parishioners in the said churches, the Lord's Prayer, the Articles of the Christian Faith, the Ten Commandments, and the Litany, as they are set forth in the English tongue, in the said Welsh tongue, with such other part of the Common Prayer, as divine service, as shall be appointed by the bishop of the diocese for the time being.

A Bible and Book of Common Prayer in English shall be in every church in Wales.

"III. And one book containing the Bible, and one other Book of Common Prayer, in the English tongue, shall be bought and had in every church throughout Wales, in which the Bible and Book of Common Prayer in Welsh is to be had by force of this act, (if there be none already,) before the first day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand five hundred sixty and six, and the same books to remain in such convenient places within the said churches, that such as understand them may resort, at all convenient times, to read and peruse the same: and also such as do not understand the said language, may, by conferring both tongues together, the sooner attain to the knowledge of the English tongue; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding."

STAT. 8 ELIZ. c. 1.

XVII. STAT. 8 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 1. A.D. 1565.

"An Act declaring the making and consecrating of the Archbishops and Bishops of this Realm to be good, lawful, and perfect."

Acts made since 1 Eliz. for the consecrating, investing, &c. of any archbishop or

"Forasmuch as divers questions, by overmuch boldness of speech⁽¹⁾, are talked amongst many of the common sort of people, being unlearned, hath been grown upon the making and consecrating of archbishops and bishops within this realm, whether the same were and be duly and orderly done, according to the law, or not, which is much tending to the slander of all the state of the clergy

(1) Boldness of speech:—There were many slanders of this kind, printed and suggested by popish writers and emissaries; (Mason, 206;) as, that Bishop Ridley, immediately before his execution, sent a message to the queen, praying her, that the leases made by him, while Bishop of London, might stand good; as if he had been conscious, they were not valid in law; whereas, in reality, his request only was, (in the way of compassion,) that some poor people, who had taken leases of him, being cruelly ejected by his successor, might be relieved by the interposition of the queen, and is therefore an argument of nothing, but that Bishop Bonner did not acknowledge him lawful bishop. Then, that Judge Brooke, one of the judges of the Common Pleas, had represented it as a resolution of the judges, (Ibid. 205,) that King Edward's bishops were not consecrated, and by consequence, that the leases let by them were void: which, yet, he only mentions as a thing said by some people, and infers, that if it was true, the leases were void; but though all such leases had been declared void, in Queen Mary's time, this would not have made the bishops who granted them less lawful in reality, under Queen Elizabeth. A slander of the like nature, (Stry. Ref. 341, 493.) was the sixth and seventh of Queen Elizabeth (a little before the making of this act, on occasion of the oath of supremacy taken to Bonner by his successor, Bishop Hume, and Bonner's plea, that Horne was not a bishop; which plea, Dyer says, was allowed by the judges; that is, the judges agreed that this (being one of the exceptions to the indictment) was such, in its nature, as might be regularly pleaded, (Dyer, 234,) and would avail in the issue, in case it should appear to be true; which it never did, or never could do; since the objection was, as it appears in a rough draft of the exception, said to be written by Bonner himself, that Horne had no election nor consecration, was the Register of Archbishop Parker, &c. (where the history of both is entered at length,) demonstrates to be impudently false. Not to mention the ridiculous story of Archbishop Parker's consecration at the Nag's Head Tavern, which the same records abundantly confute: (Ibid. 2, 10;) and what is so silly, (as well as many others of the same sort,) hath been long since silenced for ever, by Mason, in his excellent work, intitled, "Vindiciæ Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ." Mason, 348. Gibson's Codex, 120.

being one of the great states of this realm: therefore, for the avoiding of such slanderous speech, and to the intent that every man that is willing to know the truth, may plainly understand that the same evil speech and talk is not grounded upon any just matter or cause, it is thought convenient hereby partly to touch such authorities as do allow and approve the making and consecrating of the same archbishops and bishops to be duly and orderly done, according to the laws of this realm, and thereupon further to provide for the more surety thereof, as hereafter shall be expressed.

"II. First, it is very well known to all degrees of this realm, that the late king of most famous memory, King Henry the Eighth, as well by all the clergy then of this realm, in their several convocations, as also by all the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, assembled in divers of his parliaments, was justly and rightfully recognized and knowledged to have the supreme power, jurisdiction, order, rule, and authority over all the estate ecclesiastical of the same, and the same power, jurisdiction, and authority did use accordingly: and that also the said late king, in the five and twentieth year of his reign, did by authority of parliament, amongst other things, set forth a certain order of the manner and form how archbishops and bishops, within this realm, and other his dominions, should be elected and made, as by the same more plainly appeareth: and that also the late king of worthy memory, King Edward the Sixth, did lawfully succeed the said late King Henry his father, in the imperial crown of this realm, and did justly possess and enjoy all the same power, jurisdiction, and authority before mentioned, as a thing to him descended with the same imperial crown, and so used the same during his life: and that also the said late King Edward the Sixth, in his time, by authority of parliament, caused a godly and virtuous book, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer, and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies in the Church of England,' to be made and set forth, not only for one uniform order of service, common prayer, and the administration of sacraments, to be used within all this realm, and other his dominions, but also did add and put to the same book a very good and godly order of the manner and form how archbishops, bishops, priests, deacons, and ministers should from time to time be consecrated, made, and ordered within this realm and other his dominions, as by the same more plainly will and may appear; and although in the time of the late Queen Mary, as well the said act and statute made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, as also the several acts and statutes made in the second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth years of the reign of the said late King Edward, for the authorizing and allowing of the said Book of Common Prayer, and other the premises, amongst divers other acts and statutes touching the said supreme authority, were repealed: yet nevertheless, at the parliament holden at Westminster in the first year of the reign of our sovereign lady the queen's majesty that now is, by one other act and statute there made, all such jurisdictions, privileges, superiorities, and pre-eminences spiritual and ecclesiastical, as by any spiritual or ecclesiastical power or authority hath heretofore been, or may lawfully be used over the ecclesiastical estate of this realm, and the order, government, and correction of the same, is fully and absolutely by the authority of the same parliament, united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm: and by the same act and statute there is also given to the queen's highness, her heirs, and successors, kings and queens of this realm, full power and authority, by letters patents under the great seal of England, from time to time to assign, name, and authorize such person or persons as she or they shall think meet and convenient, to exercise, use, occupy, and execute under her highness, all manner of jurisdiction, privileges, pre-eminences, and authorities, in any wise touching or concerning any spiritual or ecclesiastical power or jurisdiction within this realm, or any other her highness' dominions or countries: and also by the same act and statute, the said act made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, for the order and form of the electing and making of the said archbishops and bishops, together with divers other statutes touching the jurisdiction over the state ecclesiastical, is revived and made in full force and

STAT. 8 ELIZ.
c. 1.

bishop, shall be good.
Dyer, 234.
A question whether the making of bishops were duly and orderly done.
26 Hen. 8, c.
1.

25 Hen. 8, c.
20.

5 & 6 Edw. 6,
c. 1.

1 & 2 P. & M.
c. 8.

1 Eliz. c. 1.

STAT. 8 ELIZ.
c. 1.

1 ELIZ. c. 2.

The queen by her supreme authority caused divers persons to be elected and consecrated archbishops
and bishops.

The queen's dispensation of all doubts of imperfections or disability of electing bishops.

effect, as by the same act and statute more plainly appeareth: and that also by another act and statute made in the said parliament in the first year of the reign of our said sovereign lady, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer, and Service in the Church, and the Administration of Sacraments,' in said Book of Common Prayer, and the Administration of Sacraments, and other the said orders, rites, and ceremonies before mentioned, and all things therein contained, with certain additions therein newly added and appointed by the said statute, is fully established and authorized to be used in all places within the realm, and all other the queen's majesty's dominions and countries; as by the said act, amongst other things, more plainly appeareth: whereupon our said sovereign lady the queen's most excellent majesty, being most justly and lawfully invested in the imperial crown of this realm, with all authorities, pre-eminences, and dignities thereunto appertaining, and thereby having in her majesty's order and composition all the said jurisdictions, power, and authorities over the state ecclesiastical and temporal, as well in causes ecclesiastical as temporal, within this realm and other her majesty's dominions and countries, hath by her supreme authority at divers times sithence the beginning of her majesty's reign, caused divers sundry grave and well learned men to be duly elected, made, and consecrated archbishops and bishops of divers archbishopricks and bishopricks within the realm, and other her majesty's dominions and countries, according to such order and form, and with such ceremonies in and about their consecrations, as were allowed and set forth by the said acts, statutes, and orders annexed to the said Book of Common Prayer before-mentioned: and further, for the avoiding of all ambiguities and questions that might be objected against the lawful confirmation, investing, and consecrations of the said archbishops and bishops, her highness by her letters patents under the great seal of England, directed to any archbishop, bishop, or others, for the confirming, investing, and consecrating of any persons elected to the office or dignity of any archbishop or bishop, hath not only used such words and sentences as were accustomed to be used by the said late King Henry and King Edward, her majesty's father and brother, in their like letters patents made for such causes, but also hath used and put in her majesty's said letters patents divers other general words (1), and sentences, whereby her highness by her supreme power and authority, hath dispensed with all causes or doubts of any imperfection or disability that can or may in any wise be objected against the same, as by her majesty's said letters patents remaining of record more plainly will appear: so that to all those that will well consider of the effect and true intent of the said laws and statutes, and of the supreme and absolute authority of the queen's highness, and which she by her majesty's said letters patents hath used and put in use in and about the making and consecrating of the said archbishops and bishops, it is and may be very evident and apparent, that no cause of scruple, ambiguity, or doubt, can or may justly be objected against the said elections, confirmations, or consecrations, or any other material thing meet to be used or had to or about the same; but that every thing requisite and material for that purpose hath been made and done as precisely, and with as great a care and diligence, as

(1) General words.—The words were, "Suppletur nihilominus, supremâ auctoritate nostrâ regiâ, ex mero motu, et certâ scientiâ nostris, si quid in hiis quæ juxta mandatum nostrum prædictum per vos fieri, aut in vobis aut vestrâ aliquo, conditione, statu, facultate vestris ad præmissa faciendâ desit aut deerit, eorum quæ per statuta hujus regni nostri, aut per leges ecclesiasticas in hac parte requiruntur, aut necessaria sunt; temporis ratione et rerum necessitate id postulante." Park. Reg. f. 3. And by way of further caution, (for, amidst the manifold slanders of the papists, too great caution could not be used,) the validity of the letters patents was referred to the consideration of divers eminent civilians of that time, as appears by the following entry in the Register. (Ibid.) after such letters patents.

"We, whose names are here subscribed, think in our judgments, that by this commission, in this form penned, as was the queen's majesty may lawfully authorize the persons within named to the effect specified, as the said persons may exercise the act of confirming and consecrating in the cases to them committed.

"William Maye.	Henry Harvey.
"Robert Weston.	Thomas Yax.
"Edward Leedes.	Nic. Bullingham."

rather more, as ever the like was done before her majesty's time, as the records of her majesty's said father and brother's time, and also of her own time, will more plainly testify and declare.

"III. Wherefore for the plain declaration of all the premises, and to the intent that the same may the better be known to every of the queen's majesty's subjects, whereby such evil speech as heretofore hath been used against the high state of majesty may hereafter cease, be it now declared and enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that the said act and statute made in the first year of the reign of our said sovereign lady the queen's majesty, whereby the said Book of Common Prayer and the Administration of Sacraments, with other rites and ceremonies, is authorized and allowed to be used, shall stand and remain good and perfect, to all respects and purposes: and that such order (1), and form for the consecrating of archbishops and bishops, and for the making of priests, deacons, and ministers, as was set forth in the time of the said late King Edward the Sixth, and added to the said Book of Common Prayer, and authorized by parliament in the fifth and sixth years of the said late king, shall stand and be in full force and effect, and shall from henceforth be used and observed in all places within this realm, and other the queen's majesty's dominions and countries.

"IV. And that all acts and things heretofore had, made, or done by any person or persons in or about any consecration, confirmation, or investing of any person or persons elected to the office or dignity of any archbishop or bishop within this realm, or within any other the queen's majesty's dominions or countries, by virtue of the queen's majesty's letters patents or commission sithence the beginning of her majesty's reign, be and shall be by authority of this present parliament declared, judged, and deemed at and from every of the several times of the doing thereof, good and perfect to all respects and purposes; any matter or thing that may or may be objected to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

beginning of her reign, shall be good.

"V. And that all persons that have been (2), or shall be made, ordered, or consecrated archbishops, bishops, priests, ministers of God's holy word and sacraments, or deacons, after the form and order prescribed in the said order and form for archbishops, bishops, priests, deacons, and ministers should be consecrated, made, and ordered, be in very deed, and also by authority hereof declared and warranted to be, and shall be archbishops, bishops, priests, ministers, and deacons, and rightly made, ordered, and consecrated; any statute, law, canon, or other thing to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VI. Provided always, and nevertheless be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person or persons shall at any time hereafter be impeached or molested (3), in body, lands, livings, or goods, by occasion or mean of any certificate by any archbishop or bishop heretofore made, or before the last day of this present session of parliament to be made, by virtue of any act made in the first session of this present parliament, touching or concerning the refusal of the oath declared and set forth by act of parliament in the first year of the reign of our said sovereign lady Queen Elizabeth; any thing in this act, or any other act or statute heretofore made to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VII. And that all tenders of the said oath, made by any archbishop or bishop aforesaid, or before the last day of this present session to be made by authority of any act established in the first session of this present parliament, and all refusals of the same oath so tendered, or before the last day of this present session to be

STAT. 8 ELIZ.
c. 1.

A confirmation of the statute of 1 Eliz. c. 2, touching the Book of Common Prayer, and administration of the sacraments.

A confirmation of the statute of 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 1, touching the form of consecrating archbishops, &c.

All acts done by any person about consecration, or investing any person elected to be bishop by virtue of the queen's letters patent sithence the beginning of her reign, shall be good.

All persons made and to be made bishops, priests, ministers, &c. according to the statute of 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 1, be rightly made. 39 Eliz. c. 8.

No person shall be impeached by any certificate of any bishop heretofore made, touching the oath of supremacy made.

1 Eliz. c. 1.

(1) And that such order.—To avoid all doubt for the future, (vide antè 363, n. (2).) the title of the Book of Consecrating, &c., was here specially set down.

(2) Have been.—This retrospect, and the which followed in the thirty-sixth article, were both added to rectify the assumed defect in Queen Elizabeth's repeal and revival, (1558) which the papists had raised and fomented in the nation.

(3) Impeached or molested.—This, and the following clause, were inserted out of tenderness to the popish bishops, (particularly, to Bonner, notwithstanding all his cruelties in the reign of Queen Mary,) who had refused the oath of supremacy, and thereby had incurred a præmunire, according to Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 1, s. 8, (antè 405.)

STAT. 8 ELIZ. c. 1. tendered, by any archbishop or bishop, by authority of any act established in the first session of this present parliament, shall be void and of none effect or validity in the law."

STAT. 8 ELIZ. c. 13.

XVIII. STAT. 8 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 13 (1). A.D. 1585.

"An Act concerning Sea-marks and Mariners."

"IV. And be it further ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no steeples, trees, or other things, now standing as beacons or marks for the sea, whereof to the owner or occupier of the place where the same doth grow or stand before the first day of March next coming notice shall be given by the queen's majesty's letters under her signet, shall at any time hereafter be taken down, felled, or otherwise cut down; upon pain that every person by whose procurement or consent such offence shall be committed, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, whereof the one moiety to the queen's majesty, and the other moiety to be to the master, wardens, and assistants, of the said Trinity House. And if the said person or persons so offending be not of the value of one hundred pounds, then the same person and persons to be deemed convict of outlawry, ipso facto, to all constructions and purposes."

STAT. 12 ELIZ. c. 1. [1R.]

XIX. STAT. 12 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 1 (2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1570.

"An Act for the Erection of Free Schools."

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 1.

XX. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 1 (3). A.D. 1570.

Treason,
3 Inst. 6, 10,
12, 14.
4 Inst. 36.
Foph. 122.

"I. It shall be high treason to intend destruction or bodily harm to the queen, or to levy war, or to move others to war against her, or to affirm that the queen ought not to enjoy the crown, but some other person; or to publish that the queen is an heretic, schismatic, tyrant, infidel, or usurper of the crown; or to claim right to the crown, or to usurp the same during the queen's life; or to affirm the right in succession of the crown in some other than the queen; or to affirm that the laws and statutes do not bind the right of the crown, and the descent, limitation, inheritance, or governance thereof."

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 2.

XXI. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 2 (4). A.D. 1570.

"An Act against the bringing in, and putting in execution of Bulls, Writings, or Instruments, and other superstitious things, from the See of Rome."

A rehearsal of the statute of
5 Eliz. c. 1,
touching the abolishing of the authority of the bishop and see of Rome.

"Where in the parliament holden at Westminster in the fifth year of the reign of our sovereign lady the queen's majesty that now is, by one act and statute then and there made, intituled, 'An Act for the assurance of the Queen's Majesty's Royal Power over all States and Subjects within her Highness' Dominions,' it is among other things very well ordained and provided, for the abolishing of the usurped power and jurisdiction of the Bishop of Rome and of the see of Rome, heretofore unlawfully claimed and usurped within this realm, and other the dominions to the queen's majesty belonging, that no person or persons shall hold or stand with, to set forth, maintain, defend, or extol, the same usurped power, or attribute any manner of jurisdiction, authority, or pre-eminence, to the same, to be had or used within this realm, or any the said dominions, upon pain to incur the danger, penalties, and forfeitures, ordained and provided by the Statute of Praemunire and Premunire, made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second, as by the same act more at large it doth and may appear: and yet nevertheless, divers seditious and very evil-disposed people, without the respect of their duty to Almighty God, or of the faith and allegiance which they ought to bear and 16 R. 2, c. 5.

(1) Vide Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 79.
(2) Vide Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 107.
(3) Expired.

(4) Vide Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 1, (post. 462.)
Stat. 23 Geo. 2, c. 28, s. 2.

have to our said sovereign lady the queen, and without all fear and regard had to the said good law and statute, or the pains therein limited, but minding, as it should seem, very seditiously and unnaturally, not only to bring this realm and the imperial crown thereof, (being in very deed of itself most free,) into the thraldom and subjection of that foreign, usurped, and unlawful jurisdiction, pre-eminence, and authority, claimed by the said see of Rome; but also to estrange and alterate the minds and hearts of sundry her majesty's subjects from their dutiful obedience, and to raise and stir sedition and rebellion within this realm, to the disturbance of the most happy peace thereof; have lately procured and obtained to themselves from the said Bishop of Rome and his said see, divers bulls (1) and writings, the effect whereof hath been, and is, to absolve and reconcile all those that will be contented to forsake their due obedience to our most gracious sovereign lady the queen's majesty, and to yield and subject themselves to the said feigned, unlawful, and usurped authority; and by colour of the said bulls and writings, the said wicked persons very secretly, and most seditiously, in such parts of this realm where the people, for want of good instruction, are most weak, simple, and ignorant, and thereby farthest from the good understanding of their duties towards God and the queen's majesty, have by their lewd and subtil practices and persuasions so far forth wrought, that sundry simple and ignorant persons have been contented to be reconciled to the said usurped authority of the see of Rome, and to take absolution at the hands of the said naughty and subtil practisers; whereby hath grown great disobedience and boldness in many, not only to withdraw and absent themselves from all divine service, now most godly set forth and used within this realm, but also have thought themselves discharged of and from all obedience, duty, and allegiance, to her majesty, whereby most wicked and unnatural rebellion hath ensued, and to the further danger of this realm is hereafter very like to be renewed, if the ungodly and wicked attempts in that behalf be not by severity of laws in time restrained and bridled:

"II. For remedy and redress whereof, and to prevent the great mischiefs and inconveniences that thereby may ensue, be it enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person or persons, after the first day of July next coming, shall use or put in use in any place within this realm, or in any of the queen's dominions, any such bull, writing, or instrument, written or printed, of absolution or reconciliation, at any time heretofore obtained and gotten, or at any time hereafter to be obtained or gotten, from the said Bishop of Rome or any his successors, or from any other person or persons authorized or claiming authority by or from the said Bishop of Rome, his predecessors, or successors, or see of Rome; or if any person or persons after the said first day of July shall take upon him or them, by colour of any such bull, writing, instrument, or authority, to absolve or reconcile any person or persons, or to grant or promise to any person or persons within this realm, or any other the queen's majesty's dominions, any such absolution or reconciliation, by any speech, preaching, teaching, writing, or any other open deed; or if any person or persons within this realm or any the queen's dominions, after the said first day of July shall willingly receive and take any such absolution or reconciliation:

"III. Or else if any person or persons have obtained or gotten since the last day of the parliament holden in the first year of the queen's majesty's reign, or after the said first day of July shall obtain or get, from the said Bishop of Rome, or any his successors or see of Rome, any manner of bull, writing, or instru-

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 2.

The effect of bulls brought from Rome.

Putting in use any bull of absolution or reconciliation
from the Bishop of Rome.

Absolving or reconciling of any person,
and being absolved or reconciled.

Getting of any bull from Rome, containing any matter what-

(1) Divers bulls.—This statute was made A.D. 1571; and from the history of the preceding three years, it appears, that the Pope had granted authority to Saunders and others, to absolve all the English who would return to the church of Rome. That the same Pope had sent his bull into England by Morton the priest, to anathematize the Queen, deprive her of her throne, and absolve her subjects from their oaths of obedience. That, in virtue thereof, many of the people were withdrawn from their allegiance, a dangerous rebellion raised, circular letters sent to the papists to rise and assist in the cause, and the bull itself published in the city of London, in a very insolent manner. Gibson's Codex, 533.

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 2.

soever, or publishing or putting in ure
the same.

3 Inst. 101,
106.

Dyer, 363,
pl. 25.

Aiders, comforters, and maintainers of offenders after the offence.
16 Rich. 2,
c. 5.

Concealing or not disclosing
a bull or reconciliation offered.

Bringing into the realm, or using of Agnus Dei, pictures,
crosses, &c.

16 Rich. 2,
c. 5.

Apprehending
an offender, or

ment, written or printed, containing any thing, matter, or cause, whatsoever, or shall publish, or by any ways or means put in ure, any such bull, writing, or instrument; that then all and every such act and acts, offence and offences, shall be deemed and adjudged by the authority of this act to be high treason; and the offender and offenders therein, their procurers, abettors, and counsellors, to the fact and committing of the said offence or offences, shall be deemed and adjudged high traitors to the queen and the realm; and being thereof lawfully indicted and attainted according to the course of the laws of this realm, shall suffer pains of death, and also lose and forfeit all their lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, and chattels, as in cases of high treason by the laws of this realm ought to be lost and forfeited.

“IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every aiders, comforters, or maintainers, of any the said offender or offenders, after the committing of any the said acts or offences, to the intent to set forth, uphold, or allow the doing or execution of the said usurped power, jurisdiction, or authority, touching or concerning the premises, or any part thereof, shall incur the pains and penalties contained in the Statute of Premunire, made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second.

“V. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons, to whom any such absolution, reconciliation, bull, writing, or instrument, as is aforesaid, shall after the said first day of July be offered, moved, or persuaded to be used, put in ure, or executed, shall conceal the same offer, motion, or persuasion, and not disclose and signify the same by writing or otherwise, within six weeks then next following, to some of the queen's majesty's privy council, or else to the president or vice-president of the queen's majesty's council established in the north parts, or in the marches of Wales, for the time being, that then the same person or persons so concealing and not disclosing, or not signifying the said offer, motion, or persuasion, shall incur the loss, danger, penalty, and forfeiture, of misprision of high treason:

“VI. And that no person or persons shall at any time hereafter be impeached, molested, or troubled, in or for misprision of treason, for any offence or offences made treason by this act, other than such as by this act are before declared to be in case of misprision of high treason.

“VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons shall at any time after the said first day of July bring into this realm of England, or any the dominions of the same, any token or tokens, thing or things, called or named by the name of Agnus Dei, or any crosses, pictures, beads, or such like vain and superstitious things, from the bishop or see of Rome, or from any person or persons authorized or claiming authority by or from the said bishop or see of Rome, to consecrate or hallow the same; (which said Agnus Dei is used to be specially hallowed and consecrated, as it is termed, by the said bishop in his own person, and the said crosses, pictures, beads, and such like superstitious things, being also hallowed either by the same bishop, or by other having power or pretending to have power for the same by or from him or his said see; and divers pardons, immunities, and exemptions granted by the authority of the said see to such as shall receive and use the same:) and that if the same person or persons so bringing in, as is aforesaid, such Agnus Dei and other like things as have been before specified, shall deliver, or cause or offer to be delivered, the same, or any of them, to any subject of this realm, or of any the dominions of the same, to be worn or used in any wise: that then, as well the same person and persons so doing, as also all and every other person or persons which shall receive and take the same, to the intent to use or wear the same, being thereof lawfully convicted and attainted by the order of the common law of this realm, shall incur the dangers, penalties, pains, and forfeitures, ordained and provided by the Statute of Premunire and Provision made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second.

“VIII. Provided nevertheless, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons, to whom any such Agnus Dei or other things aforesaid, shall be tendered and offered to be delivered, shall apprehend the party so offering the same, and bring him to the next justice of peace of that shire where such tender shall be made, if he shall be of power and able to do, or for lack of such ability, shall within the space of three days next after such offer made as is aforesaid, disclose the name and names of such person or persons as so shall make the same offer, and the dwelling place, or place of resort of the same person or persons, (which he shall endeavour himself to know by all the ways and means he can,) to the ordinary of that diocese, or to any justice of peace of that shire where such person or persons to whom such offer shall be made, as is aforesaid, shall be resiant; and also if such person or persons to whom such offer shall be made shall happen to receive any such Agnus Dei or other thing above remembered, and shall within the space of five days next after such receipt deliver the same to any justice of peace within the same shire where the party so receiving shall be then resiant, or shall happen to be: that then every such person or persons doing any the acts or things in this provision above-mentioned, in form above-declared, shall not by force of this statute incur any danger or penalty appointed by this statute, or any other law or penalty; this act or any thing therein contained to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

"IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person and persons which at any time since the beginning of the first year of the queen's majesty's reign that now is, have brought or caused to be brought into this realm any such bulls, writings, or instruments of reconciliation, only as are above-mentioned, and now have any of the same bulls, writings, or instruments, in his or their hands or custody, and shall and do within the space of three months next after the end of any session or dissolution of this present parliament, bring and deliver all such bulls, writings, and instruments, which they or any of them now have in his or their custody, to the bishop of the diocese where such absolution hath been given and received, to the intent that the same bulls, writings, or instruments, may be cancelled and defaced, and shall openly and publicly before such bishop confess and acknowledge his or their offence therein, and humbly desire to be received, restored, and admitted, to the church of England, shall stand and be clearly pardoned and discharged of all and every offence and offences done or committed in any matter or cause concerning any of the said bulls, writings, or instruments, for or touching such absolution or reconciliation only. And that all and every person or persons which have received or taken any absolution from the said Bishop of Rome, or his said see of Rome, or of any reconciliation unto the said Bishop of Rome, or to the said see of Rome, sithence the said first year of the reign of our said sovereign lady the queen, and shall within the said space of three months next after any session or dissolution of this present parliament come before the bishop of the diocese of such place where such absolution or reconciliation was had or made, and shall publicly and openly before the same bishop confess and acknowledge his or their offence therein, and humbly desire to be received, restored, and admitted, to the church of England, shall likewise stand and be clearly pardoned and discharged of all and every offence and offences done or committed in any matter or cause concerning the said bulls, writings, or instruments, for or touching only receiving of such absolution or reconciliation, and for and concerning all absolution or reconciliation had or received by colour of any of the said bulls, writings, or instruments only.

"X. Provided also, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any justice of peace, to whom any matter or offence beforementioned shall be offered, showed, or declared, as is aforesaid, do not within the space of fourteen days next after it shall be to him showed or uttered, signify or declare the same to some one of the queen's majesty's privy council, that then the same justice of peace shall incur the danger, pain, and forfeiture, provided by the said statute made in the said sixteenth year of King Richard the Second.

"XI. Provided also, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any nobleman, being a peer of this realm, shall at any time hereafter happen to

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 2.

disclosing his name.

Delivering an Agnus Dei to
the ordinary,
or a justice of peace.

A pardon to them that shall bring in to be cancelled those bulls which before they received.

A pardon of all those that have been reconciled to the Bishop of Rome, and to confess it, and submit themselves.

The penalty of a justice of peace not disclosing an offence declared unto him.

Trial of a nobleman by his peers.

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 2. he indicted for any the offence or offences aforesaid, that then every such nobleman and peer of this realm shall have his trial by his peers, as in cases of high treason and misprision of treason hath heretofore been accustomed or used.

A saving of the right of others. Farther provisions relating hereto.

13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4; 15 Car. 2, c. 6; 1 G. & M. St. 1, c. 18; 5 Ann. c. 5; and 24 Geo. 2, c. 28.

"XII. Saving to all and every person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, their heirs and successors, and the heirs and successors of every of them, other than the said offenders and their heirs claiming only as heir or heirs to any such offenders, and such person and persons as claim to any their uses, all such rights, titles, interests, possessions, leases, rents, reversions, remainders, offices, fees, and all other profits, commodities, and hereditaments, as they or any of them shall have at the day of the committing of such offence or offences, or at any time before, in as large and ample manner to all intents and purposes, as if this act had never been had nor made; anything herein contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding."

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 4. [IR.] XXII. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 4. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1571.

"An Act authorizing the Primate of Ardmagh to set his Lands and Possessions in the Irish Pale for Years, without the Assent of his Chapter."

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 5. XXIII. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 5 (1). A.D. 1570.

"An Act against fraudulent Deeds, Alienations, &c."

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 8. XXIV. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 8 (2). A.D. 1570.

"An Act against Usury."

[In what case an offender shall be also punished by the ecclesiastical law.]

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 10. XXV. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 10 (3). A.D. 1570.

"Fraudulent Deeds made by Spiritual Persons to defeat their Successors of Remedy for Dilapidations, shall be void, &c. (4)."

Wrongs and frauds prac-

"Where divers and sundry ecclesiastical persons of this realm, being endued and possessed of ancient palaces, mansion-houses, and other edifices (5) and built

(1) Vide Stat. 40 Geo. 3, c. 41. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 45, s. 14. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 107, s. 14. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 76. Stat. 4 & 5 Vict. c. 39.

(2) Superseded by Stat. 12 Ann. St. II. c. 16. Stat. 5 & 6 Gul. 4, c. 41. Stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 37.

(3) It is stated in 2 Burn's E. L. by Philimore, 151, "There is no appearance of this statute being temporary; nevertheless, it is continued as temporary by Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 25, and further, by Stat. 21 Jac. 1, c. 28; and not further indefinitely, (as a great many other statutes were,) by 'Stat. 10 Car. c. 4.' So that, upon the whole, there may perhaps be some doubt whether this statute is now in force." To this crotchet it may be observed, that a continuation of a statute made under an erroneous view of it, cannot by implication amount to a repeal.

(4) Respecting general rights to property by ecclesiastical persons: vide Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11. Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 11. Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 9. Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 4. Stat. 17 Geo. 3, c. 53. Stat. 57 Geo. 3, c. 99. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106. Stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 62, s. 15. Stat. 5 & 6 Vict. cc. 26, 27.

(5) And other edifices:—Although, in this preamble, nothing is referred to, as dilapidation, but decayed or ruinous buildings; nevertheless, under that name are comprehended, hedges, fences, ditches, and such like; and it has been adjudged concerning wood and timber, that the felling of them by any tenant, (otherwise than for repairs, or for the use of the tenant,) is dilapidation; from which the incumbent may be restrained by prohibition during his incumbency; and for which he is liable to be prosecuted, after he ceases to be incumbent.

In Beck v. Rebow, 1 P. Wms. 94. (Tapman v. Barnaby, 2 Bulst. 279; Kennell v. Harvey, 3 Bulst. 158; 1 Roll. 135, as question related to pictures on the staircase, and over the doors and chimneys, and likewise the pier-glasses, hangings, and looking-glasses, which the plaintiff alleged were a wainscot, and fixed to the freehold of the house. Upon which the lord keeper decreed, that hangings and looking-glasses were a matter of ornament and furniture, and not to be taken as part of the house, or freehold, but removable by the lessee of the house.)

In Care v. Care, (2 Vern. 508,) the lord keeper was of opinion, "that although pictures and glasses, generally speaking, are part of the personal estate; yet, if put up instead of wainscot, or where otherwise wainscot would have been put, they shall go to the heir. The house ought not to come to the heir, maimed and disfigured." In which the report adds the case of Hartshenden, (4 Co. 64(a)) where it is expressly declared, that wainscot put up with screws, shall remain to the freehold, against the evasion of using screws instead of nails.

These cases are set down here, as parallel ing to their ecclesiastical benefices or livings, have of late years not red the same for want of due reparations partly to run to great ruin and d in some part utterly to fall down to the ground, converting the timber, stones to their own benefit and commodity; but also have made deeds dourable alienations, and other conveyances of like effect, of their goods d in their lives-time, to the intent and of purpose, after their deaths, to d defraud their successors of such just actions and remedies as other- y might and should have had for the same against their executors(1) dstrutors of their goods, by the laws ecclesiastical(2) of this realm, to

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 10.

tised by divers
ecclesiastical
persons.
Hob. 84.
2 Roll. 169.

utes which sometimes happen be- meding incumbents, and the execu- d predecessors, as to what may or d taken away; and how far the taking y shall be accounted dilapidation.

de in the Reformatio Legum, (f. as follows: "Si quis arbores, ar- bos, nemora, sylvas, saltus, fructi- hujusmodi quascunque, lignorum bates, ulius ad se beneficii ecclesi- pertinentes, licentiosius quam ne- siderit, sine consensu proprii illius pscopi, vendiderit, succiderit, am- portarit, aut quocunque modo et vastarit; precium is universum, sionem omnium hujusmodi ligno- tractorum et eversorum, in cistam attributam plenè conferet: præ- tum in hac re successori satisfaciet, pscopus æquum esse putabit."

Executors:—This act only makes pro- d that the particular abuse of fraudu- to defeat the successor, after the d is dead; but, by the rules of the d appears by the foregoing con-) the ordinary, in case of dilapi- d with a right to take cognizance of dng the life of the incumbent, either dary inquisition, or upon complaint d; and to enforce reparation by dstring of profits, or by ecclesiast- dures, even to deprivation. Knowl- p, 3 Bulst. 158. 3 Inst. 204. d the proportion of the profits to be d, that is left to the discretion of dary, according as particular occa- dure: and there is no certain rule d only an example, in the injunc- dng Henry the Eighth, which is as d "Also, that all parsons, vicars, and dring churches, chapels, or man- dhan this deanry, shall bestow yearly dpon the same mansions, or chancels darches, being in decay, the fifth part dmothers, till they be fully repaired; dme so repaired, shall always keep dain in good state." 1 Burn. App. dle Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106.

d the injunction is continued, in those d published by Edward the Sixth d Elizabeth; (Coll. Can. pt. 6, 70;) dale in the Reformatio Legum, d) was the seventh part: "Episcopus d annui portionem emolumenti apud d faciet seponi, donec, aut domus dibus ministri necessitatibus apta, dstruatur, aut ruinose sedes sartæ dnt." And Archbishop Bancroft's dter, (Reg. Bancr. 168(a),) in the d the sequestration of livings, where houses are out of repair, leaves the propor- tion to the ordinary, with this only limita- tion: "Allowing a fit portion for the incum- bents to live upon."

In a suit for dilapidations in the spiritual court, the executor of an administrator prayed a prohibition, upon oath, that he had no goods of the first intestate; and the court agreed, that the executor of the administrator is not liable, unless he hath goods of the first in- testate, or be administrator de bonis non ad- ministratis by the administrator; upon which the prohibition was granted and stood. Carter v. Pecke, 3 Keb. 619.

Executors, who are chargeable with dilapi- dations, are bound to make satisfaction for them, before the payment of any legacies. But it seems, that damages for dilapidations are to be postponed in order of payment, to the debts of the deceased. The repairing of dilapidations is, in the strictest sense, a debt to the church; (vide Coust. Edmundi, 751;) and it seems hard, that private debts should be satisfied out of the spoils of the church, and the church herself be denied the com- mon right of restitution. For whatever sub- stance any incumbent gets from the church, and dies possessed of, is greater, in propor- tion to his neglect of repairs; and that part that grows from such neglect, is not better than a theft from the church; whose rights and privileges were, anciently, the first care of the law; but the common law prefers the payment of debts before damage for dilapi- dations. Degge's Parson's Counsellor, 135. Williams on Executors, 823.

(2) By the laws ecclesiastical:—In ac- knowledge of the right of the ecclesiast- ical courts to the sole cognizance upon this head of dilapidations; a writ of consultation (vide Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 21,) was provided to screen them from the encroachments of the temporal courts. Reg. f. 48(a).

Pursuant to the plain meaning and tenour of such writ, this statute refers the persons aggrieved to the ecclesiastical courts; and the first writer who advanced the notion of an action upon the case in the temporal courts, for dilapidations, was Sir Simon Degge; (Parson's Counsellor, 138;) who also referred, for proof of it, to divers precedents before the Reformation.

But in Jones v. Hill, (3 Lev. 268; Carth. 224,) the Lord Chief Justice Pollexfen held at Warwick assizes, that, being a cause of dilapidations, it was only triable in the spi- ritual court. Notwithstanding which, when the same cause was brought into the court of Common Pleas, although it appeared upon examination of the records, that judgment

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 10.

How the successor shall have remedy where the predecessor doth make a fraudulent deed to defeat him for dilapidations. 14 Eliz. c. 11, s. 17.
1 Leon. 307.

the great defacing of the state ecclesiastical, and intolerable charges of the successors, and evil precedent and example for others, if speedy remedy was provided:

"II. Be it therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any archbishop, bishop, dean, archdeacon, provost, treasurer, chaunter, chancellor, prebendary, or any other having any dignity or office in any cathedral or collegiate church within this realm; or any parson, vicar, or other incumbent (1), of any ecclesiastical living whereunto he belongs any house or houses, or other buildings, which by law or custom be bound to keep and maintain in reparation; do from henceforth make any deeds of gift or alienation, or other like conveyances of his moveable goods or chattels, to the intent and purpose aforesaid; that then the successor and successors of him that shall make such deed or deeds of gift or alienation, shall and may commence suit, and have such remedy in any court ecclesiastical of this realm competent for the matter against him or them to whom such deed or deeds of gift or alienation shall be so made, for the amendment and reparation of so much of the said dilapidations and decays, or just recompense for the same, as hath happened by his fact or default (2), in such sort as he might, should, or ought lawfully to have, if he or they to whom such deed or deeds of gift or alienation shall be made, were executor or executors of the testament and last will of him that made such deed or deeds of gift or alienation, or were administrator or administrators of

was not given in any of the precedents cited by Sir Simon Degge, and Pollexfen strongly adhered to his first opinion, and the court inclined the same way, although it had been otherwise determined, in Day v. Hollington; (8 Vin. Abr. Dilapidations, 482;) yet, the cause being delayed and reheard, and Pollexfen and Ventris both dead in the mean time, judgment was afterwards given by the other two justices, that the action did well lie in the temporal court; and the same thing was, in effect, resolved again in Oke v. Ange, (3 Lev. 413,) inasmuch as the plaintiff in the spiritual court was adjudged to be barred from suing there, by his having before brought an action on the case, in the temporal court, upon the same matter.

How to proceed against sequestrator, incumbent, and executor for dilapidations, vide Stephens on Clerical Law, tit. DILAPIDATIONS. Hubbard v. Beckford, 1 Consist. 307. Whinfield v. Watkins, 2 Phill. 8. North v. Barker, 3 Phill. 307. In re Little, Hallingbury, Essex, 1 Curt. 556. Degge's Parson's Counsellor, 134-145. Jones v. Hill, 3 Lev. 268. Radcliffe v. D'Oyly, 2 T. R. 630. Young v. Munby, 4 M. & S. 183. Bird (Clerk) v. Relph, 4 B. & Ad. 826. Ibid. 2 A. & E. 772. Percival (Clerk) v. Couke, 2 C. & P. 460. Wright (Clerk) v. Smythies (Clerk), 10 East, 409. Wise v. Metcalfe, 10 B. & C. 299. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106.

(1) Or other incumbent.—In the case of the Curate of Orpington, (3 Keb. 614,) who was appointed by the impropiator, and licensed by the archbishop as ordinary, the court held, that being but curate at will, and not instituted nor inducted, he was not an incumbent within this statute, nor liable to dilapidations; and accordingly, prohibition was awarded, to stay suit against him in the spiritual court.

(2) By his fact or default.—This clause in the particular case of a fraudulent conveyance, seems at first sight to limit the suit to the dilapidations that have grown in the time of the last incumbent; which, as his predecessor did also leave dilapidations, and die insolvent, cannot be known, but by a regular survey of the defects at his coming in, that thereby the respective dilapidations of the two predecessors may be distinguished. But, in other cases, the incumbent, or his executors, are charged with the whole dilapidations, in whose time soever they have grown; and the reason is, because he had the same remedy against the executors or administrators of his predecessors, and it was his own fault if he did not make use of it. And if such predecessor was insolvent, he accepted the benefit of that charge and incumbrance upon him.

Agreeably to this general rule, may the statute also be interpreted, as so to make this clause, by his fact or default, to be exclusive, not of dilapidations, which had grown in the time of the predecessor who had deceased, but of such as may have grown between the time of his decease and the prosecution for them; that is, either in the time of the vacation of the benefice, or in the time of the present incumbent.

This, in some cases, may prove a very great hardship; particularly, where a benefice of dilapidations is left by one who died insolvent, and the successor enjoys the benefice for a short time, and dies: in which case, the Reformatio Legum, (39b.) had provided the following mitigation: "Spatium tantæ possessionis erit considerandum: quod si totum annum non impleverit, nihil prestatbitur: quantum autem anno fuerit superius, ad id equitas iudicis ecclesiastici ratione cendi rationem accommodabit."

his goods or chattels; any law, custom, or other thing to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"III. And for that long and unreasonable leases (1), made by colleges, deans, and chapters, parsons, vicars, and other having spiritual promotions, be the chiefest causes of the dilapidations and the decay of all spiritual livings and hospitalities, and the utter impoverishing of all successors incumbents in the same; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from henceforth all leases, gifts, grants, feoffments, conveyances, or estates, to be made, had, done, or suffered by any master and fellows (2) of any college, dean and chapter of any cathedral or collegiate church, master or guardian of any hospital, parson, vicar, or any other (3) having any spiritual or ecclesiastical living, or any houses (4), lands, tithes, tene-ments, or other hereditaments (5), being any parcel of the possessions of any such college, cathedral church, chapter, hospital, parsonage, vicarage, or other spiritual promotion, or any ways appertaining or belonging to the same, or any of them, to any person (6) or persons, bodies politick or corporate, (other than (7) for (8) the term

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 10.

1 Roll. 151,
168, 171.
2 Roll. 169,
170, 275, 403,
405, 408.
What conveyances, and for what time spiritual persons may make
of their lands,
tithes, &c.
2 Bulst. 305.
Moor, 593,
pl. 802.
No new lease

(1) Long and unreasonable leases:—Corporations aggregate might always let such leases without any confirmation; and so might sole corporations, with confirmation, before this act was made; none but bishops being restrained by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 19 (ante,
p. 29). But by this statute, all other corporations, sole and aggregate, are put under the same restraints that bishops were; the two being of the same tenour and form.
See Doe d. Richardson v. Thomas, (9 A.
E. 556.) in which the enabling powers and restrictions are discussed, and likewise the question, whether a perpetual curate can grant a lease not confirmed by the ordinary.
In Doe d. Tennyson v. Yarborough (Lord, 1 Bing. 24.) it was held, that in order to render a lease valid under Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10, it must be made of land which had been previously let, or on which some rent had been received. Therefore a lease by a vicar, for three lives, of unclosed and waste land, not proved to have been before let, was held not to be binding on his successor, although the lease covenanted therein to inclose the land, and pay a rack-rent for it; it was held also, that Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28, and Stat.
13 Eliz. c. 10, must be taken together, as being in pari materia.

In Doe d. Cates v. Somerville, (6 B. & C.
126,) a lease by a rector of his glebe lands, and other rectorial property, made between the years 1803 and 1816, while Stat. 13 Eliz.
c. 10, continued repealed, was held valid.

(2) Master and fellows:—This includes all colleges, by what name soever incorporated, and of what nature soever the foundations be, ecclesiastical, temporal, or mixed;
the statute being construed most largely and beneficially, against destructive leases. Magdalen College case, 11 Co. 76.

For the same reason, though it is said, dean and chapter, it extends to chapters where there are no deans, and though it is only said, master or guardian of any hospital, yet it extendeth to all manner of hospitals, by what name soever incorporated. The Collegiate Church of Southwell (The Chapter of),
1. Lincoln (The Bishop of), 1 Mod. 204.

(3) Or any other:—That this is a general law, so it concerns all the clergy, hath been often declared and adjudged, though at first much doubted. But it was always agreed, notwithstanding this general clause, that bishops were not included, because the statute begins with an order inferior to them. Holland's case, 4 Co. 76. The Collegiate Church of Southwell (The Chapter of) v.

Lincoln (The Bishop of), 1 Mod. 205. Carter v. Cromwell, Sav. 129.

(4) Any houses:—Respecting houses in corporate towns, vide p. 434, St. 14 Eliz. c. 11.

(5) Other hereditaments:—Before this statute, although tithes, usually let to farm, could not be leased for life, so as to bind the successor, yet they might by bond, for twenty-one years. Talentine v. Denton, Mo.
(Sir F.), 778. Harg. Co. Lit. 44(b), n. (3).

(6) To any person:—For some time after the making of this act, it was considered, (in practice at least,) that the king was not com-prehended in this restraint, but that long leases might be let to him, as before; and, accordingly, some such leases were in fact letten. But it was resolved by Popham and Anderson, assistants to the lords in parliament, that Queen Elizabeth was restrained by this act; and, in 1 Jac. 1, when a motion was made in parliament, upon the bill then depending, that the clergy, as well as bishops, might be restrained from alienating, &c. to the crown, it was again resolved by the justices' assistants, that they were already restrained by this statute; and for that reason they were left out of such bill. Magdalen College case, 11 Co. 75(b).

As to the leases, which, through mistake, had been let by deans and chapters to the king, after the making of this statute;
the law favourably supposed, that the king's assignees could not understand such doubtful points; and so (upon composition made with the deans and chapters) the leases were made good to them by decrees in Chancery.
1 Rol. Abr. Chancerie, 378 (R).

(7) Other than:—Although ecclesiastical corporations aggregate are not within Stat.
32 Hen. 8, c. 28, (ante 262,) yet was that statute a pattern for leases by them made, in many things, which are not here specified.
And as to leases made by sole corporations, according to this statute; they are not good, without confirmation, unless they be also made according to the limitations of Stat. 32 Hen.
8, c. 28.

(8) Other than for:—The ancient rule of

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 10.

to be made unless the first expires, &c.
within three years, &c. 18 Eliz. c. 11, s. 1, by 14 Eliz. c. 11, s. 17, &c., not to extend to leases of houses otherwise provided for by that statute. 1 Mod. 204. Cro. Eliz. 430. Cro. Car. 259. 4 Co. 26. Savil. 129. 2 Co. 46. 6 Co. 37. 11 Co. 67. 2 Mod. 56. Co. Lit. 44 (a). pl. 636. Goldsb. 171, pl. 102. 1 Brownl. 182. 8 Co. 70. Hob. 269. Declared to include &c. 14 Eliz. c. 14.

Leases limited
by the private statutes of any college.

New leases
made upon the surrender of old or former covenants.
1 Anders. 65.
Hob. 7.
2 Roll. 401,
406.

of one and twenty years, or three lives, from the time as any such shall be made or granted, whereupon the accustomed yearly rent or reserved and payable yearly during the said term,) shall be utterly of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes; any law, custom to the contrary any ways notwithstanding.

"IV. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted by the authority of this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall be taken or construed to good any lease or other grant to be made by any such college or college within either of both the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, within the realm of England, for more years than are limited by statutes of the same college.

"V. Provided always, that this act shall not extend to any lease to be made upon surrender of any lease heretofore made, or by reason of any condition contained in any lease heretofore made, and now in force, that the lease to be made do not contain more years than the residue of the former lease now continuing shall be at the time of such lease made, nor any less rent than is reserved in the said former lease."

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 12.

This act enforced by
5 Ann. c. 5.
2 & 3 Edw. 6,
c. 1. 5 & 6
Edw. 6, c. 1.
Every ecclesiastical person shall subscribe to the articles touching the confession of the faith, and declare his assent thereunto.
March, 119.

XXVI. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 12. A.D. 1570.

"An Act for the Ministers of the Church to be of sound Religion."

"That the churches of the queen's majesty's dominions may be pastors of sound religion, be it enacted by the authority of this present act, that every person under the degree of a bishop, which doth or shall be a priest or minister of God's holy Word and Sacraments, by any other form of institution, consecration, or ordering, than the form used in the parliament in the time of the late king of most worthy memory, the Sixth, or now used in the reign of our most gracious sovereign in the feast of the Nativity of Christ next following, shall in the presence of the spiritualities of some one diocese where he hath or shall have an ecclesiastical living, declare his assent, and subscribe to all the articles which only concern the confession of the true Christian faith and the sacraments, comprised in a book imprinted, intituled, 'Articles, as was agreed by the Archbishop and Bishops of both Provinces, and alienations, is thus set down in the Reformatio Legum: (40(a):) "Qui gubernandis ecclesiis admoti sunt, nec domos, nec agros, nec ullas ecclesiarum possessiones aut fructus vendent, permutabunt, donabunt, aut quocunque genere contractus vel conventionis in omne tempus ab alienabunt, nisi suum patronus et episcopus consensum interposuerint."

And so favourable were the administrators of the common law to those prejudicial grants, if made to the laity with such consent; that where one granted a rent-charge, to commence after his own death, and it was confirmed by patron and ordinary, they adjudged it to be good; because the grant was present, though it was not to take effect in the life of the grantor.

But under the provisions of this statute, all gifts, grants, &c. as well as leases contrary to its provisions, would be utterly void, notwithstanding any subsequent consent or confirmation.

(1) Utterly void.—It was (Chief Baron,) in the case of Hunt v. Singleton, (the petty canons of St. Paul's Cathedral, Hardr. 336,) that a lease made in violation of this statute, such lease will be void in itself, as it is said to be void ab initio; but if a sole copy of such a lease, it shall bind him who takes it, void against his successor.

In Hunt v. Singleton, (the case of Hunt v. Singleton,) it was resolved, that if a dean or chapter made a lease contrary to the tenor of Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11, (post. 65) it shall be void till after the death of the person who was party to the lease, and the principal member of the corporation after his death, the succeeding chapter, shall avoid it.

Stat. 1 Geo. 1. St. 11. c. 16. declares the exchanges of lands made without the consent of the governors of the County.

in the Convocation holden at London in the year of our Lord God one thousand five hundred sixty and two, according to the Computation of the Church, and for the avoiding the Diversities of Opinions, and for the establishment touching true Religion put forth by the Queen's Authority; and from such bishop or guardian of spiritualities in writing, under his seal, a testimonial of such assent and subscription; and openly on Sunday in the time of the public service afore noon, in every church where any ecclesiastical living he ought to attend, read both the said testimonial and the said articles; upon pain that every such person which shall not so do as is above appointed, shall be ipso facto deprived, and all ecclesiastical promotions shall be void, as if he then were naturally dead.

(1) And that if any person ecclesiastical, or which shall have ecclesiastical benefice, shall advisedly maintain or affirm any doctrine directly contrary or repugnant to any of the said articles, and being convicted before the bishop of the diocese, or the ordinary, or before the queen's highness' commissioners in causes ecclesiastical, shall persist therein, or not revoke his error (2), or after such revocation shall again affirm such untrue doctrine, such maintaining or affirming and persisting therein, shall be just cause to deprive such person of his benefice, and of all ecclesiastical promotions; and it shall be lawful to the bishop of the diocese or the ordinary, or the said commissioners, to deprive such persons so persisting or lawfully convicted of such errors affirming, and upon such sentence of deprivation he shall be indeed deprived.

And that no person shall hereafter be admitted to any benefice with cure (3), unless he be of the age of three and twenty (4) years at the least and a deacon (5),

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 12.

Vaugh. 131-3.

Lanc. 4.

Dyer, 377.

Cro. Eliz. 252.

511, 679.

1 Roll. 83, 473.

Reading of the articles and testimonial.

Hob. 169.

6 Co. 29.

The penalty for maintaining of doctrine against the articles.

For farther provisions concerning religion, &c., see
23 Eliz. c. 1;
13 & 14 Car. 2,
c. 4; 15 Car. 2,
c. 6; 1 G. & M.
St. 1. c. 18;
and 23 Geo. 2,
c. 28.

This section was confirmed by Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 12. Superseded by Stat. 2, c. 28, s. 2.

Revoke his error:—There must be an avowal of past error; a promise for the future will not be sufficient. M. Proc. Gen. v. Stone, 1 Con-

With cure:—This is meant of such benefices as have parochial churches belonging to them; and extends not to dignities and in cathedral and collegiate churches.

And, therefore, where the case was of reading the articles, and it was held in the declaration, that the benefice with cure, it was held to be Lincoln (Bishop of), 1 And. 62.

Three and twenty:—The more ancient law of the church, was twenty-five; for canon of the third Lateran Council, that none shall be admitted to subdiaconry, or cure of souls, "nisi sexagesimum quintum etatis annum attulerint."

And so, in the Register of Archbishop Reynolds, (f. 31 (a).) it is stated, the archbishop not being fully satisfied of the age, the presentee took an oath, "quod fuit etatis viginti quinque annorum."

And, in the same Register, one who had been instituted under the age, is cited to show cause, why he should not be deprived. But this was a dispensation, which the Pope could, and frequently did, dispense with.

By this statute, the age of institution is fixed at twenty-four; but by Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, it is incidentally made twenty-four; instead of twenty-five, as a necessity is created thereby, that no person should be a priest, and it is laid down in the preamble of our church, laid down in the preamble to the Forms of Ordination and Consecration, that every man previously to his being admitted a priest, shall be full twenty-four years old.

(5) A deacon:—This was always necessary in the case of admission to a vicarage:

"Admittendus vero ad vicariam, debet esse ad minus diaconus." Lyndw. de Inst. c.

Cum sec. v. Idoneus. But as to benefices of other kinds, it was sufficient, if the presentee was in the lowest degree of orders; "Debet instituendus in beneficio ad minus habere primam tonsuram, ut sit in ordine clericali;" (Lyndw. de Inst. c. Ex Sol. v. Ordine); and, accordingly, institution has been frequently given to acolytes. Reg. Winch. f. 50 (a, b), 52 (b), 53 (a), 55 (a, b). But in these, and other cases, where the person instituted was not a priest, the law of the church was, that he should take the order of priesthood, within one year after his institution, (Lyndw. de Inst. c. Cum sec. v. Idoneus.) "Requiritur etiam, quod possit, infra annum promoveri ad sacerdotium;" agreeably to the rule of the canon law, (Extra. l. 1, t. 14, c. 5.) "Præterea licet ad regimen parochialis ecclesiæ non debeat aliquis, nisi subdiaconus sit ad minus, admitti, dispensa-tivè tamen in minoribus ordinibus constituti consueverunt assumi. Dum tamen tales sint, quod infra breve tempus possint in presbyteros ordinari;" which was frequently dispensed with; until the clause in this statute, requiring that he be admitted to minister the sacraments within one year, made it indispensable. Those indulgences had grown to a shameful excess, which is illustrated by the following rule of the canon law: (Extra. l. 1, t. 14, c. 3:) "Indecorum est, ut hi deheant ecclesiæ regere, qui non noverunt gubernare seipsos; cum ad eccle-siarum regimen tales personæ sint admit-

STAT. 13 ELIZ. and shall first have subscribed the said articles (1) in presence of
c. 12.

tendæ, quæ discretionè præmineant, et morum fulgeant honestate. Nolentes itaque sustinere, ut parvulis ecclesiæ regimen committatur, mandamus, quatenus nemini infra annum quartum decimum constituto, personatum cujuslibet ecclesiæ concedere præsumatis. Scituri pro certo, quod si contraire præsumperitis: quod inde feceritis, irritabimus, et inobedientiam vestram graviter puniemus."

The necessity of being in some sort of orders, (speaking with regard to ancient times,) is confirmed by the books of common law, as to benefices with cure; and in former times, a mere layman might have taken a title to a deanry, prebend, or other benefice without cure. Thus, in Bland v. Maddox, (Cro. Eliz. 79,) "It was agreed clearly, that a layman may be presented to a prebend, for non habet curam animarum." "But it follows not upon the foot of this statute, that if every person who shall be admitted to a benefice with cure, must be a deacon, therefore any person may be admitted to a benefice without cure, though he is a layman; and yet it may be doubted, whether this inference is the chief ground, as of that resolution, so of the admissions of some few laymen to dignities, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, pursuant to it. Whereas, the most that can be built upon this statute, is, that admissions to benefices with cure, shall be made according to the directions and limitations here given; and, as to those without cure, (the statute touching them not,) they are to remain in the same state, as they were; that is, as ecclesiastical promotions to be enjoyed by such persons only who were in ordine clericali, and who might be dispensed with from entering into the order of priesthood. But that a mere layman might be admitted to any thing that had the name of an ecclesiastical or spiritual promotion, (as the dignities of the church always had,) is a point that cannot be made out, either from the law, or the practice of the church." Gibson's Codex, 805.

However, by Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, priesthood is made a necessary condition of being admitted to any ecclesiastical promotion whatsoever.

(1) The said articles:—It has been doubted, what articles are here meant; namely, whether all the Thirty-nine Articles, or only such of them, as are in this act above specified. The case is this: the act requires, first of all, that every person under the degree of a bishop, pretending to be a preacher or minister, by reason of any other form of institution, consecration, or ordering, than the form set forth in the time of Edward 6, or then used, should, before December 25, then next following, declare his assent and subscription to all the articles of religion, which only concern the confession of the true Christian faith and the doctrine of the sacraments; comprised in a book imprinted, intitled, "Articles, whereupon it was agreed by the Archbishops and Bishops of both Provinces, and the whole Clergy, in the Convocation holden at London, the year 1562," &c. After which several clauses requiring subscription to the said articles in time to come, and the question is, whether to the whole book, or only to such of them as concern the confession of the true faith, doctrine of the sacraments, for which were required in the former part of the statute. There is a remarkable passage in the Journal, (p. 239,) which explains the said clause, requiring assent and subscription to some of the articles and not to others. Mr. Peter Wentworth, in a speech in the House of Commons, inveighing against a message of the queen to the house, that she should not deal in any matters of religion, but first to receive from the bishops, and then from himself, said: "I have heard parliament-men, that the bishops, the Pope and popery, and the true religion, had their beginning from the house, and not from the bishops. I have heard, that few laws for religion had their foundation from them. I think, (before God I speak it,) that the bishops were the cause of that doleful state, and I will show you what moveth me to think. I was, amongst others, in the parliament, sent unto the Bishop of Oxford for the articles of religion that were then in this house. He asked us, why we would not take out of the book the articles for the consecrating of bishops, and so forth. Surely sir, said I, because we were occupied in other matters, that we had not time to examine them, how they agreed with the word of God. What, said he, you mistook the matter, you will refer it wholly to us therein? No! by the Lord, said I, we will pass on, for we understand what it is, for it is not to make you popes; make you who list, said I, for we will make you. And sure, Mr. Speaker, the speech to me to be a pope-like speech, at least our bishops do not attribute to the pope's canons unto themselves.—pollest errare."

The articles which concern faith and doctrine, are, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 22. Gibson's Codex, Vide De Lolme on the English Constitution, by Stephens, 296, 297.

Refusal or neglect to read the articles renders the church ipso facto void, with sentence of deprivation. Baker v. Bishop of Exeter, 10 Mod. 680.

By Can. 36, "No person shall by institution or collation, be admitted to any ecclesiastical living, except he shall first subscribe to these three articles following."

"1. That the king's majesty is the only supreme governor of this realm, and of all other his highness' dominions, countries, as well in all spiritual as temporal things or causes, as temporally that no foreign prince, person, state, or potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority

(1), and publickly read the same in the parish church of that benefice, with ratification of his unfeigned assent to the same; and that every person after the end of this session of parliament, to be admitted to a benefice with a cure, at that within two months (2) after his induction he do publickly read the said in the same church (3) whereof he shall have cure, in the time of common prayer there (4), with declaration of his unfeigned assent (5) thereunto, and be admitted to minister the sacraments within one year after his induction, if he be not admitted before, shall be upon every such default (6), ipso facto (7), immediately deprived.

IV. And that no person now permitted by any dispensation or otherwise, to retain any benefice with cure, being under the age of one and twenty years, or being deacon at the least, or which shall not be admitted as is aforesaid, within one year next after the making of this act, or within six months after he accomplish the age of four and twenty years, on pain that such his dispensation shall be merely void.

V. And that none shall be made minister, or admitted to preach or admi-

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 12.

Several things required in him who shall be admitted to a benefice.

1 Leon. 230.
1 Anders. 62.

The age of a minister or preacher, and

power or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within his majesty's said realms, dominions, and countries.

That the Book of Common Prayer, the ordering of bishops, priests, and deacons, containeth in it nothing contrary to the word of God, and that it may lawfully be used, and that he himself will use the form and book prescribed in public prayer, administration of the sacraments, and elsewhere.

That he alloweth the Book of Articles of Religion, agreed upon by the archbishops and bishops of both provinces, and the whole clergy, in the convocation holden at London the year of our Lord God one thousand five hundred and sixty-two; and that he acknowledge all and every the articles therein contained, being in number nine and thirty, as the ratification, to be agreeable to the word of God.

In these three articles, whosoever will subscribe, he shall, for the avoiding of all doubts, subscribe in this order and form of words, setting down both his christian name, viz., 'I, N. N., do willingly of my own free will and full power, of my own accord, and of my own accord, subscribe to these three articles above mentioned, and to all things that are contained in them.' And if any bishop or clergyman any as is aforesaid, except he have subscribed in manner and form aforesaid, he shall be suspended from giving licences and licences to preach for the space of five months.

Such penalty seemeth not adequate to the offence; for this is punishing of others, rather than the bishop, for the bishop's declaration Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 165. H. M. Proc.-Gen. v. Stone, 1 Consist.

In presence of the ordinary:—By this statute, institution was frequently made by proxy. Gibson's Codex, 808.

Within two months:—Computing eight days to the month; for in Spence, (1 Lev. 101,) where the institution was Sep. 15, and the articles were Nov. 15, this was judged insufficient. Green v. Brent, Cro. Eliz. 679. Sed vide 3 Geo. 2, c. 28.

(3) In the same church:—In Brown v. Spence, (1 Keb. 503; 1 Lev. 101,) where the keys of the church could not be had, and so divine service was performed in the church porch, and the articles read there; this was held to be a sufficient reading within the statute, as Keble reports it; but by Levinz, what the court there held to be good, was, the reading of them in the porch of a chapel of ease within the parish.

(4) In the time of common prayer there:—And therefore not to be put off till divine service or common prayer is ended.

(5) Unfeigned assent:—In Smith v. Clarke, (Cro. Eliz. 252,) the jury found, that the incumbent, (who was sued in the spiritual court, in order to deprivation, for not giving assent to the articles,) did read the articles, and then said, "I give my consent unto them, so far forth as they agree with the word of God;" and it was adjudged, that this "was not such an unfeigned assent as the statute intendeth; but it ought to be absolute without condition." For (as Lord Coke says,) "the act was made for avoiding a diversity of opinions, &c.; and by this addition, the party might, by his own private opinion, take some of them to be against the word of God; and by this means diversity of opinions should not be avoided, which was the scope of the statute, and the very act itself made, touching subscription hereby, of none effect." 4 Inst. 324.

(6) Upon every such default:—But in a suit for tithes, or the like, Monke v. Butler, (1 Roll. 83,) though the parishioner may plead, that the parson did not read the thirty-nine articles, yet the law presumes the affirmative, and, (in that case,) the negative must be proved.

(7) Ipso facto:—So as the church is presently void, without any declaratory sentence; for avoidance by act of parliament, needs not any sentence declaratory. And if it did, the statute would be defrauded at the ordinary's pleasure if he would not deprive. Green's case, 6 Co. 29 (b). 4 Inst. 324. This is the received interpretation of the statute; although the contrary seems to be supposed in Racon v. Carlisle (Bishop of), (Dyer, 346,) (which was but six years after

In Sloane v. Padmore (1751, 1 W. 770,) the declaration, which

ent parliament, that no lease after the fifteenth day of May next following ending of this parliament, to be made of any benefice or ecclesiastical pro- with cure, or any part thereof, and not being appropriated, shall endure ger than while the lessor shall be ordinarily resident and serving the cure benefice without absence above four score days in any one year, but that lease, so soon as it or any part thereof shall come to any possession or be forbidden, or immediately upon such absence, shall cease and be void ; incumbent so offending shall for the same lose one year's profit of his said to be distributed by the ordinary among the poor of the parish : and that days of such benefices, with cure hereafter with any pension, or with any of the same to be yielded or taken, hereafter to be made, other than be reserved upon leases hereafter to be made according to the meaning of shall be utterly void.

with cure shall be charged with a pension. Goldsb. 154. 1 Brownl. 208. Noy, 116. Yelv. Eliz. 78, 88, 123, 490, 564. Moor, 270, pl. 422. Dyer, 373, pl. 11. 14 Eliz. c. 11, s. 14.

Provided, that every parson by the laws of this realm allowed to have fees, may demise the one of them upon which he shall not then be most y resident, to his curate only, that shall there serve the cure for him ; lease shall endure no longer than during such curate's residence, without above forty days in any one year : this act to continue to the end of the ment."

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 20.

How long the lease of a benefice shall endure.

Co. 205.

1 Leon. 307, 333.

1 Bulst. 111.

Farther provisions relating hereto,

18 Eliz. c. 11,

s. 7; 43 Eliz. c. 9, s. 8.

The parson's lease to his curate.

3 Leon. 102.

1 Leon. 100.

Goldsb. 162.

XXVIII. STAT. 13 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 29. A.D. 1570.

concerning the several Incorporations of the Universities of Oxford and ridge, and the Confirmation of the Charters, Liberties, and Privileges to either of them."

STAT. 13 ELIZ. c. 29.

XXIX. STAT. 14 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 5 (1). A.D. 1572.

"An Act . . . for the Relief of the Poor and Impotent."

STAT. 14 ELIZ. c. 5.

XXX. STAT. 14 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 7. A.D. 1572.

against the Deceits of Under-collectors of the Tenths and Subsidies of the Clergy."

STAT. 14 ELIZ. c. 7.

and, that the defendant had granted to the plaintiff, and for the better of the said annuity, demised a rectory and stall to certain trustees, and for payment of the annuity; and a breach the non-payment thereof: Declaration, the defendant being of pleading issuably, pleaded, indenture was made with the view of, and was a charge upon the same being a benefice with a lease, contrary to Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 11, and the indenture and security were made the statute: it was held, that it was not an issuable one, as it stated upon which the plaintiff could sue; and that the statute avoided the lease only, but not the deed containing it.

Indemnification which has been given to the of Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20, will be from consulting Saltmarsh v. (Clerk), 1 A. & E. 812. Alchin (Clerk), 1 Bing. N. C. 99. Mel- (Archbishop of), 6 Sim.

224. Doe d. Crisp v. Barber, 2 T. R. 749. Doe d. Rogers v. Mears, Cowp. 129. Graham v. Peat, 1 East, 244. Flight v. Salter, 1 B. & Ad. 673. Britten v. Wail, 3 Ibid. 915. Gibbons v. Hooper (Clerk), 2 Ibid. 734. Kirtew v. Butts, Ibid. 736, in not. Doe d. Wilks v. Ramuden (Clerk), 4 Ibid. 609. Colebrook (hart.) v. Layton (Clerk), Ibid. 578. Newland v. Watkin, 9 Bing. 113. Bendry v. Price, 7 Dowl. P. C. 753. Bishop v. Hatch, Ibid. 763. Geale (Clerk) v. Wyn- tour, Banb. 211. Mouys v. Leake (Clerk), 8 T. R. 415. Frogmorton d. Fleming (Clerk) v. Scott (Clerk), 2 East, 467. Hodson v. Sharpe, 10 Ibid. 352. Plowden v. Oldford, Cro. Car. 582. Mote v. Hales, Cro. Eliz. 123. Moore (Sir F.), 270. Bayly v. Mun- day, 2 Lev. 61. Sidner v. Calver, Noy, 116. Gornal v. Kindlemarsh, Cro. Eliz. 88. Shepherd v. Twoulsie, 1 Bulst. 111. Nunna v. Gee, Cro. Eliz. 78. Gibson's Co- dex, 739.

(1) Repealed by Stat. 35 Eliz. c. 7, s. 24. Stat. 39 Eliz. cc. 4 & 18. Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 2.

shall within two years after such receipt be truly employed upon the buildings and reparations, in respect whereof such money for dilapidations shall be paid; on pain that every person so receiving and not employing as aforesaid, shall forfeit double as much as so shall be by him received and not employed; the which forfeiture shall be to the use of the queen's majesty, her heirs, and successors.

"X & X. Provided alway, and be it enacted, that no lease shall be permitted to be made by force of this act, in reversion, nor without reserving the accustomed yearly rent at the least, nor without charging the lessee with the reparations, nor for longer term than forty years at the most; nor any houses shall be permitted to be aliened, unless that in recompence thereof there shall be afore, with or presently after such alienation, good, lawful, and sufficient assurance, made in fee-simple, absolutely to such colleges, houses, bodies politic, or corporate, and their successors, of lands of as good value, and of as great yearly value at the least, as so shall be aliened; any statute to the contrary notwithstanding."

XXXII. STAT. 14 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 14. A.D. 1572.

"An Act for the Assurance of Gifts, Grants, &c. made and to be made to and for the Relief of the Poor in the Hospitals, &c."

"Where our late sovereign lord of famous memory, King Edward the Sixth, by his letters patents dated the twenty-sixth day of June in the seventh year of his most gracious reign, did found, erect, and establish, three hospitals in and about the city of London, called the hospitals of King Edward the Sixth, of Christ, Bridewell, and St. Thomas the Apostle; and by his said letters patents gave and granted power and liberty for purchasing of lands, tenements, and hereditaments, for the relief and sustentation of the poor in the said hospitals, as by the said letters patents more plainly appeareth. And whereas also our late sovereign lord King Henry the Eighth, by his letters patents dated the thirteenth of January, in the thirty-eighth year of his reign, did found an hospital in West Smithfield, called Little St. Bartholomew's, near London. And whereas many well-disposed and charitable persons have given lands, tenements, and hereditaments, to the relief and sustentation of the poor, not only in the said hospitals, but also in other hospitals. And as it is hoped many more hereafter will likewise charitably give, and where many of such gifts and assurances have been and are likely to be made by the last wills of the givers thereof, at which time, for want of counsel or other opportunities, it may happen that the right name of the said corporation hath not or shall not be truly named or expressed, whereby may grow some question of the validity of such grants, gifts, or devises; be it therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all gifts, grants, legacies, devises, and assurances, made or to be made of any lands, tenements, and hereditaments, by will, feoffment, or otherwise, to the use or for the relief of the poor in any hospital now existing and being in esse, and employed to the relief or maintenance of the poor in the said hospitals, or any of them, shall be as good and available in law, according to the true meaning of any such donor, grantor, testator, devisor, or assurer, as if the said corporation had been or were in the writings or deeds of such gifts, grants, devise, or assurance, or in such last will or testament, rightly or truly named; any such misnaming, misreciting, or not true naming or reciting of the said corporation to the contrary notwithstanding: saving to all and every person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, their heirs and successors, other than such donor, grantor, testator, devisor, and assurer, their heirs and successors, all such right, title, and interest, as they or any of them have or shall have in or to any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, so given, granted, devised, or assured, as if this act had never been had nor made. And where in the last parliament begun at Westminster, it was provided and enacted among other things, that thenceforth all leases, gifts, grants, feoffments, conveyances, or estates, to be had, made, or suffered, by any master and fellows of any college, dean and

STAT. 14 ELIZ. c. 11.

be employed in repair of the same houses.

Certain observations in the leases to be made by spiritual persons according to this statute.

No college shall alien any house without present and sufficient satisfaction.

STAT. 14 ELIZ. c. 14.

13 ELIZ. c. 10, s. 3.

STAT. 14 ELIZ.
c. 14.

chapter of any cathedral church, master or guardian of any hospital, parson, vicar, or any other having any spiritual living of any house, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, parcel of the possession of any such college, cathedral church, hospital, parsonage, vicarage, or other spiritual promotion, or pertaining to the same, or any of them, to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, other than for term of one and twenty years, or three lives, in manner and form as is mentioned in the said act, should be utterly void and of none effect. It is enacted and declared by the authority of this present parliament, that these such 'master or guardian,' of any hospital mentioned in the said former act, was intended and meant of all hospitals, maison Dieu, bead-houses, and other houses ordained for the sustentation or relief of the poor, and so shall be expounded, declared, and taken for ever."

STAT. 18 ELIZ.
c. 3.

XXXIII. STAT. 18 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 3 (1). A.D. 1576.

[An Act for setting the Poor on Work, &c.]

[Any person may give lands, &c. towards the maintenance of abiding houses for twenty years, without licence of mortmain.]

STAT. 18 ELIZ.
c. 6.

XXXIV. STAT. 18 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 6. A.D. 1576.

"An Act for the Maintenance of the Colleges in the Universities, and of Winchester and Eton."

Upon leases made by colleges, a third part of the rent shall be reserved in corn.
1 Leon. 307.
Savil. 129.

"For the better maintenance of learning (2), and the better relief of scholars in the Universities of Cambridge and Oxford, and the Colleges of Winchester and Eton, be it enacted by the queen's majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that no master, provost, president, warden, dean, governor, rector, or other ruler of any college, cathedral church, hall, or house of learning in any of the universities aforesaid, nor any provost, warden, or other head officer of the said Colleges of Winchester or Eton, nor the corporation of any of the same, by what title, stile, or name soever they now be, shall or may be called, after the date of this present session of parliament, shall make any lease for live, lives, or years, of any farm, or any of their lands, tenements, or other hereditaments to the which any tithes, arable land, meadow, or pasture, doth or shall appertain (3), except that the one third part at the least of the old rent be reserved and paid in corn for the use

(1) Expired.

(2) For the better maintenance of learning, &c.—Dr. Kennet says, "The memory of Sir Thomas Smith is highly to be honoured for promoting this act, which provideth, that a third part of the rent be reserved in corn, payable either in kind or money, after the rate of the best prices in the market. For, if a certain rate thereof had been fixed in money instead of corn, it would have been highly prejudicial to the colleges, the value of money abating as the value of land, and of the produce thereof, advanceth. This worthy knight is said to have been engaged in this service by the advice of Mr. Henry Robinson, soon after provost of Queen's College, in Oxford, and from that station advanced to the see of Carlisle." Kenn. Par. Ant. 605.

(3) To the which any tithes, arable land, meadow, or pasture, doth or shall appertain:—In Haynes v. Hollingbridge, (Sav. 68,) the question was, whether this should be intended of tithes of corn only, or also of tithes of money, or the like, as in London, where money is paid as the tithe of houses;

and it was adjudged by Manwood (the baron,) in the absence of Shute, that it was not intended of tithe corn, for the parliament never meant to cause those farmers to sow corn, but where they had corn, or had been beareth an annual crop, as arable, meadow, or pasture, and not of wood, heath, marsh, or the like: the reporter then states inwards a writ of error was brought, but the result is not stated.

This provision has failed in its object of perpetuating a rack rent upon such leases, although the money price of wheat is sixty eight times greater than it was when the act was passed. Fines are accordingly taken by colleges, upon the renewal of their leases.

Besides the restrictions above mentioned, there existed another made presented in Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20, by which the money of beneficed clergymen were rendered void in case of their non-residence; but that statute, as previously observed, capit. 432, n. 16, was repealed by Stat. 43 (Geo. 3. c. 84. Stat. 43 Geo. 3. c. 99, s. 2. (repealed by Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 1.) provided, that clergymen should not take to farm above eighty acres of cathedral church, halls, and houses; that is to say, in good wheat after Stat. 18 ELIZ. c. 6.

 and eight pence the quarter or under, and good malt at five shillings or under, to be delivered yearly upon days prefixed, at the said cathedral church, halls, or houses; and for default thereof to pay to the cathedral church, halls, or houses, in ready money, at the election of lessees, their executors, administrators, and assigns after the rate of the wheat and malt in the market of Cambridge, for the rents that are to be paid of the house or houses there; and in the market of Oxford, for the rents that are to be paid to the use of the house or houses there; and in the market of Winchester, for the rents that are to be paid to the use of the house or houses there; and in the market of Windsor, for the rents that are to be paid to the house or houses at Eaton; is or shall be sold the next market-day said rent shall be due, without fraud or deceit: and that all leases hereafter to be made, and all collateral bonds or assurances to the conveyance of the said corporations, shall be void in law to all intents and purposes, save wheat, malt, or the money coming of the same, to be expended to the relief of the commons and diet of the said colleges, cathedral church, houses only, and by no fraud or colour let or sold away from the profit of the said colleges, cathedral church, halls, and houses, and the fellows and scholars of the same, and the use aforesaid, upon pain of deprivation of the governor and rulers of the said colleges, cathedral church, halls, and houses, and all persons consenting.

Provided always, that this act or any thing therein contained, shall not be in any wise prejudicial to any lease to be made of a barn called Barn, with a certain portion of tithes, rising, growing, and being in the Southwick in the county of Sussex, being parcel of the possessions of the College in Oxford, so that the term demised in and by the said lease be the number of ten years from and after the feast of St. Michael the next coming; any thing therein specified to the contrary notwith-

Mouncken Barn in Sussex.

Provided also, that this act shall not extend to any lease to be made by the said college and scholars, of the College of St. John Baptist in Oxford, to any person, except Sir Thomas White, late knight and alderman of London, founder of the said college; which lease shall be made according to the meaning of the foundation statutes of the said college, of the manor of Fifield, and no other here-

Fifield demised to White.

XXXV. STAT. 18 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 7 (1). A.D. 1576.

STAT. 18 ELIZ.
 c. 7.

To take away Clergy from the Offenders in Rape or Burglary, and an Order for the Delivery of Clerks convicted without Purgation."

XXXVI. STAT. 18 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 11 (2). A.D. 1576.

STAT. 18 ELIZ.
 c. 11.

for Explanation of the Statutes, intituled, Against defeating of Dila-tions, and against Leases to be made of Spiritual Promotions in some parts."

Leases by a statute made in a parliament holden at Westminster the second year in the thirteenth year of the reign of our most gracious sovereign Edward the sixth, 'An Act against fraudulent Gifts, to the Intent to defeat Dilapidation of Ecclesiastical Livings, and for Leases to be granted by Collegiate

A lease or other conveyance to be made of any spiritual living, at the consent of the bishop, and (1) Vide Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 27. Stat.

 and seven years, under a penalty 9 Geo. 4, c. 31.
 of one acre; which provision was re- (2) Vide Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 9. Stat. 3 Car.
 Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 28; 1, c. 4. Stat. 57 Geo. 3, c. 99. Stat. 1 & the repealed or repealing statute 2 Vict. c. 106. Stat. 5 & 6 Vict. cc. 26, 27, by restriction against a lease of & 108
 made to a clergyman.

STAT. 18 E117
C. 3.

574

2. This act, or of the said act.—A parson covenanted with another, that he should have his tithes for thirteen years; afterwards he resigned, and another parson was inducted: the lessee brought an action of covenant against the lessor, and the defendant pleaded this statute in bar: but Coke, Dodderidge, and MaryAtton, agreed, that the covenant was not made void by this statute, which was only intended to void bonds and covenants contrary to Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20, (sect. 412.) but does not extend to bonds and covenants made for the enjoyment of leases, which become void by common law, as leases

But when a dean and canons made bonds among themselves, to acquaint each other with the benefit of particular prayers, and the everybody engaged, under such and such conditions, to make the leases, respectively, as there should be occasion, they were held to be void bonds under this statute, and where a dean and chapter obliged themselves to make to one a lease of lands, which were then in lease to another for many years to come; the covenant was deemed void, under this statute. Windsor, four Canons of v. Peoria, Mooty, 10 E. 1.

(3) In the said thirteenth case — The statute did not avoid bonds and contracts touching leases of houses in cities, boroughs, corporations, or markets according to Stat 14 Eliz. c 11 (ante 414) Gray v. Taylor, Hob. 269. Bayly v. Morn i Vent. 246

And where Sir Thomas White, late knight and alderman of London, for his good learning, hath founded one college in the University of Oxford, called St. John Baptist's College, and being seised of the manor of Fishyde, alias Fifield, in the county of Berks, did, together with all other his tenements, and hereditaments, give and assure the said manor, with the appurtenances, to the president and scholars of the said college for ever: and notwithstanding the said Sir Thomas White having then one Ralph White his brother living, and sundry kinsmen, to whom, by course of the common law, his lands might have descended, did devise and order, and by the statutes which he provided for the said house, and by order of the now visitor of the said college, it is obtained, that the said manor of Fishyde, alias Fifield, with the appurtenances, should be demised by the said president and scholars for the time being, to the said Ralph for the term of ninety-nine years, if the said Ralph should so long live, and so it is intended, that from heir male to heir male of the said Sir Thomas White, new devises should from time to time be made of the said manor with the appurtenances, to every such heir male successively for the term of ninety-nine years, if such heir male should so long live, yielding to the said president and scholars for the time being, such rent as now is reserved, with such further covenants and conditions, as by the said Sir Thomas White or visitor is agreed and appointed:

"VI. And where since the decease of the said Sir Thomas White, the said assurances to the said president and scholars, in all, or the most part of the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of the said founder, were found in some respect imperfect and insufficient in law, and that thereupon the said Ralph White, to whom the advantage of such imperfection came by law, did nevertheless take no such advantage, but did willingly make perfect the said assurances according to the true meaning of the said Sir Thomas White his brother, accepting only one lease of the said manor, in such sort as by the said visitor was appointed, with the copyholds and other appurtenances of the said manor: for remedy whereof, he enacted, that the president and scholars of the said college may from time to time demise the said manor, copyholds, and other appurtenances to every heir male of the said Sir Thomas White successively, according to the form of lease thereof already made to the said Ralph, and that every such lease so to be made and every covenant made or to be made for the performance of the same, shall be good in law, as if the said act made in the said thirteenth year had never been had nor made; any thing in the said act made in the said thirteenth year, or any other act or matter what-soever to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VII. And whereas in one other statute made in the said thirteenth year of her majesty, intituled, 'An Act touching Leases of Benefices, and other Ecclesiastical Livings with Cure,' one clause is contained, that the incumbent offending the purport of the said statute shall for the same lose one year's profit of his said benefice, to be distributed by the ordinary among the poor of the parish, as by the said branch in the said last recited statute appeareth: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that after complaint made to the ordinary, and sentence given upon any offence committed by the incumbent, whereby he shall or ought to lose one year's profit of his benefice as afore showed, that the ordinary within two months after such sentence given, and request to him made by the churchwardens of the said parish or one of them, shall grant the sequestration of such profits to such inhabitant or inhabitants within the parish where such benefice shall be, as to him shall seem meet and convenient; and upon default therein by the ordinary, that it may and shall be lawful to every parishioner where the benefice is, to retain and keep his or their tithes, and likewise for the churchwardens of the said parish, to enter and take the profits of the glebe lands, and other rents and duties of every such benefice, to be employed to the use of the poor as aforesaid, until such time as sequestration shall be committed by the ordinary, and then as well the churchwardens as the parishioners, to yield account of, and make payment to him or them to whom such sequestration shall be committed; and that he or they to whom such sequestration shall be committed from time to

STAT. 18 ELIZ.
c. 11.

Sir Thomas
White, founder of St. John's College in Oxford

A lease may be made to Ralph White
of the manor
of Fishyde by St. John's College in Oxford.

13 Eliz. c. 10.

13 Eliz. c. 20.

In what case
sequestration
may be granted
by the ordinary
of a benefice
demised contrary to the statute of 13 Eliz. c. 20.
In what case
the parishioners may retain
the tithes.

STAT. 18 ELIZ. c. 11. time shall justly and truly employ and bestow the said profits, or the true and just value thereof, without fraud or guile, to such uses as by the said statute a limited and appointed, upon pain of forfeiture of the double value of such withheld profits, to be recovered in the ecclesiastical court by the poor of the said parish."

STAT. 23 ELIZ. c. 1.

XXXVII. STAT. 23 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 1 (1). A.D. 1581.

"An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience."

13 Eliz. c. 2.
3 Inst. 198.

"Where sithence the statute made in the thirteenth year of the reign of the queen our sovereign lady, intituled, 'An Act against the bringing in, and putting in execution of Bulls, Writings, and Instruments, and other superstitious things from the See of Rome,' divers evil affected persons have practised, contrary to the meaning of the said statute, by other means than by bulls or instruments written or printed, to withdraw divers the queen's majesty's subjects from their natural obedience to her majesty, to obey the said usurped authority of Rome, and in respect of the same to persuade great numbers to withdraw their due obedience from her majesty's laws, established for the due service of Almighty God.

Treason to withdraw any from the religion established to the Romish religion.
1 Leon. 239.

"II. For reformation whereof, and to declare the true meaning of the said law, be it declared and enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that all persons whatsoever, which have or shall have, or shall pretend to have power, shall by any ways or means put in practice to absolve, persuade, or withdraw any of the queen's majesty's subjects, or any within her highness' realms and dominions, from their natural obedience to her majesty: or to withdraw them from the intent from the religion now by her highness' authority established within her highness' dominions, to the Romish religion, or to move them or any of them to promise any obedience to any pretended authority of the see of Rome, or of any other prince, state, or potentate, to be had or used within her dominions, or shall do any overt act to that intent or purpose; and every of them shall be taken, and intents adjudged to be traitors, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall have judgment, suffer and forfeit, as in case of high treason. And if any person shall after the end of this session of parliament, by any means be willingly absolved or withdrawn as aforesaid, or willingly be reconciled, or shall promise any obedience to any such pretended authority, prince, state, or potentate, as is aforesaid, that then every such person, their procurers and counsellors therunto, being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be taken, tried, and judged, and shall suffer and forfeit as in cases of high treason.

It shall be treason to be reconciled or withdrawn to the Romish religion.

The penalty of aiders, maintainers, and concealers.

"III. And be it likewise enacted and declared, that all and every person and persons, that shall wittingly be aiders or maintainers of such persons so offending as is above expressed, or any of them, knowing the same, or which shall commit any offence as aforesaid, and shall not within twenty days at the furthest after such person's knowledge of such offence, disclose the same to some justice of peace or other higher officer, shall be taken, tried, and judged, and shall suffer and forfeit, as offenders in misprision of treason.

The forfeiture for saying or hearing of mass.

"IV. And be it likewise enacted, that every person which shall say or hear mass, being thereof lawfully convicted, shall forfeit the sum of two hundred marks, and be committed to prison in the next gaol, there to remain by the space of one year, and from thenceforth till he have paid the sum of two hundred marks: and that every person which shall willingly hear mass, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred marks, and suffer imprisonment for a year.

The penalty for not coming to the church by the space of a

"V. Be it also further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person above the age of sixteen years, which shall not repair to some church, chapel, or usual place of common prayer, but forbear the same, contrary to the tenour of a statute made in the first year of her majesty's reign, for uniformity of certain mayor, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall forfeit to the queen's majesty for every month, after the end of this session of parliament, which he or she shall forbear, twenty pounds of lawful English money; and that over and besides the said forfeitures, every person so forbearing by the space of twelve months as aforesaid, shall for his or her obstinacy, after certificate thereof in writing made into the court commonly called the King's Bench, by the ordinary of the diocese, a justice of assize and gaol delivery, or a justice of peace of the county where such offender shall dwell or be, be bound with two sufficient sureties in the sum of two hundred pounds at least, to the good behaviour, and so to continue bound, until such time as the persons so bound do conform themselves and come to the church, according to the true meaning of the said statute made in the said first year of the queen's majesty's reign.

(1) Vide Stat. 29 Eliz. c. 6. Stat. 35 Campion's case, Sav. 3. Rex v. Herd, Eliz. c. 1. Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 4. Stat. 31 Skin, 99. Geo. 3, c. 32. Poster's case, 11 Co. 60.

1 Leon. 241. 2 Leon. 5. 1 Anders. 138. Hob. 205. 11 Co. 56. Cro. Jac. 480. 1 Roll. 91. Bridg. 120. 2 Bulst. 324. 3 Bulst. 87.

¶ VI. And be it further enacted, that if any person or persons, body politic or corporate, after the feast of Pentecost next coming, shall keep or maintain any school-master which shall not repair to church as is aforesaid, or be allowed by the bishop (1) or ordinary of the diocese where such school-master shall be so kept, shall forfeit and lose for every month so keeping him, ten pounds.

STAT. 23 ELIZ.

c. 1.
month according to the statute 1 Eliz. c. 2.

The king may seize two parts of the offenders' lands, &c. in lieu of the twenty pounds.

3 Jac. 1, c. 4, s. 11.
Hob. 127.

89, 92. Lane,

The forfeiture for keeping of a schoolmaster not repairing to the church, or not allowed by the ordinary.

(1) Allowed by the bishop.—The authority of the bishop over schools and school-masters, appears clearly from their original institution, and from the ancient as well as modern laws of the church.

In the ninth century, under Pope Eugenius the Second, the following constitution was made: (Dist. 37, c. 12:) "De quibusdam locis ad nos refertur. neque magistros, neque curam inveniri pro studio literarum, sed in universis episcopis, subjectisque plebibus, et aliis locis, in quibus necessitas occurrerit, omnino cura, et diligentia adhibetur, ut magistri et doctores constituentur, qui studia literarum, liberaliumque artium constanti assidue doceant: quia in his maxime divina manifestantur atque declarantur mandata." By another canon, it was ordered: (Extra. 1. 3, t. 1, c. 2:)

"Ut quisque presbyter, qui plebem regit, clericum habeat, qui possit scholas tenere, et admonere suos parochianos, ut filios suos ad fidem discendum mittant ad ecclesiam; quos ipse cum omni castitate erudiat." And (not to mention the decrees and orders of particular churches, which are very numerous in the ancient councils,) in the third council of Lateran, held under Alexander the Third, the following constitution was made, and afterwards inserted in the body of the canon law: (Extra. 1. 5, t. 3, c. 1:)

"Quoniam ecclesia Dei, sicut pia mater, providere tenetur ne pauperibus, qui parentum opibus parum non possunt, legendi et proficiendi opportunitas subtrahatur; per unamquamque cathedralem ecclesiam, magistro, qui clericos regulares et scholares pauperes gratis doceat, competentis aliquod beneficium præbeatur." The same constitution was not only confirmed, but enlarged, in the fourth Lateran council, under Innocent the Third, A.D. 1215. "Nos, prædictum roborantes statum adjicimus, ut non solum in qualibet cathedrali ecclesia, sed etiam in aliis, quarum suffragere poterunt facultates, constituantur magister idoneus, à prælato cum capitulo, seu majori et saniori parte capituli eligendus, qui clericos ecclesiarum ipsarum gratis, in grammaticâ facultate, ac alios, instruant, juxta posse."

Agreeable to the canons and constitutions abroad, was the law and practice of the church in England, with relation to the erection and government of schools; so, in the Saxon church, where public schools are plainly spoken of, as in being, and under the direction of the spiritual power; ("Si quis ex presbyteria voluerit nepotem suum, aut aliquem consanguineum ad scholam mittere in ecclesiis, quæ nobis concessæ sunt ad regendum, ei licentiam id faciendi concedimus;") and the very next constitution is: "Presbyteri per villas et viros scholas habeant; et si quislibet fidelium suos parvulos ad discendas literas eis commendare vult, eos suscipere et docere non renuant." 1 Spel. 595. So also, it was decreed by the synod of Westminster, A.D. 1138: "Ut si magistri scholarum aliis scholas suas locaverint regendas pro pretio, ecclesiasticæ vindictæ subjaceant." 2 Ibid. 42.

It was provided in the third council of Lateran, and by certain decretal epistles of Alexander the Third, (Extra. 1. 5, t. 5, cc. 1, 2, 3,) that nothing be taken pro licentiâ docendi; the same was made an express law of the English church, in the council of London, A.D. 1200: "His adjicimus, ne pro licentiâ celebrandi divina à sacerdotibus, vel docendi à magistris, aliquid exigatur." 2 Spel. 126.

As therefore schools for the instruction and education of youth, are most properly under the direction of the spiritual power, being the places where children are to be taught the first principles of their religion; so it appears, that, in fact, they have ever been under such direction; and that this statute was framed according to the known law of the church of England; in like manner, as the injunction of Queen Elizabeth, set forth (among many others) in the first year of her reign, had also been: (Spar. Coll. 78, Inj. 40:) "No man shall take upon him to teach, but such as shall be allowed by

STAT. 23 ELIZ.
c. 1.

"VII. (Provided that no such ordinary or their ministers shall take any thing for the said allowance.) And such school-master or teacher, presuming to have contrary to this act, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be disabled to be a teacher of youth, and shall suffer imprisonment without bail or mainprize for one year.

What justices
may inquire of offences done
against the statute of
1 Eliz. c. 1.

"VIII. And be it likewise enacted, that all and every offences against this act, or against the acts of the first, fifth, or thirteenth years of her majesty's reign, touching acknowledging of her majesty's supreme government in causes ecclesiastical, or other matters touching the service of God or coming to church, or establishment of true religion in this realm, shall and may be inquirable, as well before the ordinary, and found meet, as well for his learning and dexterity in teaching, as for sober and honest conversation, and also for right understanding of God's true religion." Which injunction is followed and confirmed, not only by the Canons of 1571, and 1603, but also by licences to teach school, (Coll. Can. 239,) which appear without number, on the records of particular sees; and by the denial of prohibitions or granting of consultations in the temporal courts, where they have been prayed by schoolmasters, to protect them from the censures of the spiritual courts for teaching without licence. So, in the case of William Bates, (1 Vent. 41,) who was sued before the commissary of Richmond, for teaching school without a bishop's licence; it was said, that prohibition was granted, because they endeavoured to turn him out; whereas, they could only censure him, he coming in by the presentation of the founder; and that prohibition would not have been granted, if the spiritual court had only attempted to punish him for teaching without licence. Bates v. Kendall, 2 Keb. 544.

But at the same time, it was held, that where the patronage is not in the ordinary, but in feoffees or other patrons; the ordinary cannot put a man out, and prohibition was granted, the suggestion for which was, that he came in by election, and that it was his freehold. Ibid. 538. "The consequence from such decisions is, that such a schoolmaster being once licensed, and having subscribed, as he is bound, to the articles and liturgy of the church of England; although he shall afterwards instil into the youth under his care, doctrines that are contrary not only to these, but to the Christian religion in general, and although this shall appear never so plainly; yet he shall go on, in defiance of the ordinary, to corrupt youth, and to act in downright contradiction to what he subscribed before him; and shall not be questioned in order to deprivation, but by feoffees or patrons, i. e. by those who (ordinarily speaking) are very incapable of judging whether he be guilty or innocent, upon these important heads.

"As to his election and freehold; if these are a bar to his being deprived by ordinary authority; why is not presentation by a lay patron, and the parson's freehold in the benefice, as good a plea against deprivation by the like authority? And yet this plea hath been always rejected by the temporal courts. And, as it is said in that case, that the loss of the freehold is only an effect or consequence of the sentence of deprivation; why may it not be allowed in this, that it is only an effect or consequence of the revocation of the licence, or inhibition to teach in virtue of it; since by the laws of all kinds, whether common, canon, or statute law, the licence appears to be no less necessary in one case, than institution and nomination are in the other case." Gibson's Codex, 1100.

The fact is, in our records before the Reformation, schools are often spoken of in ecclesiastical places; and the possession of them, in ecclesiastical terms. So, when archbishops or bishops were patrons, the grant of them is styled collation; (Reg. West. 50(a), 300(b); Sudb. 57(b); Court. 1100.) and that this is no improper language appears from the ancient register, where, and upon this head, is of the following tenor:

"Rex officario curie Cantuar' et episcopo commissariis solutem, cum placita de nominationibus scholarum in regno nostro Angrie ad coronam et dignitatem nostram spectantia pertineant, ac abbas et conventus de Scola Wilhelmi Pipard' clericum super collatione scholarum grammaticalium de frendon' trahant coram vobis in placitis in curia Christianitatis, sicut ex relata per nos accepimus: vobis prohibemus ne placita illud tenetis in curia Christianitatis, nisi cum hujusmodi placita ad nos, et non ad alium pertineant in eodem regno. Test. anno, E. iii. Anglie xvii. et Francie quarto. Parning. Canc." Reg. 35a.

As the grant of a school by an archbishop or bishop within his own diocese, is in law a collation, the right to which (if it was in question) is recoverable in the temporal courts, as the right of collation to a benefice is; so, by the same reason, may election or nomination, with presentation of the person elected or nominated to the bishop, for a licence, and the grant of such licence, be well allowed in law, the nature, or at least the nature, of presentation and institution. And if so, it is not easily conceived, how an election or nomination, and freehold, can be a stronger bar against deprivation in the case of a school, than lay presentation and freehold are in the case of a benefice. It is certain, that in one circumstance at least, the being deprived of a school, notwithstanding the notion of a freehold, is more naturally supposed, than the deprivation of a benefice; because the licence to the first is only tenante bene placito, whereas the institution to the second is absolute and unlimited. The Protector and Crawford, Style, 457. Gibson's Codex, 1100.

justices of peace, as other justices named in the same statutes, within one year and a day after every such offence committed: any thing in this act, or in any other act, to the contrary notwithstanding.

“IX. Be it likewise enacted, that the justices of Oyer and Terminer, and justices of assize and of gaol delivery, in their several limits, shall have power to inquire, hear, and determine of all offences against this statute: and justices of peace in their open quarter-sessions of peace shall have power by virtue of this act, to inquire, hear, and determine of all offences against this act, except treason and misprision of treason.

“X. Provided alway, that every person guilty of any offence against this statute, other than treason and misprision of treason, which shall, before he be thereof indicted, or at his arraignment or trial before judgment, submit and conform himself before the bishop of the diocese where he shall be resident, or before the justices where he shall be indicted, arraigned, or tried, (having not before made like submission at any his trial, being indicted for his first like offence,) shall upon his recognition of such submission in open assizes or sessions of the county where such person shall be resident, be discharged of all and every the said offences against this act (except treason and misprision of treason) and of all pains and forfeitures for the same.

“XI. And be it likewise enacted, that all forfeitures of any sums of money limited by this act, shall be divided in three equal parts, whereof one third part shall be to the queen's majesty to her own use, one other third part to the queen's majesty for relief of the poor in the parish where the offence shall be committed, to be delivered by warrant of the principal officers in the receipt of the exchequer without further warrant from her majesty; and the other third part to such person as will sue for the same in any court of record, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information; in which suit no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed: and that every person which shall forfeit any sums of money by virtue of this act, and shall not be able, or shall fail, to pay the same within three months after judgment thereof given, shall be committed to prison, there to remain until he have paid the said sums, or conform himself, or go to church, and there do as is aforesaid.

“XII. Provided also, that every person which usually on the Sunday shall have in his or her house the divine service which is established by the law (1) of this realm, and be thereat himself or herself usually or most commonly present, and shall not obstinately refuse to come to church, and there to do as is aforesaid, and shall also four times in the year at the least be present at the divine service in the church of the parish where he or she shall be resident, or in some other open common church or such chapel of ease, shall not incur any pain or penalty limited by this act for not repairing to church.

“XIII. And be it likewise enacted and declared, that every grant, conveyance, bond, judgment, and execution, had or made since the beginning of this session of parliament, or hereafter to be had or made, of covinous purpose to defraud any interest, right, or title, that may or ought to grow to the queen, or to any other person, by means of any conviction or judgment by virtue of this statute, or

STAT. 23 ELIZ.
c. 1.

5 ELIZ. c. 1.
13 ELIZ. c. 2.
Cro. Car. 10.
29 ELIZ. c. 5.

A remedy for a guilty person conforming
himself.
Co. Entr. 569.
Raym. 465.

Who shall have
the money forfeited by this statute.

He shall be imprisoned that is not able or doth not pay the forfeiture.

Service in a man's private house.

Fraudulent
assurances
to defeat
forfeitures.
2 Leon. 132.
Moor, 523.
pl. 691.

(1) Established by the law:—Which law requires the licence of the bishop to celebrate divine service there: “Oratorium potest quis edificare sine consensu episcopi, tamen sine licentia episcopi non potest ibi celebrari.” Lyndw. De Cel. Miss. c. Quam sit v. Oratorii. Such licences, both before and since the Reformation, remain in our ecclesiastical records, and are very numerous; (Reg. Crum. ff. 15, 16, 17, 20, 34, 39, 40; Abb. 3, 142;) not only for prayers and sermons, but, in some instances, for sacraments also. But the law is, that such licences be granted sparingly: “Episcopi potentibus licentiam audiendi missas extra ecclesiam parochialem, nisi cum magna difficultate, concedere non debent.” Lyndwood also states, in his Gloss. on the same constitution, “Hanc licentiam non concedet episcopus in majoribus festivitatibus;” and that, without the like licence, they shall not have a bell: “In dictis tamen oratoriis non possunt imponi campanæ, sine auctoritate episcopi.” Which restrictions were laid on private oratories, out of a just regard to the places of public worship; that, while the laws of the church provided for great infirmities, or great distance, such indulgence might not be abused to an unnecessary neglect of public or parochial communion.

STAT. 23 ELIZ.
c. 1.

of the said statute of the said thirteenth year, shall be, and be adjudged to be, utterly void against the queen, and against such as shall sue for any part of the said penalties in form aforesaid.

29 Eliz. c. 6.
Trial of a peer
by his peers.

"XIV. Provided always, that if any peer of this realm shall happen to be indicted of any offence made treason or misprision of treason by this act, he shall have his trial by his peers as in other like cases is accustomed.

Ecclesiastical
censures.

"XV. Provided also, that neither this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to take away or abridge the authority or jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical censures of any cause or matter, but that the archbishops and bishops, and other ecclesiastical judges may do and proceed, as before the making of this act they lawfully did or might have done; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding."

Farther provisions relating hereto, see 13 and 14 Car.
2, c. 4;

15 Car. 2, c. 6; 5 Ann. c. 5; and 23 Geo. 2, c. 28.

STAT. 27 ELIZ.
c. 2.

XXXVIII. STAT. 27 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 2(1). A.D. 1585.

"An Act against Jesuits, Seminary Priests, and other such like disaffected Persons."

Jesuits and priests in England shall depart, and none shall come into
this realm.
The penalty
for relieving of them, &c.
The causes
why Jesuits and priests do come into this
realm.

"Whereas divers persons called or professed Jesuits, Seminary Priests, and other Priests, which have been, and from time to time are made in the parts beyond the seas, by or according to the order and rites of the Romish church, have of late years come and been sent, and daily do come and are sent, into this realm of England and other the queen's majesty's dominions, of purpose, (as hath appeared, as well by sundry of their own examinations and confessions, as by divers other manifest means and proofs,) not only to withdraw her highness' subjects from their due obedience to her majesty, but also to stir up and excite sedition, rebellion, and open hostility, within the same her highness' realms and dominions, to the great endangering of the safety of her most royal person, and to the utter ruin, desolation, and overthrow of the whole realm, if the same be not the sooner by some good means foreseen and prevented:

All Jesuits and priests shall depart forth of
the realm.
Poph. 93.
1 Hale's P. C.
336.

"II. For reformation whereof be it ordained, established, and enacted, by the queen's most excellent majesty, and the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same parliament, that all and every jesuits, seminary priests, and other priests whatsoever made or ordained out of the realm of England or other her highness' dominions, or within any of her majesty's realms or dominions, by any authority, power, or jurisdiction, derived, challenged, or pretended from the see of Rome, since the feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist, in the first year of her highness' reign, shall within forty days next after the end of this present session of parliament, depart out of this realm of England, and out of all other her highness' realms and dominions, if the wind, weather, and passage, shall serve for the same, or else so soon after the end of the said forty days as the wind, weather, and passage, shall so serve.

No Jesuits or priests shall come into or remain in this
realm.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall not be lawful to or for any Jesuit, seminary priest, or other such priest, deacon, or religious or ecclesiastical person whatsoever, being born within this realm or any other her highness' dominions, and heretofore since the said feast of the Nativity of St. John Baptist, in the first year of her majesty's reign, made, ordained, or professed, or hereafter to be made, ordained, or professed, by any authority or jurisdiction derived, challenged, or pretended, from the see of Rome, by or of what name, title, or degree soever the same shall be called or known, to come into, be, or remain, in any part of this realm, or any other her highness' dominions, after the end of the same forty days, other than in such special cases, and upon such special occasions only, and for such time only, as is expressed

(1) Vide Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 2. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 30. Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 50. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.

This statute was enacted because it was the invariable practice of the Roman catholic priests to teach the people, that the queen was no queen, and that whatever had been done by her since the Bull of Pope Pius, was null and void.

this act; and if he do, that then every such offence shall be taken and adjudged to be high treason; and every person so offending shall for his offence be adjudged a traitor, and shall suffer, lose, and forfeit, as in case of high treason.

STAT. 27 ELIZ.
c. 2.

"IV. And every person which after the end of the same forty days, and after such time of departure as is before limited and appointed, shall wittingly and willingly receive, relieve, comfort, aid, or maintain, any such Jesuit, seminary priest, or other priest, deacon, or religious or ecclesiastical person, as is aforesaid, being at liberty or out of hold, knowing him to be a Jesuit, seminary priest, or other such priest, deacon, or religious or ecclesiastical person, as is aforesaid, shall also for such offence be adjudged a felon, without benefit of clergy, and suffer death, lose and forfeit, as in case of one attainted of felony.

Receiving or relieving a Jesuit or priest shall be felony.

"V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, if any of her majesty's subjects, (not being a Jesuit, a seminary priest, or other such priest, deacon, or religious or ecclesiastical person, as is before mentioned,) now being, or which hereafter shall be of, or brought up in, any college of Jesuits, or seminary already erected and ordained, or hereafter to be erected or ordained, in the parts beyond the seas, or out of this realm in any foreign parts, shall not within six months next after proclamation in that behalf to be made in the city of London, under the great seal of England, return into this realm, and thereupon within two days next after such return, before the bishop of the diocese, or two justices of peace of the county where he shall arrive, submit himself to her majesty and her laws, and take the oath set forth by act in the first year of her reign; that then every such person which shall otherwise return, come into, or be in this realm, or any other her highness' dominions, for such offence of returning or being in this realm, or any other her highness' dominions, without submission, as aforesaid, shall also be adjudged a traitor, and suffer, lose, and forfeit, as in case of high treason.

They who be in seminaries shall, after proclamation, return and take the oath.

"VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, if any person under her majesty's subjection or obedience shall at any time after the end of the said forty days, by way of exchange, or by any other shift, way, or means, whatsoever, wittingly and willingly, either directly or indirectly, convey, deliver, or send, or cause or procure to be conveyed or delivered, to be sent over the seas, or out of this realm, or out of any other her majesty's dominions or territories, into any foreign parts, or shall wittingly or willingly yield, give, or contribute, any money or other relief to or for any Jesuit, seminary priest, or such other priest, deacon, or religious or ecclesiastical person, as is aforesaid; or to or for the maintenance or relief of any college of Jesuits, or seminary already erected or ordained, or hereafter to be erected or ordained, in any the parts beyond the seas, or out of this realm in any foreign parts, or of any person then being of or in any the same colleges or seminaries, and not returned into this realm with submission, as in this act is expressed, and continuing in the same realm: that then every such person so offending, for the same offence shall incur the danger and penalty of a Premunire, mentioned in the Statute of Premunire made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second.

Sending relief to any Jesuit, priest, or other person abiding in a seminary.

"VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall not be lawful for any person of or under her highness' obedience, at any time after the said forty days, during her majesty's life, (which God long preserve,) to send his or her child, or other person, being under his or her government, into any the parts beyond the seas out of her highness' obedience, without the special licence of her majesty, or of four of her highness' privy council, under their hands in that behalf first had or obtained, (except merchants, for such only as they or any of them shall send over the seas only for or about his, her, or their trade or merchandise, or to serve as mariners, and not otherwise,) upon pain to forfeit and lose for every such their offence, the sum of one hundred pounds.

16 Rich. 2, c. 5.

None shall send his child or other beyond the seas without licence. Expired 3 Jac. 1, c. 5.

"VIII. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every offence to be committed or done against the tenour of this act shall and may be inquired of, heard, and determined, as well in the court commonly called the King's Bench, in the county where the same court shall for the time be, as also in any other

Where the offences committed against this act shall be inquired of and determined.

STAT. 14 ELIZ. c. 14. chapter of any cathedral church, master or guardian of any hospital, parson, vicar, or any other having any spiritual living of any house, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, parcel of the possession of any such college, cathedral church, hospital, parsonage, vicarage, or other spiritual promotion, or pertaining to the same, or any of them, to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, other than for term of one and twenty years, or three lives, in manner and form as is mentioned in the said act, should be utterly void and of none effect. He is enacted and declared by the authority of this present parliament, that these words, 'master or guardian,' of any hospital mentioned in the said former act, were intended and meant of all hospitals, maison Dieu, bead-houses, and other houses ordained for the sustentation or relief of the poor, and so shall be expounded, declared, and taken for ever."

STAT. 18 ELIZ. c. 3.

XXXIII. STAT. 18 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 3 (1). A.D. 1576.

[An Act for setting the Poor on Work, &c.]

[Any person may give lands, &c. towards the maintenance of abiding houses for twenty years, without licence of mortmain.]

STAT. 18 ELIZ. c. 6.

XXXIV. STAT. 18 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 6. A.D. 1576.

"An Act for the Maintenance of the Colleges in the Universities, and of Winchester and Eton."

Upon leases made by colleges, a third part of the rent shall be reserved in corn.
1 Leon. 307.
Savil. 129.

"For the better maintenance of learning (2), and the better relief of scholars in the Universities of Cambridge and Oxford, and the Colleges of Winchester and Eton, be it enacted by the queen's majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that no master, provost, president, warden, dean, governor, rector, or chief ruler of any college, cathedral church, hall, or house of learning in any of the universities aforesaid, nor any provost, warden, or other head officer of the said Colleges of Winchester or Eton, nor the corporation of any of the same, by what title, stile, or name soever they now be, shall or may be called, after the end of this present session of parliament, shall make any lease for live, lives, or years, of any farm, or any of their lands, tenements, or other hereditaments to the which any tithes, arable land, meadow, or pasture, doth or shall appertain (3), except that the one third part at the least of the old rent be reserved and paid in corn for the said

(1) Expired.

(2) For the better maintenance of learning, &c.:—Dr. Kennet says, "The memory of Sir Thomas Smith is highly to be honoured for promoting this act, which provideth, that a third part of the rent be reserved in corn, payable either in kind or money, after the rate of the best prices in the market. For, if a certain rate thereof had been fixed in money instead of corn, it would have been highly prejudicial to the colleges, the value of money abating as the value of land, and of the produce thereof, advanceth. This worthy knight is said to have been engaged in this service by the advice of Mr. Henry Robinson, soon after provost of Queen's College, in Oxford, and from that station advanced to the see of Carlisle." Kenn. Par. Ant. 605.

(3) To the which any tithes, arable land, meadow, or pasture, doth or shall appertain:—In Haynes v. Hollingbridge, (Sav. 68,) the question was, whether this should be intended of tithes of corn only, or also of tithes of money, or the like, as in London, where money is paid as the tithe of houses;

and it was adjudged by Mansfield (and baron,) in the absence of Shaute, that it was to be intended of tithe corn; for the parliament never meant to cause those farmers to sow corn, but where they had corn, or land that beareth an annual crop, as arable, meadow, or pasture, and not of wood, heath, marsh, or the like:" the reporter then states, "wherewards a writ of error was brought," but the result is not stated.

This provision has failed in its object of perpetuating a rack rent upon such leases, although the money price of wheat is nearly eight times greater than it was when the act was passed. Fines are accordingly paid by colleges, upon the renewal of these leases.

Besides the restrictions above mentioned, there existed another mode prescribed by Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20, by which the houses of beneficed clergymen were rendered void in case of their non-residence; but that statute, as previously observed, (ante 432. n. 14) was repealed by Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 84. Stat. 3 Geo. 3, c. 99, s. 2, (repealed by Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106, s. 1,) provided, that clergymen should not take to farm above eighty acres of

"XIV. And be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such of the privy council, president, or vice-president, to whom such information shall be made, shall thereupon deliver a note in writing, subscribed with his own hand, to the party by whom he shall receive such information, testifying that such information was made unto him. STAT. 27 ELIZ. c. 2.

"XV. And be it also enacted, that all such oaths, bonds, and submissions, as shall be made by force of this act, as aforesaid, shall be certified into the Chancery by such parties before whom the same shall be made, within three months next after such submission, upon pain to forfeit and lose for every such offence one hundred pounds of lawful English money; the said forfeiture to be to the queen, her heirs and successors. All oaths, bonds, and submissions, certified into the Chancery.

"XVI. And that if any person so submitting himself, as aforesaid, do at any time within the space of ten years after such submission made, come within ten miles of such place where her majesty shall be, without special licence from her majesty in that behalf to be obtained in writing under her hand; that then and from thenceforth such person shall take no benefit of his said submission, but that the same submission shall be void as if the same had never been. None submitting himself shall come within ten miles of the queen.

XXXIX. STAT. 27 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 3 (1). A.D. 1585.

STAT. 27 ELIZ. c. 3.

"An Act for the Explanation of an Act made in the thirteenth Year of the Queen's Majesty's Reign, intituled, An Act to make the Lands, Tenements, Goods, and Chattels of Tellers, Receivers, &c., liable to the Payment of their Debts."

[Estates of collectors of first-fruits and tenths rendered answerable for moneys received and unaccounted for.]

XL. STAT. 27 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 11. A.D. 1585.

STAT. 27 ELIZ. c. 11.

"... A Repeal of so much of the Statute of 5 Eliz. c. 5, as concerneth the eating of Fish, and restraineth the eating of Flesh, upon Wednesday. Sea Fish may be sold any Day in the Week saving Sunday. Victuallers shall utter no Flesh in Lent, nor upon Fridays or Saturdays. . . ."

XLI. STAT. 29 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 6 (2). A.D. 1587.

STAT. 29 ELIZ. c. 6.

"An Act for the more speedy and due Execution of certain Branches of the Statute made in the twenty-third Year of the Queen's Majesty's Reign, intituled, An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience."

XLII. STAT. 31 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 6 (3). A.D. 1589.

STAT. 31 ELIZ. c. 6.

"An Act against Abuses in Election of Scholars, and Presentation to Benefices."

"Whereas by the intent of the founders of colleges, churches collegiate, churches cathedral, schools, hospitals, halls, and other like societies within this realm, and by the statutes and good orders of the same, the elections, presentations, and nominations of fellows, scholars, officers, and other persons, to have room or place in the same, are to be had and made of the fittest and most meet persons, being capable of the same elections, presentations, and nominations, freely, without any reward, gift, or thing given or taken for the same: And for true performance whereof, some electors, presentors, and nominators in the same, have or should take a corporal oath to make their elections, presentations, and nominations accordingly; yet notwithstanding it is seen and found by experience, that the said elections, presentations, and nominations be many times wrought and brought to Elections, presentations, &c. in colleges, &c. wrought contrary to the intent of the founders. Cro. Jac. 533. 3 Inst. 153. 1 Roll. 157, 236. 2 Roll. 83, 465.

(1) Repealed by Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 105, 12 Ann. c. 12. Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 25. Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 94. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113. Stephens on Clerical Law, tit. Si-
(2) Vide Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 22.
(3) Vide Stat. 1 Gul. 3, c. 16. Stat. HUME.

STAT. 18 ELIZ.
c. 11.

whereof there is a lease in being, not to be determined
within three years, and all bonds and covenants for renewing thereof, shall be void, &c.

A rehearsal of
the statute of 13 Eliz. c. 10,
touching
assurances made by spiritual

Practices to defeat the meaning of the aforesaid
statute.

1 And. 65.
Leases by spiritual persons of their lands in lease.

A bond or covenant for the renewing
of a lease.
Moor, 789,
pl. 1089.
Godb. 29.

Leases made before this statute.

Churches,' it was amongst other things enacted by the authority of parliament, that from thenceforth all leases, gifts, feoffments, conveyances, or estates to be made, had, done, or suffered, by any master and fellows of any college, or by any dean and chapter of any cathedral or collegiate church, master or guardian of any hospital, parson, vicar, or any other having any spiritual or ecclesiastical living, or any houses, lands, tithes, tenements, or other hereditaments, being any parcel of the possessions of any such college, cathedral church, chapter, hospital, parsonage, vicarage, or other spiritual promotion, or any ways appertaining or belonging to the same, or of any of them, to any person or persons, bodies politicke or communitie; other than for the term of twenty-one years or three lives, from the time of any such lease or grant shall be made or granted, whereupon the accustomed yearly rent or more shall be reserved and payable yearly during the said term, shall be utterly void and of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding, as in the said act may plainly appeareth:

"II. Sithence the making of which said statute, divers of the said ecclesiastical (1) and spiritual persons and others, having spiritual or ecclesiastical livings, have from time to time made leases for the term of twenty-one years or three lives, long before the expiration of the former years, contrary to the true meaning and intent of the said statute: be it therefore enacted by this present parliament, that all leases hereafter to be made by any of the said ecclesiastical, spiritual, or collegiate persons, or others, of any their said ecclesiastical, spiritual, or collegiate lands, tenements, or hereditaments, whereof any former lease for years is in being, not to be expired, surrendered, or ended within three years next after the making of any such new lease, shall be void, frustrate, and of none effect; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

"III. And be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every bond and covenant whatsoever hereafter to be made, for renewing or making of any lease or leases, contrary to the true intent of this act, or of the said act made in the said thirteenth year (3), shall be utterly void; any law, statute, ordinance, or other thing whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"IV. Provided always, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend or be prejudicial to make frustrate or void any lease or leases heretofore made by any of the said spiritual or ecclesiastical person or persons or any of them, but that the same and every of them are of the like force and effect, as they or any of them were before the making of this present statute; this act or any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

(1) Said ecclesiastical:—Bishops were not comprehended in this statute; but were left to make concurrent leases, either according to Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28, (antè 262,) without confirmation, where the old lease was to expire within a year; or, with confirmation, at any time, according to the course of the common law.

(2) This act, or of the said act:—A parson covenanted with another, that he should have his tithes for thirteen years; afterwards he resigned, and another parson was inducted; the lessee brought an action of covenant against the lessor, and the defendant pleaded this statute in bar; but Coke, Dodderidge, and Haughton, agreed, that the covenant was not made void by this statute, which was only intended to void bonds and covenants contrary to Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20, (antè 432,) but does not extend to bonds and covenants made for the enjoyment of leases, which become void by common law, as leases

do by resignation, &c. Rudge v. Tinn, 3 Bulst. 202.

But when a dean and canons made bond among themselves, to acquaint each other the benefit of particular leases, and the body engaged, under such and such indentures, to make the leases, respectively as there should be occasion, they were held to be void bonds under this statute: and where a dean and chapter obliged themselves to make to one a lease of lands, which were then in lease to another for 40 years years to come; the covenant was deemed void, under this statute. Windsor (and the Canons of) v. Petrie, Moore and F. 109.

(3) In the said thirteenth year:—The statute did not avoid bonds and covenants touching leases of houses in cities, boroughs, corporations, or markets, according to Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11 (antè 434). Crane v. Taylor, Hob. 269. Bayly v. Munn, 1 Vent. 246.

"V. And where Sir Thomas White, late knight and alderman of London, for advancement of good learning, hath founded one college in the University of Oxford, called St. John Baptist's College, and being seised of the manor of Fishyde, alias Fifield, in the county of Berks, did, together with all other his lands, tenements, and hereditaments, give and assure the said manor, with the appurtenances, to the president and scholars of the said college for ever: and nevertheless the said Sir Thomas White having then one Ralph White his brother living, and sundry kinsmen, to whom, by course of the common law, his lands might have descended, did devise and order, and by the statutes which he provided for the said house, and by order of the now visitor of the said college, it is ordained, that the said manor of Fishyde, alias Fifield, with the appurtenances, should be demised by the said president and scholars for the time being, to the said Ralph for the term of ninety-nine years, if the said Ralph should so long live, and so it is intended, that from heir male to heir male of the said Sir Thomas White, new devises should from time to time be made of the said manor with the appurtenances, to every such heir male successively for the term of ninety-nine years, if such heir male should so long live, yielding to the said president and scholars for the time being, such rent as now is reserved, with such further covenants and conditions, as by the said Sir Thomas White or visitor is agreed and appointed:

"VI. And where since the decease of the said Sir Thomas White, the said assurances to the said president and scholars, in all, or the most part of the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of the said founder, were found in some respect imperfect and insufficient in law, and that thereupon the said Ralph White, to whom the advantage of such imperfection came by law, did nevertheless take no such advantage, but did willingly make perfect the said assurances according to the true meaning of the said Sir Thomas White his brother, accepting only one lease of the said manor, in such sort as by the said visitor was appointed, with the copyholds and other appurtenances of the said manor: for remedy whereof, be it enacted, that the president and scholars of the said college may from time to time demise the said manor, copyholds, and other appurtenances to every heir male of the said Sir Thomas White successively, according to the form of lease thereof already made to the said Ralph, and that every such lease so to be made and every covenant made or to be made for the performance of the same, shall be good in law, as if the said act made in the said thirteenth year had never been had nor made: any thing in the said act made in the said thirteenth year, or any other act or matter whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VII. And whereas in one other statute made in the said thirteenth year of her majesty, intituled, 'An Act touching Leases of Benefices, and other Ecclesiastical Livings with Cure,' one clause is contained, that the incumbent offending the purport of the said statute shall for the same lose one year's profit of his said benefice, to be distributed by the ordinary among the poor of the parish, as by the said branch in the said last recited statute appeareth: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that after complaint made to the ordinary, and sentence given upon any offence committed by the incumbent, whereby he shall or ought to lose one year's profit of his benefice as afore showed, that the ordinary within two months after such sentence given, and request to him made by the churchwardens of the said parish or one of them, shall grant the sequestration of such profits to such inhabitant or inhabitants within the parish where such benefice shall be, as to him shall seem meet and convenient; and upon default therein by the ordinary, that it may and shall be lawful to every parishioner where the benefice is, to retain and keep his or their tithes, and likewise for the churchwardens of the said parish, to enter and take the profits of the glebe lands, and other rents and duties of every such benefice, to be employed to the use of the poor as aforesaid, until such time as sequestration shall be committed by the ordinary, and then as well the churchwardens as the parishioners, to yield account of, and make payment to him or them to whom such sequestration shall be committed; and that he or they to whom such sequestration shall be committed from time to

STAT. 18 ELIZ.
c. 11.

Sir Thomas
White, founder
of St. John's College in Oxford

A lease may be made to Ralph White
of the manor
of Fifield by St. John's College in Oxford.

13 ELIZ. c. 10.

13 ELIZ. c. 20.

In what case
sequestration
may be granted
by the ordinary
of a benefice
demised contrary to the statute of
13 ELIZ. c. 20.
In what case
the parishioners may retain
the tithes.

mas, and donations, of and to benefices, dignities, prebends, and other livings, promotions ecclesiastical, and in admissions, institutions and inductions to the

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
c. 6.

Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or (1), bodies politick and corporate, shall or do at any time after the end of days next after the end of this session of parliament, for any sum of money, gift, profit, or benefit, directly or indirectly (2), or for or by reason of any

The penalty for presenting to a benefice, or for being presented for reward.
Co. Ent. 516.

ecclesiastical judge alone, they may now, in cases specified in this statute, be before the civil magistrate also."

Person or persons:—If a person has no right, present by usurpation, and by reason of any corrupt contract, gift, &c., that presentation, and the sale thereupon, are hereby void; for sale extends to all patrons, as well by right. In like manner, if when the sale is void, the void turn is purchased, in the grant of a void turn, as being a sale, is of itself void, and the purchasee comes in quasi per usurum, yet because it is by means of a sale contract, it is as much simony, as if the grant had not been void. Baker v. Cro. Eliz. 789.

It should be observed, that this clause is "if any person or persons," &c., and no allowance in the case of father and son, more than in the case of other persons, and that therefore the notion that a sale of the next avoidance when the incumbent is dying, and the son's privity to the purchase, is less simony in the case of a son than it would be in the case of any other person, is erroneous; as to what is said in Smith v. Shelbourn, (Cro. Eliz.) that the father is bound by nature to provide for his son; "it is to be hoped, that the law is meant by it, than, in a lawful way; and if that natural obligation sanctify a simoniacal bargain, while the church is full, it may as well make the bargain innocent after the church is void, and so take away all possibility of simony in the case of providing for a son." 1 Codex, 798.

Directly or indirectly:—Although the direct simony, is, when the church is void, and the void turn, (Bawderok v. Butler, Cro. Car. 331; Toddridge v. Alley, Jon. (Sir W.), 341.) or the purchase of it, is contracted for; yet may there be many kinds of unlawful contracts within the statute, while the church is full of an incumbent. As, 1. If the next presentation be sold, upon a bond given to pay such sum of money to the grantor, when the church shall become void. Anon. March. Winchcomb v. Pullerton, 1 Brownl. 165. Penn's case, 2 Brownl. 7. 75.

If money be given to one, on condition to procure a particular person to be presented, when the church shall become void, and that person be presented.

If the next presentation be purchased, with condition to present a particular person by name. Against which, as to all promises of benefices, the canon law, from the third Lateran council, gives this good reason: "Ne desiderare quis mortem proximi videatur, in cuius locum et beneficium se crediderit successurum." Extra. l. 3, t. 8, c. 13. And Hobart went further, and declared, "that if in the grant of the prochein avoidance, it appears, that it was to the intent to present his son or his kinsman, and it was done accordingly, that is simony." But this was otherwise adjudged in Smith v. Shelbourn, (Cro. Eliz. 685,) even though the son was privy to it. Anon. 2 Vent. 39.

To what extent the ancient canon law discouraged all tendencies to promises and engagements in favour of particular persons, will appear from the rules which follow: "Quia clerici quidam advocatis ecclesiarum comparant, vel quocunque modo possunt, acquirunt, ut postmodum eorum filii, vel nepotes ad easdem ecclesias presententur; præcipimus, ut id actius inhibere procuremus; eosdem advocacionibus taliter acquisitis, appellatione postposita spoliando." Extra. l. 3, t. 38, c. 5.

"Accepimus quod quædam ecclesiarum clericis sint tali tenore concessæ, quod post eorum obitum, alii nominatim succedant. Verum quoniam hoc iniquum est et sacris canonibus inimicum, et ideo non debet aliquatenus tolerari; mandamus, quatenus huiusmodi successiones tam detestabiles, et iniquas, appellatione cessante prohibeas, et omnino frivolas et inane esse decernas." Extra. l. 1, t. 35, c. 6.

"Detestanda iniquorum perversitas abstinere nesciens à vetitis, nec gaudere debito modo concessis, dignè plerumque officium excitat præsentis ad ea, quæ justa fuerant consideratione concessa, (cùm in abusum ea vergere circumspicit,) discretionè prævia revocanda." 6 Decret. l. 3, t. 7, c. 2.

"Sanè licet olim fuerit canonica constitutione decretum, quòd hi, qui promittunt aliquibus de beneficiis ecclesiasticis, cùm poterunt, vel cùm facultas se obtulerit, providere, promissiones suas (facultate se offerente) debeant adimplere: quia tamen (sicut experientia docuit) per promissiones huiusmodi, quæ per importunitatem nimiam (per quam non concedenda multoties conceduntur) et per ambitionem improbam ut plurimum extorquantur, aperitur via sub tali palliatione verborum ad promittenda damna-biliter contra Lateranense concilium beneficia vacatura, mortis alienæ votum ingeritur, et ecclesiis, ac prælatis, et personis ecclesiasticis gravamina plurima inferuntur: nos malis huiusmodi, et animarum periculis occurrere cupientes, promissiones easdem, et alias quascunque sub quovis modo, aut forma verborum de cætero faciendas, per quas di-

STAT. 31 ELIZ
c. 6.

recte, vel indirectè aperiri via valeat ad beneficia vacatura, auctoritate Apostolica penitus reprobamus, et omninò viribus vacuumus: decernentes per eas, vel ipsarum aliquam, ad providendum alicui nullum deinceps quomodolibet obligari."

The rule of the Reformatio Legum, (f. 29 (h)), is: "Non patimur ut patroni certam beneficiorum spem cuiquam, ullà scriptorum, aut pignorum, aut pactorum cautione, faciant, priusquam vacua sint. Nam hujusmodi conventiones magnam secum vim incommodorum afferunt. Itaque qui talem ullam sacerdotiorum minime vacuorum spem faciunt, jus collocationis illius temporis amittunt; et qui ad nondum vacua sic adspiraverint, ne ad vacua quidem post assumuntur, et etiam ab omnibus aliis submovebuntur."

iv. If one promise to a clerk, that in consideration he will marry his daughter, he will present him to a particular living when void, or to the next living, or to the next good living, that shall fall void in his gift, and he doth present him; this is a simoniacal contract. And Yelverton said, "that a presentation to the intent to marry the daughter of the patron is simony;" ("quod Richardson fortiter negavit.") Steele's case, Lit. 177.

v. If a purchase be made of the next avoidance, when the incumbent is sick, and like to die; in that case, it was said by Hutton, in Sheldon v. Bret, (Winch, 63.) "We in chancery have adjudged, that the grant of the next avoidance for money, when the parson was sick in his bed, ready to die, is simony; for the statute is, if the contract be made directly or indirectly, by any way or means." Which circumstance of the incumbent's sickness, is also mentioned in Smith v. Shelbourn: (Cro. Eliz. 685;) but there, the point under consideration was, the son's privity to the bargain, and the incumbent's illness was not brought into debate. But in another case, where, pending a quare impedit, the perpetual advowson was sold, and it was found to be, ex intentione, that a particular person should be presented after the usurper was removed, and he was presented; this was declared simony. Anon. 2 Vent. 39. Walker v. Hamnerly, 3 Lev. 115. 3 Salk. 323. For that covenant was properly made during the vacancy, inasmuch as the presentation being avoided, the church was void from the death of the last incumbent; and if the church should be said to be full, upon an usurpation, this would be a means to elude the statute; for then the patron need only get one to usurp, and, after that he may sell the next avoidance, and then bring a quare impedit, and remove the usurpation, and so the grantee comes in. Walker v. Hamnerly, Skin. 90.

But the sale of the next presentation of a living, the church being full, is valid, except where a clergyman is the purchaser. It was supposed, in the cases above cited, that if the incumbent be in a dying state, the sale was simoniacal; (Smith v. Shelbourn, Cro. Eliz. 685; Winchcombe v. Winchester (Bishop of), Hob. 165; Moore (Sir F.) 916; 19 Vin. Abr. Simony (B), 458;) but the decision of the house of lords, in For v. Chester (Bishop of), (6 Bing. 1.) has established that such sale is valid while the incumbent is dying, and the church full: by which the decision of the court of King's Bench, in opposition thereto, (Ibid. 2 B. & C. 635.) was overruled. Vide etiam Barret v. Glubb, 2 Black. (W.), 1052.

It should however be observed, that a grant of an advowson after the church is actually vacant, is void; but no lapse occurs till after induction to a second living. Salisbury (Bishop of) v. Wolforsten, 3 Burr. 1504. 2 Wils. 174.

But the sale of the advowson of a church which is full, is not simoniacal by reason of the incumbency being at the time of the sale voidable at the election of the patron. (Alston (Clerk) v. Atlay, 7 A. & E. 201.) and a conveyance under such sale will give the right of immediate presentation. Ibid.

If a church be litigious, and one party give money or other consideration to the other, to surcease; this seems to be a simoniacal contract. Concerning which J. de Athon, in his Commentary upon the legatine Constitutions, (Othob. de his qui fecer. v. Simonia, 135.) observes: "Quæritur, prædicto quod vero patrono presentante clericum, alius non patronus, potius tenetur, se objiciat, alium presentando; nam patronus componat cum tali potestate, et cesset ab inquietatione sua injuriosa, dum pecuniam sibi conferendo, an hoc sit species simonie in ipso clerico justo presentato?" The solution is, "Credo, quia nam hic redemptio vexationis injuriosa, non per patronum verum, principaliter facta pro suo jure patronatus conservando, in quo parte sua non vertitur simonie periculum, secus forte, si hujusmodi redemptio vexationis fieret principaliter ut staret sua presentatio certa personæ; nam tunc videtur redemptio facta ratione personæ presentantis, potius quam pro servando sui patronatus jure. Item, Simoniæ in presentato non mitti non reperio, nisi quando non solum vice ipsius presentati sit datio sed presentatio (ut patet ubique in materia simonie) non est reperire in casu questionis nostre."

"Here, it seems to be clear, that if the money is given in this case by the presenter, it is, on his account, it is simony, and where the money was the point, in Wilson v. Bradstreet, (Roll. 163.) (who were both suing for institution to the bishop, and Bradstreet promised money to Wilson to surcease, and he did surcease, and brought his action for the money;) Jones moved, that it might be considered, whether the contract was not simoniacal: i. e. whether it was not the same thing to give 10*l.* to another not to prosecute his admission, as it would be to give 10*l.* to obtain his own presentation. The point was not debated, because the matter turned upon a form in pleading, and Jones deridge said that it could not be argued, because the contract was not either with the patron for presentation, or with the clergyman for institution." Gibson's Cases, 708.

But the canon law seems to make a difference between a clerk presented only, and a clerk who is also instituted, the first being allowable for the second payment, and the

as having jus in re, than for the first time hath only jus ad rem. Othob. ut suprà. And therefore when the Archdeacon of York starved one who was in possession of tithes dignities and benefices, and the possessor "promisit, ei certam quantitatem annue se daturum, ut ab ipsius desisteret tunc;" which money the archdeacon took, and yet, "ab ejus molestiâ non quievit;" the decision of the Decretal Epistle thereupon is, "Si res ita se habet, archidiaconum restituere quod accepit, (si eum contra provisionem suam venisse constiterit,) compellere." Extra. 1. 5. t. 3. c. 28. Upon which, Gloss. smith, (Gloss. v. Restituere.) "Non ex eo quod præcipitur ei restituere quod accepit, ei qui dedit; immutur, non esse tunc tunc ex parte dantis, jus suum redimere dantis;" and afterwards, in a like case, "non dat, nullum jus acquirit; sed dat, ut acquisitum retineat vel redimat; quod suum est." Ibid.

It may be further remarked upon the construction of this statute, "that although a clerk, or patron, or both, do appear not to have been party, or even privy to the contract, this shall not remove the simony." 1. As to the clerk; my Lord Coke, (12 s. 73. Hutchinson's (Dr.) case, Ibid. 100,) declares it, as the unanimous opinion of the judges and barons at one time, and of the whole court at another, that although the presentee be not party to the contract, nor privy to it, his presentation, admission, and induction, are void. And the like judgment is given in Rex v. Norwich (Bishop of), (1 Lev. 337,) where the presentee pleaded, that he had no notice of the contract; and the court said, that the notice was not material, but only the corrupt agreement. 2. As to the patron; it was declared in Rex v. Norwich (Bishop of), (Cro. Jac. 385,) that a simoniacal contract with the friend or wife of the patron, (though the patron know it not,) is within this statute. 3. As to clerk and patron; in Calce's case, (cit. Cro. Car. 11,) where the contract was between the clerk of the incumbent and the wife of the patron, and it was found by special verdict, that neither patron nor incumbent knew anything of it; yet it was held to be a simoniacal contract within the statute. And the same thing hath also been declared in Rex v. Russell 1 Sid. 329." Gibson's Godex, 799. And vide as to Advowsons in fee, Barret v. Webb, 2 Black. (Sir W.), 1052. Grey v. Balfour, Amb. 268.

An agreement for carrying a former simoniacal contract into effect is not necessarily void and void. Thus, in Green v. London (Bishop of), (1 Marsh. 292; Taunt. 727,) it appeared that A. the incumbent of a living, and owner of the advowson, agreed with B. for the sale of the advowson, and for the immediate resignation of the living, and accordingly tendered his resignation to the bishop, who refused to accept it. Another agreement was then entered into between the same parties, for the sale of the advowson only, without any condition for the resignation, and at the same time, by a separate agreement, A. granted a lease of the tithes and profits to B. for ninety-nine years, if A. should so long live; under which lease B. received the profits till A.'s death; on A.'s death, the crown presented for that turn only, by reason of simony. The incumbent presented by the crown dies, whereupon B. claimed the right to present. It was objected by A.'s heir, that the second contract for the sale of the advowson, and the lease of the tithes of the same date, being for the purpose of carrying the former simoniacal contract into effect, was also simoniacal and void. But it was held, that whether the second agreement was simoniacal or not, the illegality, if any, extended to the next presentation only; and that, therefore, the crown having presented for one turn, B. had a good title to the advowson, and had a right to present on the present vacancy.

A chapel in the township of P. was endowed in 1428, by a deed executed by the then impropriator of the rectory, the then vicar, and the inhabitants of the township, and confirmed by the diocesan; whereby, in consideration of a yearly payment to the vicar, it was provided, that the curate of the chapel should receive all the tithes due to the vicar from the said inhabitants, and should be appointed by them; under which deed they continued to exercise the power of appointment and presentation. In 1797, an act passed for inclosing open lands in the township, in which it was recited, as a matter of doubt, whether the curate was entitled to the small tithes, or to a modus in lieu of tithes, the decision of which was left untouched by the act. In 1801, upon a vacancy, the inhabitants appointed and presented a curate, upon an agreement signed by him and the principal inhabitants, wherein they stated, that he was appointed to the curacy, &c. and to the money payment of 40*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.* annually, payable out of the lands and hereditaments in P. in right of the said curacy, together with the surplice fees, and all other profits, privileges, and appurtenances to the same belonging, and of right payable: that the inhabitants, considering that sum not sufficient for the proper support of the curate, had voluntarily agreed with him to pay a further annual sum of 29*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.* with a proviso, that "it should not in any respect alter the money payment of 40*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.* wherewith the said lands were and had been, time immemorial, charged in right of the said church."—It was held, that this agreement, entered into for the purpose of restraining the then curate from asserting his claim to the small tithes by due course of law, and furnishing evidence against his successors, was simoniacal, and the presentation made thereon void. And the right of presentation having thereupon devolved upon the crown, by Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6, s. 5, whose presentee had been licensed by the ordinary, a mandamus to the ordinary to license another curate subsequently appointed and presented by the inhabitants, who had given notice of having withdrawn their former nomination and presentment, and cancelled the agreement, was denied; and the rule was discharged with costs. Rex v. Oxford (Bishop of), 7 East, 600.

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
c. 6.

STAT. 31 ELIZ. c. 6. promise (1), agreement, grant, bond (2), covenant, or other assurances, of or for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit whatsoever, directly or indirectly,

(1) Promise.—This is in accordance with the rule of the canon law: "De hoc autem, quod episcopus exoniensis. Archidiacono beneficium, et cuidam clerico ante electionem suam prioratum dicitur promississe, ut uterque consentiret eidem: tunc prudentie respondemus, quod si manifestum est eundem archidiaconum, et clericum, ob causam illam, promissa recepisse, aut exinde confessi fuerint in iure, vel legitime convicti, ab altaris ministerio sunt perpetuo deponendi." Extra. l. 5, t. 3, c. 11.

(2) Bond.—Before the statute, a general bond of resignation upon request given previous to presentation, was good; and if unattended by any illegality, which, if it existed, must be plainly alleged and fully proved, was not sufficient ground for the ordinary to refuse admission. London (Bishop of) v. Fytche, (in error,) 2 Bro. P. C. 211. 1 East, 487. Et vide Rowlatt v. Rowlatt, 1 J. & W. 280.

"The bond and assurance here mentioned, being for money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit; and the temporal courts having chosen, in this particular, to adhere rigidly to the letter of the act; a way was found very early, to avoid the force, and defeat the intention of it, with impunity; viz. by general bonds of resignation; whereby the presentee obliged himself to resign and void the benefice, in three or six months after warning given, or else, indefinitely, whenever the patron should require it. Which bonds, (to speak only upon the foot of this statute,) do assuredly convey a benefit from the incumbent, to the patron; from the incumbent, as they render his title precarious, and the benefice less valuable; and he really gives so much to obtain the living, as it is of less value to him, than if he enjoyed it without any such bond. To the patron, as he may render the next avoidance more beneficial, by having it understood, that it is in his own power to make a voidance at pleasure. Not to mention, that the patron, in demanding a bond, demands more than by the rights of patronage he can justly claim; (viz. a power over the incumbent after institution, which of right belongs to the bishop alone;) and that the presentee, by giving a bond, obliges himself to do a thing that it is not in his power to do, viz. to make void the benefice by resignation; which can only be effected by the acceptance of the ordinary." Gibson's Codex, 800.

Where a bond recited that the patron of a rectory had by an instrument of the same date presented an incumbent, and that he had agreed to resign upon request of the patron, or the owners of the advowson for the time being, for the purpose of enabling him or them to present one of the two younger brothers of the patron, when capable of holding: it was held, (reversing the judgments of the courts of King's Bench and Exchequer Chamber,) that such a bond was simoniacal and void, on the ground that such an agreement was a benefit to the patron, and contrary to the Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 4. and (seemingly) the common law: it was, likewise, held, that from the recitals of such a bond, it must be intended that such presentation was made in consideration of the agreement to resign, and that it is not necessary to allege that fact in pleading. Fletcher v. Soudes (Lord), (in error,) 1 Bligh N. S. 144. 3 Bing. 598. Overruling S. C. 2 R. & A. 835.

Chief Justice Abbott: "The question, my lords, which has been proposed to the judges is, whether sufficient matter appears on the record to show, that, either by statute or common law, the bond upon which the cause of debt was brought in this case, and was upon the record to bear equal date with the writing of presentation therein mentioned, is void or illegal?"

"My lords, the question appears to me to consist of two parts; first, whether it appears on the record to show, that the bond was given as the price or consideration of the presentation to the benefice? Secondly, supposing this to appear, then, whether the bond is void by the statute or the common law?"

"As to the first part of the question, I am of opinion, that enough does appear upon the face of the record, to show that the bond was given as the price or consideration of the presentation to the benefice. If it were manifest upon the face of the instrument, it is not necessary to aver it in order to bring it to the notice of the court, or to explain the meaning of a statute; and that does so appear, it is only necessary to revert to the language of the condition."

"In this case, my lords, the statute recites the act alone, without any express qualification. The section commences with this preamble: 'for the avoiding of error and corruption in presentations, collations, and donations of and to benefices, dignities, prebends, and other livings, and promotions ecclesiastical, and in admissions, institutions, and inductions to the same, be it enacted, that if any person shall or do at any time after such a period, 'for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or for or by reason of any promise, agreement, &c., of or for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit whatsoever, directly or indirectly present or collate any person, &c., to any benefice, that then such presentation shall be deemed void.' It is to that section to which I would beg to call your lordships' attention, from which it appears, that the mere taking of the gift, profit, or benefit, is, in itself, an avoidance of the presentation. It is necessary, with respect to any question that may arise upon the statute of Elizabeth, or any question that may arise upon the common law, to see what the fact is, the question being, whether it is apparent upon the face of the instrument, that the bond is given as the price of the presentation. It seems to be impossible, for any person to read the condition of this bond, as it appears upon the record, without taking it, that it was given as the price of the presentation, and that the presentation was given as the consideration of the bond.

"It begins with reciting, that Lewis Richard Lord Sondes is the patron of the rectory, which rectory had become vacant by the death of the late incumbent. The next recital is, 'That my Lord Sondes, by writing under his hand and seal, bearing equal date with the above written obligation, presented the above bounden Brice William Fletcher to supply the vacancy;' from which it appears, that the presentation and bond are connected together; and then it goes on, 'And, whereas, the said Brice William Fletcher, has agreed to resign the said rectory into the hands of the proper ordinary, upon such request or notice as hereinafter mentioned, so as that the said rectory may thereby again become vacant.' Can any person read this, and not conclude, that the presentation and the bond were concurrent acts,—that they were founded upon a prior agreement to resign? This was evidently the opinion of Lord Mansfield in London (the Bishop of) v. Ffylche, 1 East, 487. 2 Bro. P. C. 211. That being so, my lords, for the reasons which I have just given to your lordships, I am of opinion, that there is enough upon the face of the record to show, that this bond was given as the price of the presentation.

"Then, my lords, the second inquiry which arises is, whether such a bond, given as the price or consideration of the presentation, is void in law. Upon this question, I receive the true inquiry to be, only, whether this bond is within the rule and principle of the decision, in the case before mentioned, of London (the Bishop of) v. Ffylche, ibid. I consider, my lords, that case to have established a rule and principle, binding upon all jurisdictions, except that of your lordships' house. It is true that the question there arose directly upon the presentation, and not upon the bond; but it is treated throughout as being one and the same; and as the presentation and the bond are the price and consideration of each other, it seems impossible to say, that the one can be good and valid, and the other bad and void.

"That case, my lords, arose upon a presentation accompanied by a bond to resign upon the request of the patron; a general resignation bond, as it has been called. The present case arises upon a presentation accompanied by a bond to resign upon request, whereby, and so as that the patron may be enabled to present one of his two brothers, in the condition named, when such of them as is to be presented, shall be capable of taking an ecclesiastical benefice; the agreement having been, that the presentee should resign, to the intent that the patron may present one of those two persons. This, therefore, my lords, is one of those that have been called special resignation bonds.

"The declared object of the resignation is, the presentation of one of the two persons named; but as the resignation of the incumbent must precede the presentation of another clerk, I am at a loss to know, how the presentation of the particular clerk is to be secured or enforced, or the incumbent restored to the benefice, if the patron, after having declared his intention to present one of the nominees, shall afterwards think fit to present another person. This would, undoubtedly, be a most dishonourable act, and, I beg to be understood, as not even surmising that the noble lord, who is a party to this suit, would act in this manner. But in deciding upon a question of law, your lordships cannot look at the rank and character of particular persons. It has been said at the bar, that a court of equity may prevent an ill use from being made of such a bond. I do not presume to say that this may not be done, if the intention to make an ill use be known and ascertained before resignation; my difficulty is, to see how this can be known and ascertained, unless a patron should be weak enough to avow it; and this cannot be presumed of a person who could act in the way I have supposed; and if, after resignation, the patron should present another person, how could the ordinary refuse institution? Suppose the presentee to die in the interval between resignation and the new presentation, or that he should obtain a better benefice not tenable with this, and on that or on any other account refuse institution, how is the incumbent to be restored, though the object of his agreement and of his resignation have failed? If these difficulties cannot be overcome, then the bond in question will enforce a resignation, whenever one of two persons named, shall be capable of taking a benefice, leaving the patron at liberty, in many, if not in all cases, to present whom he will.

"But supposing, my lords, these difficulties can be overcome, or be thought not really to exist, and the bond be considered only as enabling the patron to present one of his two brothers, still I am of opinion, upon the authority of the decision so often mentioned, that this bond is void in law. That decision may be considered as founded principally upon one or other of two reasons, or, perhaps, upon both; the reasons being, either that the bond there mentioned was within the statute of Elizabeth, and so void by that statute, or that the effect of the bond was to convert into an estate at will, an office which the law considers to be a freehold, and will not allow to be less than a freehold, and so the bond is void at common law.

"I consider, my lords, the bond now in question to fall within each of those reasons, and to differ from the general bond in degree only, and not in principle or kind. If it be a benefit to a patron to be able to call for a resignation whenever he may choose to present any other person, it must, in my opinion, be a benefit, though perhaps a less benefit, to be able to command a resignation in order to present a relation or friend. And if there be any benefit, the degree of benefit must be immaterial, and the case will be within the statute. If the law will not allow a benefice to be held absolutely at the will of the patron, and voidable whenever he may

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
c. 6.

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
c. 6.

choose to present any other person, in my opinion, the law cannot allow a benefice to be so held as to be avoidable, when a relation or friend of the patron may be capable of taking it, and the patron may think fit to present him; for in each case the estate or interest of the incumbent will be less than a freehold; whereas a benefice is spoken of as a freehold in all our books, whatever it may have been in its origin, or first constitution, which are now lost in the obscurity of antiquity.

"But further, my lords, it is not only required that a benefice shall be freely given and freely taken, but if resigned, it must also be freely and voluntarily resigned. Non metu coactus sed in spontanea voluntate. And how can a resignation be voluntary which is made in order to avoid the penalty of a bond, whether the patron has a right to impose the penalty at his pleasure, or only for a particular purpose? And ought the law to sanction an instrument which places a clergyman in a situation, either to subject himself to a demand which he may be unable to pay, or to make a solemn declaration contrary to his conscience and to truth? In my opinion, the law ought not to permit this.

"Again, my lords, the bond in question enables the patron to command a resignation in favour of one of his two brothers. If such a bond should be held valid, where is the line to be drawn, or what limit is to be fixed? If it be good in favour of brothers, why may it not also be good in favour of cousins, or more remote kindred, or of friends? If it be allowed in favour of two persons, why may it not be allowed in favour of more than two, of twelve, of twenty, or even a greater number? I am unable to discover any rule or principle upon which it may be said, Thus far shalt thou go, but no farther; and I infer, therefore, that no step must be taken towards the accomplishment of an object, which may reserve any benefit of this nature to the patron, or make the interest of the incumbent less than that freehold or estate for life, to be forfeited only for misconduct or by a regular judicial proceeding, which the law supposes him to possess, and requires that he shall be permitted to enjoy.

"For these reasons, my lords, I am of opinion that enough appears upon the face of this bond, to show that it is void and illegal."

Resignation bonds have found much favour and countenance in the temporal courts. Peele v. Carlisle (Earl of), Str. 227. Peele v. Capel, Ibid. 534. Durston v. Sandys, 1 Vern. 411. Grey v. Hesketh, Ambl. 268.

"For although they have been declared simoniacal, if a direct profit or reward be expressed as the condition of the bond; (Johns v. Lawrence, Cro. Jac. 248;) for instance, the making such a lease, the granting such a portion of tithes, the giving leave to inclose, &c.; (articles, which it is not likely any simoniacal patron will express in his bond;) yet there are other conditions which they have declared good and allowable. for instance, the taking a second benefice, the being non-resident for so many days or months, and the arrival of a certain canonical age of institution, &c. The first two of which, (however venial and pious,) carry in them a distrust of the person, by the presenting of whom to the bishop as fit, they are (as patrons) to discharge their trust, and are also an assurance to themselves an authority, which of right belongs to the bishop. Against whose taking such bonds, (which yet is a more formidable case than the patron's taking them,) a special petition was made by the clergy in convocation to the archbishop and bishops ann. 1541. "Item petit [prolocutor] que presentati ad ecclesiastica beneficia non contentur per diocesanos scripto aliquo obprobatorio, aut pena temporalis, obligari ad residentiam." And as this implies the growing of such a practice at that time, so the Register of Archbishop Warham, (Reg. War. 321, 328,) proves it; for there we find express mention of three several bonds for residence, given to the archbishop, before institution. As to the last condition, in favour of a child, this, (however full of paternal affection,) cannot be said to convert a benefice to the patron; but may well be said to ensnare the conscience of the clerk who is afterwards to take an express and absolute oath, that he has made no simoniacal promise or contract; not only of money reward, gift, profit, or benefit, (as the terms of this statute are,) but of any other kind, though not expressed in this statute, according to the plain meaning and intent even of the statute, and according to the express words of the oath, and the constant tenor of all former canons and constitutions of the church.

"But the greatest grievance of all, are such bonds of resignation as are absolute and indefinite; where the condition is, that the clerk shall resign, upon the request of the patron, or, upon three months' notice, or the like; which sort of condition, however mischievous to the church, as it is a visible inlet to the worst simony that the most corrupt patron can commit, hath been declared to be good in law, particularly in Johns v. Lawrence, (Cro. Jac. 248) and in Robington v. Wood, (Cro. Car. 180.) And though Noy speaks of a declaration in the court of Common Pleas, (that if the patron present one to the archbishop, having taken an obligation of the presenter, that he shall resign when the archbishop will, after three months' warning, this was simony within Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6.) yet the judgments have been according to the two foregoing precedents; because there was no averment, that they were for simoniacal purposes, and they might be upon good reasons, and for such ends, as the temporal courts allow. But (to argue upon their own principles) since there are certain conditions that they do allow, (as in the case of a minor, and such restraints as go no farther than to oblige the clerk to do his duty, and the presumption very strong, that the condition would have been expressed, if it had been such as the law warrants, and that nothing could have induced the patron to seek it in general terms, but that it was such a or collate (1) any person to any benefice with cure of souls, dignity, prebend, ecclesiastical, or give or bestow the same, for or in respect of any such cause or consideration; that then every such presentation, collation, gift, giving, and every admission, institution, investiture, and induction there- shall be utterly void (2), frustrate, and of none effect in law. And that it may be lawful to and for the queen's majesty (3), her heirs and successors, to collate unto, or give or bestow every such benefice, dignity, prebend, ecclesiastical, for that one time (4) or term only; and that all and

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
c. 6.

3 Lev. 337.

as was not fit to be particularly Gibson's Codex, 800.

he observed, that in Grahme v. (1) Vern. 131. upon a motion in of Chancery to stay proceedings in on a bond given by an incumbent that he (the incumbent) should request; the lord keeper said, "he testified that such a bond was good To which he added, that "the pre- that were in the case were not directly point, whether such bonds were simo- not." he therefore directed "that should declare on this bond, and defendant plead simony, and after that, and at law, come back to the court."

stated in Gibson's Codex, (800,) upon authority of "Watson's Clergyman's Law, that, if, under such circumstances, a parson shall offer to take the benefit of general clause, for indirect and illegal (as to gain a lease of glebe, or or the like,) the clerk may be relieved money, and shall obtain a decree, neither of the penalty of the bond, nor resign; the patron can make it appear, that he want and immoral, or some way un- for the benefice; and that, if the son to, to resign when A. his son be- qualified, and A. dies, or is never qual- shall not be obliged to resign for her son; or if it be, to resign upon sheets must be personal,) the clerk himself, by getting out of the way, making the patron from making the. Vide etiam Sydowen v. Holme, 125.

Patron or collate.—In Bawderok v. (1) Id. 331. it was moved in of King's Bench, whether donatives properly within this statute; and the stated, that corrupt donation, being in mischief with corrupt presentation, was equally within the remedy statute. And the same was declared, the donatives of the king's donation; although it cannot be intended, that presented for simony, and this sta- tion, that the patron losing the pre- thereby, the king shall have it; such a simony may be by compact strangers, without the privity of the patron or patron, and yet be within the of the statute, and because that may the donatives of the king; there- also are within the statute.

Utterly void.—Without deprivation, lance declaratory in the ecclesiastical was adjudged in Hichenecke v. Hick- March, 17; Sterens' case, Lit. 177; Winchester (Bishop of), 167; thus, parishioners might have denied their tithes, and have alleged in the spiri- tual court, that the parson came in by simony; it seems, however, that there would have been no remedy for the tithes, which a simoniacal incumbent had actually received. But al- though the presentation, institution, and in- duction, be void as to the king, and all others who have interest; yet they are not void to an usurper, because he has no interest. Ibid.

Where a parishioner had compounded with the parson one year for his tithes, and had not determined the composition, it was held, that he could not set up as a defence to an action for the next year's composition money, that the plaintiff was simoniacus. Brooksbey (Clerk) v. Watts, 6 Taunt. 333. 2 Marsh. 38.

The enactments of the canon law upon this subject may be ascertained from the following rules: "Presbyter si per pecuniam ecclesiam obtinuerit, non solum ecclesiâ privetur, sed etiam sacerdotii honore spoliatur: quia altare, et decimas, et spiritum sanctum emere, vel vendere, simoniacam hæresin esse nullus fidelium ignorat." Caus. 1, q. 1, c. 3.

"Si quis præbendas, vel prioratum, seu decanatum aut honorem, vel promotionem aliquam ecclesiasticam, seu quodlibet sacra- mentum ecclesiasticum, utpotè chrisma, vel oleum sanctum, et consecrationes altarium, vel ecclesiarum, interveniente execrabili ar- dore avaritiæ per pecuniam comparaverit, honore malè acquisito careat, et emptor, atque venditor, et interventor notâ infamiz percellantur: et nec pro pastu, nec sub ob- tentu alicujus consuetudinis antè, vel post à quoquam aliquid exigatur, vel ipse dare præ- sumat, quoniam simoniacum est. Sed liberè, et absque diminutione aliqua, collata sibi dignitate, atque beneficio perfrustatur." Caus. 1, q. 3, c. 15.

(3) The queen's majesty.—The crown can present upon simony, notwithstanding the death of the simoniacal incumbent, while the church remains void, and no other is in possession at the presentation of the true patron. But if any person have at first pre- sented simoniacally by usurpation, the right- ful patron, and not the queen, can present, for otherwise every rightful patron might lose his presentation. Winchcombe v. Winchester (Bishop of), Moore (Sir F.), 878. 1 Brownl. 164. Noy. 25. Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 16. 1 Inst. 180(n).

Induction upon a simoniacal presentation is void against the presentee of the crown, and who, upon being inducted, may main- tain ejectment against the person simoni- cally presented. Doe d. Watson (Clerk) v. Fletcher (Clerk), 8 B. & C. 25.

(4) For that one time.—In this particular, the penalty of simony, with regard to the

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
c. 6.

every (1) person or persons, bodies politick and corporate, that from thence shall give or take any such sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise (2), grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value (3) of one year's profit of every such benefice, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and the person so offending, corruptly taking, procuring, seeking (4), or accepting any such benefice, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon and from thenceforth be adjudged a person in law (5), to have or enjoy the same benefice, dignity, prebend, or living ecclesiastical.

The penalty for presenting or collating, or for being presented to a benefice with cure for reward. 2 Roll. 465. Cro. Eliz. 642. Cro. Jac. 385. Cro. Car. 330.

"VI. And be it further enacted, that if any person shall at any time within forty days next after the end of this session of parliament, for any money, reward, gift, profit, or commodity whatsoever, directly or indirectly (other than for usual and lawful fees,) or for or by reason of any agreement, grant, covenant, bond, or other assurance, of or for any money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit whatsoever, directly or indirectly, institute, instal, induct, invest, or place any person in or to any benefice, cure of souls, dignity, prebend, or other living ecclesiastical; that then such person so offending shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefice, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and thereupon immediately from and after the investing, installation, or induction thereof had, the same benefice, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical shall be eftsoons merely void: and that the patron or person to whom the same gift, presentation, or collation shall by law appertain, shall and may by virtue of this act present or collate unto, give, and dispose of the same benefice, dignity, prebend, or living ecclesiastical, in such sort, to all intents and purposes, as if the party so admitted, instituted, installed, invested, inducted, or placed, had been naturally dead.

No title to confer by lapse.

"VII. Provided always, that no title to confer or present by lapse shall patron, is somewhat mitigated: the former canon, both at home and abroad, (when they allude to this loss of patronage,) making it perpetual; at least as to the life of the simoniacal patron. Because patronage in England is accounted a temporal matter, and corrupt patrons were not to be reached by the ecclesiastical laws, (which could only touch the incumbent,) therefore, for the more effectual discouragement of simony, by affecting the patron also, this statute was made.

(1) And that all and every:—That which succeeds, relates only to those patrons, and clerks, who are party or privy to the simony: and, in the main, this, (as well as what precedes,) is taken from the injunctions of Edward the Sixth and Queen Elizabeth, (Coll. Can. p. 12, 75,) of which the following is an extract: "To avoid the detestable sin of simony, and because buying and selling of benefices is execrable before God; therefore, all such persons as buy any benefices, or come to them by fraud or deceit, shall be deprived of such benefices, and be made unable, at any time after, to receive any other spiritual promotion. And such as do sell them, or by any other colour do bestow them for their own gain and profit, shall lose the right and title of patronage and presentment for that time; and the gift thereof for that vacation, shall appertain to the king's majesty."

(2) Take or make any such promise:—So that, seemingly, the penalty will be incurred by such promise, &c. though the patron should afterwards present the clerk gratis.

(3) Double value:—According to the very or true value as the same may be worth, and not according to the king's bounty.

(4) Seeking:—It was said by 2 (Chief Baron), in Kitchin v. Catron (103,) that if a clerk seeketh to obtain a benefice by money, although afterwards the patron present him gratis, yet this does not disable him from being presented to the benefice.

(5) A disabled person in law:—In the ancient canons of the church, was positioned the punishment of simony, in bishops or presbyters; others were deprived. But the civil and canon law observe a difference, in point of punishment, between simoniacus, and simoniacus privatus. If the clerk be simoniacus, (i. e. party to the simony,) he is to be deprived of the benefice, and for ever disabled to accept of any other; but, if he be only simoniacus privatus (by simony between two strangers, who he was not privy,) he is deprivable of the corruption, but not disabled from accepting of any other. Snow v. Philips, 1 Roll. Watson's Clergyman's Law, 62.

In like manner, (according to this statute,) which speaks only of the case where the presenter was not privy to the simony, though the church is become void of the benefice by simony, yet he is not disabled from being presented again. But a presenter who is privy to the simony, is a person disabled from enjoying the same benefice during life; and the king or any other dispenser with him is disabled. Rea v. Norwich (Bishop of Exeter), Jac. 386. Hob. 75.

upon any avoidance mentioned in this act, but after six months next after notice given of such avoidance, by the ordinary to the patron.

"VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any incumbent of any benefice with cure of souls, after the end of the said forty days, do or shall corruptly resign or exchange the same, or corruptly take for or in respect of the resigning or exchanging (1) of the same, directly or indirectly, any

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
c. 6.

but after six months' notice.
The penalty
for corrupt

(1) Corruptly . . . resigning or exchanging:—The words of resignation have always been, pure, sponte, absolute, and simpliciter, (Reg. f. 306 (b).) to exclude all indirect bargains, not only for money, but for other considerations. And therefore, in Gayton's case, (Ow. 12.) where the resignation was to the use of two persons therein named, and farther limited with this condition, that if one of the two was not admitted to the benefice resigned within six months, the resignation should be void and of none effect; such resignation, by reason of the condition, was declared to be absolutely void.

But where the resignation is made caused permutacionis only, there it admits of this condition, "if the exchange shall take full effect, and not otherwise;" as appears in the following form of resignation in the Register 306 b):

"In Dei nomine, Amen. Ego H. de W. rector ecclesie de N. London, dice' volens ipsam ecclesiam meam cum ecclesia de P. dice' dice' cuius rector existit dominus de W. certis iustis et legitimis de causis sine dolo et fraude canonice permutare, ipsam ecclesiam meam ex causa permutacionis huiusmodi, et non alio modo, in sacras manus venerabilis in Christo patris domini T. Dei gratia Lincoln. Episcopi resigno, supplicans humiliter et devote, ut H. de huiusmodi causa permutacionis ipsam resignationem sic factam et non aliter velit admittere, et negocium permutacionis huiusmodi quatenus ad vos attinet fideliter expedire. Et protestor expressè in hiis scriptis, quòd si dicta permutatio debitum non sortiatur effectum, huiusmodi mea resignatio prædicta pro nulla penitus habeatur."

So that, "after two persons have procured licence from the ordinary to treat of an exchange, (of which sort, many are to be found upon our books,) and have treated, and agreed, and signified their agreement by instrument in writing to the ordinary, and then resign, and are cross-presented by the patrons, and one is both instituted and inducted, and the other is only instituted, and dies or refuses to finish; in this case, though they have proceeded so far, the resignation and all that followed upon it, shall be void, and both (if both are living) may return to their former benefices upon the foot of former possession; or, if one dies before he is inducted, and after the induction of the other, this induction, and all that went before, shall be void, because the exchange was not fully executed during the lives of the parties." Gibson's Codex, 821. Le Seignior Cromwell's case, 2 Co. 74 (b). Colt & Talbot v. Coventry & Lachfield (Bishop of), Hob. 152.

But no other collateral condition can be annexed to a resignation in order to exchange, more than what is expressed in the foregoing form, and in the cases founded thereupon.

What is said under this head concerning a conditional resignation in case of exchange, is confirmed by the ancient canon law: "Cum universorum; et infra. Intelleximus G. canonico referente, quòd cum ipse, et L. clericus, de permutatione præbendarum suarum inter se tractare cepissent, quam utilitati utriusque imminere credebant, tandem idem L. præbendam ejusdem G. cuidam consanguineo suo assignatam, præbendam suam ei, sicut promiserat, noluit resignare; et infra. Cum igitur deceptis, et non decipientibus jura subveniant, licet ipsi per se de jure non possent ecclesiastica beneficia permutare, ut tamen simplicitati venia tribuatur, mandamus, quatenus si constiterit prætaxatum G. taliter fuisse deceptum, amoto à præbenda sua consanguineo ipsius L. vel quolibet alio illicito detentore, eam restitui facias eidem." Extra l. 3, t. 19, c. 8.

"Ne concessione juris utentibus, præsertim circa spiritalia, illudatur; si qua beneficia ex causa permutationis ab aliquibus resignata, aliis quàm ipsis permutare volentibus conferantur, nullius hoc esse volumus firmitatis." Clem. l. 3, t. 5, c. 1.

A bond given to an incumbent, securing to him an annuity of equal value with the profits of the benefice upon his resignation, in order that another may be presented, who might give a general bond of resignation, so that the patron's son, when of proper age, might be presented, has been held to be a bond within Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6, s. 8, and void. Young v. Jones, 3 Doug. 97.

If a bond be given by an incumbent to the patron, on presentation, to reside on the living, or to resign if he do not return to it after notice, and also not to commit waste, &c., on the parsonage house, it will be good. But under such circumstances, a licence to the incumbent to absent himself from the living may be revoked. Bayshaw v. Bosley (Clerk), 4 T. R. 78.

From Partridge v. Whiston (Clerk), 4 T. R. 359, it is doubtful, whether a bond of resignation with condition to reside, and to resign, for the patron's son to be presented, and to keep the premises on the living in repair, be not good in law.

A bond given by a schoolmaster of an ancient public school, who had a freehold in his office, to resign at the request of his patron, is good at law; but equity will restrain any improper use of it by the patron. Legh v. Lewis, 1 East, 391. S. C. (in error,) 3 B. & P. 231.

Where a bond was conditioned for the resignation of a living, which the defendant, when requested, refused to resign; it was held, that he being a wrong doer, the jury were not bound, in assessing the damages, to

STAT. 31 ELIZ.
C. 6.

resigning or exchanging of a benefice with cure of souls.

Penalties inflicted by the
ecclesiastical
law be not taken away by this statute.

The penalty for giving or taking of rewards to make ministers
or to give licence to preach.

Who shall have
the forfeitures,
and by what means.

pension (1), sum of money, or benefit whatsoever; that then as well the giver as the taker of any such pension, sum of money, or other benefit corruptly, shall be double the value of the sum so given, taken, or had; the one moiety as well thereof as of the forfeiture of double value of one year's profit before mentioned, to be to the queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same, by action of debt, bill, or information, in any of her majesty's courts of record, in which no essoin, protection, or wager of law or privilege, shall be admitted or allowed.

"IX. Provided always, that this act, or any thing herein contained, shall not in any wise extend to take away or restrain any punishment, pain or penalty limited, prescribed, or instituted by the laws ecclesiastical, for any the offences before in this act mentioned, but that the same shall remain in force (2). and may be put in due execution, as it might be before the making of this act; this act, or any thing therein contained, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding."

"X. Provided further, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any person or persons whatsoever shall or do at any time after the end of this session of parliament, receive or take any money, fee, reward, or any other profit, directly or indirectly, or shall take any promise, agreement, covenant, bond, or other assurance, to receive or have any money, fee, reward, or any other profit, directly or indirectly, either to him or themselves, or to any other of their or any of their friends, (all ordinary and lawful fees only excepted,) for or to procure the obtaining or making of any minister or ministers, or giving of any orders, or licences or licences to preach; that then every person and persons so offending shall for every such offence forfeit and lose the sum of forty pounds of lawful money of England, and the party so corruptly ordained or made minister, or taking orders, shall first and lose the sum of ten pounds; and if at any time within seven years next after such corrupt entering into the ministry, or receiving of orders, he shall accept or take any benefice, living, or promotion ecclesiastical, that then immediately then and after the induction, investing, or installation thereof or thereunto had, the same benefice, living, or promotion ecclesiastical shall be afterwards utterly void, and that the patron or person to whom the advowson, gift, presentation or collation shall by law appertain, shall and may, by virtue of this act, present or collate unto, give, and dispose of the same benefice, living, or promotion ecclesiastical, of such sort to all intents and purposes, as if the party so inducted, invested, or installed, had been or were naturally dead; any law, ordinance, qualification, or dispensation to the contrary notwithstanding: the one moiety of all which forfeitures shall be to our sovereign lady the queen, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of her majesty's courts of record, in which no essoin, protection, privilege, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed."

confine themselves to the diminution of the value of the advowson to the plaintiff by the defendant's life interest, nor, in estimating the annual proceeds, to deduct the curate's stipend. Fletcher v. Souder (Lord), in error; 1 Bligh N. S. 144. 3 Bing. 598, overruling S. C. 5 B. & A. 835.

(1) Any pension:—Before this statute, the bishop, in cases of resignation, might have assigned a pension, during life, out of the benefice resigned, to the person resigning; of which numerous instances occur before this statute; and the Reformatio Legum, (62 (b).) supposes this to be law, in forbidding pensions to all persons upon resignation, "nisi ejus vel propter morbum vel senectutem habenda sit ratio;" and adds: "Quæ cum occurrant impedimenta, propriis illorum locorum episcopus adcurat, et is tantum constituet pensionem, quantum sequam esse putabit;" accordingly in the Registers of Grindal, (Grind. 152 b. 12^a (a), 258 (a), and Whitgift, (1 Whit. 123 (a), 131 (a).) as well as in those that are more ancient, several licences to resign exist, ad communicand' super pensionem annuâ, in order to resignation.

(2) Remain in force:—So far are the ancient ecclesiastical laws against simony and the powers of the spiritual court in the execution of those laws, from being superseded by this act, that they are expressly confirmed by it. And all promises and contracts, of what kind soever, being forbidden, and consequently punishable by the laws ecclesiastical; it follows, that it could not possibly be the intention of the legislators to make this statute the rule and measure of simony; but only to check and restrain it, in the most notorious branches.

STAT. 35 ELIZ.
c. 1.

The punishment for refusing to abjure, not departing, or returning without licence.

An offender shall be discharged upon his open submission.
Latch. 16.

The form of the submission.

The minister shall enter the submission in a book.

The offender submitting falleth into a relapse.

The forfeiture for the keeping a recusant in one's house after notice.
Repealed by

and allowed in cases of abjuration for felony; and in such cases of let or stay, then within such reasonable and convenient time after, as the justices shall requireth in case of abjuration for felony as is aforesaid; and that the justices of peace before whom any such abjuration shall happen to be made, as is aforesaid, shall cause the same presently to be entered of record before them, and shall cause the same to the justices of assizes and gaol-delivery of the said county, at the next assizes or gaol-delivery to be holden in the same county.

"III. And if any such offender, which by the tenour and intent of this act shall be abjured as is aforesaid, shall refuse to make such abjuration as is aforesaid, or after such abjuration made, shall not go to such haven, and within such time as before appointed, and from thence depart out of this realm, according to the present act, or after such his departure shall return or come again into any of her majesty's realms or dominions, without her majesty's special licence in that behalf first had and obtained: that then in every such case the person so offending shall be adjudged a felon, and shall suffer as in case of felony, without benefit of clergy.

"IV. And furthermore be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that if any person or persons that shall at any time hereafter offend against this act, shall before he or they be so warned or required to make abjuration according to the tenour of this act, repair to some parish church on some Sunday or other festival day, and then and there hear divine service, and at service-time before the sermon or reading of the Gospel, make public and open submission or declaration of his and their conformity to her majesty's laws and statutes, as before in this act is declared and appointed; that then the same offender shall thereupon be clearly discharged of and from all and every the penalties and punishments inflicted or imposed by this act for any of the offences aforesaid. The same submission to be made as hereafter followeth; that is to say,

"V. 'I A. B. do humbly confess and acknowledge, that I have grievously offended God in contemning her majesty's godly and lawful government of authority, by absenting myself from church, and from hearing divine service, contrary to the godly laws and statutes of this realm, and in using and frequenting disordered and unlawful conventicles and assemblies, under pretence and colour of exercise of religion; and I am heartily sorry for the same, and do acknowledge and testify in my conscience, that no other person hath or ought to have any power or authority over her majesty: and I do promise and protest, without dissimulation, or any colour or means of any dispensation, that from henceforth I will from time to time obey and perform her majesty's laws and statutes, repairing to the church and hearing divine service, and do my utmost endeavours to maintain and defend the same.'

"VI. And that every minister or curate of every parish where such submission and declaration of conformity shall hereafter be so made by any such offender as aforesaid, shall presently enter the same into a book to be kept in every parish for that purpose, and within ten days next following shall certify the same in writing to the bishop of the same diocese.

"VII. Provided nevertheless, that if any such offender, after such submission made as is aforesaid, shall afterwards fall into relapse, or afterwards obstinately refuse to repair to some church, chapel, or usual place of common prayer, to hear divine service, and shall forbear the same as aforesaid, or shall come or be present at any such assemblies, conventicles, or meetings, under colour or pretence of any exercise of religion, contrary to her majesty's laws and statutes; that then every such offender shall lose all such benefit as he or she might otherwise by virtue of this act have or enjoy by reason of their said submission, and shall thereupon stand and remain in such plight, condition, and degree, to all intents, as though no submission had never been made.

"VIII. And for that every person having house and family is in duty bound to have special regard to the good government and ordering of the same, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons shall at any time hereafter relieve, maintain, retain, or keep in his or their house or otherwise, any person which shall obstinately refuse to come to some church, chapel, or usual common prayer, to hear divine service, and shall forbear the same by the month together, contrary to the laws and statutes of this realm; that any person which shall so relieve, maintain, retain, or keep any such person as aforesaid, after notice thereof to him or them given by the ordinary, or any justice of assizes of the circuit, or any justice of peace of the county, the minister, curate, or churchwardens of the parish where such person shall be, or by any of them, shall forfeit to the queen's majesty for every month that he or they shall so relieve, maintain, retain, or keep any such person so offending.

Provided nevertheless, that this act shall not in any wise extend to impeach any person or persons for relieving, maintaining, or keeping any wife, father, mother, child, or children, wards, brother, or sister, or father or mother, not having any certain place of habitation of their husbands or wives of any of them; or for relieving, maintaining, or keeping any such person as shall be committed by authority to the custody of whom they shall be so relieved, maintained, or kept; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

And for the more speedy levying and recovering, for and by the queen's majesty, of all and singular the pains, duties, forfeitures, and payments which at her death shall accrue, grow, or be payable by virtue of this act, or of the statute made in the three and twentieth year of her majesty's reign concerning recusants, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every the said duties, forfeitures, and payments, shall and may be recovered and levied to her majesty's use, by action of debt, bill, plaint, information, or otherwise, in any court commonly called the King's Bench, Common Pleas, or Exchequer, in England, and in all respects, as by the ordinary course of the common laws of this realm touching other debt due by any such person in any other case should or may be levied, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

Provided always, that the third part of the penalties to be had or received by virtue of this act shall be employed and bestowed to such good and charitable uses in such manner and form, as is limited and appointed in the statute made in the twenty-eighth year of her majesty's reign touching recusants.

Provided also, that no popish recusant, or feme covert, shall be compelled to abjure by virtue of this act.

Provided also, that every person shall abjure by force of this act, or by the statute made in the twenty-eighth year of her majesty's reign touching recusants, being thereunto required as aforesaid, shall forfeit and lose to her majesty all his goods and chattels for ever; and shall further lose all his lands, tenements, and hereditaments for and during the life only of such offender, and no more; and that the wife of any offender, by force of this act, shall not lose her dower, nor that any corruption of blood shall grow or be by reason of any offence committed in this act; but that the heir of every such offender, by force of this act, shall and may, after the death of every offender, have and enjoy the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of such offender, as if this act had not been made; and that this act shall continue no longer than to the end of the next session of parliament.

1 Jac. 1, c. 4; 3 Jac. 1, cc. 4 & 5; 7 Jac. 1, c. 6; 25 Car. 2, c. 2; and see 16 Geo. 2, c. 30.

STAT. 35 ELIZ. c. 1.

3 Jac. 1, c. 4, s. 31, and other provisions relating hereto, s. 32.

What sort of recusants may be kept, &c. Repealed by 3 Jac. 1, c. 4, s. 31.

The queen's remedy to recover forfeitures, &c. 23 Eliz. c. 1. Cro. Jac. 481.

In what manner one part of the penalties shall be employed.

29 Eliz. c. 6. Popish recusants.

Feme covert.

The forfeiture of him who abjureth or refuseth to abjure.

The wife shall lose no dower, nor the heir any land, for these offences.

Farther provisions concerning recusants. 16 Geo. 2, c. 30.

XLIV. STAT. 35 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 2(1). A.D. 1583.

for restraining Popish Recusants to some certain Places of Abode."

the better discovering and avoiding of such traitorous and most dangerous persons and attempts, as are daily devised and practised against our most

STAT. 35 ELIZ. c. 2.

Penalty of a convicted

Stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 4. Stat. 3 Jac. 1, c. 18. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 10 Geo. 3, c. 5. Stat. 3 Geo. 4, c. 7. Stat. 1 & 2 Gul. 4, c. 9.

STAT. 35 ELIZ.
c. 2.

popish recusant removing above five miles from his house.

Where a recusant having no house shall make his abode.

3 Bulst. 87.
Carth. 291.

Recusants that shall be convicted hereafter shall repair to their usual dwelling.

The penalty of an offender.

What a recusant shall do that hath no place of abode.

The forfeiture of a recusant

gracious sovereign lady the queen's majesty, and the happy estate of this weal, by sundry wicked and seditious persons, who terming themselves Catholics, and being indeed spies and intelligencers, not only for her majesty's enemies, but also for rebellious and traitorous subjects born within her realms and dominions, and hiding their most detestable and devilish purposes under a false pretext of religion and conscience, do secretly wander and shift from place within this realm, to corrupt and seduce her majesty's subjects, and stir them to sedition and rebellion:

"II. Be it ordained and enacted by our sovereign lady the queen, and the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that every person above the sixteen years, born within any of the queen's majesty's realms and dominions, made denizen, being a popish recusant, and before the end of this session of parliament convicted for not repairing to some church, chapel, or usual place of prayer, to hear divine service there, but forbearing the same, contrary to the laws and statutes heretofore made and provided in that behalf, and any certain place of dwelling and abode within this realm, shall within the next after the end of this session of parliament, (if they be within this realm, and not restrained or stayed either by imprisonment, or by her majesty's commandment, or by order and direction of some six or more of the privy council, such sickness and infirmity of body, as they shall not be able to travel, or imminent danger of life, and in such cases of absence out of the realm, shall stay, then within twenty days next after they shall return into the realm, enlarged of such imprisonment or restraint, and shall be able to travel,) repair to their place of dwelling where they usually heretofore made their common abode, and shall not at any time after pass or remove above five miles from thence:

"III. And also that every person being above the age of sixteen years, born within any her majesty's realms or dominions, or made denizen, and which hereafter shall have, any certain place of dwelling and abode within this realm, which being then a popish recusant, shall at any time hereafter be convicted for not repairing to some church, chapel, or usual place of prayer, to hear divine service there, but forbearing the same contrary to the laws and statutes, and being within this realm at the time that they shall be convicted, shall within forty days next after the same conviction, (if they be restrained or stayed by imprisonment or otherwise, as is aforesaid, and in such cases of restraint and stay, then within twenty days next after they shall be enlarged of such imprisonment or restraint, and shall be able to travel,) repair to their place of usual dwelling and abode, and shall not at any time after remove above five miles from thence; upon pain that every person which shall offend against the tenour and intent of this act in any thing before mentioned, shall lose and forfeit all his and their goods and chattels, and shall lose and forfeit to the queen's majesty all the lands, tenements, and houses, and all the rents and annuities of every such person so doing or offending, and the life of the same offender.

"IV. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person above the age of sixteen years, born within any her majesty's realms or dominions, and not having any certain place of dwelling and abode within this realm, and being a popish recusant, not usually repairing to some church, chapel, or usual place of common prayer, but forbearing the same contrary to the same laws and statutes, and that behalf made, shall within forty days next after the end of this session of parliament, (if they be then within this realm, and not imprisoned, restrained, or stayed as aforesaid, and in such case of absence out of the realm, imprisoned, or stayed, then within twenty days next after they shall return into the realm, and be enlarged of such imprisonment or restraint, and shall be able to travel,) repair to the place where such person was born, or where the father or mother of such person shall then be dwelling, and shall not at any time after remove or pass above five miles from thence: upon pain that every person which shall offend against the tenour and intent of this act in

mentioned, shall lose and forfeit all his and their goods and chattels, and also forfeit to the queen's majesty all the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and all the rents and annuities of every such person so doing or offending, for the life of the same person.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every such person as is before mentioned, which hath or shall have any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, by copy of court-roll, or by any other customary tenure at the will of a lord, according to the custom of any manor, shall forfeit all and singular his and their said lands, tenements, and hereditaments so holden by copy of court-roll, or by any other customary tenure, as aforesaid, for and during the life of such offender, (if his estate so long continue,) to the lord or lords of whom the same be immediately holden, if the same lord or lords be not then a popish recusant, and contrary to the laws and statutes aforesaid, nor seised or possessed upon trust to him or her, or to the behoof of any such recusant as aforesaid, and in such case the same forfeitures to be to the queen's majesty.

VI. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such persons, as by the intent and true meaning of this act are to make repairs to their place of dwelling and abode, or to the place where they were born, or where their father or mother shall be dwelling, and not to remove or pass above five miles from thence as is aforesaid, shall within twenty days next after their coming to any of the said places (as the case shall happen) notify their names thither, and present themselves, and deliver their true names in writing, to the minister or curate of the same parish, and to the constable, headborough, or tithingman of the town, and thereupon the said minister or curate shall presently enter the same into a book to be kept in every parish for that purpose.

VII. And afterwards the said minister or curate, and the said constable, headborough, or tithingman, shall certify the same in writing to the justices of the peace of the same county at the next general or quarter-sessions to be holden in the same county, and the said justices shall cause the same to be entered by the clerk of the peace in the rolls of the same sessions.

VIII. And to the end that the realm be not pestered and overcharged with the multitude of such seditious and dangerous people as is aforesaid, who having no or no ability to answer or satisfy any competent penalty for their contempt and disobedience of the said laws and statutes, and being committed to prison for the same, do live for the most part in better case there, than they could if they were abroad at their own liberty: the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, do most humbly and instantly beseech the queen's majesty, that it may be further enacted, that if any such person or persons, being a popish recusant, (not being a feme covert, and not having lands, tenements, rents, or annuities, of an absolute estate of inheritance or freehold, of clear yearly value of twenty marks, above all charges, to their own use and behoof, and not upon any secret trust or confidence for any other, or goods or chattels in their own right, and to their own proper use and behoof, and not upon any such secret trust and confidence for any other, above the value of twenty pounds,) shall not, within the time before in this act in that behalf limited appointed, repair to their place of usual dwelling and abode, if they have any, or to the place where they were born, or where their father or mother shall be dwelling, according to the tenour and intent of this present act; and thereupon at their coming, and present themselves, and deliver their true names in writing to the minister or curate of the parish, and to the constable, headborough, or tithingman of the town, within such time, and in such manner and form as is aforesaid; or at any time after such their repairing to any such place as is before appointed, shall pass or remove above five miles from the same; and shall not within three months next after such person shall be apprehended or taken for disobedience as is aforesaid, conform themselves to the obedience of the laws and statutes of this realm, in coming usually to the church to hear divine service, and making such public confession and submission, as hereafter in this act is

STAT. 35 ELIZ.
c. 2.

removing above five miles from his place of abode.
A recusant
copyholder departing five miles from his
place of abode.

Recusants shall notify their living, and deliver their names to the curate.

Recusants'
names certified to the justices.

The penalty of
a recusant of small ability not repairing
to the place appointed, or departing thence.

covin, to make appearance in any of her majesty's courts, or shall be sent for, commanded, or required by any three or more of her majesty's privy council, or by any four or more of any commissioners to be in that behalf nominated and assigned by her majesty, to make appearance before her majesty's said council or commissioners; that in every such case, every such person so bounded, urged, commanded, or required to make such appearance, shall not incur any pain, forfeiture, or loss for travelling to make appearance accordingly, nor for his abode concerning the same, nor for convenient time for his return back again upon the same.

"XIV. And be it further provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any such person or persons so restrained as is aforesaid, shall be bound, or ought to yield and render their bodies to the sheriff of the county where they shall happen to be, upon proclamation in that behalf without fraud or covin to be made; that then in every such case, every person which shall be so bounden, or ought to yield and render their body as aforesaid, shall not incur any pain, forfeiture, or loss for travelling for that intent and purpose only, without any fraud or covin, nor for convenient time taken for the return back again upon the same.

"XV. And furthermore be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that if any person or persons that shall at any time hereafter offend against this act, shall, before he or they shall be thereof convicted, come to some parish church on some Sunday or other festival day, and then and there hear divine service, and at service-time, before the sermon, or reading of the gospel, make public and open submission and declaration of his and their conformity to her majesty's laws and statutes, as hereafter in this act is declared and appointed; that then the same offender shall thereupon be clearly discharged of and from all and every pains and forfeitures inflicted or imposed by this act for any of the said offences in this act contained: the same submission to be made as hereafter followeth; that is to say,

"XVI. 'I A. B. do humbly confess and acknowledge, that I have grievously offended God in contemning her majesty's godly and lawful government and authority, by absenting myself from church, and from hearing divine service, contrary to the godly laws and statutes of this realm; and I am heartily sorry for the same, and do acknowledge and testify in my conscience, that the bishop or see of Rome hath not, nor ought to have, any power or authority over her majesty, or within any her majesty's realms or dominions; and I do promise and protest, without any dissimulation, or any colour or means of any dispensation, that from henceforth I will from time to time obey and perform her majesty's laws and statutes, in repairing to the church, and hearing divine service, and do my utmost endeavour to maintain and defend the same.'

"XVII. And that every minister or curate of every parish, where such submission and declaration of conformity shall hereafter be so made by any such offender as aforesaid, shall presently enter the same into a book to be kept in every parish for that purpose, and within ten days then next following shall certify the same in writing to the bishop of the same diocese.

"XVIII. Provided nevertheless, that if any such offender, after such submission made as is aforesaid, shall afterwards fall into relapse, or afterwards become a recusant, in not repairing to church to hear divine service, but shall forbear the same, contrary to the laws and statutes in that behalf made and provided; that then every such offender shall lose all such benefit as he or she might otherwise by virtue of this act have or enjoy by reason of their said submission; and shall thereupon stand and remain in such plight, condition, and degree, to all intents, as though such submission had never been made.

"XIX. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every woman married, or hereafter to be married, shall be bound by all and every article, branch, and matter contained in this statute, other than the branch and article of abjuration before-mentioned: and that no such woman married, or to be married, during marriage, shall be in any wise forced or compelled to abjure, or be abjured, by virtue of this act; any thing therein contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding."

STAT. 35 ELIZ.
c. 2.

Persons which are to yield
their bodies to the sheriff

An offender
upon open submission
shall be discharged.

The form of
the submission.

The minister
shall enter the submission.

A recusant
submitting.
falleth into a relapse.
1 Hulet. 133.

Women bound,
saving for abjuration.
Bridgm. 120.

STAT. 35 ELIZ.
c. 3.

XLV. STAT. 35 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 3(1). A.D. 1593.

"An Act for Explanation(2) of the Statute made in the thirty-fourth Year of King Henry the Eighth, as well touching Grants made to his Majesty, as for Confirmation of Letters Patents(3) made by his Highness to others."

All abbey lands which came to the hands of King Henry 8, &c. shall be adjudged to have been in his actual and lawful possession, &c., and all letters patents made by him for the foundation of any dean and chapter, or college, shall be reputed good. 34 & 35 Hen. 8, c. 21. 11 Co. 11. 3 Co. 73. Other men's rights saved.

"Forasmuch as divers ambiguities, doubts, and questions have arisen and been moved, as well touching divers surrenders, grants, and conveyances made and granted by sundry late abbots, priors, and other religious and ecclesiastical persons, to the late king of famous memory King Henry the Eighth, after the fourth day of February, in the seven and twentieth year of his reign, of divers their houses, manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments; as also touching and concerning the validity of the erections of such deans and chapters, and such colleges as were erected, ordained, made, or founded by the said late King Henry the Eighth, after the said fourth day of February, in the said seven and twentieth year of his reign, and forasmuch as the same doubts and questions seem not to be sufficiently remedied or provided for by the statute made in the four and thirtieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, intituled, 'An Act for Confirmation of Letters Patents,' notwithstanding misnaming of any thing contained in the same, &c."

STAT. 35 ELIZ.
c. 7.

XLVI. STAT. 35 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 7(4). A.D. 1593.

"An Act for the reviving, continuance, explanation, and perfecting of divers Statutes(5)."

Poor.
It is lawful to give land towards the maintenance of the house of correction, or of the poor. 39 Eliz. c. 5.

"XXVII. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall be lawful for every person, for and during the space of twenty years next ensuing, to make feoffments, grants, or any other assurances, or by last will in writing to give and bequeath in fee-simple, as well to the use of the poor, as for the provision, sustentation, or maintenance of any house of correction or abiding-house, or of any stocks or stores, all or any part of such of his lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and in such manner and form, as he might have done to enable the provision, sustentation, or maintenance of any houses of correction or abiding houses, or of any stocks or stores by force of the said statute."

STAT. 35 ELIZ.
c. 14.

XLVII. STAT. 35 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 14(6). A.D. 1593.

"A Confirmation of the Queen's general and free Pardon, &c."

[All offences against the ecclesiastical state; disturbers of divine service; offences committed by Jesuits or seminary priests; ecclesiastical dilapidations; incest; adultery; fornication; and simony.]

(1) Vide Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32.

(2) Explanation.—Stat. 34 & 35 Hen. 8, c. 21, (ante 287,) is only a general confirmation of grants made by the king, and the letters patents whereby they were made.

(3) Letters Patents.—In the 8th year of Queen Elizabeth, a bill (for the confirmation of late erected deaneries and prebends) was read a second time in the House of Lords, and committed, but it proceeded no further. "Whereupon, great disturbance having been given to the deans and chapters of the new foundation, under pretence, that the possessions thereof were passed by letters patents of concealment; they did, this year, unanimously apply themselves to the Lord Treasurer Seleigh, for a confirmation of them by parliament; as appears from a letter sent by them from the convocation house, bearing date, March 16th, 1592, in which they desired him, that by his honourable mediation and countenance, a remedy may at this parliament, (by confirmation of the said grants) be obtained." Stry. Park. App. 144.

(4) Vide post. 469, Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 3.

(5) Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20, continued Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 5, amended.

(6) Expired.

XLVIII. STAT. 39 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 5 (1). A.D. 1597.

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 5."An Act for erecting of Hospitals, or Abiding and Working Houses for the Poor."

"Whereas at the last session of parliament, provision was made as well for maimed soldiers by collection in every parish as for other poor, that it should be lawful for every person, during twenty years next after the said parliament, by feoffment, will in writing, or other assurance, to give and bequeath in fee-simple, as well to the use of the poor as for the provision, sustentation, or maintenance of any house of correction, or abiding houses, or of any stocks or stores, all or any part of his lands, tenements, or hereditaments; her most excellent majesty understanding and finding that the said good law hath not taken such effect as was intended, by reason that no person can erect or incorporate any hospital, houses of correction, or abiding places, but her majesty, or by her highness' special licence, by letters patents under the great seal of England in that behalf to be obtained: her majesty graciously affecting the good success of so good and charitable works, and that without often suit unto her majesty, and with as great ease and little charge as may be, is of her princely care and blessed disposition to and for the relief and comfort of maimed soldiers, mariners, and other poor and impotent people, pleased and contented that it be enacted by authority of this present parliament; and be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that all and every person and persons (2) seised of an estate in fee-simple, their heirs, executors, or assigns, at his or their wills and pleasures, shall have full power (3), strength, licence, and lawful authority, at any time during the space of twenty years next ensuing, by deed enrolled in the high court of Chancery, to erect, found, and establish one or more hospitals, maisons de Dieu, abiding places, or houses of correction, at his or their will and pleasure, as well for the finding, sustentation, and relief of the maimed, poor, needy, or impotent people, as to set the poor to work, to have continuance for ever (4), and from time to time to place therein such head and members, and such number of poor, as to him, his heirs and assigns, shall seem convenient: and that the same hospitals or houses so founded, shall be incorporated, and have perpetual successions for ever, in fact, deed, and name, and of such head, members, and numbers of poor, needy, maimed, or impotent people as shall be appointed, assigned, limited, or named by the founder (5) or founders, his or their heirs, executors, or assigns, by any such deed enrolled; and that such hospital, maison de Dieu, abiding place, or house of correction, and the persons therein placed, shall be incorporated, named, and called by such name as the said founder or founders, his heirs, executors, or assigns, shall so limit, assign, and appoint: and the same hospital, maison de Dieu, abiding place, or house of correction so incorporated and

35 Eliz. c. 7,
s. 27.
Any person
may erect an hospital or
house of correction, which may purchase
and enjoy
goods or lands
not exceeding
the yearly value
of 200l. &c.
2 Inst. 720.
16 Vin. 414.

Any person
may erect an hospital or
house of correction.

Incorporation of the hospital
by the founder.

The hospital or
house of correction shall be named by the founder.

The hospital
shall be a body politic and corporate.

(1) Difficulties having been experienced in effecting the objects of Stat. 35 Eliz. c. 7, (ante 462,) from the expenses of incorporation and the licence of mortmain, occasioned the enactment of Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 5, which was made perpetual by Stat. 21 Jac. 1, c. 1.

(2) All and every person and persons:—These words extend to such bodies politic and corporate, as may alienate, such as mayor and commonalty, bailiffs and burgesses, and the like, but not to those whose power of alienation is restrained by act of parliament. 2 Inst. 721.

(3) Full power:—"This," states my Lord Coke, (2 Inst. 722,) "is a very beneficial law, for the charges of incorporation, and of the licence of mortmain, in these days, grow so great by one means or other, as it hath discouraged many men to undertake these pious and charitable works; whereas, in former times, such works of piety and charity for the poor, did ever pass in forma pauperis, and so we hope to see it again."

(4) To have continuance for ever:—"The founder cannot erect, &c., any of these for years, lives, or any other limited time, but for ever." Ibid. 723.

(5) Named by the founder:—"So as the persons, to be by this act incorporated, must be there placed and named, when the founder giveth them their name of incorporation: for the parliament incorporateth them, and the founder only giveth them their name." "Although that, at the common law, a corporation may be of an hospital, (i. e. in potestate, of certain persons to be governors of the hospital,) and not of the persons placed therein; yet the safest and surest way upon this statute, is, first to prepare the hospital, and to place the poor therein, and to incorporate the persons therein placed." Ibid. 723.

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 5.

named, shall be a body corporate and politick (1), and shall by that name of corporation have full power, authority, and lawful capacity and ability, to pur-

(1) The same hospital, maison de Dieu, abiding place, or house of correction so incorporated and named, shall be a body corporate and politick:—Eleemosynary corporations are such as are constituted for the perpetual distribution of the free alms, or bounty of the founder of them, to such persons as he has directed. 1 Black. Com. by Chitty, 471.

These are of two general descriptions; hospitals for the maintenance and relief of poor and impotent persons; and colleges for the promotion of learning, and the support of persons engaged in literary pursuits; of which the greater number are within the universities, being corporations within a corporation, of which they form a component part; and other colleges are out of the universities, and not necessarily connected with them.

Colleges are considered in two different points of view; first, as corporate bodies, and, secondly, as eleemosynary; in each of which characters they are subject to a different jurisdiction,—in matters which concern their public corporate character, they are, like every other corporate body, subject to the control of the general law of the country,—in matters which regard their private eleemosynary character, their proceedings are subject to the examination of their respective visitors.

Of hospitals, says Lord Coke, "some are corporations aggregate of many, as of master or warden, and his confrères; some, where the master or warden hath alone the estate of inheritance in him, and the brethren or sisters have power to consent, having a college or common seal." Co. Lit. 342 (a). 1 Kyd on Corporations, 26. 1 Stephens on Corporations, 2. (2nd edit.)

Between such hospitals as these, and colleges either in the universities or out of them, there is no difference in legal consideration, the difference is only in degree; for, where in an hospital the master and poor are incorporated, it is a college, having a common seal by which it acts, although it have not the name of a college. There are other hospitals, where the master or warden hath the estate in view, but they have no college or common seal, and therefore such institutions cannot properly be considered as corporations, the master or warden being merely a trustee for the house. Phillips v. Bury, Skin. 484.

Another class of hospitals is, where the poor, who are the objects of the founder's bounty, are not themselves incorporated, but the corporate succession is vested in trustees under various denominations, who, of course, have no beneficial interest, but are only employed as instruments to effectuate the purposes of the institution; of this description is Sutton's Hospital, (10 Co. 1-35,) and most other hospitals of modern creation; but these, says Lord Coke, are not legal hospitals. Ibid. 31 (a).

There are also many other corporations, resembling hospitals, of this last description, which are neither colleges nor hospitals, which may be classed under the eleemosynary corporations, as their objects are the same, and they are created by means of trustees incorporated, into execution some public charity, the corporation created in the reign of Queen Anne, under the name of "The Governor of the Bounty of Queen Anne, for the augmentation of the maintenance of Clergy;" and such are many corporations for the education of children, schools, and many others, for various purposes. Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 11. Stat. 6 Ann. c. 27. Stat. 11. c. 10. Stat. 3 Geo. 1. c. 10.

In order to illustrate the foregoing observations, and those which will succeed, not perhaps be inexpedient to make some observations respecting the prerogative of the crown in relation to corporations.

The king can grant a licence to erect a particular corporation, and likewise give a general power by which to erect corporations indefinitely. 2 H. 6. c. 1. (a) (b). Le case de Sutton's Hospital, 10 Co. 27 (b). Bro. Abr. Prerog. 53. Abr. Prerogative of the King, 87. Com. by Chitty, 474.

A corporation cannot be created by the king's sole power, and if any powers which are at variance with common and statute law, and if any colleges are required, they can only be created through the instrumentality of parliament.

There is no prescribed form for the creation of a corporation; but any form which shows an intention to create a body politic will suffice. Le case de Sutton's Hospital, 10 Co. 28 (a), 29 (b). Fir. Bur. c. 11. Mad. Hist. Eads.

The grant must be accepted by the voluntary consent of a majority of those intended to incorporate; otherwise the grant will be void. Bagg's case, 226. 1 Kyd on Corporations, 43. Stephens on Corporations, 4. (2nd edit.)

If a new charter be given to a corporation already in esse, and acting either under a former charter or prescriptive, the new corporation already existing is not affected by the acceptance of the new charter, but if it is accepted as a repeal of the former charter, or as a grant of new privileges, as may be seen in the case of those which have been recently created, for a charter cannot be partially accepted.

A corporation can accept a charter which directly abridges or alters any of its liberties; and when a corporation takes a charter concerning their liberties, they may make use of it as a grant, or as a confirmation. 1 Kyd on Corporations, 67. Reg. v. Wood, 4 Mod. 269. 1 Salk. 167. Raym. 29.

When a licence is given to erect an eleemosynary or charitable corporation, and endow it with possessions or revenues, the donor is called the founder.

The word foundation is distinguished from the terms fundatio incipientis, and perfectis, for as to the politic corpora-take, hold, receive, enjoy, and have, to them and to their successors for ever, as Stat. 39 ELIZ. well goods and chattels, as manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, being c. 5.

of incorporation is metaphorically called a constitution, that being the beginning, as a constitution quasi fundamentum capacitatis, exceeding the whole; but as to the dotation, the first gift of the revenues is called the constitution, and he who gives it, is the founder in law. Le case de Sutton's Hospital, 10 Co. 33. 3 H. 7, 6 (b), cit. 3 Co. 74 (a). Just. 64. 38 Ass. 22. 1 Kyd on Corporations, 50.

The foundership is so inseparably incident to the blood of the founder, that it cannot be granted over; and if a subject founder were to grant his foundership to the king by deed enrolled, it would be a void grant. Magdalen College case, 11 Co. 77 (a), 78 (a). 1 Kyd on Corporations, 51. But if the king and a subject were co-instants to give possessions to a corporation on its original creation, the king, by his prerogative, will be the founder. 1 Ass. 6. 1 Rol. Abr. Corporations (H), 11. Quick's case, 9 Co. 129 (b). 2 Inst. 35, cit. 44 Edw. 3, 24, 25.

The mode by which a corporation is created where a subject is the founder, is that the king expresses the words of incorporation, designs the place, appoints the master, and gives them a constitution and a name by his charter, so that the corporation is complete; and then the founder or donor has nothing more to do, than to make the constitution, without any instrument comprehending words of incorporation:—or the king may reserve as well the nomination of the persons, as the name and constitution of the corporation, to the person who is to be the founder; then the founder must name the persons, and declare by what name they shall be incorporated, and what powers they shall exercise, and then they become incorporated by virtue of the king's letters patent and not by the founder, because he is but an instrument. 38 Edw. 3, 14 (b). 22 Edw. 4, Just. 30. 2 Hen. 7, 13 (a) (b). 20 Hen. 7. Le case de Sutton's Hospital, 10 Co. 33.

The incorporation ought, in fact, to precede the dotation, because before the incorporation, there is no capacity to take as a corporation; (Ibid. 26 (b)); but, it is not necessary that in the letters patent the licence to incorporate and the licence to endow should be two distinct independent clauses, or that the licence to incorporate should, in the order of expression, precede that to endow, because the law would construe that to precede, which ought to be first. Ibid. 27, 28.

It is not requisite, that a corporation should be in existence at the time when the licence is granted to it be given; it is sufficient that it exist at the time of the grant made. 1 Kyd on Corporations, 54.

Now is it necessary, that all the persons who are to be the constituent members of the corporation, should be named in the letters patent, it is sufficient that a power of nomination or election be given; because the letters patent have made a corporation in abstracto, and a corporation in con-

creto will be created upon the nomination of the constituent members. Le case de Sutton's Hospital, 10 Co. 8 (b).

The incorporation at common law may be of certain persons to be governors of the hospital, which at the time of the incorporation may be only in contemplation, and not of the persons placed in it.

But, as previously stated (ante 469, n. (5)), under Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 5, the founder should first prepare the hospital, and place the poor in it, and then incorporate them, or rather give them their name of incorporation: for it is the parliament which incorporates them, and the founder only gives them their name.

After the incorporation, the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, should be conveyed to the persons incorporated, which can be done by bargain and sale, by deed indented and enrolled according to Stat. 27 Hen. 8, c. 16, between the founder or founders on the one part, and the master and brethren on the other, in consideration of five shillings in hand paid by the master of the hospital, for himself and for his brethren, and of other five shillings in hand paid by the master and brethren. Le case de Sutton's Hospital, 10 Co. 17 (b).

An opinion has been expressed by Mr. Shelford, that hospitals may at the present moment be founded and endowed under Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 5, provided the further requisites of Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, be complied with. Shelford on Mortmain, 46.

When a private eleemosynary corporation is created by the crown, it is subject to no other control on the part of the crown, than what is expressly or impliedly reserved by the charter itself. Unless a power be reserved for that purpose, the crown cannot by virtue of its prerogative, (without the consent of the corporation,) alter or amend the charter, or divest the corporation of any of its franchises, or increase them, or add to or diminish the number of the trustees, or remove any of the members, or change or control the administration of the charity, or compel the corporation to receive a new charter. Rex v. Pasmore, 3 T. R. 199. But if an integral part of a corporation be gone, and the corporation have no power of restoring it, or of doing any corporate act, the corporation is so far dissolved that the crown may grant a new charter. Ibid.

Where individuals are incorporated as governors of a school, care should be taken in filling up the vacancies in their number, for if it be reduced to one, there will be no one having a power to do any corporate act, and there is danger of the revenues of the foundation being lost; for, on the dissolution or determination of a corporation, the lands belonging to it, do not escheat to the lord, but revert to the donor, or his heirs. 1 Rol. Abr. Escheate (A), 816. Co. Lit. 13 (b). Edmunds v. Brown, 1 Lev. 237. Rex v. Pasmore, 3 T. R. 241. Colchester (Mayor, &c. of) v. Seaber, 3 Burr. 1868.

Where a certain number are incorporated,

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 5.

The hospital
may purchase
goods or lands.
7 Edw. 1,
St. II.

The hospital
may sue and be sued.

The hospital
shall have a common seal.

The ordering,
directing, and visiting of an
hospital.

freehold, of any person or persons whatsoever: so that the same exceed not the yearly value of two hundred pounds⁽¹⁾ above all charges and reprises, to any one such abiding house, hospital, maison de Dieu, or house of correction, and so as the same or any part thereof be not holden of our sovereign lady the queen, her heirs or successors, immediately in chief, or else of our said sovereign lady the queen, or any other person by knight's service; without licence or writ of ad quod damnum, the Statute of Mortmain, or any other statute or law to the contrary notwithstanding, and that the same hospital, maison de Dieu, abiding place, or house of correction, and the persons so being incorporated, founded, and named, shall have full power and lawful authority by the true name of the incorporation thereof, to sue and to be sued, implead and to be impleaded, to answer and to be answered unto, in all manner of courts and places that now are or hereafter shall be within this realm, as well temporal as spiritual, in all manner of suits whatsoever, and of what nature and kind soever such suits or actions be or shall be: and that the same hospital, maison de Dieu, abiding house, or house of correction, shall have and enjoy for ever such a common seal or seals, as by the said founder or founders, his or their heirs, executors, or assigns, shall be in writing under his or their hand and seal assigned, named, or appointed, whereby the same incorporation shall or may seal any manner of instrument touching the same incorporation, and the lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, or other things thereto belonging, or in any wise touching or concerning the same: and further shall be ordered, directed, and visited⁽²⁾, placed, or upon just cause displaced, by such a major part of them may do any corporate act, notwithstanding that the charter is silent respecting the number of persons requisite to constitute an assembly. Attorney-General v. Davy, 2 Atk. 212.

Nor is it necessary that every corporate act should be under the seal of the corporation. Ibid.

But the signing of any contract for leasing by the masters and fellows of the college, unless under the college seal, will not be binding on the college. Taylor v. Dulwich Hospital, 1 P. Wms. 656.

In ascertaining the meaning and effect of a charter, contemporaneous documents, proceedings in causes relating to it, and parol testimony, may be resorted to, in order to explain and give to the charter a construction, but not to contradict it. Pierrepont v. Scarlett, 2 Y. & J. 330.

It is a general right of corporations, of whatever nature, at law, to alienate their lands held in fee, subject, as to ecclesiastical corporations, to the restraining statutes; and there is no instance, where a trust has attached upon the ground of misapplication from corporate purposes, except the case of corporations holding to charitable uses. Colchester (Mayor, &c. of) v. Lowten, 1 V. & B. 226. See vide Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 69, and Stat. 5 & 6 Gul. 4, c. 76.

If a regular corporate resolution have been passed, and upon faith of it expenditure has been incurred, for granting an interest in the corporate property, the court will compel a corporation to make a legal grant in pursuance of the resolution, although not under the corporate seal. Marshall v. Queensborough (Corporation of), 1 S. & S. 520.

But whether a corporation, consisting of numerous governors, would be bound by the acquiescence of some, standing by, permitting expenditure, has been questioned. Macher v. Foundling Hospital, 1 V. & B.

188. Wych v. Mead, 3 P. Wms. 318.

Where a person gives a debt by will to a corporation, it vests in them in law, and they may recover it in the ecclesiastical court. Attorney-General v. Pye, 1 Atk. 655. A college is not bound to accept an accession to its foundation. Attorney-General v. Catherine's Hall, Cambridge, Jacobs. 391.

A corporation can claim the benefit of the Statute of Limitations, as well as any other person. Wych v. East India Company, 1 P. Wms. 309.

(1) Exceed not the yearly value of two hundred pounds.—Respecting the property by which the endowment must be made, be manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments of which the endowment is made, most be of an estate in fee simple, either absolute, conditional, or qualified; they must be held; of the clear yearly value of 100*l.* or more, and not exceeding the yearly value of 200*l.* above all charges and reprises. And if the first endowment be of the yearly value of 100*l.* or more, and under the yearly value of 200*l.* they may purchase, or take in gift from others, without licence of mortmain, any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, of such value as, together with their first endowment, will amount to the yearly value of 200*l.* above all charges and reprises. And if, at the time of the foundation of the endowment, they be of the yearly value of 200*l.* or under, and afterwards they become of greater value, by good husbandry or other causes, they shall continue to be conveyed to the hospital, though they be above the yearly value of 200*l.*; for that must be reckoned as it was at the time of the endowment made. But goods and chattels, whether real or personal, can be taken to any value. 1 Act on Corporations, 59, 60. 2 Inst. 723.

(2) Shall be ordered, directed, and visited.—In considering the subject of visitation generally, it has been deemed expedient to person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, their heirs, successors, or assigns, as Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 5.

do so under the several heads of: i. Appointment of visitors. ii. Powers of visitors. iii. Duties of visitors. iv. Incapacities of visitors. v. Enforcement of the duties of visitors. vi. Cases in which the visitatorial jurisdiction of the lord chancellor will be exercised. vii. Cases in which the visitatorial jurisdiction of the lord chancellor will not be exercised. viii. Cases.

i. Appointment of Visitors. To all eleemosynary institutions a visitatorial power exists as a necessary incident, (Appleford's case, 1 Mod. 85,) and the law has provided that there shall somewhere exist a power to visit, inquire into, and correct all irregularities and abuses in such institutions, and to compel the original purposes of the charity to be fulfilled. 1 Black. Com. by Chitty, 480.

No particular form of words is necessary for the appointment of either a general or a special visitor, but the intention of the founder is to be collected from the statutes. The founder can delegate the power of visitation either generally or specially; by prescribing in the latter case a mode for the exercise of any part of it; but if a mode be prescribed in any particular case, that will not take away the general power incidental to the office of visitor. Thus the visitation of the corporation or institution at large may be in one person, and that of one of the members, as of the head, may be in another; and if the founder of a college appoint a visitor of the head specially, the general power of visitation remains in the founder and his heirs. Attorney-General v. Tollet, 1 Ves. Sen. 78. St. John's College, Cambridge v. Todington (Clark), 1 Burr. 600. Worsters' Company v. t. v. Haywood, 3 Atk. 363. Attorney-General v. Middleton, 2 Ves. Sen. 328.

"Si visitor is sufficient for the appointment of a general visitor, and gives a comprehensive jurisdiction for all purposes incidentally necessary for this power. If a person be thus constituted visitor in general terms, whatever comes in derogation of his power must be expressed, otherwise he is plene jure." Per Lord Ellenborough, in Res. v. Worcester (Bishop of), 4 M. & S. 420.

Whether a person appointed by the statutes of the founder to take cognizance of certain particular things, be a general visitor, without general words giving him that authority, depends on the nature of those particular things, and on the terms in which his jurisdiction over them is given; when, therefore, a question arises about the extent of the person's power, who claims to be visitor, recourse must be had to the statutes, and the court will then collect from the whole, considered together, whom the founder intended should be appointed as a general visitor.

Where the king is visitor, the crown is always visitor; but where a private person is founder, his heirs are visitors; but the founder may vest a visitatorial power in any other person or his heirs. Eden v. Foster, 2 P. Wms. 325.

Where the poor, or those who receive the charity, are not incorporated, but there are certain trustees who dispose of the charity, there is no visitor; because the interest of the revenue is not vested in the poor that have the benefit of the charity, but they are subject to the orders and directions of the trustees.

But if they who are to enjoy the benefit of the charity be incorporated, a visitatorial power will then exist by law, in order to prevent all perverting of the charity, or to compose differences that may happen among them; and it being a creature of the founder's own, it is reasonable that he and his heirs should have that power, unless by the founder it be vested in some other.

There is no difference between a college or an hospital, except only in degree, and if in an hospital "the master and poor" be incorporated, it is a college having a common seal to act by, although it hath not the name of a college, (which always supposeth a corporation,) because it is of an inferior degree; and in the one case, and in the other, there must be a visitor, either the founder, and his heirs, or one appointed by him, and both are eleemosynary.

But where there is a charter giving proper powers, the charity must be regulated in the manner in which the charter has pointed out; and where there is a local visitor, the court of Chancery has no jurisdiction over any object within the cognizance of the visitor. Attorney-General v. Price, 3 Atk. 108. Attorney-General v. Middleton, 2 Ves. Sen. 328. Attorney-General v. Dulwich College, 4 Beav. 265. Attorney-General v. Foundling Hospital (Governors of), 2 Ves. 41. Attorney-General v. Brentwood School (Masters of), 1 M. & K. 376. Attorney-General v. Crook, 1 Keen, 121. Attorney-General v. Smithies, Ibid. 289.

Where the persons for whose benefit a charity is established, are not themselves incorporated, but trustees or governors are appointed, as in the case of Sutton's Hospital, (10 Co. 31 (a),) the governors have a kind of visitatorial power, with respect to the objects of the charity; but where no visitor is expressly appointed, and the legal estate of the endowment is vested in the governors, the latter, as to the management of the revenues, are subject to the jurisdiction of the court of Chancery; (Attorney-General v. Middleton, 2 Ves. Sen. 329; 2 Kyd on Corporations, 187;) because it would be a most pernicious consequence, that a person entrusted with the receipt of the rents and profits, especially for a charity, should not be accountable, however he might misemploy them.

Where the king was founder of a school, and endowed it, and appointed governors with powers to make bye-laws, and who had the legal estate of the endowment vested in them, but with no express words appointing them visitors, it was resolved, that a commission might issue to visit and call to account these governors, because the word "governor" did not per se imply "visitor." Eden v. Foster, 2 P. Wms. 325.

STAT. 39 ELIZ. shall be so nominated or assigned by the founder or founders thereof, c. 5.

ii. Powers of Visitors. "Visitors" have absolute power, the only absolute one known in England, but it is confined to offences against the private laws of the college. Res v. Cheater (Bishop of), Str. 797. 1 Wilson, 206. Res v. St. John's College, Cambridge, 4 Mod. 233.

Patronage and visitation are necessary consequents one upon another; for visitatorial power was not introduced by any canons or constitutions ecclesiastical; it is an appointment of law, it ariseth from the property of the donor, and the power every one has to dispose, direct, and regulate his own property, like the case of patronage, cujus est dare, &c.; therefore, if either the crown or the subject create an eleemosynary foundation, and vest the charity in the persons who are to receive its benefit, since a contest might arise about its government, the law allows the founder or his heirs, or the person especially appointed by him to be visitor, to determine concerning his own creature. Green v. Rutherford, 1 Ves. Sen. 471. Philips v. Bury, Skin. 483. 2 T. R. 352. Furchild v. Gayre, Cro. Jac. 63. Yelv. 60.

"A general visitatorial power requires particular words to abridge it;" and it is incidental to the office of visitor to deprive for, as well as to correct, offences. Res v. Worcester (Bishop of), 4 M. & S. 421. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 349.

If the power given to the visitor be unlimited and universal, he has, in respect of the foundation and property moving from the founder, no rule but sound discretion, because he is the judge whom the founder has appointed. Appleford's case, 1 Mod. 82. Parkinson's case, Corth. 92. Widdrington's (Dr.) case, 1 Lev. 23. Queen's College case, alias Patrick's (Dr.) case, 1 ibid. 65. Raym. (Sir T.), 100. Res v. New College, Oxford, 2 Lev. 14. Huvel's case, Raym. (Sir T.), 56, 94. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 346. 4 Mod. 106. 1 Show. (Sir B.), 360. 1 Ld. Raym. 5. Skin. 447.

Although the visitor has no court, and it may seem unreasonable to conclude a man by the sentence of a person who has no court, yet it is immaterial, the only question being whether the visitor has jurisdiction and cognizance of the matter and person, and whether sentence has been pronounced in the matter; his sentence makes a vacancy, however erroneous it may be, and there is no appeal if the founder have not thought fit to direct one. Philips v. Bury, Skin. 485. 2 T. R. 353.

A visitor need not hear parol evidence on an appeal to him; it is sufficient if he receive the grounds of the appeal, and the answer to it be in writing. Res v. Ely (Bishop of), 5 T. R. 475.

A visitor can administer an oath, or require an answer upon oath; and he ought to give a convenient time for an answer, and for the examination of witnesses. Shelford on Murtmain, 479.

"The king's courts, if the college do not exceed their jurisdiction, have an or superintendence; but the only person to be applied to, and his judgment is final. He does proceed by the rules and forms of law; but he suffers a party, allegata et probare non probata, entirely upon the merits." Res v. Cowp. 322. Barkham's case, 1

Visitors of colleges, not being any particular forms, cannot be by their proceedings for informality, but only for want of jurisdiction; therefore, where a visitor cited the college to appear before him as a visitor, and afterwards in a plea to an inhibition, he insisted on being visitor of the college, this variance was held to be erroneous; but he, having either in the one character or the other a right to proceed upon the case (Bishop of v. Bentley, 2 Bro. Str. 912).

One of the incidental powers of a visitor is, that of hearing and deciding them, and which includes election over elections. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 346. 2 Kyd on Corporations.

Where the visitor acts in a capacity, the interested parties convene, in order that they might have opportunity of defending themselves. Ely (Bishop of), 2 T. R. 336. Widdrington's (Dr.) case, 2 Ld. Raym. 8 Mod. 148. Doe d. Thamel v. Gartham (Clerk), 1 Bing. 357. Kim (Dr.), 8 T. R. 209.

Offences against the private laws of a college are not pardoned by an act of parliament, but are still inquirable by a visitor. Res v. Ely (Bishop of), Str. 912.

The members of a college cannot resist against a visitation; they submit to the visitor's examination, and backs upon him, and not appeal; summons, is an offence amounting to mutiny: for the visitor is to inquire into the state of the college, and of each particular behaviour and conduct of the college statutes; and if, on his making such inquisition, the heads, fellows, absent themselves, or will not be examined, it tends to the subversion of the whole constitution of the college, and is a good cause of deprivation of the college statutes. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 346. Skin. 490.

The jurisdiction of a visitor is in the foundation, and is derived from the intention of the founder, with the distribution of his property. The commoners, being independent of the founder, and strangers to the foundation, have no right to appeal to the visitor; in case of any particular grievance from the college, they have no other remedy than that, which the laws of the land afford them. Res v. Graddon, Cowp. 319. Don's case, cit. 1 ibid. 319.

Whether fellows of colleges have in their chambers, held in right of their fellowships, is a matter to be determined by the visitor, and not a proper subject for the jurisdiction of a court of Chancery. Attorney-General v. Stephens (Dr.), 1 Atk. 360.

"Governors" are likewise subject to the jurisdiction of a visitor with respect to the revenues, although absolute with respect to the government, because, as previously observed, the word governor does not imply visitor. Eden v. Foster, 2 P. Wms. 325.

Where there is a general visitor, and the time of his general visitation is not restricted by the statutes to particular periods, he can visit whenever he pleases. 2 Kyd on Corporations, 226.

Local visitors only visit every three years; and it was said, that if a visitor's reward be too small, the court may augment it. Attorney-General v. Price, 3 Atk. 109.

If a visitor appoint a visitation to be held at a specified time, and be unable to hold his visitation from the ill-conduct of the members, he can appoint another visitation, because the hindrance upon the first occasion, would be considered as not constituting a visitation. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 346. 1 Ld. Raym. 9. 4 Mod. 106. 1 Show. (Sir B.), 360.

Although the time of a general visitation be restricted, the visitor can at any time take cognizance of any dispute between the members, on an appeal made to him for that purpose; because visiting is one act in which he is limited to time, but hearing appeals and redressing grievances is his proper office and work at all times. Appleford's case, 1 Mod. 83. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 348. 4 Mod. 122.

Therefore, the members of a college can complain to the visitor when he is not in his visitation, if the head should waste the revenues, behave himself scandalously, or improperly retain his office.

iii. Duties of Visitors. The powers of a visitor being absolute and final, his duties are to receive appeals, and to do all acts incident to his office. Attorney-General v. Talbot, 1 Ves. Sen. 78. 3 Atk. 602. St. John's College v. Tudington (Clerk), 1 Burr. 158. Re v. Ely (Bishop of), 1 Black. (Sir W.), 51, 90.

Although a visitor, in all inquiries and determinations, made either by way of general visitation or on a particular complaint, proceeds in a summary way, he is bound to pay more attention to matters of necessary substance than of positive form, yet the cause of complaint ought to be reduced into writing, notice of it given to the party complained of, and regard paid to the positive form prescribed by the statutes. Com. Dig. Visitor (C). Shelford on Mortmain, 379.

When a visitor comes to execute his visitatorial power at the time appointed by the founder, he is to inquire into all the affairs of the college, and is bound to proceed with any complaint of the fellows upon their information, but he may proceed, even to deprivation, whenever he sees cause, and contumacy is a good cause of deprivation. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 357. Skin. 490. Ant. 474.

Founders of colleges have, in some instances, given a preference in the election of scholars, and others, to those of their own blood: in such cases, the only question for the visitor is, the intention of the founder, and if such intention be not repugnant to reason, morality, or the municipal laws of the kingdom, it must be implicitly obeyed, secundum verum literalem et grammaticalem sensum, and the words de consanguinitate, genere, et sanguine, will comprehend all persons whatsoever who were of the same blood with the founder, to the remotest generation, and no boundary line can be drawn to the consanguinity, but by the hand of time, which sooner or later levels all distinctions of families; and upon such principles a visitor has pronounced for the appeal in favour of a claimant in the fourteenth canonical degree. Spencer v. All Souls' College, Oxford (Warden and Fellows of), Wilm. 163. 1 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 485, 490. Shelford on Mortmain, 375.

"After the visitor has received an appeal, which he is bound to do, if it be not frivolous, he ought of common right to grant an inhibition to stay all further proceedings against the appellant, and to restore him to his former state in the college, until the appeal shall be determined: and the visitor ought to require all parties interested in the appeal to appear before him, and give an account of their proceedings, which ought regularly to be dispatched in the presence of a notary public, or other credible witnesses, in order that the proceedings may be transmitted to the visitor with the evidence." Shelford on Mortmain, 379.

iv. Incapacities of Visitors. If there be particular statutes, they are the rule by which the visitor is bound; and if he act contrary to, or exceed them, he acts without jurisdiction, and consequently his decrees will be invalid; (Re v. Chester (Bishop of), 1 Wilson, 206; Philips v. Bury, 1 Ld. Raym. 5; Skin. 447; Green v. Rutherford, 1 Ves. Sen. 472;) because the visitor derives his being, power, and authority from the founder. Philips v. Bury, 2 T. R. 346. Skin. 454. The lord chancellor can, however, in some cases, dispense with the necessity of "residence;" where the master of a charitable foundation is unable to reside from illness. In re St. Mary Magdalen, Colchester, 12 Law Journ. N. S. 375.

Although it is the duty of the visitor to determine all controversies relating to persons who are of the foundation, yet he has no powers of interference before a person becomes a member: and the masters and fellows of a college, exercising discretionary power, cannot be compelled to admit a particular individual as member. Re v. St. John's College, Oxford, 4 Mod. 260. Comb. 238. Re v. Lincoln's Inn (Benchers of), 4 B. & C. 860.

"In the case of a private, particular, limited jurisdiction, and of courts proceeding by rules different from the general law of the land, no appearance, answering, or pleading of the party, will give a jurisdiction to the court; but if there be a want of jurisdiction in the cause, it may be called in question at any time, even after sentence, which is the

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
C. 5.

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 5

case of all prohibitions granted every term by the common law courts for a nullity of jurisdiction; so that it may be applied for, even against the party's own suit, and the same holds in a collateral action or suit." Per Lord Chancellor Hardwicke, in Green v. Rutherford, 1 Ves. Sen. 470. Therefore, when the right of a visitor to interfere is submitted to by answering an appeal to him, such admission will not give a jurisdiction the visitor had not, nor take away the ordinary jurisdiction of the courts, nor even bind the parties themselves.

A general visitatorial power may cease and revive, and, during such cessation, the jurisdiction will, for want of particular appointment or reservation of power, devolve on the king's courts of general jurisdiction, because no other visitatorial power is in force. Rex v. Chester (Bishop of), Str. 797. Rex v. Bloomer, 2 Burr. 1043. Green v. Rutherford, 1 Ves. Sen. 471. Stat. 2 Geo. 2, c. 29.

A visitor cannot be a judge in his own cause, unless that power be expressly given.

A founder can give such authority to a visitor, but such an authority is not to be implied; and therefore where the visitor claims an interest, and asserts a right in the appointment of the master, and that appointment is the not complained of, the power of deciding devolves on the King's Bench, and a mandamus will be granted, if the application be supported by other substantial grounds. Rex v. Ely (Bishop of), 2 T. R. 338. Rex v. Chester (Bishop of), Str. 797.

Though the visitor of a college has a jurisdiction over matters of election, he has no right to appoint to a vacant office in default of the electors; and if the statutes in default of an election by the college, by express provision give the appointment to the same person who is general visitor, he has that appointment, not as visitor, but by virtue of that express provision. Rex v. Ely (Bishop of), 2 T. R. 290, 345. 2 Kyd on Corporations, 275.

Where the electors of a master of a free school have been designated by the founder; the visitor, even though the visitatorial power should be lodged in the crown, has no right to appoint a master, notwithstanding the electors have made two void elections: the lord chancellor, however, as visitor in right of the crown, will provide for the internal management of the school; and refer it to the attorney-general, to report what directions or alterations may be necessary touching the mode of election. Attorney-General v. Black, 11 Ves. 193.

In a dispute between a college and a third party respecting the performance of an agreement, an application to a visitor is nugatory, for he cannot compel a specific performance. Rex v. Windham, Cowp. 378.

If an advowson be devised to a college, under particular trust, by a third person, not the founder, the visitor has no jurisdiction to determine of the presentation, or to interpose in execution of the trust. Green v. Rutherford, 1 Ves. Sen. 462.

If the heir of a founder be affected with legal incapacity, such as lunacy, the right of visitation devolves upon the crown; and the lord chancellor is invested, pro tempore, with the visitatorial powers. Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 519.

It does not seem that visitors have the power to allow the officers of a charity to occupy apartments and other premises designed for the accommodation of the objects of it. Attorney-General v. Lubbock, Cooper (C. P.), 31.

And an act of parliament has been deemed requisite for the increase of the salaries of the officers of a charity, and of the persons of objects of it, beyond the amount fixed by the founder's will. Ibid. 25.

v. Enforcement of the Duties of Visitors. If the visitor of a college refuse to exercise his visitatorial power, by receiving and hearing an appeal, the court of King's Bench will grant a mandamus to compel him. Rex v. Ely (Bishop of), 5 T. R. 475. Rex v. Lincoln (Bishop of), 2 Ibid. 338. Philips v. Bury, Ibid. 346. Rex v. Worcester Bishop of, 4 M. & S. 415.

If, in an application to the king's courts for their interposition, by the members of an eleemosynary foundation, in a case coming within the general visitatorial power, it should appear that there is a visitor, and that an application has been made to him, the courts will not interpose, because no court of law or equity can anticipate the judgment of the visitor, or take away his jurisdiction. Attorney-General v. Clare Hall (Masters & Fellows of), 3 Atk. 674.

When the existence of a visitor is not doubted, it frequently becomes a question, whether the person complaining, or the act of which the complaint is made, be within the visitor's jurisdiction; and the determination of such questions belongs ultimately to the king's courts, though the visitor may decide in the first instance. 2 Kyd on Corporations, 240.

If no person applies to the court, who claims the visitatorial power, except one who has long exercised it, the court will not grant a prohibition on the motion of a single fellow, who suggests that the power is in another. Mortyn (Dr.) v. Canterbury (Archbishop of), Andr. 258.

A prohibition lies against a person acting as visitor without any right, or who exceeds his authority, or intermeddles with a matter out of his jurisdiction. Philips v. Bury, 4 Mod. 110. Rex v. Chester (Bishop of), 1 Wilson, 206. Ibid., 1 Black. (Sir W. J. Chester (Bishop of) v. Howard, 1 T. R. 650. Com. Dig. Visitor (B). Shelford on Mortmain, 379.

A prohibition will be granted when a visitor proceeds contrary to his citation, or inflicts penalties different from those prescribed by the statutes. Bentley v. Ely (Bishop of), 1 Barnard. 192.

vi. Cases in which the Visitatorial Jurisdiction of the Lord Chancellor will be exercised. Eleemosynary corporations and institutions founded by the king, or when the king and a subject are joint founders, or where a private person endows a royal foundation, without specially appointing a particular visitor, are subject to the visitation of the king by his chancellor, or by special commissioners. Co. Lit. 96 (a). F. N. B. 42. Inst. 68. 2 Rol. Abr. Prerogative le Roy (E), 230. Eden v. Foster, 2 P. Wms. 326. La case del Deane et Chapitre de Fernes, Dav. 46 (b). Com. Dig. Visitor (A). Anon. 2 Mod. 233.

Where no specific provision is made for the regulation and management of a charity, the court of Chancery, by virtue of its general jurisdiction, takes cognizance of it, by information in the name of the attorney-general; and since Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4, by commission in all cases within the general purview of that statute not coming within the exception of the proviso.

In the exercise of a visitatorial jurisdiction, the lord chancellor is not bound down by any regular and exact forms of proceeding; but that the parties may offer to the consideration of the visitor anything which they think pertinent and proper." Case of Queen's College, Jacob, 19.

The power of visitation exercised by the lord chancellor is not part of his equitable jurisdiction, but in his character as lord chancellor, and therefore, where an action had been brought by a solicitor for the amount of his costs incurred, respecting an application to the chancellor as visitor of a charity of royal foundation, and the usual order had been made under the Stat. 2 Geo. 2, c. 23, s. 23, for referring such bill to be taxed, it was held, that the proceedings did not come within that act, which only contemplates proceedings in a court of law or equity. Exp. Dann, 9 Ves. 347.

Directions in the will of the founder, giving the sole government and management of a charity to the visitors, do not exclude the jurisdiction of the court, when such visitors are also the trustees of the charity estates. Attorney-General v. Lubbock, Cooper (C. P.), 15.

In cases where it is stated, and not controverted, that the crown is the visitor, the lord chancellor, if any abuse exist, will apply the proper remedies.

When the lord chancellor, as representing the crown, is called upon to remedy an abuse in a charity, he will not go into a controverted case for the purpose of establishing the fact that the crown is the visitor. In re Garstang Church Town School, 7 Law Journ. 169, 172.

Nor will the chancellor enter into the merits of a petition, unless he be satisfied, in the first instance, that the crown is visitor; and a clear undisputed case must appear upon the face of the petition, showing that the crown is visitor.

And even when the election of governors might be said to have been a fraud upon the court of Chancery, the lord chancellor declined proceeding to their removal until a petition was presented to him in his visitatorial capacity. Attorney-General v. Dirie, 13 Ves. 519.

Corporations constituted trustees are sometimes, by the decrees of the court of Chancery, divested of their trust, where it has been abused, as any other trustees would be. Coventry (Mayor, &c. of) v. Attorney-General, 7 Bro. P. C. 235. Exp. Greenhouse, 1 Madd. 108.

Where the king erects a school, appoints governors, and gives them land, and a power of making bye-laws, they are subject to royal visitation, because the revenues are liable to abuse; and the king being the curator of his own charities, will not be construed to have parted with the visitatorial power, without express words for that purpose.

If on an appeal to the lord chancellor, as visitor of a college in right of the crown, it appears, that the crown has any direct interest in the question in dispute, as a right to fill up a vacancy which has occurred, the attorney-general must appear on behalf of the crown.

In case of the failure of the heirs of the founder, when there has been no visitor appointed by the latter, the right of visitation devolves to the crown to be exercised by the lord chancellor. Rex v. Catherine's Hall, Cambridge (Master of), 4 T. R. 233.

Upon a petition to the lord chancellor as visitor of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, there being no heir of the founder to declare the election of a fellow void, and to order the petitioner to be admitted; the court of King's Bench having in a similar case declined jurisdiction, the lord chancellor heard the petition, and upon the construction of the statute dismissed it. Exp. Wrengham, 2 Ves. 609.

If the governors appointed for the regulation of a charity, be not those who have the management of the revenues, the court assumes a jurisdiction of necessity, so far as they are to be considered trustees of the revenue.

But where a local visitor is appointed, and a trust is expressed in the original instrument, as to the application of the revenue, the court of Chancery has jurisdiction to compel a due application, although the charity was a royal foundation. Exp. Berkhamstead Free School, 2 V. & B. 138.

Where a charity was founded by royal charter, and an application was made by petition against the trustees, on a charge of their having misapplied part of the charity funds, but not requiring the interference of the court to regulate the charity, nor to alter or carry it into execution on any principle of Cy-pres; it was held, that the court had jurisdiction to entertain the petition under Stat. 52 Geo. 3, c. 101. In re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 276. Attorney-General, ex relat. St. John's College, Cambridge, v. Shrewsbury (Town of), Bunb. 215.

Where an addition is made to the endowment of a college of royal foundation, without the appointment of any special visitor by the donor, the power of the lord chancellor, as visitor in right of the crown, will extend to the new gift. Thus, when two fellowships were added to University College, Oxford, Lord Hardwicke took cognizance of a complaint respecting them, and determined in a summary way as visitor, and would not permit the matter to proceed in the usual course of a charity cause. Attorney-General v. Clare Hall (Master of), 3 Atk. 667. Attorney-General v. Catherine's Hall, Cambridge (Master of), Jacob, 382.

Where a testatrix devised estates for

STAT. 39 ELIZ. c. 5.

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 5.

foundings additional fellowships and scholarships in a college, and expressly declared, that she appointed no visitor of the foundation; but in case any complaint arose touching the execution of the statutes presented by her, she directed that an application should always be made to the lord high chancellor or lord keeper of the great seal of Great Britain, that the same might be heard by petition, or such other summary mode as his lordship should appoint, and by him to be finally determined; and a question was raised, whether the king, or the heir at law of the testatrix, was the visitor of the new foundation; Lord Eldon said, "the king is the visitor of the old college, and the question is, whether if a person makes an addition to an old foundation, the visitor of that foundation does not become the visitor of the new foundation; and whether the foundress having said, that she appoints no visitor, is sufficient to take from him that authority? I have no recollection of any case on the subject, but I should think that if the king was the visitor of the old college, and they accepted an accession to it, (which I doubt whether they could do without the king's consent,) the king would become the visitor of the new foundation, although the testatrix had said there should be no visitor at all." His lordship thought, the intention of the testatrix, that the lord chancellor should, under his judicial authority, have jurisdiction to hear any dispute in a summary way by petition, was void; for no individual can prescribe the mode of proceeding in the court of Chancery, nor give the power the testatrix had attempted to give in that case. Attorney-General v. Catherine's Hall, Cambridge (Master of), Jacob, 382.

vii. Cases in which the Lord Chancellor's Visitation Jurisdiction will not be exercised. The court of Chancery has no jurisdiction with regard either to the election or the amotion of the members of a body corporate of any description; and where, for want of an heir of the founder, the crown becomes the visitor of a charity, the application must be made by petition to the great seal, and not by bill or information, for the removal of a governor from the corporate character, which he de facto holds. Cases of Grant-ham School & Richmond School, cit. 17 Ves. 499.

The court of Chancery will not entertain a general jurisdiction to regulate and control charities established by charter, which the court cannot alter.

The court of Chancery will not in the case of a corporation instituted by charter and act of parliament, for the purpose of governing a charity, take the jurisdiction out of their hands, unless an actual abuse of trust has been committed. Attorney-General v. Foundling Hospital (Governors of), 2 Ves. 42. Attorney-General v. Dulwich College, 4 Beav. 265. Shelford on Mortmain, 335.

A free school founded by charter or by act of parliament, with proper powers, must be regulated, in the first instance, by the charter, not by application to the court of Equity. Attorney-General v. Middleton, 2

Ves. Sen. 327. Attorney-General v. Pock, 3 Atk. 108. Attorney-General v. Harrow School (Governors of), 2 Ves. Sen. 301. Attorney-General v. Bedford Corporation of, Ibid. 505. Attorney-General v. Foundling Hospital, 2 Ves. 42. 1 Iv. C. C. 165. Attorney-General v. Smart, 1 Ves. Sen. 72. Attorney-General v. Tenny, Ibid. 74. Attorney-General v. Clutton (Earl of), 17 Ves. 491. Berkhamstead School, 2 V. & B. 134.

By a private act of parliament for regulating Bolton School, the number of trustees was limited to twelve, of whom seven were to constitute a quorum; and there was a clause in the act by which it was enacted, that if any of the constitutions or provisions in the act should be found inconvenient or impracticable, the trustees might apply in petition to the lord chancellor, who might in a summary way, vary such constitutional provisions.

It having been found impracticable to assemble seven out of the twelve trustees, six of them except two applied to the lord chancellor, either to increase the number of trustees to sixteen, or to limit the quorum to five only. But the lord chancellor thought this was not within his jurisdiction, and though it might extend to varying bye or particular provisions, did not suppose power to alter the general constitution of the trust itself, and therefore, that the application must be made to parliament. In re Bolton School, 2 Bro. C. C. 662. Attorney-General v. Foyster, 1 Atk. 114.

Where there is a foundation by the crown and there is a particular direction in the charter for the application of the revenues, a decree will be made for the establishment of a charity, which is properly regulated by charter from the crown. Attorney-General v. Smart, 1 Ves. Sen. 72. Shelford on Mortmain, 336.

Questions which properly fall under the cognizance of the visitor of a charitable foundation, cannot be decided by a court of Equity, nor the decision of the visitor, however erroneous, be altered upon bill or information. Attorney-General v. Harrow School (Governors of), 2 Ves. Sen. 301. Attorney-General v. Bedford Corporation of, Ibid. 505. Attorney-General v. Catherine's Hall, Cambridge (Master of), Jacob, 382. Shelford on Mortmain, 336. And a fortiori such questions cannot be determined upon petition under Stat. 52 Geo. 3. c. 11. Eap. Berkhamstead Free School, 2 V. & B. 137. In re Bedford Charity, 2 Beav. 520, 524. Coreney's case, Dyer, 260 a. pl. 20.

viii. Costs. Where a petition had been presented in the year 1813, to the lord chancellor, as visitor of a college in right of the crown, touching the same matters as were in question in an information and bill filed in 1811, the order for taxing the costs in the petition included specifically those of the petition. Attorney-General v. Catherine's Hall, Cambridge (Master of), Jacob, 401, 402.

The lord chancellor can award costs on a petition to him as visitor, and in a case which arose between the fellows of a college

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 5.

The statutes
and ordinances
of an hospital.
The founder
may place the head and members.

Leases made by hospitals.

A saving of
the right of others in the hospital lands.

Certain persons not enabled to create hospitals.

Ten pounds
lands at the least shall be assured to an
hospital.

The construction of this act.

Farther provisions relating hereto, see 13 & 14 Car. 2 c. 12; 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 37, empowering the king to grant licence to alien a mortmain; and 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, which restrains gifts in mortmain by will.

to the laws and statutes of this realm; any law, statute, custom, usage, or other thing whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding: and that it shall be lawful unto the founder or founders, his and their heirs or assigns, upon the death or removing of any head or member of any such corporation, to place another in the room of him that dieth, or is removed, successively for ever.

"II. Provided always, that all leases, grants, conveyances, or estates, to be made by any corporation so to be founded as aforesaid, exceeding the number of one and twenty years, and that in possession, and whereupon the accustomed yearly rent or more, by the greater part of twenty years next before the making of such lease, shall not be reserved and yearly payable, shall be void. Saving to all persons, bodies politic and corporate, their heirs and successors, (other than the founders and givers, their heirs and successors,) all such right, title, claim, possession, rents, services, commons, demands, interest, and profits, which they or any of them shall have, or of right ought to have, of, in, or to any the lands, tenements, or hereditaments hereafter to be given, limited, or assigned in form aforesaid, in as ample manner as if this statute had never been had or made.

"III. Provided also, that this act or any thing therein contained shall not extend to enable any person or persons, being within age, women covert without their husbands, or of not sane memorie, to make any such corporation, or to endow the same; any thing in this present act to the contrary thereof in as much notwithstanding.

"IV. Provided always, that no such hospital, maison de Dieu, abiding place, or house of correction, shall be erected, founded, or incorporated by force of this act, unless upon the foundation or erection thereof, the same be endowed hereto with lands, tenements, or hereditaments, of the clear yearly value of ten pounds by the year.

"V. Provided also, and be it further enacted, that no such incorporation to be founded by force of this act shall at any time hereafter do or suffer to be done an act or thing, whereby or by means whereof any of the lands, tenements, hereditaments, stock, goods, or chattels of such incorporation, or any estate, interest, possession, or property of or in the same or any of them, shall be vested or transferred in or to any other whatsoever, contrary to the true meaning of this act: and the such construction shall be made upon this act as shall be most beneficial and available for the maintenance of the poor, and for repressing and avoiding of all acts and devices to be invented or put in use contrary to the true meaning of this act."

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 6.

XLIX. STAT. 39 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 6(1). A.D. 1597.

"Commissions may be awarded to certain Persons, to inquire of Lands or Goods given to Hospitals, or other Charitable Uses, misemployed, and to reform the same. Saving for the Execution of Orders and Decrees before made by Commissioners according to this Statute."

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 8.

L. STAT. 39 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 8(2). A.D. 1597.

"An Act concerning the Confirmation and Establishment of the Deprivation of divers Bishops and Deans, in the beginning of Her Majesty's Reign."

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 22.

LI. STAT. 39 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 22. A.D. 1597.

"An Act for the Establishment of the Bishoprick of Norwich, and the Provisions of the same, against a certain pretended concealed Title made thereto."

LII. STAT. 39 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 28(1). A.D. 1597.

STAT. 39 ELIZ.
c. 28.

"A Confirmation of the Queen's General and Free Pardon."

[Except all offences of dilapidations for which any suit is or was depending (2) upon the said first day of this parliament.]

LIIII. STAT. 43 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 2(3). A.D. 1601.

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 2.

"An Act for the Relief of the Poor."

LIV. STAT. 43 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 4. A.D. 1601.

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 4.

"An Act to redress the misemployment of Lands, Goods, and Stocks of Money heretofore given to certain Charitable Uses (4)."

"Whereas lands, tenements, rents, annuities, profits, hereditaments, goods, chattels, money, and stocks of money, have been heretofore given, limited,

Commissioners
authorized to inquire of mis-employment of

(1) Expired.

(2) Is or was depending:—About the time that the act of pardon, 2 G. & M. c. 10, was passed, a suit had been commenced in the ecclesiastical court by the successor against the executor, for dilapidations; and prohibition was prayed, upon this suggestion; that though in the said act offences for dilapidations were excepted, the exception was limited to such dilapidations for which any suit is or was depending on the 20th day of March then last; and that the suit in question had been commenced since. But the whole court considered, that "the parliament never intended to take away the successor's remedy for dilapidations, for that would be to ease the executor of the last incumbent, who was the wrong doer, and translate the charge to the successor." But they would intend this exception, of such suits as might be in the ecclesiastical court, ex officio, against the dilapidator himself, to punish it as a crime against the ecclesiastical law, and to pardon it, unless there were prosecution before the day aforesaid: and so the prohibition was denied. Anon., 2 Vent. 216.

(3) It has not been deemed expedient to print the Poor-Law Statutes, as such statutes do not strictly come under the designation of Clerical Statutes or Eleemosynary Institutions; exclusive of which, if the Poor-Law Statutes, with the decisions thereon, were printed, the bulk of this publication, and its expense, would be greatly increased.

This statute has been amended by Stat. 2 Jac. 1, c. 25. 7 Jac. 1, c. 5. 21 Jac. 1, c. 12. 3 Car. 1, c. 4. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 12. 3 & 9 Gul. 3, c. 30. 9 & 10 Gul. 3, c. 11. 22 Ann. c. 18. 9 Geo. 1, c. 7. 12 Geo. 2, c. 29. 17 Geo. 2, c. 3. 17 Geo. 2, c. 37. 27 Geo. 2, c. 38. 18 Geo. 3, c. 47. 22 Geo. 3, c. 83. 32 Geo. 3, c. 57. 33 Geo. 3, c. 55. 35 Geo. 3, c. 101. 41 Geo. 3, c. 23. 50 Geo. 3, c. 49. 51 Geo. 3, c. 80. 52 Geo. 3, c. 160. 53 Geo. 3, c. 113. 54 Geo. 3, c. 70. 54 Geo. 3, c. 91. 54 Geo. 3, c. 170. 55 Geo. 3, c. 137. 56 Geo. 3, c. 139. 57 Geo. 3, c. 93. 59 Geo. 3, c. 12. 59 Geo. 3, c. 50. 59 Geo. 3, c. 95. 1 Geo. 4, c. 36. 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 32. 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 56. 6 Geo. 4, c. 57. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 17. 1 Gul. 4, c. 18. 2 Gul. 4, c. 42. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 30. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 40. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 63. 4 & 5 Gul. 4,

c. 76. 5 & 6 Gul. 4, c. 69. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 96. 1 Viet. c. 50. 2 & 3 Viet. c. 51. 3 & 4 Viet. c. 29. 3 & 4 Viet. c. 54. 3 & 4 Viet. c. 89. 4 & 5 Viet. c. 32. 4 & 5 Viet. c. 48. 5 Viet. c. 7. 5 & 6 Viet. c. 18. 5 & 6 Viet. c. 48. 5 & 6 Viet. c. 50. 5 & 6 Viet. c. 57. 5 & 6 Viet. c. 97. 6 & 7 Viet. c. 8. 6 & 7 Viet. c. 36. 6 & 7 Viet. c. 48. 6 & 7 Viet. c. 92.

(4) Charitable Uses; generally:—"Charity, in its widest sense, denotes all the good affections, men ought to bear towards each other; in its most restricted and common sense, relief of the poor. In neither of these senses is it employed in this court. Here its signification is derived chiefly from the statute of Elizabeth. Those purposes are considered charitable, which that statute enumerates, or which, by analogies, are deemed within its spirit and intendment; and to some such purpose every bequest to charity generally shall be applied. But it is clear, liberality and benevolence can find numberless objects, not included in that statute, in the largest construction of it." Per Sir William Grant, in Morice v. Durham (Bishop of), 9 Ves. 405.

The senses of the word liberality are various. Assisting persons deprived not of the necessities, but of the comforts of life, may come within the description of liberality. Formerly exhibitions or combats by wild beasts and gladiators were considered objects of liberality. At present a public exhibition of pictures may be so considered, but such an application may be properly made in opposition to a gift to an hospital, which would be correctly termed charitable.

Liberality is distinguished from benevolence, but benevolence is also distinguishable from charity. For although many charitable institutions are very properly called benevolent, every object of a man's benevolence, is not an object of his charity.

No case appears where a bequest has been deemed charitable, if the testator did not use that word, or point out some object which the court has considered charitable in its nature. Morice v. Durham (Bishop of), Ibid. 399. Hereford (Bishop of) v. Adams, Duke's Charitable Uses, 566. Muggeridge v. Thackwell, 1 Ves. 464. Paice v. Canterbury (Archbishop of), 14 Ibid. 370. James v. Allen, 3 Meriv. 17. Vezey v. Jamson, 1 S. & S. 69. Ommancey v. Butcher, 1 Turn. & R. 260.

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 4.

Things which can be granted to a charitable use. It is not necessary, that the gift should be to the poor, for many of the objects considered charitable are more beneficial to the rich than the poor; such as repairing and preserving bridges and buildings, &c., which are of indiscriminate benefit. Attorney-General v. Dublin (Mayor of), 1 Bligh N. S. 312.

Funds supplied from the gift of the crown, or from the gift of the legislature, or from private gift, for any legal, public, or general purpose, are charitable funds to be administered by courts of equity.

It is not material if the particular, public, or general purpose be not expressed in Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4; all other legal, public, or general purposes being within the equity of that statute.

It is the source from whence the funds are derived, and not the mere purpose to which they are dedicated, which constitutes the use charitable; and funds derived from the gift of the crown, or from the gift of the legislature, or from private gift, for paving, lighting, cleansing, and improving a town, are within the equity of Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4.

But when an act of parliament passes for paving, lighting, cleansing, and improving a town, to be paid for wholly by rates or assessments to be levied upon the inhabitants of that town, the funds so raised being in no sense derived from bounty or charity, in the most extensive sense of that word, are not charitable funds to be administered, by the court of Chancery. Attorney-General v. Hertis, 2 S. & S. 67, 76, 77. Attorney-General v. Crompton, 1 Y. & C. 424. Harvey v. Harvey, 4 Beav. 219.

If the crown be entitled to tolls, and grant them as a charitable use, they are subject to all the incidents of other property so granted.

Although the crown might grant its own lands with all its own incidents, such as a right to impose a toll for passing through them; it is doubtful, when the crown creates tolls de novo, and does not grant existing tolls, whether it can be considered as a charitable trust. Because, if the crown had a right to originate a distinct unattached grant of tolls for charitable purposes, it might be difficult to say, what burdens the subject might not be exposed to. Attorney-General v. Galway (Corporation of), 1 Molloy (Irish), 103. 1 Beatty (Irish), 298.

If there be a general obligation to be performed by a civil corporation, which is in the nature of a charitable use, the court will give relief, and therefore, a grant from the crown of certain privileges and property for the defence and preservation of the peace within a city, is a charitable gift. Attorney-General v. Carlisle (Corporation of), and Robinson v. Carlisle (Corporation of), 2 Sim. 437. Attorney-General v. Braun, 1 Swaust. 265. Attorney-General v. Heelis, 2 S. & S. 67. Attorney-General v. Gurl, 6 Dow, 136. Attorney-General v. Dublin (Corporation of), 1 Bligh N. S. 312.

It is competent for a party by deed to point out particular classes of persons which are intended to be the objects of his favour, and then to leave it to an individual, or to a body of individuals after his death, to select out of those classes the particular individuals, or the particular objects, to whom his bounty shall be applied. Crichton v. Gervaise, 1 Bligh N. S. 421.

But where a testator made a bequest of stock to government, "in exoneration of a national debt," it was directed to be transferred to such persons as the king, under a sign manual, should appoint. Newland v. Attorney-General, 3 Merit. 694.

A bequest to a charitable use, of damages to be recovered in an action of debt, or the donor's executors, is a good bequest. So are damages recovered by a termor or tenant upon an ejectment. And the law has been held to apply to lands tenement in value, and of a tenancy which entailed to a seignior, if granted to a charitable use.

"An advowson may be granted upon condition, that so often as the church shall be void, a poor scholar of such a college shall be preferred, and the limitation is good." Duke's Charitable Uses, 137.

If a man make a lease for life upon condition, and then grant his reversion, upon condition, to perform a charitable use, the grantee enters for conditions broken, and is presently held as charged with the use. Ibid.

An annuity, neither charged on land, or to be paid out of nor secured by any debt or interest in land, can be given to charitable uses, and a direction to execute to settle an annuity for a charitable purpose generally, and not requiring the fund to be laid out in land, is valid. Waste v. Holt, 1 Madd. 71. Sorresby v. Holt, 9 Mod. 22.

Things which cannot be granted to a charitable use. There are five descriptions of things which cannot be granted to a charitable use; 1st, things that yield no profit; 2nd, things that are incident to others, or inseparable; 3rd, possibilities of uses; 4th, conditions; and 5th, copyholds, in any way prejudicial to the lords.

In order to create a charitable use, the trust must be of such a tangible nature, that the court can deal with it, when it is mixed with general moral duty, and is not the subject of the jurisdiction of a court of equity. Crummey v. Butcher, 1 Turn. & R. 594. Nash v. Morley, 5 Beav. 177.

A gift to a person for his own benefit, whereby consequential charity might arise, is not a charitable use. Attorney-General v. Haberdasher's Company, 5 Sim. 178. Attorney-General v. Fishmongers' Company, 1 M. & C. 11.

An advowson in gross, a way or easement, matters of pleasure, as licence to hunt in a park, a seignior pro fealty only, &c., cannot be granted to a charitable use. So, though a devise to a college, not for academic or collegiate purposes, but merely to make the testator's house alienable, is not a grant to a charitable use. Attorney-General v. Whitwood, and Whitwood v. University of Oxford, 1 Ves. Sen. 531. Duke's Charitable Uses, 137.

A gift for erecting a monument to the testator's memory, or for the repair of a vault, is not a charitable use. Mason v. The Aylm, The President and Governors aged(1), and assigned, as well by the queen's most excellent majesty, for most noble progenitors, as by sundry other well disposed persons: for relief(2) of aged, impotent, and poor people(3), some for maintenance

STAT. 43 ELIZ. c. 4.

lands or goods given to hospitals, &c.

Jacob, 186. Durour v. Motteux, 1 An. 320. Cravenor v. Hallum, Amb. Doe d. Thompson v. Pitcher, 3 M. 97.

They may be released to a charitable use, and the money convenient, distributed to a charitable use. Duke's Charitable Uses, 137.

Canon appendant, or an annuity pro impendenda, and such things as are charitable, cannot be granted to a charitable use. Ibid.

Direction to executors to apply property for an undetermined purpose, without naming a specific object, will not create a charitable use. James v. Allen, 3 Meriv. 17. Durham (Bishop of), 9 Ves. 399. W. v. Feall, cit. 7 Ibid. 50. Vezey v. W., 1 S. & S. 60. Doe d. Toone v. Lake, 6 East, 328. Corbyn v. French, 418. Attorney-General v. Whorwood, 5 Sen. 554. Townley v. Bedwell, 6 B. 4.

Where a testator, who has given his real estate to charitable uses, contracts to sell the same, but the sale is not completed in his life-time, his lien upon the estate for the amount of the purchase money is lost in land within the Statute of Charitable Uses, and the purchase money will not be paid by his will to a charity. Harrison v. W., 1 Russ. & M. 71. March v. Attorney-General, 6 Jurist, 831. Setley v. Lake (Lord), 1 Beav. 146.

Limited, appointed:—Under these the judges have held, that "if there be a gift in fact by a person who had a capacity to give in any way, the intention, though improperly executed, was a sufficient ground for supplying any imperfection in the mode of donation, and that the legislature intended, that if estates were given in deeds in form were to be overlooked, as charity to take place." Attorney-General v. Tancred, 1 Eden, 14.

Lord Nottingham's MSS. it is stated, that no words in Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4, which relate to an antecedent gift, which do not apply to subsequent gifts; and he considers that subsequent gifts and subsequent conveyances, though in themselves void, were made by effect of Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4.

He would have thought, primâ facie, that the act could give effect only to those gifts and conveyances which had been made at the time of passing the act, and ought to be presumed to be good, and would not give validity to void assurances and conveyances subsequently made; but authorities have decided, that it had retrospective and a prospective effect." Lord Eldon, Attorney-General v. W. v. Feall, 2 Russ. 419.

The Statute of Charitable Uses is a partial exception to the Statute of Mortmain, when Doctor Floyd was seized in capite, and devised them to Jesus College, in Oxford, and their successors, to find a fellow there, which should be of his blood and alliance; it was referred to the judges, whether this devise was good or no; and they resolved and certified, that "by the common law, and Statute of Wills, the devise was void; for these statutes enabled persons to devise their lands, excepting to corporations, for that is mortmain. Also, none can devise all their capite lands to any, but must leave a third part to descend;" but they certified and resolved, that "although it be void by the common law, yet the statute of 43 Eliz. for charitable uses, doth make this good, as a limitation and an appointment, and that it was good for all the land. But if an infant or lunatic, who, by law, is disabled to make a will, or (to make a) devise of his land, do devise his land to a charitable use, this is void, and not made good by the statute, for want of a capacity to make a will by law." Jesus College, Oxford, Duke's Charitable Uses, 363. Attorney-General v. Skinners' Company, 2 Russ. 418. Collison's case, Hob. 136.

A conveyance to charitable uses, on account of uses being limited to certain officers of a corporation, and not to the corporate body, was aided under Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4. Attorney-General v. Tancred, 1 Eden, 10. Case of Christ's College, Cambridge, 1 Black. (Sir W.), 90.

(2) Relief:—Under the word relief are comprised meat, drink, and apparel, wherein the following requisities are essential: i. That it be for necessity only, not for ornament or superfluity; ii. That it be according to the laws, not against the law; iii. That it be not given to do some act against the law.

A gift to build houses for the poor, with four acres to a cottage; to make conduits to such almshouses; to maintain a common laundress for the poor of such houses; to maintain one to read prayers to the poor of such a house; to build a house for the poor to resort unto, to receive their alms, pensions, or payments; to provide them weapons for the defence of their houses, not to wear abroad for ostentation; to increase the diet of almsmen upon festival days: are charitable uses. Duke's Charitable Uses, 126.

(3) Aged, impotent, and poor people:—Poverty is the principal and essential circumstance to bring the gift within the compass of this statute, for a gift to the aged of such a parish, or to the impotent of such a parish, without expressing their poverty, is not within the reach of this act, because they may be rich.

But a gift to the poor, of a particular place, or sect, without expressing age or impotency, is good enough, for poverty, without further regard, is a subject sufficient, for charity to work upon.

A gift to all the aged or impotent of such a parish, not assessed in the subsidy, was held to be good; for those which were not assessed in the subsidy were poor within the intent of this statute.

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
C. 4.

A gift of money to make a stock to bind apprentices, the children of such men as were not in the subsidy of goods, or to relieve bastards, is a charitable use, because they are like orphans, having (by intendment of law) no parents to relieve them.

To find haws and arrows for the children of poor men in such a parish, was good also, because it was an ease to their fathers who were poor, and yet were bound to find them. Duke's Charitable Uses, 125.

A gift was made to a parson and his successors, to the use of the "poor of the parish;" the parson made a lease for thirty years, the lessee did not perform the use, and the poor made an entry. It was held, that the gift was good, and that the lease for so many years was good also, notwithstanding Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10; (antè 424;) 1st, because, it was not an ancient glebe of the church; 2nd, because it could not tend to the impoverishment of the successor, inasmuch, as it was given to a charitable use. Bannister's case in the Star Chamber, 44 Eliz. Duke's Charitable Uses, 133.

Lands were given to the "poor" of the Hospital of Reading,—the hospital was no corporation, and so not capable; but the "mayor and burgesses" were governors and supervisors of the hospital. The land in equity was decreed to the mayor and burgesses to the use of the poor of that hospital. Duke's Charitable Uses, 136.

Where a testator directed, that as his debts should come in, and his effects be disposed of, his executors should purchase certain annuities, one half to be paid to the elders of a Baptist congregation in trust, for the poor of that congregation, and the other half to the elders of a congregation of Independents, to be distributed amongst the poor in like manner; and the testator, by a codicil, gave another annuity to a person for life, and upon her death to go upon the like trusts as the other annuities; the decree directed the master to set apart a proper fund of the testator's personal estate for securing the payment of the annuities, which were to be applied during the continuance of the lives for which they were given, and after to the charitable uses given by the testator's will. Attorney-General v. Graves, Amb. 157. Shelford on Mortmain, 241.

A conveyance of lands to trustees and their heirs, "in trust for the churchwardens and overseers of the poor and inhabitants of the parish of St. Owen, for the time being," to the intent that the rents and profits might be paid and applied for their use and benefit from time to time, in aid of the rate for the relief of the poor," was held to be a charitable use. Doe d. Preece v. Howell, 2 B. & Ad. 744. Shelford on Mortmain, 63.

In all cases where the expressions for the erection or support of a charity are general and uncertain, the court forms a judgment upon taking all the circumstances into consideration, and inclines in favour of the disposition, ut res magis valeat. Reeve v. Attorney-General, 7 Jurist, 1168. In the case of the Attorney-General v. Rance, (Amb. 122,) a legacy was given to "the poor." There were no words in the will which discovered what poor were meant; but it appearing that the testator was a French refugee, the court directed the legacies to be given to the poor refugees. Upon which principle a bequest of monies to the poor "inhabitants" of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, was held to be good, and that it should be distributed among the poor not receiving alms. Attorney-General v. Clarke, Amb. 422. Vide etiam Attorney-General v. Comber, 2 S. & S. 93. Pearl v. Attorney-General, 3 Meriv. 45. Wheeler v. Knight, 1 Ch. Ca. 134. Chapman v. Smith, Duke's Charitable Uses, 622.

But where the gift is to "the poor" indefinitely, which in common construction extends to all the poor in England, the testator will have the disposal of the fund. Attorney-General v. Matthews, 2 Lev. 16. Shelford on Mortmain, 62.

So likewise in cases of gifts to "poor relations," (Attorney-General v. Bannister, Atk. 328,) "or to relations the greatest objects of charity," (Attorney-General v. Heyley, cit. 7 Ves. 58; Goodenough v. Goodenough, 1 Ves. Sen. 231; Attorney-General v. Buckland, cit. Amb. 71; Thomas v. Bro. C. T. T. 251; Anon., 1 P. Wms. 15; Rhach v. Hammond, Prer. Ch. 401; Crane v. Clare, 9th April, 1761, in Ch.) the court of Chancery will exercise its discretion as to the specific objects intended by the testator.

"Such of my nearest relations as are pious cutors shall think the greatest objects of charity," has been held to extend only to such as would take under the Statute of Testaments, because if it were otherwise, it would be endless to find out everybody that was a relation: evidence will be refused to prove an intention in favour of more distant relations; but evidence will be received in case of an uncertain description of the person, as by a wrong name, to show that the person intended to be described by the testator was known to him by such a nick-name. Edg v. Salisbury, Amb. 70. Green v. Hamond, 1 Bro. C. C. 31. Isaac v. Devereux, 1 Ves. 595. Whithorne v. Harris, 2 Ves. Sen. 401. Maitland v. Adair, 3 Ves. 241. Brewster v. Wholledge, Amb. 507. Widmore v. Widdroffe, Ibid. 636. Worsley v. Johnson, 2 Atk. 758. Davies v. Bailey, 1 Ves. Sen. 91. Garrick v. Camden (Lord), 14 Ves. 221. Bailey v. Wright, 18 Ind. 69. 1 Ves. 39. Thomas v. Hole, C. T. T. 251. Miles v. Savage, 1 Sch. & Lef. 111. Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Meriv. 689. Smith v. Campbell, 19 Ves. 400. Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 101. Cotton v. Cotton, 2 Beav. 67. Doe d. Rance v. Latson, 3 East, 278. Handa v. Hand, 1 T. R. 437, in not. Devereux v. Meux, 1 Ves. 529.

But a donation to poor relations will be supported as a charity in favour of the relations of the testator as are poor and proper objects. Bannister v. Widdroffe, Amb. 507. Carr v. Belford, 2 Ch. & 146. White v. White, 7 Ves. 423. Attorney-General v. Price, 17 Ind. 371.

Where a person seized in fee of a manor, granted a rent in fee out of it as a charity for the support of several poor persons, and afterwards granted the manor to J. S. in fee, and maimed (1) soldiers (2) and mariners (3), schools of learning (4), free

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
C. 4.

held, that the nomination of the poor belonged to the heir of the grantor, and not go with the manor. Attorney-General v. Rigby, 3 P. Wins. 145.

Sick and maimed:—"These words are taken disjunctively and dividedly, so they must be construed for or; for if the man is either sick or maimed, he is relieved; but if he be sick, his relief must last longer than the time of his sickness, and his sickness must be such as ariseth by real service, as of fluxes, consumptions, as is a part that disables him for service more as a soldier or mariner.

If the maim happened in lawful service, the man is relievable, and therefore, if in a band, or in camp, a soldier be maimed in adventure, he is relievable, although he get from service without licence, after he is taken, because the maim was lawful. But if one serve an enemy, and be maimed, although he be after purged, yet he is not to be relieved by this, so if his hand be cut off for an offence, though he were in an English band, it was not in service." Duke's Charitable Uses, 127.

Soldiers:—"Under the word soldiers are meant every one, whether voluntary or not, that hath served in any band as a soldier, or captain; but no volunteers, nor the wives, children, or other of maimed soldiers, because they participate of their maims. If an Englishman be maimed in English service, he is relieved by this statute. But if an Englishman be maimed in the wars of an alien, he is not relieved within the meaning of this act."

Mariners:—"By this word are understood all necessary servants in a ship, as well as the master or pilot; so are victuallers; so are officers; and so are mariners in merchant-ships, as well as in the king's, or in the king's war; because the merchants' are employed in service of the realm, as well as the king's; but neither the owners, nor the crew, nor bargemen, nor wherry-men, nor as serve in the ships of aliens, or ships as go to sea without letters of marque, nor the mariners within the intent of this statute."

Ibid.—"A college be built for the reception of merchants who have lost their estates by the sea, or other accidents, looking to a class of persons who are the objects of charity, its increased income should be applied to their more comfortable support, rather than to the augmentation of their estates." Attorney-General v. Lubbock, (C. P.), 28.

Schools of learning:—"Such are schools of writing, reading of languages, or any mathematical sciences, or of organs by men, because such are used in churches."

It is no schools of dancing or fencing are within the intent of this law, because they are for the sake of delicacy, not necessity."

It is no schools for catechizing, because religion is variable, and not within this statute." Duke's Charitable Uses, 128.

All schools and establishments for learning are considered charities under the statute of Elizabeth, and therefore, the British Museum, intended for public improvement, is in the nature of a charitable institution. British Museum (Trustees of) v. White, 2 S. & S. 594. Attorney-General v. Lonsdale (Earl of), 1 Sim. 109.

Mr. Shelford, (Law of Mortmain, 182,) conceives that the authorities may, perhaps, warrant the conclusion, that a bequest to build upon land to be given by others for the purposes of the particular charity specified by the testator, will be valid, provided land be afterwards legally acquired for the purpose; but in the absence of an express declaration upon the subject, it will be inferred, it was the testator's intention that land should be bought by his trustees, and not that it should be supplied by others, in which case the gift will be void.

Where a tenant in tail devised lands for the maintenance of a schoolmaster, and other charitable purposes, it was decreed to be a good appointment within the Statute of Charitable Uses, though no fine was levied, or recovery suffered. Attorney-General v. Rye, 2 Vern. 453.

In Attorney-General v. Willmings, (2 Cox, 387; 4 Bro. P. C. 526,) the testator directed the dividends of certain sums in the public funds to be applied for or towards establishing a school. It did not appear, that there was any school already in existence; and he afterwards declared his meaning to be, that the schoolmaster should not have a less salary than 30*l.* per annum, and that the overplus of the dividends should be applied in buying books, fire, clothes, and other necessaries for the children, and placing them out as apprentices, but no part to be applied for victuals, drink, or lodging. The court thought this bequest was not void under the statute. Vide etiam Attorney-General v. Nash, 3 Bro. C. C. 588.

A bequest of 7,100*l.* to be laid out in funds, the interest and dividends to be applied in providing a proper school-house, has been held to be good. And a bequest of residue for benefit of such charities, public and private, as executors may think fit, and amongst others to establish a life-boat at B. has likewise been supported. Johnston v. Swann, 3 Madd. 457.

Where a testator directed, that "a proper school-house should be provided," which might be by hire, it is some evidence of an intent that land should not be bought, and where that is apparent the devise is good. Ibid. Giblett v. Hobson, 5 Sim. 661. Attorney-General v. Chester (Bishop of), 1 Bro. C. C. 444. Henshaw v. Atkinson, 3 Madd. 313.

A bequest in the following words was held not to amount to a direction for building or hiring a school: "I direct also, that my executors or the survivor, &c. do and shall pay, out of some part of my money in the funds, the yearly sum of 200*l.* for and towards the support of a school at Ross,

STAT. 43 ELIZ. schools(1), and scholars in universities(2), some for repair of bridges(3). part
c. 4.

in Herefordshire, at the discretion of my said executors." Attorney-General v. Jordan, Highmore on Mortmain, 225.

As to how far a testator's intention may be effected by hiring land, or by a gift from others; it has been held, that where money was given towards erecting a school, that the end might be obtained by hiring a house which was directed for ever. Cantwell v. Baker, cit. 2 Ves. Sen. 185.

Where a school-house was built prior to Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, on the waste of a manor, given by the lord for that purpose, and paid for by subscriptions, from the lord of the manor and other parishioners, and never subsequently used, otherwise than as a public school-house; it is so dedicated to charity and in mortmain, that a bequest for the purpose of repairing and enlarging it, and of providing a salary for a schoolmaster, was held to be a valid legacy. Ingleby v. Dobson, 4 Russ. 342.

A residuary bequest for the purpose of bringing up children in the Roman catholic faith, although void, does not go to the next of kin, but is in the disposition of the crown to some other charitable use by sign manual. Cary v. Abbot, 7 Ves. 490. Attorney-General v. Fishmongers' Company, 2 Beav. 151.

Where a sum of money was bequeathed to erect a blue-coat school, and establish a blind asylum, with a direction, that lands should not be purchased, and the expression of an expectation that lands would be given for the charities; the bequest was held not to be void under the Mortmain Act. Henshaw v. Atkinson, 3 Madd. 306.

(1) Free schools.—These are to be understood grammar schools, and all things requisite thereunto, as provision for the room, for the school, the master and usher, and the lodgings, &c. See vide Attorney-General v. Jackson, 2 Keen, 541.

Gifts of lands to maintain the schoolmaster of a town, (Hynshaw v. Morpeth (Corporation of), Duke's Charitable Uses, 242,) to build a school, (Rugby School, ibid. 633,) or to erect a free grammar school, (Gibbons v. Maltby, Poph. 6; Shelford on Mortmain, 70,) have been held to be charitable uses.

If a school upon the true construction of the instruments establishing it, ought to be a grammar school for instruction in the classics, the trustees will not be permitted to convert it into a school for teaching merely English, writing, and arithmetic, though it had ceased, from before the time of living memory, to be a place for classical education, and though it appeared, from old regulations, that elementary instruction in English had always been one of the objects of the institution. Attorney-General v. Mansfield (Earl of), 2 Russ. 501.

Where the original statutes of a school show, that the intention of the founder was, that the master should be employed personally in teaching the children, he must not leave the detailed management of the school to an usher, nor is it any excuse for his doing so, that, as minister of a chapel annexed to the school, he devotes his time to ecclesiastical duties. Ibid.

Upon a devise to trustees in trust to constitute and support a grammar school, and to appoint a master and usher, and to pay them certain salaries, and the trustees to direct the management of the schools it was held, that the school was to be a free grammar school for teaching the learned languages; that the proper objects were the education of the resident inhabitants of P; that they were to be the children of protestants, and were to be educated according to the principles of the church of England; that the master was to take boarders and day scholars; that the number of free scholars was to be limited, and in fixing the number, the court was to consider the amount of salary originally provided for the free scholars were to be nominated by the trustees; that the trustees were to run the school at their discretion, and to be allowed their reasonable expenses; that as augmentation of the salaries of the master and usher made by the trustees upon a portion of the income of the charity, was not allowed to them, the school, through error, not having been devoted to the proper objects. Attorney-General v. Christ Church, Oxford, Jacob, 474.

On construction of the will of Sir A. Jell the Skinners' Company were held to be trustees of certain lands in their corporate character as governors of the possessions of the free grammar school of Sir A. Jell in the town of Tonbridge, and that the lands were held by them according to the tenor of letters patent of Edward 6, "for the support of the master and under master of the said school, and for the reparation of the said lands, and tenements, and not otherwise as to any other uses and intents." Attorney-General v. Skinners' Company, 5 Madd. 177, affirmed, Jacob, 629.

The master of a free school being appointed by the persons acting as trustees, and acting as such for many years, the validity of his appointment cannot be questioned; he has duly executed the duties of his office, and the master of a free grammar school is permitted to take boarders to be educated in the school, but not so, as to prepare the free scholars. Several donations, partly for the support of a school, and partly for the support of a grammar school, being devised by the commissioners of charitable uses in 1623, to the maintenance of a grammar school, and that decree having since been followed, the whole revenues must be applied to the use of a grammar school, as used during the continuance of a master appointed under the present system. Attorney-General v. Hartley, 2 J. & W. 361. Attorney-General v. Stamford (Earl of), 12 Law Journ. N.S. 297.

On an application for the regulation of a free grammar school, the practice at that period of the appointment of the present master thereof, was considered during its continuance in office. Ibid.

Several endowments, partly for a school and partly for a grammar school, were held, upon the ground of constant usage, to have been legally devoted to the latter purpose. Ibid. 379.

The court of Chancery will extend the application of the surplus income of property, given for the support of grammar schools, beyond the mere literally expressed intention of the donor, provided such income be applied to subjects connected with that intention. Attorney-General v. The Haberdashers' Company, 3 Russ. 530. Attorney-General v. Brentwood School, 1 M. & K. 377. Attorney-General v. Dulwich College, 4 Beav. 265. Attorney-General v. Pretyman, Ibid. 464.

If a man give a stock of money to be put out to young tradesmen at 5l. per cent., the interest money to be employed upon young students in divinity, to provide them living withal: this use to the students is not a charitable use, because "it depends upon usury, and maintains simony." Duke's Charitable Uses, 136.

If a poor scholar be married, or be placed in the College of Physicians, he is not to be relieved by this statute, because it is presumed he hath competent advancement.

By Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 115, Roman catholics are to be subject to the same law as protestant dissenters with respect to schools. But Roman catholic schoolmasters are required to take the oath which is prescribed by Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.

As to the regulation of charity schools, vide Attorney-General v. Clarendon (Earl of), 17 Ves. 491. In re Rugby School, 1 Beav. 457. Attorney-General v. Ladyman, Cooper (C. P.), 180.

Upon a petition to the lord chancellor, as visitor in right of the crown of the free school of W., it appeared that two persons had been elected; the right of election being in the chief inhabitants; but the chief inhabitants at the time of the foundation, and the heir of the survivor could not be discovered; both elections were declared void; and a reference was directed to the attorney-general to report, what directions or alterations would be proper, as to the mode and right of election, and in the orders, constitutions, and directions of the school; as should seem to him most conducive to the interests of the objects of the charity, and the furtherance of the intention of the donors. Attorney-General v. Black, 11 Ves. 191.

The court will not interfere where there are particular powers by charter as to a school, though not appointing general visitors, but will as to management of the revenue, and make the master (on collusion with usher) to account for fifteen years' salary. Attorney-General v. Bedford (Corporation of), 2 Ves. Sen. 305. Vide etiam Attorney-General v. Prelyman, 4 Beav. 462.

A free school founded by charter, with proper powers, must be regulated in the first instance by the charter, not by application to a court of equity. Attorney-General v. Middleton, 2 Ves. Sen. 327.

The nomination of a master to a charity school, is not subject to the general rules of a lapse, as in cases of presentation to livings. Attorney-General v. Wyelliffe, 1 STAT. 43 ELIZ. Ibid. 80.

If a corporation nominate a schoolmaster contrary to the particular tenour of their charter, they will be liable to costs. Salop (Town of) v. Attorney-General, 2 Bro. P. C. 402.

Rudiments of English, writing, and arithmetic, will be directed to be taught in a free grammar school. Attorney-General v. Ladyman, Cooper (C. P.), 184.

An information will be granted against governors of a charity as individuals, and not in their corporate capacities. Ibid. 186.

(2) Scholars in universities:—"These general words must be restrained to the particular universities of Oxford and Cambridge; and to such students that study divinity, physic, or law; not students in arts only, nor to any students of divinity in popery," &c. Duke's Charitable Uses, 128.

A devise to a college generally for their benefit, to increase the foundation, and advance the end of the institution, as to augment a headship or fellowship, or found a new one, was considered so laudable a charity, that it was excepted out of Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 36. Attorney-General v. Whorwood, 1 Ves. Sen. 536. Attorney-General v. The Margaret and Regius Professors in Cambridge, 1 Vern. 55. Plate v. St. John's College, Duke's Charitable Uses, 379. Case of Jesus College, Ibid. 363. Phoad's case, Hob. 136. Rex v. Newman, 1 Lev. 284. Case of Christ's College, Cambridge, 1 Black. (Sir W.), 90. Attorney-General v. Tancred, Amb. 351. 1 Eden, 10. Porter's case, 1 Co. 25 (b). Shelford on Mortmain, 69.

But a devise answering no immediate academical collegiate purpose, or good to the public, is invalid. Attorney-General v. Whorwood, 1 Ves. Sen. 534. Cory v. Abbot, 7 Ves. 496. Attorney-General v. Power, 1 Ball & Beatty, 145. Doe d. Burdett v. Wright, 2 B. & K. 722.

A devise to promote the studies of a certain number of students within a college, is a devise for the benefit of the body corporate, because it is really and bonâ fide beneficial for the college. Attorney-General v. Tancred, 1 Eden, 10. Case of Christ's College, Cambridge, 1 Black. (Sir W.), 90. Attorney-General v. Munby, 1 Meriv. 227.

Lord Rosslyn has questioned the opinion of Lord Northington, (Attorney-General v. Tancred, 1 Eden, 16,) that the exception contained in Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, only applied to colleges established in the universities at the time the act passed. Attorney-General v. Bowyer, 3 Ves. 728.

(3) Repair of bridges:—"Such only are intended as are for public passage, not private ease.

A civil corporation will be accountable in Chancery for revenues granted for divers public uses and purposes, for the improvement of the city, and the preservation and support of public buildings, bridges, highways, and establishments therein. Limerick (Corporation of) v. Attorney-General, 6 Dow's Parliamentary Cases, 136. Attorney-General v. Shrewsbury (Corporation of), 12 Law Journ. N. S. 465.

STAT. 43 ELIZ. Havens (1), causeways, churches (2), sea-banks (3), and highways (4), some for ed. c. 4.

(1) Ports, havens:—Such only as tend to safety of ships of sail, not other vessels; and creeks of harbour, which are employed to find lights to guide ships into the haven, is a charitable use within these words. An imposition granted upon commodities imported or transported, to be employed upon repair of ports or havens, where they shall land, is a charitable use, and within this statute. Common ponds, or watering places, are within the equity of these words. Duke's Charitable Uses, 129.

(2) Churches:—No use shall be taken by equity to be a charitable use within this statute, if it be not within the letter or words of the statute. But a use may be construed to be within the statute by equity taken upon the letter of the statute, and so within the words repair of churches, chapels, may be taken by equity, and under that word church all convenient ornaments and concurrents convenient for the decent and orderly administration of divine service, (as for the finding of a pulpit or a sermon bell,) as may be comprehended; for reparations of churches are but preparations for the administration of divine service. Vide etiam Turner v. Ogden, 1 Cox, 316.

Trusts for the support of religious institutions belonging to those whom the legislature have countenanced in the Act of Toleration as a denomination of Christians, are charitable. Attorney-General v. Cock, 2 Ves. Sen. 275. Attorney-General v. Fowler, 15 Ves. 85. Doe d. Wellard v. Hawthorn, 2 B. & A. 97. Doe d. Thompson v. Pitcher, 6 Taunt. 359. Corbyn v. French, 4 Ves. 418. Grieces v. Case, 4 Bro. C. C. 67. 2 Cox, 301. Shanley v. Baker, 4 Ves. 732. Davis v. Hopkins, 2 Beav. 276. Shuttleworth v. Greaves, 4 M. & C. 39.

Devises for the advancement of Christianity are pious and good uses, and will be supported by the court of Chancery as charitable uses. Attorney-General v. Herrick, Amb. 712. Cook v. Duckenfield, 2 Atk. 562. Attorney-General v. Stepney, 10 Ves. 22. Powerscourt v. Powerscourt, 1 Molloy, 616. Grieces v. Case, 2 Cox, 301. Doe d. Phillips v. Aldridge, 4 T. R. 264. Attorney-General v. London (City of), 3 Bro. C. C. 171. Clifford v. Francis, 1 Freem. C. C. 330. Shelford on Mortmain, 74.

Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 115, has conferred upon Roman catholics those privileges for the support of their chapels, which protestant dissenters enjoy.

If land or money be properly given for maintaining "the worship of God," without more, the court will execute the trust in favour of the established religion. But if it be clearly expressed, that the purpose is that of maintaining dissenting doctrines, so long as they are not contrary to law, the court will execute the trust according to the express intention. And where the intention clearly appears aliunde, though not expressed in the instrument creating the trust; the court will also carry the manifest design of the founder into execution, so far as it is consistent with law; and it is not in the power of the trustees or congregation to alter the designed objects of the trust. Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Meriv. 400. Attorney-General v. Culum, 1 Y. & C. 5. C. 411. Shore v. Wilson, 9 C. & P. 331.

Where trustees of copyholds in trust for repairing the church of A., and chapels in that parish, by desire of the parish, bought new ground and built a new church, the old being too small and in ruins, this was held not to be a deviation from the trust, and they were allowed to apply the rents and savings, but not to mortgage the estate. Attorney-General v. Foyster, 1 Anst. 166.

Although Sir F. Moore has stated that a gift of lands, &c. to maintain a minister to celebrate divine service, is a supererogatory use, and was purposely excluded from the statute of Elizabeth; it has since been held in a variety of cases, that such a gift is within the equity of the statute of Elizabeth. Forbes v. Knighton (Inhabitants of), 10 Ves. 381. Sir Baptist Newnham v. Turner, 1 Cox, 139. Turner v. Ogden, 1 Cox, 316. Durour v. Motteux, 1 Ves. Sen. 28. Attorney-General v. Parker, 10 Ves. 42.

In Attorney-General v. Hickman, 6 Cr. (Sir W.), 34, a bill was filed to establish a charity given by a codicil, by which a testator devised his residue "for encouraging and nonconforming ministers as preachers of the word in places where the people are unable to allow them sufficient and suitable maintenance, and for encouraging such as are designed to labour in God's vineyard as dissenters;" the testator appointed two persons to dispose of his charity, both of whom died in his life-time. Per curiam, though this was a lapsed legacy at law, yet in equity it exists, and the substance of the charity remains; and there is sufficient evidence of the testator's intent to maintain it under Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4. Upon the next point, the chancellor thought this was not a supererogatory use within Stat. 1 Edw. 6, c. 14, nonconforming ministers and dissenters meaning such Protestant dissenters as are under the Toleration Act of Stat. 1 G. & M. 18, and decreed, the residue to be divided of present, and not in a perpetual charity.

Where A., by will in 1676, gave 600*l.* to be distributed amongst sixty ejected dissenters; the charity, upon an information to the attorney-general, was decreed to be paid, and the money directed to be applied to maintenance of a chaplain for Chelsea College. But this decree was reversed by the lords commissioners in Trinity Term, 1683, and the 600*l.* which had been brought into court, was ordered to be paid out and distributed according to the will. Attorney-General v. Baxter, 1 Vern. 248, 251.

The court will sanction the appointment of a minister to a congregation for a limited period, and not for life, provided such be the usage of the members, or the provisions of the original trust. Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Meriv. 400.

If there be a gift of residue to J. V. to such charitable uses as he shall appoint, but recommending poor clergymen, &c., and J.

in the life-time of the testatrix; the will be sustained and executed by the Moggridge v. Thackwell, 3 Bro. C. C. Ves. 464. 13 Ibid. 416.

any towards establishing a bishoprick, was considered not to be void, standing that, no such bishoprick existed. Attorney-General v. Chester (of), 1 Bro. C. C. 444.

as for the benefit of the ministers of dissenters and quakers are charities, because the legislature has excluded the Toleration Act to them. Attorney-General v. Cock, 2 Ves. Sen. 275. Spillett, 2 Atk. 149. Shore v. Spillett, 9 C. & F. 355.

court will not enforce a charitable bequest, when it is for the support of a creed repugnant to the Christian religion, as been declared to be part of the law constitution of the kingdom. De Costa (as, Anstl. 228. Attorney-General v. Vern, 266. Attorney-General v. Taylor's case, 1 Vent. 607, 621. Res v. Woolston, 1 Str. 834.

entations made by ecclesiastical persons, all vicarages and curacies, under Car. 2, c. 8, are charitable uses. Stat. 3 Geo. 3, c. 107. Et vide Stat. 3, c. 84. Attorney-General v. ..., 2 Ves. Sen. 426.

Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 108, a devise by a testator, giving five acres of land, or property to the amount of 500*l.*, for the repair of any church or parsonage, is a valid bequest.

amount of a legacy, to be laid out in the building of a free chapel, is not within the Statute of Mortmain. Harris v. Barnes, 131.

they be left to repair parsonage houses: Attorney-General v. Chester (Bishop of), 1 Bro. C. C. 444; Attorney-General v. Ormonde (Bishop of), 2 Eden, 207; et vide ... v. Brown, 6 Ves. 408; Attorney-General v. Parsons, 8 Ibid. 191; or if mortgaged to build parsonage houses where the land is to be purchased, such bequests are valid, in the Statute of Mortmain. Brodie (Duke of), 1 Bro. C. C. 444 (n.).

use of 500*l.* to a specific church will be sustained, and will belong to the church, and to be employed by them in repairing and adorning the church. Attorney-General v. Roper, 2 P. Wms. 125.

It has been held, that a bequest to Roman Catholics and their successors, is valid, such characters being known to the testator, and where they are particularly named, though so described, the bequest is good for their joint lives, subject to the control of the court of Chancery. Attorney-General v. Power, 1 Ball & Beatty, by a commission of charitable uses, decreed, that copyhold lands formerly appropriated for the maintenance of a minister or chapel, should be let, and the proceeds employed towards the maintenance of the same, to be chosen and appointed by the vestry, and presented and allowed by the lord of the manor, who, upon complaint, might give the minister half a year's warning, and if he had not reformed by that time, might remove him. The information prayed, that the lord might be decreed to allow and approve of the candidate, who had the majority of votes, which was refused on the ground of misconduct, and, the evidence clearly proving it, a new election was directed; upon which the same candidate being returned, and producing strong affidavits of good conduct for the then last six years, the decree stating the affidavits declared: that in consequence thereof, the relator deserved the approbation of the trustees. Attorney-General v. Stafford (Marquis of), 3 Ves. 77.

At a meeting held to appoint a successor to an office in a charity, after a candidate has been elected, and a minute of his election has been entered by the clerk, it is competent for the majority of the electors, before the meeting is dissolved, to reverse their vote, rescind the minute of election, and postpone the election to a subsequent day, provided in so doing, they act bonâ fide, and with a view to the welfare of the charity. Attorney-General v. Matthew, 3 Russ. 500.

Where there was a trust of an advowson to present some fit person, "such as the inhabitants and parishioners, or the major part of the church and discreetest of them," should nominate; and the right of election was in the inhabitants paying the church and poor rates, above the age of twenty-one; a popular election by a majority of such voters, and others not so qualified, was established. Fearon v. Webb, 14 Ves. 13.

Superstitious uses. It may, perhaps, be expedient to make a few observations respecting superstitious uses.

A superstitious use is where property is given for the support of priests to say mass, or for the maintenance of prayers, or of obits, lamps, &c., for the soul of a dead man, in any church or chapel. Whetstone's case, Duke's Charitable Uses, 486. Colborn v. Dale, Ibid. Adams v. Stoke, 4 Co. 116. Duke's Charitable Uses, 468, 469, 473. Sir John Tate's case, 4 Co. 113. Walpole's case, Ibid. 113. Pete's case, Ibid. 113. Adams v. Lambert, Ibid. 115. Wickham v. Wood, Lane, 112. Doe d. Wellard v. Hawthorn, 2 B. & A. 96. Pitt v. Webster, Palm. 124. Attorney-General v. Fishmongers' Company, 2 Reav. 51.

Stat. 23 Hen. 8, c. 10, s. 2, (antè 137.) made void all direct and collateral assurances of lands to churches, chapels, &c., for superstitious uses; but in cities and towns corporate, wherein by custom they had authority to devise lands in mortmain, such custom was not prejudiced.

Stat. 1 Edw. 6, c. 14, (antè 294.) enacted: that all colleges, free chapels, and chantries, existing within the preceding five years, and all lands and revenues for the finding of priests, were to be vested in the king. That all brotherhoods or guilds and their possessions, except companies of trade, should be vested in the king. That commissioners should be appointed to survey all lay corporations, and to inquire of the revenues applicable to priests, obits, &c., and of lands, &c.

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 4.

STAT. 13 ELIZ.
c. 4.

vested in the king, and to make regulations respecting the same. But that the act should be inoperative as to the colleges in Cambridge, Oxford, St. George's Chapel, Windsor, Winchester, Eton, parochial chapels of ease, cathedrals, or other lands, except chantries existing, within five years.

By Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4. c. 115, Roman catholics are, as previously observed, to be subject to the same laws as protestant dissenters, with respect to schools and places of worship; (vide Waller v. Childs, Amb. 524; Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Meriv. 409;) but the property to be held is to be subject to the provisions of Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 36.

Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4. c. 115, has a retrospective operation, and the validity of bequests for carrying on the good designs of catholic schools, and for promoting the knowledge of the catholic religion among the poor and ignorant inhabitants of certain specified districts in England have been recognised; but gifts to Roman catholic priests for saying masses for the testator, have been held to be illegal. Bradshaw v. Tasker, 2 M. & K. 221.

Where superstitions and lawful uses are so interwoven, that they cannot be severed, the illegal use will prevail; and the property will thereby become forfeited to the crown. Waldern v. Ward, 2 Sid. 13. Sir Bartholomew Read's case, Moore (Sir T.), 654. Adams v. Lambert, Ibid. 648.

But if they can be disascered, then the crown will only take that which is illegal. Hynshaw v. Morpeth (Corporation of), Ibid. 242. Sheffield (Lord) & Ratcliff's case, Godb. 309. Ragnall & Pot's case, Ibid. 233. Shelford on Mortmain, 95, et seq. Waller v. Childs, Amb. 524.

That condition is not unlawful which looks forward to the possibility of a court deciding that the gift is unlawful: if the condition were in itself illegal, the whole deed would be void; but where the unlawful gift will not prevail, the legal condition will prevail. De Themmines v. De Bonnacal, 5 Russ. 288.

The Toleration Acts, (1 G. & M. c. 18; 10 Geo. 4. c. 7; 2 & 3 Gul. 4. c. 115,) give no new rights, but only an exemption from the penal laws to dissenters under certain regulations and tests, which renders those religious legal. Harrison v. Beaus, 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 207, 220. Rea v. Barker, 3 Burr. 1265. 1 Black. (Sir W.), 300, 352. Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Meriv. 353. In re Bedford Charity, 2 Swanst. 190.

If a trust or bequest be made that is subversive of the Christian religion, (De Themmines v. De Bonnacal, 5 Russ. 288; De Govea v. Lawson, 4 Ves. 437, in not.; Attorney-General v. Power, 1 Ball & Bonty, 145; Rea v. Waddington, 1 B. & C. 26, or for the maintenance of a hostile religion, it is illegal. Smart v. Penjeau, 6 Ves. 567. Lady Eperston's case, Duke's Charitable Uses, 127, 128. Cary v. Abbot, 7 Ves. 490. De Osta v. De Pas, Amb. 228. 2 Swanst. 487. Attorney-General v. Gaur, 2 Vern. 266. Attorney-General v. Barker, 1 Ibid. 240. De Govea v. Lawson, 4 Ves. 433. Mills v. Farmer, 1 Meriv. 100. Attorney-

General v. Pearson, 3 Ibid. 409. Attorney-General v. Cock, 2 Ves. Sen. 253. Waller v. Childs, Amb. 524. Rea v. Barker, 3 Burr. 1265. De Govea v. Lawson, 4 Ves. 433. In re Bedford Charity, 2 Swanst. 190. Juch v. M'Gee, v. Reilly, 2 Hudson & Brooker, 301.

A bequest for the publication of a treatise for the assumption of the Pope in ecclesiastical affairs over the sovereignty of the sea, is a superstitious use, and adverse to public policy. De Themmines v. De Bonnacal, 5 Russ. 289.

Where there is an absolute devise or bequest, that it was for a superstitious use is excluded by the Statute of Frauds, and the nature of the thing; but an information may be maintained at the suit of the crown, on a discovery of the superstitious use, and the Statute of Frauds did not affect the issue, as the testator is bound by law to see that nothing be done to the propagation of a false religion. 29 Car. 2, c. 3. Rea v. Portington's lease, 1 Salk. 162. S. C., 3 Ibid. 534. Shelford on Mortmain, 98.

When a devise is to a superstitious use, and made void by statute, or to a charity void by the Statute of Mortmain, the land or fund will belong to the heir or next of kin; but where it is to a charity, the mode in which it is to be disposed is such, that by the law of England it may take effect, as in promoting a religious use, to that established by law, there the testator by sign manual, directed to the attorney general, may give orders in what manner it shall be disposed of. De Govea v. De Pas, Amb. 228. Cary v. Abbot, 7 Ves. 490. Attorney-General v. Barker, 1 Ibid. 240. Attorney-General v. Barker, 2 Vern. 266. Attorney-General v. Barker, 1 Ibid. 240.

Stat. 1 Edw. 6, c. 14, anti 254, is retrospective, but only retrospective to Portington (Lady), 3 Salk. 534. Canon Abbot, 7 Ves. 495; Porter's case, 1 W. & A. 12 (b), its policy being to subvert the authority of the Pope. Carbone v. Montford, 10 Ves. 3. Shelford on Mortmain, 95.

The act only related to colleges that were superstitious, and did not extend to religious hospitals, and parsonages and manseages were excepted by an equitable construction. Byston v. Studd, 13 Ves. 468. Webster v. Palmer, 125. Pitt v. Jones, Hob. 122. Co. Lit. 342 a.

If a fund real or personal be given, promoting no doctrines contrary to law, and such as may be at variance with the doctrine of the established religion, it will be administered in Chancery according to the intent of the founders. Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Meriv. 409. Attorney-General v. Cock, 2 Ves. Sen. 253. Waller v. Childs, Amb. 524. Corbyn v. French, 1 Ves. 48. Ashburham v. Kirkhall, 11 Ves. 48. Attorney-General v. Lloyd, 1 Ves. Sen. 32. Bradshaw v. Tasker, 2 M. & K. 221. Attorney-General v. Drummond, 1 B. & W. 251.

And a bequest for the benefit of Jews or Unitarians having no reference to the propagation of their peculiar tenets, would be valid. Israel v. Simmons, 2 Stark & P. 356. Edenborough v. Canterbury Arch- and preferment of orphans (1), some for or towards relief, stock, or maintenance of houses of correction (2), some for marriages of poor maids (3), some for supportation, aid, and help of young tradesmen (4), handicraftsmen, and decayed (5), and others for relief or redemption of prisoners or cup-

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 4

1. 2 Russ. 111. De Costa v. De Wanst. 487, in not.

2. A man did not, under Stat. 1 Edw. 6, c. 294, acquire the freehold of lands given to superstitious uses, retained in the lord of the manor, the copyhold, and the copyhold tenure de-

Bygnall & Pot's case, 101b. 233. A grant cannot be acquired by undue influence and confidence from a person under a delusion, such grant will be invalid on principles of public policy. Norton v. Eden, 286. Huguenin v. Baseley, 173. Shelford on Mortmain, 116.

3. Bankers:—"Intend only where the land flows. And a gift to repair is good, notwithstanding others are bound by covenant or prescription to do so, because it is a common good, in a common danger." Duke's Chancery, 129.

4. A parliamentary grant of a duty on coal into a town, in aid of the pecuniary of the inhabitants to protect the town from the encroachment of the sea, is a charitable use, the act having regard to the inhabitants were unable to pay sufficient for that purpose without aid of parliament. Attorney-General v. Swanwick, 1 Swanst. 265.

5. Highways:—"Gifts of a general nature, for the repair of the highways of a parish." Parish v. Warreyn, Duke's Chancery, 641; Collison's case, Hob. for the improvement of a city, are good uses. House v. Chapman, 4 Ves. 302. v. Williams, Ambl. 651. Vide Attorney-General v. Lonsdale (Earl of), 105. Johnston v. Swanwick, 3 57. Townley v. Bedwell, 6 Ves. 57. Shelford on Mortmain, 76.

6. Orphans:—"Are those, that are poor and helpless, and such are bastards after the death of their mother, and are to be relieved by intendment they are able to live, which is the age of twenty-one years." Duke's Charitable Uses, 130.

7. A gentle poor child be married under twenty years of age, it continues an orphan until the age of assent: no servant or apprentice is an orphan within the statute, they have masters, which are in lieu of parents to provide for them; but a scholar is an orphan until twenty-one years of age. Ibid.

8. A gift given to buy horses, and to proper, to teach orphans to ride which might be service, is within this law."

9. Idem etiam Attorney-General v. Compton, 8. 93. Powell v. Attorney-General, 48. Attorney-General v. Company, 12 Law Journ. N. S.

10. House of correction:—"Cannot be chartered without an act of parliament, because it tends to corporal punishment which cannot be inflicted without parliament; but justices at their sessions, may find one, by virtue of the act of parliament, made 39 Eliz." Duke's Charitable Uses, 130.

A gift of money to erect a house of correction, is good, and within the meaning of this law. Ibid.

The mayor, bailiffs, and burgesses of Berwick-upon-Tweed, in consideration of 50*l.* left by will for the erecting and maintaining of a house of correction there, by feoffment, dated 28th May, 1653, conveyed the moiety of a property thereto the churchwardens and overseers for the erecting and maintaining of a house of correction within the borough, and for maintaining and ordering the poor therein for ever, and all other sturdy and idle persons coming and being therein, and for the getting them and every of them to work. By another feoffment of the same date, in consideration of 350*l.* owing by them to the poor, the mayor, &c. conveyed the other moiety and some other lands for the like purposes. Upon such facts, it was held, that this town never having at this time raised poor rates under the act of Elizabeth, these were gifts in aid of the poor rate.

That as to a part of the land, the rents of which had been duly applied down to the eighteenth century, when their application ceased for the use of the poor, and was wholly carried to the corporate chest: the court, being satisfied upon the evidence, it was intended to be comprised in the second feoffment, declared it to be a part of the charity, and that the rents should be accounted for from 1823, when the same were claimed for the use of the poor, and the rents thereof were also declared to be applicable in aid of the poor rates: that the costs of the relators should be taxed as between party and party, and paid by the mayor, bailiffs, and burgesses: and that the extra costs of the relators should come out of the fund. Attorney-General v. Berwick-upon-Tweed (Corporation of), 1 Taml. 239.

(3) Marrriages of poor maids:—"These words extend not to such, as have parents able to give portions with them, nor to such as have legacies given them, nor to such as are incontinent, nor such as marry without, or against, the consent of their parents. But though they have uncles, and able to give portions, yet they are poor within this law. To provide them wedding apparel, or an offering dinner, is a good use; but not to provide them wedding rings, because that is the husband's part. Duke's Charitable Uses, 130.

(4) Supportation, aid, and help of young tradesmen:—"Not after five years continuance in trade." Ibid.

(5) Persons decayed:—"Bankrupts are within these words, if they lie in prison, not if they keep their houses, because they have submitted themselves to the law. And the Statute for Charitable Uses was made after the Statute of Bankrupts. Such as are de-

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
C. 4.

Their orders
shall be performed.
2 Inst. 797.
4 Vin. 476.

ties(1), and for aid or ease of any poor inhabitants concerning payments of tithe, setting out of soldiers, and other taxes(2); which lands, tenements, rents, annuities, profits, hereditaments, goods, chattels, money and stocks of money, nevertheless have not been employed according to the charitable intent of the givers and founders thereof(3), by reason of frauds, breaches of trust, and decayed by negligence, fraud of servants, or casualty by fire, &c. are within this law, but such as are decayed by suretyship, are not relievable by this act." Ibid. 131.

"To lend to young tradesmen, 'under 10*l.* the 100*l.*,' is charity but to employ the interest is not within this statute, because no charity can arise out of usury, all usury being unlawful." Ibid.

Where a testator directed his residuary personal estate to be invested by his executors, and they were to receive and divide the income among poor pious persons, male or female, old or infirm, in 10*l.* or 15*l.* as they should see fit; not omitting large and sick families of good character: it was held to be a good charitable bequest, and that one of the executors was justified in filing a bill for a scheme to carry the charity into effect, without first applying to the attorney-general for his sanction to the suit. Nash v. Morley, 6 Jur. 520. Vide etiam Attorney-General v. Fishmongers' Company, 2 Beav. 589.

(1) For relief or redemption of prisoners or captives.—"Prisoners upon præmunire, or upon executions upon condemnations, are relievable.

"But seminaries committed by the high commissioners are not, because the ground of their restraint is a contempt."

An enemy taken captive by another Christian, is not relievable. But if a Christian be captive to a Turk, he is relievable, (vide Attorney-General v. Ironmongers' Company, 1 Cr. & Ph. 208,) because he was taken prisoner in defence of a common cause: for the Turk is hostis communis to all Christians. Duke's Charitable Uses, 131; see vide Littleton's Readings on Stat. 27 Edw. 3, 17, cit. 1 Salk. 46. Omychund v. Barker, 1 Atk. 21.

Where a gift was made to relieve such as were imprisoned for their conscience sake; it was agreed in Throgmorton & Gray's case, (Duke's Charitable Uses, 131,) that if they were in prison, in subjection to the law upon condemnation, they were relievable; but if upon obstinacy, that they could not be relieved by the charity of this law.

The wives and children of prisoners are not within the equity of this act.

(2) Taxes.—Subsidies, are not within the meaning of this statute, because poor men pay them not, and it is no ease to discharge them of that tax. But all taxes, wherewith the poor, as well as rich, are chargeable, are within the intent of this law, as keeping of watches, pursuing of hue and cry, &c. But fines for encroaches, or for robberies, are not within this act. Ibid. 132.

By Stat. 42 Geo. 3, c. 116, s. 50, any corporation, company, or individual, can give any sum or sums of money for the purpose of the redemption of the land tax charged on any manors, messuages, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, settled to any charitable uses.

"Penalties of statutes, non obstante, monopolies, and such kind of privileges, cannot be granted to a charitable use." Duke's Charitable Uses, 132.

(3) Charitable intent of the givers and founders thereof.—"In construing devises of charitable uses, "The court has not the power to make a will for the testator, but only to carry into execution that, which he has made himself; and this it can only do, by giving to it such a construction as former precedents have established to be the right construction in every particular instance."

"Neither is there any doubt that the words in a will, when applied to the case of individuals, may require a very different rule of construction from that, which would govern them, if applied to the case of charity."

"If I give my property to such person as I shall hereafter name to be my executor, and afterwards appoint no executor, or having appointed an executor, he dies, or is a life-tenant, and I appoint no other to supply his place, in either of these cases, as to individuals, the testator must be held to have intended that his next of kin will take the estate. But, to give effect to a bequest in favour of charity, the court will, in both instances, supply the place of an executor and carry into effect that which, in the case of individuals, must have failed altogether. This distinction has proceeded partly, perhaps, of principles in the Roman Law, which was not at this time perfectly comprehended; and partly, no doubt, on the religious basis, which formerly obtained in this country, according to which it fell to the residuary province to distribute, in case of intestacy."

"A third principle, which it is now too late to call in question, is, that in all cases in which the testator has expressed an intention to give to charitable purposes, if the intention be declared absolutely, and nothing is left uncertain but the mode in which it is to be carried into effect, the intention will be carried into execution by the court, which will then supply the mode which alone is left deficient." Per Lord Eldon, in Miles v. Farmer, 1 Meriv. 94. Moggridge v. Thackwell, 3 Bro. C. C. 517.

Where a testator "directed" the residue of his personal estate "to be divided among certain charitable purposes mentioned by him," and other charitable purposes as I do intend to name hereafter;" but afterwards made a codicil, and named no charitable purposes: it was held, that a disposition of the residue in favour of charity, must be carried into execution by the court, having regard to the objects particularly pointed out by the testator. Ibid. Vide etiam Attorney-General v. Merchant Venturers' Society, 6 Jur. 772. In re Storry's Charities, 1 Jur. 611.

If land be settled in trust for maintenance of a charity, with special directions as to part of the rents, the land to be let for a certain term, subject to a rent to that extent; at the expiration of the lease, the surplus with its increase results to the charity under the general trust, not to the heir. Attorney-General v. Tunno, 2 Ves. 1.

Where A. by will, executed before the Statute of Mortmain, directed B. to settle a freehold estate, to pay a sum not exceeding 100*l.* per annum, in such manner, and upon such trust, on such a part of the poorer people of a parish as he should think fit, and and to be a most proper charity; and B., in pursuance thereof, by will executed after the statute, appointed a sum less than the 100*l.* per annum: it was held, that the appointment was not void by the statute, and that the amount to be appointed was discretionary to B., and not to be increased under the Stat. 43 Eliz. to the whole amount given by the will of A. Attorney-General v. Bradley, 1 Eden, 482.

A bequest of residue "to the widows and children of seamen belonging to the town of Liverpool" has been held to be a valid charitable bequest, to be applied in aid of a subsisting charity for such poor sailors, widows, and children as should, in the judgment of persons appointed to administer, be deserving objects of it. Powell v. Attorney-General, 3 Meriv. 48.

Where a testator gave a moiety of the residue to such lying-in hospital as his executors should appoint, and afterwards struck out the executor's name, and died without appointing any other executor, this was held, not to be a revocation of the legacy, because where the testator is willing, it shall go in the largest extent, and the court, by appointing one, follow his intent in marking out objects. White v. White, 1 Bro. C. C. 11. Attorney-General v. Sydenham, 1 Vern. 224. Beales v. Attorney-General, 4 Vin. Abr. Charitable Uses (C), 485. Baylis v. Attorney-General, 2 Atk. 249.

The court has never executed a charitable purpose unless described by the will, or the property be devoted to charity in general. In the latter case the application, either by the trustees or the crown, must be to purposes expressed in Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4, or analogous to those. Morice v. Durham (Bishop of), 10 Ves. 540.

A trust for uncertain objects will result to those in whom the law gives property in default of disposition. Ibid., 9 Ibid. 405. Maggidge v. Thackerell, 1 Ibid. 475.

The court will not execute a power given to the testator to trustees to continue his charities, or to give any bequests they should think fit. Cove v. Bassett, 3 Ibid. 155.

Where a testator gave by will a legacy to charity void by the Statute of Mortmain, and by a codicil gave a less legacy "instead thereof" to a different charity; it was held to be charged on the same fund, and was allowed, because it was thought the codicil was meant to alter the quantum of the bequest in some cases, and its objects in others, and not the fund out of which it was to be paid. Leach v. Maynard, 3 Bro. C. C. 351. Attorney-General v. Goulding, 2 Ibid.

428. Crowder v. Clowes, 2 Ves. 449. Cooper v. Day, 3 Meriv. 154.

Where a will contained this residuary clause, "all the remainders of my different bequests," to trustees for charitable purposes, "and anything not specified, I commit to the discretion of my executors," it was held to pass the general residue by the former words to the charity, and not by the latter, to the executors, who would not under such words have been trustees for the next of kin: that the devise for the charity was void as to the real estate, or to the personal connected with land, as leaseholds and mortgages, by Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, and that the charges upon the fund must be apportioned accordingly. Paice v. Canterbury (Archbishop of), 14 Ves. 364.

A bequest to the most "necessitous of my relations," will go according to the Statute of Distributions, because there is no distinguishing between the degrees of poverty; and the court have always construed a will, as if the word poor was not in it. Jones v. Beale, 2 Vern. 381. Roach v. Hammond, Pre. Ch. 401. Carr v. Bedford, 2 Ch. Rep. 146. Widmore v. Woodroffe, Amb. 636.

The charity of an alien domiciled abroad for the relief of male descendants of his nephews, and male and female descendants of his nieces, has been established in England; and such a bequest to "male descendants," means descendants claiming solely through males. Bernal v. Bernal, Cooper (C. P.), 55.

It may be here observed, that recourse to foreign law for the construction of a foreign instrument, will sometimes be dispensed with; (Ibid.;) and that letters of administration have been granted by the Prerogative court, with a copy of the translation of a Spanish will, lodged with a notary abroad, annexed. Ibid. 61.

A bequest of money to be laid out in building upon land already in mortmain, will be good, although the bequest may be equivocal. Attorney-General v. Munby, 1 Meriv. 227.

And a bequest for rebuilding, repairing, altering, or adding to and improving almshouses, is valid to the extent of any application upon the land already in mortmain, but not for the addition of other land. Attorney-General v. Parsons, 8 Ves. 186.

Money left to build a church where no land is to be purchased, is not within the Statute of Mortmain; but the execution of the devise will not be enforced if opposed by the bishop; neither will it be applied in repairing a church, nor augmenting the salary of the chaplain, because the court will always enforce the implicit intention of the donor. Attorney-General v. Oxford (Bishop of), 1 Bro. C. C. 444 (n.). Attorney-General v. Tyndall, 2 Eden, 207. Vide Chapman v. Brown, 6 Ves. 408. Attorney-General v. Parsons, 8 Ibid. 191.

A bequest of a sum of money for building a house in Ireland for reduced gentlewomen, is valid, and not against the Mortmain Act, for such statute does not extend to Ireland, where there is no similar restraint on devises to charitable uses. Attorney-General v. Power, 1 Ball & Beatty, 151.

Interest in land in England cannot be

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
C. 4.

STAT. 43 ELIZ. c. 4.

given for charitable purposes in Ireland, but pure personal estate in England can be invested in lands in Ireland for charitable purposes. Curtis v. Hutton, 14 Ves. 540. Page v. Leapingwell, 18 Ibid. 463. Attorney-General v. Harley, 5 Mudd. 321.

When a testator devised five twenty-fourth parts of the residue of his personal estate, after the death of his widow, and 20l. per annum after the death of his brother, or which shall be deemed equivalent to 570l. in some of the public funds, to stand in the names of trustees until the whole could be laid out in lands to the satisfaction of the governors of a charity, and his executors, who were always to be considered as trustees of the charity to which it was given: it was held to be a valid devise, the lord chancellor observing, "it would be a hard construction to say such a charitable bequest was void by the statute. If a person direct money to be laid out in lands for a charitable use, it would be void, although the court would order the money to be placed in the funds till the purchase is made; so where a man gives it, in such manner that the land to be purchased is the final end and thing given. But where there is sufficient room for the court to say, there is a discretionary power in the trustees to lay the money out, one way or other, either in the funds or in lands, I have determined such a devise to be good. [Surrey v. Hollins, 9 Mod. 221. Grayson v. Atkinson, 2 Ves. Sen. 454.] I am of opinion, there is room to construe this bequest with such latitude." Grimmett v. Grimmett, Amb. 210. Duke's Charitable Uses, 401. Sed vide Grieres v. Case, 1 Ves. 548.

Money to be laid out in the purchase of heritable security in Scotland, is not within the Statute of Mortmain; and the courts of equity in England will entertain jurisdiction, (over parties resident here,) and decrees the establishment of a charity in Scotland, contrary to the report of Lord Hardwicke's opinion. Oliphant v. Hendrie, 1 Bro. C. C. 571. Mackintosh v. Townsend, 16 Ves. 330. Edinburgh (Provost of) v. Aubery, Amb. 236. Attorney-General v. Lepine, 19 Ves. 309.

A legacy is valid which is to be laid out in land in Scotland for a charity, as not being within the Mortmain Statutes. Mackintosh v. Townsend, 16 Ves. 330.

If there be a devise of personal estate, upon trust, to be laid out in lands, or the funds, for the maintenance of a charity in Scotland, it will be valid by the effect of the option. Attorney-General v. Winchelsea (Earl of), 3 Bro. C. C. 373. Curtis v. Hutton, 14 Ves. 537.

Where money upon mortgage in England was given to a charity in Ireland, and the executrix by her will affirmed the legacy, it was held to be a good bequest, because, exclusive of the charity being in Ireland, the executrix admitting by the devise to the same uses, that she had personal estate of the testator, she would, as executrix and residuary legatee, be therefore only paying a debt, not giving money upon mortgage. Campbell v. Radnor (Earl of), 1 Bro. C. C. 272. Attorney-General v. Tomkins, Amb. 216.

It is not competent for a testator directly any interest in land to a use, yet it is competent for a testator to leave a sum of money for the better meliorating any land, or for the sustaining, or repairing, building, or vesting in trustees for charitable purposes. Vaughan v. Farrer, 2 Ves. Sen. 487, n. (3). Attorney-General v. Nash, 3 Bro. C. C. 427. Corbyn v. French, 4 Ves. 427.

Therefore, a bequest of money out in building a parsonage house, or in building a free chapel, is not within the Statute of Mortmain; because that statute is intended to prevent new acquisitions of mortmain, and not to apply to the maintenance of existing institutions; and a bequest which has arisen upon such a purpose, was for the purpose of ascertaining the testator meant the legacy to be laid out in enacting, sustaining, or repairing already vested in trustees for charity, or intended fresh land to be purchased for that purpose, in which latter case it would be void. Glubb v. Attorney-General, Amb. 373. Harris v. Barnes, 1 Bro. C. C. 163. Brodie v. Duke of, 1 Bro. C. C. 444 (n. 1). Attorney-General v. Oxford (Bishop of), 1 Bro. C. C. 444. Attorney-General v. Meriv, 327. Attorney-General v. Meriv, 8 Ves. 186.

The rule, that where the legal and the illegal purpose are not so connected as to be inseparable, and the property is defined, or capable of being separated, the bequest may be supported. Attorney-General v. Fackerell, 2 Ves. 208; 4 Bro. C. C. 394, will receive illustration from Attorney-General v. Stepney, 22, 29, in which a testatrix devised to trustees and their heirs, upon trust to deposit in the house certain books of the Welsh charity school, for the use and improvement of Christian children, and to preserve the books in that house, and to permit her executors should look after the books, to keep the house clear of rents and taxes. It was held that there was not enough to bring the case within the authority of the cases where the principal devise having failed, the bequest of the personal property, as connected with the principal, must fail also; for it appeared that the testatrix meant that the house should be devoted to the distribution of her books, and it was not necessarily connected with the purpose, for the will contemplated that when the charity might continue, the house be no longer applicable, and that there was enough in the will to give the power to charitable purposes, connected with the plan of promoting Christian education. Shelford on Mortmain, 203.

If a deviser leave his executors authority to do a particular thing, lawful, the other prohibited by the court will not say, because one is lawful, that therefore the other is lawful, and the whole bequest void; on the other hand, if one method be lawful, that shall and take effect; and where a testament in the first instance an illegal alienation of property, but went on in the life, "or otherwise as his executors be advised," it was held to be a legal gift. Grimmett v. Grimmett, Amb. 212. Attorney-General v. Whitechurch, 3 Ves. 397. Sorresby v. Hollins, 9 Mod. 221. Shelford on Mortmain, 184.

Sec(1) in those that should pay, deliver, and employ the same: for redress STAT. 43 ELIZ. c. 4.

rule of construction, as to a devise of land to be laid out in land, is the same now, as before the Statute of Mortmain. Grimmett v. Grimmett, Amb. 212.

though the statute makes the grant of land to charitable uses, void, it does not avoid the deed altogether, and a devise to charitable uses, as far as it respects other lands not appropriated to such uses, remains good. Collins v. Blanters, 2 Bl. 151. Doe d. Thompson v. Pitcher, 6 Mod. 359. Greenwood v. London (Bishop Marsh), 310. 5 Taunt. 727. Norton v. Hobbs, 13. Maleverer v. Redshaw, 35.

words used by a testator, showing an intention to be, that the money was to be applied to purchase or keep in real estate, but that the bequest was to form an auxiliary fund, to go in either donations, on the supposition that other persons would supply a house intended charity, will support a gift. Atkinson v. Atkinson, 3 Madd. 306. Attorney-General v. Hingman, 2 J. & W. 276.

is not amounting to a direction to purchase lands, but conferring no discretion than the selection of such as would constitute an advantageous investment of the money, is not within the Mortmain Act, because the words would not be an event which had not happened.

testator, after giving a legacy in a charitable purpose, stated, "As of more uncertain value than land, to give them (the trustees) power to purchase as they shall think fit for the purpose of the gift;" it was held, that the words did not bring the legacy within the Mortmain Act. Attorney-General v. Turner, 1 Turn. & R. 348.

gift of the residue of a testator's personal estate to trustees, for the perpetual support and maintenance of a school, is valid, but if the testator went on to appoint trustees to collect residue, in freehold lands, &c., it comes within the Mortmain Act. Kirkbank v. Hudson, 212.

testator ordered real estates to be sold, and the produce applied, with so much of the personal estate, as should be necessary to secure an annuity of 30*l.* for the testator's widow, and after his death to go to a charity, the estate sold for 250*l.*; the annuity to the charity was held to be void, but good as to the rest of the personal estate to the annuity. Waste v. Webb, 6 Madd.

Where there was a direction to raise and secure an annuity of 50*l.* per annum to charity, by purchase of lands of inheritance, or otherwise, it was held not to be within the Statute of Mortmain. Sorresby v. Hollins, 9 Mod. 221.

If there be a devise to trustees for a charity, and the trustees die in the testator's life time, such a devise will subsist in equity, though lapsed at law. Attorney-General v. Hickman, Kel. (Sir W.), 4.

A bequest out of real estate to erect a monument in a church to the testator's memory, is not within the Statute of Mortmain.

Where there was a bequest to erect a monument to the testator's memory within a year after his death, in the church of A., with a legacy to the rector of A., on condition of his consenting to the erection of the monument, and a direction, that if he refused, the testator was to be buried elsewhere; it was held, that the purpose failed by the rector's refusing, for many years, to allow the monument to be erected, though a succeeding rector was willing to consent. Mellick v. The Asylum (President & Guardians of), Jacob, 180.

Personal chattels, such as fixtures, which a testator has a right to remove from a leasehold house, may pass under a bequest of the residue of personal property for charitable purposes. Johnston v. Swann, 3 Madd. 467.

(1) Frauds, breaches of trust, and negligence:—Corporations being the mere creations of the statutes or charters, by which they have been created, possess no powers to alienate or dispose of property, which may be inconsistent with their grants, or prejudicial to their trusts, and when they depart from the spirit or letter of their charters, their acts are illegal.

The court never interferes with the alienation of property belonging to civil corporations, except where they are charitable trustees in their corporate capacities, and then they bear the same relation as other trustees. Colchester (Mayor, &c. of) v. Lowten, 1 V. & B. 246. Attorney-General v. Carmarthen (Corporation of), Coop. C. C. 39.

The principal statutes which directly and incidentally relate to alienations of charitable property, are 13 Eliz. c. 10; 18 Eliz. c. 11; 39 Eliz. c. 5; 17 Geo. 3, c. 53; 21 Geo. 3, c. 66; 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 41; 55 Geo. 3, c. 147; 58 Geo. 3, c. 45; 59 Geo. 3, c. 134; 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 92; 3 Geo. 4, c. 72; 5 & 6 Gul. 4, cc. 30 & 76; 3 & 4 Vict. c. 60; 4 & 5 Vict. c. 39; and 5 & 6 Vict. c. 112.

The court will control the power of leasing in trustees of a charity, if the restriction be beneficial to the charity. Ex parte Berkhamstead School, 2 V. & B. 138. Trustees are bound to a provident administration of the charitable funds, and there is no positive law which says, that, in no instance, shall there be an absolute alienation.

Alienation, not improvident, but beneficial to the charity, and conformable to the rule which ought to guide trustees, may be good; and, in such cases, alienation has taken

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
C. 4.

Purchasers of the lands bond
fide.

Recompence
by those which
break the trust.

Lands assured
to King Henry
8. Edward 6.
Queen Mary,
and Queen Elizabeth.

Certifying of
the orders.

Order for the execution of
the commissioners' decree.
Cro. Car. 40.

"VI. And provided also, that no person or persons which hath purchased or obtained, or shall purchase or obtain, upon valuable consideration of money or land, any estate or interest of, in, to, or out of any lands, tenements, rents, annuities, hereditaments, goods, or chattels, that have been or shall be given, limited, or appointed to any the charitable uses above-mentioned, without fraud (1) or notice, having no notice (2) of the same charitable use, shall not be impeached by any decrees or orders of the commissioners above-mentioned, for or concerning the same his estate or interest: and yet nevertheless, be it enacted, that the said commissioners, or any four or more of them, shall and may make decrees and orders for recompence to be made by any person or persons, who being put in trust, or having notice of the charitable uses above-mentioned, hath or shall break the same trust, or defraud the same uses, by any conveyance, gift, grant, lease, demise, release, or conversion whatsoever, and against the heirs, executors, and administrators of him, them, or any of them, having assets in law or equity, so far as the same assets will extend.

"VII. Provided always, that this act shall not extend to give power or authority to any commissioners before mentioned, to make any orders, judgments, or decrees, for or concerning any manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments assured, conveyed, granted, or come unto the queen's majesty, to the late King Henry the Eighth, King Edward the Sixth, or Queen Mary, by act of parliament, surrender, exchange, relinquishment, escheat, attainder, conveyance, or otherwise; and yet, nevertheless, be it enacted, that if any such manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any of them, or any estate, rent, or profit thereof, or out of the same or any part thereof, have or hath been given, granted, limited, appointed, or assigned to or for any the charitable uses before expressed, at any time since the beginning of her majesty's reign; that then the said commissioners, or any four or more of them, shall and may, as concerning the same lands, tenements, hereditaments, estate, rent, or profit so given, limited, appointed, or assigned, proceed to inquire, and to make orders, judgments, and decrees, according to the purport and meaning of this act, as before is mentioned; the said last-mentioned proviso notwithstanding.

"VIII. And be it further enacted, that all orders, judgments, and decrees of the said commissioners, or of any four or more of them, shall be certified under the seals of the said commissioners, or any four or more of them, either into the court of the Chancery of England, or into the court of the Chancery within the county palatine of Lancaster, as the case shall require respectively, according to their several jurisdictions, within such convenient time as shall be limited in the said commissions.

"IX. And that the said lord chancellor, or lord keeper of the said chancery of the duchy, shall and may, within their said several jurisdictions, take such order for the due execution of all or any of the said judgments, decrees, and orders, as to either of them shall seem fit and convenient.

also be taken by equity to be within the proviso." Readings of Sir F. Moore, Duke's Charitable Uses, 172.

(1) Without fraud.—The words "valuable consideration" have received the strictest construction.

A mixed consideration, as in consideration of money and marriage, is not a valuable consideration, under the statute; but a valuable consideration, coupled with another that is invaluable and void, is valid, because "utile per inutile non vitiatur." Readings of Sir F. Moore, Duke's Charitable Uses, 178.

If the consideration be executory and not performed, it is not within the meaning of this proviso; but if part be executed and part executory, it is within the proviso. Ibid. 179.

A sale under the moiety of the value is fraudulent and decrevable. But if one purchase lands or goods under half the value and sell them over to another, upon great consideration, bond fide, the fraud is purged. Ibid. 181.

(2) No notice.—The notice in order to bind a purchaser of lands charged with a charitable use, must be certain; a general notice is not sufficient. Ibid. 182.

Where a rent-charge is legal, it must, like every other legal incumbrance, bind the purchaser, although he purchased without notice; but where there is a mere equitable charge, no decree will be made for its payment against the purchaser, if he purchased without notice.

A purchaser without notice of land, which was subject to a rent-charge given in a charity, has been relieved from so much of the shall and may be lawful to and for the lord chancellor or keeper of the great seal STAT. 43 ELIZ. c. 4.

not to be affected by a subsequent alteration of circumstances. Attorney-General v. Hungerford, 2 C. & F. 357.

But there is no such principle, as that a lease of a charity estate for lives, or for a long term of years, determinable on lives in existence, is, on the face of it, an abuse of power. Attorney-General v. Cross, 3 Meriv.

39. Attorney-General v. Warren, 2 Swanst.

42. Attorney-General v. Smith, 2 Vern.

46. Attorney-General v. Hungerford, 2 C. & F. 357. Attorney-General v. South Sea Company, 4 Beav. 453.

The lease of certain charity lands for eighty years, has been supported, as to the interest of a sub-lessee, upon a fair consideration, several years ago, and no notice, except that it was a charity estate. As to the original lease, (in consequence of the length of time, the surrender of a former lease, the terms of which did not appear, the rent reserved, and an expenditure, though not according to the covenants, equally beneficial,) inquiries were directed, to ascertain, whether the lease was reasonable or unreasonable, in such a degree, that fraud could be inferred. Attorney-General v. Backhouse, 17 Ves. 283. Jones v. Smith, 1 Keen, 63.

Where an application was made to set aside the lease of a charity estate, because it had a clause in the original lease for nine successive renewals, at the end of every seven years a fine to be paid at each time; and if the lease could not be set aside, to be relieved against the covenant for renewal: the court thought there was not sufficient ground for setting aside the lease altogether, for there was no particular mode prescribed for leasing, and the trustees were only obliged to lease beneficially for the charity. Attorney-General v. Balliol College, Oxford, 9 Mod. 407.

A decree would be issued against a corporation to grant a new lease, according to a covenant for perpetual renewal, though the whole of the reserved rent had been for many years applied uniformly to one charitable purpose. Gozna v. Grantham (Aldermen of), 3 Russ. 261.

If trustees of a charity grant an improper lease, in which they covenant with the lessee for the actual enjoyment, during the term; the court will order the indenture of demise to be cancelled in toto, and will not leave the personal covenants of the trustees in force for the benefit of the lessee. Attorney-General v. Morgan, 2 Ibid. 306. Northcote v. Underhill, 1 Salk. 199. Shelton on Mortmain, 703.

No allowance can be made for payments by which the charity has not been benefited, (Attorney-General v. Pretymann, 4 Beav. 462. Attorney-General v. Christ's Hospital, Ibid. 13. Attorney-General v. Brittingham, 3 Ibid. 91.) as the purchase money paid by the assignee of a lease. Attorney-General v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 236. Attorney-General v. Mettingham, 3 Beav. 93. Attorney-General v. East India Company, 11 Sim. 385. Shore v. Wilson, 9 C. & F. 451.

And when the purchaser's title is equally bad at law and in equity, it is questionable whether any compensation will be made for money expended in buildings. Attorney-General v. Lloyd, 6 Madd. 92.

Although a purchaser of a lease has never been considered as a purchaser for valuable consideration, without notice to the extent of not being bound to know, from whom the lessor derived his title, it seems, that no case has gone the length, that he is to take notice of all those circumstances, under which the lessor derived that title. And although under-lessees of a charity estate, must be presumed at least to have notice that the lessors were trustees of a charity, yet it will not follow that they had notice of the lease being bad, as that depends upon a number of circumstances dehors the lease. Attorney-General v. Backhouse, 17 Ves. 293.

Where a lessee of a charity estate grants an under-lease for a fair consideration, and the original lease is set aside, the court will not disturb the possession of the sub-lessee, but transfer the interest acquired under the bargain for the benefit of the charity, and the decree will be modified by directing the sub-lessees to pay their rents to the charity, instead of the persons with whom they contracted. Ibid. 292.

When the original leases are set aside, without disturbing the under-leases, the persons representing the original lessees will be directed to assign all their interest to the trustees of the charity, in order that it may have the benefit of the under-leases. Attorney-General v. Griffith, 13 Ibid. 581.

Charitable leases cannot be granted for the personal benefit of the grantor or his representatives, or any of his children, or any person other than those entitled to the benefit of the charity. Attorney-General v. Dirie, 13 Ibid. 540.

Trustees, governors, or agents, can neither be purchasers nor lessees of the property belonging to their respective charities. Attorney-General v. Clarendon (Earl of), 17 Ves. 500. Exp. Skinner, 2 Meriv. 457. Pugh v. Ryall, Sel. Ca. Ch. 40.

Neither can they stipulate for the render of any beneficial service from lessees. Attorney-General v. Stamford (Mayor of), 2 Swanst. 592.

Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10, (antè 424,) makes void all grants of property by the master or guardian of any hospital, other than for the term of twenty-one years, or three lives, from the time of granting such lease; whereupon the accustomed rent or more shall be reserved. And Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 11, (antè 437,) has enacted, that all leases, &c., within Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10, whereof any former lease for years was in being, and not to be expired, surrendered, or ended, within three years next after the making of any such new lease, shall be void.

All leases, grants, conveyances, or estates, to be made by any corporation founded under Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 5, (antè 469,) exceeding the number of twenty-one years, and that in possession, and whereupon the accustomed for lands within the county palatine of Lancaster, from time to time, under the great seal of England or the seal of the county, as the case shall require, into all or any part or parts of this county, according to their several jurisdictions as aforesaid, to the several dioceses and his chancellor, (in case there shall be any

STAT. 43 ELIZ. c. 4.

CRO. CAR. 526. Commissioners to inquire of the gift of so treated. Attorney-General v. Backhouse, 1 Ves. 555.

Attorney-General v. Backhouse, (1) a lease of charity lands, as a mere husbandry, and at a rent adapted to the years, was not allowed; for 999 years, upon an annuity to a term of years. Vide etiam Attorney-General (Lord), 1 Turn. & R. Attorney-General v. Brettingham, 3 a charity cannot, without consideration, let for ninety-nine years the ordinary course of property; much less can be lease for perpetual renewal, without for the inheritance. Attorney-General v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 326.

Attorney-General v. Griffith, (13 Ibid.) use of a charity estate in 1760, the trustees joining in the breach of trust: not only as express directions of the founder, but as an improper administration of the charity estate; the relators not to disturb under-leases. Vide etiam Attorney-General v. Flood, 12 Law Journ.

contract for a thing that a man cannot imply an agreement to perform a contract. Therefore, acceptance of a new good lease of the former; yet the acceptance void lease, which the lessee may, will not be a surrender of the lease; because it cannot operate as such, and also by way of passing an instrument. 45 (a) Treppel's case, 6 Shep. Touchst. by Atherley, 269. Widow v. Gough, Dyer, 140 (b). Darwin d. Bromley v. Stanley, 4 B. & C. 10. Roe d. Berkeley (Earl of), v. Bishop of, 6 East, 86. Doe d. Butcher, Doug. 50. Wilson v. Thomas, 4 Burr. 1975. Melby, Moore (Sir F.), 636.

commissions:—The court of Chancery is empowered to issue commissions to persons, for the purpose of inquiring, intervention of a jury, whether there is any abuse, misapplication, or mismanagement, of charitable funds; but the proceedings of the commissioners were reversed by the court of Chancery. Duke's Charitable Uses, passim, for the proceedings of the commissioners.

commissioners were restrained to inquire in making their decrees and orders. That it tend and conduce to the benefit of the things given. ii. That payment be faithful. iii. That the same vary not from the use and intent of the thing was given.

These three things being observed, the commissioners had power and authority to do five things more: "i. They may establish the property of the thing given in the person to whom it was given, or they may transfer it from one person to another. ii. They may supply the defects of the gifts or employments in certainities, circumstances, and decencies. iii. They may ordain conveyances or assurances to be made, for the better employment of the use. iv. They may add decencies in the employment for the honour of the donor. v. They may impose penalties for misemployments." Readings of Sir F. Moore, Duke's Charitable Uses, 153. Attorney-General v. Dublin (Mayor, &c. of), 1 Bligh N. S. 347.

During the Stuart dynasty, numerous commissions were issued, but since the accession of the House of Hanover, they have gradually fallen into desuetude,—and only three commissions were issued in the reign of George the Third, which are to be found in the Petty Bag Office.

The mode of redressing charity abuses which has been invariably adopted of late years, has been that which existed as part of the original jurisdiction of the court, prior to the statute of Elizabeth; (Attorney-General v. Drereton, 2 Ves. Sen. 426; Attorney-General v. Newman, 1 Ch. Ca. 157; Attorney-General v. Middleton, 2 Ves. Sen. 328;) viz. by information in the attorney-general's name, who brings the matter in question formally upon record, stating the claims that were made upon the individuals charged with a breach of trust, calling upon them to make a defence, and putting their defence upon record, and thus having a complete issue upon the record, upon which the judgment of the court of Chancery may be founded.

Notwithstanding a decree under a commission of charitable uses, the court will still permit a suit to be instituted, in which neither side is bound by what appeared before the commissioners, but may set forth a new matter. Burford (Corporation of) v. Lenthall, 2 Atk. 552. Commissioners of charitable uses have no power under Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 4, to give costs, but the court of Chancery can do it. Aylet v. Dodd, Ibid. 238. Objections to commissioners' decree must be taken by way of exceptions, not by bill. Beames' Ord. 41.

(2) To the bishop:—It was resolved by Egerton, Popham, Auderson, and Cook (Attorney-General), that the see being full at the time of sealing the commission, if the bishop be not named commissioner, the commission is void; but if he be named, it is not requisite that he be present at the execution, for that none is of the quorum; but any four, or more, may execute the same, without the presence of the bishop or his chancellor. Duke's Charitable Uses, 620.

STAT. 43 ELIZ. C. 4.	bishop (1) of that diocese, at the time of awarding of the same commissions, and to other persons of good and sound behaviour, authorizing them thereby, or any four or more of them, to inquire as well by the oaths of twelve lawful men or more of the county(2), as by all other good and lawful ways(3) and means, of all and singular such gifts, limitations, assignments (4), and appointments adversely and of the abuses, breaches of trusts, negligences, misemployments, not employing, concealing, defrauding, misconverting, or misgovernment of any lands, tenements, rents, annuities, profits, hereditaments, goods, chattels, money or stocks of money, heretofore given, limited, appointed, or assigned, or which hereafter shall be given, limited, appointed, or assigned, to or for any the charitable and godly uses before rehearsed: and after the said commissioners or any four or more of them, after calling the parties interested (5) in any such lands, tenements, rents, annuities, profits, hereditaments, goods, chattels, money and stocks of money, shall make inquiry by the oaths of twelve men or more of the said county, (whereunto the said parties interested shall and may have, and take their lawful challenges and challenges,) and upon such inquiry, hearing, and examining thereof, set down such orders, judgments, and decrees, as the said lands, tenements, rents, annuities, profits, goods, chattels, money and stocks of money, may be duly and faithfully employed, to and for such of the charitable uses and intents (6) before rehearsed respectively, for which they were given, limited, assigned or appointed by the donors and founders thereof: which orders, judgments, and decrees, not being lands and goods to charitable uses.
Four commissioners at the least. Hob. 136.
The inquiry.
The commissioners' orders.
The commissioners' orders

(1) In case there shall be any bishop:—“If the see of the bishop be void at the sealing of the commission, then the bishop need not be named a commissioner, neither his chancellor. And the metropolitan shall not be named instead of the bishop, for that he is not the bishop of the diocese. And if the bishop be named a commissioner, and die before the certificate returned; this doth not avoid the commission, but the other commissioners may proceed.” Duke's Charitable Uses, 620.

(2) Of the county:—That is, (as it was resolved in the case of Rugby (School of), Ibid. 633,) of that county “where the lands do lie, and not where the charity ought to be employed, in case the counties are different.” But five years after, it was further resolved, in the case of East Grinstead, (Ibid. 638,) that “if a rent be granted out of lands in several counties, for maintenance of charitable uses in one county; the commissioners in that county, where the charitable use is to be performed, may make a decree to charge the lands in other counties, to pay an equal contribution of charge in payment of the said rent; and there needs not several inquisitions in each county, for that the rent is an entire grant, by the deed or will.”

(3) By all other good and lawful ways:—Such are, former inquisitions, witnesses, rentals, accounts, estreats, &c., and their own proper knowledge: by which means, they may supply the defects of the inquisition, in matters of particularity and circumstance.

(4) Gifts, limitations, assignments:—It hath been often resolved, that “this statute doth supply all the defects of assurances, where the donor is of a capacity to dispose, and hath such an estate, as is any ways disposable by him; and upon this ground it hath been held, that, if a copyholder dispose of copyhold lands to a charitable use, without a surrender; or if tenants in tail do convey land to a charitable use, without a fine; or if a reversion be granted without attornment or enrolment;” or if in the deed, or will, by which the charitable use was first created and raised, there be no words in these, and other like cases, the defects are supplied by this statute, where the donor had a disposing power of the estate; and these are good limitations and appointments within the present statute. Ibid. 371.

Thus, where lands were given to the churchwardens of a parish, to a charitable use, though the devise was void in law, yet it was decreed to be valid in Chancery, by the words limited and appointed. Pepperman v. Jenny, Ibid. 374. But a parcel of land devised to a charity out of lands, being devisable as a will, cannot be supported as an appointment; because, being devisable as a will, which was the manner of conveying the testator intended to pass it by, it can have no effect as an appointment, which he did not intend; and of this opinion the lord chancellor seemed to be, and decreed accordingly in the principal case. Jennison v. Hopper, Pre. Ch. 389.

(5) Parties interested:—It was resolved in the case of East Grinstead, (Ibid. 638,) that though the commissioners make a decree without giving notice to the parties, it is good. And if the parties, upon their appeal, do take exception, that they had not any notice, such defect shall not avoid the decree, unless they show, (to the satisfaction of the lord chancellor,) that thereby they really lost the benefit of exception to some error, or challenge to some juror; the manner of such notice being that they may make the lawful exceptions and challenges.

(6) Intents:—The intent of the statute, (saith my Lord Coke, 2 Inst. 712,) is in lapid ductum, whereby the commissioners and chancellors must institute their course

contrary or repugnant to the orders, statutes, or decrees of the donors or founders, shall by the authority of this present parliament stand firm and good, according to the tenour and purport thereof, and shall be executed accordingly, until the same shall be undone or altered by the lord chancellor of England or lord keeper of the great seal of England, or the chancellor of the county palatine of Lancaster, respectively, within their several jurisdictions, upon complaint by any party moved to be made to them.

"II. Provided always (1), that neither this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall in any wise extend to any lands, tenements, rents, annuities, profits, goods, chattels, money or stocks of money, given, limited, appointed, or assigned, or which shall be given, limited, appointed, or assigned, to any college, hall, or house of learning within the universities of Oxford or Cambridge, or to the colleges of Westminster, Eton, or Winchester, or any of them, or to any cathedral or collegiate church within this realm.

"III. And provided also, that neither this act, nor any thing therein, shall extend to any city, or town corporate, or to any the lands or tenements given to the uses aforesaid within any such city or town corporate, where there is a special governor or governors appointed to govern or direct such lands, tenements, or things disposed to any the uses aforesaid, neither to any college, hospital, or free school, which have special visitors or governors, or overseers appointed them by their founders.

"IV. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that neither this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall be any way prejudicial or hurtful to the jurisdiction or power of the ordinary, but that he may lawfully in every cause execute and perform the same, as though this act had never been had or made.

"V. Provided also, and be it enacted, that no person or persons that hath or shall have any of the said lands, tenements, rents, annuities, profits, hereditaments, goods, chattels, money or stocks of money in his hands or possession, or doth or shall pretend title thereunto, shall be named a commissioner or a juror for any the causes aforesaid, or being named shall execute or serve in the same.

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
C. 4.

shall be executed.

The commissioners' orders altered.

Colleges, halls in Oxford or Cambridge, Westminster, Eton, Winchester, cathedral churches. 1 Lev. 284.

City, town corporate, college, hospital, free school.

Ordinary's jurisdiction.

None shall be commissioner or juror which hath any part of the lands or goods in question.

(1) Provided always:—Three things are requisite to bring a case within the proviso of the statute.

"i. That the gift be made to a body politic, not to a part or principal member, as the dean and chapter, and not to the dean alone.

"ii. Not only the gift, but the employment also must be limited to a corporation, yet if the gift be to the chief, or grand corporation, and the employment limited into an inferior corporation within it, it shall be exempted.

"iii. The corporations, overseers, or governors, must be able and have power to execute and employ the use, in as ample manner as the commissioners may do, otherwise if they cannot cause the use to be employed, the commissioners may intermeddle, and the proviso shall not save them." Readings of Sir F. Moore, Duke's Charitable Uses, 172.

In fact, where a college, hospital, or school is founded, and a special visitor appointed, or a visitor by operation of law, the commission by virtue of the statute cannot interfere. Attorney-General v. Harrow School (Governors of), 2 Ves. Sen. 551.

Where the land is given to persons in trust, to perform a charitable use, and the donor appoints special visitors to see these trustees perform the use according to his intent, if the trustees defraud the trust, the commissioners cannot meddle, but the visitors are to perform it; but where the visitors are trustees also, then the commissioners may reform the abuse of the charitable uses. Case of Sutton Colefield, Duke's Charitable Uses, 642.

"If a corporation can deal but for part, the commissioners shall have jurisdiction for the whole, majus dignum trahit ad se minus dignum." Readings of Sir F. Moore, Ibid. 173.

"If a gift be made to an hospital, which hath a governor appointed by the founder, and the gift be for increase of relief of the poor, this increase is exempted, as well as the foundation, from the jurisdiction of the commissioners." Ibid.

"An hospital in reputation is exempt, as well, as if it were a corporation, if it have a governor appointed by the founder." Ibid.

A limited power of visitation, which may be given by the founders of a charity, will not deprive the commissioners of charitable uses of their jurisdiction. Case of Kirkby Ravensworth Hospital, 8 East, 221. 15 Ves. 305.

"If there be inferior or petty corporations, as companies of mercers, grocers, &c. in a greater corporation, as in the city of London, the proviso will be extended by equity to such companies or corporations. Though colleges be only mentioned, yet the whole university, which is a body politic, will

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
C. 4.

Purchasers of
the lands bond
fide.

Recompence
by those which
break the trust.

Lands assured
to King Henry
8, Edward 6,
Queen Mary,
and Queen Elizabeth.

Certifying of
the orders.

Order for the execution of
the commissioners' decree.
Cro. Car. 40.

"VI. And provided also, that no person or persons which hath purchased or obtained, or shall purchase or obtain, upon valuable consideration of money or land, any estate or interest of, in, to, or out of any lands, tenements, rents, annuities, hereditaments, goods, or chattels, that have been or shall be given, limited, or appointed to any the charitable uses above-mentioned, without fraud (1) or covin, having no notice (2) of the same charitable use, shall not be impeached by any decrees or orders of the commissioners above-mentioned, for or concerning the same his estate or interest: and yet nevertheless, be it enacted, that the said commissioners, or any four or more of them, shall and may make decrees and orders for recompence to be made by any person or persons, who being put in trust, or having notice of the charitable uses above-mentioned, hath or shall break the same trust, or defraud the same uses, by any conveyance, gift, grant, lease, demise, release, or conversion whatsoever, and against the heirs, executors, and administrators of him, them, or any of them, having assets in law or equity, so far as the same assets will extend.

"VII. Provided always, that this act shall not extend to give power or authority to any commissioners before mentioned, to make any orders, judgments, or decrees, for or concerning any manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments assured, conveyed, granted, or come unto the queen's majesty, to the late King Henry the Eighth, King Edward the Sixth, or Queen Mary, by act of parliament, surrender, exchange, relinquishment, escheat, attainder, conveyance, or otherwise: and yet, nevertheless, be it enacted, that if any such manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any of them, or any estate, rent, or profit thereof, or out of the same or any part thereof, have or hath been given, granted, limited, appointed, or assigned to or for any the charitable uses before expressed, at any time since the beginning of her majesty's reign; that then the said commissioners, or any four or more of them, shall and may, as concerning the same lands, tenements, hereditaments, estate, rent, or profit so given, limited, appointed, or assigned, proceed to inquire, and to make orders, judgments, and decrees, according to the purport and meaning of this act, as before is mentioned; the said last-mentioned proviso notwithstanding.

"VIII. And be it further enacted, that all orders, judgments, and decrees of the said commissioners, or of any four or more of them, shall be certified under the seals of the said commissioners, or any four or more of them, either into the court of the Chancery of England, or into the court of the Chancery within the county palatine of Lancaster, as the case shall require respectively, according to their several jurisdictions, within such convenient time as shall be limited in the said commissions.

"IX. And that the said lord chancellor, or lord keeper of the said chancery of the duchy, shall and may, within their said several jurisdictions, take such order for the due execution of all or any of the said judgments, decrees, and orders, as to either of them shall seem fit and convenient.

also be taken by equity to be within the proviso." Readings of Sir F. Moore, Duke's Charitable Uses, 172.

(1) Without fraud.—The words "valuable consideration" have received the strictest construction.

A mixed consideration, as in consideration of money and marriage, is not a valuable consideration, under the statute; but a valuable consideration, coupled with another that is invaluable and void, is valid, because "utile per inutile non vitiatur." Readings of Sir F. Moore, Duke's Charitable Uses, 178.

If the consideration be executory and not performed, it is not within the meaning of this proviso; but if part be executed and part executory, it is within the proviso. Ibid. 179.

A sale under the moiety of the value is fraudulent and decreable. But if one purchase lands or goods under half the value, and sell them over to another, upon good consideration, bond fide, the fraud is purged. Ibid. 181.

(2) No notice.—The notice in order to bind a purchaser of lands charged with a charitable use, must be certain; a general notice is not sufficient. Ibid. 182.

Where a rent-charge is legal, it must, like every other legal incumbrance, bind the purchaser, although he purchased without notice; but where there is a mere equitable charge, no decree will be made for its payment against the purchaser, if he purchased without notice.

A purchaser without notice of land, which was subject to a rent-charge given to a charity, has been relieved from so much of the

* X. And that if after any such certificate or certificates made, any person or persons shall find themselves grieved with any of the said orders, judgments, or decrees, that then it shall and may be lawful to and for them or any of them, to complain in that behalf unto the said lord chancellor or lord keeper, or to the chancellor of the said duchy of Lancaster, according to their several jurisdictions, for redress therein: and that upon such complaint, the said lord chancellor or lord keeper, or the said chancellor of the duchy, may, according to their said several jurisdictions, by such course as to their wisdoms shall seem meetest, the circumstances of the case considered, proceed to the examination, hearing, and determining (1) thereof; and upon hearing thereof shall and may annul, diminish, alter, or enlarge the said orders, judgments, and decrees of the said commissioners, or any four or more of them, as to either of them in their said several jurisdictions shall be thought to stand with equity and good conscience (2), according to the true intent and meaning of the donors and founders thereof; and shall and may tax and award good costs of suit by their discretions, against such persons as they shall find to complain unto them without just and sufficient cause, of the orders, judgments, and decrees before mentioned."

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 4.

A remedy for any person grieved by the commissioners' decree.

Cost of suit against the complainers. See farther concerning gifts to charitable uses, 4 Ann. c. 14.

LV. STAT. 43 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 8. A.D. 1601.

"An Act against fraudulent Administration of Intestate's Goods (3)."

"Forasmuch as it is often put in ure, to the defrauding of creditors, that such persons as are to have the administration of the goods of others dying intestate, committed unto them, if they require it, will not accept the same, but suffer or procure the administration to be granted to some stranger of mean estate, and not of kin to the intestate, from whom themselves or others by their means do take deeds of gifts and authorities by letter of attorney, whereby they obtain the estate of the intestate into their hands, and yet stand not subject to pay any debts owing by the same intestate, and so the creditors, for lack of knowledge of the place of habitation of the administrator, cannot arrest him nor sue him; and if they fortune to find him out, yet for lack of ability in him to satisfy of his own goods for the value of that he hath conveyed away of the intestate's goods, or released of his debts by way of wasting, the creditors cannot have or recover their just and due debts.

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 8.

Fraud practised in taking of administrations to deceive others of their lawful debts. 31 Edw. 3, c. 11. 21 Hen. 8, c. 5.

persons as had not accrued during the time he had been in possession, and from costs decreed by the commissioners. Wharton v. Charles, C. T. F. 81.

(1) Determining:—It was resolved in Thomas Windsor & the Inhabitants of Farnham, (Cro. Car. 40,) and in Saul v. Wilson, (2 Vern. 118,) that such determination once made, may not be re-examined upon a bill of review, as is usual in other cases in Chancery; but that here the decree is conclusive, because it takes its authority by the act of parliament, which mentions but one examination; and it is not like the case, where the chancellor makes a decree by his ordinary authority. But, in the year 1643, (Duke's Charitable Uses, 634,) it was resolved by the judges and king's council, assistants in the House of Peers, that in such case the party grieved may petition the king in parliament, and have his complaint examined there; and so the decree may be confirmed, altered, or annulled; and then be final. All which was actually done, in the aforesaid year, and pursuant to the aforesaid resolution, on occasion of the decree of the Lord Keeper Coventry, in the case of Rast Ham in Essex.

(2) Equity and good conscience:—Courts of equity will discourage long and expensive litigation in charity cases for matters of small value. Thus, in Attorney-General v. Shearman, (2 Bear. 104.) Lord Langdale observed: "I am of opinion, that a prosecution of the accounts and inquiries which are sought by this information would be prejudicial and not beneficial to the charity, unless more effectual means than the court possesses could be found, of altogether relieving the charity from costs and other prejudice to arise from the prolonged litigation in a matter of such small value; it consequently appears to me, that I ought not to disturb the decree, which has been made. I think it quite proper to discourage long and expensive litigation in charity cases for matters of such small value, and commenced under such circumstances as appear in this instance. On the whole, I am of opinion, that the decree ought to be confirmed, and that the relators ought to pay the costs of the rehearing."

(3) Intestate's Goods:—Assets are of two sorts, the one assets by descent, the other assets in hand. Assets by descent are, where a man is bound in an obligation, and dies seised of lands in fee simple, which descend

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 8.

By fraudulent administration of intestate's goods, the party shall be charged as executor of his own wrong. Allowance of just debts and other lawful payments. Farther provisions respecting administration, see 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10; 29 Car. 2, c. 3; 1 Jac. 2, c. 17; and 14 Geo. 2, c. 20.

"II. Be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that every person and persons that hereafter shall obtain, receive, and have any goods or debts belonging to the intestate, upon any fraud, as is aforesaid, or without such value or consideration as shall amount to the value of the same goods or debts, or near the value (1) of the same goods or debts to him owing by the intestate at the time of his decease, shall be charged and chargeable as executor of his own wrong, and so far only as all such goods and debts coming to his hands, or whereof he is released or discharged by such administrator, will satisfy, deducting nevertheless to and for himself allowance of all just, due, and principal debts upon good consideration, without fraud, owing to him by the intestate at the time of his decease, and of all other payments made by him, which lawful executors or administrators may and ought to have and pay by the laws and statutes of this realm."

STAT. 43 ELIZ.
c. 9.

LVI. STAT. 43 ELIZABETHÆ, c. 9. A.D. 1601.

"An Act for continuance (3) of divers Statutes, and for repeal of some others."

to his heir, then his land shall be called assets, (assez satis;) that is, enough, or sufficient to pay the same debt; and by that means the heir shall be charged as far as the land so to him descended will stretch. Assets in hand are, when a man in like manner indebted makes executors, and leaves them sufficient to pay, or some commodity or profit is come unto them in right of their testator; this is called assets in their hands.

There is likewise another division of assets, into legal and equitable assets. Legal assets are such as are liable to debts and legacies by the course of the law; equitable assets are such as are only liable by the help of a court of equity.

So also there are real and personal assets. Real assets, are such as concern the land; personal are such as concern the personal estate only.

(1) Some . . . principal debt, of value:—This clause will not authorise an executor of his own wrong, to give satisfaction his own debt under plea de assumpsit, or to specially plead a release to his own debt; (Coulter's case, 5 Co. 100; Cro. Eliz. 630;) although his debt is superior to that of the creditor brought in action, (Vernon v. Carter, 2 Black. 100;) and that the rightful executor or administrator may have assented to such release. Vide Stephens on Nisi Prius, tit. Executors and Administrators.

(2) Executor of his own wrong:—Respecting the acts which a stranger may commit without being responsible as author of an act tort, vide Ibid.

(3) Continuance:—Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 5. Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11. Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 1. Stat. 35 Eliz. c. 1.

STAT. 2 JAC.
1, c. 3.

No bishop shall assure his land
to the king.
10 Co. 62.
11 Co. 71.

Co. Lit. 44.

"II. And be it enacted and established by authority of the same, that the archbishop and bishop within this realm, and their and every of their successors, shall be, from and after the end of this present session of parliament, ever wholly and utterly disabled in law, to make, do, levy, or suffer any acts, thing or things, whereby or by means whereof, any of the said houses, castles, manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any part of them, or any of them, shall or may be aliened, assured, given, granted, demised, charged, or in any sort conveyed to our said sovereign lord the king, his heirs or successors; that all alienations, assurances, gifts, grants, leases, charges, and conveyances whatsoever, from and after the end of this present session of parliament, to be suffered, or made to our sovereign lord the king, his heirs or successors, by any archbishop or bishop, or their or any of their successors, of or out of any of the said possessions, or of or out of any part or parcel of them, or any of them, and of every confirmation and confirmations of the same, shall be from and after the end of this present session of parliament utterly void and of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes; any former law, statute, act, ordinance, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 JAC.
1, c. 4.

II. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 4 (1). A.D. 1604.

"An Act for the due Execution of the Statutes against Jesuits, Seminary Priests, Recusants, &c."

Statutes made in the reign of Elizabeth shall be put in execution.
Going into seminaries.
3 Inst. 178.
1 Eliz. c. 1.
5 Eliz. c. 1.
13 Eliz. c. 2.
23 Eliz. c. 1.
27 Eliz. c. 2.
29 Eliz. c. 6.
35 Eliz. cc. 1,
2.
2 Bulstr. 324.
A recusant
conforming himself shall be discharged.
Raym. 465,
466.

In what case a recusant's heir
shall be charged, and what not.

"For the better and more due execution of the statutes heretofore made, against Jesuits, seminary priests, and other such like priests, as also against any manner of recusants, be it ordained and enacted by authority of this present parliament, that all and every the statutes heretofore made in the reign of the late queen of famous memory, Elizabeth, as well against Jesuits, seminary priests, and other priests, deacons, religious and ecclesiastical persons whatsoever, ordained, or professed, or to be made, ordained, or professed, by any authority of jurisdiction derived, challenged, or pretended from the see of Rome, as those which do in anywise concern the withdrawing of the king's subjects from their due allegiance, and the religion now professed, and the taking of the oath of fidelity unto the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, together with all those made in the said late queen's time, against any manner of recusants, shall be put in due and exact execution."

"II. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that if any that is or shall be a recusant shall submit or repair to him or herself, and become obedient to the laws and ordinances of the church of England, and repair to the church, and continue there during the time of the divine service and sermons, according to the true meaning of the statutes in that behalf, in the said late queen's time made and provided, that then every such person for and during such time as he or she shall so continue in such conformity and obedience, shall from thenceforth be freed and discharged of and from any the penalties and losses which the same person might otherwise sustain or bear in respect or by reason of such person's recusancy."

"III. And if any recusant shall hereafter die, his heir being no recusant, shall in every such case, every such heir shall be freed and discharged of all and singular the penalties, charges, and incumbrances happening upon him or her in respect or by reason of his or her ancestor's recusancy: and if at the decease of any such recusant, his heir shall happen to be a recusant, and after shall become conformable and obedient to the laws and ordinances of the church of England, and repair to the church, and continue there during the time of the divine service and sermons, according to the intent and true meaning of the said statutes and ordinances in that behalf made as is aforesaid, and also shall take the oath of supremacy in such sort as that oath is expressed in one act of parliament made in the first have, or enjoy any manors, lands, tenements, annuities, profits, commodities, hereditaments, goods, chattels, debts, duties, legacies, or sums of money, in this realm of England, or any other his majesty's dominions: And that no singular estates, terms, and other interests whatsoever hereafter to be made, conferred, or done, to or for the use or behoof of any such person or persons, by any trust or confidence, mediately or immediately, to or for the benefit or use of any such person or persons, shall be utterly void and of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes.

(1) Vide Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 2. Stat. 3 43 Geo. 3, c. 30. Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 14. Geo. 1, c. 18. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.

"VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any born within this realm, or any the king's majesty's dominions, be at this in any college, seminary, house, or place in any parts beyond the seas, to be instructed or strengthened in the popish religion, which shall not return into this realm, or some of his majesty's dominions, within one year coming after the end of this session of parliament, and submit himself as is said, shall be in respect of himself only, and not to or in respect of any of his or posterity, utterly disabled and incapable to inherit, have, or enjoy any lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, chattels, debts, or other things within this realm, or any other his majesty's dominions. Provided always if any such person or child so passing, sent, sending, or now being, beyond seas as aforesaid, to such intent as is before-mentioned, shall after become capable, and obedient unto the laws and ordinances of the church of England, shall repair to the church, and there remain and be as is aforesaid, and conform to such conformity, according to the true intent and meaning of the said statutes and ordinances; that in every such case every such person and child, for and during such time as he or she shall so continue in such conformity and obedience, shall be freed and discharged of all and every such disability and incapacity as is before-mentioned.

“ VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority of this present parliament that no woman, nor any child under the age of one and twenty years (sailors or ship-boys, or the apprentice or factor of some merchant in trade or chandize) shall be permitted to pass over the seas, (except the same shall licence of the king, his heirs or successors, or of some six or more of the privy council, thereunto first had under their hands,) upon pain that the owner of the port that shall willingly or negligently suffer any such so to pass, shall forfeit his office, and his goods and chattels; and upon pain that the owner of any ship or vessel shall wittingly or willingly carry any such over the seas without licence aforesaid, shall forfeit his ship or vessel, and all the tackle. And every mariner of or in any such ship or vessel offending as aforesaid, shall forfeit all their goods, and suffer imprisonment by the space of twelve months, or till he or she shall be bailed or mainprised.

"IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that after the feast of St. Michael the Archangel next shall keep any school, school-master, out of any of the universities or colleges of this realm, and in some public or free grammar-school, or in some such nobleman's or woman's or gentleman's or gentlewoman's house, as are not recusants, the same school-master shall be specially licensed thereunto (1) by the archbishop, or guardian of the spiritualities of that diocese; upon pain well the schoolmaster, as also the party that shall retain or maintain a schoolmaster contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall

(1) Licensed thereunto:—In Rex v. Douce, (1 Ld. Raym. 672,) the defendant was indicted for having kept a school without licence of the bishop, &c. “contra formam statuti.” The principal exceptions taken against the indictment, were: i. That there was no statute, that prohibited keeping school without licence, but Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 4. s. 9, and that such statute prescribed particular punishment, viz. forfeiture of ii. That the indictment was only for a school for writing and reading, and therefore not within this statute: upon which the indictment was quashed.

(2) Shall suffice:—When the count proceeded against a schoolmaster

(1) Licensed thereunto.—In Rex v. Douae, (1 Ld. Raym. 672,) the defendant was indicted for having kept a school without licence of the bishop, &c. “contra formam statuti.” The principal exceptions taken against the indictment, were: i. That there was no statute, that prohibited keeping school without licence, but Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 4. s. 9, and that such statute prescribed particular punishment, viz. forfeiture of ii. That the indictment was only for keeping a school for writing and reading, and therefore not within this statute: upon which the indictment was quashed.

(2) Shall suffice.—When the count proceeded against a schoolmaster of them for every day so wittingly offending, forty shillings. The one half of the penalties and sums of money before-mentioned to be forfeited, to be king, his heirs and successors, the other to him or them that shall or will sue the same, in any the courts of record in Westminster, by action of debt, plaint, or information, in which no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed."

STAT. 2 JAC.
1, c. 4.
3 Jac. 1, cc. 4,
5; 7 Jac. 1, c. 6;
25 Car. 2, c. 2.
And see 16
Geo. 2, c. 30.

III. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 11(1). A.D. 1604.
Act to restrain all Persons from Marriage until their former Wives and former Husbands be dead."

STAT. 2 JAC.
1, c. 11.

IV. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 12(2). A.D. 1604.
Act against Conjuraton, Witchcraft, and dealing with evil and wicked Spirits."

STAT. 2 JAC.
1, c. 12.

V. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 22(3). A.D. 1604.
An Act concerning Tanners, Curriers, Shoemakers, and other Artificers occupying the cutting of Leather."

STAT. 2 JAC.
1, c. 22.

XXVIII. . . . No person shall shew, to the intent to put to sale, any boots, buskins, startops, slippers or pantofles, upon the Sunday, upon pain of forfeiture for every pair of shoes, boots, buskins, startops, slippers, and pun-made, sold, shewed, or put to sale, contrary to the true meaning of this Act, three shillings and four pence, and the just and full value of the same."

No sale or shewing of boots, shoes, &c. upon Sunday.

VI. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 25(4). A.D. 1604.
Act for continuing (5) and reviving (6) of divers Statutes, and for repealing of some others."

STAT. 2 JAC.
1, c. 25.

XXXIV. And be it also enacted by the authority of this present parliament, so much of all statutes as concerneth abjured persons and sanctuaries, or the governing of persons abjured, or in sanctuaries, made before the five twentieth year of the late Queen Elizabeth's reign, shall also stand repealed and void.

Sanctuaries extinct.

And an act made in the session of parliament holden upon prorogation at Westminster, the three and twentieth day of January, in the fifth year of the said King Edward the Sixth, and there continued and kept until the fourth day of April, in the sixth year of his reign, intituled, 'An Act made for the continuation of a Statute made for the Marriage of Priests, and for the Legitimation of Children:' shall stand revived, and be in force for ever, the said act of notwithstanding: and the children of ecclesiastical persons in the said act named, shall be and continue legitimate and inheritable to all intents and purposes."

Ecclesiastical persons. 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 12, made perpetual. The children of ecclesiastical persons shall be legitimate and inheritable.

ing a school without licence, pursuant to statute; prohibition was prayed, upon suggestion, that the statute gives penalty, and that none ought to be punished twice for the same fault; and the court granted it. Chedwick v. Hughes, 164.

in Cox's case, (1 P. Wms. 29,) where argument was urged upon the prosecution of a schoolmaster, for teaching without licence, in reason for granting a prohibition; the judge said, "Both courts may have concurrent jurisdiction; and a crime may be punishable both in the one and the other. Decisions of a convocation do not bind the court without an act of parliament; but I was, and still am of opinion, that teaching of school is by the old laws of England of ecclesiastical cognizance; and therefore let the order for a prohibition be discharged." But his lordship added, that if it was for the teaching of any school, except a grammar school, prohibition was to be granted.

- (1) Repealed by Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 31.
- (2) Repealed by Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 5.
- (3) Repealed by Stat. 48 Geo. 3, c. 60, s. 1.
- (4) Expired.
- (5) Continuing:—of Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10; Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20; Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11; Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 11; Stat. 35 Eliz. c. 1; Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 9; until the end of the first session of the then next parliament.
- (6) Reviving:—of Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 7.

STAT. 2 JAC. 1, c. 25. poses, in such sort as children of lay persons do enjoy and may inherit; any or constitution to the contrary notwithstanding."

STAT. 2 JAC. 1, c. 29. VII. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 29 (1). A.D. 1604.
 "To what sorts of Flesh Licences to eat Flesh in Lent shall not extend, sort of Flesh shall not be killed in Lent to be put to sale."

STAT. 2 JAC. 1, c. 30. [PR.] VIII. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 30. [PRIVATE.] A.D. 1604.
 "The Inhabitants of Melcomb-Regis in the County of Dorset, within the Diocese of Bristol, may, at their own Costs, build a Church upon the Ground and Chapel now standeth, and the Grounds adjoining, convenient to receive the Inhabitants of Radipol, and inclose the waste Grounds adjoining, to be a Church-yard for a place of Burial; after which Church is builded to be called the Parochial Church of Radipol; and the new Parson of Radipol and his Successors, shall be Parsons thereof: and the old Parson of Radipol shall be but a Chapel of Ease: and the Patron of the old Church of Radipol shall be Patron of the new. And a new Manse in Melcomb-Regis assigned to the said Parson and his Successors for use."

STAT. 2 JAC. 1, c. 31. IX. STAT. 2 [vulgo 1] JACOBI 1, c. 31. A.D. 1604.
 "An Act for the charitable Relief and ordering of Persons infected with the Plague."

STAT. 3 JAC. 1, c. 1. X. STAT. 3 JACOBI 1, c. 1. A.D. 1605.
 "An Act for a Public Thanksgiving to Almighty God every Year on the Day of November."

"Forasmuch as Almighty God hath in all ages showed his power and in the miraculous and gracious deliverance of his church, and in the protection of religious kings and states; and that no nation of the earth hath been blessed with greater benefits than this kingdom now enjoyeth, having the true and free propagation of the gospel under our most gracious sovereign lord King James, the great, learned, and religious king that ever reigned therein, enriched with the hopeful and plentiful progeny, proceeding out of his royal loins, promising continuance of this happiness and profession to all posterity: the which many malignant and devilish papists, Jesuits, and seminary priests, much envying and hating, conspired most horribly, when the king's most excellent majesty, the prince, and all the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, should have been assembled in the upper house of parliament, upon the fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and five, suddenly to have blown up the said whole house with gunpowder: an invention so inhumane, cruel, and cruel, as the like was never before heard of, and was (as some of the conspirators thereof confess) purposely devised and concluded to be done in the said house, that where sundry necessary and religious laws for preservation of church and state were made, which they falsely and slanderously term or enact against them and their religion, both place and persons should be destroyed and blown up at once; which would have turned to the utter ruin of this whole kingdom, had it not pleased Almighty God, by inspiring the king's most excellent majesty with a divine spirit, to interpret some dark passages of scripture to his majesty, above and beyond all ordinary construction, miraculously discovering this hidden treason not many hours before the appointed time for the execution thereof: therefore the king's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and all his majesty's faithful and loving subjects do most justly acknowledge this great and infinite blessing to have proceeded merely from God his great mercy, and to his most holy name do ascribe all honour, glory, and praise: and to the end this unfeigned thankfulness may be known."

(1) Expired.

STAT. 7 JAC.
1, c. 4.

XII. STAT. 3 JACOBI 1, c. 4 (1). A.D. 1605.

"An Act for the better discovering and repressing of Popish Recusants."

"Forasmuch as it is found by daily experience, that many his majesty's subjects that adhere in their hearts to the popish religion, by the infection of from thence, and by the wicked and devilish counsel of Jesuits, seminare, and other like persons dangerous to the church and state, are so far perverted in point of their loyalties and due allegiance unto the king's majesty, and the realm of England, as they are ready to entertain and execute any treasonable practices and practices, as evidently appears by that more than barbarous and bloody attempt to have blown up with gunpowder the king, queen, prince, lords, commons in the house of parliament assembled, tending to the utter subversion of the whole state, lately undertaken by the instigation of Jesuits and seminare, in advancement of their religion, by their scholars taught and instructed to that purpose, which attempt by the only goodness of Almighty God was discovered and defeated: and where divers persons popishly affected, do nevertheless the better to cover and hide their false hearts, and with the more safety take the opportunity to execute their mischievous designs, repair sometimes to flight to escape the penalty of the laws in that behalf provided.

1 Haw. P. C.

"II. For the better discovery, therefore, of such persons, and their intentions to the king's majesty, and the state of this his realm, to the end that their known, their evil purposes may be the better prevented; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that every popish recusant convicted, or hereafter to be convicted, which heretofore hath formed him or herself, or which shall hereafter conform him or herself, and repair to the church, and continue there during the time of divine service, according to the laws and statutes in that behalf made and provided, shall within the next next after the end of this session of parliament (if he or she be conforming aforesaid, before the end of this session of parliament) or within the first year after that he or she shall after this session of parliament so conform him or herself, and repair to church, as aforesaid, and after the said first year, shall once in every year following, at the least, receive the blessed sacrament of the Lord's supper, at the church of that parish where he or she shall most usually abide or be wont to receive the said sacrament, wherein by the true meaning of this statute he or she ought to receive.

The forfeiture of a conforming recusant which doth not receive the sacrament yearly.
Cro. Jac. 365.

"III. And if there be no such parish church, then in the church next adjoining to the place of his or her such most usual abode: and if any recusant convicted shall not receive the said sacrament of the Lord's supper accordingly, he or she shall for such not receiving lose and forfeit for the first year twenty pounds, and for the second year for such not receiving forty pounds, and for every year after for such not receiving threescore pounds, until he or she shall have received the said sacrament, as is aforesaid: and if after he or she shall have received the said sacrament as is aforesaid, and after shall oftsoons at any time offend in not receiving the said sacrament, as is aforesaid, by the space of one whole year, in every such case such person so offending shall for every such offence forfeit threescore pounds of lawful English money; the one moiety to the sovereign lord the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him that will sue for the same; and to be recovered in any of the king's courts of record at Westminster, or before justices of assize or general gaol-delivery, or before justices of the peace at their general quarter sessions, by action of debt, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

Presenting the monthly absence from

"IV. And be it further enacted by the authority of this present parliament that the churchwardens and constables of every town, parish, or chapel, at the time being, or some one of them, or if there be none such, then the chief

(1) Vide Stat. 7 Jac. 1, c. 6. Stat. 31 Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 50. Stat. 10 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 30. c. 7.

STAT. 3 JAC.
I. c. 4.

Conviction shall be certified into the Exchequer.

The statute of 23 Eliz. c. 1,
touching a recusant's
monthly
forfeiture.

1 Eliz. c. 2.

How by the statute of 29 Eliz. c. 6,
the queen
should recover forfeitures due to her by
recusants.

The king may refuse 20*l.* a month, and take two parts of a recusant's
lands.
Lane. 106.
Godb. 216.
pl. 309.

form himself and come to church, according to the meaning of the statute behalf made and provided.

"IX. And that every conviction recorded for any offence before shall, from the justices before whom the record of such conviction shall be ing, be certified into the king's majesty's court of Exchequer, before the term following such conviction, in such convenient certainty for the other circumstances, as the court of Exchequer may thereupon award of the seizure of the lands and goods of every such offender, as the case shall and if default shall be made in any part of any payment aforesaid, contrary form herein-before limited, that then and so often the king's majesty, his successors, shall and may, by process out of the said Exchequer, take, and enjoy, all the goods, and two parts as well of all the lands, tenements, and tenements, leases and farms of such offender, as of all other the lands, tenements, hereditaments liable to such seizure, or to the penalties aforesaid, by the meaning of this act, leaving the third part only of the same lands, tenements, hereditaments, leases and farms, to and for the maintenance and relief of offender, his wife, children, and family.

"X. And whereas by an act made in the session of parliament holden rogation at Westminster in the three and twentieth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act to retain the Subjects of the said in their due Obedience,' it was amongst other things enacted by authority said parliament, that every person above the age of sixteen years, which repair to some church, chapel, or usual place of common prayer, but same contrary to the tenour of a statute made in the first year of the reign said late queen, for uniformity of common prayer, and being thereof lawfully victed, should forfeit to the said queen, for every month after the session of parliament which he or she should so forbear, twenty pounds English money, as in and by the said act of parliament more at large appears.

"XI. And whereas afterward, by another act of parliament of the
it was further enacted by the authority of the said parliament (amongst things) how and when the said payments of the said twenty pounds made, and that if default should be made in any part of any payment of twenty pounds, contrary to the form in the said last specified statute then and so often the said queen should and might, by process out of her Exchequer, take, seize, and enjoy, all the goods, and two parts as well the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, leases, and farms of such offender, other the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, liable to such seizure, penalties aforesaid by the true meaning of the said act of parliament, leaving third part only of the same lands, tenements, and hereditaments, to farms, to and for the maintenance and relief of the same offender, his dren, and family, as in and by the last specified statute more at large appears: now forasmuch as the said penalty of twenty pounds monthly burden unto men of small living, than unto such as are of better ability refuse to come unto divine service, as aforesaid, who, rather than to two parts of their lands to be seized, will be ready always to pay the pounds according to the limitation of the said statutes, and yet retain of their livings and inheritance in their own hands, being of great value which they do for the most part employ (as experience hath taught) maintenance of superstition and popish religion, and to the relief of seminaries, popish priests, and other dangerous persons to the state;
the intent that hereafter the penalty for not repairing to divine service inflicted in better proportion upon men of great ability; be it enacted authority of this present parliament, that the king's majesty, his heirs, sors, shall, from and after the feast of Saint Michael the archangel, and after the end of this session of parliament, have full power and liberty the penalty of twenty pounds a month, though it be tendered ready according to the law, and thereupon to seize and take to his own use, for intents, and purposes, hereafter limited, two parts in three parts to be all the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, leases and farms, that at the such seizure shall be, or afterwards shall come to any of the said offenders coming to church, or any other to his or her use, or in trust for him or her, his or her disposition, or whereby or wherewith, or in consideration of such offender or his family, or any of them, shall be relieved, main- or kept, as of all other lands, tenements, and hereditaments, in anywise any time liable to such seizure, or to the penalties aforesaid, and the same to his own and other uses, intents, and purposes hereafter in this act and, till every such offender shall conform him or herself respectively, as aid, in lieu and full recompence of the twenty pounds monthly, that, during seizure and retainer, shall incur: any thing in the said statutes, or any or any other statute, to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding: saving Sovereign lord the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, and all and every and persons, bodies politick and corporate, their heirs and successors, (other the said offender, his or her heirs, and all claiming to his or their use, or in or him or them, or at his or their will or disposition,) all and all manner of rents, conditions, and other rights and titles whatsoever had, made, and and fide, and without fraud and covin, before such seizure.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 4.

Saving the
right of others.

II. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the majesty, his heirs and successors, shall not take into his two parts, but leave offender his chief mansion-house, as part of his third part, and shall not lease, nor put over the said two parts, nor any part thereof, to any recus- or to or for the use of any recusant: and that whosoever shall take the lease, or otherwise, of his majesty, his heirs and successors, shall give such y not to commit, nor suffer waste to be committed, in or upon any the said as, as by the court of Exchequer shall be allowed sufficient.

A recusant's mansion-house
shall be reserved to him.
The king's two parts shall not be demised to
a recusant.

III. And for the better trial how his majesty's subjects stand affected in of their loyalty and due obedience; be it also enacted by the authority afore- hat from and after the end of this present session of parliament, it shall be to and for any bishop in his diocese, or any two justices of peace, where of them to be of the quorum, within the limits of their jurisdiction, out of the to, to require any person of the age of eighteen years or above, being or shall be convict or indicted of or for any recusancy, other than noblemen newomen, for not repairing to divine service, according to the laws of calm; or which shall not have received the said sacrament twice within ear then next past, noblemen and noblewomen excepted; or any person in or through the country, shire, or liberty, and unknown, except as is last excepted, that being examined by them upon oath shall confess or not deny if or herself to be a recusant, or shall confess or not deny that he or she had ceived the said sacrament twice within the year then last past, to take the hereafter following upon the holy Evangelists: which said bishop or two of the peace, shall certify in writing subscribed with his or their hands at d general or quarter sessions for that shire, limit, division, or liberty, within the said oath shall be so taken, the Christian name, surname, and place of every person which shall so take the said oath; which certificate shall recorded by the clerk of the peace or town clerk, and kept amongst the of the said sessions.

Who are com-
pellable to take
the oath.

Certificate of the name of him who taketh
the oath.

V. And be it further enacted, that if any such person or persons, other Menmen or noblewomen, shall refuse to answer upon oath to such bishop or of peace examining him or her, as aforesaid, or to take the said oath so duly unto him or her by such bishop, or two such justices of peace, out of ses- it then the said bishop or justices of peace shall and may commit the same to the common gaol, there to remain without bail or mainprize, until the ze or general or quarter sessions to be holden for the said shire, division, liberty; where the said oath shall be again in the said open assizes or required of such person, by the said justices of assize or justices of peace there present, or the greater number of them: And if the said person or or any other person whatsoever, other than noblemen or noblewomen, of

Refusal of the oath.
1 Bulst. 199.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 4.

The penalty of
præmunire.
16 Rich. 2,
c. 5.
Women covert.

Form of the oath of obedience.

Abolished by
1 G. & M.
sess. 1, c. 8,
s. 2.

the age of eighteen years or above, shall refuse to take the said oath, tendered unto him or her by the justices of assize and gaol-delivery in assizes, or the justices of peace, or the greater part of them, in their said quarter sessions, every person so refusing shall incur the danger and penalty of præmunire (1), mentioned in the Statute of Præmunire, made in the sixth year of the reign of King Richard the Second; except women covert, who, upon the taking of the said oath, shall be by the said justices of assize in their open and public sessions, or the justices of peace in their general or quarter sessions, for the said offence, committed by them, to be committed only to the common gaol, there to remain without bail or mainprize, till they take the said oath.

“The tenour of which Oath hereafter followeth:

“XV. ‘I, A. B., do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify, and declare in my conscience before God and the world, that our sovereign Lord James (2) is lawful and rightful king of this realm, and of all other his majesty’s dominions and countries; and that the pope, neither of himself nor by authority of the church or see of Rome, or by any other means with any power or authority to depose the king, or to dispose any of his majesty’s kingdoms or dominions, or to authorize any foreign prince to invade or enter into any of his countries, or to discharge any of his subjects of their allegiance due to his majesty, or to give licence or leave to any of them to bear arms, tumults, or to offer any violence or hurt to his majesty’s royal person or government, or to any of his majesty’s subjects within his majesty’s dominions.’

“Also I do swear from my heart, that notwithstanding any declaration or sentence of excommunication, or deprivation made or granted, or to be made or granted, by the pope or his successors, or by any authority derived, or to be derived, from him or his see against the said king, his heirs or successors, any absolution of the said subjects from their obedience; I will bear faithful allegiance to his majesty, his heirs and successors, and him and them to the uttermost of my power, against all conspiracies and attempts which shall be made against his or their persons, their crown and dignity, without reason or colour of any such sentence or declaration, or otherwise, and will best endeavour to disclose and make known unto his majesty, his heirs and successors, all treasons and traitorous conspiracies which I shall know or hear of against him or any of them.

“And I do further swear, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and condemn as impious and heretical, this damnable doctrine and position, that prince or person, who shall be excommunicated or deprived by the pope may be deposed or murdered by his subjects, or any other whatsoever.

“And I do believe, and in my conscience am resolved, that neither I nor any other person whatsoever, hath power to absolve me of this oath, or part thereof, which I acknowledge by good and full authority to be ministered unto me, and do renounce all pardons and dispensations to the contrary.

“And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and affirm according to these express words by me spoken, and according to the common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocal or mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever: and I do make this acknowledgment heartily, willingly, and truly, upon the true faith of a Christian.

‘So help me God.’

(1) Præmunire:—Which judgment, (viz. to be out of the king’s protection, his lands, tenements, goods, and chattels, to be perpetually forfeited to the king, and to be imprisoned during life,) was solemnly pronounced against the Lord Vaux, (1 Bulst. 199,) for refusal of this oath, in the tenth year of King James I.

(2) King James:—A person named Green (Raym. (Sir T.), 212; 1 Vent. 171,) being indicted in the twenty-third of Charles 2, for refusing the oaths, pleaded, that the statute was not in force, but expired by the death of King James, since no new statute was made of his heirs and successors. Chief Justice Hale observed: “This practice hath been otherwise, and no objection may be made to the Statute of Præmunire], in Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1, the word tenour is as much, as that it is binding; and the name of the person being an instance of the thing intended, the word king extends to his successors.”

to which oath so taken, the said person shall subscribe his or her name or

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 4.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no indictment or indictments had or found, or hereafter to be had or found, against any person or persons for not repairing to some church or chapel, or usual place of prayer, but absenting him or herself by the space of one month, contrary to the laws and statutes in that behalf provided, or for not receiving the said sacrament, contrary to this present law, nor any proclamation, outlawry, or other thing thereupon, shall at any time hereafter be avoided, discharged, or reversed, by reason of any default (1) in form, or lack of form or other defect whatsoever (other than by direct traverse to the point of not coming to church or not receiving the said sacrament, whereof such person or persons hath been or shall be convicted,) but the same indictment shall stand in force and be proceeded upon; notwithstanding any default of form, or other defect whatsoever notwithstanding.

No indictment of a recusant shall be reversed for default of form. Palmer, 41. 12 Co. 132.

VII. Provided always, that if any person or persons so indicted, or to be indicted, shall at any time hereafter submit and conform him or herself, and become obedient to the laws of the church of England, and repair to the parish church of his or her met abiding, and if there be no such, then to the church next adjoining to his or her such dwelling, and there hear divine service according to the true tenor of the statute in that behalf made and provided, and there publicly receive the said sacrament according to the laws of this realm of England now in force; that then every such person and persons so indicted shall and may lawfully be admitted and allowed to avoid, discharge, reverse, and undo the said indictment and indictments, and all proceedings thereupon, in such manner and form, as if this present act had not been had nor made; any thing contained to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

He that conformeth himself may reverse indictment.

VIII. And forasmuch as it is found by late experience, that such as go voluntarily out of this realm of England to serve foreign princes, states, or potentates for the most part perverted in their religion and loyalty by Jesuits and others, with whom they do there converse; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every subject of this realm that, after the tenth day of next coming, shall go or pass out of this realm to serve any foreign prince, or potentate, or shall, after the said tenth day of June, pass over the seas to serve any such foreign prince, state, or potentate, not before his or their going or passing as aforesaid, taken the oath aforesaid, the officer hereafter appointed, shall be a felon.

He shall take the oath who goeth out of the realm to serve foreign princes. 3 Inst. 80.

IX. And that if any gentleman or person of higher degree, or any person or persons which hath borne or shall bear any office or place of captain, lieutenant, or other place, charge, or office in camp, army, or company of soldiers, or company of soldiers, shall after go or pass voluntarily out of this realm, to serve any foreign prince, state, or potentate, or shall voluntarily serve any such foreign prince, state, or potentate, before that he and they shall become bound by obligation with two such sureties as shall be allowed of by the officers which are hereby by this act limited to take the same bond, unto our sovereign lord the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, in the sum of twenty pounds of current English money at the least, with condition to the effect following, shall be a felon.

A gentleman, captain, or lieutenant, serving a foreign prince, shall be bound to the king, &c.

"The tenour of which Condition hereafter followeth, viz.:

X. "That if the within bounden, &c. shall not at any time then after be obedient to the pope or see of Rome, nor shall enter into or consent unto any plot, or conspiracy whatsoever against the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, or any his and their estate and estates, realms or dominions; but shall at any convenient time after knowledge thereof had, reveal and disclose to the any default:—By reason of this was doubted by the court, in The case of Winchester's case, (Cro. Car. 107) whether any exception whatsoever be made in conviction of recusancy. But in indictment or information for recusancy cannot be quashed for form, yet on traverse of the fact, and bail given, the outlawry may be reversed for form. Rex v. Hill, 5 Mod. 141. Rex v. Dominam Oneby, alias Truder, Show. (Sir B.), 309.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 4.

The penalty of
præmunire.
16 Rich. 2,
c. 5.
Women covert.

Form of the oath of obedience.

Abolished by
1 G. & M.
sess. 1, c. 8,
s. 2.

the age of eighteen years or above, shall refuse to take the said oath, tendered unto him or her by the justices of assize and gaol-delivery in assizes, or the justices of peace, or the greater part of them, in their said quarter sessions, every person so refusing shall incur the danger and penalty of præmunire (1), mentioned in the Statute of Præmunire, made in the sixth year of the reign of King Richard the Second; except women covert, who, upon refusal of the said oath, shall be by the said justices of assize in their open assizes or justices of peace in their general or quarter sessions, for the said offence committed, only to the common gaol, there to remain without bail or mainprize, till they take the said oath.

"The tenour of which Oath hereafter followeth:

"XV. 'I, A. B., do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify, and declare in my conscience before God and the world, that our sovereign lord King James (2) is lawful and rightful king of this realm, and of all other his dominions and countries; and that the pope, neither of himself nor by authority of the church or see of Rome, or by any other means with any other power or authority to depose the king, or to dispose any of his kingdoms or dominions, or to authorize any foreign prince to invade or enter into any of his countries, or to discharge any of his subjects of their allegiance due to his majesty, or to give licence or leave to any of them to bear arms, or to tumult, or to offer any violence or hurt to his majesty's royal person or government, or to any of his majesty's subjects within his majesty's dominions,

"Also I do swear from my heart, that notwithstanding any declaration or sentence of excommunication, or deprivation made or granted, or to be made or granted, by the pope or his successors, or by any authority derived, or to be derived, from him or his see against the said king, his heirs or successors, any absolution of the said subjects from their obedience; I will bear faithful allegiance to his majesty, his heirs and successors, and him and them with me to the uttermost of my power, against all conspiracies and attempts which shall be made against his or their persons, their crown and dignity, or reason or colour of any such sentence or declaration, or otherwise, and will best endeavour to disclose and make known unto his majesty, his heirs and successors, all treasons and traitorous conspiracies which I shall know or hear of against him or any of them.

"And I do further swear, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and condemn as impious and heretical, this damnable doctrine and position, that prince or person may be excommunicated or deprived by the pope may be deposed or murdered, or any other whatsoever.

"And I do believe, and in my conscience am resolved, that neither I nor any other person whatsoever, hath power to absolve me of this oath, or part thereof, which I acknowledge by good and full authority to be ministered unto me, and do renounce all pardons and dispensations to that effect.

"And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and swear according to these express words by me spoken, and according to the common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever: and I do make this my oath and acknowledgment heartily, willingly, and truly, upon the true faith of a Christian.

'So help me

(1) Præmunire:—Which judgment, (viz. to be out of the king's protection, his lands, tenements, goods, and chattels, to be perpetually forfeited to the king, and to be imprisoned during life,) was solemnly pronounced against the Lord Vaux, (1 Bulst. 199,) for refusal of this oath, in the tenth year of King James I.

(2) King James:—A person named Green (Raym. (Sir T.), 212; 1 Vent. 171,) being indicted in the twenty-third of Charles 2, for refusing the oath, pleaded, that the statute was not in force, but expired by the death of King James, since no successor had been made of his heirs and successors. Chief Justice Hale observed: "The practice hath been otherwise, and objection may be made to the Statute of præmunire], in Stat. 1 Edw. 6, c. 4, the word tenour is as much, as that it is a bar; and the name of the person at instance of the thing intended by the word king extends to his successors."

which shall be so taken respectively, shall certify at the next general or quarter sessions of the peace to be holden within the said shire, limit, division, or liberty, wherein such person as aforesaid shall submit himself and take the said oath as aforesaid, upon pain of every one neglecting to certify the same as aforesaid, the sum of forty pounds.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 4.

"XXV. And be it further enacted, that all and every person and persons that shall offend contrary to this present branch of this statute, shall be indicted, tried, and proceeded against by and before the justices of assize and gaol delivery of that county for the time being, or before the justices of the court of King's Bench, and there proceeded against according to the laws and statutes of this realm against offenders, as if the said offence had been committed in the same county where such person or persons shall be so taken; any law, custom, or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Where the trial shall be.

"XXVI. Provided always, that if any peer of this realm shall happen to be indicted of any offence made treason by this act, he shall have his trial by his peers as in other like cases of treason is accustomed.

Peers.

"XXVII. And be it further enacted, that if any subject of this realm at any time after one month next after the end of this present session of parliament, shall not resort or repair every Sunday to some church, chapel, or some other usual place appointed for common prayer, and there hear divine service according to the statute made in that behalf, in the first year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, that then it shall and may be lawful to and for any one justice of peace of that limit, division, or liberty, wherein the said party shall dwell, upon proof unto him made of such default by confession of the party or oath of witness, to call the said party before him; and if he or she shall not make a sufficient excuse and due proof thereof, to the satisfaction of the said justice of peace, that it shall be lawful for the said justice of peace to give warrant to the churchwarden of the said parish wherein the said party shall dwell, under his hand and seal, to levy twelve pence for every such default by distress and sale of the goods of every such offender, rendering to the said offender the overplus of the money raised of the said goods so to be sold: and that in default of such distress, it shall and may be lawful for the said justice of peace to commit every such offender to some prison within the said shire, division, limit, or liberty, wherein such offender shall be inhabiting, until payment be made of the said sum or sums so to be forfeited; which forfeiture shall be employed to and for the use of the poor of that parish wherein the offender shall be resident or abiding at the time of such offence committed.

1 Eliz. c.

Forfeiture for not repairing
to church
weekly.

"XXVIII. Provided, that no man be impeached upon this clause, except he be called in question for his said default within one month next after the said default made.

"XXIX. And that no man being punished according to this branch, shall for the same offence be punished by the forfeiture of twelve pence, upon the law made in the first year of the late Queen Elizabeth.

"XXX. And because in one act of parliament begun and holden at Westminster in the five and thirtieth year of the late Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience,' there are two branches contained, the first beginning thus: 'and for that every person having a house or family, is in duty bounden to have especial regard of the good government and ordering of the same,' and so forth to the next clause beginning thus: 'provided nevertheless, that this act shall not in any wise extend to punish or impeach any persons for relieving,' &c., ending with these words: 'any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding,' which said two branches or clauses are found defective:

Repeal of two branches of the statute of 35
Eliz. c. 1, s. 8.

"XXXI. Be it therefore enacted, that the said two branches or clauses of the said act, and no more, shall be by the authority of this present parliament utterly repealed and made void.

"XXXII. And in lieu thereof be it enacted, that every person and persons, which after one month next after the end of this present session of parliament shall willingly maintain, retain, relieve, keep, or harbour, in his or their house

Relieving or keeping a recusant.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 4.

any servant, sojourner, or stranger, who shall not go to, or repair to some church, or chapel, or usual place of common prayer, to hear divine service, but shall bear the same by the space of one month together, not having a lawful excuse, contrary to the laws and statutes of this realm, shall forfeit ten pounds for every month that he, she, or they shall so relieve, maintain, retain, keep, or harbour any such servant, sojourner, or stranger, in his or their house, as is aforesaid.

Retaining a recusant in his service, fee, or livery.

"XXXIII. And that every person which shall, within the time of this act, retain or keep in his, her, or their service, fee, or livery, any person or persons which shall not go to or repair to some church, chapel, or usual place of common prayer to hear divine service, but shall forbear the same by the space of one month together, shall forfeit for every month he, she, or they shall so retain, keep, or harbour as aforesaid, knowing the same, ten pounds; the same penalty shall be recovered and employed in manner and form hereafter following.

Father, mother, ward, &c.

"XXXIV. Provided nevertheless, that this act shall not in any wise extend to punish or impeach any person or persons for maintaining, retaining, keeping, or harbouring his, her, or their father or mother, wanting, without lawful excuse, or covin, other habitation, or sufficient maintenance, or the ward of any person, or any person that shall be committed by authority to the custody of any person, by whom they shall be so relieved, maintained, or kept; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Person committed by authority.

Breaking house to take a recusant excommunicate.

"XXXV. And be it further enacted by authority of this present act, that upon any lawful writ, warrant, or process, awarded to any sheriff, or other officer, for the taking or apprehending of any popish recusant standing excommunicated for such recusancy, it shall be lawful for such sheriff or other officer authorized in that behalf, if need be, to break open any house wherein such person is, and to excommunicate shall be, or to raise the power of the county, for the apprehending of such person, and the better execution of such warrant, writ, or process.

In what courts offences shall be heard and determined.

"XXXVI. And be it further enacted, that all and every offence committed or done against this present act, shall and may be inquired of, heard, determined, before the justices of the King's Bench, justices of assize, or delivery, in their several assizes and gaol deliveries; and all offences of treason, shall be inquired, heard, and determined, before the justices of the peace at their general quarter sessions to be holden within the shire, division, or liberty, wherein such offence shall happen.

Attainder of felony no forfeiture of dower, or corruption of blood.

"XXXVII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority of this present act, that any attainder of felony made felony by this act as is aforesaid, shall not extend to take away the dower of the wife of any such person, nor shall be any bar for the recovery of the same, nor shall make or work any forfeiture of blood, or disherison of any the heir or heirs of any such person or persons; any thing in this act or any thing therein contained to the contrary in this behalf notwithstanding.

General issue.

"XXXVIII. And be it further enacted, that if any action or action be commenced or brought against any person or persons for committing, or commanding any act or thing, for or concerning the execution of this present statute, or any article or clause therein contained; that the defendant in such action or actions, may plead the general issue, and be maintained the same by any evidence that shall prove his doings and proceedings warrantable by this law.

Authority of the ecclesiastical court reserved.

"XXXIX. Provided always, that neither this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to take away or abridge the authority or jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical censure, for any cause or matter, but that the commission of majesty, his heirs and successors, in causes ecclesiastical, for the time being, the archbishops, bishops, and other ecclesiastical judges, may do and perform before the making of this act they lawfully did or might have done; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

No forfeiture

"XL. Provided always, and be it enacted, that no person shall be ex-chargeable with any penalty or forfeiture by force of this act, which shall happen in the wife's offence in not receiving the said sacrament during her marriage, nor any woman shall be charged or chargeable with any penalty or forfeiture by force of this act, for any such offence of not receiving, which shall happen during marriage.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 4.
for the wife's
offence.

XLII. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that in all causes where any bishop or justices of the peace may by force of law require and take of any subject the oath above mentioned, that the lords privy council for the time being, or any six of them, whereof the lord chancellor, lord treasurer, or the principal secretary for the time, to be one, shall have power and authority, by force of this act, at any time or times, to require and take the said oaths before mentioned, of any nobleman or noblewoman, (then being of the age of eighteen years;) and if any such nobleman or noblewoman (other than women married) shall refuse to take such oath or oaths, that, in every such case, such nobleman or noblewoman shall incur the pain and danger of a felony.

Who may take the oath of a nobleman or woman.

16 Rich. 2,
c. 5.

XLIII. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority of this parliament, that where any person or persons shall go or pass out of the Cinque Ports, or any other thereof, to any parts beyond the seas, to serve any foreign prince, state, or potentate, that in every such case the lord warden of the Cinque Ports for the time being, or any person by him in that behalf appointed or to be appointed, shall have full power and authority, by virtue hereof, to take the bond, and administer the oath to such passengers as is above mentioned."

Who shall take the oath in the Cinque Ports.
Farther provisions concerning recu-sants, see the chapter
following.

XIII. STAT. 3 JACOBI 1, c. 5(1). A.D. 1605.

Act to prevent and avoid Dangers which grow by Popish Recusants(2)."

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 5.

Whereas divers Jesuits, seminaries, and popish priests, daily do withdraw from his majesty's subjects from the true service of Almighty God, and the religion established within this realm, to the Romish religion, and from their loyalty and obedience to his majesty, and have of late secretly persuaded divers recusants and others, and encouraged and emboldened them to commit most damnable treasons, tending to the overthrow of God's true religion, the destruction of his majesty and of the royal issue, and the overthrow of the whole state and commonwealth, if God in his goodness and mercy had not within few hours before the intended time of execution thereof, revealed and disclosed the same; wherefore, to discover and prevent such secret damnable conspiracies and treasons as hereafter may be put in effect by such evil-disposed persons, if remedy be not therefore provided; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that such person as shall first discover to any justice of peace, any recusant or other person which shall entertain or relieve any Jesuit, seminary or popish priest, or shall discover any mass to have been said, and the persons that were present at such mass, and the priest that said the same, or any of them, within ten days next after the offence committed, and that by reason of such discovery of the said offenders be taken and convicted or attainted, that then the person which hath made such discovery, shall not only be freed from the danger and penalty of any law for such offence, if he be an offender therein, but also shall receive the third part of the forfeiture of all such sums of money, goods, chattels, and debts, which shall be forfeited by such offence, (so as the same total forfeiture exceed not the sum of one hundred and fifty pounds; and if it exceed the sum of one hundred and fifty pounds, the said person so discovering the said offence, shall

1 Haw. P. C.
c. 12.
2 Burn, 309,
&c.

The reward of him who discovereth a priest or mass.
2 Roll. 437.

(1) Vide Stat. 12 Ann. St. II. c. 14.
(2) 26 Geo. 2, c. 33. Stat. 31 Geo. 3,
c. 32. Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 30. Stat. 10
Geo. 4, c. 7. Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 115.
(3) Recusants.—A recusant, in general, signifieth any person, whether papist or other, who refuseth to go to church and to worship God after the manner of the church of England; a popish recusant, is a papist

who so refuseth; and a popish recusant convict, is a papist legally convicted of such offence.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1. c. 5.

have the sum of fifty pounds only for every such discovery;) and such person discovering the same, after conviction of the offender, shall have a certificate from the judges or justices of the peace before whom such conviction shall be made, to be directed to the sheriff or other officer of the same county, limit, or place, who shall seize the goods, or levy the said forfeiture, commanding the said other officer to pay the same accordingly to him that so discovered the same, out of the monies to be levied by virtue of the said forfeitures, which warrant of payment shall be effectual in the law for that purpose, and a sufficient discharge in that behalf for the sheriff or other officer upon his account.

A recusant
shall not come to the court.

"II. And whereas the repair of such evil-affected persons to the court of the city of London, may be very dangerous to his majesty's person, and to the state, than if they should be restrained and confined unto their private houses in the country: for remedy hereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no popish recusant convicted or to be convicted shall come into the court of the city of London, where the king's majesty, or his heir apparent to the crown of England, shall be, unless he be commanded so to do by the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, or by warrant in writing from the lords and others of the most honourable council of the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, or any of them; upon pain to forfeit, for every time so offending, one hundred pounds; the one moiety to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors; the other moiety to him that will sue for the same, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

Recusants shall depart from London.

"III. And that all popish recusants indicted or convicted, and all persons which have not repaired to some usual church or chapel, and there heard divine service, but have forborn the same by the space of three months last past, contrary to the laws and statutes of this realm, dwelling, abiding, or remaining within the city of London, or the liberties thereof, or within ten miles of the city, shall within three months next after the end of this session of parliament depart from the said city of London, and ten miles compass of the same; and shall deliver up their names to the lord mayor of London, in case such persons do dwell or remain within the said city of London, or the liberties thereof; and in case the said recusant shall dwell or remain in any other county within ten miles of the said city, then the said recusant shall deliver up his or her name to the next justice of peace within such county where the said recusant shall dwell or remain, within forty days after the end of this session of parliament, upon pain that every person offending herein shall forfeit to our sovereign lord the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, the sum of one hundred pounds; one moiety whereof shall be to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors; the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed.

"IV. And that all popish recusants which shall hereafter come, or remain within the said city of London, or the liberties thereof, or within ten miles of the said city, which now are or hereafter shall be indicted or convicted of such recusancy, or which shall at any time hereafter not repair unto some usual church or chapel, and there hear divine service, but shall forbear the same by the space of three months, contrary to the laws and statutes of this realm, shall within ten days after such indictment or conviction depart from the said city of London, and ten miles compass of the same, and also shall deliver up their names to the lord mayor of London for the time being, in case such recusant shall dwell or remain within the said city of London, or the liberties thereof; and in case the said recusant shall dwell or remain in any other county within ten miles of the said city, then the said recusant shall deliver up his or her name to the next justice of peace within such county where the said recusant shall so dwell or remain, within the said ten days next after such indictment or conviction, upon pain that every person offending herein shall likewise forfeit to our said sovereign lord the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, the sum of one hundred pounds; one moiety whereof shall be to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors; the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed.

and the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, the like sum of one hundred pounds: the one moiety whereof shall be to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other to him or them that will sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, herein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 5.

"V. Provided always, that such person or persons as now use any trade, mystery, or manual occupation within the said city of London, or within ten miles of the same, and such as have or shall have their only dwelling within the said city, or ten miles compass of the same, not having any other dwelling or place of abode elsewhere, shall or may remain and continue in such place within the said city, or ten miles of the same, as they have dwelled, inhabited, or continued in by the space of three months next before this present session of parliament; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Tradesmen and dwellers in London.

"VI. And whereas by a statute made at Westminster in the five and thirtieth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act for the restraining of Popish Recusants to some certain place of abode,' it was, amongst other things, enacted and ordained, that every popish recusant then or after convicted for not repairing to church, chapel, or usual place of common prayer, having any certain place of dwelling and abode within this realm, should within the time limited by the said statute repair to their place of usual dwelling and abode, or not having any certain place of dwelling or abode within this realm, should likewise within the time limited by the said statute repair to the place where such person was born, or where the father or mother of such person should be dwelling, and not at any time remove or pass above five miles from thence, under the pains in the said statute limited and provided; which statute, by reason of sundry licences given unto such recusants, under colour of a proviso in the said statute contained, hath not wrought that good effect in the commonwealth as was hoped: be it therefore enacted and ordained by this present parliament, and by the authority of the same, that the said statute, made in the said five and thirtieth year of the said Queen Elizabeth, for and concerning the confining of the said recusants under the pains and penalties therein contained, shall by this act, and by the authority of the same, be confirmed, and be hereafter put in due execution, according to the tenour, true intent and meaning of the said statute in that behalf made: and that the said proviso in the said statute contained, giving power to grant licence or licences unto the said recusants, to go and travel from or out of the compass of the said five miles, shall be, from and after the end of this present session of parliament, utterly repealed and void; any thing in the said statute to the contrary in any-wise notwithstanding.

35 Eliz. c. 2.

A recusant
confined.

A repeal of a proviso contained in the statute of 35 Eliz. c. 2,
touching
licence to recusants.

"VII. Provided nevertheless, and be it further enacted by this present parliament, and by the authority of the same, that it shall and may be lawful for the king's most excellent majesty, his heirs and successors, or for three or more of his majesty's most honourable privy council, or for three or more of the privy council of his heirs and successors, in writing under the hands of the said privy councillors, to give licence to every such recusant to go and travel out of the compass of the said five miles, for such time as in the said licence shall be contained, for their travelling, attending, and returning, and without any other cause to be expressed within the said licence: and if any of the persons which are so confined by virtue of the said statute, as is aforesaid, shall have necessary occasion or business to go and travel out of the compass of the said five miles, that then and in every such case, upon licence in writing in that behalf to be gotten, under the hands and seals: (1) of four of the justices of peace of the same county, limit, division, or place next adjoining to the place of abode of such recusant, with the privy and assent in writing of the bishop of the diocese, or of the lieutenant, or of any deputy lieutenant (2) of the same county residing within the said county or liberty,

Licence to a recusant
confined.
Cro. Jac. 352.

(1) Hands and seals:—In the case of Masteld, (Gilson's Codex, 593,) the licences was found to be ill, because under seals only, and not under hands.

(2) Deputy lieutenant:—It was not enough that there were three justices, and a fourth, who was both deputy-lieutenant and justice; but it ought to have been by four justices.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 5.

The effect of a licence to be granted by four justices of peace.

35 Eliz. c. 2.
A recusant
disabled to practise certain offices and functions.

No recusant shall be a public officer.

A woman
married
recusant.
7 Jac. 1, c. 6.

under their hands and seals: in every of which licence or licensure in writing as to be had and made, shall be specified and contained both the particular cause,⁽¹⁾ of the said licence, and the time how long the said party licensed shall be absent, in travelling, attending, and returning: it shall and may thereupon be lawful for every such person so licensed, to go and travel about such their necessary business, and for such time only for their travelling, attending, and returning, as shall be comprised in the said licence, the said party so licensed first taking his oath before the said four justices of the peace, or any of them, (who shall have authority by virtue of this act to minister the same,) that he hath truly informed them of the cause of his journey, and that he shall not make any conscience state, and that all and every licence hereafter to be made in this behalf, contrary to the tenour, effect, and true meaning of this statute, shall be utterly void, frustrate, and of none effect; any thing in the said former act, or in this act, to the contrary notwithstanding. And every person so confined, which shall depart or go above five miles from the place whereunto he is or shall be confined, not having such licence, and not having taken such oath as aforesaid, shall incur the said penalty, and forfeit as a recusant convicted, and passing or going above five miles from the said place whereunto he is or shall be confined, by the said statute of tricesimo quinto Elizabethæ, should do.

"VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no recusant convict shall at any time after the end of this session of parliament practise the common law of this realm as a councillor, clerk, attorney, or solicitor in the law, nor shall practise the civil law as advocate or proctor; nor practise physic, or use or exercise the trade or art of an apothecary; nor shall be judge, minister, clerk, or steward of or in any court, or keep any court; nor shall be register or town-clerk, or other minister or officer in any court; nor shall bear any office or charge as captain, lieutenant, corporal, serjeant, ancient bearer, or other officer of a camp, troop, band, or company of soldiers; nor shall be captain, master, governor, or bear any office or charge of or in any ship, castle, or fortress of the king's majesty, his heirs and successors; but be utterly disabled for the same: and every person offending herein shall also forfeit for every such offence one hundred pounds; the one moiety whereof shall be to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him that will sue for the same by action, debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed.

"IX. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no popish recusant convict, nor any having a wife being a popish recusant convict, shall at any time after the end of this session of parliament, or any popish recusant hereafter to be convict, or having a wife which hereafter shall be a popish recusant convict, at any time after his or her conviction, shall exercise any public office or charge in the commonwealth, but shall be utterly disabled to exercise the same by himself, or by his deputy; except such husband himself, and his children which shall be above the age of nine years abiding with him, and his servants in household, shall once every month at the least, not having any reasonable excuse to the contrary, repair to some church or chapel usual for divine service, and there hear divine service; and the said husband, and such his children and servants as are of meet age, receive the sacrament of the Lord's supper at such times as are limited by the laws of this realm, and do bring up his said children in the religion.

"X. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every married woman, being or that shall be a Popish recusant convicted, (her husband not standing convicted of Popish recusancy,) which shall not conform herself and remain conformed, but shall forbear to repair to some church or usual place of common besides the deputy-lieutenant, whose assent also ought to have been by itself, and not with the other four. Gibson's Codex, 593.

(1) Particular cause.—Another fault in the aforesaid licence for which it was adjudged to be ill, was, that the cause ought not to have been shown in a general manner, as, for urgent causes. Ibid. 594.

prayer, and there to hear divine service and sermon, if any then be, and within the said year receive the sacrament of the Lord's supper, according to the laws of this realm, by the space of one whole year next after the death of her said husband, shall forfeit and lose to the king's majesty, his heirs, and successors, the issues and profits of two parts of her jointure, and two parts of her dower, in three parts to be divided, during her life, of or out of any the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, which are or were her said husband's, and also be disabled to be executrix or administratrix of her said husband, and to have or demand any part or portion of her said late husband's goods or chattels, by any law, custom, or usage whatsoever.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 5.

"XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every Popish recusant which is or shall be convicted of Popish recusancy, shall stand and be reputed to all intents and purposes disabled (1), as a person lawfully and duly excommunicated, and as if he or she had been so denounced and excommunicated according to the laws of this realm, until he or she so disabled shall conform himself and herself, and come to church, and hear divine service, and receive the sacrament of the Lord's supper, according to the laws of this realm, and also take the oath appointed and prescribed in one other act made this present session of parliament, intituled, 'An Act for the better discovering and repressing of Popish Recusants:' and that every person and persons sued, or to be sued (2), by such person so dis-

A recusant shall be as excommunicated.
2 Bulst. 155.

1 Disabled.—In Rex v. Griffith, (2 Bulst. 155,) Lord Chief Justice Coke stated: "by the Stat. 3 Jac. 1, c. 5, every recusant is to be excommunicated; and therefore, in my circuit, I do not admit of them as witnesses between party and party, they being no competent witnesses; and therefore you, (the recusants at the bar,) being in and sureties for your good behaviour, we will not take popish recusants for your sureties."

2 Sued, or to be sued.—This is the ancient law of England, as appears by Bracton, l. 5, f. 426 (b); and Fleta, l. 6, c. 38; where it is not only said, "Cum excommunicatus nec orare, nec loqui, nec palam, nec absconditè, nec vesci licet, exceptis quibusdam personis;" but also, "Excommunicatus prohibetur omnis actus legitimus; ita quod nec agere potest, nec aliquem convenire, nec ipse ab illis possit conveniri." And, that actus legitimus was understood in a larger sense, than suing, appears from the letters written by the bishops to the temporal courts, not only "Ne excommunicatus in curiis vel judiciis admittantur," (Reg. Court. 174 (b); Arund. 439 (a).) but more expressly to repel them "Ab agendo, testificando, et aliis actibus legitimis;" (Chich. 116 (a) and elsewhere, "a patrocinando coram iudice." Arund. 415 (a).)

Upon this subject the Reformatio Legum states, "Nec excommunicatos ad ecclesiastica beneficia sumi fas est; quos ad mensam vel colloquium adhibere, nefas existimatur;" which, (as well as the disability to sue, (Caus. l. 1, c. 1., and be an advocate,) (Extra. l. 2, t. 19, c. 7; Extra. l. 5, t. 27, c. 7,) is agreeable to the rule of the canon law: "Consultationi tue taliter respondemus, quod cum excommunicatis communicari non debet, clericis excommunicationis vinculo innodatis ecclesiastica beneficia conferri non possunt, nec illi valent ea licitè retinere, nisi prius cum eis fuerit misericorditer dispensatum: cum ea non fuerint canonicè consecrata."

"Illi verò, qui scienter illa beneficia talibus contulerunt tamdiu debent à beneficiorum collatione suspendi, donec super hoc veniam consequi mereantur: ut puniantur in hoc, in quo delinquere præsumperunt."

In the Register of Archbishop Peccham, (f. 52 (a).) upon his collation to the vicarage of Hadleigh, the entry is: "Spectant ad collationem suam, pro eo quid rector ejusdem, qui alium præsentavit ad eandem, fuit excommunicationis sententiâ innodatus."

Under the same disability are executors and administrators, as well as others, being excommunicate; but where one of the executors of Lord Petre, (Petre (Lord) v. Cambridge (University of), 3 Lev. 332,) was a recusant convict, and therefore as excommunicate, (and being one of the plaintiffs,) that disability was pleaded against him, and against the rest also as concerning with him; the court adjudged, that it only suspended the action, and did not abate it. But it should be observed, that, in Trotter's case, (8 Co. 69 (a).) Lord Coke lays it down for a general rule, that when a plea of excommunication is allowed, the writ shall not abate, but the entry is, "quod remaneat loquela sine die quousque," &c.

"But if bailiffs and commons, or any other corporation aggregate of many, bring an action; excommunication in the bailiffs shall not disable them, for that they sue and answer by attorney." 1 Inst. 134.

In Tharsby v. Warn, (Noy. 88.) it appeared in "the bill," that the plaintiff was a recusant convict, and so a person excommunicate, notwithstanding which, the defendant had answered him, and then prayed a prohibition; but the court told him, that by answering, he admitted him a person able, and it was too late for that plea, and prohibition was denied.

Nor, where a bishop is defendant, can an excommunication by the same bishop, (although for another cause than that in question,) disable the plaintiff.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 6.

3 Jac. 1, c. 4.

What actions a recusant may prosecute.
Litch, 172, 177.

Recusants'
marriages by priests, &c.

abled, shall and may plead the same (1) in disabling of such plaintiff, as if he or she were excommunicated by sentence in the ecclesiastical court.

"XII. Provided nevertheless, that it shall and may be lawful for any such person so disabled, for and notwithstanding any thing in this law contained, to sue or prosecute any action or suit for or concerning only such of his or her lands, tenements, leases, rents, annuities, and hereditaments, or for the issues and profits thereof, which are not to be seized or taken into the king's hands, his heirs, or successors, by force of any law, for or concerning his or her recusancy, or any part thereof.

"XIII. And for that Popish recusants are not usually married, nor their children christened, nor themselves buried according to the law of the church of England, but the same are done superstitiously by Popish persons in secret, whereby the days of their marriages, births, and burials cannot be certainly known: be it further enacted by authority of this present parliament, that every

(1) Plead the same:—The manner of pleading this, is described by Bracton, (f. 426 (b).) as follows: "Oportebit eum qui excipit in hoc casu, habere literas ordinarii, (sicut archiepiscopi, vel episcopi, vel alterius iudicis ordinarii, vel delegati,) rei veritatem testificantes, quod talis nominatus excommunicatus sit, et ex tali causa; vel si ordinarius praesens sit, et hoc testificetur viva voce." Littleton, (1 Inst. 133 (b).) states, of the excommunication, it behoves him to show the bishop's letters under his seal, and ask judgment if the plaintiff shall be answered. But Bracton intimates, that a commissary or official may testify excommunication; Littleton, however, names the bishop only; because therein the law was changed, and that none could certify it but the bishop, or the vicar-general, episcopo in remota agente, or the guardian of the spiritualities, vacante sede, who might do it, either by direct certificate that the person was excommunicated, or by letters testimonial reciting the entry thereof in the register, and attesting that such entry was to be there found. F. N. B. tit. Writ de Excommunicato capiendo, 144. Jay v. Bond, 3 Keb. 60. 1 Vent. 122.

Of this power, as restrained to the bishop, Lyndwood (De Sen. Ex. c. Præterea v. Prelatorum, 360.) writeth thus: "Ad rogatum prelatorum inferiorum rex non consuevit scribere pro captione excommunicatorum. Unde, si aliquis fuerit excommunicatus ab inferiori episcopo, viz. decano vel archidiacono, invocatio regie majestatis fieri debet per episcopum; nam inferiores episcopo non possunt invocare brachium seculare: sed episcopi exequuntur eorum sententias. Quod si episcopi hoc facere noluerint, ad hoc compelli possunt per archiepiscopum."

The reason then why none but the bishop might certify, was, because none who were inferior to a bishop could call in the secular arm, by the laws of the church; (Lyndwood, Cohab. Cler. et Mul. c. Ut Cler. v. Brach. 127;) but my Lord Coke, (Trollop's case, 8 Co. 68 (a).) has found another reason, because no certificate of excommunication by any shall disable one, but the certificate of him to whom the court may write to absolve the party excommunicated. However, be the reason what it will, when a certificate was from the official or commissary of the bishop, it was held, that it did not disable the person. Gibson's Codex, 1050. And in the same case, (viz. Trollop's case.) it is affirmed, that the certificate ought to be directed either to the court, or at least, in rebus Sanctæ Matris ecclesiæ filius, and that it ought in special to contain the cause of the excommunication, in order that the temporal judges may see, whether the spiritual court have cognizance of the original cause, and whether the excommunication be according to law: and thus, they would be enabled if it be otherwise, to communicate with the spiritual court, to absolve the party.

But although, when the proceeding is upon any of the ten crimes mentioned in 24 Eliz. c. 23, (ante 408.) the particular original cause must be expressed in the certificate: it hath been doubted, whether that be required in other cases, or according to the common law. The notion in Lyndwood's time, (De Sen. Ex. c. Præterea v. Dari debet.) concerning this matter, was: "Judex secularis non habet cognitionem, sed meram executionem," and there are divers writs in the Register, which only say in general, that the party was excommunicated "propter suam manifestam contumaciam," (Reg. 65 (a), 66 (a), 68 (a), and "propter suam manifestam contumaciam in non parendo certis mandatis hujus factis," (Ibid. 65 (b).) and "propter manifestas offensas suas," (Ibid. 66 (b).)

But though the bishop may not only certify an excommunication made by himself, but also by his commissary or official, who doth it in his right; and by his archdeacon. (Trollop's case, 8 Co. 68 (a); Starkey's case, 1 Roll. 434.) whose jurisdiction is derived from him; in which case, the rule in the Register, (f. 65.) is: "*Quandis episcopus significat aliquem esse excommunicatum auctoritate archidiaconi vel officialis. Ne deinceps dicendum est in brevi nuntiacione de episcopo, vel illius qui sic certificavit, quod he cannot certify that, which hath been done in another court; and therefore a certificate, that another bishop hath absolved him, or that he hath seen a certificate of excommunication made by another bishop, is of no force. Neither is any other certificate (though duly made,) of force, if the party die before it be received, as Lord Coke affirms in the aforementioned case: which seems to be contrary to what he says down in the First Institute, (134 (a).) viz. "If the judge certificeth the excommunication under seal, it be it death, yet the certificate shall serve* man being or which shall be a Popish recusant convicted, and who shall be hereafter married otherwise than in some open church or chapel, and otherwise than according to the orders of the church of England, by a minister lawfully authorized, shall be utterly disabled and excluded to have any estate of freehold into of the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of his wife, as tenant by the curtesy of England: and that every woman being, or which shall be, a Popish recusant convicted, and who shall be hereafter married in other form than as aforesaid, shall be utterly excluded and disabled, not only to claim any dower of inheritance of her husband, whereof she may be endowable, or any jointure of lands and hereditaments of her husband, or any of his ancestors, but also of her husband's estate and frank-bank in any customary lands whereof her husband was seised, and likewise be disabled and excluded to have or enjoy any part or portion of the goods of her said husband, by virtue of any custom of any county, town, or place where the same shall lie or be; and if any such man shall be married with any woman contrary to the intent and true meaning of this act, such woman hath or shall have no lands, tenements, or hereditaments, whereof she may be entitled to be tenant by the courtesy, then such man so marrying as aforesaid, shall forfeit and lose one hundred pounds, the one half thereof to be to the king's majesty, his heirs, and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as shall sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be admitted or allowed.

"XIV. And that every Popish recusant which shall hereafter have any child born, shall within one month next after the birth thereof cause the same child to be baptized by a lawful minister according to the laws of this realm, in the open church of the same parish where the child shall be born, or in some other church or chapel adjoining, or chapel where baptism is usually administered; or if by infirmity of the child it cannot be brought to such place, then the same shall within the time aforesaid be baptized by the lawful minister of any of the said parishes or places aforesaid: upon pain that the father of such child, if he be living by the space of one month next after the birth of such child, or if he be dead within the said month, then the mother of such child, shall for every such offence forfeit one hundred pounds of lawful money of England; one third part whereof to be to the king's majesty, his heirs, and successors; one other third part to the informer, or him that will sue for the same; and the other third part to the poor of the said parish, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed.

"XV. And if any Popish recusant, man or woman, not being excommunicate, shall be buried in any place other than in the church or church-yard, or not according to the ecclesiastical laws of this realm, that the executors or administrators of every such person so buried, knowing the same, or the party that causeth him to be so buried, shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds; the one third part whereof shall be to our sovereign lord the king; the other third part to the informer, or him or them that will sue for the same; and the other third part to the poor of the parish where such person died; to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed.

"XVI. And be it further enacted by this present parliament, that if the children of any subject within this realm, (the said children not being soldiers, mariners, merchants, or their apprentices or factors,) to prevent their good education in England, or for any other cause, shall hereafter be sent or go beyond seas, without licence of the king's majesty, or six of his honourable privy council, (whereof the principal secretary to be one,) under their hands and seals, that then all and every such child and children so sent, or which shall go beyond the seas, shall take no benefit by any gift, conveyance, descent, devise, or otherwise, of or to any lands, tenements, hereditaments, leases, goods, or chattels, until he or they, being of the age of eighteen years or above, take the oath mentioned in an act of

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 5.

The baptism of recusants'
children.

The forfeiture
for burying recusants, not excommuni-cate, out of the church or churchyard.

The forfeiture
of children departing the realm.
3 Jac. 1, c. 4.
Hob. 73.
1 Roll. 108.

STAT. 3 JAC.
1. c. 5.

have the sum of fifty pounds only for every such discovery;) and such person discovering the same, after conviction of the offender, shall have a certificate from the judges or justices of the peace before whom such conviction shall happen, to be directed to the sheriff or other officer of the same county, limit, or place, that shall seize the goods, or levy the said forfeiture, commanding the said sheriff or other officer to pay the same accordingly to him that so discovered the same, out of the monies to be levied by virtue of the said forfeitures, which warrant and payment shall be effectual in the law for that purpose, and a sufficient discharge in that behalf for the sheriff or other officer upon his account.

A recusant
shall not come
to the court.

"II. And whereas the repair of such evil-affected persons to the court, or to the city of London, may be very dangerous to his majesty's person, and may give them more liberty to meet, consult, and plot their treasons and practices against the state, than if they should be restrained and confined unto their private houses in the country: for remedy hereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no popish recusant convicted or to be convicted shall come into the court or house where the king's majesty, or his heir apparent to the crown of England shall be, unless he be commanded so to do by the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, or by warrant in writing from the lords and others of the most honourable privy council of the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, or any of them: upon pain to forfeit, for every time so offending, one hundred pounds; the one moiety to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors; the other moiety to him that will sue for the same, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

Recusants shall depart from London.

"III. And that all popish recusants indicted or convicted, and all other persons which have not repaired to some usual church or chapel, and there hear divine service, but have forborn the same by the space of three months last past, contrary to the laws and statutes of this realm, dwelling, abiding, or remaining within the city of London, or the liberties thereof, or within ten miles of the said city, shall within three months next after the end of this session of parliament depart from the said city of London, and ten miles compass of the same; and also shall deliver up their names to the lord mayor of London, in case such recusant do dwell or remain within the said city of London, or the liberties thereof: and in case the said recusant shall dwell or remain in any other county within ten miles of the said city, then the said recusant shall deliver up his or her name to the next justice of peace within such county where the said recusant shall dwell or remain, within forty days after the end of this session of parliament, upon pain that every person offending herein shall forfeit to our sovereign lord the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, the sum of one hundred pounds, the one moiety whereof shall be to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed.

"IV. And that all popish recusants which shall hereafter come, dwell, or remain within the said city of London, or the liberties thereof, or within ten miles of the said city, which now are or hereafter shall be indicted or convicted of such recusancy, or which shall at any time hereafter not repair unto some usual church or chapel, and there hear divine service, but shall forbear the same by the space of three months, contrary to the laws and statutes of this realm, shall within ten days after such indictment or conviction depart from the said city of London, and ten miles compass of the same, and also shall deliver up their names to the lord mayor of London for the time being, in case such recusant shall dwell or remain within the said city of London, or the liberties thereof: and in case the said recusant shall dwell or remain in any other county within ten miles of the said city, then the said recusant shall deliver up his or her name to the next justice of peace within such county where the said recusant shall so dwell or remain, within the said ten days next after such indictment or conviction, upon pain that every person offending herein shall likewise forfeit to our said sovereign any benefice with cure or without cure, prebend or any other ecclesiastical, or to collate or nominate to any free school, hospital, or donative, and from the beginning(2) of this present session of parliament shall be disabled to grant any avoidance(3) to any benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living.

And that the chancellor(4) and scholars of the university of Oxford, any of them shall be void(6), shall have the presentation, nomination, and donation of and to every such benefice(7), prebend, or ecclesiastical

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 3.

Enlarged by
1 G. & M.
Sess. 1, c. 26,
and 12 Ann.
St. II. c. 14.

The chancellor and scholars of presenting. The right of the bishop, in this case, as in others, from the fact, that the statute in more than to put the university in place of the patron; all rights which to others, remaining as they were (Oxford (University of) v. Lincoln (Bishop), Lit. 192.

To present:—Or nominate, where nomination belongs to one, and the election to another; as in the very next is expressly mentioned.

From the beginning:—So that although such grant be made by a recusant, conviction, yet if he be afterwards dead, the previous grant shall be void. (del Chancellor &c. del University de, 10 Co. 55 (a) (b).

Any avoidance:—Mountague (Serjeant) demanded the opinion of the justices of the University of Oxford, (445; Godb. 216,) upon this point: must convict, to avoid this statute, is patronage for years to one of his in trust; whether such grant be within it? The justices refused to deliver upon the case, because it might come judicially before them; but yet, they seemed to agree, that such a lease was void by this statute; and "that they would not have the university discouraged in the case," which their opinions to be for the university now that point seems to be cleared. 1 G. & M. Sess. 1, c. 26, s. 3.

And that the chancellor:—The two which give this benefit to the university, respectively, are private clauses, the judges, without pleading of them, take notice. Le case del Chancellor, University de Oxford, 10 Co. 57(b).

Often as:—There is one case where the king claims the right of presenting; thus: by Stat. 29 Eliz. c. 6, and Stat. 1, c. 4, the king is empowered, in default of payment of 20*l.* per month, two parts of the lands, tenements, and tithes to recusants convict. And being accordingly made, first, of two a manor to which an advowson was attached; and, after that, of the advowson, of the king's two parts; these cases considered, and argued, within twenty years of the making of this statute. In the case, viz. Cambridge (University of) v. Jones, (Hob. 127,) the court conceived that the title to two turns was in the king upon confession thereof by the bishop, a writ to the bishop for the king accordingly awarded. In the second case, Edwards v. Oxford (University of), Jon.

(Sir W.), 17,) it was pleaded in behalf of the claim of the university, that during the recusancy, by the tenour of the act, the university had in it the whole advowson in trust: that if a grant of the next avoidance should be made to the king by a recusant convict, this law would make such grant null, and then there was no reason why a seizure should entitle him to it: that the statute, intending only to punish the recusant, could not be supposed to give the king anything, but what the recusant himself should have had and enjoyed if no such seizure had been made. But in favour of the king's title, it was said, among other things, that as in law the right to present might pass, as part of the two parts, being an hereditament, by which means the advowson was in the king; so the equity and intention of the statute was clearly on the side of the crown; inasmuch as the evil designed to be remedied thereby, was, that the church might not be supplied by incumbents who were popish or popishly affected; against which the law could not suppose a greater security, than when the right of presenting was in the hands of the person whom itself makes supreme ordinary and defender of the faith. After hearing the arguments on both sides, one of the plaintiffs caused the suit to be discontinued, and so no judgment was given; only Sir William Jones, one of the justices, (who also reports the case, and argued for the King against Justice Hutton,) says, that the Lord Hubart declared his opinion for the king, and that Winch (another of the justices) declared to him in private, that he was of the same mind.

(6) Void:—In Fitzherbert v. Oxford (University of), (Com. 182,) it was said by Chief Justice Trevor, "that this statute extends to all avoidances, as well before as after conviction; for the words of the act are general, and the subsequent words, when it shall become void, &c. are words of enlargement, and extend the gift of the avoidances of recusants to the university, toties quoties, the advowson becomes void, and words which were intended to enlarge shall never be construed to restrain the former words. Avoidances before conviction are also within the same mischief as the avoidances after; and it would be a hard construction, that general words shall not be extended to remedy all cases, which are within equal mischief."

(7) Presentation, nomination, collation, and donation of and to every such benefice:—When a protestant and a Roman catholic are co-patrons of an advowson, the right of presentation is in the protestant alone: thus, in Edwards v. Baister (Bishop

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 5.

tical living, school, hospital, and donative, set, lying, and being in the of Oxford, Kent, Middlesex, Sumsex, Surrey, Hampshire, Berkshire, Buck

of), (5 Bing. N. C. 652,) Chief Justice Tindal observed: "The first count of the declaration in this case, after showing, by the deduction of title, that at the time of the last avoidance, the plaintiff and one William Knight were seised of the advowson therein mentioned, as of fee and right, in equal moieties, proceeds to allege, that the church became vacant by the death of the last incumbent, 'by reason whereof, and because the said William Knight, at the time when the said last-mentioned church so became vacant as last aforesaid, was, and from thence continually has been, and still is, a person professing the Roman catholic religion, it did, and doth belong to the plaintiff to present a fit person to the said last mentioned church at this vacancy,' and then avers the disturbance of the plaintiff's right to present by the defendants. The two defendants, namely, the ordinary and the clerk collated by him, join in pleading; and in their plea to this count justify the refusal of the ordinary to admit or institute the clerk who had been presented by the plaintiff, and the rejection of such presentation, 'because the said William Knight had not joined nor in any manner concurred in the said presentation; and that he, the bishop, on that occasion, declared and assigned his reason and ground for so declining and refusing to accept, and for so rejecting such presentation, to be the neglect and omission of the said William Knight to concur or join in the said presentation;' and after proceeding to state the collation of the said church to the defendant Todd, the plea alleges, 'that no notice whatever was given to the said bishop until long after the right of collating the said church so vacant to the defendant Todd, had devolved to the said bishop as such ordinary.' Upon which latter allegation, the plaintiff in his replication takes a precise issue in the terms of the plea, alleging, 'that notice had been given to the bishop before any right of collating the said church so vacant to the other defendant had devolved to him.' To which replication the defendants demur. And, so far as relates to the replication, we can see no objection in point of form to the issue taken by the plaintiff. The defendants have rested their justification on the ground of the absence of notice that Knight was a Roman catholic before the lapse incurred. If it was incumbent on the plaintiff to have given such notice at the time of the presentation of his clerk; (for which, however, we can see no reason or authority;) the defendants themselves should have alleged and relied upon the absence of such notice in their plea. But they have not so done; and the plaintiff has only followed the defendants in denying their allegation as it stands, as he, the plaintiff, had a right to do. But the objection to the replication has been, in effect, abandoned; and the argument on the part of the defendants has been entirely confined to the insufficiency of the plaintiff's title to present, as set forth in the declaration; the objection amounting simply to that the presentation was made by the plaintiff alone, whereas at the time of presentation there was, as it is contended, in common of such right of presentation with the plaintiff, who ought to have joined with him; and that, by reason of the plaintiff in common not joining, a lapse occurred. The point at issue between the parties therefore, comes to this: whether the presentation is given to the ordinary by the statutes 3 Jac. 1, c. 5, 10, 11, 26, and 12 Ann. St. II. c. 14, in the disability of one co-patron; or whether it is so given in any case where a sole patron, or all co-patrons, or a person professing the Roman catholic religion, is the first observation that arises in the words of the disabling clause in the statute of James are general, clearly expressed, and comprising every person who is a recusant convict, that is, as explained by the subsequent statute, a person professing the Roman catholic religion, it follows, that all which is to be effected by the legislature is accomplished, where there are co-patrons or tenants in common of patronage, by holding the statute cases to affect no more than the disability of all the co-patrons who are catholics. For if the right of presentation comes limited to the protestants only, the avoiding of any popular influence in the selection of an incumbent which is the real object of the statute is attained as completely as if the presentation as to the share or part of the Roman catholic co-patron is given to the universities. There is, therefore, necessity, in order to effectuate the intention of the legislature, that the present case should be held to vest in the universities; and the question, therefore, is, whether the words of the statute require that interpretation. And on this point it appears to us there is a distinction between those words of the statute which confer the presentation on the universities, and those of the disabling clause in the statute of James, which relate to the presentation to the university, and that university shall have the presentation 'when it shall happen to be void or vacant, or when the patron thereof shall remain a recusant convict as aforesaid, although these words are not repeated in the statutes of William and Mary, and still we consider them as virtually repeated therein, as a direct reference in both the latter statutes to the statute of James, and they are declared to be passed in order to carry into effect the intention of the former law. And we think, that it will give full force to this transferring or vesting clause in the statute, if it is considered as effect-

Gloucestershire, Worcestershire, Staffordshire, Warwickshire, Wiltshire, Dorsetshire, Devonshire, Cornwall, Dorsetshire, Herefordshire, Northamptonshire, Pembrokeshire, Caermarthenshire, Brecknockshire, Monmouthshire, Cardiganshire, Montgomeryshire, the city of London, and in every city and town, being a county of itself, lying and being within any of the limits or precincts of any of the counties aforesaid, or in, or within any of them, as shall happen to be void during such time as a patron thereof shall be and remain a recusant convict as aforesaid.

XX. And that the chancellor and scholars of the university of Cambridge shall have the presentation, nomination, collation, and donation of and to every such benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living, school, hospital, and donative, set, lying and being in the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Bedfordshire, Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, Suffolk, Norfolk, Lincolnshire, Rutlandshire, Leicestershire, Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, Shropshire, Cheshire, Lancashire, Yorkshire, the county of Durham, Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, Radnorshire, Denbighshire, Flintshire, Carnarvonshire, Angleseyshire, Merionethshire, Glamorganshire, and in every city and town, being a county of itself, lying within any of the limits or precincts of any of the counties last before mentioned, or in or within any of them, as shall happen to be void during such time (1) as the patron thereof shall be and remain a recusant convict as aforesaid.

XXI. Provided, that neither of the said chancellors and scholars of either of the said universities, shall present or nominate to any benefice with cure, prebend

STAT. 3 JAC.
I. c. 5.

Oxford shall present to a recusant's benefice in certain counties. Jones, 17.

The chancellor and scholars of Cambridge.

None shall be presented who rather than to the case where the patron, if a sole patron, is a Roman catholic, or where all the patrons, if there are several claiming under the same title, are of the same persuasion. And this observation is entitled to more weight, when it is considered, that the statute of James gives no interest, but a power only, to the universities, as it is observed by Hobart (Chief Justice), in the case of Deane v. Oxford (The University of); (Winch's Rep. 11.) and it is well established, that the words creating a power must be strictly interpreted: and undoubtedly it will be found, in all the cases and precedents which have occurred in courts of law, that the claim of the universities has been made only where there has been a sole patron, who was a recusant convict. Vide Winch's Entries, 371; Lutw. 1100, in a quare impedit against the Chancellor, &c. of the University of Cambridge; the case in Hob. 126; and that in Winch's Rep. 11. And, so far as we have been able to search, no precedent is found of a claim by the university under a joint right to present with a protestant co-patron.

But, still further, the interpretation concluded for on the part of the defendants would work an injury to the patronage of the protestant co-patron. For, by sect. 5 of Stat. 1 G. & M., the chancellor and scholars shall not present or nominate any person who shall then have any other benefice with cure of souls, under pain of the presentation being utterly void. And again, by sect. 6, it is enacted that no person so presented to any benefice with cure of souls, shall be absent from the same above the space of sixty days in any one year, under the penalty that the benefice shall become void. And these two restrictions, such are very properly placed upon the power of presentation, when the university takes the whole, throw a burden upon the right of presenting belonging to the protestant co-patron, which did not exist before. And as there could be no possible reason for an enactment, which should operate against the rights of a protestant co-patron, we think these clauses afford a key to the meaning of the statute, and show that the legislature had nothing in view beyond giving the power to the universities to present, where, by the recusancy of the patron, or all the patrons, under the same title, the whole power of the presentation would devolve to them.

"Upon the whole, therefore, we think that the case of the transfer to the universities of the power to present, when one or some only of the co-patrons are disabled, is either a casus omissus in the statute, and then we cannot extend the statute to comprehend it; or that the legislature designedly excluded it, and confined the vesting of the power of presentation in the universities to a vesting of the entire right; in either of which cases the judgment must be for the plaintiff.

"And by this construction no injury can be occasioned in any case to the ordinary, who at all times has a clear course to follow, perfectly free from all doubt, whereby he can never be treated as a disturber, viz. the admitting and instituting the presentee of the one protestant co-patron: for according to Co. Lit. 186(b), 'if one joint tenant, or tenant in common, present severally, the ordinary may either admit, or refuse to admit, such a presentee, unless they join in presentation; and after the six months he may in that case present by lapse.'

(1) During such time:—When the presentation hâc vice is vested in the university, although afterwards the recusant conformeth himself, or dieth, yet the university shall present. Le case del Chancellor, &c. del University de Oxford, 10 Co. 57(b).

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 5.

hath another
benefice.

Recusant shall not be executor
or administrator.

Recusant
shall be no
guardian.

Who shall have the wardship.

The king's wards.

Popish books.

Justices may search for books printed,
&c.

or other ecclesiastical living, any such person as shall then have any other benefice with cure of souls; and if any such presentation or nomination shall be had or made of any such person so beneficed, the said presentation or nomination shall be utterly void; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XXII. Moreover, because recusants convicted are not thought meet to be executors (1) or administrators to any person or persons whatsoever, nor to have the education of their own children, much less of the children of any other of the king's subjects, nor to have the marriage of them; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such recusants convicted, or which shall be convicted at the time of the death of any testator, or at the time of the granting of any administration hereafter to be made, or letters of administration hereafter to be granted, shall have the custody of any child, as guardian in chivalry, guardian in socage, or guardian in nurture, of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, being freehold or copyhold, but shall be adjudged disabled to have any such wardship or custody of any such child, or of their lands, tenements or hereditaments, being freehold or copyhold as aforesaid.

"XXIII. And that for the better education and preservation of the said children, and of their estates, the next of the kin to such child or children, in whom the said lands, tenements or hereditaments of such child or children cannot lawfully descend, who shall usually resort to some church or chapel, and shall hear divine service, and receive the holy sacrament of the Lord's supper three times the year next before, according to the laws of this realm, shall have the custody and education of the same child, and of his said lands and tenements, being holden in knight's service, until the full age of the said ward of one and twenty years, and of his said lands, tenements, and hereditaments, being holden in socage, as a guardian in socage, and of the said lands, tenements, and hereditaments being copyhold, as a copy of court-roll of any manor, so long as the custom of the said manor shall permit and allow the same; and in every of the said cases shall yield an account of the profits thereof to the said ward, as the case shall require.

"XXIV. And that if, at any time hereafter, any of the wards of the king's majesty, or of any other, shall be granted or sold to any popish recusant convicted, such grant or sale shall be utterly void and of none effect.

"XXV. And be it further enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that no person or persons shall bring from beyond the seas, nor shall print, write, buy any popish primers, ladies' psalters, manuals, rosaries, popish catechisms, missals, breviaries, portals, legends and lives of saints, containing superstitious matter printed or written in any language whatsoever, nor any other superstitious books printed or written in the English tongue; upon pain of forfeiture of ten shillings for every such book; one third part thereof to be to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, one other third part to him that shall sue for the same, and the other third part to the poor of the parish where such book or books shall be found, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of the king's majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be admitted or allowed, and the said books to be burned.

"XXVI. And that it shall be lawful for any two justices of peace within the limits of their jurisdiction or authority, and to all mayors, bailiffs and chief officers of cities and towns corporate in their liberties from time to time, to search the houses and lodgings of every popish recusant convicted, or of every person whose wife is or shall be a popish recusant convicted, for popish books and relics of popery: and that if any altar, pix, beads, pictures, or such like popish relics, or any popish book or books shall be found in their or any of their custody, as in the opinion of the said justices, mayor, bailiff or chief officer, as aforesaid, shall be thought unmeet for such recusant, as aforesaid, to have or use the same, shall be

(1) Executors.—A popish recusant convicted made his wife, another popish recusant, his executrix, and she being suffered to prove the will in the spiritual court; a prohibition was granted, because the court erred, that she was disabled by the general canon, and not enabled by the statute. Donner's Codex, 382.

if defaced and burnt, if it be meet to be burned: and if it be a crucifix, or of any price, the same to be defaced at the general quarter sessions of the county where the same shall be found, and the same so defaced to be red to the owner again.

STAT. 3 JAC.
 1, c. 5.

Crucifix
 defaced.

XVII. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such gunpowder and munition, of whatsoever kinds, as any popish recusant within this realm of England, hath or shall have in his house or houses, or in the hands or possession of any other at his or their disposition, taken from such popish recusants or others which have or shall have the use of such popish recusant, by warrant of four justices of peace at general or quarter sessions, to be holden in the same county where such recusant shall be resident (other than such necessary weapons as shall be fit by the said four justices of peace to remain and be allowed for the use of the person or persons of such recusants, or for the defence of his, her, or his or her house or houses); and that the said armour and munition so taken, shall be maintained at the costs of such recusants, in such places as the said four justices of peace at their said sessions of the peace shall set down and appoint.

Recusant's
 armour.

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any recusant having or which shall have any such armour, gunpowder and munition, or any of them, or if any other person or persons which shall have any such armour, gunpowder and munition, or any of them, to the use of any such recusant, shall refuse to declare or manifest unto the said justices of the peace, or to the said four justices of peace, what armour he, she, or they have, or shall have, or shall let, hinder, or obstruct the delivery thereof, to any of the said justices, or to any other person authorized by their warrant to take and seize the same; then every person so offending contrary to this statute in this behalf, shall forfeit and lose the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, his and their said armour, gunpowder and munition, and shall also be imprisoned by warrant of or from any four justices of peace of such county, by the space of three months, without bail or fine.

The forfeiture
 of a recusant not delivering his armour.

XIX. And yet nevertheless, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that notwithstanding the taking away of such armour, gunpowder, and munition, the popish recusant shall and may be charged with the maintaining of the same, in the buying, providing, and maintaining of horse, and other armour and munition, in such sort as other his majesty's subjects from time to time shall be required and commanded, according to their several abilities and qualities, and to the said armour and munition, at the charge of such popish recusant, for and as their own provision of armour and munition, shall be shewed at muster, shew, or use of armour, to be had or made within the said county.

Recusant shall maintain his armour.

XX. Provided always, that neither this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to take away or abridge the authority or jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical censures, for any cause or matter; but that the commissioners of his majesty, his heirs and successors, in causes ecclesiastical, for the time being, archbishops, bishops, and other ecclesiastical judges, may do and proceed as before the making of this act they lawfully did or might have done; any thing in this act contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

Ecclesiastical
 censures.

XIV. STAT. 3 JACOBI 1, c. 21 (1). A.D. 1605.

"An Act to restrain the Abuses of Players."

STAT. 3 JAC.
 1, c. 21.

For the preventing and avoiding of the great abuse of the holy name of God, in stage plays (2), interludes, May-games, shows, and such like; be it enacted by

The penalty of players on the

vide Stat. 9 & 10 Gul. 3, c. 32.
 1 Geo. 2, c. 33, Art. 2. Stat. 53
 c. 160. Stat. 60 Geo. 3 & 1 Geo. 4, Stat. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Gul. 4, c. 73.
 year 1656, James Nailor, (3 Burn's
 y Phillimore, 385,) for personating a king, and suffering his followers to worship him, and pay him divine honours, was sentenced to be set in the pillory, and to have his tongue bored through with a red-hot iron, and to be whipped, and to be stig-matized in the forehead, with the letter B.

 (2) Stage plays:—The reformation of stage plays was under debate in convocation,

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 21.

stage, &c.
profanely
abusing the name of God.

Farther provisions relating hereto, 10 Geo.
2, c. 19; 12
Geo. 2, c. 28;
and 25 Geo. 2,
c. 36.

our sovereign lord the king's majesty, and by the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if at any time or times after the end of this present session of parliament, any person or persons do or shall in any stage play, interlude, show, May-game, or pageant, jestingly or profanely speak or use the holy name of God, or of Christ Jesus, or of the Holy Ghost, or of the Trinity, which are not to be spoken but with fear and reverence, shall forfeit for every such offence by him or them committed ten pounds: the one moiety thereof to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, the other moiety thereof to him or them that will sue for the same in any court of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed."

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 25.

XV. STAT. 3 JACOBI 1, c. 25 (1). A.D. 1605.

"A Confirmation of four Subsidies, of four Shillings in the Pound, granted to the King by the Clergy."

STAT. 3 JAC.
1, c. 27.

XVI. STAT. 3 JACOBI 1, c. 27. A.D. 1605.

"A Confirmation of the King's General and Free Pardon."

[Offences against the ecclesiastical state; disturbers of divine service; bigamists; heretics; schismatics; acts committed by Jesuits or Romish priests; incest; adultery; fornication; and simony:—excepted from pardon (2).]

STAT. 4 JAC.
1, c. 5.

XVII. STAT. 4 JACOBI 1, c. 5 (3). A.D. 1606.

"An Act for repressing the odious and loathsome Sin of Drunkenness."

[Ecclesiastical power and jurisdiction for the punishment of drunkards preserved.]

STAT. 4 JAC.
1, c. 7.

XVIII. STAT. 4 JACOBI 1, c. 7. A.D. 1606.

"An Act for the founding and incorporating of a Free Grammar School in the Town of Northleach, in the County of Gloucester."

STAT. 7 JAC.
1, c. 2.

XIX. STAT. 7 JACOBI 1, c. 2 (4). A.D. 1609.

"An Act that all such as are to be naturalized, or restored in Blood, shall first receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and the Oath of Allegiance, and the Oath of Supremacy."

Farther provisions relating hereto, 11 &
12 Gul. 3, c. 6;
7 Ann. c. 5;
1 Geo. 1, c. 4;
4 Geo. 2, c. 21;
13 Geo. 2, c. 7;
20 Geo. 2, c. 44;
22 Geo. 2, c. 45;
and 25 Geo. 2,
c. 39.

"Forasmuch as the naturalizing of strangers, and restoring to blood persons attainted, have been ever reputed matters of mere grace and favour, which are not fit to be bestowed upon any others than such as are of the religion now established in this realm; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, that no person or persons of what quality, condition, or place soever, being of the age of eighteen years or above, shall be naturalized or restored in blood, unless the said person or persons have received the sacrament of the Lord's supper within one month next before any bill exhibited for that purpose, and also shall take the oath of supremacy, and the oath of allegiance, in the parliament-house, before his or her bill be twice read: and for the better effecting of the premises, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the lord chancellor of England, or lord keeper of the great seal for the time being, if the bill begin in the upper house, and the speaker of the commons house of parliament for the time being, if the bill begin there, shall have authority at all times during the

as appears by a short entry in the extracts of A.D. 1541, "Ibidem episcopi consultant de publicis comediis."

(1) Expired.

(2) Expired.

(3) Repealed by Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 61.

(4) Amended by Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 67.

session of parliament, to minister such oath and oaths, and to such person and persons, as by the true intent of this statute is to be ministered. This act to take place from and after the end of this present session of parliament." STAT. 7 JAC. 1, c. 2.

XX. STAT. 7 JACOBI 1, c. 3. A.D. 1609. STAT. 7 JAC. 1, c. 3.
An Act for the continuing and better Maintenance of Husbandry, and other Manual Occupations, by the true employment of Monies given and to be given for the binding out of Apprentices."

XXI. STAT. 7 JACOBI 1, c. 6(1). A.D. 1609. STAT. 7 JAC. 1, c. 6.
"An Act for administering the Oath of Allegiance, and Reformation of married Women Recusants(2)."

XXII. STAT. 7 JACOBI 1, c. 24(3). A.D. 1609. STAT. 7 JAC. 1, c. 24.
"A Confirmation of the King's General and Free Pardon."

XXIII. STAT. 21 JACOBI 1, c. 1. A.D. 1623. STAT. 21 JAC. 1, c. 1.
"An Act for the reviving and making perpetual of one Act made in the nine and thirtieth Year of the late Queen Elizabeth, intituled, An Act for erecting of Hospitals and Abiding and Working Houses for the Poor."

"Whereas in the parliament held in the nine and thirtieth year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth of happy memory, a good law was made, intituled, 'An Act for erecting of Hospitals, or Abiding and Working Houses for the Poor;' but the power, licence, and authority given by the said statute, to erect, found, and establish such houses and abiding places, as are therein mentioned, was confined to the space of twenty years then next ensuing, which said time is now expired:

"II. Be it therefore enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that the said act, and all things therein contained, shall from henceforth be revived and made perpetual, to have continuance for ever.

"III. And be it also enacted, that all hospitals, maisons de Dieu, and abiding places for poor, lame, maimed, and impotent people, or for houses of correction, at any time since the said twenty years expired, erected, founded, or made, or at any time hereafter to be erected, founded, or made, according to the purport of the said statute, shall be incorporated, and have perpetual succession, and capacity to have, take, and enjoy all other privileges, benefits, and immunities, to all intents and purposes, according to the provisions, tenour, purport, and true meaning of the said act, as if the same had been made, founded, or endowed within the space of twenty years next ensuing the said statute."

The statute of 39 Eliz. c. 5, made perpetual. 16 Vin. 414, et seq.

The erection of all hospitals, &c. since the expiration of 39 Eliz. c. 5, confirmed. See further, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 12; 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 37; and 9 Geo. 2, c. 36.

XXIV. STAT. 21 JACOBI 1, c. 4. A.D. 1623. STAT. 21 JAC. 1, c. 4.
"An Act for the Ease of the Subject, concerning Informations upon Penal Statutes."

[V. Actions against persons for not frequenting church and hearing divine service, may be tried in any county, at the pleasure of the informer.]

XXV. STAT. 21 JACOBI 1, c. 17. A.D. 1623. STAT. 21 JAC. 1, c. 17.
"An Act against Usury."

"V. Provided, that no words in this law contained, shall be construed, or expounded to allow the practice of usury in point of religion or conscience."

(1) Vide Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 30. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7. Stat. 1 & 2 Gul. 4, c. 9. (3) Expired. Exceptions occur in this statute, similar to those which are contained in Stat. 3 Jac. 1, c. 27. Vide antè Stat. 12 Co. 130 tit. Oath before Justice. 534.

STAT. 21 JAC.
1, c. 20.

XXVI. STAT. 21 JACOBI 1, c. 20(1). A.D. 1623.

"An Act to prevent and reform profane Swearing and Cursing."

STAT. 21 JAC.
1, c. 28.

XXVII. STAT. 21 JACOBI 1, c. 28. A.D. 1623.

"An Act for continuing and reviving of divers Statutes, and repeal(2) of some others."

All statutes that concern
the taking away of sanctuaries, revived.
1 Jac. 1, c. 25.

"VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all statutes heretofore made, that take away sanctuary for any offence, shall for so much as concerneth the taking away of such sanctuary be revived, and shall be and stand in force and power; any words of repeal contained in the statute made in the session of parliament held in the first year of his majesty's reign of James intituled, 'An Act for continuing and reviving divers Statutes, and for repealing of some others,' or in this present act to the contrary notwithstanding.

All sanctuaries taken away.

"VII. And be it also enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that no sanctuary or privilege of sanctuary shall be hereafter admitted or allowed in any case."

STAT. 21 JAC.
1, c. 35.

XXVIII. STAT. 21 JACOBI 1, c. 35(3). A.D. 1623.

"A Confirmation of the King's General and Free Pardon, &c."

[Offences against the ecclesiastical state; disturbers of divine service: bigamists; heretics; schismatics; acts committed by Jesuits or Romish priests: incest; adultery; fornication; and simony:—excepted from pardon.]

(1) Repealed by Stat. 19 Geo. 2, c. 21. 2 Hen. 5, St. II. c. 2. Stat. 35 Edw. 3.

(2) Repeal:—Stat. 35 Edw. 3, c. 8. Stat. (3) Expired.

STATUTA CAROLI I.

A.D. 1625—1649.

	Page		Page
I. Stat. 1 Car. 1, c. 1	537	XII. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 3, c. 23 [Ir.]	546
I. Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 1	538	XIII. Stat. 10 & 11 Car. 1, c. 1 [Ir.]	546
I. Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 2	539	XIV. Stat. 10 & 11 Car. 1, c. 2 [Ir.]	547
I. Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 4	539	XV. Stat. 10 & 11 Car. 1, c. 3 [Ir.]	551
I. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 2, c. 1 [Ir.]	539	XVI. Stat. 15 Car. 1, c. 6 [Ir.]	553
I. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 2, c. 2 [Ir.]	544	XVII. Stat. 15 Car. 1, c. 7 [Ir.]	553
I. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 2, c. 5 [Ir.]	544	XVIII. Stat. 15 Car. 1, c. 11 [Ir.]	553
I. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 2, c. 21 [Ir.]	545	XIX. Stat. 15 Car. 1, c. 12 [Ir.]	553
I. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 3, c. 1 [Ir.]	545	XX. Stat. 16 Car. 1, c. 11	554
I. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 3, c. 5 [Ir.]	546	XXI. Stat. 16 Car. 1, c. 27	560
I. Stat. 10 Car. 1, Sess. 3, c. 10 [Ir.]	546

I. STAT. I CAROLI I, c. 1 (1). A.D. 1625.

STAT. I CAR.
I, c. 1.

An Act for punishing divers Abuses committed on the Lord's Day, called Sunday."

"Forasmuch as there is nothing more acceptable to God than the true and pure service and worship of him according to his holy will, and that the holy day (2) of the Lord's day is a principal part of the true service of God, which in very many places of this realm hath been and now is profaned and defiled by a disorderly sort of people, in exercising and frequenting bearing, bull-baiting, interludes, common plays, and other unlawful exercises and pastimes upon the Lord's day; and for that many quarrels, bloodsheds, and other inconveniences have grown by the resort and concourse of people going out of their own parishes to such disordered and unlawful exercises and pastimes, neglecting divine service both in their own parishes and elsewhere; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, from and after forty days next after the end of this session of parliament, there shall be no meetings, assemblies, or concourse of people out of their own

There shall be no assemblies for unlawful pastimes upon the Lord's day.
1 Haw. P. C. c. 6.

(1) Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 1, (post. 538.) Stat. 3 Car. 2, c. 7, (post. 614.) Stat. 21 Geo. 2, c. 2, (post. 614.) Stat. 21 Geo. 2, c. 2, (post. 614.)

(2) The holy keeping:—Which duty, Wood, in his Gloss, upon one of Pechinus's Constitutions, thus describes, on the Sanctification, i.e., "Sanctum et mundum oratio servat; generaliter, scilicet, illo die vitia cessando; specialiter, ab operibus carnalibus, quae impediunt vacationem ad deum, abstinendo; specialissime, contemplatione divinorum totaliter inherendo." And where, "Diebus dominicis totaliter est vacandum." From such passages, and in the many laws, that were made in the reign of our Saxon ancestors, against profaning the Lord's day, Bishop Stillingfleet, (1 Hist. Ca. 138,) draws this conclusion, "that religious observation of the Lord's day is no novelty, started by some late sects and parties among us; but that it hath been the general sense of the best part of the Christian world, and is particularly enforced upon us of the church of England, not only by the Homilies, but by the most ancient ecclesiastical laws among us." Accordingly, (before the book of Sports had been set forth by King James the First,) not only the injunctions of Edward the Sixth and Queen Elizabeth had specially enforced this duty; but a bill had been provided by the bishops, in the 12th year of Queen Elizabeth, for enforcing the observation of it; and divers bills for that end had also been actually brought into parliament: (D'Ewes, 522:) one, in the 27th of Elizabeth, (Dec. 7,) intituled, "A Bill for the better and more reverend observing of the Sabbath day;" which having passed both houses, after great disputation, was denied the royal assent, probably upon the dislike the queen had of the parliament's intermeddling in matters of religion. "Three attempts of the like nature were also made in the reign of King James I, (ann. 3, 12, & 21,) as appears by the Journals of Parliament in the several years; and (after what had been done in the 1st and 3rd years of King Charles I.) we find a bill in parliament, in the 16th of Charles 2, for punishing divers abuses committed on the Lord's day; and in the same year, when a bill for the better observation of the Lord's day was prepared for the royal assent, and ready to be passed, it was stolen, and could not be recovered, upon a strict examination made by the House of Lords." Gibson's Codex, 236.

STAT. 1 CAR.
1, c. 1.

Every person using any unlawful pastimes on the Lord's day shall forfeit 3s. 4d. to the poor of the parish. After conviction by warrant from a justice, &c. the constables may levy the penalty, &c.

General issue. Limitation of the action. The ecclesiastical jurisdiction not abridged.

parishes (1) on the Lord's day, within this realm of England or any the dominions thereof, for any sports and pastimes whatsoever, nor any bear-baiting (2) or baiting, interludes, common plays, or other unlawful exercises and pastimes, used by any person or persons within their own parishes; and that every person or persons offending in any the premises, shall forfeit for every offence the shillings four-pence, the same to be employed and converted to the use of the poor of the parish where such offence shall be committed; and that any one justice of the peace of the county, or the chief officer or officers of any city, borough, or town corporate, where such offence shall be committed, upon his or their own confession of the party, or proof of any one or more witness by oath, where the said justice or chief officer or officers shall by virtue of this act have authority, or the minister, shall find any person offending in the premises, the said justice or the officer or officers shall give warrant under his or their hand and seal, to the constables and church-wardens of the parish or parishes where such offence shall be committed, to levy the said penalty so to be assessed, by way of distress upon any of the goods of every such offender, rendering to the said offender the overplus of the money raised of the said goods so to be sold; and in default of such distress that the party offending be set publicly in the stocks by the space of six hours; and that if any man be sued or impeached for execution of this act, he shall and may plead the general issue, and give the said matter of justification in evidence: provided, that no man be impeached by this act except he be called in question within one month next after the said offence committed: provided also that the ecclesiastical jurisdiction within this realm or any the dominions thereof, by virtue of this act or any thing therein contained, shall not be abridged, so that the ecclesiastical court may punish the said offences as if this act had not been made. This act to continue until the end of the first session of the next parliament and no longer."

STAT. 3 CAR.
1, c. 1.

II. STAT. 3 CAROLI 1, c. 1[2]. A.D. 1627.

"An Act for the further Reformation of sundry Abuses committed on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday."

A carrier, &c. that travels on the Lord's day shall forfeit 20s.
1 Car. 1, c. 1.
Butchers that

"Forasmuch as the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, is much broken and profaned by carriers, waggoners, carters, wain-men, butchers, and drivers of cattle, to the great dishonour of God, and reproach of religion; he it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, and lords spiritual and temporal, and by the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that no carrier with any horse or horses, nor waggon-men with any waggon or waggons, nor carman with any cart or carts, nor wainman with any wain or wains, nor drovers with any cattle, shall, after forty days next after the end of this present session of parliament, by themselves, or any other, travel upon the said day, upon pain that every person and persons so offending shall forfeit the said day, upon pain that every person and persons so offending shall forfeit twenty shillings for every such offence: or if any butcher (3), by himself or

(1) Out of their own parishes.—This also was provided against in King James's Book of Sports: "We likewise do straightly command that every person shall resort to his own parish church, to hear divine service, and each parish by itself to use the said recreation after divine service."

(2) Bear-baiting, &c..—These were the exercises, which had been specially excepted, in the order for allowance of divers sports on Sundays; published by King James 1, in the 16th year of his reign, and renewed by King Charles 1, in the 9th year of his reign; commonly called "The Book of Sports." And the other diversions and exercises allowed therein, were under two limitations, viz. that they should not begin until the termination of divine service; and, that they should be allowed to none, but to those who had previously been present at divine service.

(3) If any butcher.—To an indictment for exercising the trade of a butcher on Sunday, an exception was taken, that it was not laid to be against the form of the statute, and that it was no offence at common law;—upon demurrer, judgment was given for the defendant. Rees v. Brinkley, Str. 702.

In Exp. Middleton, (3 B. & C. 164.) it was holden, that the driver of a coach travelling to and from London and York, was a carrier within the meaning of Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 4, and liable to be committed to the penalty of 20s. for travelling on the Lord's day, the court observing, "We are clearly other for him, by his privity or consent, shall, after the end of the said forty days, kill or sell any victual upon the said day, that then every such butcher shall forfeit and lose for every such offence the sum of six shillings and eightpence; the said offences, and every of them, being done in view of any justice of the peace, mayor, or other head officer, of any city or town corporate within their several limits respectively, or being proved upon oath by two or more witnesses, or by confession of the party offending, before any such justice, mayor, or head officer, within their several limits respectively, wherein such offence shall be committed: to which end, every such justice, mayor, or head officer, shall have power by this act to minister an oath to such witness or witnesses: all which oaths or penalties shall or may be levied by any constable or churchwarden, by warrant from any such justice or justices of the peace, mayor, or other head officer, as aforesaid, within their several limits where such offence shall be committed or done, by distress and sale of the offender's goods, rendering to the party aggrieved the surplus, or shall be recovered by any person or persons that will sue for the same, by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his majesty's courts of record, in any city or town corporate, before his majesty's justices of the peace in their several sessions of the peace: all which forfeitures shall be employed to and for the use of the poor of the parishes where the said offences shall be committed or done, saving only that it shall be lawful to and for any such justice, mayor, or head officer, out of the said forfeitures, to reward any such person or persons that inform or otherwise prosecute any person or persons offending against this act, according to their discretions, so that such reward exceed not the third part of the forfeiture: provided that such bill, plaint, or information, shall be commenced, sued, and prosecuted, in the county, city, or town corporate, where such offence shall be committed and done, and not elsewhere; wherein no defence, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed to the defendant: provided also, that it shall be lawful for any constable or churchwarden, that shall have any suit or action brought against them for any distress by them or any of them taken by force of this present act, to plead the general issue, and to give the whole matter in evidence: provided likewise, that no person or persons whatsoever shall be impeached by this act, unless he be thereof questioned within six months after the offence committed: provided further, that this act shall not in any sort abridge or take away the authority of the courts ecclesiastical. This act shall continue to the end of the first session of the next parliament."

STAT. 3 CAR. I, c. 1.

sell or kill victual upon that day shall forfeit 6s. 8d.

After conviction, and by warrant from a justice, &c. the constables, &c. may levy the said forfeitures to the use of the poor, or they may be recovered by suit.

III. STAT. 3 CAROLI I, c. 23. A.D. 1627.

An Act to restrain the passing or sending of any to be popishly bred beyond the Seas."

STAT. 3 CAR. I, c. 2.

IV. STAT. 3 CAROLI I, c. 4[5]. A.D. 1627.

"An Act for Continuance (2) and Repeal of divers Statutes."

STAT. 3 CAR. I, c. 4.

V. STAT. 10 CAROLI I, c. 1, SESS. 2. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1634.

"An Act expressing an Order for Uses, Wills, and Enrolments."

STAT. 10 CAR. I, c. 1, SESS. 2. [IR.]

Where by the common laws of this realm, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, be not devisable by testament, nor ought to be transferred from one to another, but by solemn livery and seisin, matter of record, or writing, sufficiently bona fide, without covin or fraud; yet nevertheless, divers and sundry contrivances, subtle inventions and practices have been used, whereby the hereditaments of this realm have been conveyed from one to another, by fraudulent

Eng. 27 Hen. 8, c. 10. How by the common law lands transferred.

mean, that a person who has the care of the law is a carrier within the terms of this act, which ought to receive a construction, being for the better observation of the Lord's day." Obsolete. Vide Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32.

Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 30. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7. Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 26. Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 115.

(2) Continuance:—Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20, made perpetual. Sed vide ante 432, n. (4).

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 1, SESS.
2. [IR.]

Several inconveniences, by secret fraudulent conveyances to uses, and by wills.

The remedy.

The possession of lands, &c. shall be in them that have the use, confidence, or trust, in the same form and condition.

Where divers jointly seised to the use of any of them, they only who have the use shall be ad-

feoffments, fines, recoveries, and other assurances, craftily made, to secret intents, and trusts, and also by wills and testaments sometimes made by sub pavois and words, sometimes by signs and tokens, and sometimes by writing, and by the most part made by such persons as be visited with sickness in their extreme agonies and pains, or at such time as they have had scantily any good memory or remembrance, at which times they being provoked by greedy and covetous persons, lying in wait about them, do many times dispose indiscreetly and unwisely, their lands and hereditaments, by reason whereof, and by consequence of which, fraudulent feoffments, fines, recoveries, and other like assurances to uses, confidences, and trusts, divers and many heirs have been unjustly at sundry times disinherited, the lords lost their wards, marriages, reliefs, heriots, escheats, and pur faire fite chivaler, et pur fite marier, and scantily any person can be certainly assured of any lands by them purchased, nor known surely against whom they shall use their actions or execution for their rights, title, and duties: also many married have lost their tenancies by the courtesy, women their dowries, and manifest perjuries, by trial of such secret wills and uses, have been committed, the king's highness hath lost the profits and advantages of the lands of persons attainted, and the lands craftily put in feoffment to the uses of aliens banished, and also the profits of wastes for a year and a day of lands of felons attainted, and the lords their escheats thereof, and many other inconveniences have happened, and daily do increase among the king's subjects, to their great trouble and unquietness, and to the utter subversion of the ancient common laws of this realm. For the extirping and extinguishment of all such subtle practised feoffments, fines, recoveries, abuses, and errors heretofore used and accustomed in this realm, to the subversion of the good and ancient laws of the same, and to the intent that the king's highness, or any other his subjects of this realm, shall not in any way hereafter, by any means or inventions, be deceived, damaged, or hurt, by reason of such trusts, uses, or confidences. It may please the king's most royal majesty, that it may be enacted by his highness, by the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, in manner and form following, that is to say: that whosoever person or persons stand or be seised, or at any time hereafter shall happen to be seised, of and in any honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, rents, services, reversions, remainders, or other hereditaments, to the use, confidence, or trust of any other person or persons, or of any body politic, by reason of any bargain, sale, feoffment, fine, recovery, covenant, contract, agreement, will, or otherwise, by any manner means whatsoever it be, that in every such case, of and every such person and persons, and bodies politic, that have, or hereafter shall have, any such use, confidence, or trust, in fee simple, fee tail, for term of life or years, or otherwise; or any use, confidence, or trust, in remainder or reverter, shall from henceforth stand and be seised, deemed, and adjudged in lawful seisin, estate, and possession, of and in the same honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, rents, services, reversions, remainders, and hereditaments, with their appurtenances, to all intents, constructions, and purposes in the law, as and in such like estates, as they had or shall have, in use, trust, or confidence, of or in the same. And that the estate, title, right, and possession, that was in such person or persons that were, or hereafter shall be seised, of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, to the use, confidence, or trust, of any such person or persons, or of any body politic, be from henceforth clearly deemed and adjudged to be in him or them that have, or hereafter shall have, such use, confidence, or trust, and such quality, manner, form, and condition, as they had before, in or to the use, confidence, or trust that was in them.

"II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that where divers and many persons be, or hereafter shall happen to be jointly seised of and in any lands, tenements, rents, reversions, remainders, or other hereditaments, to the use, confidence, or trust of any of them that be so jointly seised, that in every such case that those person or persons, which have, or hereafter shall have, any such uses, confidence, or trust, in any such lands, tenements, rents, reversions, remainders, or hereditaments, shall from henceforth have, and be deemed and adjudged to have, only to him or them that have, or hereafter shall have such use, confidence, or trust, such estate, possession, and seisin, of and in the same lands, tenements, rents, reversions, remainders, or other hereditaments, in like nature, manner, form, condition and course, as he or they had before in the use, confidence, or trust of the same lands, tenements, or hereditaments. Saving and reserving to all and singular persons, and bodies politic, their heirs and successors, other than those person or persons which be seised, or hereafter shall be seised, of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, to any use, confidence, or trust, all such right, title, entry, interest, possession, rents, and action, as they or any of them had, or might have had, before the making of this act.

" III. And also saving to all and singular those persons, and to their heirs, which be, or hereafter shall be seised to any use, all such former right, title, entry, interest, possession, rents, customs, services, and actions, as they or any of them might have had, to his or their own proper use, in or to any manors, lands, tenements, rents, or hereditaments, whereof they be, or hereafter shall be seised to any other use, as if this present act had never been had or made; any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

" IV. And where also divers persons stand and be seised of and in any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, in fee simple, or otherwise, to the use or intent that some other person or persons shall have and perceive yearly to them and to his or their heirs, one annual rent of ten pounds, or more or less, out of the same lands and tenements, and some other person, one annual rent to him and his assigns, for term of life or years, or for some other special time, according to such intent and use as hath been heretofore declared, limited, and made thereof. Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in every such case, the same persons, their heirs and assigns, that have such use and interest, to have and perceive any such annual rents out of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, that they and every of them, their heirs and assigns, be adjudged and deemed to be in possession and seisin of the same rent, of and in such like estate, as they had in the title, interest, or use of the said rent or profit, and as if a sufficient grant, or other lawful conveyance had been made and executed to them by such as were or shall be seised to the use or intent of any such rent to be had, made, or paid, according to the very trust and intent thereof; and that all and every such person or persons as have, or hereafter shall have any title, use, and interest, in or to any such rent or profit, shall lawfully distrain for non-payment of the said rent, and in their own names make recoveries, or by their bailiffs or servants, make recognizances and justifications, and have all other suits, entries, and remedies, for such rents, as if the same rents had been actually and really granted to them, with sufficient clauses of distress, entry, or otherwise, according to such conditions, pains, or other things limited and appointed upon the trust and intent for payment or surety of such rent.

" V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that whereas divers persons have purchased or have estate, made and conveyed, of and in divers lands, tenements, or hereditaments, unto them and to their wives, and to the heir of the husband, or to the husband, and to the wife, and to the heirs of their two bodies begotten, or to the heirs of one of their bodies begotten, or to the husband and to the wife, for term of their lives, or for term of life of the said wife; or where any such estate or purchase of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, hath been, or hereafter shall be made to any husband and to his wife, in manner and form above expressed, or to any other person or persons, and to their heirs and assigns, to the use and behoof of the said husband and wife, or to the use of the wife, as is before declared, for the jointure of the wife; that then in every such case, every woman married having such jointure made, or hereafter to be made, shall not claim nor have title to have any dower of the residue of the lands, tenements, or hereditaments, that at any time were her said husband's, by whom she hath any such jointure, nor shall demand nor claim her dower, of and against them that have the lands and inheritances of her said husband; but if she have no such jointure, then she shall be admitted and enabled to pursue, have, and demand her dower by writ

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 1, SESS.
2. [1a.]

judged to have the possession
in like manner.
Saving the
right of others.

And saving to those seised to use all former right.

Cest que use of rent shall be adjudged in possession and seisin thereof,
in like manner
as if granted
to them;

and may dis-
train avow, &c.

A woman
having a jointure made
shall not claim
dower of the residue of husband's lands.

STAT. 10 CAR.
1. c. 1. SESS.
2. [1a.]

But if lawfully evicted, shall be endowed of
as much.

Jointure made
after marriage,
unless by act
of parliament,
may be refused
after husband's death, and dower demanded.

This act not to extinguish, &c.
any statute,
recognizance,
or other bond.

Wills made before or shortly after
this statute,
how to be taken.

Fines for alienation, reliefs, heriots, &c.

of dower, after the due course and order of the common laws of this realm; this act, or any law or provision made to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

"VI. Provided always, that if any such woman be lawfully expelled or evicted from her said jointure, or from any part thereof, without any fraud or covin, by lawful entry or action, or by discontinuance of her husband, then every such woman shall be endowed of as much of the residue of her husband's tenements and hereditaments, whereof she was before dowable, as the same lands and tenements so evicted and expelled, shall amount or extend unto.

"VII. Provided also, that this act, nor any thing therein contained or expressed, extend not or be in any wise hurtful or prejudicial to any woman or women, heretofore being married, of, for, or concerning such right, title, use, interest, or possession, as they or any of them have, claim, or pretend to have, for her or their jointure or dower, of, in, or to any manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, of any of their late husbands, being now dead or deceased, any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VIII. Provided also, that if any wife have, or hereafter shall have any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, unto her given or assigned after marriage, for term of her life, or otherwise in jointure, except the same assurance be to her made by act of parliament, and the said wife, after that fortune to survive the same her husband, and in whose time the said jointure was made, assured unto her, that then the same wife so overliving, shall and may take liberty, after the death of her said late husband, refuse to have and take the said lands and tenements so to her given, appointed, or assured during the coverture for term of her life, or otherwise in jointure; except the same assurance be to her made by act of parliament, as is aforesaid, and thereupon to have, ask, demand, and take her dower by writ of dower, or otherwise, according to the common law, and in all such lands, tenements, and hereditaments, as her husband was and stood seized of any estate of inheritance, at any time during the coverture; any thing contained in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"IX. Provided also, that this present act, nor any thing therein contained, extend not, or be at any time hereafter interpreted, expounded, or taken to extinct, release, discharge, or suspend any statute, recognizance, or other bond, by the execution of any estate, of or in any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, to the authority of this act, to any person or persons, or bodies politic; any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"X. And for as much as great ambiguities and doubts may arise by the validity and invalidity of wills heretofore made of any lands, tenements, and hereditaments, to the great trouble of the king's subjects; the king's most royal majesty, minding the tranquillity and rest of his loving subjects, of his most excellent and accustomed goodness, is pleased and contented, that it be enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that all manner of true and just wills and testaments heretofore made by any person or persons deceased, or that shall decrease before the first day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord, one thousand six hundred thirty and five, of any lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, shall be taken and accepted good and effectual in the law, after such fashion, manner, and form, as they were commonly taken and used, at any time within forty years next before the making of this act; any thing contained in this act, or in the preamble thereof, or any opinion of the common law, to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

"XI. Provided always, that the king's highness shall not have, demand, or take any advantage or profit, for or by occasion of executing of any estate under the authority of this act, to any person or persons, or bodies politic, which now have, or on this side the said first day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord, one thousand six hundred thirty and five, shall have any use or uses, trusts, or confidences, in any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, holden of the king's highness, by reason of primer seisin, livery ouster le main, fine for alienation, relief, or heriots; but that fines for alienations, reliefs, and heriots, shall be paid to the king's highness, and also liveries and ouster le maines, shall be made by uses, trusts, and confidences, to be made and executed in possession, by authority of this act, after and from the said first day of May, of lands and tenements, and other hereditaments, holden of the king, in such like manner and form, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as hath heretofore been used or accustomed by the order of the laws of this realm.

"XII. Provided also, that no other person or persons or bodies politic, of whom any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, be, or hereafter shall be holden, mediate or immediate, shall in any wise demand or take any fine, relief, heriot, or by occasion of the executing of any estate, by the authority of this act, to any person or persons, or bodies politic, before the said first day of May.

"XIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular person and persons, and bodies politic, which at any time on this side the said first day of May, shall have any estate unto them executed, of and in any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, by the authority of this act, shall and may have and take the same or like advantage, benefit, voucher, aid, prayer, remedy, commodity, and profit, by action, entry, condition, or otherwise, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as the person or persons seised unto their use, of or in any such lands, tenements, or hereditaments so executed, had, should, might, or ought to have had, at the time of the execution of the estate thereof, by the authority of this act, against any other person or persons, of or for any waste, disseising, trespass, condition broken, or any other offence, cause, or thing, concerning or touching the said lands or tenements, so executed by the authority of this act.

"XIV. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that actions now depending against any person or persons, seised of or in any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, to any use, trust, or confidence, shall not abate nor be discharged, for or by reason of executing any estate thereof, by authority of this act, before the said first day of May; any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XV. Provided also, that this, nor any thing therein contained, shall not be prejudicial to the king's highness, for wardships of heirs, now being within age, and for liveries, nor for ouster le maines, to be sued by any person or persons, now being within age, or of full age, of any lands or tenements, unto the same heir or heirs now already descended; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XVI. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular recognizances heretofore knowledged, taken, or made to the king's use, for or concerning any recoveries of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, heretofore used, or had by writ or writs of entry, upon disseising, in le post, shall from henceforth be utterly void and of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes.

"XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that from the first day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred thirty and five, no manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, shall pass, alter, or change, from one to another, whereby any state of inheritance of freehold shall be made or take effect in any person or persons, or any use thereof to be made, by reason only of any bargain and sale thereof, except the same bargain and sale be made by writing indented, sealed, and enrolled, in any of the king's courts of record at Dublin, or else within the same county or counties, where the same manors, lands, or tenements, so bargained and sold, lie to be, before the custos rotulorum, and two justices of the peace, and the clerk of the peace of the same county or counties, or two of them at the least, whereof one clerk of the peace to be one; and the same enrolment to be had and made within six months next after the date of the same writings indented; the same custos rotulorum, or justices of the peace, and clerk, taking for the enrolment of every such writing indented before them, where the lands comprised in the same writings exceed not the yearly value of forty shillings, two shillings, that is to wit, twelve pence to the justices, and twelve pence to the clerk; and for the enrolment of every such writing indented before them, wherein the lands comprised

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 1, SECS.
2. [1a.]

Cost que use
may take all such advantages as his feoffees might.

Actions now depending not to abate.

Not to prejudice
the king's wardship of heirs now
within age, livery, or ouster le main,
of lands now already descended.

Recognizances
to the king's use for recoveries
heretofore had, void.

Eng. 27 Hen.
8, c. 16.
Lands, &c.
shall not pass
by bargain and sale, unless by writing indented,
sealed, and enrolled.

Enrolment
before custos
rotul., &c.

within six months after date of the writing Fees for enrolment.

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 1, SESS.
2. [1R.]

Clerk of the peace to ingross and deliver to custos rot.

Not to extend to boroughs or towns corporate, the officers whereof used to inrol
evidences.

exceed the sum of forty shillings in yearly value, five shillings, that is to say, two shillings sixpence to the justices, and two shillings sixpence to the clerk for the enrolling of the same: and that the clerk of the peace for the time being, within every such county, shall sufficiently inrol and ingross in parchment the same deeds or writings indented, as is aforesaid, and the rolls thereof at the end of every year, shall deliver unto the said custos rotulorum of the county for the time being, there to remain in the custody of the said custos rotulorum, amongst other records of the same counties, where any such writs or writs shall be so made, to the intent that every party that hath to do therewith may resort and see the effect and tenour of every such writing so inrolled.

"XVIII. Provided always, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to any manor, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, lying or being within any city, borough, or town corporate within this realm, wherein the justices, recorders, chamberlains, bailiffs, or other officer or officers have authority lawfully used to inrol any evidences, deeds, or other writings within their precincts or limits; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding."

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 2, SESS.
2. [1R.]

VI. STAT. 10 CAROLI 1, c. 2, SESS. 2(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1634

"An Act how Lands, Tenements, &c. may be disposed by Will or otherwise, as concerning Wards and Primer Seisin."

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 5, SESS.
2. [1R.]

VII. STAT. 10 CAROLI 1, c. 5, SESS. 2. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1634

"An Act for the Recovery of Arrearages of Rents by Executors of Tenants in Fee Simple."

Edg. 32 Hen.
8, c. 37.

No remedy for arrears of rents
by common law.

Inconvenience
thereof.

Executors and administrators
may have debt
for rent due at death of testator, and may distrain for such arrears so long as the lands remain
in possession of the tenant
in demesne or those claiming under him, as their testator might.

"Forasmuch as by the order of the common law, the executors or administrators of tenants in fee simple, tenants in fee tail, and tenants for term of years, have no remedy towards such arrearsages of the said rents or fee farms, as were due unto their testators or their lives, nor yet the heirs of such testators, nor any persons having the possession of his estate after his decease, may distrain or have any lawful action for any such arrearsages of rents, or of the fee farms due unto him in his life, or aforesaid, by reason whereof the tenants of the demesne of such lands, tenements, or hereditaments, out of the which such rents were due and payable, who ought to pay the rents and farms at such days and terms as they were bound many times keep, hold, and retain such arrearsages in their own hands, and the executors and administrators of the persons to whom such rents or fee farms were due, cannot have or come by the said arrearsages of the same, towards the payment of the debts, and performance of the will of the said testator; for remedy whereof be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that the executors and administrators of every such person or persons unto whom any such rent or fee farm is or shall be due, and not paid at the time of his death, shall and lawfully may have an action of debt for all such arrearsages against the tenant or tenants that have paid the said rent or fee farm, so being behind in the life of their testator, against the executors and administrators of the said tenants. And also more it shall be lawful to every such executor and administrator of any person or persons, unto whom such rent or fee farm shall be due, and not paid at the time of his death, as is aforesaid, to distrain for the arrearsages of all such rent or fee farm upon the lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, which were in possession of the said testator, with the payment of such rents or fee farms, and chargeable to the distressee of the said testator, so long as the said lands, tenements, or hereditaments, remain, and be in the seisin or possession of the said tenant in demesne, who ought immediately to have paid the said rent or fee farm so being behind in the life of the said testator, in his life, or in the seisin or possession of any other person claiming the said lands, tenements, and hereditaments, only by and for the same tenant, by purchase, gift, or descent, in like manner and form as the might or ought to have done in his life-time; and the said executors and administrators shall for the same distress lawfully make avowry upon their matter.

STAT. 10 CAR. 1, c. 5, SESS. 2. [1R.]

And further be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any man now hath, or hereafter shall have in the right of his wife any estate in fee tail, or for term of life, of or in any rents or fee farms, and the same fee farms now be, or hereafter shall be due, behind, and unpaid in the life of the said husband after the death of his said wife, his executors, administrators, shall have an action of debt for the said arrearages against the demesne that ought to have paid the same, his executors or administrators; and also the said husband, after the death of his said wife, may for the said arrearages, in like manner and form as he might have done, if his wife had been then living, and make avowry upon his matter, as is

Husband shall have like remedy for rent due in the right, and in the life, of his wife.

And likewise it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person which now hath, or hereafter shall have any rents or fee farms for term of life or lives of any other person or persons, and the said rent or fee farm be, or hereafter shall be due, and behind, and unpaid in the life of the said person or persons, for whose life or lives, the estate of the said rent or fee farm depend or continue, and after the said person or persons do die, then he or she, the said rent or farm was due in form aforesaid, his executors and administrators, shall and may have an action of debt against the tenant in fee tail, that ought to have paid the same when it first was due, his executors and administrators, and also distrain for the same arrearages upon such lands and tenements, out of the which the said rents or fee farms were issuing and payable, in like manner and form as he ought or might have done, if such person or persons by whose death the aforesaid estate in the said rents and fee farms was limited and expired, had been in full life, and not dead; and the avowry for the same of the said distress, to be made in manner and form aforesaid."

Tenant pour autre vie, shall have like remedy for rent due in life of cest. que vie, after his death.

III. STAT. 10 CAROLI 1, c. 21, SESS. 2 (1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1634.
"An Act for the restraining of all Persons from Marriage, until their former Wives and former Husband be dead."

STAT. 10 CAR. 1, c. 21, SESS. 2. [1R.]

IX. STAT. 10 CAROLI 1, c. 1, SESS. 3. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1634.
"An Act for Maintenance and Execution of Pious Uses."

STAT. 10 CAR. 1, c. 1, SESS. 3. [1R.]

For the advancement of pious intentions, and the better execution of charities and trusts; be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that all archbishops and bishops of this kingdom, and their successors for ever, and may from the time of any grant or estate to them, or any of them, and any of their successors, made or to be made, either by our late sovereign King James of happy memory, or by the king our sovereign lord that now is, or any of their heirs or successors, or by any other person or persons, bodies corporate or other hereditaments, unto the use, or upon trust and confidence for the erection, maintenance, or support of any college, school, lecture in any, or in any the liberal arts or sciences, or for the relief or maintenance of any poor, succourless, distressed, or impotent persons, or for the building, repairing, or maintaining in repair of any church, college, school, or hospital, or the maintenance of any minister and preacher of the holy word of God, or the erection, building, maintenance or repair of any bridges, causeways, caases, and highways within this realm, or for any other like lawful and charitable purposes, warranted by the laws of this realm, now established and in force, are and shall be taken and construed to be good and effectual in law, according to the import and true intent and meaning thereof; and that they the said archbishops

Bishops may be compelled in chancery, or by petition to the council board, to execute trusts and uses of conveyances to them for lawful and charitable purposes.

* The parliament roll has been examined and found so.

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 1, SESS.
3. [1a.]

Saving the right of others
than the grantors, and their heirs.

and bishops, and their successors, and every of them, shall and may be compelled by way of sub poena in the high court of Chancery, or by petition before the deputy and privy council of this kingdom, at the council board, to execute and perform all and every the said trusts and uses, according to the true intent of the charters, deeds, and conveyances to them in that behalf made, or hereafter made, or of any other deed or writing containing or directing the use and intent of such grants or conveyances respectively; any law, custom, or other thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding. Saving to all and every person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, their heirs and successors, other than the said donors or grantors, their heirs and successors, all such right of estate, interest, entry, and demand, of, in, and to the said manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, as he or they, or any of them, should or might have had and enjoyed if this act had never been had or made."

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 5, SESS.
3. [1a.]

X. STAT. 10 CAROLI 1, c. 5, SESS. 3. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1034.

"An Act for confirmation of Leases made by the Lord Primate and other Bishops in Ulster."

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 10, SESS.
3. [1a.]

Eng. 43 Eliz.
c. 8.
Fraud practised in taking administration to deceive others of their debts.

Persons obtaining goods or debts, or releasing debts of intestate, upon fraud or without valuable consideration, except in satisfaction of some just debt of that value due to them from the intestate, shall be so far charged as executors of their own wrong. Allowance of just debts and other lawful payments.

XI. STAT. 10 CAROLI 1, c. 10, SESS. 3. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1034.

"An Act against the fraudulent Administration of Intestates' Goods."

"Forasmuch as it is often put in ure, to the defrauding of creditors, that persons as are to have the administration of the goods of others dying intestate committed unto them, if they require it, will not accept the same, but will procure the administration to be granted to some stranger of mean estate, and of kin to the intestate, from whom themselves or others, by their means, take deeds of gifts and authorities by letter of attorney, whereby they obtain the goods of the intestate into their hands, and yet stand not subject to pay the debts due by the same intestate, and so the creditors, for lack of knowledge of the place of habitation of the administrator, cannot arrest him or sue him, and if they do find him out, yet for lack of ability in him to satisfy of his own goods, or of that he hath conveyed away of the intestate's goods, or released of his goods by way of wasting, the creditors cannot have or recover their just and due debts. It enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that every person or persons that hereafter shall obtain, receive, or have any goods or debts of any intestate, or a release or other discharge of any debt or duty that belongeth to the intestate upon any fraud, as is aforesaid, or without such valuable consideration shall amount to the value of the same goods and debts or near thereto, or if it be in or towards satisfaction of some just and principal debt, of the value of the same goods or debts to him owing by the intestate at the time of his decease, shall be charged and chargeable as executor of his own wrong, and so far charged with such goods and debts coming to his hands, or whereof he is released or discharged by such administrator, will satisfy, deducting nevertheless, to and for the satisfaction of all just, due, and principal debt, upon good consideration, and without fraud, owing to him by the intestate at the time of his decease, and of the lawful payments made by him, which lawful executors or administrators may and ought to have and pay by the laws and statutes of this realm."

STAT. 10 CAR.
1, c. 23, SESS.
3. [1a.]

XII. STAT. 10 CAROLI 1, c. 23, SESS. 3. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1034.

"An Act for the granting of eight entire Subsidies by the Prelates and Bishops of Ireland."

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. 1, c. 1.
[1a.]

Eng. 21 Jac.
1, c. 20.

XIII. STAT. 10 & 11 CAROLI 1, c. 1 (1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1034.

"An Act to prevent and reform profane Swearing and Cursing."

"Forasmuch as all profane swearing and cursing is forbidden by the word of God; be it therefore enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that"

(1) Vide Stat. 7 Gul. 3, c. 9. (1.)

persons shall from henceforth profanely swear or curse; and that if any persons shall at any time or times hereafter offend herein, either in the any justice of peace of the county, or of any mayor, justice of peace, any other head officer of any city or town corporate where such offence be committed, and shall thereof be convicted by the oaths of two witnesses, or by the confession of the party before any justice of the peace of the head officer, or justice of the peace in the city or town corporate where the offence is or shall be committed, to which end every justice of the peace and head officer shall have power by this act to administer the same oath, every such offender shall, for every time so offending, forfeit and pay to the poor of that parish where the same offence is or shall be committed, twelve pence: and it shall also be lawful for the constables and churchwardens, or any of them, by warrant from such justice of peace or head officer, to take the sum or sums of money by distress and sale of the offender's goods, to the party the overplus; and in defect of such distress, the offender, if he be above the age of twelve years, shall by warrant from such justice of peace or head officer, be set in the stocks by three whole hours; but if the offender be under the age of twelve years, and shall not forthwith pay the said sum of money, then he or she, by the warrant of such justice of peace or head officer, shall be whipped by the constable, or by the parents, or master, in his distress, set in stocks three hours, if above twelve; if under twelve, and be it further enacted, that if any such offender shall commence any action against any officer or other for such distraining, sale of goods, whipping in the stocks, the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue, give the special matter in evidence to the jury at the trial, and if it be found against the plaintiff, or that the plaintiff be non-suit, the defendant or defendants shall be allowed good costs, to be taxed by the court.

Provided nevertheless, that every offence against this law, shall be proved as abovesaid, within twenty days after the offence

And it is also enacted, that this act shall be read in every parish church, after the evening prayer, upon the Sunday after the evening prayer, twice in the

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. 1, c. 1.
[In.]

7 Gul. 3, c. 9.
None shall
profanely
swear or curse.
Offenders in hearing of justice of peace,
mayor, &c.
convicted by oaths of two witnesses, &c.
shall each time
forfeit to the poor of the parish, 12d.

To be levied
by constable or churchwardens
by warrant, by distress and sale;
in default of
to be whipped.

Officer sued
for the same may plead
general issue,
and have costs
if found for him or plaintiff
non-suit.

Prosecution must be in twenty days.

This act to be read in church twice every year.

STAT. 10 & 11 CAROLI 1, c. 2 (1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1634-5.

to enable Restitution of Improvements and Tithes, and other Rights Ecclesiastical, to the Clergy, with a restraint of aliening the same, and Direction for Presentation to the Churches."

he due maintenance for such as shall teach and instruct the people in the word of God, and the better to enable them to keep hospitality and relieve the poor, be it enacted by the king our sovereign lord, and the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall and may be lawful from henceforth for all and every persons of full age, sane memory, and not covert baron, and for all and every persons politic and corporate, of or within this realm, which are seised of the advowsons of any parsonages, rectories, vicarages, or other benefices ecclesiastical, or of any glebe lands, tithes, portions of tithes, pensions, or rights heretofore ecclesiastical of any estate of inheritance in possession, or remainder, or in use, freely out of their devotion or otherwise at any time, upon any other reasonable ground or contract without any licence or licence to alien in mortmain, to restore, dedicate, give, devise, convey the same or any part thereof, for the better maintenance of the word of God's holy word and sacraments, either by his or their deed or charter or their respective seal or seals made and delivered in the presence of two sufficient witnesses, or by their respective last will in writing made

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. 1, c. 2.
[In.]

For maintenance of the clergy.

Appropriations
of ecclesiastical benefices may,
without licence
to alien in mortmain, be restored by deed or will under seal to the persons of the respective parishes.

(1) Partly repealed by Stat. 5 Geo. 4, c. 91.

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. I. C. 2.
[1a.]

If none, to the bishop in trust for the minister serving cure, till a rector or vicar appointed, and then to his sole use. Such use expressed in writing.

Said parson, &c. shall be immediately seized thereof in fee simple.

Non obstante Statute of Mortmain.

If in the parish no parson or vicar endowed, the ordinary may (after there shall be glebe lands, tithes, &c. to the full third part of the profits of the entire impropriation) ordain one, in perpetual succession.

His institution, &c. to be enrolled at his cost in Exchequer.

And then shall be seized in fee of such parsonage, &c.

Persons seized of inheritance in possession in benefices appropriate may by writing under seal present a clerk to the ordi-

and published in the presence of like number of sufficient witnesses, parson or vicar of the said parish or parishes immediately, and to him or any such be endowed within the said parish where the said appropriate land, tithes, or other the said premises, are or do lie, arise, or grow; be no such parson or vicar endowed within such parish, then to the bishop of that province, or bishop of that diocese, and to their or any of their heirs, or to the use of such minister as shall serve the cure of the said parish until there shall be a rector, parson, or vicar of the said parish appointed, and then to the sole use of the rector, parson, or vicar of the said parish, and of his successors for ever, such use and trust to be expressed and contained in such deed, charter, or last will, or otherwise in some writing under the seal of such person and persons who shall so give, limit, or devise the same.

"II. And it is hereby enacted, that immediately from and after the writing made as aforesaid, and after the deaths of such testators or donors, shall make such will as aforesaid respectively, the said parson or vicar, or his successors to whom such grant, limitation, or devise shall be made, and the said metropolitan, bishop, or bishops, and their successors, such parsonage impropriate, glebe lands, tithes, or other the said premises, granted, bequeathed, or limited by such deed, charter, will, or writing, trust, or to such use as aforesaid, shall stand and be seized thereof by their successors for ever respectively, of an absolute and indefeasible estate in fee simple; the statute concerning lands aliened in mortmain or any other statute, or other matter or thing whatsoever to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

"III. And the true intent of this present act further is, that if in any parish wherein the said appropriations, glebe lands, tithes, or other the said premises, are limited by the said donors or devisors to be employed for the maintenance of any such minister of the word of God as aforesaid, there be no parson or vicar endowed, that then it shall be lawful unto and for the ordinary and bishop of that diocese, after that there shall be glebe lands, tithes, or other the said premises amounting to the full third part or more of all the profits of the entire appropriation limited as aforesaid, by their writings under their archiepiscopal or episcopal seals to ordain, constitute, and appoint one sufficient minister of the word of God, to be parson or vicar of the said parish in a perpetual succession to him and his successors for ever, and shall cause him to be admitted, and inducted as parson and rector or vicar thereunto; which said ordination, institution, and appointment, institution, and induction, shall within a reasonable time after be all of them enrolled in his majesty's court of Exchequer, and of the said new ordained parson or vicar; immediately from and after the enrolment whereof, the said parson or vicar so ordained, instituted, and inducted, shall be, and in law shall be accounted, accepted, and taken to be parson or vicar of the said rectory, church, and parish to him and his successors for ever, in a perpetual succession to all intents and purposes; and then and from thenceforth shall have, and by virtue of the said conveyances and limitations and by virtue of this act, shall be and become estated and seized to him and his successors in a perpetual succession, and in all and every the said parsonage or other benefice, appropriate lands, tithes, and premises before conveyed and estated, or otherwise limited as aforesaid, in trust unto the said archbishops or bishops for the maintenance of the said minister, of a good, sure, absolute, and indefeasible estate in fee simple, and rector or vicar of that church and parish.

"IV. And be it likewise further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from time to time hereafter, it shall and may be lawful unto and for every person and persons whatsoever, being of full age, sane memory, and covert baron, and to and for all and every bodies politic and corporate, be seized of any estate of inheritance in possession of and in any benefice, vicarage, and other benefices appropriate within this realm of Ireland, to present a clerk by their writing or writings under their respective seals, to present a lawful clerk for such parsonage, vicarage, or other such benefice appropriate ordinary or metropolitan of the diocese where such parsonage, vicarage, or benefice appropriate is and doth lie; and that upon such presentation, such ordinary or metropolitan shall admit such clerk so presented, and him institute and cause to be inducted into the said church and benefice; all which said presentation, admission, institution, and induction, shall be entered and enrolled in the court of Exchequer, at the charge of the parson so presented, (or of the said clerk who so presented him, if he so please.) And that immediately from and after such presentation and institution so made and enrolled, the said appropriation shall be for ever dissolved, and the said rectory, vicarage, (or other benefice or thing whatsoever it be,) disappropriate, and thenceforth for ever shall be and become presentative by the donors thereof, their heirs, successors, and assigns, in such manner and form as other churches presentative are by other means, when and so often as the same shall become void by any ways or means; by law, statute, custom, or other thing whatsoever to the contrary hereof notwithstanding. Saving to the king's majesty, his heirs, and successors, and to all every other person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, their heirs, and assigns, (other than the said donors and devisors of any such appropriation, be lands, tithes, or other hereditaments formerly ecclesiastical, or of any of them, and their heirs and successors, and other than such person and persons, and bodies politic and corporate, who shall make such presentations as aforesaid to said benefices appropriate, and to their heirs and successors, and other than all every other person and persons, bodies politic and corporate whatsoever, or their heirs and successors, claiming any estate, title, or interest in the remainder or reversion of or in the same, after the estate or estates of such donors, devisors, presentors ended and determined, and other than all and every other person and person seised or claiming to their or any of their uses,) all such estate, right, title, interest, rent, pensions, profits, emoluments, and demands, as they or any of them had therein or thereto at and before the time of such restitution, dedication, institution, gift, grant, devise, conveyance, or presentation made as aforesaid, as if the present act had never been had or made.

"V. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that when any such donation, dedication, limitation, or conveyance shall be made of any rectory, vicarage, or benefice appropriate, or of any glebe lands, tithes, or other hereditaments formerly ecclesiastical, or of any part thereof, or of any of them, unto and for the maintenance of any such minister as aforesaid: that then the parsonage appropriate or other thing so given, restored, dedicated, limited, or conveyed, be the sole and only endowment of such minister in right of the same church, or if it shall be four times in yearly value so much or more as such minister, parson, vicar, or beneficer formerly had, and was endowed of in right of the said church: that then the sole patronage of such benefice shall be and shall appertain to such donor or devisor, his and their heirs and successors only; but if the value be only three times so much, then such donor or devisor, his and their heirs and successors, shall have upon the successive avoidances thereof three presentations only, and the former patron and patrons the fourth presentation; and if but less as much in yearly value, then the said donors or devisors, their heirs and successors, to have only two presentations, and the former patron or patrons one; and if it be but of equal yearly value or near thereabouts, under or over, then the said donors or devisors, their heirs and successors, and the said former patrons to present by turns, whereof the said donors to have the first; and on the other side the like proportion and course to be holden where the former endowments of such beneficer shall exceed the yearly value of the rectories appropriate, tithes, glebe lands, or other hereditaments so given, restored, dedicated, limited, or conveyed; the said proportions and rates of the said endowments, glebes, tithes, and hereditaments, to be made by commission to be granted out of the said court of Exchequer, at the proportionable charge of the said donors or devisors, or of their heirs and of the former patrons; which being executed and returned into the said court of Exchequer, shall be peremptory and final to all parties.

And the value of that restored. Said proportions by commission out of Exchequer. Peremptory when returned.

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. 1. c. 2.
[1R.]

nary, who shall admit,
&c.

Presentation to be entered and enrolled in Exchequer.

The appropriation afterwards
for ever dissolved, and the benefice become presentative by the donors.

Saving the right of the king and others.

When such conveyance is the sole endowment of such minister in right of that church,
or if it be four times in yearly value so much as such minister formerly had, donor shall have sole patronage.

If only three times, he shall have only three presentations,
the former patron the fourth.

If twice as much, two presentations, the former one.

If equal value,
or near, present by turns.
Donor to have
the first.

The like proportion where the former endowments ex-

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. I. c. 2.
[In.]

Where in one parish both parson and vicar endowed, or more, the bishop may consolidate into one benefice (except parsonages annexed to prebends, &c.)

Yet if then full of incumbents, they shall hold respectively till avoidance, then to be consolidated to the survivor.

Where several patrons, presentation to be made according to the valuation by commission as above.

In what manner, where the value equal; where unequal.

Eng. 13 Eliz.
c. 20.

Leases, charges, &c. by spiritual person upon his benefice shall be in force only so long as he is resident, without absence above eighty days in one year.

6 Geo. I. c. 14.
Eng. 14 Eliz.
c. 11, s. 15.
43 Eliz. c. 9,
s. 8.

“VI. And whereas in divers places of this kingdom of Ireland there are within one parish both a parson and a vicar endowed, and in some parishes may be it enacted by authority aforesaid, that in every such case, it shall and lawfully unto and for the bishop of that diocese and metropolitan of that province (within which the said parishes are situate,) by their writing under their episcopal and episcopal seals, at any time or times hereafter, to unite and consolidate all and every the said parsonages and vicarages so being within one parish (other than such parsonages or vicarages as are annexed to any dean, prebend or dignity in any cathedral church,) into one entire parsonage, or rectory, or benefice; yet nevertheless, so that if such parsonages and vicarages or any of them at that time full of incumbents, that every of the said incumbents shall and may hold and retain to their own use, his and their respective parsonages and vicarages, and all the profits thereof, for so long time as they shall live and continue incumbents thereof; and if one or more of such incumbents do die, or otherwise cease, resign, or be deposed or deprived from their said benefices and incumbencies, that then the said parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, so or by any other person growing void, with all the lands, emoluments, and profits thereof, shall remain, accrue, and grow to the survivor and survivors of such the said incumbents, and after such survivors, accruing or coming into one hand, shall thenceforth for ever be and continue one whole and entire rectory, and parsonage or benefice, according to the union and consolidation aforesaid, to such survivor, parson and his successors for ever; and that then and from thenceforth if there be several patrons of the said benefices, then, by like commission as aforesaid, to be sued out of the said court of Exchequer, at the equal charge of the said parson and directed unto two, three, or more sufficient persons, a true and perfect valuation shall be made of each of the said parsonages, vicarages, and benefices, and if the same appear to be of equal value or near the same, and no one of them be full double in value to any one of the rest of them, then the said patrons, whose clerk did first die, shall present to the first avoidance of the said benefice, as the other patron to the second, and so afterwards the said patrons, their heirs, successors, and assigns, shall thenceforth for ever present by turns; and if it fall out that any one or more of the said united benefices prove to be less in yearly value than the fourth part of any other of the said benefices, that then the patronage of such smaller benefices to be extinct, and the sole advowson and advowsons of the said united and newly consolidated rectory or benefice, to be and remain to the other patron and patrons solely; and if it fall out that any one or more of the said benefices, (so as aforesaid united and consolidated in one,) be in yearly value a full fourth part or more of the greatest of them, but under the yearly value of the moiety thereof, then the patron of the said greatest benefice, to have two presentations unto the said entire, united, and consolidated benefice, and the parson and patrons of the said lesser benefices to have one presentation only in the several turns, in manner and form as is above expressed; and that such commission and commissions also so executed and returned as aforesaid, shall be final and peremptory, to all and every the patrons, their heirs, and successors for ever.

“VII. And be it further enacted as aforesaid, that all and every gifts, grants, alienations, leases, forfeitures, charges, and incumbrances, imposed, made, or suffered by any such minister, parson, vicar, or other beneficer of such benefice, or by any parson, vicar, or beneficer of any other benefice, of what nature soever, having cure of souls within this kingdom of Ireland, of or upon his said benefice, or of or upon any part thereof, shall be effectual and stand in force for any time only as such parson, vicar, or other beneficer, shall be resident upon his said benefice, without absence from the same, above eighty days in any one year, and for no longer, further, or other time. And that all covenants, bonds, contracts, recognizances, hereafter to be acknowledged, made, or suffered by any such beneficer, or collaterally, for or on his behalf, for the enjoying of the houses, lands, tithes, and other profits or hereditaments of such benefices, or of any part thereof, shall be void for any longer or other time, than as aforesaid, or whereby such beneficer and enforced or compellable to resign his said benefice, and likewise all covenants, bonds, and other like assurances as aforesaid, hereafter to be made, to the intent to oblige such beneficer to be resident, for the upholding of any grant, lease, alienation, or charge made as aforesaid, and allowed to stand in force during such residence as above is expressed, shall be utterly void in law to all and every intent and purpose whatsoever.

"VIII. Provided always, that if the king's majesty, his heirs, or successors, upon any plantation hereafter to be had and made within this realm, shall endow any parson or vicar, and their successors, with any glebe lands, that in such case the incumbent thereof, for the benefit of the plantation, may by the licence of the lord deputy of this kingdom for the time being, and of the privy council hereafter made, take any leases of such glebe lands, whereof they shall upon such plantation be only endowed, not exceeding twenty-one years from the time of such endowment made, under such rents and other reservations as shall by the lord deputy and council be directed.

"IX. Lastly, the true intent and meaning of this present act is, that all and every the parsons, vicars, and other beneficers, whose estates and livelihoods shall be made, raised, enlarged, or increased, by the ways and means aforesaid, or by any other good means, shall be subject unto, and be charged for the repair of the chancels of such churches, after that the same shall be erected and built."

XV. STAT. 10 & 11 CAROLI 1, c. 3. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1634-5.

"An Act for Preservation of the Inheritance, Rights, and Profits of Lands belonging to the Church and Persons ecclesiastical."

"For the preservation and continuance of all and every the manors, lands, tenements, franchises, liberties, profits, and hereditaments unto the archbishops, bishops, deans, and chapters of the cathedral and collegiate churches, archdeacons, prebendaries, and other dignitaries ecclesiastical, parsons, vicars, and likewise unto the masters or governors, and fellows of colleges, and masters and guardians of hospitals, according to the true intent and meaning of the original foundations thereof, without detriment, spoil, or prejudice; be it enacted by our sovereign lord the king, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that all feoffments, gifts, grants, leases, alienations, conveyances, estates, charges, and incumbrances, at any time or times, from and after the first day of June now last past, made, or done, or to be made, done, committed, or suffered, by any of the said archbishops, bishops, deans and chapters, archdeacons, prebendaries, or other the said dignitaries ecclesiastical, parsons, vicars, masters, and governors, and fellows of colleges, and masters, guardians, or other governors of hospitals, or any of them, of any manors, lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, being any parcel of the possessions of any such archbishop, bishop, dean, dean and chapter, chapter, prebend, dignitary, parson, vicar, college, cathedral or collegiate church, or hospital, or any ways belonging to the same, or to any of them, (other than such leases and grants as hereafter in this present act, or in any other act made or to be made in this present parliament, are or shall be expressed and authorized to be made,) shall be utterly void and of none effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes; any law, custom, or usage, or other thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

"II. Provided always nevertheless, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful unto, and for all and every the said archbishops, bishops, deans, deans and chapters, archdeacons, prebendaries, and other the said dignitaries ecclesiastical, and likewise unto and for the said masters and governors, and fellows of colleges and hospitals, to grant any ancient office, concerning their or any of their land, or other their possessions, or concerning the attendance upon their persons or churches, together with all and every the like pensions, annuities, fees, and other profits as were formerly accustomed to be granted, had, and enjoyed therewith; and also by their writings indented under

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. 1, c. 2.

[1a.]

All obligations,
&c. to enforce
such incumbrances, void.

Incumbents,
for benefit of plantation,
may lease
glebe granted
by the king not exceeding twenty-one years, by licence of and under reservations directed by the deputy
and council.

Parsons, whose livings thus increased, charged for repair
of the chancels.

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. 1, c. 3.
[1a.]

Eng. 1 Eliz.
c. 19.

13 Eliz. c. 10.

18 Eliz. c. 11.

12 Geo. 1,
c. 10.

1 Geo. 2, c. 15.

Conveyances,
leases, charges,
by ecclesiastical persons,
void.

Ecclesiastical
dignitaries, governors of colleges and hospitals, may grant ancient offices with pensions as accustomed;
and by indenture under seal

STAT. 10 & 11
CAR. 1. c. 3.
[1a.]

of office (counterpart whereof entered in the register) may demise for twenty-one years, except dwelling houses and demesnes for forty years past.

Where no lease or estate in being, not to expire in one year; reserving yearly at peril of lessees the moiety of the true value. How to be tried.

So much as relates to the commission and certificate repealed, 11 Geo. 2. c. 15.

No power therein to commit waste.

By licence of the governor and council, leases for necessary building fortresses, &c. may be made longer than twenty-one years.

And in consideration of re-assignment or surrender of fee-farms and long leases, and upon further improvement of the rent, leases for sixty years or under may by licence be made.

14 Eliz. c. 11.

Leases for forty years under like valuable rent may be of houses and curtilages in cities and towns, so as not their dwelling houses &c.

their respective seals of office, (a counterpart whereof shall be entered in the respective register books of the said archbishops, bishops, deans and chapters, and of the said colleges and hospitals, for the benefit of succession,) from time to time to demise any the lands, or other the hereditaments belonging to their respective churches, colleges, and hospitals, (the dwelling houses for the most part of the years, now last past, used for any of their respective habitations, and the demesnes lands thereunto belonging, and therewithal during the said time commonly and occupied as the demesnes of the said houses only accepted,) unto any persons, for and during the term of one and twenty years from the time of the making thereof, whereof or of any part whereof there shall be no other estate then in being, which shall not expire or be ended and determined within the space of one year then next coming, upon which lease and leases shall be reserved and continued due and payable unto the said lessors and their successors, during the said estate and term of one and twenty years, so much yearly rents, profits, or more, at the peril of the lessees, who shall take the same as the moiety of the true value of the said lands, or other hereditaments, (commensurable unto the space of one year then next coming, upon which lease and leases shall be reserved and continued due and payable unto the said lessors and their successors, if they shall question the same, and the said lessees, or their assignees, by verdict of twelve indifferent persons in common law, or otherwise by the certificate of four or more honest, equal, or indifferent persons, authorized by commission under the great seal of this kingdom to inquire and find the same, and the said certificate approved of by the lord deputy and privy council of this kingdom, for the time being, which certificate so respectively made or given, shall be peremptory to both parties, and their respective successors and assignees during the said term; in which lease or leases shall be contained, no power, liberty, or privilege for such lessors or their assignees, to commit waste, or to be punishable of waste.

"III. Provided nevertheless, that it shall and may be lawful unto and for the said archbishops, bishops, deans, chapters, archdeacons, prebendaries, and other the said dignitaries ecclesiastical, and their successors, and unto the said masters of colleges, and fellows of colleges, and hospitals, and to their successors or assigns, by the licence of the lord deputy, or other chief governor or governors of this kingdom, and council of state of this kingdom for the time being, to take leases for a longer term or time than one and twenty years, of any their lands or grounds fit for the necessary building of castles, fortresses, or other houses of strength, in places convenient and requisite, for the good of this realm, and the defence thereof, for such term and time, and in such sort as shall be thought fit by the king's majesty or the lord deputy, or other the said chief governor or governors of this kingdom and council of state for the time being; and likewise whereas there are, and of late times hath been, sundry fee-farms and long leases in being, of divers manors, lands, tenements, and hereditaments formerly belonging to the said archbishops, bishops, deans, chapters, archdeacons, prebendaries, and other the said dignitaries ecclesiastical, parsons, vicars, and likewise unto the said colleges and hospital, that it shall and may be lawful unto and for them, and every of them, for and in consideration of the re-assignment, surrender, and taking in of any such fee-farms, leases, or estates, and upon further improvement of the yearly rents and profits thereof, to be reserved and paid to them and their successors, by and with the licence and approbation of the lord deputy, or other chief governor or governors, and council of state of this kingdom for the time being, to make any lease or leases for the term of sixty years or under of such fee-farm lands, and of such leased lands, for the like term, or for fewer years, if the said leases in being were for fewer years; and likewise that it shall and may be lawful unto and for any the spiritual persons, colleges, and hospitals before mentioned, by their like writings indented, sealed, entered, and enrolled as aforesaid, to make any lease or leases for and during the term of forty years, under the like valuable rent as is afore expressed, of all or any their houses belonging to their churches, colleges, or hospitals, and of the curtilages appertaining to the same, which shall within any city, town corporate, or market town of this kingdom, so as ne be not of any their mansion or dwelling houses, or of any part thereof, any the curtilages, gardens, or orchards belonging thereto.

STAT. 10 & 11
 CAR. 1, c. 3.
 [1a.]

IV. And be it enacted as aforesaid, that all and every the rents and yearly above reserved, or in and by this act limited and appointed to be reserved, the making of all and every the leases above mentioned, immediately from her such lease and leases, reservation and reservations made, shall by virtue of this act continue due and payable unto the said lessors and their successors the said respective leases and terms, and shall by no means be aliened, or discharged to the prejudice of the successors of such lessors or any of

The rents to continue payable during the term, and not be aliened to prejudice of successors.

V. Provided always, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall not in the most reverend father in God, James lord archbishop of Armagh, and metropolitan of all Ireland, but that he may make such leases, and on such terms as are mentioned in his majesty's letters patents to him heretofore made in that behalf; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Not to extend to restrain the primate, who may lease as in his letters
 patent.

XVI. STAT. 15 CAROLI 1, c. 6. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1639.

An Act for strengthening of Letters Patents passed and to be passed, upon any of his Majesty's Commissions of Grace for the remedy of defective Titles, &c."

STAT. 15 CAR.
 1, c. 6. [1a.]

VI. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no act, nor any thing therein contained, shall not any wise bar or prejudice the right or title of any archbishop, bishop, dean, chapter, archdeacon, dignitary, or parson, vicar, or other spiritual or ecclesiastical person, to any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, being the inheritance and possession of their respective churches or benefices."

Saving the right of spiritual persons,
 to inheritance
 and possession of their bene-fices.

XVII. STAT. 15 CAROLI 1, c. 7(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1639.

"An Act concerning Clergy."

STAT. 15 CAR.
 1, c. 7. [1a.]

XVIII. STAT. 15 CAROLI 1, c. 11(2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1639.

"An Act for endowing of Churches with Glebe Lands."

STAT. 15 CAR.
 1, c. 11. [1a.]

Whereas all beneficiaries with cure, especially vicars, are bound to perpetual residence, and yet through the war and confusion of former times in this kingdom ancient glebes in many places are so obscured that they cannot be found out, which means the incumbents are necessitated to perpetual non-residence; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall be lawful for any devout person, without licence of mortmain, to endow churches having no glebes, or not above ten acres of glebe, with new glebe, provided the glebe of any one church so endowed do not exceed forty acres in most, and that the said lands be not holden in capite, or by knight's service."
 And be it further enacted, that any church, having no glebe, or not above ten acres, may, without licence of mortmain, be endowed with new glebe, so as not to exceed forty acres. The lands not held in capite, or by knight's service.

2 Ann. c. 10.
 8 Geo. 1, c. 12.
 1 Geo. 2, c. 15.
 3 Geo. 2, c. 12.
 Ancient glebes
 so obscured
 that incumbents necessitated to perpetual non-residence.
 Churches
 having no

XIX. STAT. 15 CAROLI 1, c. 12(3). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1639.

An Act concerning Twentieth Parts, and other Sums of Money payable by Persons Ecclesiastical."

STAT. 15 CAR.
 1, c. 12. [1a.]

(1) Vide Stat. 5 Geo. 4, c. 25. Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 34. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 58. Stat. 2 & 3
 Geo. 4, c. 67.
 (2) Vide Stat. 8 Geo. 1, c. 12. (1.) Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 40. 2, c. 15. (1.) Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 40.
 (3) Vide Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 37.

STAT. 16 CAR.
1, c. 11.

XX. STAT. 16 CAROLI 1, c. 11 (1). A.D. 1640.

"A Repeal of the Branch of a Statute Primo Elizabethæ, concerning Commissioners for Causes Ecclesiastical."

1 Eliz. c. 1,
s. 18.

"Whereas in the parliament holden in the first year of the reign of the Queen Elizabeth, late queen of England, there was an act made and established intituled, 'An Act restoring to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all foreign Power repugnant to the same;' in which act, amongst other things, there is contained one clause, line, article, or sentence, whereby it was enacted to this effect; namely, that the late queen's highness, her heirs and successors, kings or queens of the said England, should have full power and authority by virtue of that act, by letters patents under the great seal of England, to assign, name, and authorize, when as she or he as her highness, her heirs and successors, should think meet and convenient, for such and so long time as should please her highness, her heirs or successors, such person or persons, being natural-born subjects to her highness, her heirs and successors, as her majesty, her heirs or successors, should think meet and convenient, to exercise, use, occupy, and execute, under her highness, her heirs and successors, in any manner of jurisdictions, privileges, and pre-eminence, in any wise touching or concerning any spiritual or ecclesiastical jurisdiction within those her counties of England and Ireland, or any other her highness' dominions and countries, to visit, reform, redress, order, correct, and amend, all such errors, heresies, abuses, offences, contempts, and enormities whatsoever, which by any manner of spiritual or ecclesiastical power, authority, or jurisdiction, can or may lawfully be reformed, ordered, redressed, corrected, restrained, or amended, to the praise and glory of Almighty God, the increase of virtue, and the conservation of the peace and tranquillity of this realm: and that such person or persons so to be named, assigned, authorized, and appointed, by her highness, her heirs or successors, after the manner of letters patents to him or them made and delivered as aforesaid, should have full power and authority, by virtue of that act, and of the said letters patents, under her highness, her heirs or successors, to exercise, use, and execute, all the powers and authorities according to the tenour and effect of the said letters patents; any matter or thing to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

High Commission court.

"II. And whereas by colour of some words in the aforesaid branch of the said act, whereby commissioners are authorized to execute their commissions according to the tenour and effect of the king's letters patents, and by the said patents grounded thereupon, the said commissioners have, to the great and grievous wrong and oppression of the king's subjects, used to fine and imprison them, and to exercise other authority not belonging to ecclesiastical jurisdiction, restored by that act, and divers other great mischiefs and inconveniences have ensued to the king's subjects, by occasion of the said branch and commissions issued thereupon, and the executions thereof; therefore, for the preventing and remedying of the aforesaid abuses, mischiefs, and inconveniences in time to come,

The said branch of Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1, repealed.

"III. Be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, and the lords and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the aforesaid branch, clause, article, or sentence, contained in the said act, in every word, matter, and thing, contained in that branch, clause, article, or sentence, shall from henceforth be repealed, annulled, revoked, annulled, and utterly made void for ever; any thing in the said act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Powers taken away from archbishops, bishops, and other ecclesiastical persons and courts.

"IV. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no archbishop, nor vicar-general, nor any chancellor, official, nor commissary of any archbishop, bishop, or vicar-general, nor any ordinary whatsoever, nor any spiritual or ecclesiastical judge, officer, or minister of justice, nor any other person or persons whatsoever, exercising spiritual or ecclesiastical power, authority, or jurisdiction, by any grant, licence, or commission of the king's majesty, his

(1) Repealed by Stat. 13 Car. 2, St. 1. c. 12, s. 2, except what concerns the High Commission court; vide ante 357.

by any power or authority derived from the king, his heirs, or otherwise, shall, from and after the first day of August, which year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred forty and one, or inflict any pain, penalty, fine, amercement, imprisonment, or punishment upon any of the king's subjects, for any contempt, offence, matter, or thing whatsoever, belonging to spiritual or temporal jurisdiction, or shall, ex officio, or at the instance or request of any other person whatsoever, urge, enforce, tender, give, or minister aid, aid, or other person whatsoever, any corporal punishment, or he or she shall or may be charged or obliged to make any pre-

S. AT. 16 CAR.
1. c. 11.

— Oaths are as old as in the Book of Genesis, chapter of Numbers, oaths of instances; and the names not altered by Christianity made more solemn of rewards and punishment declared.

the 14th chapter of St. to Herod, and the daughter extraordinary; Herod not from murder, and yet of such a sacred nature, as to commit murder than to his Golden Verses, and parts of his works, speak of highest reverence. Grotius Belli et Pacis, lib. 2, c. 10, s. 1, states, "Apud ab omni. Ego circa pollicetur contractus maxima semrandi."

religious sanction that manfully established; and all in an oath is an appeal to God, as thinking Him the author and avenger of falsehood: the duty of religion to the supposition in nothing appears more in this, that the obligation is so necessary for peace and justice among men upon the sense and belie of a religion, it will be the foundation of all belief of a God, though it is a distinct idea of an infinite being, as God is; yet we have a relative idea of the dependent creatures upon the of all the civilized nations, the foundation of all civil law, viniculum ad adstringendum majores arctius Lib. 3, M. T. C. de Offic.

on Christian morality as to admit the oath to the sense of Grotius: "sed deos juraverit, obligabitur sub falsis notis, generalione, nomen intuetur: fas, si pejeratum sit, in actum interpretatur." Lib.

of old, considered the heathens capable of an oath. The instance of Isaac and Abimelech swearing to one another, (Gen. xxi. 31,) and in Gen. xxi. 51-53, Jacob swears by the fear of his father Isaac, and accepted of Laban's oath without hesitation, though he swore by false gods.

It is laid down by all writers, that the outward act is not essential to the oath: thus, Dr. Tillotson, (1 Tillot. Sermon, 144,) states, "As for the ceremonies in use among us in the taking of oaths, it is no just exception against them, that they are not found in Scripture, for this was always matter of liberty, and several nations have used several rites and ceremonies in their oaths."

In fact, there was a time when swearing on the holy Evangelists was not the practice in England; for when St. Austin introduced the Christian religion, the inhabitants were tenacious of their own customs, and therefore he indulged them, and a considerable period of time elapsed before witnesses were sworn on the holy Evangelists.

In Dutton v. Colt, (1 Sid. 6, App.) Doctor Owen, vice-chancellor of Oxford, being a witness for the plaintiff, refused to be sworn in the usual manner, by laying his right hand upon the book, and by kissing it afterwards; "but he caused the book to be held open before him, and he lifted up his right hand: the jury, upon this, prayed the opinion of the court, if they ought to think this testimony as strong as the testimony of another witness, and Glin, (Chief Justice,) told them, that in his judgment, he had taken as strong an oath as any other witness, but said, if he was to be sworn himself, he would lay his right hand upon the book."

Christians were sworn sometimes without laying their hands upon the Gospel, by lifting up their hands to heaven: Jews were sworn first with rites and ceremonies, afterwards without any. It is plain, that by the policy of all countries, oaths are to be administered to all persons according to their own opinion, and as it most affects their conscience, and laying the hand was originally borrowed from the pagans.

The form of oaths varies in countries according to different laws and constitutions, but the substance is the same in all. Thus Grotius: (1 Grot. de Jure Belli et Pacis, lib. 2, c. 13, s. 10:) "Forma jurisjurandi verbis differt, re convenit: hunc enim sensum habere debet, ut Deus invocetur, puta hoc modo, Deus testis sit, aut Deus sit vindex." In our old law books, "Sic Deus adjuvet," and other expressions of the like nature, and now "So help me God." Vide etiam Matt

STAT. 16 CAR.
I, c. 11.

Penalty, treble damages, and one hundred pounds.

sentment of any crime, or offence, or to confess or to accuse himself (1) or any crime, offence, delinquency, or misdemeanor, or any neglect, matter, whereby or by reason whereof he or she shall or may be liable or exposed to censure, pain, penalty (2), or punishment whatsoever; upon pain and penxxiii. 20-22. Stephens on Nisi Prius, tit. EVIDENCE, 1719-1721.

(1) To confess or to accuse himself:—It is said, that by the common law there were but two sorts of causes, in which the spiritual judge might compel a layman to accuse himself, viz. matrimonial and testamentary; to support which, the two following writs in the ancient Register are relied upon:

"Rex Vic.' salutem. Præcipimus tibi quod non permittas quod aliqui laici ad citationem talis episcopi, aliquo loco convenient de cætero ad aliquas recognitiones fac', vel sacramentum præstand', nisi in casibus matrimonialibus et testamentariis. T. &c." Reg. Br. f. 36(b).

"Rex Vic.' salutem. Pone per vadium, &c., talem episcopum, quod sit coram iusticiariis nostris, &c. ostensurus quare fecit summoneri, et per censuras ecclesiasticas distringi, laicas personas, vel laicos homines et fœminas, ad comparandum coram eo, ad præstandum juramentum pro voluntate suâ, ipsis invitis, in grave præjudicium coronæ et dignitatis nostræ regie, necnon contra consuetudinem regni nostri. Et habeas ibi nomina pleg. &c. T. &c."

The reason given by my Lord Coke, (2 Inst. 657; 12 Co. 26, tit. Oath, ex officio.) why the ecclesiastical judge was allowed to examine the parties upon oath, in these two cases, is, that contracts of matrimony, and the estates of the dead, are many times secret, and do not concern the shame and infamy of the party, as adultery, incontinency, usury, simony, hearing of mass, heresy, &c. And therefore, long before the making of this statute, when the High Commission, and other ecclesiastical courts, required the oath of the party in these and the like cases, they were prohibited by the temporal courts. Dryden's case, Moore (Sir P.), 840. Collier v. Collier, Ibid. 906. Hunt's (Dr.) case, Cro. Eliz. 262.

But when my Lord Coke, (2 Inst. 657, 658,) supposes this oath to be the same with what is called juramentum calumniæ, and, on that supposition, reasons against the constitution of Otho upon that account; his lordship confounds two things which are widely different; as will be evident by comparing that constitution with this statute.

(2) Any censure, pain, penalty:—In other cases, where the course of the ecclesiastical courts had been, to receive answers upon oath, they might still receive them. And, therefore, in Herne v. Brown, (1 Vent. 339,) where the suit was for payment of the proportion assessed towards the repair of the church, and the defendant offering to give in his answer, but not upon oath, prayed a prohibition, because it was refused; the court, after hearing divers arguments, denied the prohibition: for they said, "it was no more than the Chancery did, to make defendants answer upon oath in such like cases." And, some years before Goulson v. Wainwright, (1 Sid. 384,) was held by the court, "that if ex officio, are exhibited in the spiritual court for matters which are criminal, and is required to answer upon oath, and plead, 'Quod non tenetur respondere,' if they will proceed notwithstanding, they have prohibition; but if it be a civil case, he cannot do so; for then he must answer."

Under this head may be added several rules in the spiritual and temporal courts with regard to the number of witnesses. In the spiritual court, no proof but by two witnesses; in the temporal court, one witness, in civil cases, is judged sufficient. If the point to be proved be merely spiritual, the spiritual court requires two witnesses; if they will not be disturbed by proof by one witness, they will not be disturbed by proof by one witness.

In Roberts's case, (1 Cro. Jac. 265,) the suit was for subtraction of tithes, and prohibition was obtained, because there was but one witness to prove the fact, and the spiritual court would not receive the proof. "But upon answer, by Coke and all the justices resolved, that consultation should be had; because there is a rule in the spiritual court, that where cognitio principalis is necessary, nitio accessoria necessarily follows. The Book of 1 Edw. 4. Secus surmise should be allowed to be made for the spiritual court should not be stayed, as well as the principal conclusion is, "When the original suit belongs unto them, although the common law ariseth, dependent on the original cause, yet it shall be decided by the ecclesiastical court, and not by the common law, that he hath but one witness, is to have a prohibition, where the spiritual court hath jurisdiction of the cause, for if such a surmise should be allowed, suits in the ecclesiastical court might be stayed, or otherwise taken out of the plaintiff in the spiritual court, to have answer thereto."

But the more modern reports have introduced a different principle; thus in son v. Disbrow, (1 Vent. 291,) prohibition was prayed, because the court refused the proof of juramentum by one witness; it was granted. Hale said, "Where the matter is civil, which falls in incidentally in a criminal case, they (in the spiritual court) ought not to deny such proof, if the law allows."

In Shotter v. Friend, (3 Mod. Salk. 547,) prohibition was granted, because the spiritual court would not allow the proof of the payment of tithes by one witness. Upon which occasion shall offend contrary to this statute, shall forfeit and pay treble Stat. 16 Car.

 y person thereby grieved, and the sum of one hundred pounds to 1, c. 11.

court, "Such proof, which common law, ought to be court; and at the common necessary to prove the pay- two witnesses. They may rules, concerning things ly in their cognizance; but matter doth arise, as con- on of a will, or payment of of be by one witness, they ? And it was also resolved, fastical court proceed in a tital, and if they proceed in , though that be different law, no prohibition will be probate of wills, if they t, no prohibition will be entworth, (Yelv. 92,) pro- stated where the spiritual allow the proof of a revo- by one witness; and that dingly alleged for the pro- v. Disborow, (1 Vent. same time, these circum- ve deserved to be men- the very next year before ant made to the king and ch prohibition for refusing tawer of all the judges was, 6 upon payment or setting upon the proof of a legacy, uch like incidence, we are trial of their law, though but one witness. ii. That fourth, (Yelv. 92,) two of law and Williams, argued ulation ought to go, be- hich was the principal, did ag to the spiritual court, as merely dependent upon to it. iii. That the others, prohibition, held, that the t dependent on the will; dependencies which affirm hose that disannul and dis- evocation doth: though it eld grounded his opinion mial of such proof as the vs. Gibson's Codex, 1012. ave borrowed their rule of g the number of their wit- ave most of their rules of e civil law, which does not ness to be heard. "Unius on audiat etiamsi præ- re præfulgeat." Cod. 4. 9, 12. A cause, therefore, testimony of a single wit- ed by any other evidence, ed without tendering the "Non jus deficit sed pro- Dig. 22. 5. But a com- be adduced without any or instruments; and the tness corroborated by cir- cumstances without a wit- clusive proof in crimes actions. Vide Huber ad

Dig. de Testibus. Matheus de Criminibus, cap. De Probationibus. Dig. 50, 3, 4, 5. De probationibus, presumptionibus, et testibus. Cod. 4. 19, 20.

The general rule of evidence appears to be common to the civil law and to the law of England; thus Gaill states, "The law is contented with such proof as can be made, if the subject in its nature be difficult of proof;" (lib. 2, obs. 91, 149;) ("probationum facultas non angustiori sed ampliori debet.") This principle coincides with the common law; thus in Onychund v. Barker, (1 Atk. 49,) Lord Hardwicke observed, "The judges and sages of the law have laid it down, that there is but one general rule of evidence, the best that the nature of the case will admit." Mr. Burke, in his report of the Committee on the Question of Evidence in Warren Hastings' trial, (14 Debates on Evidence, 8vo. 335; Rep. from Com. to inspect Lords' Journals,) remarks, "Courts, (i. e. of common law,) in England do not judge upon evidence secundum allegata et probata, as in other countries, and under other laws, (viz. of the ecclesiastical courts,) they do, but upon verdict. By a fiction of law, they consider the jury as supplying in some sense the place of testimony. One witness (and for that reason) is allowed sufficient to convict in cases of felony, which in other laws is not permitted.

The maxim of the older civilians is, "In re criminali probationes debent esse evidentes et luce meridiana clariores."

In Theakston v. Marson, (4 Hagg. 313,) Sir John Nicholl observed: "But, at all events, that proof appears to stand on the single testimony of Mr. Pochin; and the court cannot wholly pass over without notice the point of law,—whether the evidence of one witness, unsupported by any circumstances, makes legal proof of a testamentary act. The recognition of the sufficiency of such evidence seems to be big with all the dangers against which the Statute of Frauds, (29 Car. 2, c. 3, s. 19,) was intended to guard.

"By the general law of these courts, one witness does not make full proof; not that two witnesses are required to each particular fact, nor to every part of a transaction, for it often happens, that to the contents of a will, or to instructions, there is only one witness,—the confidential solicitor, or other drawer: but there are, and must be, ad-mi-nicular circumstances to the transaction, such as the expressed wishes of the testator to make his will, the sending for the drawer of it, his being left alone with the deceased for that known purpose, some previous de-clarations or subsequent recognitions, some extrinsic circumstances, in short, showing that a testamentary act was in progress, and tending to corroborate the act itself: but, in this case, there is nothing except Pochin's own account of the occurrences of this quar-ter of an hour, not acknowledged by the deceased, nor even declared, while the de-ceased was yet alive, by Pochin himself, nor

STAT. 16 CAR.
1, c. 11.

him or them who shall first demand and sue for the same; which said damages and sum of one hundred pounds, shall and may be demanded and confirmed by his conduct. I am strongly inclined to think, that these courts have never held that such evidence of such an act, by a single witness, is alone sufficient to sustain it; and I should be unwilling to make such a precedent." Vide etiam, In re Keeton, 4 Hagg. 209. Kenrick v. Kenrick, Ibid. 130, 136. Crompton v. Butler, 1 Consist. 460. Donnellan v. Donnellan, 2 Hagg. 145, App.

In Hunt v. Sarell, (1 Lee, 591.) it was considered that one witness was sufficient to prove identity, it being a collateral question; and that one witness was competent to prove a release.

The rule of requiring a certain number of witnesses to make full proof, was productive of serious inconvenience, and was one of the causes which occasioned the enactment of Stat. 27 Hen. 8, c. 4, for changing the criminal jurisdiction of the court of Admiralty. Such rule has been relaxed in other countries; but, in one instance, very absurdly, thus: "Regulariter tamen in criminibus causis duo testes plenam faciunt probationem; nec unus testis sufficit; quod fallit, quando de crimine levi et modico agitur prajudicio, atque cum unico teste presumptiones concurrent. Sed si unus testis plenam probationem non faciat, sufficit tamen ad semiplenam probationem; et ut reo, vel juramentum purgationis, vel tortura adjudicari queat, pro ratione criminum, et qualitate presumptionum concurrentium." Carpzovius, Prac. Crim. Sax. pt. 3, Q. 114, s. 4. Respecting crimes, in genere, distinguished from specific crimes, an exception as to several witnesses, to several acts, was admitted. "Secundò, quando agitur de probando delicto in genere, quod sub se comprehendit species differentes, et actus particulares, seu successivos,—qualia sunt hæresis, sortilogium, seu maleficium, adulterium et similia. Quo casu testimonium testium singularium, quorum unus de hoc, alius de alio, tertius de illo indicio deponit, conjungenda sunt, ad effectum torquendi reum super delicto, de quo suspectus est." Ibid. Q. 123, s. 53, 54.

Where the law of England is silent, the civil as well as the canon law, is the basis and text law of our ecclesiastical courts. Vide Moore v. Paine, 2 Lee, 595; Moore v. Moore, 1 Phill. 434. Constant reference to that code will be found in the judgments of Lord Stowell. And in Moore v. Moore, (1 Phill. 434,) argued before the delegates, the question whether the mutilation of a will should be held to amount to a cancellation, seems to have been mainly decided by a reference to the doctrine of the civil law upon the subject.

The advocates and proctors of the court of Arches are entitled to practise in the other ecclesiastical courts, and in the High Court of Admiralty, upon being admitted by the judge thereof. This connexion between the ecclesiastical and admiralty jurisdictions has long subsisted, and probably owes its origin to the similarity of the form of process in both courts, and of the oath necessary to qualify the proctor for the proper discharge of the duties of his office. The study of the ius commune requires an accurate acquaintance with principles of the civil law, upon which law of the admiralty is founded; and a civilian is led to the investigation of principles of general jurisprudence, and the intercourse of nations, and the rights and obligations of belligerent neutrals in time of war are denied.

In the case of the Ville de Paris, Dods. 185,) in the court of Admiralty, where an objection was taken to the competency of Lord Cochrane to examine a witness, Sir William Scott remarks, "An objection must be considered in the light of the law of England. To say it is true, arises in a cause, tried in a court, which are both governed by another system, but it arises in a case, that concerns British interests, on a more dispute of property between two nations, and, if determined in one manner, affecting the civil condition and interests of one of them; upon all these cases, it is the duty of the court to administer the law of England as its proper gear, and it does not administer that law, but it therefore does not profess to administer otherwise than by the information pro re nata, and with the difference naturally belongs to partial view, and a perfect knowledge of the general case."

And it may be here observed, that the use of evidence in ecclesiastical courts, may be imported into courts of common law. Wright v. Latham, 5 C. & P. 676. (1 N. C. 489. Leake v. Westmoreland, 2 M. & Rob. 394.

It may not perhaps be considered expedient, while considering a practical application of evidence, to explain, in the language of a learned friend, Professor J. T. Encyclopædia Metropolitana, article on the manner of citing the different parts of the Corpus Juris Canonici, which is generally considered to be very complicated and mathematical.

"The Decretum is divided into two parts. The first contains 101 questions, distinctions, and treats of the rights of different kinds of law, and particularly the sources of ecclesiastical law, of prebends in holy orders, and the hierarchy. The second treats of thirty-six particular questions, out of which questions arise (distinctions) arise. The solutions of these questions is given in the extracts. The third book, of the second part, contains a special treatise concerning penance, and is subdivided into two parts, namely, Consecrations, and contains canons relating to the consecration of churches, the sacraments, and the celebration of divine offices. It is divided into five distinctions."

by action of debt, bill, or plaint, in any court of record, wherein no privilege, protection, or wager of law, shall be admitted or allowed to the defendant. And be it further enacted, that every person who shall be once convicted of any act or offence prohibited by this statute, shall, for such act or offence,

STAT. 16 CAR.
1, c. 11.

Offenders convicted, disabled from any office

remarkable that the Dicta Gratiani are entering in the third part. Each separate is marked by the letter C., which for chapter, (caput, capitulum,) not, is ordinarily read, for canon. In the manuscripts and editions of the Decretum, the larger divisions are numbered, not so the chapters; hence the latter are necessarily cited by initial words. The part was thus anciently cited: 1. d. lex, being the chapter beginning with the lex, in the first distinction. This is numbered c. 3, and the fuller modern of citing would be, 1 dist. c. 3, lex. The second part is thus cited: 3, qu. 9, c. 2, or more fully, 3, qu. 9, c. 2, caveat; being, cause the third, question the ninth, or chapter the second. The thirty-third cause and third question is cited in a like manner, thus: De poenit. d. 2, r. 1. The same passage might be otherwise referred to, thus: 3. i. qu. 3, dist. 2, c. 3. The third part is cited like the first, with addition of the words De consecratione, thus: De consec. d. 2, quia corpus. This is the thirty-fifth chapter or canon, and begins with the words Quia corpus,) the second distinction of the treatise De consecratione, which is the third part of the Decretum Gratiani. As the Decretum long alone, it is understood to be cited there is no distinctive mark to denote reference to other portions of the Corpus Canonici. It is upon the same principle that distinctions of the first part of Decretum are denoted simply by the d., while to the distinctions in the second and third parts are respectively prefixed the specific symbols De poenit. and De consec. We have seen that there is no mark to denote causa, [Causa, modernus, is often denoted by a capital C., the small c. being still reserved to the caput,] and that a mere number followed by qu. was considered a sufficient reference to a causa of the second part of the Decretum. Such is the explanation of a perplexed technical system of citation, which is designed to puzzle the uninitiated.

The Decretals, we have seen, consist of three parts: Gregory's, the Sext, and the Clementines. Gregory's Decretals, (which are sometimes exclusively designated when Decretals simply are spoken of,) are divided (like the collection of Bernardus Comensis, which they superseded,) into five books, the contents of which are denoted by the following titles.

Judex, Judicium, Clerus, Sponsalia, Crimen.

Each book is divided into titles with rubrics, the titles are subdivided into chapters with descriptions. The Decretals of Gregory, having been the first collection that appeared beyond the Decretum, were originally denominated Extravagantes, and they are still denoted in citation by the word Extravagantes, or the letter X., though the name of Extravagantes has been transferred to later compilations. Gregory's Decretals are usually cited by the chapter and title, without any reference to the number of the books. The varieties in the modes of citation are similar to those which we have explained in treating of the references to the Pandects. Thus, c. Cum contingat, X. De offic. et pot. jud. del., is the thirty-sixth chapter, beginning with Cum contingat, of the title in Gregory's Decretals, which is inscribed De officio et potestate judicis delegati; and which, by consulting the index, we find to be the twenty-ninth title of the first book.

The canonists seem to have been fond of the number five. The Sext, or sixth book of the Decretals, is itself divided into five books of the second order. The Clementines also consist of five books, the fourth book consisting of only three or four lines. The subdivisions of the Sext and Clementines resemble those of the Decretals of Gregory. The mode of citation, too, is similar, and admits of similar varieties: only, instead of Extrav. or X., there is subjoined, in Sexto, or in 6, in references to the Sext, and Clem. or in Clem., in references to the Clementines. Thus c. Si gratiose, 5, De rescriptis, in 6, is the fifth chapter, beginning with Si gratiose of the title De rescriptis in the Liber Sextus Decretalium,—the title with that rubric being the third of the first book. Again, Clem. 1, De sent. et R. J., or Ut calumniis, 1, De sent. et R. J. in Clem., is the first chapter of the Clementine Constitutions, under the title De sententiâ et re judicata,—which chapter begins with Ut calumniis, and belongs to the eleventh title of the second book.

The Extravagantes of John the Twenty-second, are contained in one book, divided into fourteen titles. They are cited thus: Extravag. ad conditorem, Joh. 22 de V. S. This means the chapter beginning with Ad conditorem of the Extravagantes of John the Twenty-second, title De verborum significatione,—which is found to be the fourteenth title.

The Extravagantes Communes, in imitation of Gregory's Decretals, are divided into five books, though the fourth book is a blank! "Quartus Liber vacat!" The mode of citation may be thus exemplified: Extravag. Commun. c. Salvator de præbendis. This means the chapter beginning with Salvator, in the title De præbendis, among the Extravagantes Communes. There is no constancy in the position of the references to the larger or smaller divisions. Sometimes the rubric of the title precedes, sometimes follows, the initial words of the chapter. We have given, with some additions and explanations, the examples of citation which are contained in a note to the first chapter of Halifax's Analysis of the Civil Law, b. i."

STAT. 16 CAR.
1, c. 11.

or employment
by the king's letters patents.

No new court
to be erected with the like
power.

be, from and after such conviction, utterly disabled to be or continue in any ~~the~~ or employment in any court of justice whatsoever, or to exercise or exercise ~~in~~ power, authority, or jurisdiction by force of any commission or letters patents of the king, his heirs or successors.

"V. And be it further enacted, that from and after the said first day of August, no new court shall be erected, ordained, or appointed, within this realm of England, or dominion of Wales, which shall or may have the like power, jurisdiction or authority (1), as the said High Commission court now hath, or pretendeth to have; but that all and every such letters patents, commissions, and grants, made or to be made by his majesty, his heirs or successors, and all powers and authorities granted, or pretended or mentioned to be granted thereby, and all sentences, and decrees to be made by virtue or colour thereof, shall be utterly void and of none effect."

STAT. 16 CAR.
1, c. 27.

XXI. STAT. 16 CAROLI 1, c. 27 (2). A.D. 1640.

"An Act for disabling all Persons in Holy Orders to exercise any temporal Jurisdiction or Authority."

(1) Like power, jurisdiction, or authority:—They who contended for the legality of the Ecclesiastical Commission, granted by King James 2, endeavoured to restrain the words, like power, &c. to a power of fining and imprisoning; and thus to leave the crown at liberty, notwithstanding this repeal, to constitute a commission to proceed by ecclesiastical censures; although, in the same preamble, after fining and imprisoning, divers other great mischiefs and inconveniences are complained of. If the legislature had intended to take away only these two abuses, it would probably have been enacted, in express terms, with "like power, jurisdiction, or authority to fine and imprison," independent of which, the repeal affected the whole branch, clause, &c. in Stat. 16 c. 1, (antè 357,) by which the power of erecting such commission was given. That very commission granted by King James 2, as well as all other commissions of like nature, are now declared null and void by Stat. 13 & 14 c. 2, to be illegal and void. Vide 1 Stephens on Corporations 2nd ed. 7-14.

(2) Repealed by Stat. 13 Car. 1, c. 2.

STATUTA CAROLI II.

A.D. 1649—1685.

	Page		Page
I. Stat. 12 Car. 2, c. 11	561	XXX. Stat. 17 & 18 Car. 2,
II. c. 14	561	c. 2 [Ir.]	583
III. c. 17	562	XXXI. c. 3 [Ir.]	583
IV. c. 30	562	XXXII. c. 6 [Ir.]	583
V. c. 31	563	XXXIII. c. 7 [Ir.]	590
VI. c. 33	563	XXXIV. c. 10 [Ir.]	590
VII. Stat. 13 Car. 2, c. 1	563	XXXV. c. 13 [Ir.]	591
VIII. c. 2	563	XXXVI. c. 14 [Ir.]	591
IX. c. 9	564	XXXVII. Stat. 18 Car. 2, c. 4	591
X. c. 11	564	XXXVIII. Stat. 19 Car. 2, c. 3	591
XI. c. 12	564	XXXIX. Stat. 22 Car. 2, c. 1	591
XII. St. II, c. 1	568	XL. c. 6	592
XIII. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 1	569	XLI. c. 11	592
XIV. c. 4	569	XLII. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 3	599
XV. c. 25	579	XLIII. c. 10	599
XVI. c. 33	579	XLIV. c. 15	607
XVII. Stat. 14 & 15 Car. 2, Sess. 4,		XLV. c. 20	607
c. 1 [Ir.]	579	XLVI. Stat. 25 Car. 2, c. 2	607
XVIII. c. 2 [Ir.]	580	XLVII. c. 5	611
XIX. c. 10 [Ir.]	580	XLVIII. Stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 3	611
XX. c. 23 [Ir.]	580	XLIX. c. 7	614
XXI. c. 24 [Ir.]	582	L. c. 8	619
XXII. Stat. 15 Car. 2, c. 5	582	LI. c. 9	623
XXIII. c. 6	582	LII. Stat. 29 & 30 Car. 2, c. 1	623
XXIV. c. 17	582	LIII. Stat. 30 Car. 2, c. 3	624
XXV. Stat. 16 Car. 2, c. 4	582	LIV. c. 6	624
XXVI. Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2, c. 1	582	LV. c. 7	624
XXVII. Stat. 17 Car. 2, c. 2	582	LVI. St. II.	624
XXVIII. c. 3	582	LVII. Stat. 32 Car. 2, c. 1	624
XXIX. c. 8	582

I. STAT. 12 CAROLI 2, c. 11. A.D. 1660.

STAT. 12 CAR.
2, c. 11."An Act of Free and General Pardon, Indemnity, and Oblivion."

[Intruders into lands for the repairs of cathedrals: and those who have converted the goods of the church to their own use:—excepted from pardon.]

II. STAT. 12 CAROLI 2, c. 14. A.D. 1660.

STAT. 12 CAR.
2, c. 14.An Act for a perpetual anniversary Thanksgiving on the Nine-and-twentieth Day of May."

"Forasmuch as Almighty God, the King of kings, and sole Disposer of all worldly crowns and kingdoms, hath by His all-swaying providence and power miraculously demonstrated in the view of all the world His transcendent mercy, and graciousness towards his most excellent majesty Charles the Second, by special grace, of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, king, defender of true faith, and all his majesty's loyal subjects of this his kingdom of England, the dominions thereunto annexed, by his majesty's late most wonderful, glorious, peaceable, and joyful restoration to the actual possession and exercise of undoubted hereditary sovereign and regal authority over them, (after sundry forced extermination into foreign parts, by the most traitorous conspiracies armed power of usurping tyrants and execrable perfidious traitors,) and that without the least opposition or effusion of blood, through the unanimous, cordial, and votes of the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and the united desires of all other his majesty's subjects; which inexpressible blessing (God's own most wonderful dispensation) was completed on the twenty-ninth of May last passed, being the most memorable birth-day, not only of his majesty, both as a man and prince, but likewise as an actual king, and of this and

STAT. 12 CAR.
2, c. 14.

other his majesty's kingdoms, all in a great measure new-born and raised from the dead on this most joyful day, wherein many thousands of the nobility, peers, citizens, and other his lieges of this realm, conducted his majesty unto the cities of London and Westminster, with all possible expressions of their public and loyal affections, in far greater triumph than any of his most victorious predecessors, kings of England, returned thither from their foreign conquests; and his majesty's houses of parliament, with all dutiful and joyful demonstrations of their allegiance, publicly received and cordially congratulated his majesty on his happy arrival, and investiture in his royal throne, at his palace at Whitehall; upon all which considerations, this being the day which the Lord himself had made and crowned with so many public blessings and signal deliverances, to his majesty and his people, from all their late most deplorable confusions, wars, devastations, and oppressions: to the end that it may be kept in perpetual remembrance in all ages to come, and that his sacred majesty, with all his subjects of this realm, and the dominions thereof, and their posterities after them, may annually celebrate the perpetual memory thereof, by sacrificing their uttermost hearty public thanks thereon to Almighty God, with one heart and voice, in the most devout and Christian manner, for all these public benefits received and conferred on them upon this most joyful day; be it therefore enacted by the said most excellent majesty, the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular ministers of the word and sacraments, in every church, chapel, and other usual place of divine service and public prayer, which now are or hereafter shall be within this realm of England, and the respective dominions thereof, and their successors, shall in succeeding ages annually celebrate the twenty-ninth day of May, by reading their hearty public praises and thanksgivings (1) unto Almighty God for the forementioned extraordinary mercies, blessings, and deliverances received, and mighty acts done thereon, and declare the same to all the people there assembled, and the generations yet to come, that so they may for ever praise the Lord for the same, whose name alone is excellent, and His glory above the earth and heaven; and be it further enacted, that all and every person and persons inhabiting within this kingdom, and the dominions thereunto belonging, shall upon the said day annually resort with diligence and devotion to some usual church, chapel, or place, where such public thanksgivings and praises to God's most divine majesty shall be rendered, and there orderly and devoutly abide during the said public thanksgivings, prayers, preaching, singing of psalms, and other service of God, to be used and ministered.

All persons to resort to some church, chapel, or public place of thanksgiving on the said day.

Notice to be given the next Lord's day before.

"II. And to the end that all persons may be put in mind of their duty thereon, and be the better prepared to discharge the same with that piety and devotion becomes them: be it further enacted, that every minister shall give notice to his parishioners publicly in the church at morning prayer the Lord's day next before every such twenty-ninth day of May, for the due observation of the said day, and shall then likewise publicly and distinctly read this present act to the people."

STAT. 12 CAR.
2, c. 17.

III. STAT. 12 CAROLI 2, c. 17 (2). A.D. 1660.

"An Act for the confirming and restoring of Ministers."

STAT. 12 CAR.
2, c. 30.

IV. STAT. 12 CAROLI 2, c. 30. A.D. 1660.

"An Act for the Attainder of several Persons guilty of the horrid Murder of his late Sacred Majesty King Charles the First."

"And be it enacted, . . . that every thirtieth day of January, unless it fall out to be upon the Lord's day, and then the day next following, shall be kept as a day of mourning."

(1) Praises and thanksgivings:—The celebration enjoined by this statute, (as also that on the 5th of November,) seems to have been left at first to the discretion of every minister; until the convocation, April 26th, 1662, had finished a form for that purpose: "Forma precum pro 29 Maii introduct' et publicè perfect' et unanimi consensu approbat' which form had been under consideration from May 16, 1661, when the subject of it was referred to four members of the House of Lords, and eight members of the House of Commons.

(2) Expired.

after set apart, to be kept and observed, in all the churches and chapels STAT. 12 CAR.
 anniversary day of fasting and humiliation, to implore the mercy of God (1), 2, c. 30.
 neither the guilt of that sacred and innocent blood [of his late majesty King Charles I.], nor those other sins by which God was provoked to deliver up both us our king into the hands of cruel and unreasonable men, may at any time here-be visited upon us or our posterity."

V. STAT. 12 CAROLI 2, c. 31 (2). A.D. 1660. STAT. 12 CAR.
 "Looses and Grants from Colleges and Hospitals confirmed." 2, c. 31.

VI. STAT. 12 CAROLI 2, c. 33 (3). A.D. 1660. STAT. 12 CAR.
 "An Act for Confirmation of Marriages." 2, c. 33.

VII. STAT. 13 CAROLI 2, c. 1 (4). A.D. 1661. STAT. 13 CAR.
 Act for Safety and Preservation of His Majesty's Person and Government 2, c. 1. against treasonable and seditious Practices and Attempts."

If persons attempted to alter the ecclesiastical government they incurred the penalty of a premunire; or if they affirmed that the king was a papist (5), or he designed to introduce popery, they were disabled from holding any place, ecclesiastical, civil, or military.]

VIII. STAT. 13 CAROLI 2, c. 2. A.D. 1661. STAT. 13 CAR.
 Act for Repeal of an Act of Parliament, intituled, 'An Act for disabling 2, c. 2.
 all Persons in Holy Orders to exercise any Temporal Jurisdiction or Authority.'"

"Whereas at the parliament begun at Westminster, the third day of November, 16 Car. 1, the sixteenth year of the reign of our late sovereign lord King Charles of blessed c. 27.
 memory, since deceased, an act of parliament was made, intituled, 'An Act for disabling all Persons in Holy Orders to exercise any Temporal Jurisdiction or Authority;' which act hath made several alterations prejudicial to the constitution ancient rights of parliament, and contrary to the laws of this land, and is by experience found otherwise inconvenient; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the said act, intitled, 'An Act for disabling all Persons in Holy Orders to exercise any Temporal Jurisdiction or Authority,' and every clause, matter, and thing therein contained, shall be and is hereby from henceforth repealed, annulled, and made void to all intents and purposes whatsoever."

(1) To implore the mercy of God:—
 the form of prayer for this solemnity, also for that of the 29th of May, were of different complexion in the reign of Charles 2, from what they are now.
 which, the reason is said to have been
 the parliament, and other leading men, called home King Charles 2. (many whom had been concerned in opposing father's measures,) would not be called rebels; and required that a distinction should be made between the commencement of the war and the conclusion of it:
 they would not suffer the first opposition
 due to the measures of that unhappy prince to be styled rebellion, notwithstanding that he disapproved of the abolition of the regal government which ensued.

And accordingly, the offices for these two communities were drawn up without any reflection on the first authors or promoters of the opposition; and, in general, breathe more a spirit of piety than of party, of humiliation than of revenge; and, throughout, are modest, grave, decent, sensible, and devout.

"King James 2 altered these forms, and King William did not venture to reduce them to their primitive state; and so they have continued, with very little variation, to this day." 2 Burn's E. L. by Phillimore, 322.

(2) Expired.

(3) Ibid.

(4) Ibid.

(5) Papist:—In Ireland v. Smith, (2 Brownl. 166,) it was adjudged, that to say of a subject, "He is a papist," was not actionable; but Mr. Justice Winch said that,
 "if a man call a bishop, or another man who is trusted with the government of the church and ecclesiastical causes, 'a papist,' that he thought the action lay, otherwise not." Vide etiam Kingston & Hill's case, Godb. 147.

STAT. 13 CAR.
2, c. 9.

IX. STAT. 13 CAROLI 2, c. 9 (1). A.D. 1661.

"An Act for the establishing Articles and Orders for the regulating and government of His Majesty's Navies, Ships of War, and Forces by Sea."
[That the Lord's day be observed, according to law: and that Officers cause the Common Prayer to be read.]

STAT. 13 CAR.
2, c. 11.

X. STAT. 13 CAROLI 2, c. 11. A.D. 1661.

"An Act for confirming of three Acts therein mentioned."

Anniversary
thanksgiving.
12 Car. 2,
c. 14.

" And one other act, intituled, 'An Act for a perpetual annual Thanksgiving on the Twenty-ninth Day of May,' and all and every the sentences, and articles in them and every of them contained, shall be and are ratified, and confirmed, and enacted, and declared, to have the full force and strength of acts of parliament, according to the tenour and purport thereof; and shall be adjudged, deemed, and taken to all intents and purposes whatsoever, as if the same had been made, declared, and enacted by authority of the parliament."

STAT. 13 CAR.
2, c. 12.

XI. STAT. 13 CAROLI 2, c. 12. A.D. 1661.

"An Act for Explanation of a Clause contained in an Act of Parliament in the seventeenth Year of the late King Charles, intituled, 'An Act for the Repeal of a Branch of a Statute Primo Elizabethæ, concerning Causes Ecclesiastical.'"

16 Car. 1,
c. 11.

"Whereas in an act of parliament made in the seventeenth year of King Charles, intituled, 'An Act for Repeal of a Branch of a Statute Primo Elizabethæ, concerning Commissioners for Causes Ecclesiastical,' it is (among other things) enacted, that no archbishop, bishop, nor vicar-general, nor any commissary of any archbishop, bishop, or vicar-general, nor any whatsoever, nor any other spiritual or ecclesiastical judge, officer, or minister of justice, nor any other person or persons whatsoever, exercising spiritual or ecclesiastical power, authority, or jurisdiction, by any grant, licence, or command from the king's majesty, his heirs or successors, or by any power or authority from the king, his heirs or successors, or otherwise, shall (from and after the first day of August, which then should be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred forty-one,) award, impose, or inflict any pain, penalty, fine, imprisonment, or other corporal punishment, upon any of the king's subjects for any contempt, misdemeanour, crime, offence, matter, or thing whatsoever belonging to spiritual or ecclesiastical cognizance or jurisdiction; whereunto some doubt hath been made (2), that all ordinary power of coercion and process in causes ecclesiastical were taken away, whereby the ordinary course of causes ecclesiastical hath been obstructed: be it therefore declared and enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of his lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority thereof, that neither the said act, nor anything therein contained, doth take away any ordinary power or authority from any of the said"

(1) Repealed by Stat. 22 Geo. 2, c. 33, s. 1.

(2) Some doubt hath been made:—Fuller, (Church Hist. 1640, p. 82,) commenting upon the passing of that act, says, "that Mr. Pim, triumphed at this success, crying out, Digitus Dei, (the finger of God,) that the bishops should so supinely suffer themselves to be surprised in their power." But it appears by the same writer, and in the same paragraph, that the bishops were aware of the interpretation that would be put upon it, to the prejudice of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction; because "a proviso (as he says) was made in the House of Lords, that the words in this bill should relate to the High Commission court, and other ecclesiastical jurisdiction." probably, explains the following in the Journal of the Lords, at a conference with the Commons upon this bill. "It was read the alterations and additions concerning the bill touching the High Commission court. The first clause in the proviso added therunto, is not now in force, which seems to have been the very thing that the Commons would not admit."

or any other person or persons named as aforesaid, but that they and of them exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, may proceed, determine, sentence, execute, and exercise all manner of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, and all censures and coercions appertaining and belonging to the same before the making of the before recited, in all causes and matters belonging to ecclesiastical jurisdiction according to the king's majesty's ecclesiastical laws used and practised in this in as ample manner and form as they did and might lawfully have done the making of the said act.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the afore recited decimo septimo Caroli, and all the matters and clauses therein contained, touching what concerns the High Commission court, or the new erection of some like court by commission,) shall be and is hereby repealed, to all intents and purposes whatsoever; any thing, clause, or sentence in the said act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, that neither this act, nor any therein contained, shall extend or be construed to revive or give force to the branch of the said statute made in the said first year of the reign of the said Queen Elizabeth, mentioned in the said act of parliament made in the said twentieth year of the reign of the said King Charles, but that the said branch of the said statute made in the said first year of the reign of the said late Queen Elizabeth, shall stand and be unrepealed in such sort as if this act had never been

IV. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted, that it shall not be lawful any archbishop, bishop, vicar-general, chancellor, commissary, or any other secular or ecclesiastical judge, officer, or minister, or any other person having or claiming spiritual or ecclesiastical jurisdiction, to tender or administer unto any person whatsoever the oath usually called the oath ex officio, or any other oath by such person to whom the same is tendered or administered may be charged to confess (1), or accuse, or to purge him or herself (2) of any criminal

Compelled to confess.—So that any might still have offered himself voluntarily for the clearing of his innocence, to purgation as is described in this statute.

Purge him or herself.—The purgation taken away, (if not, virtually, before, 16 Car. I. c. 11, as against the ex officio), was exercised in the following method. When any man or woman lay under common suspicion or public fame of offence, or other vice; though there was no proof plain and full enough to condemn, yet were they liable to be summoned before the spiritual judge, and to be sworn with the crime. If they confessed, a certain penance immediately ensued; if they denied, the judge enjoined purgation, to be performed on the appointed, by their own oath, and by the oath of five or six neighbours, (more or less according to the nature of the crime, condition of the person,) and those of good fame and sober conversation. Each of the person suspected, was, to his own innocence; and the oath of the compurgators, that they believed what he said was true. This was the rule of the canon law; which, (after the oath of the person, speaking of the compurgators, "Deinde compurgatores super sancta evangelia jurabunt, quod ipsi credunt verum jurasse." Extra. l. 5, t. 34, c. And from thence, it is thus described in the Reformatio Legum: (f. 37 (a):) "Formula purgationis: esto; defensor se non admisit jurato; defensoris li-beratores, (vel, ut vulgo dicunt, compurgatores,) credere se verum ejus juramentum fuisse, juramento et ipsi affirmant."

If the person came at the day appointed, together with his neighbours, and purged himself according to the rules of the church; he was dismissed, and declared innocent, and restored to his good name, "Dominus dimisit ab officio, et declaravit ipsum innocentem fore, ac eundem restituit pristinae fame" (as the entry is); but he was, at the same time, enjoined to avoid the cause of suspicion, or the ground of the fame, for the time to come. But if he appeared not, he was declared contumacious, and proceeded against as such; or if he did appear, and could not perform purgation, (i. e., either would not swear to his own innocence, or could not bring others to swear that they believed he swore true,) such failure was taken for conviction, and the judge proceeded to enjoin penance, in the same manner, as if the person had been duly convicted, by his own confession, or by the testimony of others.

Examples of this proceeding before the Reformation, are without number, in the ancient acts of visitation; and, though, since the Reformation, the accounts of what passed in visitations are either wholly omitted, or but imperfectly entered; yet, that the exercise of the same wholesome discipline continued, appears from nine instances thereof in a visitation of Archbishop Parker, (Reg. Park. 312 (b), &c.,) and no doubt, but many more may be found in the acts of particular registries and courts. "And, (what-

STAT. 13 CAR. 2, c. 12.

The ordinary power of archbishops, &c. not taken away.

May use ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

The Stat. 16 Car. I, c. 11, repealed as to all, except what concerns the High Commission court.

Proviso.

1 Eliz. c. 1, s. 18.

Proviso touching the oath ex officio. 1 Mod. 185. 12 Rep. 26.

STAT. 13 CAR.
2, c. 12.

Proviso not to give any other jurisdiction to any archbishop &c. than they had by law
before the year 1639.

The king's supremacy in ecclesiastical

matters.
Canons ecclesiastical.

matter or thing, whereby he or she may be liable to any censure or any thing in this statute, or any other law, custom, or usage hereto contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"V. Provided always, that this act, or any thing therein contained extend or be construed to extend to give unto any archbishop, bishop, other spiritual or ecclesiastical judge, officer, or other person or persons any power or authority to exercise, execute, inflict, or determine any jurisdiction, censure, or coercion, which they might not by law have at the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred thirty-nine; nor to diminish the king's majesty's supremacy in ecclesiastical matters and to confirm the canons made in the year one thousand six hundred and forty over may be said or suggested against it,) where the life and conversation of any person has drawn upon him such a strong and general presumption of guilt, that, though he swears himself innocent, six or seven persons cannot be found in a whole parish, who believe he swears true; such an one seems to be fully ripe for the shame and scandal of public penance." Gibson's Codex, 1042. Notwithstanding this opinion of Dr. Gibson's, the existence of such a law would be at variance with the first principles of the English constitution, and opposed to modern notions of common sense.

(1) Canons made in the year one thousand six hundred and forty:—These canons were confirmed by the king, (June 30,) in the sixteenth year of his reign, and may be seen at large in the printed collection of articles, injunctions, &c. Several of them are of such a nature, as could give no reasonable offence to the temporal legislature: relating only to the discipline of the church and clergy, and to the regulation of the ecclesiastical courts. But others there are, which concern the regal power, the civil establishment of the church of England, the state of popery and presbytery, and the like; and of these, the resolution of the two houses in the next parliament applies, "that they contain in them many matters contrary to the king's prerogative, to the fundamental laws and liberties of the realm, to the right of parliaments, to the property and liberty of the subjects, and matters tending to sedition, and of a dangerous consequence." 4 Rushworth, 112. And it cannot be doubted, but that it was in consequence of such objectionable topics, that the parliament, under King Charles 2. in framing the present clause, guarded so diligently against the suspicion, of giving credit or authority to the Canons of 1640.

In the convocation of 1661, a debate occurred, "de et super revisione canonum sive constitutionum in anno Domini 1640 editi; quinam eorundem fuerant aut sunt debite et idonee observandi et usitandi:" but it does not appear, that any further progress was made in that design, than the referring it to two committees of bishops.

The modern period of canonical law is, to the generality of persons, very little known; it has therefore been deemed expedient to insert the following observations, written by my learned friend, Professor J. T. Graves, (vide Encyclopædia Metropolitana, article Law,) and which are very illustrative of the subject under consideration.

"In the modern period of canonical law, less alteration and advance have taken place than in the ancient or the middle ages; the ancient is chiefly signified by the canons of the Greek church, and by the formation of the Corpus Canonici, the modern, commencing with the council of Pisa, in 1409, is remarkable for a few councils, among which the councils of Basil and Trent are the most famous; for some bulls and briefs of the pope, and the transactions and concordats between the kings and the see of Rome, and the ordinances of the various synods of the cardinals at Rome, and the decisions of the Rota, the supreme tribunal in Rome, both for spiritual and temporal concerns.

"All these are merely modern sources of canon law, which cannot be traced to ancient times; and no one can call himself an accomplished canonist, who is contented with the extracts from the Corpus Juris Canonici, instead of consulting the authorities whence they are derived; these, the most important are the collections of councils. The earliest collection is that of Merlin. The next is that of Labbe and Cossart, with the additions of Jacobatius. (18 vols. fol. Paris, 1728.) The complete is the collection of Councils, supplement of Mansi. (31 vols. fol. Paris, 1728-52.) The collection of all, is that of Mansi, printed by Zatta. (41 vols. fol. Venice, 1759-98.) The latest collection, stops short some time before the middle of the fifteenth century; the logical and alphabetical history of the canons, abridged from the excellent Les Dates, are given in the works of Sir Harris Nicolas, entitled History of the Councils of History. Among the councils, the council of Pisa, in 1409, Constance, 1414, and that of Trent, 1545, are of much greater consequence than the famous council of Trent, 1545, history has been often written. It is sufficient here to name, the celebrated histories of Fra Paolo Sarpi and Pallavicini. The translation of the former, by Le Courayer, is more than the original. The best edition is that of Paris, 1751, 3 vols. 4to. The simplicity of the style in which the transactions of the council are expressed, are connor any other ecclesiastical laws or canons not formerly confirmed, STAT. 13 CAR. 2, c. 12.

greatly superior to the law of Justinian's law.' The Canones et Decreta Concilii that of Rome, 1834. It has (Leipz. 1837.) as a supplement Juris Canonici of Richter. edition, of Augsburg, 1781, edition, the declarations of the ordinarium, Concilii Tridentini and the decisions of the Rota there have been several collections. Popes: the best known is the summa, published at Luxembourg, in 19 vols. fol. We know a complete collection of these Münch's collection, published in 1830, may be regarded as the names of treatises relating to modern Concordats, we would refer to the Bibliothèque de Droit which is particularly copious in (with respect to French works) and canon law. detailed examination of the law of the several nations of we are unable here to enter. ecclesiastical laws of Rome, are for general adoption, but are for the dominions of the papacy intended to be general, have countries rejected, or only used. The struggles which in various Roman catholic the liberties and independence of national churches, filling chapters in ecclesiastical law, law verges not only upon history, but upon dogmatic prescribes articles of faith as upon offences rather as sins; and it holds forth punishment animæ. Of those branches canon law, which are intended some parts relate to matters merely to matters of practice. The former are generally Roman catholic countries, exception of the latter is varied. If to give an account of throughout Europe of the law, exceed our limits, still consistent with the plan of so as the present, to delineate legislation of each national must confine ourselves to a few of the state of our own canon law of England may be classified, foreign and domestic. In canon law of England, much of the general canon law of become incorporated into the law by usage, and by its reception in particular cases. Its efficacy rests on foundation with the efficacy of the imperial civil law, been adopted by usage in the country. For example, by such recognition, there are canons of council of Lateran, which have become part of the canon law of the land. Vide Alston v. Atlay, 7 A. & E. 289.

"The domestic canon law may be divided into the canons anterior to Stat. 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, and the canons subsequent to that statute. We omit, as antiquated, the Anglo-Saxon canons.

"The canons anterior to Stat. 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, consist of legatine and provincial constitutions.

"The legatine constitutions were made in national councils held within this realm, in the time of Otho, legate of Gregory the Ninth, 1220, and of Othobon, (afterwards Pope Adrian the Fifth,) who was legate here under Clement the Fourth, in 1268. They were edited, with a Gloss by John de Athona, canon of Lincoln, about 1290. They extend to both provinces, Canterbury and York.

"The provincial constitutions were made in convocations of the clergy of the province of Canterbury, in the times of various archbishops, commencing with Stephen Langton, under Henry 3, and ending with Henry Chichele, under Henry 5. These were collected, and adorned with the Gloss of William Lyndwood, official of the court of Canterbury, and afterwards bishop of St. David's, in the reign of Henry 5. Although made only for the province of Canterbury, they were received also by the province of York, in convocation, in the year 1463.

"There were other constitutions, of diverse prelates, both before and after; but these which have been mentioned, having been introduced to public notice by the two learned canonists above mentioned, have been principally regarded. Vide Burn's E. L. Preface.

"The printed editions of Lyndwood's Provinciale, contain also the collection of John de Athona. The latest edition is that of Oxford, 1679.

"By Stat. 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, after the following recital: 'Where divers constitutions, ordinances, and canons, provincial or synodal, which heretofore have been enacted, be thought to be not only much prejudicial to the king's prerogative royal, and repugnant to the laws and statutes of this realm, but also over much onerous to his highness and his subjects;'

"It was enacted, that the said canons, constitutions, and ordinances, provincial and synodal, should be revised by a commission of thirty-two persons, to be appointed by the king; and that such of them as should be disapproved by the majority of the commissioners, upon such review, should from thenceforth be void and of none effect:

"Provided that such canons, constitutions, ordinances, and synodals provincial, being already made, which will not be contrary or repugnant to the laws, statutes, and customs of this realm, nor to the damage or hurt of the king's prerogative royal, shall now still be used and executed as they were afore the making of this act, till such time as they be viewed, searched, or otherwise

STAT. 13 CAR. 2, c. 12. allowed, or enacted by parliament, or by the established laws of the land, as they stood in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred thirty-nine."

STAT. 13 CAR. 2, St. II. c. 1.

XII. STAT. 13 CAROLI 2, St. II. c. 1(1). A.D. 1661.

"An Act for the well-governing and regulating of Corporations."

[Magistrates to take and subscribe to certain oaths.]

ordered and determined by the said two-and-thirty persons, or the more part of them, according to the tenor, form, and effect of this present act."

"Upon this, Sir W. Blackstone (1 Com. 83.) observes, 'As no such review has yet been perfected, upon this statute now depends the authority of the canon law in England.'

"The words of Blackstone, in this passage, are not expressly limited to the domestic canon law of England, although, in a former page, (80,) he expressly rested all the strength of the papal laws in England, (so far as they had not parliamentary sanction,) 'on immemorial usage and custom in some particular cases and some particular courts.' This is probably an example of that studied ambiguity, under which Blackstone not unfrequently shelters himself in cases of difficulty; so that he may be quoted on both sides. 'Magno se iudice quisque tuetur.' To us it appears, that the act, according to legal principles of interpretation, extends only to domestic canon law; and we much doubt that the domestic canons used and executed afore the making of the act, and not repugnant to law or prerogative, [in the early history of our constitution, prerogative is often contrasted with law, not as being illegal, but as being beyond or above law,] derived any authority from the act which they would not have possessed from reception and usage, if the act had never been made.

"It is to be observed, that traces still subsist of that ancient jealousy which severed the barristers of Westminster Hall and the advocates of Doctors' Commons. For example, Bishop Gibson's legal notions of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, are very different from those of Blackstone, who has been accused by Mr. Bowyer, in his recent work on the English Constitution, of an Erastian spirit. But Westminster Hall is armed with the power of prohibition, and its doctrines must, therefore, be received as the sounder, when they clash with those which are in vogue near St. Paul's.

"Under a similar act, since repealed, (3 & 4 Edw. 6, c. 11,) the well-known Reformatio Legum Ecclesiasticarum was compiled, under the direction of Edward 6, but was not confirmed before his death and the accession of Queen Mary, and so fell to the ground.

"The Stat. 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, was repealed by 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 8, but was revived by 1 Eliz. c. 1, and is now in force.

"With the exception of certain rubrics, [vide Cardwell's Synodalia.] the Thirty-nine Articles, and some regulations relating to the Common Prayer, which, though made in convocation, have been incorporated into the statute law by the several Acts of Uniformity, the only canons subsequent to the 25th year of Henry 8, affecting generally the law of the ecclesiastical courts, were those which were passed in the convocation of the province of Canterbury under James I, in the year 1603. These canons have never received parliamentary sanction, but they were ratified by the king in his own right, his heirs and successors, and in the year 1605, were received and passed in the province of York.

"With respect to the Canons d'York, it was held by Lord Hardwicke, in the case of Middleton v. Croft, (Str. 1605,) that they do not, proprio vigore, bind the laity, even in ecclesiastical matters. But they are binding upon ecclesiastical persons, the clergy, and quasi-ecclesiastical persons, as churchwardens, appears to be not completely settled. Here, again, Sir W. Blackstone speaks with studied ambiguity. 'It has been solemnly adjudged,' says he, (1 Com. 83.) 'upon the principles of the constitution, that where they are merely declaratory of the ancient common law, but are introductory of new regulations, they do not bind the laity, whatever they may think proper to pay them.'

"We believe the fact to be, that the ecclesiastical courts look to the Canons d'York as far more suited to the circumstances of the present times, than the older canons which were made before the Reformation, as their rule in cases to which they are applicable, and that they are constantly cited in those courts. What length of time will sanction the practice of a court—how long a constant adoption of a rule not supported by any definite authority would be valid—these are questions which, though not very worthy of discussion, we shall not now attempt to discuss. Many of the doctrines and practices which now prevail in our courts of common law and equity, might easily be shown to be more recent than 1603, and to have no act of parliament for their sanction.

"Among the more important repertories and treatises of English ecclesiastical law, we would mention, (in addition to Lord Wood's Burn's Ecclesiastical Law; of which a valuable edition, by Dr. Phillimore, appeared, London, 1842;) Gibson's Code, (2nd edit. Oxford, 1761,) and Wilkes' Concilia Magnæ Britanniae et Hiberniæ, (London, 1737.) The last-named work has recently become expensive, and is not always easily to be met with."

(1) Vide Stat. 5 Geo. 1, c. 6. Stat. 11 Geo. 2, c. 30. Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 17. Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 26. Stat. 5 & 6 Gul. 4, c. 25.

XIII. STAT. 13 & 14 CAROLI 2, c. 1(1). A.D. 1662.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 1.

Act for preventing the Mischiefs and Dangers that may arise by certain Persons called Quakers, and others, refusing to take lawful Oaths."

XIV. STAT. 13 & 14 CAROLI 2, c. 4. A.D. 1662.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

Act for the Uniformity of public Prayers, and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies; and for establishing the Form of Bishoping, ordaining, and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, in the Church of England."

Whereas in the first year of the late Queen Elizabeth, there was one uniform of common service and prayer, and of the administration of sacraments, and ceremonies, in the church of England, (agreeable to the word of God, usage of the primitive church,) compiled by the reverend bishops and clergy, and set in one book, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer, and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies in the Church of England,' enjoined to be used by act of parliament, holden in the said first year of the late queen, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer and Rites in the Church, and Administration of the Sacraments,' very comfortable to good people desirous to live in Christian conversation, and most profitable to the estate of this realm; upon the which the mercy, favour, and blessing of almighty God is in no wise so readily and plentifully poured, as by common use, due using of the sacraments, and often preaching of the gospel, with attention of the hearers; and yet this notwithstanding, a great number of people in divers parts of this realm, following their own sensuality, and living without knowledge and due fear of God, do wilfully and schismatically abstain and refuse to come to their parish churches, and other public places where common prayer, administration of the sacraments, and preaching of the word of God is used upon Sundays and other days ordained and appointed to be kept and observed as holydays: and whereas by the great and scandalous neglect of ministers in using said order or liturgy so set forth and enjoined as aforesaid, great mischiefs and inconveniences, during the times of the late unhappy troubles, have arisen and continued, and many people have been led into factions and schisms, to the great hurt and scandal of the reformed religion of the church of England, and to the loss of many souls: for prevention whereof in time to come, for settling the peace of the church, and for allaying the present distempers which the indisposition of the time hath contracted, the king's majesty, according to his declaration (2) of the five and twentieth of October, one thousand six hundred and sixty, and his commission (3) under the great seal of England to several bishops and divines, to review the Book of Common Prayer, and to prepare such alterations and additions (4) as they thought fit to offer: and afterwards the convoca-

This act
enforced by 5 Ann. c. 5,
s. 1.

1 Eliz. c. 2.

The king's declaration and commission for reviewing the Book of Common Prayer, and alterations to be propounded therein.

Vide Stat. 10 Ann. c. 2. Stat. 5 Geo. 3, c. 155. Stat. 4, c. 17. Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 32. Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 26. Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 28. Stat. 1 Vict. c. 77.

Declaration:—Which recites the distress that the king had in Holland with some of the principal asserters of the presbyterian opinion, who were sent to him from thence; together with the zeal they then shewed for the peace of the church and country (as they said) neither enemies, nor had been given out to be, of episcopacy or liturgy; but modestly desiring alterations in either, as, without shaking nations, might best allay the present distempers.

His commission:—"Which bore date

March 25th, 1661, and was directed to twelve bishops, and twelve presbyterian divines; with nine assistants on each side, to supply the places of the principals, when they should be occasionally absent. The commission hath been printed at large, (Nicols Pr. Numb. 2,) in virtue of which, the commissioners met frequently at the Savoy, and disputations were held, but nothing concluded." Gibson's Codex, 275.

(4) Alterations and additions:—"Their progress therein, and the several steps of it, will best appear by the acts of convocation, now printed: from the 25th session, (November 21, 1661,) in which they received the king's letter of direction to enter upon the review; to the 48th session, (December 20, 1661,) in which the bishops and clergy subscribed the book." Ibid.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

tions of both the provinces of Canterbury and York, being by his majesty summoned and assembled, and now sitting, his majesty hath been pleased to authorize and require the presidents of the said convocations, and other the bishops and clergy of the same, to review the said Book of Common Prayer, and the Book of Ordination and Form and Manner of the making and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, and that after mature consideration they should make such additions and alterations in the said books respectively, as to them should seem meet and convenient, and should exhibit and present the same to his majesty in writing for his royal allowance or confirmation: since which time, upon full and mature deliberation, they the said presidents, bishops, and clergy, of both provinces, have accordingly reviewed the said books, and have made some alterations which they thought should be inserted to the same; and some additional prayers to the said Book of Common Prayer, to be used upon proper and emergent occasions; and have examined and presented the same unto his majesty in writing, in one book, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the use of the Church of England, together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, pointed as they are to be sung or said in Churches; and the Form and Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating, of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons:' all which his majesty having considered, hath fully approved and allowed the same, and recommended to the present parliament, that the said Books of Common Prayer, and of the Ordination and Consecration of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, with the alterations and additions which have been so made and presented to his majesty by the said convocations, be the book (1) which shall be appointed to be used by all who officiate in all cathedral and collegiate churches and chapels, and in all colleges and halls in both the universities, and the colleges of Eton and Winchester, and in all parish churches and chapels within the kingdom of England, the dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, and by all that shall consecrate bishops, priests, or deacons, in any of the said places, under such directions and penalties as the houses of parliament shall think fit.

The peace and honour of religion much advanced by uniform agreement in the public worship of God.

"II. Now in regard that nothing conduced more to the settling of the peace of this nation (which is desired of all good men), nor to the honour of our nation, and the propagation thereof, than an universal agreement in the public worship of Almighty God; and to the intent that every person within this realm may certainly know the rule to which he is to conform in public worship, and administration of sacraments, and other rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, and the manner how and by whom bishops, priests, and deacons, are and ought to be made, ordained, and consecrated; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by the advice and with the consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular ministers in any cathedral, collegiate or parochial church or chapel, or other place of public worship within this realm of England, the dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be bound to use the morning prayer, evening prayer, celebration and administration of the sacraments, and all other the public and common prayer, in such order and form as is mentioned in the said book annexed and joined to this present act, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the use of the Church of England; together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, pointed as they are to be sung or said in Churches; and the Form or Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons:' and that the morning and evening prayers therein contained shall, upon every Lord's day, and upon all other days and occasions, and at the times therein appointed, be openly and solemnly read by all and every minister or curate, in every church, chapel, or other place of public worship, within this realm of England and places aforesaid.

The Book of Common Prayer shall be used.

(1) Be the book:—"Before the king transmitted the book of the convocation, another from the Commons: but the Lords followed the book from the king. Journ. Proc. Mar. 13, 17." Gibson's Canon 211.

"III. And to the end that uniformity in the public worship of God (which is much desired) may be speedily effected, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every parson, vicar, or other minister whatsoever, who now hath and enjoyeth any ecclesiastical benefice or promotion within this realm of England or places aforesaid, shall, in the church, chapel, or place of public worship, belonging to his said benefice or promotion, upon some Lord's day before the feast of St. Bartholomew which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred sixty and two, openly, publicly, and solemnly read the morning and evening prayer appointed to be read by and according to the said Book of Common Prayer, at the times thereby appointed; and after such reading thereof, shall openly and publicly, before the congregation there assembled, declare his unfeigned assent and consent to the use of all things in the said book contained and prescribed, in these words, and no other:

"IV. 'I, A. B., do here declare my unfeigned assent and consent to all and every thing contained and prescribed in and by the book, intituled, The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the use of the Church of England; together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, pointed as they are to be sung or said in Churches; and the Form or Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons.'

"V. And that all and every such person, who shall (without some lawful impediment to be allowed and approved of by the ordinary of the place) neglect or refuse (1) to do the same within the time aforesaid, (or in case of such impediment, within one month after such impediment removed,) shall ipso facto be deprived of all his spiritual promotions: and that from thenceforth it shall be lawful to and for all patrons and donors of all and singular the said spiritual promotions, or of any of them, according to their respective rights and titles, to present or collate to the same, as though the person or persons so offending or neglecting were dead.

"VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person who shall hereafter be presented or collated, or put into any ecclesiastical benefice or promotion (2) within this realm of England and places aforesaid, shall, in the church, chapel, or place of public worship belonging to his said benefice or promotion, within two months next after that he shall be in the actual possession of the said ecclesiastical benefice or promotion, upon some Lord's day, openly, publicly, and solemnly read the morning and evening prayers appointed to be read by and according to the said Book of Common Prayer, at the times thereby appointed; and after such reading thereof shall openly and publicly, before the congregation there assembled, declare his unfeigned assent and consent to the use of all things therein contained and prescribed, according to the form before appointed: and that all and every such person who shall (without some lawful impediment (3) to be allowed and approved by the ordinary of the place) neglect or refuse to do the same within the time aforesaid, (or in case of such impediment, within one month after such impediment removed,) shall, ipso facto, be deprived of all his said ecclesiastical benefices and promotions: and that from thenceforth it shall and may be lawful to and for all patrons and donors of all and singular the said ecclesiastical benefices and promotions, or any of them, according to their respective rights and titles, to present or collate to the same, as though the person or persons so offending or neglecting were dead.

"VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in all places where the proper incumbent of any parsonage or vicarage, or benefice with cure,

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

All parsons, vicars, and ministers, to read and declare their assent to use the same.

The penalty for refusing.
23 Geo. 2, c. 23.

Every person shall read the Common Prayer, and declare his assent thereto.

The penalty for not so doing.
2 Show. 53.

Incumbents of livings, keeping curates,

(1) Every such person, who shall . . . neglect or refuse:—Parsons need not prove their reading of the articles, &c. until something appears to the contrary. Powel v. Milbank, Black. (Sir W.), 852. Possession of a benefice for a lengthened period is prima facie evidence of a regular induction, and of reading the Thirty-nine Articles. Doe d. Kerby

v. Carter, R. & M. 237.

(2) Benefice or promotion:—It seems, that donatives with cure of souls are within the Acts of Uniformity. Powel v. Milbank, Black. (Sir W.), 852. Carter v. Pinkney, 3 Lev. 82.

(3) Impediment:—Vide Stat. 23 Geo. 2, c. 23, s. 2.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.
shall read
the same
once every month.

Penalty and manner of conviction for not doing it.

Deans, &c. shall subscribe
the declaration.
15 Car. 2, c. 6.
See 12 Ann.
St. II. c. 7;
and 2 Geo. 2,
c. 31, s. 8.

The declara-
tion.
In part abolished by
1 G. & M.
Sess. 1, c. 8,
s. 11.

The penalty
for not subscribing.

doth reside on his living and keep a curate, the incumbent himself in person (or having some lawful impediment to be allowed by the ordinary of the place) and once (at the least) in every month openly and publicly read the common prayer and service in and by the said book prescribed, and (if there be occasion) administer each of the sacraments and other rites of the church, in the parish church or chapel, of or belonging to the same parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, in such order, manner, and form, as in and by the said book is appointed; upon pain to forfeit the sum of five pounds to the use of the poor of the parish for every offence, upon conviction by confession, or proof of two credible witnesses, upon oath before two justices of the peace of the county, city, or town corporate, where the offence shall be committed, (which oath the said justices are hereby empowered to administer,) and in default of payment within ten days, to be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender, by the warrant of the justices, by the churchwardens, or overseers of the poor of the said parish, retaining the surplussage to the party.

"VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every dean, canon, and prebendary of every cathedral or collegiate church, and all masters and other heads, fellows, chaplains, and tutors of or in any college, hall, house of learning, or hospital, and every public professor and reader in either of the universities, and in every college elsewhere, and every parson, vicar, curate, lecturer, and every other person in holy orders, and every schoolmaster keeping any public or private school, and every person instructing or teaching any youth in any house or private family as a tutor or schoolmaster, who upon the first day of May which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred and sixty-two, or at any time thereafter, shall be incumbent or have possession of any deanery, canonry, prebend, mastership, headship, fellowship, professor's place, or reader's place, parsonage, vicarage, or any other ecclesiastical dignity or promotion, and any curate's place, lecture, or school, or shall instruct or teach any youth as tutor or schoolmaster, shall, before the feast day of St. Bartholomew, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty-two, or at or before his admission to be incumbent or have possession aforesaid, subscribe the declaration or acknowledgment following, scilicet:

"IX. 'I, A. B., do declare, that it is not lawful, upon any pretence whatsoever, to take arms against the king; and that I do abhor that traitorous posture of taking arms by his authority against his person, or against those that are commissioned by him; and that I will conform to the liturgy of the church of England, as is now by law established: and I do declare (1) that I do hold, there lies no obligation upon me or on any other person, from the oath commonly called, The solemn League and Covenant, to endeavour any change or alteration of government either in church or state; and that the same was in itself an unlawful oath, and imposed upon the subjects of this realm against the known laws and liberties of this kingdom.'

"X. Which said declaration and acknowledgment shall be subscribed by every one of the said masters and other heads, fellows, chaplains, and tutors, of or in any college, hall, or house of learning, and by every public professor and reader in either of the universities, before the vice-chancellor of the respective universities for the time being, or his deputy: and the said declaration or acknowledgment shall be subscribed before the respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, by every other person hereby enjoined to subscribe the same; upon pain that all and every of the persons aforesaid failing in such subscription, shall lose and forfeit such respective deanery, canonry, prebend, mastership, headship, fellowship, professor's place, reader's place, parsonage, vicarage, ecclesiastical dignity or promotion, curate's place, lecture, and school, and shall be utterly disabled and (ipso facto) deprived of the same; and that every such respective deanery, canonry, prebend, mastership, headship, fellowship, professor's place, reader's place, parsonage,

(1) And I do declare:—There was a long debate in the House of Lords, whether ministers should be obliged to make any declaration against the covenant. Journ. Priv. Apr. 5.

age, vicarage, ecclesiastical dignity or promotion, curate's place, lecture, and school, shall be void, as if such person so failing were naturally dead.

"XI. And if any schoolmaster or other person, instructing or teaching youth in any private house or family as a tutor or schoolmaster, shall instruct or teach any youth as a tutor or schoolmaster, before licence (1) obtained from his respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, according to the laws and statutes of this realm, (for which he shall pay twelve pence only,) and before such subscription and acknowledgment made as aforesaid; then every such schoolmaster and other, instructing and teaching as aforesaid, shall, for the first offence, suffer three months' imprisonment without bail or mainprize; and for every second, and after such offence, shall suffer three months' imprisonment without bail or mainprize; and also forfeit to his majesty the sum of five pounds (2): and after such subscription made, every such parson, vicar, curate, and lecturer, shall procure a certificate under the hand and seal of the respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, (who are hereby enjoined and required, upon demand, to make and deliver the same,) and shall publicly and openly read the same, together with the declaration (3) or acknowledgment aforesaid, upon some Lord's day within three months then next following, in his parish church where he is to officiate, in the presence of the congregation there assembled, in the time of divine service (4), upon pain that every person failing therein shall lose such parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, curate's place, or lecturer's place respectively, and shall be utterly disabled, and ipso facto deprived of the same; and that the said parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, curate's place or lecturer's place, shall be void as if he was naturally dead.

"XII. Provided always, that from and after the twenty-fifth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred eighty-two, there shall be omitted in the said declaration or acknowledgment so to be subscribed and read, these words following, scilicet:

"And I do declare, that I do hold there lies no obligation on me, or on any other person, from the oath commonly called, The solemn League and Covenant, to endeavour any change or alteration of government either in church or state, and that the same was in itself an unlawful oath, and imposed upon the subjects of this realm against the known laws and liberties of this kingdom."

"So as none of the persons aforesaid shall from thenceforth be at all obliged to subscribe or read that part of the said declaration or acknowledgment.

"XIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, that from and after the feast of St. Bartholomew, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty and two, no person who is now incumbent, and in possession of any parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, and who is not already in holy orders by episcopal ordination, or shall not before the said feast-day of St. Bartholomew be ordained priest or deacon, according to the form of episcopal ordination, shall have, hold, or

STAT. 13 &
CAR. 2, c. 4 Schoolmaster
in private houses.

What to be omitted in the declaration
after the 25th
of March, 1682.

Persons not ordained according to episcopal ordination shall not hold any ecclesiastical
promotion, &c.

(1) Licence:—In Matthews v. Burdett, (2 Salk. 672; 3 Ibid. 318.) a prohibition was granted to the spiritual court to stay proceedings against one who "taught school" without licence from the bishop; and in order to acquire such writ, it was alleged, that the office of a schoolmaster is a lay office, and that, where the common or statute law gives a remedy in form seculari, whether the matter be temporal or spiritual, the cognizance of that matter belongs to the king's temporal courts only, unless the jurisdiction of the spiritual court be used by that statute which gives the penalty; for, otherwise, one might be twice punished for the same thing. On the other hand, it was alleged, that by the ancient custom received in England, the bishop is to superintend the education of youth; that this was confirmed by the several statutes which required a licence to be taken from the ordinarius, and that the Toleration Act gave no relief, but the cause was not finally determined.

(2) Five pounds:—This does not deprive the ecclesiastical courts of their jurisdiction, when they exclusively proceed according to the canon law. Ibid. Vide ante 441, n. (1).

(3) Together with the declaration:—"A doubt hath been raised, whether the design of the act was, that the clerk should only read the bishop's certificate to the congregation, in testimony of his having subscribed the declaration before him; or whether, after having read the certificate, he should not also make the same declaration again, in form, before the congregation; which point hath never been judicially determined; but the latter opinion is not only more safe, but hath also been thought more agreeable to the tenour of the act, than the bare reading of the certificate." Gibson's Codex, 817.

(4) In the time of divine service:—And therefore it must be done, before the termination of divine service.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

enjoy the said parsonage, vicarage, benefice with cure, or other ecclesiastical promotion within this kingdom of England, or the dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, but shall be utterly disabled, and (ipso facto) deprived of the same, and all his ecclesiastical promotions shall be void, as if he was naturally dead.

"XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person whatsoever shall thenceforth be capable (1) to be admitted to any parsonage, vicarage, benefice, or other ecclesiastical promotion or dignity whatsoever, who shall presume to consecrate and administer the holy sacrament of the Eucharist at supper, before such time as he shall be ordained priest (2), according to the form and manner in and by the said book prescribed, unless he have formerly been made priest by episcopal ordination; upon pain to forfeit for every time the sum of one hundred pounds; one moiety thereof to the king's majesty, and the other moiety thereof to be equally divided between the poor of the parish where the offence shall be committed; and such person or persons as shall be so disabled by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, shall be disabled from taking or being admitted into the order of priest, by the space of one whole year then next following.

"XV. Provided that the penalties in this act shall not extend to the persons or aliens of the foreign reformed churches allowed or to be allowed by the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, in England.

"XVI. Provided always, that no title to confer or present by lapse, shall accrue by any avoidance or deprivation (ipso facto) by virtue of this statute, until after six months after notice of such avoidance or deprivation given by the archbishop to the patron, or such sentence of deprivation openly and publicly read in the parish church of the benefice, parsonage, or vicarage becoming void, or whereof the incumbent shall be deprived by virtue of this act.

No other form
of common prayer to be openly used in any church or public place.

"XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no form or order of common prayers, administration of sacraments, rites, or ceremonies, shall be openly used in any church, chapel, or other public place of or in any college or hall in either of the universities, the colleges of Westminster, Winchester, Eton, or any of them, other than what is prescribed and appointed to be used in and by the said book; and that the present governor or head of every college and hall in the said universities, and of the said colleges of Westminster, Winchester, and Eton, within one month after the feast of St. Bartholomew, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty and two; and every governor or head of any of the said colleges or halls hereafter to be chosen or appointed, within one month next after his election or collation, and admission into the same government or headship, shall openly and publicly in the church, chapel, or other public place of the same college or hall, and in the presence of the fellows and scholars of the same, or the greater part of them then resident, subscribe unto the Nine and thirty Articles of Religion, mentioned in the said book made in the thirteenth year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, and unto the said book, and declare his unfeigned assent and consent unto, and approbation of the said articles, and of the same book, and to the use of all the prayers, rites, and

Subscription to the Thirty-nine Articles
mentioned in
the statute
13 Eliz. c. 12.

(1) Capable.—Prior to the enactment of Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 14, if a layman was presented, instituted, and inducted, he was parson de facto, and acts done by him, while parson, such as marriages, leases, &c. were valid; (Costard v. Winder, Cro. Eliz. 775;) although he might have been deprived. Coll & Glover v. Coventry & Lichfield (Bishop of), Hob. 149. Sutton's case, Cro. Car. 65. This statute however enacts, that no one shall be capable to be admitted to any benefice, who has not been ordained priest.

(2) Priest.—In Hill v. Barne, (2 Lev. 250,) where the prohibition was prayed to stay proceedings in the spiritual court; this distinction was made by Masters, the judge, or no priest is triable by the ordinary, if priest or no priest, at each a time, by a writ, but Jones, (Chief Justice,) held, that in the latter case also, it ought to be tried by the ordinary, when the time refers to a special act, such as institution. And in another report of the same case, (from Hill v. Barne, Jon. (Sir T.), 132,) it is said, that though the case might be determined by the certificate of the bishop of the diocese, yet the rule was made, and the penalties inflicted, by act of parliament, the original cognizance did not belong to the bishop, but to the temporal courts; and consequently the prohibition was supported.

ceremonies, forms, and orders, in the said book prescribed and contained, according to the form aforesaid; and that all such governors or heads of the said colleges and halls, or any of them, as are or shall be in holy orders, shall once (at least) in every quarter of the year, (not having a lawful impediment,) openly and publicly read the morning prayer and service in and by the said book appointed to be read in the church, chapel, or other public place of the same college or hall; upon pain to lose, and be suspended of and from all the benefits and profits belonging to the same government or headship, by the space of six months, by the visitor or visitors of the same college or hall; and if any governor or head of any college or hall, suspended for not subscribing unto the said articles and book, or for not reading of the morning prayer and service as aforesaid, shall not at or before the end of six months next after such suspension, subscribe unto the said articles and book, and declare his consent thereunto as aforesaid, or read the morning prayer and service as aforesaid, then such government or headship shall be ipso facto void.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

XVIII. Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful to use the morning and evening prayer, and all other prayers and service prescribed in and by the said book, in the chapels or other public places of the respective colleges and halls in both the universities, in the colleges of Westminster, Winchester, and Eton, and in the convocations of the clergy of either province, in Latin (1), any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Who may use
the service in Latin.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person shall be or be received as a lecturer, or permitted, suffered, or allowed to preach as a lecturer, or to preach or read any sermon or lecture in any church, chapel, or other place of public worship, within this realm of England, or the dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, unless he be first approved, and thereunto licensed by the archbishop of the province or bishop of the diocese, or (in case the same be void) by the guardian of the spiritualities, under his seal, and shall in the presence of the same archbishop or bishop, or guardian, read the Nine and forty Articles of Religion mentioned in the statute of the thirteenth year of the late Queen Elizabeth, with declaration of his unfeigned assent to the same; and that every person and persons who now is, or hereafter shall be licensed, assigned, and appointed, or received as a lecturer, to preach upon any day of the week in any church, chapel, or place of public worship within this realm of England, or place aforesaid, the first time he preacheth (before his sermon) shall openly, publicly, and solemnly read the common prayers and service in and by the said book

Lectures.

13 Eliz. c. 12.

(1) In Latin.—Although no provision was made for this liberty, by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2, cap. 363, yet the queen, by her letters patent bearing date April 6th, 1560, granted ex parte sua auctoritate et privilegio regali, to the colleges of the two universities, and to those of Winchester and Eton. Gibson's Canon. 270. But subsequently, in the third year of her reign, the Archbishop, Bishop of London, Dr. Bill, and Dr. Haddon, were commissioned, (among other things,) to limit the use of that liberty in collegiate churches, with regard to those of the laity who resorted thereto. Stry. Park. App. 28.

No person can be a lecturer, endowed or endowed, without the rector's consent, since there be an immemorial custom to elect without his consent; where there is such a custom, it is binding on the rector, as it requires a consideration to him. The endorsement only seems material, in this respect, as it does (or may) furnish an argument in support of the custom, and to show, that it had a legal commencement. Case of the Lecturers of St. Anne's, Westminster, Str. 1192. S. C. Westm. Rex v. London (Bishop of), 1

Wils. 11. Rex v. Field (rector), 4 T. R. 125. Rex v. London (Bishop of), 1 T. R. 331.

Even after the rector's consent is obtained, the bishop's licence is also necessary, if not as forming part of the title of the lecturer, still, at least, to exempt him from the penalties of Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4. Vide Canons of 1603, can. 36. Rex v. London (Bishop of), 1 T. R. 331. Clinton v. Hatchard, 1 Add. 103.

The Act of Uniformity, (13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4, s. 19,) having enacted that no person shall be allowed to preach as a lecturer, in any church, &c. "unless he be first approved and thereunto licensed by the archbishop of the province or bishop of the diocese," &c. the court will not entertain a motion for a mandamus to the bishop to license a lecturer appointed by the parish, upon the previous refusal of the bishop to do so, upon the alleged ground of unfitness in the party elected, unless it be shown, that the like application had also been made to the archbishop, and rejected by him. Rex v. London (Bishop of), 13 East, 419. Vide Stephens on Nisi Prius, tit. MANDAMUS, 2309-2311.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

appointed to be read for that time of the day, and then and there publicly and openly declare his assent unto, and approbation of, the said book, and to the use of all the prayers, rites, and ceremonies, forms, and orders therein contained and prescribed, according to the form before appointed in this act: and also that on the first lecture day of every month afterwards, so long as he continues lecturer or preacher there, at the place appointed for his said lecture or sermon, before the said lecture or sermon, openly, publicly, and solemnly read the common prayer and service in and by the said book appointed to be read for that time of the day at which the said lecture or sermon is to be preached, and after such reading thereof shall openly and publicly, before the congregation there assembled, declare his unfeigned assent and consent unto, and approbation of, the said book, and to the use of all the prayers, rites, and ceremonies, forms and orders therein contained and prescribed, according to the form aforesaid; and that all such person and persons who shall neglect or refuse to do the same, shall be thenceforth be disabled to preach the said or any other lecture or sermon in said or any other church, chapel, or place of public worship, until such time as he and they shall openly, publicly, and solemnly read the common prayer and service appointed by the said book, and conform in all points to the things therein appointed and prescribed, according to the purport, true intent, and meaning of this act.

Lectures in cathedral or collegiate churches.

The penalty
upon persons disabled that preach.

Explained by 15 Car. 2, c. 6,
s. 7.

Common
prayer to be read before every lecture,
and the lecturer to be present.

Proviso for sermons and lectures in the universities.

Statutes
formerly made for uniformity
of common prayer, confirmed, &c.

“XX. Provided always, that if the said sermon or lecture be to be preached or read in any cathedral or collegiate church or chapel, it shall be sufficient for the said lecturer, openly at the time aforesaid, to declare his assent and consent to the things contained in the said book, according to the form aforesaid.

“XXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person who is by this act disabled to preach any lecture or sermon, shall, during the time that he shall continue and remain so disabled, preach any sermon or lecture, that then for every such offence, the person and persons so offending shall be three months’ imprisonment in the common gaol without bail or mainprize, or that any two justices of the peace of any county of this kingdom and place aforesaid, and the mayor or other chief magistrate of any city or town corporate and the same, upon certificate from the ordinary of the place made to him or them of the offence committed, shall and are hereby required to commit the person or persons so offending, to the gaol of the same county, city, or town corporate accordingly.

“XXII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that at all and every time and times when any sermon or lecture is to be preached, the common prayers and service in and by the said book appointed to be read at that time of the day, shall be openly, publicly, and solemnly read by some priest or deacon, in the church, chapel, or place of public worship, where the said sermon or lecture is to be preached, before such sermon or lecture be preached, so that the lecturer then to preach shall be present at the reading thereof.

“XXIII. Provided nevertheless, that this act shall not extend to the universities, churches in the universities of this realm, or either of them, when or at such time as any sermon or lecture is preached or read in the said churches, or any of them, for or as the public university sermon or lecture; but that the same sermons or lectures may be preached or read in such sort and manner as the same have been heretofore preached or read; this act or anything herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

“XXIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the ancient good laws and statutes of this realm, which have been formerly made, and are now in force, for the uniformity of prayer and administration of the sacraments, and this realm of England and places aforesaid, shall stand in full force and strength to all intents and purposes whatsoever, for the establishing and confirming of the said book, intituled, ‘The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the use of the Church of England; together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, with the Canticles and the Form or Manner of reading of the same.’

uing, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons,' herein before mentioned to be joined and annexed to this act; and shall be applied, practised, and inure for the punishing of all offences contrary to the said laws, with relation to the book aforesaid, and no other.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

XXV. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in all those prayers, litanies, and collects, which do any way relate to the king, queen, or royal progeny, the names be altered and changed from time to time, suited to the present occasion, according to the direction of lawful authority (1).

Litanies, &c.
relating to the king, &c.

XXVI. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that a printed copy of the said book, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the Use of the Church of England, together with the Psalter or Psalms with, pointed as they are to be sung or said in Churches, and the Form and Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons,' at the costs and charges of the parishioners of every parish church and city, cathedral church, college and hall, be attained and gotten before the feast of Saint Bartholomew, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty two; upon pain of forfeiture of three pounds by the month, for so long time as they shall then after be unprovided thereof, by every parish or chapelry, cathedral church, college, and hall, making default therein.

True copies of the Book of Common Prayer to be provided in all churches, &c.

XXVII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the Bishops of Hereford, St. David's, Asaph, Bangor, and Llandaff, and their successors, shall take such order among themselves, for the souls' health of the flocks committed to their charge within Wales, that the book hereunto annexed be truly and exactly translated into the British or Welsh tongue; and that the same be translated, and being by them, or any three of them at the least, viewed, read, and allowed, be imprinted to such number at least, so that one of the said books so translated and imprinted, may be had for every cathedral, collegiate and parish church, and chapel of ease, in the said respective dioceses and places in Wales, where the Welsh is commonly spoken or used, before the first day of May, one thousand six hundred sixty-five; and that from and after the imprinting and printing of the said book so translated, the whole divine service shall be used and said by the ministers and curates throughout all Wales within the said dioceses, where the Welsh tongue is commonly used, in the British or Welsh tongue, in such manner and form as is prescribed according to the book hereunto annexed to be used in the English tongue, differing nothing in any order or form from the said English book; for which book, so translated and imprinted, the churchwardens of every the said parishes shall pay, out of the parish money in their hands for the use of the respective churches, and be allowed the same on their account; and that the said bishops and their successors, or any three of them at the least, shall set and appoint the price for which the said book shall be bought, and one other Book of Common Prayer in the English tongue shall be bought and had in every church throughout Wales, in which the Book of Common Prayer in Welsh is to be had by force of this act, before the first day of May, one thousand six hundred sixty and four, and the same books to remain in such convenient places within the said churches, that such as understand them may resort at all convenient times to read and peruse the same, and also such as do not understand the said language, may, by conferring both tongues together, the sooner attain to knowledge of the English tongue; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding: and until printed copies of the said book so to be translated may be had and provided, the form of common prayer, established by parliament before the making of this act, shall be used as formerly in such parts of Wales where the Welsh tongue is not commonly understood.

Proviso for the Bishops of Hereford, &c.

XXVIII. And to the end that the true and perfect copies of this act, and the book hereunto annexed, may be safely kept and perpetually preserved, and for avoiding of all disputes for the time to come; be it therefore enacted by the

True copies of this act, and
the Book of Common

(1) Lawful authority:—i. e. (according to practice) of the king or queen in council.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.

Prayer, by whom, and how to be had and kept.

Proviso for the king's professor of law in Oxford.

Proviso concerning the thirty-sixth article agreed in the convocation.
Anno 1562.

The Common Prayer used by authority of

authority aforesaid, that the respective deans and chapters of every cathedral collegiate church within England and Wales shall, at their proper costs and charges, before the twenty-fifth day of December, one thousand six hundred sixty and two, obtain under the great seal of England a true and perfect printed copy of this act, and of the said book annexed hereunto, to be by the said deans and chapters, or their successors, kept and preserved in safety for ever, and to be also produced or shewed forth in any court of record, as often as they shall be thereunto lawfully required; and also there shall be delivered true and perfect copies of this act, and of the same book, into the respective courts at Westminster, and into the Court of London, to be kept and preserved for ever among the records of the said courts: and the records in the tower, to be also produced and showed forth in any court, as need shall require; which said books so to be exemplified under the great seal of England, shall be examined by such persons as the king's majesty shall appoint under the great seal of England, for that purpose, and shall be compared with the original book hereunto annexed, and shall have power to correct and amend any writing any error committed by the printer in the printing of the same book, and any thing therein contained, and shall certify in writing under their hands and seals, or the hands and seals of any three of them, at the end of the same book, that they have examined and compared the same book, and find it to be a true and perfect copy; which said books, and every one of them, so exemplified under the great seal of England as aforesaid, shall be deemed, taken, adjudged, and expounded to be true and available in the law, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and shall be accounted as good records as this book itself hereunto annexed; any law or custom to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

“XXIX. Provided also, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall not be prejudicial or hurtful unto the king's professor of the law within the university of Oxford, for or concerning the prebend of Shipton within the cathedral church of Sarum, united and annexed unto the place of the same king's professor for the time being by the late King James of blessed memory.

“XXX. Provided always, that whereas the six and thirtieth article of the Articles and Thirty Articles agreed upon by the archbishops and bishops of both provinces, and the whole clergy, in the convocation holden at London, in the year of our Lord one thousand five hundred sixty-two, for the avoiding of diverse opinions, and for establishing of consent touching true religion, is in these words following, viz.:

“That the Book of Consecration of Archbishops and Bishops, and ordaining of Priests and Deacons, lately set forth in the time of King Edward the Sixth, and confirmed at the same time by authority of parliament, doth contain all things necessary to such consecration and ordaining, neither hath it any thing that itself is superstitious and ungodly: and therefore, whosoever are consecrated or ordered according to the rites of that book, since the second year of the said King Edward unto this time, or hereafter shall be consecrated or ordered according to the same rites, we decree all such to be rightly, orderly, and lawfully consecrated and ordered;”

“XXXI. It be enacted, and be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all subscriptions hereafter to be had or made unto the said articles of a deacon, priest, or ecclesiastical person, or other person whatsoever, who by statute or any other law now in force, is required to subscribe unto the said articles, shall be construed, and be taken to extend, and shall be applied (for and touching the said six and thirtieth article) unto the book containing the form and manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of bishops, priests, and deacons, in the said mentioned, in such sort and manner as the same did heretofore extend unto the book set forth in the time of King Edward the Sixth, mentioned in the said six and thirtieth article; any thing in the said article, or in any statute, act, or custom heretofore had or made, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

“XXXII. Provided also, that the Book of Common Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of this Church of England, together with the Form and Manner of ordaining and consecrating Bishops, Priests, treasons, heretofore in use, and respectively established by act of parliament in the first and eighth years of Queen Elizabeth, shall be still used and observed in the Church of England, until the feast of St. Bartholomew, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred sixty and two."

Used until Bartholomew Day, 1662. Expired. Farther provisions relating hereto, 1 G. & M. St. I. and 23 Geo. 2. c. 28.

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2. c. 4.
parliament,
1 Eliz. c. 2,
8 Eliz. c. 1,
G. & M. St. I.

XV. STAT. 13 & 14 CAROLI 2, c. 25. A.D. 1662.

Act for the restoring of all such Advowsons, Rectories impropriate, Glebe lands, and Tithes, to his Majesty's loyal Subjects, as were taken from them, and making void certain Charges imposed on them upon their Compositions for Antiquity, by the late usurped Powers."

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 25.

XVI. STAT. 13 & 14 CAROLI 2, c. 33(1). A.D. 1662.

Act for preventing the frequent Abuses in printing seditious, treasonable, and unlicensed Books and Pamphlets, and for regulating of Printing and Printing Presses."

STAT. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 33.

Pamphlets or books prohibited to be printed, published, or sold, containing any thing contrary to the doctrine or discipline of the Church of England.]

XVII. STAT. 14 & 15 CAROLI 2, SESS. 4, c. 1. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1662.

An Act for a perpetual anniversary Thanksgiving on the Nine and twentieth Day of May, in this Kingdom."

STAT. 14 & 15
CAR. 2, SESS.
4, c. 1. [Ire.]

Forasmuch as Almighty God, the king of kings, and sole disposer of all earthly kingdoms, hath by his all-swaying providence and power, miraculously manifested in the view of all the world, his transcendent mercy, love, and goodness, towards his most excellent majesty Charles the Second, by his especial favour, of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, king, defender of the truly catholic and apostolic faith, and all his majesty's loyal subjects of this his Kingdom of Ireland, by his majesty's late most wonderful, glorious, peaceable, and happy restoration to the actual possession and exercise of his undoubted hereditary right and regal authority over us, after sundry years' forced extermination from foreign parts by the most traitorous conspiracies, and armed power of usurpers, tyrants, and execrable perfidious traitors; and that without the least opposition or confusion of blood, through the unanimous, cordial, loyal votes and passionate prayers of us, and other his majesty's subjects; which inexpressible blessing, by his own most wonderful dispensation, was completed on the nine and twentieth day of May, one thousand six hundred and sixty, being the most memorable day not only of his majesty as a man and a prince, but likewise as an actual king, and to this and other his majesty's kingdoms, in a manner new born, and raised from the dead on this most joyful day; in consideration whereof, this being the day which the Lord himself had made and crowned with so many public signs, and signal deliverances both of his majesty and his people, from all their most deplorable confusions, divisions, wars, devastations, and oppressions; to the end that it may be kept in perpetual remembrance in all ages to come, and that all his majesty's subjects of this realm, and their posterities after them, may annually celebrate the perpetual memory thereof, by sacrificing their unfeigned and public thanks thereon to Almighty God, with one heart and voice, in a devout and Christian manner, for all these public benefits and mercies bestowed and conferred on them upon this most memorable day; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular ministers of God's word and sacraments in every church, chapel, and other usual place of divine service and public prayer, which now are or hereafter shall be within this your majesty's realm of Ireland, and their successors, shall, in all succeeding ages to come, annually cele-

Eng. 12 Car.
2, c. 14.
Power and goodness of God in the king's restoration.

Unanimous votes of both houses, and affection of all subjects.
29th of May,
the day of the king's birth and restoration.

That it may be kept in perpetual remembrance,

all ministers
shall annually
celebrate it.

(1) Expired.

STAT. 14 & 15
CAR. 2, SESS.
4, c. 1. [IR.]

To forbear labour and trades.

All persons to resort to
church, &c.
on said day.

Ministers to give notice the Sunday before,
and publicly
and distinctly read this act.

brate the nine and twentieth day of May, rendering their hearty public thanks and thanksgivings unto Almighty God, for all the afore-mentioned extraordinary mercies, blessings, and deliverances received, and mighty acts done therein; and declare the same to all the people there assembled, that the portions yet to come may for ever praise the Lord for the same, whose name is excellent, and his glory above the heavens; and that all persons do on the said day forbear all bodily labour, and the exercise of their trades.

"III. And be it further enacted, that all and every person and persons inhabiting within this kingdom of Ireland, shall upon the nine and twentieth day of May annually resort with diligence and devotion to some parish church, or public place allowed by authority, where such thanksgivings and praises to God's most divine majesty shall be rendered, and there orderly and devoutly, and during the said public thanksgivings, prayers, preachings, singing of psalms, and celebration of divine service there to be used and ministered.

"IV. And to the end that all persons may be put in mind of their duty, and be the better prepared to discharge the same with that piety and devotion which becomes them, be it further enacted, that every minister, parson, or curate, shall give notice to his parishioners publicly in the church at morning prayer, the Lord's day next before every such twenty-ninth day of May, of the due observation of the said day, and shall then likewise publicly and distinctly read this present act to the people."

STAT. 14 & 15
CAR. 2, SESS.
4, c. 2. [IR.]

XVIII. STAT. 14 & 15 CAROLI 2, SESS. 4, c. 2. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1662.
"An Act for the better Execution of His Majesty's gracious Declaration touching the Settlement of his Kingdom of Ireland, and Satisfaction of the same in the Rights of Adventurers, Soldiers, and other his Subjects there."

[Rights of the church to its temporal possessions ratified and restored.]

STAT. 14 & 15
CAR. 2, SESS.
4, c. 10. [IR.]

XIX. STAT. 14 & 15 CAROLI 2, SESS. 4, c. 10(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1662.
"An Act for real Union and Division of Parishes, and concerning Church, Free Schools, and Exchanges."

STAT. 14 & 15
CAR. 2, SESS.
4, c. 23. [IR.]

XX. STAT. 14 & 15 CAROLI 2, SESS. 4, c. 23. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1662.
"An Act for keeping and celebrating the Twenty-third of October, as an anniversary Thanksgiving in this Kingdom."

Recital of the intended conspiracy, 23 Oct. 1641,

in great part effected,

"Whereas many malignant and rebellious papists and jesuits, friars, and priests, and other superstitious orders of the popish pretended clergy, and generally, treacherously, and wickedly conspired to surprise his majesty's person at Dublin, his majesty's principal fort of this kingdom of Ireland, the city of London, and all other cities and fortifications of this realm, and that all the French and English throughout the whole kingdom that would not join with them should be cut off, and finally by a general rebellion to deprive our late sovereign lord of ever-blessed memory King Charles the First of this his ancient and royal crown and sovereignty of this kingdom, and to possess themselves thereof, which was by the said conspirators plotted and intended to be acted on the twenty-third of October, in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred and forty-one; a conspiracy so generally inhuman, barbarous, and cruel, as like was never before heard of in any age or kingdom, and if it had taken effect, that fulness which was intended by the conspirators, it had occasioned the ruin of this whole kingdom, and the government thereof; and however it pleased Almighty God in his unsearchable wisdom and justice, as a just punishment, to give a deserved correction to his people for their sins, and the sins of this kingdom."

(1) Vide Stat. 9 Ann. c. 12. (1.) Stat. 2 Geo. 4, c. 43. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 58. Stat. 1 Geo. 1, c. 14. (1.) Stat. 10 Geo. 1, c. 6. (1.) 3 Gul. 4, c. 67.
Stat. 1 Geo. 2, c. 19. (1.) Stat. 7 & 8 Geo.

It then and afterwards the effecting of a great part of that destruction commanded by those wicked conspirators, whereby many thousand British and Protestants have been massacred, many thousands of others of them have been tormented and tortured with the most exquisite torments that malice could devise, and all men's estates, as well those whom they barbarously murdered, as their good subjects, were wasted, ruined, and destroyed; yet as his Divine Majesty hath in all ages shown his power and mercy in the miraculous and sudden deliverance of his church, and in the protection of religious kings and so even in the midst of his justice he was graciously pleased to extend his mercy to his majesty and to this his kingdom, and good subjects therein, not only secretly discovering to the then lords justices by one Owen O'Connelly, a Irishman, but trained up in the Protestant religion, who out of a sense of his loyalty to his majesty, and for the preservation of his good people, and effect of that religion he was trained up in, revealed that hideous and bloody conspiracy not many hours before the appointed time for the execution thereof, but in preserving the said castle and city of Dublin, and some other cities, towns, castles in the kingdom, from the bloody hands of the barbarous conspirators, so in thereby rendering deliverance of the lives of the said lords justices and council, and of all the British and Protestants in Dublin, and in the said other cities, towns, and castles, preserved, and of sundry other British and Protestants who were into the hands of those rebellious conspirators, and likewise in sending us out of England hither, by the piety, care, and wisdom, of our late sign lord King Charles the First, whereby with God's blessing the good subjects of this kingdom have hitherto continued safe under his mighty protection, withstanding the unexampled rage and implacable malice of those merciless conspirators. Wherefore, as we do most humbly and justly acknowledge God's justice and deserved punishments in those calamities, which, from the counsels and actions of those conspirators and their adherents, have fallen upon us in this kingdom in general, so we do in like manner acknowledge, that even in exercising of his justice he remembered mercy also, and magnified his mercies to us in the great blessings which we humbly confess to have proceeded merely from his goodness and mercy, and therefore to his most holy name we do ascribe all his glory, and praise: and to the end this unfeigned thankfulness may never be forgotten, but may be had in a perpetual remembrance, that all ages to come may praise his divine majesty for the same, and have in memory that day of deliverance; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent Majesty, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that the twenty-third day of October shall be kept and celebrated as an anniversary holy-day in this kingdom for ever, and that all persons do at that day forbear all bodily labour, and exercise of their trades; and that all and singular ministers in every cathedral parish church, or other usual place for common prayer, within this realm of Ireland, shall always upon the twenty-third day of October say morning prayer, give thanks to Almighty God for that most happy and miraculous deliverance and preservation far above the expectations of those wretched conspirators; and that all and every person and persons inhabiting within this realm of Ireland shall on the twenty-third day of October, diligently and faithfully resort to parish church or chapel accustomed, or to some usual church or chapel where morning prayer, preaching, or other service of God shall be used, and then there abide orderly and soberly during the time of the said prayers, preaching, and other service of God there to be used and ministered.

And because all and every person may be put in mind of his duty, and be the better prepared to the said holy service; be it enacted by the authority of the said parliament, that every minister shall give warning to his parishioners publicly in church at morning prayer, the Lord's day next before every such twenty-third day of October, for the due observation of the said day; and that after morning prayer and preaching upon every such twenty-third of October, they read publicly, distinctly, and plainly, this present act."

STAT. 14 & 15
 CAR. 2. SESS.
 4, c. 23. [12.]

discovered by Owen O'Con-
 nelly.

The castle and city of Dublin
 and others thereby preserved.

23rd October to be kept as an anniversary
 holy day for ever.
 Labour and trades prohibited.

All persons to resort to church

Warning given by the minister the Sunday
 before.

and this act
 read on the day

STAT. 14 & 15
CAR. 2, SESS.
4, c. 24. [IR.]

XXI. STAT. 14 & 15 CAROLI 2, SESS. 4, c. 24. [IRELAND.] A.D.
"An Act for the granting of Eight Subsidies by the Prelates and of Ireland."

STAT. 15 CAR.
2, c. 5.

XXII. STAT. 15 CAROLI 2, c. 5(1). A.D. 1663.
"An Act for regulating Select Vestries."

STAT. 15 CAR.
2, c. 6.

XXIII. STAT. 15 CAROLI 2, c. 6(2). A.D. 1663.
"An Act for Relief of such Persons as by Sickness or other Impediment disabled from subscribing the Declaration in the Act of Uniformity, pianation of part of the said Act."

STAT. 15 CAR.
2, c. 17.

XXIV. STAT. 15 CAROLI 2, c. 17(3). A.D. 1663.
"An Act for settling the Draining of the great Level of the Fens Bedford Level."

[Ecclesiastical persons, being lords of manors in the levels drain demise them for twenty-one years, with a reserved rent of the fourth part value.]

STAT. 16 CAR.
2, c. 4.

XXV. STAT. 16 CAROLI 2, c. 4(4). A.D. 1664.
"An Act to prevent and suppress seditious Conventicles."

STAT. 16 & 17
CAR. 2, c. 1.

XXVI. STAT. 16 & 17 CAROLI 2, c. 1(5). A.D. 1664.
"An Act for granting a Royal Aid unto the King's Majesty."

STAT. 17 CAR.
2, c. 2.

XXVII. STAT. 17 CAROLI 2, c. 2(6). A.D. 1665.
"An Act for restraining Nonconformists from inhabiting in Corporate Towns."

STAT. 17 CAR.
2, c. 3.

XXVIII. STAT. 17 CAROLI 2, c. 3(7). A.D. 1665.
"An Act for uniting Churches in Cities and Towns Corporate."

STAT. 17 CAR.
2, c. 8.

XXIX. STAT. 17 CAROLI 2, c. 8. A.D. 1665.
"An Act for avoiding unnecessary Suits and Delays."

"II. . . . Where any judgment after a verdict shall be had, the name of any executor or administrator; in such case an administrator bonis non (8) may sue forth a scire facias (9), and take execution on judgment."

(1) Expired.

(2) Ibid.

(3) Ibid.

(4) Ibid.

(5) Ibid. Spiritual promotions being rated by this statute to the subsidy of the laity, they were discharged from the last two subsidies granted by the clergy, which was in consideration of the clergy's being then first taxed, together with the laity, to the royal aid.

(6) Repealed by Stat. 52 Geo. 3, c. 155,
s. 1.

(7) Repealed by Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106,
s. 15.

(8) Administrator de bonis non.—If a person die intestate, and administration be granted to one who dies without having administered all the intestate's effects, the ordinary may grant administration of the goods unadministered to another. Grays- brook v. Fox, Plowd. 279. Reed v. Stabile, Vaugh. 162. And a scire facias can be exercised, in certain cases, when an executor dies. 1 Williams on Executors 364. Stephens on Nisi Prius, 10.

(9) May sue forth a scire facias.—If this statute, an administrator de bonis non could not have had a scire facias for judgment obtained by an executor or administrator, for he came to the judgment, and was no party. Snope v. Norgate, Cro. Car. 163.
Gough, Yelv. 33. Since this has been held, that if an execution commenced by an administrator, perfected by an administrator de bonis non. Clerk v. Withers, 1 Salk. 523. 2 1072.

XXX. STAT. 17 & 18 CAROLI 2, c. 2. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1665.

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 2.
[IR.]

Act for the explaining of some Doubts arising upon an Act intituled, An Act for the better execution of His Majesty's gracious Declaration for the Settlement of his Kingdom of Ireland, and Satisfaction of the several Interests of Adventurers, Soldiers, and other his Subjects there, and for making some Alterations and Additions unto the said Act, for the more speedy and effectual Settlement of the said Kingdom."

Lands, &c. of the University of Dublin, or of ecclesiastical persons in politic city, or college, hospital, churchwardens, corporations, parsons, or of any person whose estates excepted out of former vesting clause, not to vest in the king: Commissioners to make books of the two-thirds, augmentation of bishoprics, and of glebes, &c.: Augmentation of bishoprics out of fee-farm lands to be taken of them, as thentofore: Lands not lying within security set apart for the persons serving before 1649, or otherwise disposed of by letters patent, to bishops for augmentation, to be surveyed: If not exceeding the value of augmentation added, to be enjoyed under such patents: In lieu of the provision for glebes thentofore, so many acres more to be set out as to supply every parochial church with ten at least, except so endowed already: Forfeited fee-farms and impropriations to remain in possession of the bishops and incumbents till their augmentations and glebes set out, afterwards the fee-farms to use as thentofore: Impropriations to be vested in incumbents, subject to reservation, as thentofore: Conveyances by bishops of augmentations, except for twenty-one years or three lives, from commencement, and whereon a full moiety of improved rent as was worth reserved, to be void: Lands settled on the Bishop of Cloyne, which were bequeathed to King Charles 1, by Sir John Fitz-Edmund Gerald: Except impropriations and impropriations settled on incumbents serving cure: Presentation to churches to be in the king's patronage; residue of such lands to vest in the king: Papists not to have advowsons, presentation to benefices, &c. but to be reserved in the king till conformity.]

XXXI. STAT. 17 & 18 CAROLI 2, c. 3. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1665.

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 3.
[IR.]

"An Act for the Confirmation of Marriages."

XXXII. STAT. 17 & 18 CAROLI 2, c. 6. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1665.

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 6.
[IR.]

An Act for the Uniformity of Public Prayers and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies, and for establishing the Form of making, ordaining, and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, in the Church of Ireland."

"Whereas nothing conduceth more to the honour of God, the settling of the religion of a nation, which is desired of all good men, nor to the advancement of Religion, than an universal agreement in the public worship of Almighty God; and to the intent that we, his majesty's subjects of this his kingdom of Ireland, may in this church of Ireland hold the same conformity of common prayers, and administration of the sacraments, and other the rites and ceremonies of the church, according to the use of the church of England, together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, pointed as they are to be sung or said in churches, and the form and manner of making, ordaining, or consecrating of bishops, priests, and deacons, which was recommended unto both houses of convocation here assembled in Ireland, to consider whether the same form of public worship might not be profitably received, as the public form of divine service in this your majesty's kingdom of Ireland: whereupon both houses of convocation did diligently consider the same, and after mature consideration, well weighing the great advantages that necessarily arise unto the whole kingdom from the uniformity of public prayers, did fully approve and allow the same, and have exhibited and presented

Eng. 13 & 14
CAR. 2, c. 4.
Peace, and advancement of religion by universal agreement in public worship
of God.

Both houses of convocation, to whom it was recommended to consider whether the same form

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 6.
[1r.]

used in England might not be profitably received in Ireland, approved thereof,
and presented to lord lieutenant and council the Book
of Common Prayer.

Said book, to this act annexed,
shall be used in all places of public worship.

All ministers
enjoying ecclesiastical benefices, to read and declare assent to use
the same,

On pain of
deprivation.

unto your majesty's lord lieutenant and council here in Ireland, one book annexed, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the use of the Church of Ireland, together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, pointed as they are to be sung or said in Churches; and the Form or Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons.' Therefore to the intent that the greatly desirable work of uniformity in divine worship may be effected, that every person within this your majesty's realm of Ireland may certify the rule to which he is to conform in public worship and administration of the Sacraments, and other rites and ceremonies of the church of Ireland; and the how and by whom bishops, priests, and deacons, are and ought to be ordained, and consecrated: may it please your majesty that it be enacted, by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons in this parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular persons in any cathedral, collegiate or parish church or chapel, or other place of public worship within this realm of Ireland, shall be bound to say and use the same prayer, evening prayer, celebration and administration of both the sacraments, and all other the public and common prayer, in such order and form as is contained in the said book annexed and joined to this present act, and intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the use of the Church of Ireland, together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, pointed as they are to be sung or said in Churches; and the Form and Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons:' and that the morning and evening prayer contained shall upon every Lord's day, and upon all other days and occasions at the times therein appointed, be openly and solemnly read by all ministers or curates in every church, chapel, or other place of public worship within this his majesty's realm of Ireland.

"II. And to the end that uniformity in the public worship of God, so much desired, may be speedily effected, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every parson, vicar, or other minister whatsoever, who shall and enjoyeth any ecclesiastical benefice or promotion within this realm of Ireland, shall in the church, chapel, or place of public worship, belonging to such benefice or promotion, upon some Lord's day before the feast day of the Annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, which shall be in the year of our Lord God, one thousand six hundred sixty and seven, openly, publicly, and solemnly read the morning and evening prayer appointed by this act to be read, by and according to the Book of Common Prayer, at the times thereby appointed: and after the reading thereof, shall openly and publicly before the congregation there assembled declare his unfeigned assent and consent to the use of all things in the said book contained and prescribed, in these words, and no other:

"I, A. B., do hereby declare my unfeigned assent and consent to the use of everything contained and prescribed in and by the book, intituled, 'The Book of Common Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the use of the Church of Ireland, together with the Psalter or Psalms of David, pointed as they are to be sung or said in Churches; and the Form and Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons.'

"And that all and every such person, who shall, without some lawful impediment to be allowed and approved of by the ordinary of the place, neglect to do the same within the time aforesaid, or in case of such impediment, one month after such impediment removed, shall (ipso facto) be deprived of all spiritual promotions; and that from thenceforth it shall be lawful to all patrons and donors of all and singular the said spiritual promotions, to present, according to their respective right and titles, to present or collate to any such person, as though the person or persons so offending or neglecting were dead.

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 6.
[1a.]

Altered by
4 Geo. 1, c. 3.

Subscription,
before vice-chancellor, &c.

Penalty for not subscribing, to be disabled
and deprived.

Schoolmasters
and private tutors to take oath of allegiance and
supremacy,
and before they teach obtain licence from
the ordinary,
paying 12d.
only.

Penalty on them.

Parsons, &c.
to procure certificate from
the ordinary,
and publicly
read the same with the declaration,
on pain of
deprivation.

Part of the declaration to be omitted
after 1682.

taking arms by his authority against his person, or against those that are commissioned by him; and that I will conform to the liturgy of the church of England as it is now by law established; and I do declare that I do hold, that there is no obligation upon me, or on any other person, from the oath commonly called The Solemn League and Covenant, to endeavour any change or alteration of government, either in church or state, and that the same was in itself an unlawful oath.'

"Which said declaration and acknowledgment shall be subscribed by the said masters, and other heads, fellows, chaplains, and tutors, of every college, hall, or house of learning, which are or shall be within this kingdom, by every public professor and reader in any university, college, or college hall, or his or their deputies; and the said declaration or acknowledgment shall be subscribed before the respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, by every other person hereby enjoined to subscribe the same; upon pain that every the persons aforesaid, failing in or refusing such subscription, shall forfeit such his respective deanery, dignity, canonry, prebend, mastership, headship, fellowship, professor's place, reader's place, parsonage, ecclesiastical dignity or promotion, curate's place, lecture, and school, and shall be utterly disabled and (ipso facto) deprived of the same; and such respective deanery, canonry, prebend, mastership, headship, fellowship, professor's place, reader's place, parsonage, vicarage, ecclesiastical dignity or promotion, curate's place, lecture, and school, shall be void, as if such person failing or refusing were naturally dead.

"VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every master, or other person instructing or teaching youth in any private family, as a tutor or schoolmaster, be required to take the oath of allegiance and supremacy, which oath is to be administered by the ordinary; and if a master or other person, instructing or teaching youth in any private family as a tutor or schoolmaster, shall instruct or teach any youth as a schoolmaster, before licence obtained from his respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, according to the laws and statutes of this kingdom, which he shall pay twelve pence only, and before such subscription or acknowledgment made as aforesaid, and before such taking of the oath of allegiance and supremacy as aforesaid; then every such schoolmaster and other, instructing or teaching as aforesaid, shall, for the first offence, suffer three months' imprisonment without bail or mainprize; and for every second and other such offence, suffer three months' imprisonment without bail or mainprize, and also pay to his majesty the sum of five pounds; and after such subscription made, every parson, vicar, curate, and lecturer, shall procure a certificate under the seal of the respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, who is enjoined and required, upon demand, to make and deliver the same, and publicly and openly read the same, together with the declaration or acknowledgment aforesaid, upon some Lord's day within three months then next ensuing in his parish church where he is to officiate, in the presence of the congregation there assembled, in the time of divine service; upon pain that every person therein shall lose such parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, curate's place, or lecturer's place respectively, and shall be utterly disabled, and (ipso facto) deprived of the same; and that the said parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, curate's place, or lecturer's place, shall be void as if he were naturally dead.

"VII. Provided always, that from and after the twenty-fifth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred and eighty-two, there shall be omitted in the said declaration or acknowledgment subscribed and read, these words following, scilicet:

"And I do declare, that I do hold, that there lies no obligation on any other person, from the oath commonly called The Solemn League and Covenant, to endeavour any change or alteration of government either in church or state, or that the same was in itself an unlawful oath.'

none of the persons aforesaid shall from thenceforth be at all obliged to read that part of the said declaration or acknowledgment.

Provided always, and be it enacted, that from and after the twenty-ninth of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and seven, no person, who now is incumbent and in possession of a parsonage, vicarage, or benefice, and who is not already in holy orders by episcopal ordination, or shall not before the said twenty-ninth day of September be a priest or deacon, according to the form of episcopal ordination, shall be or enjoy the said parsonage, vicarage, benefice with cure, or other ecclesiastical promotion within this kingdom of Ireland, but shall be utterly disabled (ipso facto) deprived of the same, and all his ecclesiastical promotion void, as if he were naturally dead.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person shall thenceforth be capable to be admitted to any parsonage, vicarage, or other ecclesiastical promotion or dignity whatsoever; nor shall pre-consecrate and administer the holy sacrament of the Lord's supper, before as he shall be ordained priest, according to the form and manner in and by the said book prescribed, unless he have formerly been made priest by episcopal consecration; upon pain to forfeit, for every offence, the sum of one hundred pounds, the moiety thereof to the king's majesty; the other moiety thereof to be divided between the poor of the parish where the offence shall be committed: such person or persons as shall sue for the same by action of debt, or information in any of his majesty's courts of record, wherein no protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, and to be disabled from being admitted into the order of priest, by the space of one whole year following.

Provided always, that no title to confer or present by lapse shall accrue by avoidance or deprivation (ipso facto) by virtue of this statute, but after six months' notice of such avoidance or deprivation given by the ordinary to the incumbent, such sentence of deprivation openly and publicly read in the parish where the benefice, parsonage, or vicarage becoming void, or whereof the incumbent shall be deprived by virtue of this act.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no form or manner of common prayers, administration of sacraments, rites, or ceremonies, shall be used in any church, chapel, or other public place, of or in any college or university, college, or colleges within this realm, or any of them, but what is prescribed and appointed to be used in and by the said book; and the present governor, or head of every college and hall in the university, or of any said college or colleges, within one month after the twenty-ninth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and seven, and every governor, or head of any of the said colleges or halls, shall be elected or appointed, within one month next after his election or appointment, and admission into the same government or headship, shall openly and publicly read the said book, or other public place of the same college or hall, in the presence of the fellows and scholars of the same, or the greater part of them, and subscribe to the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion agreed upon by the bishops and bishops and the whole clergy in the convocation holden at London, in the year of our Lord one thousand five hundred sixty and two, for the settling of diversities of opinion, and for establishing of consent touching true religion, and unto the said book, and declare his unfeigned assent and consent to the approbation of the said articles, and of the same book, and to the use of the said rites, rites, and ceremonies, forms and orders in the said book prescribed and appointed, according to the form aforesaid; and that all such governors or heads of the said colleges and halls, or any of them, as are or shall be in holy orders, shall once at least in every quarter of the year, not having a lawful impediment, openly and publicly read the morning prayer and service in and by the said book appointed to be read in the church, chapel, or other public place of the same college or hall; upon pain to lose and be suspended of and from all the bene-

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 6.
[Ire.]

Persons not ordained
according to episcopal ordination, not to hold any ecclesiastical
promotion,

Nor consecrate and administer
the sacrament.

Penalty 100*l.*,
half to the king, half to poor of the parish and informer, and disability for one year.

No title by lapse to accrue
by such deprivation, but after six months' notice
by ordinary,
or the public reading the sentence.

No other form
of prayer or rites shall be openly used in church, &c.

Heads of colleges in one month shall read and subscribe the Thirty-nine Articles agreed upon in convocation at London, 1562,
for avoiding diversity of opinion, and declare his assent, and if in holy orders, shall once a quarter
publicly read
said service.
Penalty, suspension six

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 6.
[Ib.]

months by the visitor;

If not done in six months after, the head-
ship void.

Said penalties
not to extend to aliens of foreign reformed
churches
allowed.

Where service in Latin may be used.

No lecturer or preacher allowed till thereto
licensed.

Shall read and
declare his assent to the Thirty-nine Articles and Book of Common Prayer,

on pain of disability.

If in cathedral
or collegiate churches, sufficient to declare assent to said book.

Penalty of preaching
during disability, three months' imprisonment.

fits and profits belonging to the said government or headship by the space of six months, by the visitor or visitors of the same college or hall; and if any governor or head of any college or hall suspended for not subscribing unto the said articles and book, or for not reading of the morning prayer and service aforesaid, shall not at or before the end of six months next after such suspension, subscribe to the said articles and book, and declare his consent thereunto as aforesaid, or read the morning prayer and service as aforesaid, then such government or headship shall be (ipso facto) void; provided that the penalties in this act shall not extend to foreigners or aliens of the foreign reformed churches allowed or to be allowed by the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, in this kingdom.

"XII. Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful to use the morning and evening prayer, and all other prayers and services prescribed in and by the said book, in the chapels or other public places of any colleges, halls, or universities within this realm, and in the convocations of the clergy, in Latin; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person shall be or be received as a lecturer, or permitted, suffered, or allowed to preach as a lecturer, or to preach or read any sermon or lecture in any church, chapel, or other place of public worship within this realm of Ireland, unless he be first approved and thereunto licensed by the archbishop of the province, or bishop of the diocese, or (in case the see be void) by the guardian of the spiritualities, or his seal, and shall in the presence of the same archbishop, or bishop, or guardian read the Nine and thirty Articles of Religion above mentioned, with declaration of his unfeigned assent to the same; and that every person and persons, who shall or hereafter shall be licensed, assigned, appointed, or received as a lecturer to preach upon any day of the week in any church, chapel, or place of public worship within this realm of Ireland, the first time he preacheth, before his assent shall openly, publicly, and solemnly read the common prayers and service in and by the said book appointed to be read for that time of the day, and then and there publicly and openly declare his assent unto and approbation of the said book, and to the use of all the prayers, rites, and ceremonies, forms and orders therein contained and prescribed, according to the form before appointed in this act; and he shall upon the first lecture day of every month afterwards, so long as he continues lecturer or preacher there, at the place appointed for his said lecture or sermon, before his said lecture or sermon, openly, publicly, and solemnly read the common prayers and service in and by the said book appointed to be read for that time of the day at which the said lecture or sermon is to be preached, and after such reading thereof shall openly and publicly, before the congregation there assembled, declare his unfeigned assent and consent unto and approbation of the said book, and to the use of all the prayers, rites, and ceremonies, forms and orders therein contained and prescribed, according to the form aforesaid; and that all and every such person and persons, who shall neglect or refuse to do the same, shall from thenceforth be disabled to preach the said or any other lecture or sermon in the said or any other church, chapel, or place of public worship, until such time as he and they shall openly, publicly, and solemnly read the common prayers and service appointed by the said book, and conform in all points to the things therein appointed and prescribed, according to the purport, true intent, and meaning of this act.

"XIV. Provided always, that if the said sermon or lecture be to be preached or read in any cathedral or collegiate church or chapel, it shall be sufficient for the said lecturer, openly at the time aforesaid, to declare his assent and consent to the things contained in the said book, according to the form aforesaid.

"XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person who is by this act disabled to preach any lecture or sermon, shall, during the time that he shall continue and remain so disabled, preach any sermon or lecture, and then, for every such offence, the person and persons so offending shall suffer three months' imprisonment in the common gaol, without bail or mainprize, and that any two justices of the peace of any county of this kingdom, and the mayor of

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 6.
[1R.]

Subscriptions to said articles
shall be construed to extend, as to the thirty-sixth article, to the Book containing Form of ordaining and consecrating,
as heretofore
to the Book
set forth in time of Edw. 6,
in said thirty-
sixth article.

of opinions, and for establishing of consent touching true religion, is in these words following, viz.,

“That the Book of Consecration of Archbishops and Bishops, and ordaining of Priests and Deacons, lately set forth in the time of King Edward the Sixth, confirmed at the same time by authority of Parliament, do contain all things necessary to such consecration and ordaining; neither hath it anything that itself is superstitious and ungodly, and therefore whosoever are consecrated or ordered, according to the rites of that book, since the second year of the then named King Edward unto this time, or hereafter shall be consecrated or ordered, according to the same rites, we decree all such to be rightly ordered, and lawfully consecrated and ordered.”

“It be enacted, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all subscriptions hereafter to be had or made unto the said articles by any priest, or ecclesiastical person, or other person whatsoever, who by this act, or any other law now in force, is required to subscribe unto the said articles, shall be construed and be taken to extend, and shall be applied for and touching the said and thirtieth article, unto the Book containing the Form and Manner of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, in this act mentioned, in such sort and manner as the same did heretofore extend unto the Book which in the time of King Edward the Sixth, mentioned in the said six and thirtieth article; anything in the said article, or in any statute, act, or canon, heretofore had or made to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.”

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 7.
[1R.]

XXXIII. STAT. 17 & 18 CAROLI 2, c. 7 (1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1661.

“An Act for Provision of Ministers in Cities, Corporate Towns, and within the Church of St. Andrew's, in the Suburbs of the City of Dublin, permanent for ever.”

STAT. 17 & 18
CAR. 2, c. 10.
[1R.]

No person to hold ecclesiastical dignity or benefice in England and Ireland at same time.

XXXIV. STAT. 17 & 18 CAROLI 2, c. 10. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1665.

“An Act for disabling of Spiritual Persons from holding Benefices or other Ecclesiastical Dignities in England or Wales, and in Ireland, at the same time.”

“Whereas divers spiritual persons who have benefices, or other ecclesiastical dignities or promotions in his majesty's kingdom of England, or the dominion of Wales, do commonly accept of and retain bishoprics, or other ecclesiastical dignities, benefices, or promotions, in this his majesty's kingdom of Ireland, the duties of both which in the said several kingdoms they are in no ways able to discharge whereby the service of God and his worship is in many places of this kingdom neglected: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and every person and persons having any bishopric, benefice, or other ecclesiastical dignity or promotion in his majesty's kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales, shall, after the twenty-fourth day of June, in the year one thousand six hundred sixty and six, and during the time of his holding and enjoying the same, be wholly incapable of holding or enjoying any bishopric, or other ecclesiastical dignity, benefice, or promotion, in this kingdom of Ireland, and that from and after the four and twentieth day of June in the year one thousand six hundred sixty and six, all grants and presentations of any bishoprics, or other ecclesiastical dignities, benefices, or promotions in this kingdom, to any person or persons at the time of such grant or presentation, having or enjoying any bishopric, or other ecclesiastical benefice, dignity, or promotion, in his majesty's kingdom of England, shall be and is hereby declared to be null and void to all intents and purposes whatsoever, in such and the like manner as if such bishop, incumbent, or dignitary, had died or resigned; and that from thenceforth it shall and may be lawful to and for the king's most excellent majesty, and all other

(1) Vide Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 34.

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 6.

XL. STAT. 22 CAROLI 2, c. 6(1). A.D. 1670.

"An Act for advancing the Sale of Fee-farm Rents and other Rents [Fee-farm rents given to schools and hospitals shall be paid.]

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 11.

XLI. STAT. 22 CAROLI 2, c. 11. A.D. 1670.

"An additional Act for the rebuilding of the City of London, uniting of Parishes and rebuilding of the Cathedral and Parochial Churches within the said City"

How the money received by means of the several impositions shall be disposed.

"XXXIX. And be it further enacted, that all and every sum and money which shall be raised upon the receipt of the several and respective impositions aforesaid, or by such additional duty in case of concealment thereof, the aforesaid act is appointed, shall be employed and disposed in manner and following; (that is to say,) three fourth parts of all the monies which, from after the said first day of May, one thousand six hundred seventy, and before the said twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred seventy and seven, shall be raised or payable upon the receipt of the aforesaid imposition of two shillings for every chaldron or ton of coals, or in case of concealment thereof as aforesaid, shall be employed and disposed for and towards the rebuilding, erecting, or repairing of the said parish churches respectively, according to such order and direction as by the lord archbishop of Canterbury, the lord bishop, and lord mayor of London for the time being, or any two of them, shall be given in that behalf, the same shall from time to time be issued out and paid accordingly, unto such person and persons as they, or any two of them, shall, by warrant under their hands and seals, for that purpose direct and appoint: and the other fourth residue thereof, shall be employed for and towards the giving satisfaction to the grounds set out and employed for enlarging of the streets, making of wharfs, public market places, and other public uses, in this and the aforesaid act mentioned and appointed: and that one moiety of all monies which from and after the said twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred seventy and seven, shall be raised or payable upon the aforesaid imposition of three shillings for every chaldron or ton of coals, or in case of concealment thereof as aforesaid, shall be employed and disposed for and towards the rebuilding, erecting, and repairing of the said respective parish churches, by such order and direction, and to be issued out and paid by such warrant, of the said lord archbishop of Canterbury, lord bishop, and lord mayor of London for the time being, as aforesaid; and the other moiety thereof shall from time to time be employed and disposed for the giving satisfaction to the grounds set out and employed as aforesaid, and such other public uses and purposes as in this and the aforesaid act are mentioned and appointed."

One-fourth part of the whole may be employed in the repair of St. Paul's church.

"XLI. Provided always, and be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the lord archbishop of Canterbury, the lord bishop of London, and lord mayor of London for the time being, or any two of them, as aforesaid, to employ or cause to be employed for and towards the building or repairing the cathedral church of St. Paul, one fourth part of the money by this act given and appointed for the building, erecting, or repairing of the parish churches aforesaid."

Farther provisions relating hereto, 1 Jac. 2, c. 15.

Paul's school new built by the company of mercers upon part of St. Paul's churchyard, and confirmed to them.

"LVIII. And whereas the wardens and commonalty of the mystery of mercers of the city of London are now building, pursuant to a design appointed by his majesty, a new school-house, with houses thereto adjoining, for the accommodation of the master, sub-master, and chaplain thereof, partly upon the site of the late school called Saint Paul's School, and the former houses of the said masters and chaplain, and partly upon some ground next adjoining, being the churchyard belonging to the cathedral church of Saint Paul's, London, and whereas other parts of the former site of the said late school, and of other grounds adjoining, have been also by his majesty's directions cut off and laid into the churchyard, for the enlargement and accommodation of the passage at the entrance of the said cathedral; be it therefore enacted, that so much of the said

(1) Expired.

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 11.

Silver street, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Alban's Wood street, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Anne and Agnes, and Saint John Zachary, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Anne and Agnes shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Austin's and Saint Faith's shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Austin's shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Andrew Wardrobe, and Saint Anne Blackfriars, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Andrew Wardrobe shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Antholin's and Saint John Baptist shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Antholin's shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Bennet Gracechurch, and Saint Leonard Eastcheap, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Bennet Gracechurch, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Bennet Paul's wharf, and Saint Peter Paul's wharf, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Bennet Paul's wharf shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Christchurch and Saint Leonard Foster lane, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Christchurch shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Edmund the King and Saint Nicholas Acons shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Edmund the King shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint George Botolph lane, and Saint Botolph Billingsgate, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint George Botolph lane, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Lawrence Jury, and Saint Magdalen's Milk street, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Lawrence Jury shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Magnus and Saint Margaret, New Fish street, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Magnus shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Michael Royal, and Saint Martin Vintry, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Michael Royal shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Matthew Friday street, and Saint Peter's Cornhill, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Matthew Friday street, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Margaret Patten's, and Saint Giles Fenchurch, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Margaret Patten's shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Atthill, and Saint Andrew Hubbard, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Atthill shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Wolnoth, and Saint Mary Woolchurch, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Wolnoth, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Clement Eastcheap, and Saint Martin's Organs, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Clement Eastcheap, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Abchurch, and Saint Lawrence Poultry, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Abchurch, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Aldermanbury, and Saint Thomas Acon, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Aldermanbury, shall be the parish church of the said parishes

so united: the parishes of Saint Mary le Bow, Saint Pancras Soaper lane, and Alhallows Honey lane, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary le Bow shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mildred's Poultry, and Saint Mary Cole-church, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mildred's Poultry, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Michael Wood street, and Saint Mary Staining, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Michael Wood street, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mildred Bread street, and Saint Margaret Moses, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mildred Bread street, shall be the parish church of the parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Michael Queenhithe, and Trinity, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Michael Queenhithe, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Magdalen's Old Fish street, and Saint Gregory's, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Magdalen's Old Fish street, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Somerset, and Saint Mary Munthaw, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Somerset, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Nicholas Cole Abby, and Saint Nicholas Olave's, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Nicholas Cole Abby, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Olave's Jury, and Saint Martin's Pomroy, alias Ironmonger lane, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Olave's Jury shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Stephen Walbrook, and Saint Bennet Sherhog, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Stephen Walbrook, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Swithin and Saint Mary Bothaw shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Swithin shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Vedast, alias Saint Foster's, and Saint Michael Quern, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Vedast, alias Saint Foster's, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united.

"LXIV. And it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the said respective churches to be rebuilt within the said city of London and liberties thereof, shall be built and erected according to such models, and of such dimensions, and in such manner and form in all respects, as by the said lord archbishop of Canterbury, lord bishop of London, and lord mayor of London for the time being, (with his majesty's approbation thereof,) shall be directed and appointed: and the said respective parishes herein before mentioned and appointed to be united as aforesaid, shall for ever hereafter remain and continue so united and consolidated and annexed unto the several and respective parish churches by this act appointed to be rebuilt as aforesaid; and the respective parishioners, and the inhabitants of the said several parishes so to be united as aforesaid by force of this present act, shall hereafter resort to the said churches respectively, as to their proper parish church: and all tithes and other duties heretofore due and payable to the respective incumbents of the said parish churches respectively, shall hereafter be paid and payable to the incumbent of that church only, which by this act is appointed to be rebuilt and established for the parish church of the parishes so united as aforesaid.

"LXV. And be it further enacted, that all plate and goods heretofore belonging to any of the churchwardens of any of the parishes of those burnt down, which are not now to be rebuilt, for the use of the said churches, shall be enjoyed by the respective churchwardens, and their successors, of the respective parishes of such churches to be rebuilt respectively, whereunto the said other churches burnt

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 11.

The same parish churches shall be rebuilt according to models appointed by the archbishop of Canterbury, bishop of London, and lord mayor of London, with the king's approbation.

Plate and goods belonging to churches not to be rebuilt, shall be enjoyed by the churchwardens, &c. of those rebuilt.

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 11.

Churchyards
to be inclosed

down are united by this act, to the use of the said churches and parishes respectively.

"LXVI. Provided always, that the sites of the churches (1) to be demolished and the churchyards belonging to the same, shall be inclosed with brick or stone

(1) Sites of the churches:—It has been previously stated in the text, (s. 63.) that the parish church of St. Martin Orgars, [This epithet, "Orgars," is derived by Newcourt, from Odgarus, or Ordgarus, the probable founder of the church; who gave it to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, still its patrons, about the year 1185.] together with that of the adjoining parish, St. Clement, Eastcheap, was destroyed by the fire of London, in 1666; and that the parishes of St. Clement, Eastcheap, and St. Martin Orgars, were to be united into one parish; and that the church theofore belonging to St. Clement, Eastcheap, was to be the parish church of the said parishes so united. And by this section, (66.) it was in effect provided, that the site of the church of St. Martin Orgars, and the churchyard belonging to the same, should be inclosed with brick or stone walls for a burial place for the said united parishes, and should not be used or employed for any other purpose.

From Steeven & Hollak v. St. Martin Orgars (Parish of), (2 Add. 255.) it appears, that the rector and churchwardens of such parish, by lease, bearing date the 3rd of February, 1699, demised or granted the piece of ground whereon the church of St. Martin Orgars had formerly stood, to certain persons, (as trustees for certain French refugees of the protestant religion, who had previously assembled, first, at a house in Jewin Street, and afterwards, at a house on College Hill, in virtue of letters patent under the great seal of England, [Granted originally to Peter Alix, clerk, and such other French refugees of the protestant religion, (very numerous, and becoming daily more so, at that time, in consequence of the then recent revocation of the Edict of Nantz,) "as should join themselves with him."]) bearing date the 16th of June, in the 2nd year of King James 2,) in order to erect a church for the performance of divine service, and the celebration of the holy sacraments, or other rites of the church, in the French language, but according to the liturgy of the church of England; saving to the rector and churchwardens of the said parish, their right of burial therein, and all fees in respect thereof. This lease, which was for fifty years, with powers of renewal, as covenanted in the same, and at a reserved rent of 35*l.* per annum, was confirmed by a private act, 11 & 12 Gul. 3, No. 54.

A church was, accordingly, built, partly, it should seem, upon the old foundation: and continued from that time, in the occupation of French protestants, descendants, probably, of those for whose use it was originally erected, at first, by renewal of their lease, and, latterly, as yearly tenants, till Christmas, 1723, when possession of the same was delivered up to the churchwardens of St. Martin Orgars; who, in consequence of the dilapidated state of the building, were authorized, by order of vestry, to take down the same, preserving the vaults beneath, as still to form part of the burial-place of the inhabitants of the said parish.

Under these circumstances, a decree was issued, at the promotion of the said churchwardens, calling upon the rector, parson, and inhabitants, of the parish of St. Martin Orgars, in special, and all others a general, having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in the premises, to appear and show cause, why a faculty should not be granted to the churchwardens for the purpose aforesaid. At the usual intimation: which citation having been duly published in the church of St. Clement, Eastcheap, and returned without any appearance given, the judge was now empowered to decree a faculty pursuant to the said citation.

Upon these facts, the judge, Sir Christopher Robinson, observed, "The court was posed, on the whole, to accede to the present application, unwilling as it is, upon public considerations, to sanction the utter destruction of any building, which has something at least, of the character of a national church. [The court observed, that the act of King William had scarcely impressed that character permanently upon it, although, in confirming the lease, &c. it provided, that before the building to be erected should be made use of for purposes of divine worship, it should be decently fitted and adorned; dated; and so furnished and adorned as the Archbishop of Canterbury and the bishops of London, for the time being, or some of them, should direct and appoint.] Question, however, such being the character of the building, the necessity for any faculty to satisfy the parishioners in taking it down. At the same time, it could wish the building to stand over, in order to afford the parties time to consider, whether the building, which is a spacious building, and the site of which court has ascertained by its own inspection, in a state of visible decay, and in need of repair, and made subservient to other uses (for instance, as a national school, to the church establishment, its appropriation to this sort the court might feel disposed to sanction, under at least, the authority of the private act of King William the Third. In the event of the building being wholly demolished, the site can only be used for a burial-place; and can be devoted to no other use whatever, under the express provisions of the act of King William the Third.

"Let this matter stand over till next term, in which interval, an accurate survey shall be made of the state of the building, and the parish may have time to consider, or to reconsider, the propriety of applying it at the capacity of the building to be applied, as may walls for burial places for the parishes formerly belonging to the same, and the parishes to which they are respectively united as aforesaid, and not used or employed for any other purpose whatsoever; excepting such of the sites and churchyards, or parts of sites and churchyards of the said parish churches so demolished as aforesaid, as are already laid into the streets and market-places so set out for that purpose, or such other as shall within two years now next following be thought fit by the mayor and aldermen of the said city, with the consent of the lord archbishop of Canterbury and lord bishop of London, and by his majesty's approbation, to be laid into the streets and markets for enlargement and accommodation thereof, or for public store-places.

"LXVII. Provided always, that where any part of the churches or churchyards of any of the said parish churches hereby appointed to be rebuilt and continued, have been thought fit by the mayor and court of aldermen of the said city, to be laid into any of the streets within the said city for enlargement thereof; and by order of the said mayor and court of aldermen, shall have been before the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred and seventy, staked and set out accordingly: it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the grounds so staked out shall be made use of for the enlarging of the said streets, according as the same were for that purpose staked and set out as aforesaid; this present act, or any thing therein contained, to the contrary notwithstanding.

"LXVIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared, that notwithstanding such union as aforesaid, each and every of the parishes so united, as to all rates, taxes, parochial rights (1), charges, and duties, and all other privileges, liberties, and respects whatsoever, other than what are herein before mentioned and specified, shall continue and remain distinct, and as heretofore they were, before the making of this present act: and that the several respective patrons of the said churches so united shall and may present by turns to that church only which by this act is appointed to be rebuilt and established for the parish church of the parishes so united as aforesaid: the first presentment to be made by the patron of

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 11.

with walls to make burial places.

Notwithstanding the union, the parishes, as to all rates, charges, and privileges, to remain distinct.

such manner as that which I have suggested. But if they think it ultimately expedient, as there are great dilapidations, though principally, it seems to me, in the roof, and which nobody is compellable to repair, I think that they are entitled to have the site of the old church restored to the state contemplated by the fire act; under which impression, I shall be disposed to accede to their renewed application for a faculty to take this building down, unconditionally. I understand that the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, the patrons of the living, have been consulted; and have intimated that it is not their intention to offer any objection."

(1) Parochial rights.—After the great fire of London, in 1666, the parish of St. Mary, Colechurch, was united with that of St. Mildred the Virgin, by Stat. 22 Car. 2, c. 11. By custom, in each of the parishes before their union, the right of appointment to the office of parish clerk, was in the rector and parishioners. In the year 1831, the parishioners of the united parishes, in vestry assembled, elected a parish clerk, but the rector at first refused to sanction the appointment, and himself appointed another person; afterwards, however, he appointed the person elected, with the assent of the parishioners. But the person whom he had previously appointed, one Sunday morning placed himself in the clerk's desk in the church of the united parishes, and, refusing to retire upon request, was laid hold of by one of the churchwardens and the vestry clerk, and an attempt was made to remove him by force, but which was not successful. For the purpose of trying the right to the office, he brought an action of assault against those officers, who pleaded specially two sets of justifications; one set alleging the legal appointment of the person elected by the parishioners, to place whom in the desk they sought to remove the plaintiff; and the other set treating the plaintiff himself as an intruder. The jury were of opinion, that the custom was for the rector to appoint with the assent of the parishioners, and found a verdict for the defendants. A rule was afterwards obtained for a new trial, which, after argument, and time taken to consider, was discharged; the court being of opinion, that the plaintiff was not lawful parish clerk, as he was appointed by the rector alone, without the concurrence of either of the parishes, but they did not decide whether the election by the united vestries was right or not, though they said that it appeared to be the natural mode.

In the course of the trial it was ruled, that old entries in the vestry books of the parishes were not evidence to show the right of election, as it did not appear whether the incumbent was present at the meetings they related to. But extracts from the register of the bishop of the diocese were received in evidence to prove the same appointments, as were also several entries of vestry meetings at which the rector was present. Hartley v. Cook, 5 C. & P. 441. 9 Bing. 728.

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 11.

Proviso for the present incumbents of churches not to be rebuilt.

Saint Mary Colechurch.

A free school.

Provision that parsons may not be sued for dilapidations.

such of the said churches, the endowments whereof are of the greatest yearly value.

"LXIX. Provided always, and it is hereby declared, that this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall not extend or be construed to deprive the present incumbents, which at the time of the said late fire were or now are in possession of any of the said parish churches not to be rebuilt, or any of them, of the tithes or other profits heretofore belonging to their respective churches, so long as they shall assist in serving the cure, and other offices belonging to their duty in the parish church whereunto their respective parishes shall be united and annexed by virtue of this act, according to the direction of the ordinary; any thing in the present act contained to the contrary notwithstanding: saving to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, the tenths and first-fruits of all such parish churches as by force of this present act shall be united and consolidated as aforesaid, according to such rates and valuations as the same do respectively stand rated and valued at, in his majesty's court of first-fruits and tenths; any thing in this present act notwithstanding: saving also to all other person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, ecclesiastical and civil, their heirs and successors, all pensions, annuities, and payments whatsoever, heretofore due from and payable by any of the rectors, vicars, and curates of any of the said churches united or consolidated as aforesaid; anything in this present act notwithstanding.

"LXX. Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the warden and minor canons of Saint Paul's Church, London, parson and proprietors of the rectory of the parish of Saint Gregory's aforesaid, to receive and enjoy all tithes, oblations, and duties arising or growing due within the said parish, in a large and beneficial manner as formerly they have or lawfully might have done, anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding.

"LXXI. And whereas the wardens and commonalty of the mystery of the mercers of the city of London, at the time of the said fire, were seized in fee of the rectory and parish church impropriate of Saint Mary Colechurch, (the said church being an upper room about ten foot higher than the street, and lying over certain rooms and arched vaults or cellars of the said wardens and commonalty,) upon the site of which church they have designed to build a free school, and other buildings conformable to the rules of the said former act, and to remove the dead bodies and bones of such as have been buried upon the arches, and to cause them to be decently reposed within the body of their chapel, commonly called Mercers' Chapel: be it therefore hereby enacted, that the site of the said parish church, and the materials thereof remaining upon the said site, be and are hereby vested upon the said wardens and commonalty, and their successors for ever; and that the said wardens and commonalty shall pay to the lord mayor and aldermen of the city of London for the same, such sum of money towards the rebuilding of the church whereunto the same is by this act appointed to be united, as shall be agreed upon between the said lord mayor and aldermen, and the said wardens and commonalty, or be assessed by a jury impaneled and sworn, as by the said former act is directed in any other case; anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

"LXXII. And whereas several parish churches, chancels, parsonage and vicarage houses were consumed in the late dismal fire; to the end therefore the incumbents, parsons, and vicars, may not be liable to the rebuilding of their chancels, parsonage and vicarage houses, nor to be sued for dilapidations: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the incumbent, parsons, and vicars of the aforesaid churches, their executors and administrators, shall be and are hereby indemnified, as to the rebuilding of their respective chancels, parsonage and vicarage houses, and shall not be liable to any suits, troubles, or molestations that may arise for dilapidations aforesaid; and that no process shall be issued out of any court whatsoever against the persons aforesaid, for their not rebuilding their respective chancels and parsonage and vicarage houses; any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"LXXIII. And whereas first-fruits, tenths, and several pensions are from the said parsons and vicars to be yearly paid to his majesty, and several duties to the ordinary and archdeacon, that his majesty will be graciously pleased, that it may be enacted; and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said parsons and vicars be indemnified, and are hereby indemnified, from the payment of all first-fruits, tenths, and pensions due, and which shall be due to his majesty, and from all dues to the ordinary and archdeacon, and all other dues whatsoever chargeable upon them respectively, until such time as they shall receive the profits arising from the same as formerly: and that no process shall be issued out of any court whatsoever against the persons aforesaid, for their nonpayment of first-fruits, tenths, pensions, or any other the dues aforesaid; any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

STAT. 22 CAR. 2, c. 11.

Parsons and vicars exempted from first-fruits, tenths, and pensions.

“LXXIV. And whereas divers ministers have been already since the fire, and may be from time to time presented and instituted, and being so are liable to the forfeitures of their several livings for not reading the Thirty-nine Articles, and for not doing other things enjoined by law in their several parish churches: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such ministers as have been or shall be from time to time presented and instituted since the said fire, be and are hereby indemnified from the several penalties and forfeitures incurred and to be incurred by or for not reading of the Thirty-nine Articles, or not doing other things enjoined by law as aforesaid, until such time as the said several churches be re-edified or made fit for public worship.

Indemnified for not reading the Thirty-nine Articles.

“LXXV. And whereas the said parsons and vicars, or some of them, are interested in several glebe lands or grounds, the which they cannot rebuild themselves, nor let such lease or leases as may be an encouragement for others to rebuild the same: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said parsons and vicars, and every of them respectively, be empowered and are hereby empowered to let such lease or leases of their said glebe lands or grounds, with the consent and approbation of the patron or patrons and ordinary, for any term not exceeding forty years, and at such yearly rents, without fine, as can be obtained for the same; and that no lapses incurred upon any non-presentation in due time of any of the patrons of the said livings since the said fire shall any ways prejudice or make void the presentations that the said patrons have since made, whereupon any incumbent is since instituted and inducted; any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Empowered to let leases of their glebe lands.

“LXXVI. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted, that if the mayor and commonalty and citizens of the said city of London shall be concerned in estate or title in any controversy or difference, whereof the determination is by this or the aforesaid act referred to the hearing and judgment of the said mayor and court of aldermen; that then and in every such case the justices of the courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas, and the barons of the exchequer of the Exchequer for the time being, or any three or more of them, upon complaint to them made, shall be and are hereby authorized to hear and finally order and determine the same; anything in this or the aforesaid act to the contrary notwithstanding.”

XLII. STAT. 22 & 23 CAROLI 2, c. 3(1). A.D. 1670.

STAT. 22 & 23 CAR. 2, c. 3.

“An Act for granting a Subsidy to His Majesty.”

[Nothing in this lay subsidy shall prejudice the rights of the clergy.]

XLIII. STAT. 22 & 23 CAROLI 2, c. 10[6]. A.D. 1670.

STAT. 22 & 23 CAR. 2, c. 10.

“An Act for the better settling of Intestate Estates.”

“Be it enacted (2) by the king's most excellent majesty, with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all ordinaries, as well

All ordinaries who have power to grant

(1) Expired.

(2) Enacted:—It was said by the Chief Justice in Palmer v. Alcock, (Skin. 213.)

that this statute was made in imitation of the custom of London.

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2. c. 10.
administrations, have power to take bond.
Vaugh. 96.
31 Edw. 3,
c. 11.

The condition of the bonds.

the judges of the prerogative courts of Canterbury and York for the time being, & all other ordinaries and ecclesiastical judges, and every of them, having power to commit administration of the goods (1) of persons dying intestate, shall and may, upon their respective granting and committing of administration of the goods of persons dying intestate, after the first day of June, one thousand six hundred seventy and one, of the respective person or persons to whom any administration is to be committed, take sufficient bonds with two or more able sureties, record being had to the value of the estate, in the name of the ordinary, with the condition in form and manner following, mutatis mutandis, viz.:

"II. 'The condition of this obligation' (2) is such, that if the within-bonds A. B., administrator of all and singular the goods, chattels, and credits, of C. D.

(1) Goods.—Although an estate pur autre vie was made assets by Stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 3, it was not distributable within this statute, inasmuch as it still remained a freehold, and distribution was not necessarily included in the notion of assets.

(2) The condition of this obligation.—Respecting the taking of sureties under this statute, the ecclesiastical commissioners, in their Report, (dated February 15th, 1832, p. 40,) state: "Connected with this branch of the subject, is the taking of sureties, for the due administration of intestate's effects, and also when administration with the will annexed is granted.

"Two things are essential to the security and due distribution of the property; namely, that the sureties should be responsible, and that an easy mode should exist of enforcing the penalty of the bond.

"Some delays, difficulties, and inconveniences arise from requiring two sureties to justify to the amount of the property to be administered; and we therefore propose, that the judge should have full authority, in all cases, to moderate the amount for which the bonds shall be given; and also, instead of taking two sureties only, to allow the party to give security for the amount required, by several sureties, two being bound for each portion of the sum.

"By the statute passed in the reign of Charles 2, (Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10,) the judge upon granting administration, is required to take good and sufficient security. It is impossible to carry this provision of the law into complete effect, without compelling the sureties to justify. At present this is not done in ordinary cases; but according to the practice of the court, justifying security is required where one of the next of kin, or of the parties entitled in distribution, apply for it, or where there has been a citation or decree without personal service. The judge also may direct the sureties to justify, where he thinks that the circumstances of the case render it expedient.

"To obviate inconvenience, we think some modification may be introduced. The amount for which the sureties are to justify may be limited to the amount of the debts of the intestate, in cases where the party taking the administration is solely entitled to the property, or where all other persons entitled in distribution, may consent to waive such justification. Where some may consent and others either decline, or be legally incapable of consenting, then the sum for which sureties should justify might be limited to the amount of the shares of the intestate's estate, dissenting, or incapable of assenting, and the amount of debts due.

"The next point for consideration is the due enforcement of the security, viz. the conditions of the bond have been taken.

"The ecclesiastical court has no jurisdiction, in any case, to enforce payment of the penalty by the exercise of its own authority.

"According to the present practice, application must be made to the ecclesiastical judge for permission that, upon an issue being brought at common law for a trial of the bond, the bond shall be 'attested on' for the purpose of being produced in evidence on the trial: and in this practice proceeding, the sureties are allowed to do any circumstances they may deem proper to induce the court not to grant the issue of the party proceeding against them. Sometimes the court was called upon to produce the bond forfeited: but, to enforce, it amounted to no more than a direction that the bond should be 'attested with.' The courts of common law alone could enforce payment of the bond.

"Considerable difficulty, however, arises with respect to the effectual administration of justice in these cases. When the issue of the bond consists in the non-estimation of the inventory and account, there is no necessary impediment. But this is not the most important condition of the bond, though one of great utility, and it is a condition which may be easily complied with, without effectual justice being done, it being agreed that the production of a statement of the property, and an account of the payment of debts, does not necessarily lead to a distribution amongst the next of kin of the residue of the intestate's effects.

"The most essential provision is, the due administration of the property, viz. when the bond is given under the statute of Charles 2, it is now settled by a recent decision of the court of King's Bench, that the judge is not bound to administer the property in case of breach of the bond, unless the judge of the ecclesiastical court shall first have directed the account, and by his decree have directed payment to be made to the persons entitled according to the act. (Canterbury Archbishop v. Tappin, 8 B. & C. 152.)

"It is, therefore, obvious that before the deceased, do make or cause to be made, a true and perfect inventory of all and singular the goods, chattels, and credits, of the said deceased, which have or shall come to the hands, possession, or knowledge of him the said A. B., or into the hands and possession of any other person or persons for him, and the same so made do exhibit or cause to be exhibited into the registry of _____ court, at or before the _____ day of _____ next ensuing; and the same goods, chattels, and credits, and all other the goods, chattels, and credits of the said deceased at the time of his death, which at any time after shall come to the hands or possession of the said A. B., or into the hands and possession of any other person or persons for him, do well and truly administer according to law; and further do make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of his said administration, at or before the _____ day of _____ And all the rest and residue of the said goods, chattels, and credits, which shall be found remaining upon the said administrator's account, the same being first examined and allowed of by the judge or judges for the time being of the said court, shall deliver and pay unto such person or persons respectively, as the said judge or judges by his or their decree or sentence, pursuant to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall limit and appoint. And if it shall hereafter appear, that any last will and testament was made by the said deceased, and the executor or executors therein named do exhibit the same into the said court, making request to have it allowed and approved accordingly, if the said A. B., within-bounded, being thereunto required, do render and deliver the said letters of administration, (approbation of such testament being first had and made,) in the said court; then this obligation to be void and of none effect, or else to remain in full force and virtue.'

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 10.

1 Salk. 315,
316.

"III. Which bonds are hereby declared and enacted to be good to all intents and purposes, and pleadable in any courts of justice; and also that the said ordinaries and judges respectively shall and may and are enabled to proceed and call such administrators to account (1), for and touching the goods of any person dying intestate; and upon hearing and due consideration thereof, to order and make just and equal distribution (2) of what remaineth clear, (after all debts, funeral, and just expenses of every sort, first allowed and deducted,) amongst the wife and children, or children's children, if any such be, or otherwise to the next of kindred to the dead person, in equal decree, or legally representing their stocks per suo quique jure, according to the laws in such cases, and the rules and limitation hereafter set down; and the same distributions to decree and settle, and to compel such administrators to observe and pay the same, by the due course of his majesty's ecclesiastical laws; saving to every one, supposing him or themselves agreed, their right of appeal as was always in such cases used.

Ordinaries
have power to call administrators to account, and to make distribution, &c.
14 Vin. 464.

bond against surties can be enforced for a breach of this description, the judge must examine the whole administration of the property, must ascertain the clear amount of the residue after payment of the debts and expenses; and have a legal constat of the persons entitled in distribution. To do this effectually, there must be a power of examining the legality and justice of the alleged debts and expenses; and doubts may be entertained, whether the ecclesiastical court is vested with sufficient authority for this purpose. The Prerogative court possesses means quite adequate to this investigation; but the mode of proceeding, in addition to the doubt of the extent of the power, is at present history and difficult, principally in consequence of the apprehension that the jurisdiction may be exceeded, or some want of form occur, fatal to proceedings elsewhere.

It is evident that, if it be fitting that these bonds should be taken at all, due facilities should be afforded for enforcing them, when the conditions have been violated. In our judgment the provisions of the statute of Charles the Second, requiring these bonds, are wise and salutary; and we recommend that the ecclesiastical courts be furnished with more extensive powers than they now possess, and that the present course of proceeding be altered, so as to provide a convenient mode of enforcing these bonds in proper cases."

(1) May . . . call such administrators to account.—Previously to this statute it was held, that the ordinary, after administration granted, could not compel the administrator to make administration. Slarney's case, Hob. 83. Fotherbie's case, Cro. Car. 62. Vandam v. Deconell, Jon. (Sir W.), 228.

(2) Order . . . distribution.—The spiritual court has power to make distribution of the estate of the deceased when it is come in, but not to collect it. Clerke v. Clerke, 1 Id. Raym. 585. And the spiritual court cannot, under this statute, compel an executor to distribute; it is only where the party dies intestate. Petit v. Smith, Ibid. 86.

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 10.

Customs of London and York saved.
Explained by 1 Jac. 2, c. 17,
s. 8.

Skin. 26.
How, and to whom, the surplusage is to be distributed.
2 Mod. 20,
101.

3 Mod. 58.
1 Vern. 465.

Advancement
by portion.

1 Show. 25.

Heir at law to have an equal part.

"IV. Provided, that this act, or anything herein contained, shall not any way prejudice or hinder the customs observed within the city of London, or within the province of York, or other places having known and received customs peculiar to them, but that the same customs may be observed as formerly; anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"V. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all ordinaries, and every other person who by this act is enabled to make distribution of the surplusage of the estate of any person dying intestate, shall distribute the whole surplusage of such estate or estates in manner and form following: that is to say, one-third part of the said surplusage to the wife of the intestate, and of the residue by equal portions, to and amongst the children of such persons dying intestate, and such persons as legally represent such children, in case any of the said children be then dead (1), other than such child or children, (not being her or law,) who shall have any estate by the settlement of the intestate, or shall be advanced by the intestate in his life-time, by portion or portions equal to the share which shall by such distribution be allotted to the other children to whom such distribution is to be made: and in case any child, other than the heir at law, who shall have any estate by settlement from the said intestate, or shall be advanced by the said intestate in his life-time by portion not equal to the share which will be due to the other children by such distribution as aforesaid; then so much of the surplusage of the estate of such intestate, to be distributed to such child or children as shall have any land by settlement from the intestate, or were advanced in the life-time of the intestate, as shall make the estate of all the said children to be equal as near as can be estimated; but the heir at law, notwithstanding any

(1) Shall distribute . . . all the residue by equal portions, to and amongst the children of such persons dying intestate, and such persons as legally represent such children, in case any of the said children be then dead:—The foregoing language will be best comprehended if treated of under three divisions. i. Where none of the intestate's children are dead. ii. Where the intestate's children are all dead, all of them having left children. iii. Where some of the intestate's children are living, and some dead, and such as are dead, have each of them left children.

i. Where none of the intestate's children are dead. After the wife has had her third allotted to her, the remaining two-thirds must be equally divided among all the children of the intestate, because they claim in their own right. A brother or sister of the half-blood will be equally entitled to a share with one of the whole blood, as they are both equally near of kin to the intestate. Com. Dig. Administration (H). Smith v. Tracy, 1 Mod. 209. 2 Ibid. 204. 1 Vent. 316. Newton v. Shafto, 2 Lev. 173. Winchelsea (Earl of) v. Norcliffe, 1 Vern. 437. Crooke v. Watt, 2 Ibid. 124. Brown v. Farndell, Carth. 51. Nor will their being posthumous make any difference, (Edwards v. Freeman, 2 P. Wms. 446.) because a child en ventre de sa mère at the time of the father's death, is by the rules of the common and civil law, a child, as much as if born in the father's life-time. Wallis v. Hodson, 2 Atk. 117. Thellusson v. Woodford, 11 Ves. 139. If the intestate leave only one child, such case is not to be considered as omitted by the statute: therefore, in case he also leave a wife, she will have only a third part, and the other two-thirds will go to such child. Brown v. Farndell, Carth. 52. Palmer v. Alcock, Skin. 212. So, where there is only one to claim under the statute as therefore, strictly speaking, there can be no distribution, yet such individual will be entitled to the property. 3 P. Wms. 45 and Palmer v. Garrard, Pre. Ch. 21.

ii. Where the intestate's children are all dead, all of them having left children. If A. have three children, B. C. and D. and they all die, B. leaving for instance two children, C. three, and D. four, and A. afterwards die intestate; in that case all the grandchildren will have an equal share to as his children are all dead, their children will take per capita as next of kin. But also would be the case with respect to the great-grandchildren of the intestate if with his children and grandchildren he all be before him. Eq. Ca. Abr. 249 E. Wood v. Walsh, Pre. Ch. 54. Bowers v. Lumswood, 1 P. Wms. 595. Danvers v. Down, 3 Ibid. 50. Durant v. Prestwood, 1 Ves. 454. Janson v. Bury, Bunb. 139. 2 Black. Com. by Chitty, 517.

iii. Where some of the intestate's children are living, and some dead, and none are dead have each of them left children. Under such circumstances, the grandchildren take per stirpes, i.e. not in their own right but by representation. Thus, if A. have three sons, B. C. and D., and B. die leaving four children, and C. die leaving two, on A. dying intestate, one third will be allotted to D., one third to B.'s four children, and the remaining third to C.'s two children. If these grandchildren are entitled as representing their respective parents. Eq. Ca. Abr. 249 (E). Walsh v. Walsh, Pre. Ch. 54. 2 Black. Com. by Chitty, 517.

so united: the parishes of Saint Mary le Bow, Saint Pancras Soaper lane, and Alhallows Honey lane, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary le Bow shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mildred's Poultry, and Saint Mary Cole-church, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mildred's Poultry, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Michael Wood street, and Saint Mary Staining, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Michael Wood street, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mildred Bread street, and Saint Margaret Moses, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mildred Bread street, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Michael Queenhithe, and Trinity, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Michael Queenhithe, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Magdalen's Old Fish street, and Saint Gregory's, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Magdalen's Old Fish street, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Mary Somerset, and Saint Mary Munthaw, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Mary Somerset, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Nicholas Cole Abby, and Saint Nicholas Olave's, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Nicholas Cole Abby, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Olave's Jury, and Saint Martin's Pomroy, alias Ironmonger lane, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Olave's Jury shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Stephen Walbrook, and Saint Bennet Sherhug, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Stephen Walbrook, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Swithin and Saint Mary Bothaw shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Swithin shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united: the parishes of Saint Vedast, alias Saint Foster's, and Saint Michael Quern, shall be united into one parish, and the church heretofore belonging to the said parish of Saint Vedast, alias Saint Foster's, shall be the parish church of the said parishes so united.

"LXIV. And it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the said respective churches to be rebuilt within the said city of London and liberties thereof, shall be built and erected according to such models, and of such dimensions, and in such manner and form in all respects, as by the said lord archbishop of Canterbury, lord bishop of London, and lord mayor of London for the time being, (with his majesty's approbation thereof,) shall be directed and appointed: and the said respective parishes herein before mentioned and appointed to be united as aforesaid, shall for ever hereafter remain and continue so united and consolidated and annexed unto the several and respective parish churches by this act appointed to be rebuilt as aforesaid; and the respective parishioners, and the inhabitants of the said several parishes so to be united as aforesaid by force of this present act, shall hereafter resort to the said churches respectively, as to their proper parish church: and all tithes and other duties heretofore due and payable to the respective incumbents of the said parish churches respectively, shall hereafter be paid and payable to the incumbent of that church only, which by this act is appointed to be rebuilt and established for the parish church of the parishes so united as aforesaid.

"LXV. And be it further enacted, that all plate and goods heretofore belonging to any of the churchwardens of any of the parishes of those burnt down, which are not now to be rebuilt, for the use of the said churches, shall be enjoyed by the respective churchwardens, and their successors, of the respective parishes of such churches to be rebuilt respectively, whereunto the said other churches burnt

STAT. 22 CAR.
2, c. 11.

The same parish churches shall be rebuilt according to models appointed by the archbishop of Canterbury, bishop of London, and lord mayor of London, with the king's approbation.

Plate and goods belonging to churches not to be rebuilt, shall be enjoyed by the churchwardens, &c. of those rebuilt.

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 10.

1 Ven. 316.
2 Lev. 173.
2 Ven. 317.
1 Mod. 209.
2 Mod. 204.

"VI. And in case there be no children, nor any legal representatives, then one moiety of the said estate to be allotted to the wife of the intestate, the residue of the said estate to be distributed equally to every of the next of kin of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and those who legally represent the personal estate, he must abate for it in the same manner as the other children. And, were it merely the use of furniture for his life, it will be regarded as an advancement pro tanto. Com. Dig. Administration (H). So where A. on his marriage covenanted, in case of a second marriage, to pay his eldest son by his first wife 500*l.*; she died, leaving a son and other children, and A. after a second marriage died intestate: it was decreed, that his heir should bring in the money, although he were in the nature of a purchaser, under a marriage settlement. Phiney v. Phiney, 2 Vern. 638.

Co-heiresses will also, it seems, bring in such advancement, not being land, as they may have respectively received from their father, before they will be entitled to their distributive shares, agreeably to the principle of the statute, and to the object of a just and impartial father to promote an equality among his children. Edwards v. Freeman, 2 P. Wms. 440, 443.

Small inconsiderable sums of money given to a child by the father, or mere trivial presents, such as a gold watch or wedding clothes; (3 P. Wms. 316, n. (a); Elliot v. Collier, 1 Ves. Sen. 16; 3 Atk. 328; Garon v. Trippet, Amb. 189;) money expended by the father for the maintenance of his son; money given to bind him an apprentice; money laid out in his education, at school, at the university, or on his travels; will not be deemed an advancement. Swinburne, pt. 3, s. 18. Edwards v. Freeman, 2 P. Wms. 449. Nor can what a child receives out of his mother's estate be so regarded, for the Statute of Distributions was grounded on the custom of London, which never affected a widow's personal estate, and seems to include those only within the clause of hotchpot, who are capable of having a wife as well as children, which must be husbands only. Holt v. Frederick, Ibid. 356. Nor shall a provision which a father may make for his child by will, (for a case may occur where a testator may die intestate as to part of his personal estate,) be considered in that light. Nor land given by the father's will to a younger child. Edwards v. Freeman, Ibid. 440, 446.

Such a provision as shall be construed an advancement, must result from a complete act of the intestate in his life-time, (Ibid.; Gilbert v. Wetherell, 2 S. & S. 254.) by which he divested himself of all property in the subject, though it may not take effect in possession till after his death. Still less will property given or bequeathed to the child by any other person be so denominated; and least of all, will a fortune of his own acquisition. Swinburne, pt. 3, s. 18.

Respecting borough English lands, which descend to the youngest son, it was held, in Pratt v. Pratt, (Str. 935.) that such lands must be allowed for on the ground, that the statute intended merely for the heir of the family, that is, by the common law, and not one only by custom in some particular. But such decision has been overruled; it is now settled, that such younger children have an equal share of the distributive part of the other children, without regard to species of estate; for although the statute extends only to the real estate, yet no laws exist to oblige the heir or heir of the family to bring in his share of the real estate in his life-time. Lalage v. Woyche, C. T. T. 276.

(1) In case there be no children, nor any legal representatives of them, then one moiety of the said estate to be allotted to the wife of the intestate, the residue of the said estate to be distributed equally to every of the next of kin of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and those who legally represent them.—The next of kin to be taken by the statute are to be taken by the same rules of consanguinity as are entitled to letters of administration. Lloyd v. Tench, 2 Ves. Sen. 216.

The mother, therefore, as well as the father, succeeded to all the personal estate of the children who died intestate, or issue, in exclusion of the other children, the brothers and sisters, if deceased; and such is the law with respect to the father; (2 Black. Chitty, 313, 316; Evelyn v. Evelyn, 192;) but by Stat. 1 Jac. 2, c. 17, s. 625, if, after the death of the mother, in the life-time of the mother, the children die intestate, without issue, every brother and sister, and their representatives, will have an equal share with her. The principle of which is this, that otherwise the mother would marry, and transfer all to another. Blackborough v. Dancer, 1 Bald. P. Wms. 48. 1 Ld. Raym. 684.

And brothers and sisters of the mother of an intestate, are equally co-heiresses with the brothers and sisters of the father. Jessopp v. Watron, 1 M. & K. 60.

Where a testator devised real estate in trust, for the persons who at his death should be the next of kin of R. according to the Statute of Distributions, and their heirs as tenants in common, the next of kin consisted of R's children's children, and the children's grandchildren's children: it was held, that they took per stirpes and not per capita. Maitson v. Tanfield, 3 Bess. 15.

And it may be here observed, that by Stat. 1 Jac. 2, c. 17, it has been enacted, that if A. die intestate, and without issue, a wife, and several brothers and

Provided, that there be no representations admitted among collaterals after and sisters' children; and in case there be no wife, then all the estate to be distributed equally to and amongst the children; and in case no child, then to the next of kindred in equal degree of or unto the deceased and their legal representatives as aforesaid, and in no other manner (1).

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 10.

If no wife
amongst the children.
1 Salk. 250.
Raym. 496.

Carth. 51. Jones (Sir T.), 93. 2 Ver. 169, 170, 233.

living, the mother shall have no equal share of a moiety of the estate of the brothers and sisters. And there should be no brother or sister, there be no children of a deceased brother or sister, they shall partake with the mother to the same extent as if the mother would have been entitled.

Keylway, 2 P. Wms. 344. Stanley v. Stanley, 1 Atk. 457. If there be neither brother nor sister, the representative of a brother or sister is without the statute, and the share of such intestate's effects shall go to his mother. 11 Vin. 196. Also, by the Statute of Distributions, such share shall not be carried beyond the children of the deceased. Stanley v. Stanley, 1 Atk. 457. A mother-in-law of the deceased, if not being of his blood, is not entitled to a share in the distribution, she not being of his blood. (Duke of Rutland v. Rutland), 2 P. Wms. 216.

Provided, that there be no representations admitted among collaterals after and sisters' children: and in case there be no wife, then all the said estate to be distributed equally to and amongst the children; and in case there be no child, then to the next of kindred in equal degree of or unto the deceased and their legal representatives as aforesaid, and in no other manner:—That there shall be no representation among collaterals beyond the children of the deceased, must be construed to mean brothers and sisters of the deceased, and not as admitting representation in the distribution happens to fall to the brothers and sisters who are remotely of the blood of the intestate; for the intestate is the root of the act, it is his estate, his children, and for the same reason, the children of his children, for he is the root of the act. Carter v. Crawford, (Sir T.), 496. Caldicot v. Shaw, (Sir B.), 295. Beeton v. Vern, 168. Maw v. Harding, 1 Atk. 571. Pett v. Pett, 1 Salk. 250. 1 P. Wms. 87. Com. 87. 1 P. Wms. 87. Pett v. Pett, 1 Salk. 250. 1 P. Wms. 87. Com. 87. So it has been decided, that if the intestate leave an uncle, and the uncle's son, the latter shall have the share. Hewer v. Little, 1 P. Wms. 594. Thus, though the representatives ad infinitum shall share in the distribution of an intestate's personal estate, yet among collaterals, except only in the instance of the intestate's brothers' and sisters' children, proximity of blood can alone give a title to it.

The children of an intestate's brothers and sisters, who were deceased at his death, will take per capita. Therefore, if an intestate leave a deceased brother's only son, and ten children of a deceased half-sister, the ten children of the deceased half-sister will take ten parts in eleven with the son of the deceased brother. Ibid. 595.

The words of the statute must be taken together. The expression pro suo cuique jure, will let in any advantage of equality or preference to which a person was entitled by our law before the statute. Therefore, a grandfather, although he be in an equal degree of consanguinity with the brother of the deceased, shall have no share with him in the distribution; for, by the common law, there was but one degree between brother and brother, and it would be unnatural to carry the personal estate up to the grandfather, who must be presumed to have been long before provided for, and to be going out of life. Evelyn v. Evelyn, Ambler 191.

So a grandfather will exclude an uncle; and, independently of the provisions of the statute, by the common law the former was entitled to a preference, as being of the right line, whereas the latter is only of the collateral line; in other words, the grandfather is the root of the kindred, and the uncle is only the branch. Blackborough v. Davies, 1 Salk. 251. 1 P. Wms. 41. 1 Ld. Raym. 684. Com. 108. 12 Mod. 615. Lloyd v. Tench, 2 Ves. Sen. 215.

The law, of course, is the same in respect to grandmothers and aunts. Com. Dig. Administration (H). Blackborough v. Davies, 1 Salk. 38, 251. Woodroff v. Wickworth, Pro. Ch. 527.

Where the next of kin are, a grandfather by the father's side, and a grandmother by the mother's, they will take in equal moieties, as being in equal degree; for, in respect of such claims, dignity of blood makes no difference. Blackborough v. Davies, 1 P. Wms. 53.

Uncles and nephews, aunts and nieces, are in equal degree. And where the intestate left two aunts, and a nephew and a niece, children of a deceased brother, Lord Hardwicke ordered the surplus to be divided into four parts equally among them, holding, that as they were all in equal degree, the children were to take in their own right, and not by representation; but that if their father had been living, he would have been entitled to the whole. Durant v. Prestwood, 1 Atk. 454.

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 10.
No distribu-

"VIII. Provided also, and be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, to the end that a due regard be had to creditors, that no such distribution of goods of any person dying intestate be made till after one year be fully elapsed

The granddaughter of a sister, and the daughter of an aunt of the intestate, are also in equal degree, and entitled to equal distribution. Com. Dig. Administration (H). Thomas v. Ketteriche, 1 Ves. Sen. 333.

The next of kin, though collateral, is preferred before a relation, though lineal, if he be of the ascending line, and more remote. Blackborough v. Davies, 1 P. Wms. 51.

Although the statute direct, that no distribution shall be made till a year be elapsed from the death of the intestate, yet, if a person entitled to a distributive share shall die within the year, such interest will be considered as vested in him, and will go to his personal representative; for this proviso makes no suspension or condition, precedent to the interest of the parties, but was inserted merely with a view to creditors.

The statute, also, is in the nature of a will framed by the legislature for all such persons as die, without having made one for themselves; and, by consequence, the parties entitled in distribution resemble a residuary legatee; and it has been always held, that if such legatee die before the amount of the surplus be ascertained, still his representative shall have the whole residue, and not the representative of the first testator. Brown v. Farndell, Carth. 51. Freke v. Thomas, Comb. 109. Taylor v. Ames, 2 Show. (Sir B.), 294. Palmer v. Alicock, Skin. 212, 218. 3 Mod. 58. 11 Vin. Abr. Executors (K. 3), 92. Willcocks v. Willcocks, 2 Vern. 559. 3 P. Wms. 49, n. (d). Lee v. Cox, 3 Atk. 422.

Affinity or relationship by marriage, except in the instance of the wife of the intestate, gives no title to a share of his property, as if A. have a son and a daughter, B. and C., and they both die, the former leaving a wife, and the latter a husband; on A.'s dying afterwards intestate, such husband and wife have neither of them any claim on his estate.

Under a will, a wife is not one of the next of kin in the ordinary sense. Therefore, where a testator gave the residue of his property "to be divided amongst my next of kin, as if I had died intestate," the widow was held not to be entitled to any share of such residue. Garrick v. Camden (Lord), 14 Ves. 372. And where an intestate leaves a widow, but no next of kin, the widow is not entitled to the whole of the personal estate; but one moiety belongs to her, and the other to the crown. Cave v. Roberts, 8 Sim. 214.

A gift of property to my nearest surviving relations, has been held to mean the testator's brothers and sisters, to the exclusion of nephews and nieces. Smith v. Campbell, Coop. C. C. 275.

If a bastard, or any other person having no kindred, die intestate, without wife or child, his effects belong to the crown, who, with the exception of a small part, usually grants them by letters patent, or otherwise, and then such grantee seems of course answerable to the administration, and consequently to the sole enjoyment of the property. Black. Com. by Chitty, 305. Mp. v. Johnson, Doug. 542.

The personal property of an intestate, wherever situated, must be distributed according to the law of the country where he was domiciled, and such is primæ facie the law of his residence, but that may be rebutted or supported by circumstances. Topham (Lord) v. Webb, 2 Ves. Sen. 105. It is though the locality of the party's death at the time of his death determines the law of distribution, yet it must be a permanent residence, or an occasional residence, in order that municipal institutions may attach to the property. Pipon v. Pipon, Amb. 15. See v. Cole, Ibid. 415. In fact, the law of origin is that arising from a man's habits and connexions. Somerville v. Somerville (Lord), 5 Ves. 787. Such a domicile must be lost by mere abandonment, it must be defeated animo merely, but non facto, unless the party die in transitu to an intended domicile. De Bonnaville v. Bonnaville, 1 Curt. 857. Attorney-General v. Duan, 6 M. & W. 511. Moss v. Douglas, 5 Madd. 405. If an intestate be settled, and die in this country, his administration be taken out to him here, and due to him, or other of his personal representatives in Scotland or abroad, must be distributed according to the law of England. De v. Watkins, 2 Ves. Sen. 35. But if an alien resident abroad die intestate, his property here is distributable according to the laws of the country where he was domiciled, otherwise no foreigner could deal in funds but at the peril of his estate, according to our laws, and not to those of his own country. Pipon v. Pipon, Amb. 15.

In Polinger v. Wightman, 1 M. & W. 10, it appeared, that a native of England domiciled in Guernsey died intestate, leaving a widow and infant children, and the case was appointed guardian of the children to the royal court of Guernsey, she had the property of the intestate, invested the produce in the English funds, and afterwards came to England with her children, where she became domiciled. A question arose on the death of some of the children whether their shares of the property were distributable according to the law of England or of Guernsey: and it was held, that the law of England was to govern the matter, the domicile of the children being, according to the opinion of foreign jurists, not the law being silent on the subject, and the domicile of the surviving parent, where no fraudulent intention can be imputed. No fraud may be imputed where no reasonable cause appears for the removal. Williams on Executors, 1162 et seq.

after the intestate's death; and that such and every one to whom any distribution and share shall be allotted, shall give bond with sufficient sureties in the said courts, that if any debt or debts truly owing by the intestate shall be afterwards sued for and recovered, or otherwise duly made to appear; that then and in every such case he or she shall respectively refund and pay back to the administrator his or her rateable part of that debt or debts, and of the costs of suit and charges of the administrator by reason of such debt, out of the part and share so as aforesaid allotted to him or her, thereby to enable the said administrator to pay and satisfy the said debt or debts so discovered after the distribution made as aforesaid.

"IX. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in all cases where the ordinary hath used heretofore to grant administration cum testamento annexo, he shall continue so to do, and the will of the deceased in such testament expressed shall be performed and observed in such manner as it should have been if this act had never been made.

"X. Provided also, that this act shall continue in force for seven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer."

XLIV. STAT. 22 & 23 CAROLI 2, c. 15 [11]. A.D. 1670.

An Act for the better Settlement of the Maintenance of the Parsons, Vicars, and Curates, in the Parishes of the City of London burnt by the late dreadful Fire there."

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 10.

tion till after
one year.
If debts afterwards appear,
then all to refund propor-
tionably.

Act not extend to administration cum testamento annexo.

XLV. STAT. 22 & 23 CAROLI 2, c. 20 [7. 16]. A.D. 1670.

An Act for the Relief and Release of poor distressed Prisoners for Debt."
[Inquiry as to charities for the benefit of poor prisoners.]

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 15.

STAT. 22 & 23
CAR. 2, c. 20.

XLVI. STAT. 25 CAROLI 2, c. 2 (1). A.D. 1672.

An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from Popish Recusants."

"For preventing dangers which may happen from popish recusants, and quieting the minds of his majesty's good subjects; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and every person or persons, as well peers as commoners, that shall bear any office or offices civil or military, or shall receive any pay, salary, fee, or wages, by reason of any patent or grant from his majesty, or shall have command or place of trust from or under his majesty, or from any of his majesty's predecessors, or by his or their authority, or by authority derived from him or them, within the realm of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or in his majesty's navy, or in the several islands of Jersey and Guernsey, or shall be of the household, or in the service or employment of his majesty, or of his royal highness the Duke of York, who shall inhabit, reside, or be within the city of London or Westminster, or within thirty miles distant from the same, on the first day of Easter term that shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy-three, or at any time during the said term, all and every the said person and persons shall personally appear before the end of the said term, or of Trinity term next following, in his majesty's high court of Chancery, or in his majesty's court of King's Bench, and there in public and open court, between the hours of nine of the clock and twelve in the forenoon, take the several oaths of supremacy and allegiance, (which oath of allegiance is contained in the statute made in the third year of King James,) by law established; and during the time of the taking thereof by the said person and persons, all pleas and proceedings in the said respective courts shall cease; and that all and every of the

STAT. 25 CAR.
2, c. 2.

Lutw. 159.
2 Jac. 1, c. 5.
7 Jac. 1, c. 6.

All persons
that bear any offices or places, &c.
must take the oaths of allegiance and supremacv, and the following
oaths, &c.
18 Vin. 240.

When and where to appear and make oath.

This act extended to depe-

(1) Stat. 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 24. Stat. 13 Gul. 3, c. 6. Stat. 10 Ann. c. 2. Stat. 2 Geo. 2, c. 31. Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 26. Stat. 16 Geo. 2, c. 30. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 33 Geo. 3, c. 21. (1.) Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 128. Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 17. Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 26. Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 102. Stat. 5 & 6 Gul. 4, c. 28.

STAT. 25 CAR.
2, c. 2.

ties by 1 Geo.
1, St. II. c. 13,
s. 18.

To receive the sacrament according to the usage of the church of England.

All persons to be admitted
into any office, &c. after the first day of Easter term, to take the said
oaths, &c.
See 2 Geo. 2,
c. 31, s. 9.
Carth. 478.
2 Mod. 209.
Comb. 21.
The time enlarged to six months, 9 Geo.
2, c. 26.
Persons beyond sea helped by 13 Geo. 1,
c. 29, s. 1.

When and where to be taken.

Jon. (Sir T.) 81.

Explained by
1 Geo. 2,
St. II. c. 23,
s. 6.
Carth. 320.

Certificate.

Whoever shall refuse to take the oaths
shall be adjudged incapable of any other office.

said respective persons and officers, not having taken the said oaths in the said respective courts aforesaid, shall, on or before the first day of August, one thousand six hundred seventy-three, at the quarter sessions for that county or place where he or they shall be, inhabit, or reside on the twentieth day of May, take the said oaths in open court between the said hours of nine and twelve of the clock in the forenoon; and the said respective officers aforesaid shall also receive the sacrament of the Lord's supper, according to the usage of the church of England, at or before the first day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and seventy-three, in some parish church, upon some Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, immediately after divine service and sermon.

"II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person or persons that shall be admitted, entered, placed, or taken into any office or offices civil or military, or shall receive any pay, salary, fee, or wages, by means of any patent or grant of his majesty, or shall have command or place of trust from or under his majesty, his heirs or successors, or by his or their authority, or by authority derived from him or them, within this realm of England, Denmark of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or in his majesty's navy, or in the several islands of Jersey and Guernsey, or that shall be admitted into any service or employment in his majesty's or royal highness's household or family, after the first day of Easter term aforesaid, and shall inhabit, be, or reside, when he or they is or are so admitted or placed, within the cities of London or Westminster, or within thirty miles of the same, shall take the said oaths aforesaid in the said respective court or courts aforesaid, in the next term after such his or their admittance or admittances into the office or offices, employment or employments aforesaid, between the hours aforesaid, and no other, and the proceedings to take the said oaths aforesaid; and that all and every such person or persons to be admitted after the said first day of Easter term as aforesaid, not having taken the said oaths in the said courts aforesaid, shall, at the quarter sessions for that county or place where he or they shall reside, next after such his admittance or admittances into any of the said respective offices or employments aforesaid, take the said oaths and respective oaths as aforesaid; and all and every such person and persons so to be admitted as aforesaid, shall also receive the sacrament of the Lord's supper, according to the usage of the church of England, within three months after his or their admittance in or receiving their said authority and employment, in some parish church, upon some Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, immediately after divine service and sermon.

"III. And every of the said persons in the respective court where he takes the said oaths, shall first deliver a certificate of such his receiving the said sacrament as aforesaid, under the hands of the respective minister and churchwarden, and shall then make proof of the truth thereof by two credible witnesses at the said court; all which shall be inquired of, and put upon record, in the respective courts.

"IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every the person or persons aforesaid, that do or shall neglect or refuse to take the said oaths and sacrament in the said courts and places, and at the respective times aforesaid, shall be (ipso facto) adjudged incapable and disabled in law (1), to all intents and purposes whatsoever, to have, occupy, or enjoy the said office or offices, employment or employments, or any part of them, or any matter or thing aforesaid, or any profit or advantage appertaining to them, or any of them, and every such office and place, employment and employments, shall be void, and is hereby adjudged void.

(1) Disabled in law:—The strict interpretation given to these words will receive illustration from Hippaly v. Tucke, (2 Lev. 184; 3 Keb. 682.) in which case, a mayor was judge, and error was assigned upon a judgment delivered by him, because he had not qualified himself according to this statute; that, consequently, the office was void before the judgment given, and that the same was coram non judge. The court said that the executing his office without qualifying himself, did not only make him liable to the penalty of the law, but that by the neglect, the office was void to all intents and purposes, as to the jurisdiction itself, for which reason, the judgment was reversed.

STAT. 25 CAR.
2, c. 2.

This act not to extend to peerage, &c.

Papish officers must appoint deputies, who must take the
oaths, &c.

and subscribe.

The peers may
take the oaths,
&c. in parliament.

Married
women, &c.

"XI. Provided always, that neither this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend, be judged, or interpreted any ways to hurt or prejudice the peerage of any peer of this realm, or to take away any right, power, privilege, or grace, which any person (being a peer of this realm) hath or ought to enjoy by reason of his peerage, either in time of parliament or otherwise; or to take away any pension money or bills of impost, nor to take away or make void any pension or salary granted by his majesty to any person for valuable and sufficient consideration for life, lives, or years, other than such as relate to any office, or to any place of trust under his majesty, and other than pensions of bounty or voluntary pensions; nor to take away or make void any estate of inheritance granted by his majesty, or any his predecessors, to any person or persons of or in any lands, tenements, tithes, or hereditaments, not being offices; nor to take away or make void any pension or salary already granted by his majesty to any person who was instrumental in the happy preservation of his sacred majesty after the battle at Worcester in the year one thousand six hundred fifty-one, until his majesty's arrival upon the seas; nor to take away or make void the grant of any office or offices of inheritance, or any fee, salary, or reward, for executing such office or offices, or any way belonging, granted by his majesty or any his predecessors, to, or enjoyed or which hereafter shall be enjoyed by, any person or persons who shall refuse or neglect to take the said oaths, or either of them, or to receive the sacrament, and subscribe the declaration mentioned in this act, in manner therein expressed, nevertheless so as such person or persons, having or enjoying any such office or offices of inheritance, do or shall substitute and appoint his or their sufficient deputy or deputies, (which such officer or officers respectively are hereby empowered from time to time to make or change, any former law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding,) to exercise the said office or offices, until such time as the person or persons having such office or offices shall voluntarily in the court of Chancery, before the lord chancellor or lord keeper for the time being, or in the court of King's Bench, take the said oaths, and receive the sacrament according to the act, and subscribe the said declaration, and so as all and every the deputy and deputies as aforesaid to be appointed, take the said oaths, receive the sacrament, and subscribe the said declaration from time to time, as they shall happen to be appointed, in manner as by this act such officers, whose deputies they be, are appointed to do; and so as such deputies be from time to time approved of by the king's majesty under his privy signet; but that all and every the peers of this realm shall have, hold, and enjoy what is provided for as aforesaid, and also every other person or persons before-mentioned, denoted, or intended within the proviso, shall have, hold, and enjoy what is provided for as aforesaid, notwithstanding any incapacity or disability mentioned in this act.

"XII. Provided also, that the said peers and every of them may take the said oaths, and make the said subscription, and deliver the said certificates, before the peers sitting in parliament, if the parliament be sitting within the time limited for doing thereof, and in the intervals of parliament in the high court of Chancery, in which respective courts all the said proceedings are to be recorded as aforesaid.

"XIII. Provided always, that no married woman, or person under the age of eighteen years, or being beyond or upon the seas, or found by the lawful oath of twelve men to be non compos mentis, and so being and remaining at the end of Trinity term in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy-one, having any office, shall by virtue of this act lose or forfeit any such office or office (other than such married woman during the life of her husband only) for any neglect or refusal of taking the oaths, and doing the other things required by this act to be done by persons having offices, so as such respective persons within four months after the death of the husband, coming to the age of eighteen years, returning into this kingdom, and becoming of sound mind, shall respectively take the said oaths, and perform all other things in manner as by this act is appointed for persons to do, who shall happen to have any office or offices to them given or fallen after the end of the said Trinity term.

IV. Provided also, that any person who by his or her neglect or refusal, to this act, shall lose or forfeit any office, may be capable by a new grant of office, or of any other, and to have and hold the same again, such person he said oaths, and doing all other things required by this act, so as such not granted to, and actually enjoyed by, some other person at the time of entering thereof.

V. Provided also, that nothing in this act contained shall extend to make forfeiture, disability, or incapacity in, by, or upon any non-commission officer in his majesty's navy, if such officer or officers shall only subscribe the oath therein required, in manner as the same is directed.

VI. Provided also, that nothing in this act contained shall extend to prejudice the Earl of Bristol, or Anne Countess of Bristol, his wife, in the pension granted to them by patent under the great seal of England, bearing date the sixteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and nine, being in lieu of a just debt due to the said earl from his majesty, as is fully expressed in the said patent.

VII. Provided also, that this act, or anything therein contained, shall not extend to the office of any high constable, petty constable, tithingman, headborough, or of the poor, churchwardens, surveyor of the highways, or any like inferior office, or to any office or forester, or keeper of any park, chase, warren, or of bailiff of any manor or lands, or to any like private offices, or to any persons having only any the before-mentioned, or any the like offices."

STAT. 25 CAR. 2, c. 2.

Any person forfeiting his office, upon taking the oaths, &c. capable of a new grant thereof.

Not to extend to non-commission officers in the navy, &c. Earl of Bristol and his lady.

Constables, &c.

See farther, 10 Ann. c. 2; 12 Ann. St. II. c. 12; 5 Geo. 1, c. 4; and 16 Geo. 2, c. 30.

XLVII. STAT. 25 CAROLI 2, c. 5. A.D. 1672.

An Act for the King's Majesty's most gracious General and Free Pardon. Years of first-fruits; procurations, synodals, and other payments out of any spiritual promotion; taking away temporalities in time of vacation: excepted [from pardon.]

STAT. 25 CAR. 2, c. 5.

XLVIII. STAT. 29 CAROLI 2, c. 3(1). A.D. 1676.

"An Act for Prevention of Frauds and Perjuries."

For prevention of many fraudulent practices, which are commonly endeavored to be upheld by perjury and subornation of perjury; be it enacted by the most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, by the authority of the same, that from and after the four and twentieth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy six, all leases, estates, interests of freehold, or terms of years, or any uncertainty of, in, to, or out of any messuages, manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, made or created by livery and seisin only, or by parol, and not put in writing, and signed by the parties so making or creating the same, or their agents lawfully authorized by writing, shall have the force and effect of leases at will only, and shall not either in law or equity be deemed or taken to have any other or greater force or effect; any consideration for making any such leases or estates, or any former law or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Except nevertheless all leases not exceeding the term of three years from the date thereof, whereupon the rent reserved to the landlord, during such term, shall amount unto two third parts at the least of the full improved value of the premises demised.

And moreover, that no leases, estates, or interests, either of freehold, or of terms of years, or any uncertain interest, not being copyhold or customary interest, made or created by livery and seisin only, or by parol, and not put in writing, shall have the force and effect of leases at will only, and shall not either in law or equity be deemed or taken to have any other or greater force or effect; any consideration for making any such leases or estates, or any former law or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

STAT. 29 CAR. 2, c. 3.

1 Rol. Abr. 24.

2 Lev. 227. Parol leases and interest of freehold shall have the force of estates at will only.

Except leases not exceeding three years, &c.

No leases or estates of freehold shall be granted or See Stat. 4 Ann. c. 16. Stat. 14 c. 20. Stat. 7 Gul. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 29 Car. 2, c. 3, ss. 5, 6, 12, 19, & 22, has been repealed, by Stat. 7 Gul. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26, but the repealed sections have been inserted, in order that practitioners may perceive the difference of language, which the legislature has adopted.

STAT. 29 CAR.
2. c. 3.

surrendered by word.

Promises and agreements by parol.

2 Show. 16.

Skins. 142, 143.

2 Mod. 310.

1 Vent. 361,

362.

3 Lev. 65, 66.

1 Saik. 280.

See 3 Bur.

1281, 1886,

1921.

Devises of lands shall be in writing, and attested by three or four witnesses.

3 Lev. 86.

Carth. 35, 514.

3 Mod. 218,

262.

How the same shall be revo-
cable.

3 Mod. 260.

All declarations or creations of trusts
shall be in writing.

Explained by 4 Ann. c. 16,
s. 15.

Trusts arising, transferred or extinguished
by implication of law, are excepted.

Assignments of trusts shall be in writing.

Lands, &c.
shall be liable to the judgments, &c. of
cest. que trust;

shall at any time after the said four and twentieth day of June be assigned, granted, or surrendered, unless it be by deed, or note in writing, signed by the party so assigning, granting, or surrendering the same, or their agents thereto lawfully authorized by writing, or by act and operation of law.

"IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, no action shall be brought whereby to charge any executor or administrator upon any special promise, to answer damages out of his own estate; or whereby to charge the defendant upon any special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriages of another person; or to charge any person upon any agreement made upon consideration of marriage, or upon any contract or sale of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any interest in or concerning them; or upon any agreement that is not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof; unless the agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof shall be in writing, and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or some other person thereunto by him lawfully authorized.

"V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the said four-and-twentieth day of June, all devises and bequests of any lands or tenements, devisable either by force of the statute of wills, or by this statute, or by force of the custom of Kent, or the custom of any borough, or any other particular custom, shall be in writing, and signed by the party so devising the same, or by some other person in his presence, and by his express directions, and shall be attested and subscribed in the presence of the said devisor by three or four credible witnesses, or else they shall be utterly void and of none effect.

"VI. And moreover, no devise in writing of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, nor any clause thereof, shall at any time after the said four and twentieth day of June be revocable, otherwise than by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing declaring the same, or by burning, cancelling, tearing, or obliterating the same by the testator himself, or in his presence, and by his directions and consent; but all devises and bequests of lands and tenements shall remain and continue in force, until the same be burnt, cancelled, torn, or obliterated by the testator, or his directions, in manner aforesaid, or unless the same be altered by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing of the devisor, signed in the presence of three or four witnesses, declaring the same; any former law to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, all declarations or creations of trusts or confidences of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, shall be manifested and proved by some writing signed by the party who is by law enabled to declare a trust, or by his last will in writing, or else they shall be utterly void and of none effect.

"VIII. Provided always, that where any conveyance shall be made of any lands or tenements by which a trust or confidence shall or may arise or result by the implication or construction of law, or be transferred or extinguished by act or operation of law, then and in every such case such trust or confidence shall be of the like force and effect as the same would have been if this statute had not been made; anything herein before contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"IX. And be it further enacted, that all grants and assignments of any trust or confidence shall likewise be in writing, signed by the party granting or assigning the same, or by such last will or devise, or else shall likewise be utterly void and of none effect.

"X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, it shall and may be lawful for every sheriff or other officer to whom any writ or precept is or shall be directed in the suit of any person or persons, of, for, and upon any judgment, statute, or recompense hereafter to be made or had, to do, make, and deliver execution unto the party in that behalf, suing, of all such lands, tenements, rectories, tithes, rents, and hereditaments, as any other person or persons be in any manner of a like manner.

is possessed, or hereafter shall be seized or possessed, in trust for him against whom execution is so sued, like as the sheriff or other officer might or ought to have done, if the said party against whom execution hereafter shall be so sued, had been seized of such lands, tenements, rectories, tithes, rents, or other hereditaments of such estate as they be seized of in trust for him at the time of the said execution sued; which lands, tenements, rectories, tithes, rents, and other hereditaments, by force and virtue of such execution, shall accordingly be held and enjoyed freed and discharged from all incumbrances of such person or persons as shall be so seized or possessed in trust for the person against whom such execution shall be sued; and if any cestuy que trust hereafter shall die, leaving a trust in fee-simple to descend to his heir, there and in every such case such trust shall be deemed and taken, and is hereby declared to be, assets by descent, and the heir shall be liable to and chargeable with the obligation of his ancestors for and by reason of such assets, as fully and amply as he might or ought to have been, if the estate in law had descended to him in possession in like manner as the trust descended; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"XI. Provided always, that no heir that shall become chargeable by reason of any estate or trust made assets in his hands by this law, shall by reason of any kind of plea or confession of the action, or suffering judgment by nient dedire, or any other matter, be chargeable to pay the condemnation out of his own estate; but execution shall be sued of the whole estate so made assets in his hands by descent, in whose hands soever it shall come after the writ purchased, in the same manner as it is to be at and by the common law, where the heir at law pleading a true plea, judgment is prayed against him thereupon; any thing in this present act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XII. And for the amendment of the law in the particulars following; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from henceforth any estate pur autre vie shall be devisable by a will in writing, signed by the party so devising the same, or by some other person in his presence and by his express directions, attested and subscribed in the presence of the devisor by three or more witnesses; and if no such devise thereof be made, the same shall be chargeable in the hands of the heir, if it shall come to him by reason of a special occupancy, as assets by descent, as in case of lands in fee-simple; and in case there be no special occupant thereof, it shall go to the executors or administrators of the party that had the estate thereof by virtue of the grant, and shall be assets in their hands."

"XIX. And, for prevention of fraudulent practices in setting up nuncupative wills, which have been the occasion of much perjury; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that, from and after the aforesaid four and twentieth day of June, no nuncupative will shall be good, where the estate thereby bequeathed shall exceed the value of thirty pounds, that is not proved by the oaths of three witnesses (at the least) that were present at the making thereof; nor unless it be proved that the testator, at the time of pronouncing the same, did bid the persons present, or some of them, bear witness that such was his will, or to that effect; nor unless such nuncupative will were made in the time of the last sickness of the deceased, and in the house of his or her habitation or dwelling, or where he or she hath been resident for the space of ten days or more next before the making of such will, except where such person was surprised or taken sick, being from his own home, and died before he returned to the place of his or her dwelling.

"XX. And be it further enacted, that, after six months passed after the speaking of the pretended testamentary words, no testimony shall be received to prove any will nuncupative, except the said testimony, or the substance thereof, were committed to writing within six days after the making of the said will.

"XXI. And be it further enacted, that no letters testamentary, or probate of any nuncupative will, shall pass the seal of any court till fourteen days at the least after the decease of the testator be fully expired; nor shall any nuncupative will be at any time received to be proved, unless process have first issued to call in the widow, or next of kindred to the deceased, to the end they may contest the same, if they please.

STAT. 29 CAR.
2, c. 3.

and held free from the incumbrances of the persons seized in trust. Trust shall be assets in the hands of heirs. 2 Vern. 248, c. 232.

No heir shall by reason thereof become chargeable of his own estate.

Estates pur autre vie shall be devisable. 14 Geo. 2, c. 20, s. 9. And shall be assets in the heir's hand. And where there is no special occupant, shall go to the executors. Nuncupative wills.

Explained by 4 Ann. c. 16, s. 14.

Probates of nuncupative wills.

STAT. 29 CAR.
2, c. 3.
Raym. 334.

"XXII. And be it further enacted, that no will in writing concerning any goods or chattels, or personal estate, shall be repealed, nor shall any clause, devise, or bequest therein be altered or changed by any words, or will by word of mouth only, except the same be in the life of the testator committed to writing, and the writing thereof read unto the testator, and allowed by him, and proved as so done by three witnesses at the least.

Soldiers' and mariners' wills
excepted.

"XXIII. Provided always, that, notwithstanding this act, any soldier being in actual military service, or any mariner or seaman being at sea, may dispose of his moveables, wages, and personal estate, as he or they might have done before the making of this act.

The jurisdiction of courts
saved.

"XXIV. And it is hereby declared, that nothing in this act shall extend to alter or change the jurisdiction or right of probate of wills concerning personal estates, but that the Prerogative court of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the ecclesiastical courts, and other courts having right to the probate of such wills, shall retain the same right and power as they had before, in every respect, notwithstanding to the rules and directions of this act.

22 & 23 Car.
2, c. 10.
Husbands not compellable to make distribution of the personal estates of their wives.
3 Mod. 231.

"XXV. And, for the explaining one act of this present parliament, intitled, 'An Act for the better settling of Intestates' Estates,' be it declared by the authority aforesaid, that neither the said act, nor anything therein contained, shall be construed to extend to the estates of feme covert that shall die intestate, nor to their husbands may demand and have administration of their rights, credits, or other personal estates, and recover and enjoy the same, as they might have done before the making of the said act."

STAT. 29 CAR.
2, c. 7.

XLIX. STAT. 29 CAROLI 2, c. 7. A.D. 1676.

"An Act for the better Observation of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday."

1 Car. 1, c. 1.
3 Car. 1, c. 1.
See 2 Bur. 787.

"For the better observation and keeping holy the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all the laws, statutes, and ordinances, enacted and in force concerning the observation of the Lord's day, and repairing to the church thereon, be carefully put in execution; and that all and every person and persons whatsoever, shall on every Lord's day apply themselves to the observation of the same, by exercising themselves thereon in the duties of piety and true religion, publicly and privately; and that no tradesman, artificer, workman, labourer, or other person whatsoever, shall do or exercise any worldly labour (1), business, or work, of their ordinary callings (2), upon the Lord's day.

Tradesmen,
artificers, and
labourers.

(1) Worldly labour.—This is analogous to the laws of Ina: (cap. 3:) "Servus, si quid operis patraret die Dominico ex precepto Domini sui, liber esto; Dominus 30 solidos dependito. Verum si id operis, injussu Domini sui, aggressus fuerit, verberibus caditor, aut saltem virgarum metum pretio redimito. Liber, si die hoc operetur injussu Domini sui, aut servituti addicitor, aut 60 solidos dependito. Sacerdos si in hanc partem deliquerit, poena in duplum augetur." So likewise it is stated in the laws of Ethelred: (c. 15:) "Dominici solennis diei cum summo honore magnoperè celebranda sunt, nec quicquam in eadem operis agatur servilis." In which case there was one exception in the injunctions of Queen Elizabeth, viz. for labour in time of harvest, after divine service was over; but this (as well as other abuses of the Lord's day) stands prohibited, and is made punishable by the present act.

The words worldly labour, are not confined to a man's ordinary calling, but extend to any business he may carry on. See Sparrow, 4 Bing. 84.

It may be here remarked, that, by Stat. 1 & 2 Gul. 4, c. 32, killing game on a Sunday subjects the offender to a penalty not exceeding 5*l*.; by Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 24, indictments of officers therefore required before the Lord's day are in future to be taken on the Saturday next preceding, or on the Monday next ensuing; by Stat. 2 Geo. 3, c. 25, fish may be sold; by Act. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 12, and by Stat. 1 & 2 (rel. 4, c. 72) coachmen and hackney coachmen, are allowed to ply for hire upon Sundays, and Stat. 4 & 5 Gul. 4, c. 37, extends the provisions of Stat. 3 Geo. 4, c. 24, relative to taking a Sunday, to all places out of London, or beyond ten miles of London.

(2) Ordinary callings.—In the Regum of Archbishop Chicheley, (2 Chich. 20) there is a special declaration, forbidding at thereof, (works of necessity and charity only excepted,) and that STAT. 29 CAR.

 in being of the age of fourteen years or upwards, offending in the pre- 2. C. 7.

London to exercise their callings
it's day; and in a visitation of Warham, (69 (a), 51 (a), 58 (a), butchers were presented to the
for exercising their several at day, and admonished to for-upon pain of ecclesiastical cen-

the common law is founded on the tenets professed by the Anglican, at common law, the observance of the Sabbath was a duty of imperiousness. Res. v. Brotherton, Str. 1041, and that statute being declared to be in support of the religion of the land, it has received an extended construction.

Illustration of the provisions of L. 2, c. 7, and of its principles, is that of Mr. Justice Bayley in Fenwick, (5 B. & C. 406,) and which was cited by Chief Justice Hall in Terror, (4 Bing. 88.) as "one of his judgments ever delivered;" it is in Bayley. "This case came before us upon a motion for a new trial. It was upon the warranty of a horse. The defendants were horse-dealers, and they sought and the warranty given on and the only question was, whether Stat. 29 Car. 1, c. 7, the purgation, and the plaintiffs precluded claiming the action. That is an utter observation of Sunday, and saying, that every person shall on a day apply himself to the observance same by exercising himself in acts of piety and true religion, publicly; one of its provisions is, 'man, artisan, artificer, workman, labourer, person whatsoever, shall do no worldly labour, business, or other ordinary callings upon the Sabbath, or any part thereof, works of supererogatory charity only excepted. That if any person who is a horse-dealer is engaged in the business of his ordinary calling, one can doubt. And is there any spirit or frame of this act that take such a purchase out of its scope? The spirit of the act is to advance the interests of religion, to turn men's thoughts from their worldly concerns, to direct them to the duties of piety and duty. If the act cannot be construed so as to include its spirit, unless it is so construed, check the career of worldly traffic, there anything in the frame of mind of its applying to the case in hand? It does not indeed apply to all cases, but to such only as have some religious origin; and the interposition of the law between the words labour and duty justify a question, whether it is a description of the business of ordinary calling, or whether it was intended to such as was manual and casual."

culated to meet the public eye. There is nothing, however, in the act to show that it was passed exclusively for promoting public decency, and not for regulating private conduct; and though I expressed a doubt upon this point in Blowsome v. Williams, (3 B. & C. 232,) I am satisfied, upon further consideration, that it would be a narrow construction of the act, and a construction contrary to its spirit, to give it such a restriction. Labour may be private, and not meet the public eye, and so not offend against public decency; but it is equally labour, and equally interferes with a man's religious duties. The same may be said of business or of work. Each may be public, and meet the public eye; each may be private, and concealed. There is nothing, therefore, in the position of the word business between those of labour and work, which in our judgment can justify us in giving to it anything but its ordinary meaning; and it seems to us, that every species of labour, business, or work, whether public or private, in the ordinary calling of a tradesman, artificer, workman, labourer, or other person, is within the prohibition of this statute.

"The statute, in direct terms, provides that every person shall apply himself to the observation of the Lord's day, publicly and privately; so that private as well as public conduct was expressly within its contemplation. In Drury v. Defontaine, (1 Taunt. 135,) Lord Chief Justice Mansfield, (after the court had taken time to consider,) lays it down, that if any man in the exercise of his ordinary calling make a contract on a Sunday, that contract would be void; (and the case before him was a private contract for the purchase of a horse;) but he showed, that that case was not within the statute, because no one of the parties was in the exercise of the business of his ordinary calling. His expression, that the contract would be void, probably meant only that it would be void so as to prevent a party, who was privy to what made it illegal, from suing upon it in a court of law, but not so as to defeat a claim upon it by an innocent party; and so it was considered by this court in Blossome v. Williams, 3 B. & C. 232. That was also the case of a private sale of a horse, and an action brought upon a warranty, and to recover back the price. The objection was made, the purchase was on a Sunday.

"Though I expressed the doubt I have mentioned, whether the statute applied to private sales, such as were not open breaches of the Sunday, that was not the ground of the decision; but very distinct grounds were stated, to show that the statute did not apply, for the sale was substantially not on the Sunday, but on a Tuesday. The defendant was the only person who was in the exercise of his ordinary calling, and the plaintiff did not know what his calling was; so that the defendant was the only person who had violated the statute, and it would have been

STAT. 29 CAR. 2, c. 7. mises, shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of five shillings; and that person or persons whatsoever, shall publicly cry, show forth, or expose to sale, against justice to have allowed him to take advantage of his own wrong to defeat the rights of the plaintiff, who was innocent. These cases, therefore, tend to support the present objection; and upon the principle, that this statute is entitled to such a construction as will promote the ends for which it was passed, that it applies to private as well as public conduct, and that the purchase by the plaintiff was within the mischief intended to be suppressed, and within the words made use of to suppress it, we are of opinion, that the plaintiff cannot maintain the present action, and that the rule for a new trial must be made absolute." Vide etiam Stephens on Nisi Prius, tit. ASSUMPSIT, 260.

In Begbie v. Levi, (1 C. & J. 180,) which was an action by an indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange drawn on a Sunday: it was held, that the plaintiff might recover; but the court said, that if it had been accepted on a Sunday, and done in the ordinary calling of the defendant, and the plaintiff was acquainted with that circumstance when he took the bill, he would be precluded from recovering on it, but the defendant would not be permitted to set up his own illegal act as a defence at the suit of an innocent holder of the bill. Vide Stephens on Nisi Prius, tit. BILLS OF EXCHANGE AND PROMISSORY NOTES, 781.

Stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 7, s. 5, prohibits only the labour, business, or work done in the course of a man's ordinary calling, but it does not apply to a contract of hiring; and therefore such a contract for a year, made on a Sunday between a farmer and a labourer, has been held to be valid, and that a service under it conferred a settlement. Rex v. Whitnash (Inhabitants of), 7 B. & C. 596.

An attorney is not within Stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 7, s. 1, which prohibits certain persons from doing any work of their ordinary calling on the Lord's day. Peale v. Dickens, 3 Dowl. P. C. 171.

And if an attorney, acting on behalf of his client, agree on a Sunday to become personally responsible for part of the debt owing by him, he does not thereby do any work of his ordinary calling, within the meaning of Stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 7. Ibid.

The owner of a stage-coach is not within Stat. 3 Car. 1, c. 1, or Stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 7, and therefore an action may be maintained against him for neglecting to take a passenger on a Sunday. Sandiman v. Breach, 7 B. & C. 96. Where a coach proprietor, having refused to carry the plaintiff, because there were no other passengers, and who, in consequence, hired a post-chaise to go to his destination: it was held, that the proprietor was liable for the chaise hire, notwithstanding the contract was made on a Sunday. Ibid.

An action will not lie on a contract entered into on a Sunday, although entered into by an agent, and although the objection be taken by the party at whose request the contract was entered into. Smith v. Rose, 4 Bing. 84. 2 C. & P. 544. Where a contract for the sale of goods, which had been delivered to and returned by the purchaser, was void, by reason of having been made on a Sunday: it was held, that a subsequent promise to pay did not entitle the vendor to recover the sale price quantum meruit. Williams v. Peck, 1 Bing. 633.

(1) Expose to sale.—"Negotium in Dominicis" was strictly forbidden in the laws of Alfred, Athelstan, and Edgar: (see 404, 450;) which is agreeable to the canon law: "Omnes dies Domini sunt sabbatum, in quibus non est opus, neque mercatus, neque aliquid agendum, nisi pro pace vel alia necessitate preceperit." Extra. l. 2, t. 9, c. 1. In the year of 1571, (Coll. Can. 236,) where the markets are forbidden, an allowance was applied, for the selling of some necessaries after divine service; but here it was held to be exposed to sale upon the Lord's day or any part thereof. Vide etiam 14. 1.

In Drury v. Defontaine, (1 T. R. 517,) it was decided, that a sale of goods made on a Sunday, which is not made in the course of the ordinary calling of the vendor or agent, is not void at common law. Stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 7: Chief Justice Maule observing, "The bargaining for and selling of horses on a Sunday is certainly a very ancient thing, and what no religious man would do. But we cannot discover where the law has gone so far as to say that a contract made on a Sunday shall be void, though, under these penal statutes, a man, in the exercise of his ordinary calling, should make a contract on the Sunday; such a contract would be void. It appeared that a horse was not sent to Hull for the purpose of private sale, but for the purpose of being sold by auction; for it may be gathered from the evidence, that Hull keeps a regular sale by auction. Therefore Hull is a dealer. It is said by Lord Coke, 'Christian religion is part of the common law, and such a sale certainly is directly to the practice of those religious duties which it was the purpose of the law to enforce, as expressed in the preamble of Stat. 29 Car. 2, namely, 'That every person who shall on the Lord's day expose to sale any goods or chattels, or by exercising themselves therein in any manner contrary to the duties of piety and true religion publicly or privately;' which certainly is not to be done by those whose minds are occupied in making bargains and selling horses." Coke, (2 Inst. 220,) cites a Statute of King Athelstan, the latter part of which is, 'Die autem dominica nec mercatus, nec aliquid agitur: id quod si quis egerit, et ipse decem solidos, triginta preterea solidos mulctatur.'

wares, merchandises, fruit, herbe, goods, or chattels whatsoever, upon the day, or any part thereof, upon pain that every person so offending, shall the same goods so cried or showed forth, or exposed to sale.

And it is further enacted, that no drover, horse-courser, waggoner, higgler, their or any of their servants, shall travel or come into his or their lodging, upon the Lord's day, or any part thereof, upon pain that each and every offender shall forfeit twenty shillings for every such offence; and that no person shall use, employ, or travel, upon the Lord's day, with any perry, lighter, or barge, except it be upon extraordinary occasion, to be by some justice of the peace of the county, or head officer, or some justice of the city, borough, or town corporate, where the fact shall be committed; and that every person so offending shall forfeit and lose the sum of five pounds for every such offence. And that if any person offending in any of the above shall be thereof convicted before any justice of the peace of the county, or chief officer or officers, or any justice of the peace of or within any city, or town corporate, where the said offences shall be committed, upon his view, or confession of the party, or proof of any one or more witnesses by which the said justices, chief officer or officers, is by this act authorized to take, the said justice, or chief officer or officers shall give warrant under his hand and seal, to the constables or churchwardens of the parish or parishes in which such offence shall be committed, to seize the said goods cried, shewed forth, or exposed to sale as aforesaid, and to sell the same, and to levy the said other forfeitures or penalties, by way of distress and sale of the goods of every such offender so offending, rendering to the said offenders the overplus of the monies raised thereon in default of such distress, or in case of insufficiency or inability of the offender to pay the said forfeitures or penalties, that then the party offending shall be publicly in the stocks by the space of two hours. And all and singular the forfeitures or penalties aforesaid shall be employed and converted to the use of the parish where the said offences shall be committed, saving only that it may be lawful to and for any such justice, mayor, or head officer or officers of the said forfeitures or penalties to reward any person or persons that shall inform of any offence against this act, according to their discretions, so as the same shall not exceed not the third part of the forfeitures or penalties.

Provided, that nothing in this act contained shall extend to the prohibiting of dressing of meat in families, or dressing or selling of meat in inns (1), and Cox observes, 'Here note, by the statute, that no merchandizing should be done on the Lord's day.' But it does not appear, that the common law ever considered those as void which were made on a Sunday. In Comyns v. Boyer, the defendant was charged with a sale in open fair, but in stating the fact, he did not except the fair-day falling on a Sunday, and the plea was bad, because on that day would be illegal, as by the statute (27 Hen. 6, c. 5.) of markets. The court determined, that a fair on that day would be illegal, and that the contract would not be void. Since changed, and if any act is done under a penalty, a contract to do it is not void. But though that case is law, it shows that there was no exception in the common law which would avoid a contract on the Sunday, otherwise this of the statute would not have been made.

Stat. 29 Car. 2. is the only statute that can possibly apply here. It enacts that no person whatsoever shall do or exercise any worldly labour, business, or work on the Lord's day, or any part thereof, or bring this case within the act, we must pronounce, that either Drury or Hull worked within their ordinary callings on the Sunday. But the sale of horses by private contract was not Drury's ordinary calling, nor was it Hull's; his calling was that of a horse-auctioneer, and he was not within his ordinary calling in selling this horse by private contract: and, therefore, although it is to be lamented, the sale must be held good, and the rule discharged."

(1) In inns:—In the injunctions of Queen Elizabeth, it was provided, that no innholders, or alehouse-keepers, shall use or sell meat or drink in the time of common prayer, preaching, or reading of the Homilies, or Scriptures: which is taken from the Articles of Visitation, 2 Edw. 6.

It has been adjudged, that baking provisions for customers was within this exception. (Rex v. Cox, 2 Burr. 787, recognised in Rex v. Younger, 5 T. R. 449;) but that baking rolls on a Sunday was not within the exception. (Crepps v. Durden, Comp. 641.)

It may be here observed, that a person can commit but one offence, on the same day, by exercising his ordinary calling on a Sunday. Ibid.

STAT. 29 CAR. 2, c. 7.

None shall cry or expose to sale wares.

Drovers, horse-couriers, waggoners, butchers, & higglers, boats and barges.

Provisions for roaches, by 5 & 6 G. & M. c. 22, s. 18, and 9 Ann. c. 23, s. 20.

In what manner the conviction shall be.

The penalty how to be levied.

In case of insufficiency, the offender shall be set in the stocks. The forfeitures, how to be disposed of.

A provision for private families, victualing-houses, &c.

STAT. 29 CAR.
2, c. 7.

The prosecution to be within ten days.

The hundred not responsible to persons travelling on the Lord's day;
but shall make fresh suit after the offenders.

27 Eliz. c. 13.

Service of process on the Lord's day
shall be void.
Carthew, 504.
See farther, 21
Geo. 3, c. 49.

cooks' shops, or victualling houses, for such as otherwise cannot be provided, as to the crying or selling of milk before nine of the clock in the morning, or the four of the clock in the afternoon.

"IV. Provided also, that no person or persons shall be impeached, process, or molested, for any offence before-mentioned in this act, unless he or they be prosecuted for the same within ten days after the offence committed.

"V. Provided, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons whatsoever which shall travel upon the Lord's day (1), shall be then robbed, that no hundred or the inhabitants thereof shall be charged (2), or be answerable for any robbery so committed, but the person or persons so robbed shall be barred from bringing any action for the said robbery; any law to the contrary notwithstanding: nevertheless, the inhabitants of the counties and hundred (after notice of any such robbery to them or some of them given, or after he or she cry for the same to be brought) shall make or cause to be made fresh suit and pursuit after the offenders, with horsemen and footmen, according to the same made in the twenty-seventh year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, upon pain of forfeiting to the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, as much money as might have been recovered against the hundred by the party robbed if this law had been made.

"VI. Provided also, that no person or persons upon the Lord's day shall serve or execute (3), or cause to be served or executed, any writ, process (4), warrant, order, judgment, or decree, (except in cases of treason, felony, or breach of the peace); but that the service of every such writ, process, warrant, order, judgment, or decree, shall be void to all intents and purposes whatsoever; and the person or persons so serving or executing the same, shall be as liable to the suit of the party grieved, and to answer damages to him for doing thereof, as if he or they had done the same without any writ, process, warrant, order, judgment, or decree at all.

(1) Which shall travel upon the Lord's day:—In Tashmaker v. Edmonton (Hundred of), (1 Com. 345; Str. 405.) it appeared, that the plaintiff lived a mile from the church, and going thither with his lady in his carriage upon a Sunday, was robbed; and for which he brought his action against the hundred: it was held, that he could recover, because the statute applied only to travelling: but Chief Justice Pratt said, if the plaintiff had been going to make visits, it might have been otherwise.

(2) Shall be charged:—This clause was probably inserted, in consequence of a judicial opinion given in Wuite v. Stoke (Hundred of), (Cro. Jac. 496; 2 Roll. 59.) where the question was, whether one being robbed upon the Sunday morning, in time of divine service, and making hue and cry, and the hundred not producing any of the robbers, the said hundred should be chargeable by the statute? Cyke, Doderidge, and Houghton held, that the hundred was chargeable; but Montague (Chief Justice) held the contrary.

(3) Shall serve or execute:—Before this statute, a person might have been attached for arresting another on Sunday. Prinson's case, Cro. Car. 602. Thus, in Knowles v. Richardson, (1 Mod. 55.) Kelynge said, "I have known many attachments for arresting a man upon a Sunday, but still the affidavit contained, that he might have been taken on another day." to which Twisden added,

"so for arresting a man as he was going to church, to disgrace him."

(4) Process:—"A libel was exhibited at the spiritual court of Durham against a woman for incontinence, and the citation fixed upon the church door on a Sunday according to custom: upon which it was urged, as the opinion of civilians, that citation was sufficient without any process serving, and that that had been the common practice both before and since this statute; and Holt (Chief Justice) said, if the canonistical law was, and had always been to serve this process on a Sunday, in that respect it was different from temporal process, which may be as well served on any other day; that then it did not seem to be the intent of this statute to take away serving it in that manner: which was meant of processes, that may as well be executed at any other time." Gibson v. Dex, 240. Alanson v. Brookland, 1 Va. 449. 2 Salk. 625.

(5) Of the peace:—Where a magistrate gave a warrant to a constable to take a person, in order, that he should find security for his good behaviour, and the constable executed the warrant on a Sunday, it was resolved, that such an arrest was legal, and caused a warrant for "good behaviour" to be a warrant for the peace, and so that of that this statute was to be favourably interpreted for the peace. Johnson v. Calum Raym. (Sir T.), 250.

L. STAT. 29 CAROLI 2, c. 8 (1). A.D. 1676.

STAT. 29 CAR.
2, c. 8.An Act for confirming and perpetuating Augmentations made by Ecclesiastical Persons to small Vicarages and Curacies."

"Whereas divers archbishops, bishops, deans and chapters, and other ecclesiastical persons, in obedience to his majesty's letters (2), bearing date the first day of

(1) Vide Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 10. Stat. 1 & 2 Gul. 3, c. 45. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. 107, s. 14. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 6. Stat. 1 & 5 Vict. c. 39, s. 26.

(2) His majesty's letters:—A bill was brought into the House of Commons, June 8, 1712 (Car. 2.) for the erecting and augmenting of vicarages, and had a first reading: but proceeded no further: having (as supposed) been superseded and laid aside, (or the present at least,) in consideration, that the ends proposed in it would be in some degree answered by his majesty's letter to the bishop, which was as follows: (Ken. c. 1, Imp. 152.)

The King's Letters for Augmentations.

"As nothing is more in our desires, than to provide that the Church of England, under our reign, might be furnished with a pious, learned, sober, modest, and prudent clergy: so we are ready to give encouragement to their labours and study in their several degrees and stations, that they may be check to all profaneness and superstition, and as zealously affect to remove all scandals and reproach from them and their dealings. Conceiving, therefore, a competent maintenance to be a necessary encouragement, and that all other persons who have power to dispose of tithes, may be invited to cherish a learned and godly ministry: we resolve, that because where tithes have been appointed for the support of bishops, deans and chapters, collegiate churches and houses, and other single persons that have taken due care to provide and ordain competent maintenance for the vicars of their respective places, or for the curates where vicarages were not endowed; to settle for the future some good addition and increase to such vicarages and curates' places. Our will therefore is, that forthwith provision be made for the augmentation of all such vicarages and cures, where your tithes and profits are appropriated to you and your successors, in such manner, that they who immediately depend upon the performance of ministerial duties in every parish, may have a competent portion out of every rectory impropriate to our see. And to this end, our farther will is, that no lease be granted of any rectories or parsonages belonging to your see, belonging to you or your successors, until you shall provide, that the respective vicarages, or curates' places where are no vicarages endowed, have so much revenue in glebe, tithes, or other emoluments, as commonly will amount to 1400*l.* or 800*l.* per annum, or more: that it will bear it; and in good form of law settle it upon them and their successors. And where the rectories are of small value, and cannot admit of such proportions to the vicar and curate, our will is, that one half of the profit of such a rectory be reserved for the maintenance of the vicar or curate, as is agreeable to the rates and proportions formerly mentioned.

"And our farther will is, that you do employ your authority and power, which by law belongeth to you as ordinary, for the augmentation of vicarages and stipends of curates, and that you do with diligence proceed in due form of law for the raising and establishing convenient maintenance of those who do attend holy duties in parish churches. And if any prebendary in any church (the corps of whose prebend consists in tithes) shall not observe these our commands, then we require you, or the dean of the church, to use all due means in law, where you or he hath power to compel them; or that otherwise you report to the bishop of the diocese, where the said corps doth lie, that he may interpose his authority for fulfilling this our order. And if any dean, or dean and chapter, or any that holdeth any dignity or prebend in the cathedral church, do not observe these our commands, that you call them before you, and see this our will obeyed. And if you or any bishop do not your duty, either in their own grants, or seeing others do it, then we will, that upon complaint, the archbishop of the province see all performed according to this our declaration, will, and pleasure. And whereas there are divers rural prebends, where the vicarages are not sufficiently endowed, we require you to see these our commands be fully observed by them. And we do declare our will and pleasure in all the particulars forecited to be, that if you, or any of your successors, or any dean, or dean and chapter, or that our cathedral church, or any other person holding any office, benefice, or prebend in the same, do or shall refuse or omit to observe these our commands: we shall judge them unworthy of our future favour, whensoever any preferment ecclesiastical shall be desired by them of us.

"And lastly, our will and command is, that you and your successors do, at or before the first day of October in every year, render an account to the Archbishop of how these our orders and commands are observed, that the archbishop afterwards may represent the same unto us.

"By his majesty's command,

"EDWARD NICHOLAS."

It may not be improper on this occasion to take notice of another letter sent to the University of Oxford by King James the First, primo regni: in which he required the vice-chancellor and heads of houses to assemble themselves, &c. "to consider, and set down some speedy course, how, upon the expiration of the years in being of any lease of tithes or glebe impropriate, the same may afterwards be so devised, as ecclesiastical persons bred in the houses to whom the same do belong respectively, may be maintained.

STAT. 29 CAR.
2, c. 8.

June, in the twelfth year of his said majesty's reign, and out of a pious improve poor vicarages and curacies, where the endowment thereof was too small to afford a competent maintenance to those that serve the cure, have his majesty's happy return, upon their renewing of leases of rectories, or impropriate or appropriate, made or may hereafter (1) make divers reas-

and enabled to execute their functions, and yet the colleges provided of such things as are necessary for maintaining the same." Kennett, Improp. App. 24.

(1) Or may hereafter:—"That the said royal letter was not intended barely for augmentations to be made immediately after the restoration, (when, it is true, the number and largeness of fines, rendered the design most practicable,) but also for making them by the said bodies in future times, appears, as well from the tenour of the letter, which is an injunction to them and their successors, as from the repeating and reinforcing of the same order by the king in the nineteenth year of his reign. Ibid. 271.

"It is supposed, in the forementioned letter, that the ordinary hath a right to oblige impropriators to augment vicarages, in that, his majesty requires the bishops to employ their authority and power, which by law belongeth to them, as ordinaries, for the augmentation of vicarages, and stipends of curates; and that they do with diligence proceed in due form of law, &c. And I think, it is agreed on all hands, that every ordinary hath such power over spiritual impropriators; which was so in the case of Hitchcot v. Thornburrough, (2 Roll. Abr. Patron (H), 337,) where the vicar sued the tenant of the master of the choristers of the church of Sarum, (the said master being parson,) for addition of maintenance in the spiritual court; and prohibition was denied, upon this reason, that the ordinary might compel the parson to an augmentation, there being such a power reserved to him in all appropriations, and that the lessee, who held for lives according to Stat. 32 Hen. 8, came in, subject to the same charge.

"It is true, this was an appropriation which had never come to the king by any Statute of Dissolution; but that circumstance of having been conveyed to the king, made no difference with regard to the jurisdiction of the bishop, so long as they were re-conveyed to a spiritual hand; as appears from the case of the Dean and Chapter of St. Asaph, cit. Cro. Jac. 518. And the books, when they pronounce impropriations, lay-fees, seem to ground it wholly upon their being in lay-hands; and to mean no more, when they say that they became lay-fees by the Statutes of Dissolution, than as by those statutes they came into lay-hands. The only question then is, concerning his power over lay-impropriators. And, before the dissolution of monasteries, the exercise of ordinary jurisdiction in this particular appears upon our books, in divers ways: as, i. In general commissions to inquire, throughout whole dioceses or archdeaconries, in what places augmentations were needful. Willes, 130 (b). Wainfl. 9 (b), 28 (a). Strat. (W.), 53 (a), 56 (a). ii. In special commissions, to inquire into the condition of particular vicarages, in augmentation. Isl. 40 (a), 41 (b). Wainfl. 28. iii. In commissions to augmentations. Sudb. 9 (a). 100 (b), 105 (b), 111 (a), 118 (b). actual augmentations. Wincb. 266 (b). Willes, 21 (b). Courtn. 143 (b). Arund. 483 (b), 484 (a), 298 (a). 1 Wainfl. 81 (b). 2 Ibid. Courtn. (W.), 22 (a), 46 (a). 1 Strat. 81 (a). 2 Ibid. 86 (b), 93 (b). v. Injunctions to appropriators, to husband for the vicars. 2 Arund. 123. Wincb. 78 (b). vi. In new endowments, noted in our books under the titles of Nova Constitutio; Nova Ordinatio. Strat. (W.), 87 (b). Shirb. (C.) 87 (b), 89 (b), 90 (b). Shirb. 91 (b).

"Under this obligation of enlarging or augmenting vicarages, where needful, we all appropriations enjoyed before the dissolution; so that it is truly said in the case of Hichcocke v. Hichcocke, 1 March, 87. The power of the bishop augendi et universae portion of the vicar, is by the common law.

"Then come the Acts of Dissolution, which say, that the king shall have and hold to him and his heirs for ever, all and singular such monasteries and tithes, in as large or ample manner, as the abbots held them, or elsewhere, in the state and condition as now they be; and, that the tithes then to the king shall have and hold them, as he shall have all such suits, actions, contracts, &c. in like manner, form, and condition, as which Acts of Dissolution were passed upon surrenders, made by the religious to the hands of the king.

"From whence it hath been argued, with great appearance of reason, that nothing could come into the king's hands, but what was theirs; and the right of the bishop to augment, and of the vicar to claim augmentation, was not theirs. That the most usual construction of the king's enjoying the appropriations in the same manner, form, and state, as the religious did, is, that he should enjoy them with the same limitations, privileges, and burdens, as the religious did; that, accordingly, it is granted, that exemptions from tithes can be enjoyed by the grantees only while the lands remain in their own hands, because that privilege, when granted to the several orders, was not absolute, but sub modo, scilicet quoadmodum propriis manibus excoluntur: that, because exemptions of chancels, payments of rectorial proxies, synodals, &c. rested upon the religious appropriator, therefore they have always rested upon the lay impropriator (by like construction) as the religious; and those appropriations with the charge of competent maintenance for the vicar, as the

and the ancient rent, to the intent the same should or might become payable. STAT. 29 CAR. 2. c. 8.
 The said vicars or curates, in augmentation of their endowments, which have for the most part enjoyed accordingly: but in regard that such reservations were not made to the vicars or curates; or if they were, no convenient remedy could be had by such vicars or curates for the recovery thereof, and they were not at that time thereof capable of taking any interest to their own use, whereby the provisions will depend upon the good pleasure of the successors, and may in the meantime be disappointed:

1. For the establishment thereof, be it enacted by the king's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and every augmentation of what nature soever, granted, reserved, or intended to be made payable, or intended to be granted, reserved, or made payable, since the said first day of June, in the twelfth year of his said majesty's Majesty, or which shall at any time hereafter be granted, reserved, or made payable by any vicar or curate, or reserved by way of increase of rent to the lessors, but intended to be to or for the use or benefit of any vicar or curate, by any archbishop, bishop, dean, provost, dean and chapter, archdeacon, prebendary, or other ecclesiastical corporation, person or persons whatsoever, so making the said reservation out of any rectory impropriate, or portion of tithes, belonging to any archbishop, bishop, dean, provost, dean and chapter, or other ecclesiastical corporation, person or persons, shall be deemed and adjudged to continue and be, and shall for ever hereafter continue and remain, as well during the continuance of the estate or interest upon which the said augmentations were granted, reserved, or agreed to be made payable, as afterwards, in whose hands soever the said rectories or portion of tithes shall be or come; which rectories or portion of tithes shall be chargeable therewith, whether the same be reserved again, or not; and the said vicars and curates respectively are hereby adjudged to be in the actual possession thereof, for the use of themselves and their successors, and the same shall for ever hereafter be portion of the ordinary, so do the laymen hold their impropriations with the same charge: that the meaning of the parliament was not to destroy the rights of other persons, but only to suppress the monks: that, in several Acts of Dissolution, there are several savings of rights, &c. to all bodies ecclesiastical, &c., and particularly of portions, which any may, or might have had, in the premises, or to any part or parcel thereof, in such like manner, form, and condition, to all intents, respects, and purposes, if this act had never been had, or made, and therefore, that the vicar having a right to a congrua portio, (i. e. part parcel as the statute speaks,) out of the rectory, with a right to sue the abbot if he had it, and the bishop having a right to sue such portion, and to enforce the payment of it by sequestration, and other ecclesiastical censures; both the bishop and vicar have those rights respectively reserved to them, in the said general savings: that if it be objected, that those clauses of reservation of right, do not expressly mention, either the jurisdiction of the bishop, or the portion of the vicar, the answer is, that neither do they mention the reparation of churches, or payment of the stipends of curates; both these burdens, as having rested upon the religious, passed from them to the king, and from the king to the grantees. That though they are now applied to other ends and uses, than heretofore they were yet they remain the same nature; and if it had not been understood, that after the conveyance into lay-hands they still remained ecclesiastical duties, they might have been recovered, as other chattels or lay fees are, by action of debt, or otherwise at common law, and there had needed no act of parliament to enable laymen to sue for them; nor would the remedy have been given in the spiritual, but most certainly in the temporal courts.

Augmentations shall continue during the estate upon which they are reserved, and afterwards.

"Notwithstanding all this, it must be confessed, that nothing is more peremptorily delivered throughout the books of common law than the contrary doctrine, viz., that since the dissolution, all impropriations (at least in the hands of laymen) are become mere lay-fees, or inheritances of a mere temporal nature; from whence they infer, that therefore all such possessions are entirely freed from the spiritual jurisdiction; and particularly that the ordinary hath no power to make augmentation of a vicarage, out of any rectory, which is in the hands of a lay impropriator.

"But the statutes of the land do no where call them lay fees, (on the contrary, they always speak of them by their old ecclesiastical names, benefices, rectories, parsonages, appropriations, tithes, church duties, and the like,) and it is humbly conceived, that in any point which depends upon a written law, there is no force in a bare name imposed at pleasure, further than as the name itself appears to be warranted by the plain language or tenour of the law." Gibson's Codex, 722, 723.

STAT. 29 CAR.
2, c. 8.

Remedy for the same.

Magna Charta,
c. 36.

Augmentation
exceeding one moiety of the value of the rectory, not confirmed.

Augmentation
leases, where to be entered.

Fee for entering.

Such entry
how to be attested, to be a record and evidence at law.

Agreements
for augmentations, to be entered likewise.

Augmentations to be favoured in construction, as charitable uses.

New leases,
without ex-

taken, received, and enjoyed by the said vicars and curates, and their successors as well during the continuance of the term or estate upon which the said augmentations were granted, reserved, or agreed to be made payable, as afterwards; the said vicars and curates shall have remedy for the same, either by distress of the rectories impropriate, or portions of tithes charged therewith, or by action of debt against that person who ought to have paid the same, his executors or administrators; any disability in the person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, granting, or any disability or incapacity in the vicars or curates, to whom, or for whose use or benefit, the same are granted or intended to be granted, shall not avail, for whose use or benefit, the same are granted or intended to be granted, statute of mortmain, or any other law, custom, or other matter or thing to the contrary notwithstanding.

"III. Provided always, that no future augmentation be confirmed by this act, which shall exceed one moiety of the clear yearly value, above all dues of the rectory impropriate, out of the which the same shall be granted or reserved.

"IV. And to the end the said vicars and curates may the better maintain the certainty of the said augmentations; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every archbishop, bishop, dean and chapter respectively, on or before the ninth and twentieth day of September next coming, shall cause every lease or grant whereon any such augmentation is made, to be fairly entered in a book of augmentation, to be kept by their respective registers for that purpose. And every archdeacon, prebendary, or other ecclesiastical person respectively, shall cause every lease or grant whereon any such augmentation hath been made by himself or his predecessor or predecessors, to be entered in the said book, to be kept by the register of the bishop of the diocese; for the entering whereof no fee shall be demanded, nor any thing demanded, save only a reasonable reward to the clerk for entering the same, not exceeding five shillings; which said entry being examined by the respective archbishop, bishop, or dean, and by them respectively attested to be a true copy of the original lease or grant, and that the augmentation in the same was intended for such use, shall be as a record; a true copy whereof, proved by witnesses to be a true copy, shall be deemed, taken, and expounded to be good and sufficient evidence in the law, whereupon the said vicars and curates respectively shall and may by virtue of this act from time to time recover the benefit of such augmentation.

"V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that when any archbishop, bishop, dean and chapter, or any other ecclesiastical corporation or person whatsoever, upon the renewing or granting any lease or estate, have made any agreement for an augmentation for the vicar or curate, and such augmentation hath for any time been accordingly paid, although the said agreement be not expressed or mentioned in the said lease or grant, every such ecclesiastical person shall cause the substance of such agreement to be entered in the said book, to remain for a memorial of it to perpetuity.

"VI. And be it further enacted, that such augmentation so entered shall lawfully continue, and be for ever hereafter good and available in the law, for the benefit of the vicar or curate for whom it was intended, and their successors, as against the archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical corporation or person who agreed for the same, and his and their successors, as against every other person enjoying the said rectories or portions of tithes intended to be charged therewith in the same manner, and for which they shall have the same remedy, as they should or ought to have by virtue of this act, if the same had been mentioned and reserved in and by the lease.

"VII. And if any question shall hereafter arise concerning the validity of such grants, or any other matter or thing in this act mentioned and contained, such favourable constructions, and such further remedy, if need be, shall be made and made for the benefit of the vicars and curates, as heretofore hath been made and made, or may be had for other charitable uses, upon the statutes for charitable uses.

"VIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if upon the surrender, expiration, or other determination of any lease where-

STAT. 30 CAR.
2, c. 3.

LIII. STAT. 30 CAROLI 2, c. 3(1). A.D. 1677.

"An Act for burying in Woollen."

STAT. 30 CAR.
2, c. 6.

LIV. STAT. 30 CAROLI 2, c. 6. A.D. 1677.

"An Act for reviving [for seven years] a former Act, intituled, 'An Act avoiding unnecessary Suits and Delays,' and for Continuance [for years] of one other Act, intituled, 'An Act for the better settling of Intestates.'"

STAT. 30 CAR.
2, c. 7.

LV. STAT. 30 CAROLI 2, c. 7(2). A.D. 1677.

"An Act to enable Creditors to recover their Debts of the Executors and Administrators of Executors in their own wrong."

"Whereas the executors and administrators of such persons who have themselves of considerable personal estates of other dead persons, and convert same to their own use, have no remedy by the rules of the common law now stands, to pay the debts of those persons whose estate hath been converted by their testator or intestate, which hath been found very mischievous, and creditors defeated of their just debts, although their debtors left behind sufficient to satisfy the same, with a great overplus:

3 Mod. 113.

"II. For remedy whereof, be it enacted by the king's most excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority thereof, that all and every the executors and administrators of any person or persons, executor or executors in his or their own wrong, or administrators, do and after the first day of August next ensuing, waste or convert any chattels, estate, or assets of any person deceased, to their own use, shall be and chargeable in the same manner as their testator or intestate would have done if they had been living. This act to continue in force for three years, and thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer."

1 Jac. 2, c. 17.

STAT. 30 CAR.
2, St. II.

LVI. STAT. 30 CAROLI 2, St. II.(3). A.D. 1677.

"An Act for the more effectual preserving the King's Person and Government by disabling Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament."

STAT. 32 CAR.
2, c. 1.

LVII. STAT. 32 CAROLI 2, c. 1(4). A.D. 1680.

"An additional Act for burying in Woollen."

(1) Vide Stat. 32 Car. 2, c. 1. Repealed by Stat. 54 Geo. 3, c. 108, s. 1. 1, St. II. c. 55. Stat. 2 Geo. 2, c. 16 Geo. 2, c. 30. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 10.

(2) Continued, made perpetual, and enlarged by Stat. 1 Jac. 2, c. 17, and Stat. 4 & 5 G. & M. c. 24, s. 12. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7. Stat. 1 & 2 Gul. 4, c. 9.

(3) Repealed by Stat. 11 & 12 Gul. 3, c. 4. Stat. 12 & 13 Gul. 3, c. 2. Stat. 1 Geo. 4, c. 1.

(4) Repealed by Stat. 54 Geo. 3, c. 108, s. 1.

STATUTA JACOBI II.

A.D. 1685—1689.

	Page		Page
Stat. 1 Jac. 2, c. 15	625	III. Stat. 1 Jac. 2, c. 20	626
" " c. 17	625	IV. " " c. 22	626

I. STAT. 1 JACOBI 2, c. 15. A.D. 1685.

Act for rebuilding, finishing, and adorning of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's, London."

STAT. 1 JAC.
2, c. 15.

II. STAT. 1 JACOBI 2, c. 17. A.D. 1685.

Act for reviving and continuance of several Acts of Parliament therein mentioned."

STAT. 1 JAC.
2, c. 17.

And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that one other act made in the seventeenth year of his said late majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for the better settling Intestate Estates,' (which said latter act is explained in one other act made in the nine and twentieth year of his said late majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for prevention of Frauds and Perjuries,') both said acts, with the said clause, are continued by one other act made in the year of his said late majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for reviving the said former Acts.' All which said acts and clauses shall be in force, and be made perpetual.

17 Car. 2, c. 8,
and 22 & 23
Car. 2, c. 10,
made perpetual.
Explanatory
clause in 29
Car. 2, c. 3,
Sect. 25 of
22 & 23 Car.
2, c. 10, made perpetual.
30 Car. 2,
St. I. c. 6.
Administrator
compellable to account only to persons interested.

Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted(1), that no administrator, from the four and twentieth day of July next, be cited to any the said last act mentioned, to render an account of the personal estate of an intestate, (otherwise than by an inventory or inventories thereof,) unless by the instance or prosecution of some person or persons in behalf of a creditor having a demand out of such personal estate as a creditor or next of kin, or be compellable to account before any the ordinaries or judges by the said act empowered and appointed to take the same, otherwise than as is afore-mentioned in the said last acts contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Provided also, and it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in the death of a father, any of his children shall die intestate without wife or children, in the life-time of the mother, every brother and sister, and the said daughters(2) of them, shall have an equal share(3) with her; anything in the said last acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

Brother and sister shall share equally with the mother.

Provided, and it is hereby, for the determining some doubts arising in the said acts aforementioned, for the better settling intestates' estates, enacted and made, that the clause therein, by which it is provided, that that act, or any clause therein contained, should not in any ways prejudice or hinder the customs and laws within the city of London, and province of York, was never intended, nor shall be taken or construed to extend, to such part of any intestate's estate, as

Customs of London and province of York, &c.

hereby further enacted:—The two clauses of this statute are, firstly, that the clause shall be forthcoming; secondly, that the clause shall be duly divided. Canterbury (Archbishop) v. Robertson, 1 C. & M. 705.
And the representatives:—The word

"and" immediately preceding the words "the representatives," is to be construed in the disjunctive. Stanley v. Stanley, 1 Atk. 458.

(3) Equal share:—Vide ante 599, Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10.

STAT. 1 JAC.
2, c. 17. any administrator, by virtue only of being administrator, by pretence or name of any custom, may claim to have, to exempt the same from distribution, but the such part in the hands of such administrator shall be subject to distribution as in other cases within the said act."

STAT. 1 JAC.
2, c. 20.

III. STAT. 1 JACOBI 2, c. 20. A.D. 1685.

"An Act to enable the Inhabitants of the Parish of St. Anne, within the Liberty of Westminster, to raise Money to build a Church to be the Parish Church there."

STAT. 1 JAC.
2, c. 22.

IV. STAT. 1 JACOBI 2, c. 22. A.D. 1685.

"An Act for erecting a new Parish, to be called the Parish of St. James, within the Liberty of Westminster."

STATUTA GULIELMI & MARIE.

A.D. 1689—1702.

	Page		Page
Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 6	627	X. Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 29	642
... c. 8	628	XI. ... Seas. 2, c. 2	642
... c. 9	632	XII Stat. 2 G. & M. Seas. 1, c. 10	646
... c. 13	632	XIII. Stat. 3 G. & M. c. 2	646
... c. 15	632	XIV. ... c. 3	647
... c. 16	633	XV. ... c. 14	647
... c. 17	633	XVI. Stat. 4 G. & M. c. 2	647
... c. 18	633	XVII. ... c. 12	648
... c. 26	640	XVIII. Stat. 5 G. & M. c. 1	649

STATUTA GULIELMI III.

XIX. Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 3, c. 6	619	XXXIV. Stat. 8 & 9 Gul. 3, c. 11	666
XX. ... c. 20	649	XXXV. ... c. 14	666
XXI. Stat. 7 Gul. 3, c. 2 [Ir.]	649	XXXVI. Stat. 9 Gul. 3, c. 1 [Ir.]	666
XXII. ... c. 4 [Ir.]	650	XXXVII. ... c. 3 [Ir.]	667
XXIII. ... c. 6 [Ir.]	650	XXXVIII. Stat. 9 & 10 Gul. 3, c. 32	667
XXIV. ... c. 9 [Ir.]	653	XXXIX. ... c. 35	669
XXV. ... c. 14 [Ir.]	654	XL. Stat. 10 Gul. 3, c. 6 [Ir.]	669
XXVI. ... c. 17 [Ir.]	654	XLI. Stat. 10 & 11 Gul. 3, c. 15	672
XVII. Stat. 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 6	656	XLII. ... c. 16	672
XVIII. ... c. 24	659	XLIII. ... c. 24	673
XIX. ... c. 27	659	XLIV. Stat. 11 & 12 Gul. 3, c. 4	673
XX. ... c. 34	659	XLV. ... c. 16	673
XXI. ... c. 35	659	XLVI. ... c. 21	674
XXII. ... c. 37	664	XLVII. Stat. 12 & 13 Gul. 3, c. 2	674
XXIII. ... c. 38	665	XLVIII. Stat. 13 Gul. 3, c. 6	678

I. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 6 (1). A.D. 1688 (2).

*"An Act for establishing the Coronation Oath."*STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 6.

"Whereas, by the law and ancient usage of this realm, the kings and queens of have taken a solemn oath upon the Evangelists, at their respective coronations, to maintain the statutes, laws, and customs of the said realm, and all the rights and inhabitants thereof, in their spiritual and civil rights and properties; forasmuch as the oath itself on such occasion administered, hath heretofore been framed in doubtful words and expressions, with relation to ancient laws and institutions at this time unknown: to the end therefore that one uniform oath should be in all times to come taken by the kings and queens of this realm, and to be respectively administered at the times of their and every of their coronation; it please your majesties that it may be enacted;

II. And be it enacted by the king's and queen's most excellent majesties, by with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the oath herein mentioned, and hereafter expressed, shall and may be administered to their most excellent majesties King William and Queen Mary, (whom God long preserve,) at the time of their coronation, in the presence of all persons who shall be then and there present at the solemnizing thereof, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, or the Archbishop of York, or either of them, or any other bishop of this realm, whom the king's majesty shall thereunto appoint, and who shall be by thereunto respectively authorized; which oath followeth, and shall be administered in this manner, that is to say:

An oath to be taken by the king and queen.

- f) Vide Stat. 12 & 13 Gul. 3, c. 2 (post). the succeeding statutes should be A.D. 1689, according to the present method of computing the year from the 1st of January.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 6.

Coronation
oath.

"The archbishop or bishop shall say,

"III. 'Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this kingdom of England, and the dominions thereto belonging, according to the statutes in parliament agreed on, and the laws and customs of the same?'

"The king and queen shall say, 'I solemnly promise so to do.'

"Archbishop or Bishop. 'Will you to your power cause law and mercy, to be executed in all your judgments?'

"King and Queen. 'I will.'

"Archbishop or Bishop. 'Will you to the utmost of your power to maintain the laws of God, the true profession of the Gospel, and the Protestant Religion established by law? And will you preserve unto the bishops and clergy of this realm, and to the churches committed to their charge, all such privileges as by law do or shall appertain unto them, or any of them?'

"King and Queen. 'All this I promise to do.'

"After this, the king and queen laying his and her hand upon the Gospels, shall say,

"King and Queen. 'The things which I have here before promised, I will perform and keep. So help me God.'

"Then the king and queen shall kiss the book.

All kings, &c.
to take the oath.

"IV. And be it further enacted, that the said oath shall be in this form administered to every king or queen, who shall succeed to the imperial crown of this realm, at their respective coronations, by one of the archbishops or bishops of this realm of England, for the time being, to be thereunto appointed by the king or queen respectively, and in the presence of all persons that shall be assisting, or otherwise present at such their respective coronations, according to the statute, or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding."

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 8.

II. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 8(1). A.D. 1688.

"An Act for the abrogating of the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and appointing other Oaths."

1 Eliz. c. 1.

"Whereas, by a statute made in the first year of the reign of our late sovereign lady Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act to restore to the said Queen the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and all Foreign Powers repugnant to the same,' the persons therein mentioned are obliged to take an oath therein mentioned, commonly called 'The Oath of Supremacy;' and whereas, by another statute made in the third year of our late sovereign lord King James the First, intituled, 'An Act for discovering and repressing Popish Recusants,' another oath, commonly called 'Oath of Allegiance,' or 'Obedience,' was required to be taken by the persons therein mentioned:

The old oaths of allegiance
and supremacy
abrogated.

"II. Be it enacted by the king's and queen's most excellent majesties with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that henceforth no person whatsoever shall be obliged to take the said oaths of them, by force or virtue of the said statutes, or either of them, or of any statute whatsoever, but that the said statutes, and every other statute, in that behalf made, only as concerns the said oaths, and the said oaths themselves, shall be and are hereby repealed, utterly abrogated, and made void.

1 Hale's P. C.
62.

The new oaths and declaration, by whom and how to be taken.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the declaration appointed by this present act to be taken, and the declaration likewise appointed by this present act to be made, repeated, and subscribed, shall, from the first day of May, in the year one thousand six hundred eighty-nine, be made, repeated, and subscribed by every such person and persons as were and are required by any act or acts whatsoever, to take the said abrogated

(1) Vide Stat. 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 24. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 13 Gul. 3, c. 6. Stat. 19 Geo. 3, c. 44. c. 9. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 51.

supremacy and allegiance, or either of them, before such person or persons as hereafter in this act is expressed; that is to say, all and every archbishop and bishop that now is, and all and every person, of or above the degree of a baron of parliament, in their majesties' high court of Chancery, or in their majesties' court of King's Bench, in public and open court, between the hours of nine of the clock and twelve in the forenoon, before the end of Trinity term next, or at the general quarter sessions to be holden for that county or place where he or they shall be, inhabit, or reside, in open court, between the said hours of nine and twelve of the clock in the forenoon, before the first day of August next; all which shall be put on record in the respective courts.

"IV. And all and every other such person and persons shall take the said oaths, and make, repeat, and subscribe the said declaration by this present act required to be taken, made, and subscribed, before such person or persons respectively, as by any act or acts were authorized or empowered to tender the said oath of allegiance now abrogated and made void; which said person or persons so respectively authorized to minister or tender the said oaths and declaration, are hereby required to minister and tender the same accordingly.

"V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all persons, other than such concerning whom other provision shall be made in this act, or in any other act of this present session of parliament, that shall hereafter be admitted into any office or employment ecclesiastical or civil, or come into any capacity, in respect or by reason whereof they should have been obliged by any statute to take the said abrogated oaths, or either of them, shall take the oaths hereby appointed, in such manner, at such times, before such persons, and in such courts and places, as they should or ought to have taken the said former oaths, or either of them, in case the same had not been abrogated, as aforesaid. And that every such person, who shall neglect or refuse to take the same, shall incur and be liable to the same penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, and incapacities, as by any such statute was appointed, for or upon neglect, or refusal, to take the said former oaths hereby abrogated, or either of them.

"VI. And be it further enacted, that if any person now having any office or employment, civil or military, shall neglect or refuse to take the said oaths hereby appointed to be taken, in such manner as by this act is directed, before the first day of August, in the year one thousand six hundred eighty-nine, or sooner if required thereunto by any order from his majesty in council, before such persons as by the said order shall be appointed to take and receive the same, that in every such case the said office and employment of every person so neglecting or refusing, shall be void, and is hereby adjudged void.

"VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any archbishop or bishop, or any other person now having any ecclesiastical dignity, benefice, or promotion, shall neglect or refuse to take the oaths by this act appointed to be taken, in such manner as by this act is directed, before the first day of August in the year one thousand six hundred eighty-nine, every such person and persons neglecting or refusing, shall be, and is and are hereby declared and adjudged to be, suspended from the execution of his or their office by the space of six months, to be accounted from the said first day of August; and if the said person or persons (so having neglected or refused) shall not within the said space of six months take the said oaths in such manner, court, or place, as they ought to have taken the same, before the said first day of August; then he or they shall be ipso facto deprived, and is and are hereby adjudged to be deprived of his and their offices, benefices, dignities, and promotions ecclesiastical.

"VIII. And be it further enacted, that if any person or persons now being master, governor, head, or fellow of any college or hall, in either of the two universities, or of any other college, or master of any hospital or school, or professor of divinity, law, physic, or other science in either of the said universities, or in the city of London, shall neglect or refuse to take the oaths by this act appointed to be taken, in such manner, and before such persons as by this act is directed, before the first day of August in the year one thousand six hundred eighty-nine; every

STAT. 1 G. &
M. C. 8.

Before whom
the new oaths
are to be taken,
and declaration
to be made and subscribed.

All persons
which shall be in office shall take the oaths,
&c.

The penalty
for neglect.

Persons now
in office neglecting, the office to be void.

Ecclesiastical
persons now
in benefice, &c.
neglecting, to be suspended,
&c.

Persons who are now masters of colleges,
&c. neglecting,
how punished.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 8.

Persons refusing to take the oaths upon tender, to be committed.

Second
refusal.

Third refusal.

Penalty for refusing declaration.
30 Car. 2,
St. 11. c. 1.

Land and sea
officers to take the oaths and declaration.

such person and persons so neglecting or refusing, shall be, and is and are hereby declared and adjudged to be, suspended from the execution of his or their office and employment, and from his or their mastership, government, fellowship, and professorship respectively, for the space of six months, to be accounted from the said first day of August: and if the said person or persons (so having neglected or refused) shall not within the said space of six months take the said oaths in any court or place, and before such persons, and in such manner, as they ought to have taken the same before the said first day of August, that in every such case the said office and employment, mastership, government, fellowship, and professorship of every person so neglecting or refusing, shall be void, and is hereby adjudged void.

“IX. And be it further enacted, that if any such other person or persons (other than the persons specially above mentioned) shall refuse to take the said oaths, or either of them, when tendered to him or them by any persons lawfully authorized, as is aforesaid, to administer or tender the same; the person or persons so tendering the said oaths, or either of them, shall commit the said person and persons so refusing, to the common gaol or house of correction, there to remain without bail or mainprize for the space of three months, unless such offender shall pay down to the said person or persons so tendering the said oaths, or either of them, such sum of money, not exceeding forty shillings, as the said person or persons so tendering the said oaths, or either of them, shall require such offender to pay for his or her said refusal; which money shall be paid to the churchwardens or overseers of the poor, for the relief of the poor of the parish or place where such offender did or do inhabit: and if at the end of three months after such refusal, the person or persons so refusing shall again refuse to take the said oaths, or either of them, when lawfully tendered to him or them, as is aforesaid; the said person or persons so tendering the said oaths, or either of them, shall commit the said person and persons so refusing to the common gaol or house of correction, there to remain for the space of six months, unless every such offender shall pay down to the person or persons so tendering the said oaths, or either of them, such sum of money, not exceeding ten pounds, nor under five pounds, as the said person or persons so tendering the said oaths, or either of them, shall require such offender to pay for his or her said second refusal; the said money to be disposed in manner aforesaid, unless every such offender shall become bound with two sufficient sureties, with condition to be of the good behaviour, and also to appear at the next assizes or general gaol delivery to be holden for the county, liberty, or place where such offender shall then inhabit or reside; at which assizes or gaol delivery the said oaths shall be again tendered to every such offender by the justices of assizes or gaol delivery, in their open assizes or gaol delivery; and if the said offender shall refuse to take the said oaths, or either of them, when tendered to him or her by the said justices of assizes or gaol delivery, as is aforesaid, then every person and persons so refusing, shall be and is and are hereby adjudged incapable of any office, civil or military, within this kingdom, and shall likewise be and remain bound to the good behaviour, until he or they do take the said oaths: and in case such person or persons shall refuse also to make and subscribe the declaration mentioned in the statute made in the thirtieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled “An Act for the more effectual preserving the King’s Person and Government, by disabling Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament,” every person and persons shall suffer all pains, penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and be taken and deemed a popish recusant convict, and be taken and deemed a popish recusant convict, and intents and purposes whatsoever.

“X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every commission officer and officers, and non-commission or warrant officer and officers, that are already employed in their majesties’ service by sea or land, shall take the said oaths, and also make, repeat, and subscribe the declaration mentioned in the said statute made in the thirtieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, before the lord high admiral of England, or the commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral, or their deputies, or such other persons as their majesties shall authorize or appoint to administer and accept the same respectively; and that all and every such person and persons as shall hereafter be put into any such employment by sea or land, shall, before the delivery of such commission or warrant to such officer, take the said oaths, and make, repeat, and subscribe the said declaration before the lord high admiral, or commissioners of the Admiralty, or their deputies, as aforesaid, or such person as shall issue such commission or warrant, or such others as shall be authorized to administer the same as aforesaid respectively, who are hereby respectively authorized and required to tender, administer, and accept the same; and all and every such officer or officers, that shall refuse to take the said oaths, and make and subscribe the said declaration, shall be incapable of receiving, taking, holding, or executing such office or employment.

STAT. 1 G. & M. c. 8.

Penalty.

"XI. And be it further enacted, that the oath appointed by the statute made in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for ordering the Forces in the several Counties of this Kingdom,' the form and words of which oath are in the same statute expressed; and also so much of a declaration prescribed in another act made in the same year, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Public Prayers, and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies: and for establishing the Form of making, ordaining, and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, in the Church of England,' as is expressed in these words, (viz.) 'I, A. B., declare, that it is not lawful upon any pretence whatsoever to take arms against the king; and that I do abhor that traitorous position of taking arms by his authority against his person, or against those that are commissioned by him;' shall not from henceforth be required or enjoined, nor any person suffer any forfeiture, penalty, or loss, by the not taking, subscribing, or making the said oath, or the said recited part of the said declaration; the last fore-mentioned statutes, or any other law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

The oath and declaration appointed by two acts of 13 & 14 Car. 2, cc. 3 & 4, made void.

"XII. And be it enacted, that the oaths that are intended and required to be taken by this act, are the oaths in these express words hereafter following:

Oaths by this act.

"I, A. B., do sincerely promise and swear, that I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance, to their Majesties King William and Queen Mary:

"So help me God, &c."

"I, A. B., do swear, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable doctrine and position, that princes excommunicated or deprived by the pope, or any authority of the see of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do declare, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm:

"So help me God, &c."

"XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the names of all and singular such persons and officers aforesaid that do or shall, in the court of Chancery, King's Bench, or Quarter Sessions, take the oaths by this act required or appointed to be taken, shall be in the said respective courts of Chancery and King's Bench, and the Quarter Sessions, inrolled with the day and time of their taking the same, in rolls made and kept only for that intent and purpose, and for no other. The which rolls, as for the court of Chancery, shall be publicly hung up in the office of the Petty Bag; and the rolls for the King's Bench, in the crown office of the said court; and in some public place in every quarter sessions, and there remain during the whole term, every term, and during the whole time of the said sessions, in every quarter sessions, for every one to resort to and look upon without fee or reward. And none of the person or persons aforesaid shall give or pay, as any fee or reward to any officer or officers belonging to any of the courts, as aforesaid, above the sum of twelve pence for his or their entry of his or their taking of the said oaths by this act required or appointed to be taken.

Names of persons who take the oaths to be inrolled,

to be viewed without fee.

Twelve pence for the oath.

"XIV. And whereas, since the eleventh day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eight-eight, the said abrogated oaths could not be taken by any person that was elected or placed in any office of magistracy, or place of trust relating to or concerning the government of any city, corporation, borough, cinque-port, or their members, or other port town, at the time of his being

Provision for members of corporations who could not take the abrogated oaths

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 8.

since December last.
13 Car. 2,
St. 11. c. 1.

admitted and sworn into such office, place, or employment, by reason whereof his said election, placing, and choice into such office or employment, by one act, intituled, 'An Act for the well-governing of Corporations,' is enacted and declared to be void; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any such officer shall, before the first day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty-nine, take the oaths herein mentioned and required to be taken, before such person or persons, who by the said act should have administered the said abrogated oaths, at the time of his admission into such office or employment, the said election and placing into such office or employment shall be taken and adjudged to be as good and effectual, as if he had taken the said abrogated oaths; anything in the said act, or in any other statute, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Provision for officers who could not take the abrogated
oaths since Michaelmas
last.
25 Car. 2, c. 2.

"XV. And whereas, since the feast of Saint Michael last past, divers persons have been admitted into offices, employments, or places of trust, and could not take the said abrogated oaths, and subscribe the declaration at such time, and in such manner, as is directed and appointed by one act made the five and twentieth of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for preventing of Danger that may happen from Popish Recusants;' be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any such person shall, before the end of Trinity term next, in the high courts of Chancery or King's Bench, or before the first of August in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty-nine, at the quarter sessions for that county or place where he or they shall inhabit or reside, or execute the said office or employment, take the oaths in this act mentioned and appointed to be taken, and repeat and subscribe the said declaration, and take the sacrament of the Lord's supper according to the usage of the Church of England, and procure certificate thereof, in such manner as in the said act is required, directed, and appointed, that then such person shall and is hereby indemnified and discharged from any penalty or disability that he might or should have incurred by the said act, and shall and is hereby adjudged to have been and be as good and sufficient as otherwise from the time of his admission, as if he had taken the said abrogated oaths, and performed all other things required by the said act; anything to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

King may allow to twelve of the non-jurant clergy subsistence.

"XVI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it be left to the king, to allow to such of the clergy as shall refuse the oaths prescribed by this act, as he shall think fit, not exceeding the number of twelve, an allowance out of their ecclesiastical benefices or promotions for their subsistence, not exceeding a third part, and to continue during his majesty's pleasure, and no longer."

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 9.

III. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 9(1). A.D. 1688.

"An Act for the removing Papists, and reputed Papists, from the (City of London and Westminster, and ten Miles distance from the same."

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 13.

IV. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 13(2). A.D. 1688.

"An Act for raising Money by a Poll, and otherwise, towards the reducing of Ireland."

[Archbishop, to pay 50*l.*; bishop, 20*l.*; dean, 10*l.*; archdeacon, 2*l.* 10*s.*; prebend, 2*l.* 10*s.*; doctor, 5*l.*; pluralist of 120*l.* per annum, 5*l.*; but doctors not promoted shall not be charged for their title; nor shall the widow of any ecclesiastical person deceased be charged for the third part, according to the dignity & title of her deceased husband.]

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 15.

V. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 15. A.D. 1688.

"An Act for the better securing the Government, by disarming Papists and reputed Papists."

(1) Vide Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 30. (2) Expired. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.

VI. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 16. A.D. 1688.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 16.

"An Act that the simoniacal Promotion of one Person may not prejudice another."

"Whereas it hath often happened, that persons simoniac or simoniacally promoted to benefices or ecclesiastical livings, have enjoyed the benefit of such livings many years, and sometimes all their life-time, by reason of the secret carriage of such simoniacal dealing; and after the death of such simoniac person, another person innocent of such crime, and worthy of such preferment, being presented or promoted by another patron innocent also of that simoniacal contract, have been troubled and removed upon pretence of lapse (or otherwise) to the prejudice of the innocent patron in reversion, and of his clerk, whereby the guilty go away with profit of his crime, and the innocent succeeding patron and his clerk are punished, contrary to all reason and good conscience:

31 Eliz. c. 6.

"II. For prevention whereof, be it enacted by the king's and queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that, after the death of the person so simoniacally promoted, the licence or contract of simony shall, neither by way of title in pleading, or in evidence to a jury, or otherwise, hereafter be alleged or pleaded, to the prejudice of any other patron innocent of simony, or of his clerk by him presented or promoted, upon pretence of lapse to the crown, metropolitan, or otherwise, unless the person simoniac or simoniacally presented, or his patron, was convicted of such offence at the common law, or some ecclesiastical court, in the life-time of the person simoniac or simoniacally promoted or presented; any law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

Simoniacal contract, where it shall not prejudice.
19 Vin. 455, &c.
2 Haw. P. C. 389 & 396.

"III. And be it also provided, enacted, and declared by the authority aforesaid, that no lease or leases, really and bonâ fide made, or hereafter to be made, by any such person as aforesaid, simoniac or simoniacally promoted to any deanery, prebend, or parsonage, or other ecclesiastical benefice or dignity, for good and valuable consideration, to any tenant or person not being privy unto, or having notice of such simony, shall be impeached or avoided for or by reason of such simony, but shall be good and effectual in law, the said simony notwithstanding."

Lease made bonâ fide by simonist good.

See farther,
12 Ann. St. II. c. 12.

VII. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 17. A.D. 1688.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 17.

"An Act for rectifying a Mistake in a certain Act of this present Parliament, for the removing Papists from the Cities of London and Westminster."

VIII. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 18(1). A.D. 1688.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 18.

"An Act for exempting their Majesties' Protestant Subjects, dissenting from the Church of England, from the Penalties of certain Laws."

"Forasmuch as some ease to scrupulous consciences in the exercise of religion (2) may be an effectual means to unite their majesties' protestant subjects in interest and affection:

(1) Vide Stat. 10 Ann. c. 2. Stat. 8 Geo. 1, c. 6. Stat. 19 Geo. 3, c. 44. Stat. 52 Geo. 3, c. 155. Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 160. Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 50. Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 113.

(2) Exercise of religion:—A general view of the tolerant principles of the Anglican church during this reign, may be collected from the judgment of Sir John Nicholl, in Nempe v. Wicken, (3 Phill. 297,) who in speaking of baptism by dissenters, says, "It seems by no means proper, however, wholly to pass over the view which may be taken of this subject as affected by the Toleration Act. By that act an important change was worked in the situation of his majesty's protestant dissenting subjects; and the baptisms now administered by dissenting ministers, stand upon very different grounds from those by mere laymen. There were many laws, both of church and state, requiring conformity to the church, creating disabilities, imposing penalties, and denouncing excommunications upon all nonconformity. Now, supposing that during the existence of these disabilities, it could be maintained, that in point of law no act of nonconformists could be recognised in a court of justice, and, therefore, that a baptism administered by such persons could not be noticed at all, either by the

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 18.

The several laws not to extend to dissenters.

23 Eliz. c. 1.

29 Eliz. c. 6.

"II. Be it enacted by the king's and queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that notwithstanding the statute made in the three and twentieth year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience;' nor the statute made in the twenty-ninth year of the said queen, intituled, 'An Act for the more speedy and due Execution of certain Branches of the Statute made in the three and twentieth year of the Queen's Majesty's Reign, church or by the courts administering the law of the church, yet could it be maintained now, that such a baptism was a mere nullity? If such could have been considered as the view of the law before the Toleration Act, yet that act would change the whole shape of the thing: that act removed the disabilities; it allowed protestant dissenters publicly to exercise their worship in their own way, under certain regulations; it legalized their ministers, it protected them against prosecutions for nonconformity.

"Now, their ministers and preachers being allowed by law, (and, so far as that goes, they are lawful ministers for the purposes of their own worship,) their worship being permitted by law, their nonconformity being tolerated, could it any longer be said, that rites and ceremonies performed by them, are not such as the law can recognise in any of his majesty's courts of justice, provided they are not contrary to, nor defective in, that which the Christian church universally holds to be essential; that is, provided they are Christians? This appears to be a necessary consequence of the Toleration Act. The manner in which that act has been considered by other courts, is not altogether foreign to the consideration. Its general principle was much canvassed in the famous case of Erans v. London (The Chamberlain &c). The particular circumstances of that case are foreign to the consideration of this. The case began in a jurisdiction in the city. It was afterwards appealed to a commission of the judges, and then to the House of Lords; and, in the first of the stages of the appeal, a very eminent judge, Mr. Justice Walter, thus expressed himself in his judgment. 'The defendant does not plead the Toleration Act to excuse one offence by another; but to show that, although the Rubric did require conformity in all things, yet, by the Toleration Act, the Rubric is taken out of the way, and does not extend to his case. The Act of Toleration is not to be considered merely as an act of connivance; it was made, that the public worship of protestant dissenters might be legal, and they might be entitled to the public protection.' So again, Lord Mansfield, in the House of Lords, said, 'Conscience is not contrrollable by human laws, nor amenable to human tribunals; and attempts to force conscience, will never produce conviction. Nonconformity is no offence by the common law, and the pains and penalties for nonconformity to the established rites of the church, are repealed by the Act of Toleration.' This shows something of the general view taken of that statute by the judges of the common law. Acts of nonconformity are now legalized; and they are recognised, and were upon that occasion recognised, in courts of law. Indeed the legislature itself, has been positive, it has recognised the baptism of dissenters for Stat. 23 Geo. 3, c. 67, which had been upon registers of baptisms by the common law was extended by Stat. 25 Geo. 3, c. 16 to the registers of baptism of protestant dissenters. Both are now repealed, the passing of that second statute is a recognition of baptism by protestant dissenters.

"Protestant dissenters then, being allowed the exercise of their religion, being no longer liable to pains and penalties, their ministers lawfully exercising their functions, the rites of that body being allowed by law—it can no longer be considered, &c. acts and rites performed by them, are not such as the law cannot, in the due administration of it, take any notice whatever of, or baptism performed by them, when allowed with what our own church admits to be essentials of baptism, is still to be taken upon as a mere nullity, or that persons baptized, are to be rejected from being persons unbaptized at all, or in other words (though that has been disavowed by counsel in the argument) as not being Christians."

Respecting the general rights and disabilities of dissenters, vide Leese v. Hammond, 2 B. & A. 206. Rea v. Widdington, 1 B. & C. 26. Rea v. Suffolk Justices, 15 East, 590. Porter v. Clarke, 18 C. 1. Leshe v. Birnie, 2 Russ. 114. Russell v. Peach, 2 Salk. 572. Newman v. Andrew Willes, 463.

It may be here observed, that Stat. 4 Geo. 4, c. 17, repeals in part the Test and Corporation Acts, and substitutes a declaration in lieu of the sacramental test. Stat. 1 Geo. 4, c. 92, enables courts of justice to admit non-parochial registers, as registers of births or baptisms, deaths or burials, and marriages. Stat. 6 & 7 Geo. 4, c. 91, Stat. 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 22, and Stat. 3 & 4 Geo. 4, c. 72, enable dissenters to be married without any religious ceremony. In fact, as the language of Sir William Scott, in H. M. Procurator-General v. Stone, (1 Comm. 62) "As the law now is, every dissenting non-parochial church, with a certainty of not being any of his solemn opinions offended, if any person dissents, a remedy is provided by the mild and wise spirit of toleration which has prevailed in modern times, and which shows that he should join himself to persons of persuasions similar to his own."

the aforesaid act; nor that branch or clause of a statute made in the first year of the reign of the said queen, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer and Service in the Church, and Administration of the Sacraments;' whereby all persons, having no lawful or reasonable excuse to be absent, are required to resort to their parish church or chapel, or some usual place where the common prayer shall be used, upon pain of punishment by the censures of the church, and also upon pain that every person so offending shall forfeit for every offence twelve pence; nor the statute made in the third year of the reign of the late King James the First, intituled, 'An Act for the better discovering and pressing Popish Recusants;' nor that other statute made in the same year, intituled, 'An Act to prevent and avoid Dangers which may grow by Popish Recusants;' nor any other law or statute of this realm made against papists or popish recusants, except the statute made in the five and twentieth year of King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from Popish Recusants;' and except also the statute made in the thirtieth year of the said King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for the more effectual preserving of King's Person and Government, by disabling Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament;' shall be construed to extend to any person or persons dissenting from the church of England, that shall take (1) the oaths mentioned in a statute made this present parliament, intituled, 'An Act for removing and preventing all Questions and Disputes concerning the assembling and sitting of this present Parliament;' and shall make and subscribe the declaration mentioned in a statute made in the thirtieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act to prevent Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament;' which oaths and declaration the justices of peace at the general sessions of the peace, to be held for the county or place where such person shall live, are hereby required to tender and administer to such persons as shall offer themselves to take, make, and subscribe the same, and thereof to keep a register; and likewise none of the persons aforesaid shall give or pay, as any fee or reward, to any officer or officers belonging to the court aforesaid, above the sum of sixpence, nor that more than once, for his or their entry of his taking the said oaths, and making and subscribing the said declaration; nor above the further sum of sixpence for any certificate of the same, to be made out and signed by the officer or officers of the said court.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person and persons already convicted or prosecuted in order to conviction of recusancy, by indictment, information, action of debt, or otherwise, grounded upon the aforesaid statutes, or any of them, that shall take the said oaths mentioned in the said statute made this present parliament, and make and subscribe the declaration aforesaid, in the court of Exchequer, or assizes, or general or quarter sessions to be held for the county where such person lives, and to be thence respectively certified into the Exchequer, shall be thenceforth exempted and discharged from all penalties, seizures, forfeitures, judgments, and executions, incurred by force of any of the aforesaid statutes, without any composition, fee, or further charge whatsoever.

"IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person and persons that shall, as aforesaid, take the said oaths, and make and subscribe the declaration aforesaid, shall not be liable to any pains, penalties, or forfeitures, mentioned in an act made in the five and thirtieth year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Sub-

STAT. 1 G. & M. c. 18.

1 Eliz. c. 2, s. 14.

3 Jac. 1, c. 4.

3 Jac. 1, c. 5.

Exception.

25 Car. 2, c. 2.

30 Car. 2,

St. II. c. 1.

Supra, c. 1.

30 Car. 2,

St. II. c. 1.

Taking declaration to be registered.

Fee for register

and certificate.

Persons convicted, &c. taking the oaths, &c. shall be discharged.

35 Eliz. c. 1.

(1) That shall take:—In Rex v. Lardner, (4 Mod. 274; 1 Salk. 168,) the court said, "The defendant, therefore, should at first have pleaded in bar, that he was a dissenter from the church, &c., and then sought himself within the compass of the act of indulgence, of which the court cannot take any notice, because it is a private act; for before it was made, the law did not take any notice of protestant dissenters, but only of dissenters from the church in general; besides, it is an act which doth not extend to all sorts of protestant dissenters, but only to such who shall qualify themselves as therein is prescribed."

STAT. 1 G. & M. c. 18.

22 Car. 2, c. 1.

Ecclesiastical court.

Private meetings excluded.

Tithes saved.

Officers scrupling oaths, &c. allowed to act by deputy.

jects in their due Obedience;' nor in an act made in the two and twentieth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act to prevent and suppress Seditious Conventicles;' nor shall any of the said persons be prosecuted (1) in any ecclesiastical court, for or by reason of their non-conforming to the church of England.

"V. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any assembly of persons dissenting from the church of England shall be had in any place for religious worship with the doors locked, barred, or bolted, during any time of such meeting together, all and every person or persons, that shall come to and be at such meeting, shall not receive any benefit from this law, but be liable to all the pains and penalties of all the aforesaid laws recited in this act, for such their meeting, notwithstanding his taking the oaths, and his making and subscribing the declaration aforesaid.

"VI. Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to exempt any of the persons aforesaid from paying of tithes or other parochial rates, or any other duties to the church or minister, nor from any prosecution in any ecclesiastical court, or elsewhere, for the same.

"VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person dissenting from the church of England, as aforesaid, shall hereafter be chosen or otherwise appointed to bear the office of high constable or petit constable, churchwarden, overseer of the poor, or any other parochial or ward office (2), and such

(1) Prosecuted:—Two persons who were improperly "published" and "married" in a conventicle, were afterwards libelled against in the spiritual court for incontinence and fornication; and, upon moving for a prohibition, time was assigned to show cause why it should not go, and the proceedings in the ecclesiastical court were stayed in the meantime. Afterwards it was agreed, that a prohibition should be granted, and that the plaintiff should declare, in order that the point might be tried upon demurrer. But what the judgment was, or whether the cause proceeded to trial, does not appear from the report. Hutchinson & Uxor v. Brookebante, 3 Lev. 376.

(2) Parochial or ward office:—In Kemward v. Knowles, (Willes, 463,) it was held, that a Baptist preacher, qualified according to Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 18, was exempted from serving all parish offices, whether they existed before or were created since that act, even though he be also engaged in trade.

The following account of this case is taken from Mr. Justice Abney's MS.: (Willes, 464, in not.)

"Per Curiam. This is an extremely clear case. The case was not reserved from any doubt in the judge who tried the cause, but from the importunity of counsel. The Toleration Act is grounded on natural rights, and the highest natural right is that of the conscience. The statute ought to receive a large and beneficial exposition, if the case wanted it; but the present is not only within the intent, but also within the very letter of it. Every person who is in holy orders and is a teacher qualified according to Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 18, is exempted from serving any parochial office or other office in any parish, &c.; the plaintiff is so qualified, and therefore is exempted. This is a parochial office in the nature of it; Stat. 10 Geo. 2, calls it an office. It is appointed to by the parishioners, and exercised in a parish. The addition of the plaintiff's being a merchant or a dealer in hops varies not the case; it does not destroy the privilege any more than a clergyman's holding a farm or exercising an temporal office. The Toleration Act exempts teachers from all future offices. Judgment for the plaintiff."

Every Roman catholic minister was exempted from the office of churchwarden by complying with the regulations prescribed by Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. By Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 90, s. 174, no sergeant, drummer, or corporal of the militia, nor any private soldier from the time of his enrolment until his discharge, is liable to serve as a peace or parish officer. And by Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 53, s. 11, and 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 51, s. 12, the same exemptions apply to excise officers and custom-house officers. In Anthony & Taylor, (1 Const. 10,) Sir William Scott observed, "If a parish had returned a papist, a Jew, or a child of ten years of age, or a person convicted of felony, I conceive the ordinary would be bound to reject." In Idley v. Theobald, (1 Curt. 447,) the court refused to compel a quaker to undertake the office of churchwarden. Where a person first elected churchwarden had, on the payment of a fine, been excused, it was decided, that a person elected in his place at the same vestry meeting, was bound to serve, unless some exemption be shown. Brown v. Weller, 3 Hagg. 474. And in Waller & Allnutt, (3 Phill. 165,) it was held, that deafness was no ground for exemption from the office of churchwarden.

"No out-lier, though he occupy lands in the parish, may be chosen churchwarden, because he cannot take notice of absences from church, nor disorders in it, for the sake of presenting of them." Gibson's Cases 124.

But a person may be parishioner without inhabiting a house, for he may occupy a farm. Brook v. Owen, 3 Phill. 517, in not.

A partner in trade, lodging in another parish, is bound to serve in the parish where person shall scruple to take upon him any of the said offices in regard of the oaths, or any other matter or thing required by the law to be taken or done in respect of such office, every such person shall and may execute such office or employment by a sufficient deputy, by him to be provided, that shall comply with the laws on this behalf. Provided always the said deputy be allowed and approved by such person or persons, in such manner as such officer or officers respectively should by law have been allowed and approved.

"VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person dissenting from the church of England in holy orders, or pretended holy orders (1), or pretending to holy orders, nor any preacher or teacher of any congregation of dissenting protestants, that shall make and subscribe the declaration aforesaid, and take the said oaths at the general or quarter sessions of the peace to be held for the county, town, parts, or division where such person lives, which court is hereby empowered to administer the same, and shall also declare his approbation of and subscribe the articles of religion mentioned in the statute made in the thirteenth year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, except the thirty-fourth, thirty-fifth, and thirty-sixth, and these words of the twentieth article, viz. 'The church hath power to decree rites or ceremonies, and authority in controversies of faith, and yet,' shall be liable to any of the pains or penalties mentioned in an act made in the seventeenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for restraining Nonconformists from inhabiting in Corporations;' nor the penalties mentioned in the aforesaid act made in the two and twentieth year of his said late majesty's reign, for or by reason of such persons preaching at any meeting for the exercise of religion: nor to the penalty of one hundred pounds mentioned in an act made in the thirteenth and fourteenth of King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Public Prayers, and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies: and for establishing the Form of making, ordaining, and consecrating of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, in the Church of England,' for officiating in any congregation for the exercise of religion permitted and allowed by this act.

"IX. Provided always, that the making and subscribing the said declaration, and the taking the said oaths, and making the declaration of approbation and subscription to the said articles, in manner as aforesaid, by every respective person or persons hereinbefore mentioned, at such general or quarter sessions of the peace as aforesaid, shall be then and there entered of record in the said court, for which

STAT. 1 G. & M. c. 18.

Persons in orders, how exempted from, 17 Car. 2, c. 2. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4.

13 Eliz. c. 12.

17 Car. 2, c. 2.

13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4.

Taking the oaths, &c. to be registered.

in his house of trade; and even a non-resident partner in a house of trade has been held liable to serve the office of churchwarden. Stephenson v. Langston, 1 Consist. 379. Vide etiam Res v. Poynder, 1 B. & C. 178. Attorney-General v. Forster, 10 Ves. 335. 1 Russ's E. L. by Phillimore, 400. Vide Stephens on Clerical Law, tit. CHURCHWARDENS.

1. In holy orders, or pretended holy orders.—Whether a person not having "holy orders," (i. e. by episcopal ordination, or "pretended holy orders," (i. e. conferred by some form other than episcopal ordination, acknowledged by protestant dissenters,) but being a candidate only for holy orders of one or other description, be entitled to require of the sessions to have the oaths administered to him, and to be allowed to make and subscribe the declarations required by the eighth section of the Toleration Act, 1 G. & M. c. 18, within the further description in that section of a person "pretending to holy orders," to enable him to preach, &c. without incurring penalties; or whether these words are to be understood only of a person pretending actually to have some description of holy orders, has been questioned; but it is clear, under this statute, it is not necessary, that a person bringing himself within the true meaning of "pretending to holy orders," should also be the teacher or preacher of a separate congregation of protestant dissenters; and where the sessions had refused to admit a person to take the oaths, and to make and subscribe the declarations, &c. because he had not the conjoint qualification, a mandamus was granted to them to administer to him the oaths, &c., or to enable them to make a special return of the grounds of their refusal. Res v. Gloucestershire (Justices of), 15 East, 577.

Where a protestant dissenter merely stated himself as one who "preaches to several congregations of protestant dissenters," without showing that he had any separate congregation attached to him as such teacher or preacher, he was held in Res v. Denbighshire (Justices of), (14 East, 385,) not entitled to be admitted by the justices in sessions to take the oaths, and to make and subscribe the declaration as required by the Toleration Act, 1 G. & M. c. 18, in order to qualify himself, under the eighth clause of that statute, to officiate as such teacher or preacher.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 18.

Meeting door
to be unlocked.

Baptists.

Teachers
except from offices.

Justice of peace
may tender the
oaths, &c.

Penalty for refusing.

Quakers, how exempted.
Altered as to quakers by
8 Geo. 1, c. 6.
Declaration of
fidelity.
See 2 Bur.
1002.

Profession.

sixpence shall be paid to the clerk of the peace, and no more: provided that such person shall not at any time preach in any place, but with the doors not locked, barred, or bolted, as aforesaid.

"X. And whereas some dissenting protestants scruple the baptizing of infants be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person in pretended holy orders, or pretending to holy orders, or preacher, or teacher, that shall subscribe the aforesaid articles of religion, except before excepted, and also except part of the same and twentieth article touching infant baptism, and shall take the said oaths, make and subscribe the declaration aforesaid, in manner aforesaid, every such person shall enjoy all the privileges, benefits, and advantages, which any other dissenting minister, as aforesaid, might have or enjoy by virtue of this act.

"XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every teacher or preacher in holy orders, or pretended holy orders, that is, a minister, preacher or teacher of a congregation, that shall take the oaths herein required, and make and subscribe the declaration aforesaid, and also subscribe such of the dissenting articles of the church of England, as are required by this act in manner aforesaid, shall be thenceforth exempted from serving upon any jury, or from being chosen or appointed to bear the office of churchwarden, overseer of the poor, or any other parochial or ward office, or other office in any hundred of any shire, city, town, parish, division, or wapentake.

"XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every justice of the peace may at any time hereafter require any person that goes to any meeting for exercise of religion, to make and subscribe the declaration aforesaid, and also to take the said oaths (1) or declaration of fidelity hereinafter mentioned, in case such person scruples the taking of an oath, and upon refusal thereof, such justice of the peace is hereby required to commit such person to prison without bail or mainprize, and to certify the name of such person to the next general or quarter sessions of the peace to be held for that county, city, town, part, or division, where such person then resides; and if such person so committed shall upon a second tender at the general or quarter sessions refuse to make and subscribe the declaration aforesaid, such person refusing shall be then and there recorded, and he shall be taken thenceforth to all intents and purposes for a popish recusant convict, and suffer accordingly, and incur all the penalties and forfeitures of all the aforesaid laws.

"XIII. And whereas there are certain other persons, dissenters from the church of England, who scruple the taking of any oath; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every such person shall make and subscribe the aforesaid declaration, and also this declaration of fidelity following, viz.

"I, A. B., do sincerely promise and solemnly declare before God and the world, that I will be true and faithful to King William and Queen Mary; and I do solemnly profess and declare, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and renounce, as impious and heretical, that damnable doctrine and position, that princes excommunicated or deprived by the pope, or any authority of the see of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do declare, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate, hath, or ought to have, any power, jurisdiction, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm."

"And shall subscribe a profession of their Christian belief in these words:

"I, A. B., profess faith in God the Father, and in Jesus Christ his eternal son, the true God, and in the Holy Spirit, One God blessed for evermore; and do acknowledge the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be given by Divine inspiration."

"Which declarations and subscription shall be made and entered of record at the general quarter sessions of the peace for the county, city, or place where every such

(1) Oaths:—Parol evidence of the oaths required by the Toleration Act having been taken, was in Res v. Hulse, (1 Peake's N. P. C. 180,) held not to be admissible; but that it was not necessary to prove the taking of those oaths in an indictment for disturbing the congregation.

shall then reside. And every such person that shall make and subscribe declarations and profession aforesaid, being thereunto required, shall be free from all the pains and penalties of all and every the aforementioned laws made against popish recusants, or protestant nonconformists, and also from the penalties of an act made in the fifth year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act for the Assurance of the Queen's Royal Power over all her Subjects within her Dominions,' for or by reason of such persons not refusing to take the oath mentioned in the said act; and also from the penalties of an act made in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for preventing Mischiefs that may arise in Persons called Quakers, refusing to take lawful Oaths;' and enjoy all the benefits, privileges, and advantages, under the like limitations, provisoes, and conditions, which any other dissenters shall or ought to enjoy by virtue of

1 Geo. 1, St. 1. c. 6; 8 Geo. 1, c. 6; 12 Geo. 2, c. 13, s. 8; and 22

V. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in case any person shall refuse to take the said oaths, when tendered to them, which office of the peace is hereby empowered to do, such person shall not be obliged to make and subscribe the two declarations aforesaid, though required to do so either before any justice of the peace, or at the general or quarter sessions, or after any conviction of popish recusancy, as aforesaid, unless such person, within thirty-one days after such tender of the declarations to him, shall produce two sufficient protestant witnesses, to testify upon oath, that they believe him to be a protestant dissenter, or a certificate under the hands of four protestants, that he is conformable to the church of England, or have taken the oaths and subscribed the declaration above-mentioned, and shall also produce a certificate under the hands and seals of six or more sufficient men of the congregation to which he belongs, owning him for one of them.

VI. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that until a person shall produce a certificate, under the hands of six of his congregation, as aforesaid, he shall not be allowed to exercise his office of the peace, until two protestant witnesses come to attest his being a protestant dissenter, or a certificate under the hands of four protestants as aforesaid, be produced, the person so convicted shall and hereby is required to take a recognizance with two sufficient men of the peace in the penal sum of fifty pounds, to be levied of his goods and chattels, and tenements, to the use of the king's and queen's majesties, their heirs and assigns, for his producing the same; and if he cannot give such security, to be committed to prison, there to remain until he has produced such certificates, or recognizances, as aforesaid.

II. Provided always, and it is the true intent and meaning of this act, that the laws made and provided for the frequenting of divine service on the Sabbath day, commonly called Sunday, shall be still in force, and executed against all persons that offend against the said laws, except such persons come to some (1) place of religious worship, allowed or permitted by this act.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that neither this act, nor any clause, article, or thing herein contained, shall extend or be construed to extend to give any ease, benefit, or advantage to any papist or recusant whatsoever, or any person that shall deny in his preaching or teaching the doctrine of the blessed Trinity, as it is declared in the aforesaid articles and declarations.

IV. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any person or persons, at any time or times after the tenth day of June, do and lawfully and of purpose, maliciously or contemptuously come into any cathedral church, chapel, or other congregation permitted by this act, and do or disturb the same, or misuse any preacher or teacher, such person or persons shall be liable to be punished as disturbers of religious worship.

due to some:—It was said by Holt (Justice), "If a man be a professed papist, and his conscience will permit him to go to meetings instead of coming to church, the Act of Toleration shall not excuse him; for it was not made for such sort of people." Gibson's Codex, 521.

STAT. 1 G. & M. c. 18.

5 Eliz. c. 1.

13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 1.

Farther provisions concerning quakers, 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 34; 22 Geo. 2, c. 46.

How purged after refusal of the oaths.

Laws for divine service in force.

Papists, &c. excepted.

Disturbers of religious worship, how punished. See 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 5, s. 4.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 18.

persons, upon proof thereof before any justice of peace, by two or more sufficient witnesses, shall find two sureties to be bound by recognizance in the penal sum of fifty pounds, and in default of such sureties shall be committed to prison, there to remain till the next general or quarter sessions (1); and upon conviction of the said offence at the said general or quarter sessions, shall suffer the pain and penalty of twenty pounds, to the use of the king's and queen's majesties, their heirs and successors.

Place for worship to be certified.
See 4 Bur.
1991.

"XIX. Provided always, that no congregation or assembly for religious worship shall be permitted or allowed by this act, until the place of such meeting shall be certified to the bishop of the diocese, or to the archdeacon of that archdeaconry, or to the justices of the peace at the general or quarter sessions of the peace for the county, city, or place in which such meeting shall be held and registered (2) in the said bishop's or archdeacon's court respectively, or recorded at the said general or quarter sessions; the register or clerk of the peace whereof respectively is hereby required to register the same, and to give certificate thereof to such persons and demand the same, for which there shall be no greater fee nor reward than the sum of sixpence."

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 26.

IX. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 26(3). A.D. 1688.

"An Act to vest in the two Universities the Presentations of Benefices belonging to Papists."

3 Jac. 1, c. 5.

"Whereas in and by a certain clause mentioned in one act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of King James the First, intituled, 'An Act to prevent and avoid Dangers which may grow by Popish Recusants,' it is enacted, that every person or persons that is or shall be a popish recusant convict, during the time that he shall be or remain a recusant, shall, from and after the end of the present session of parliament, be utterly disabled to present to any benefice with cure, or without cure, prebend, or any other ecclesiastical living, or to collate, nominate to any free school, hospital, or donative whatsoever, and from the beginning of the said parliament shall likewise be disabled to grant any avoidance of any benefice, prebend, or other ecclesiastical living:

Persons refusing declaration, disabled to present, &c.
Ante c. 15.

"II. Be it enacted by the king's and queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that every person who shall refuse or neglect to make, repeat, and subscribe the declaration mentioned in one act of this present parliament, intituled, 'An Act for the better securing the Government by disarming Papists, and reputed Papists,' when the same shall be tendered to such person by any two or more justices of the peace, as in the said act is enacted, or who shall upon notice given, as in the said act is directed, refuse or forbear (4) to appear before them for the making, repeating, and subscribing

(1) Quarter sessions:—In Rex v. Hube, (5 T. R. 542,) it was held, that an indictment found at the quarter sessions upon the Toleration Act, 1 G. & M. c. 18, for disturbing a dissenting congregation, might be removed into the court of King's Bench by certiorari before verdict; and that upon conviction of several defendants upon such indictment, each was liable to the penalty of 20*l.* imposed by Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 18.

(2) Registered:—In Rex v. Derbyshire (Justices of), (Black. (Sir W.), 606,) it was considered, that the court of quarter sessions was merely ministerial as to registering meeting-houses under Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 18, s. 19.

An action was brought by divers inhabitants of Finly Chapel in Lancashire, against the registrar of the Bishop of Chester, (Gibson's Codex, 521,) for refusing to make an entry in the Registry for such chapel to be a conventicle, and for making a false return to a mandamus issued for that end; but the cause ended, does not appear from the report, where it is only referred to, as a way of pleading, as an instance of five persons joining in an action upon the case, for a false return to the mandamus and as adjudged, that the action was well laid per omnes conjunctim.

(3) Vide Stat. 12 Ann. St. II c. 16 Stat. 11 Geo. 2, c. 17. Stat. 10 Geo. 3, c. 7. 3 Burn's F. L. by Phillimore 4th.

(4) Refuse or forbear:—In Northwood v. Oxford (University of), (1 Ann. 546,) the party was summoned to take the oath, but refused to attend. Upon which a writ was declared by the court, "that the party ought to be present at the time appointed, and if they are not there, it would be a good excuse for the party, if he attended," but that there "is no necessity that the justices should be present, if the party does not come, but it hereof, and shall thereupon have his name, surname, and usual place of abode certified and recorded at the general quarter sessions to be holden for the shire, riding, division, or liberty, for which such two justices shall be justices of the peace, by the clerk of the peace, or town clerk, as in the said act is appointed; every such person so recorded shall be, from and after the time of such record made, adjudged, taken, and esteemed disabled to make such presentation, collation, nomination, donation, or grant of any avoidance of any benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living, as fully and amply as if such person were a popish recusant convict by the laws or statutes of this realm; any law, statute, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding: and that the chancellor and scholars of the university of Oxford, and the chancellor and scholars of the university of Cambridge, by what name or names soever they, or either of them, are incorporated, shall respectively have the presentation, nomination, collation, and donation of and to every such benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living, school, hospital, and donative, set, lying, and being in the respective counties, cities, and other the places and limits in the said act of the third of King James mentioned, as in and by the said act is directed and appointed, so often as any of them shall become void, according to the limitations, directions, and provisions in that behalf limited, enacted, and provided.

STAT. 1 G. & M. c. 26.

Universities shall present, &c.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that where any person or persons are or shall be seised or possessed of any advowson, right of presentation, collation, or nomination to any such ecclesiastical living, free school, or hospital as aforesaid, in trust for any papist or popish recusant, who shall be convicted or disabled, according to the true intent and meaning of the said statute, made in the third year of the reign of the said King James the First, or by this present act, every such person and persons so seised and possessed in trust for any papist or popish recusant convict or disabled, shall be and are hereby adjudged to be disabled to present, nominate, or collate to any such ecclesiastical living, free school, or hospital, or to grant any avoidance thereof; and their and every of their presentations, nominations, collations, and grants, shall be null and void to all intents and purposes whatsoever; and the chancellors and scholars of the said respective universities as aforesaid, upon every avoidance, shall have the presentations, nominations, and collations, to such ecclesiastical livings, free schools, and hospitals, in such manner as they should have the same, in case such recusant convict or disabled were seised or possessed thereof.

Trustees disabled.

3 Jac. 1, c. 5. Enlarged as to papists not convict, by 12 Ann. St. II. c. 14, s. 1.

"IV. And in case any trustee or trustees, or mortgagee, or grantee of any avoidance, hereafter present, nominate, or collate, or cause to be presented, nominated, or collated, any person to any such ecclesiastical living, free school, or hospital, whereof the trust shall be for any recusant convict or disabled, without giving notice of the avoidance in writing to the vice-chancellor for the time being of the university, to whom the presentation, nomination, or collation shall belong, according to the true intent of this act, within three months after the avoidance shall happen, such trustee or trustees, mortgagees or grantees, shall forfeit and pay the sum of five hundred pounds, to the said respective chancellors and scholars of either of the said universities to whom such presentation, nomination, or collation shall belong, according to the true intent of this present act, to be recovered in any of their majesties' courts of record, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

Penalty upon trustees presenting without notice.

"V. Provided always, that the said chancellors and scholars of either of the said universities, shall not present or nominate to any benefice with cure, prebend, or other ecclesiastical living, any person as shall then have any other benefice with cure of souls; and if any such presentation shall be had or made of any such person so beneficed, the said presentation shall be utterly void; anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Presentation of person beneficed, void.

"VI. Provided, that if any person so presented or nominated to any benefice is sufficient, if they leave one at the place, to give them notice if the party comes; and the party himself is obliged to do the first act, namely, to attend at the time and place appointed."

What absence makes living void.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 26.

Taking the oaths purges
the disability.

Cap. 3.

with cure, shall be absent from the same above the space of sixty days in any one year, that in such case the said benefice shall become void.

"VII. Provided nevertheless, that if any such person shall present himself before the justices of the peace at the general quarter sessions to be holden for the county, riding, division, or liberty where his name was recorded, and shall there in open court make, repeat, and subscribe the said declaration, and take the several oaths contained in one act of this present parliament, intituled, 'An Act for the abrogating of the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and appointing other Oaths,' he shall from thenceforth be discharged of and from the said disability, and be enabled to make such presentation, collation, nomination, and donation, and grant of any avoidance to any benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living, school, or hospital, as if this act had not been made."

STAT. 1 G. &
M. c. 29.

X. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 29 (1). A.D. 1688.

"An Act for Relief of the Protestant Irish Clergy."

STAT. 1 G. &
M. SESS. 2, c. 2.

XI. STAT. 1 GULIELMI & MARIE, SESS. 2, c. 2 [36] (2). A.D. 1689.

"An Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and settling the Succession of the Crown."

"Whereas the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, assembled at Westminster, lawfully, fully, and freely representing all the estates of the people of this realm, did upon the thirteenth day of February, in the year of our last one thousand six hundred eighty-eight, present unto their majesties, then called and known by the names and style of William and Mary, prince and princess of Orange, being present in their proper persons, a certain declaration in writing, made by the said lords and commons, in the words following: viz.

The heads of abdication.

"Whereas the late King James the Second, by the assistance of divers evil counsellors, judges, and ministers employed by him, did endeavour to subvert and extirpate the protestant religion, and the laws and liberties of this kingdom

Dispensing
power.

"1. By assuming and exercising a power of dispensing with and suspending of laws, and the execution of laws, without consent of parliament.

Committing
prelates.

"2. By committing and prosecuting divers worthy prelates, for humbly petitioning to be excused from concurring to the said assumed power.

Ecclesiastical
commission.

"3. By issuing and causing to be executed a commission under the great seal for erecting a court called 'The Court of Commissioners for Ecclesiastical Causes'

Levying
money.

"4. By levying money for and to the use of the crown, by pretence of prerogative, for other time, and in other manner, than the same was granted to parliament.

Standing
army.

"5. By raising and keeping a standing army within this kingdom in time of peace, without consent of parliament, and quartering soldiers contrary to law.

Disarming
protestants.

"6. By causing several good subjects, being protestants, to be disarmed, at the same time when papists were both armed and employed, contrary to law.

Violating
elections.

"7. By violating the freedom of election of members to serve in parliament.

Wrong
prosecutions.
Juries.

"8. By prosecutions in the court of King's Bench, for matters and causes cognizable only in parliament; and by divers other arbitrary and illegal courses.

"9. And whereas of late years, partial, corrupt, and unqualified persons have been returned and served on juries in trials, and particularly divers jurors in trials for high treason, which were not freeholders.

Excessive bail.

"10. And excessive bail hath been required of persons committed in criminal cases, to elude the benefit of the laws made for the liberty of the subjects.

Fines and punishments.

"11. And excessive fines have been imposed; and illegal and cruel punishments inflicted.

Grants of fines, &c.

"12. And several grants and promises made of fines and forfeitures, before or

(1) Expired.

Geo. 3, c. 53. Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 26. 1702.

(2) Vide Stat. 13 Gul. 3, c. 6. Stat. 5 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 49. Stat. 3 & 6 Geo. 4, c. 8. Stat. 8 Geo. 1, c. 6. Stat. 6 62. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 32, s. 1.

conviction or judgment against the persons upon whom the same were to be tried.

STAT. 1 G. & M. SESS. 2, c. 2.

“All which are utterly and directly contrary to the known laws and statutes, and freedom of this realm.

9 Hen. 3, St. 1. c. 14.

“And whereas the said late King James the Second having abdicated the government, and the throne being thereby vacant, his highness the Prince of Orange (whom it hath pleased Almighty God to make the glorious instrument of delivering this kingdom from popery and arbitrary power) did (by the advice of the lords spiritual and temporal, and divers principal persons of the commons) cause letters to be written to the lords spiritual and temporal, being protestants; and other letters to the several counties, cities, universities, boroughs, and cinque ports, for the choosing of such persons to represent them, as were of right to be sent to parliament, to meet and sit at Westminster upon the two and twentieth day of January in this year one thousand six hundred eighty and eight, in order to such an establishment, as that their religion, laws, and liberties might not again be in danger of being subverted: upon which letters, elections having been accordingly made,

3 Edw. 1, c. 6.
34 Edw. 3, c. 1.

“And thereupon the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, pursuant to their respective letters and elections, being now assembled in a full and free representative of this nation, taking into their most serious consideration the best means for attaining the ends aforesaid; do in the first place (as their ancestors in like case have usually done) for the vindicating and asserting their ancient rights and liberties, declare:

The subjects' rights.

“1. That the pretended power of suspending of laws, or the execution of laws, by regal authority, without consent of parliament, is illegal.

No dispensing power.

“2. That the pretended power of dispensing with laws, or the execution of laws, by regal authority, as it hath been assumed and exercised of late, is illegal.

Late dispensing illegal.

“3. That the commission for erecting the late court of commissioners for ecclesiastical causes, and all other commissions and courts of like nature, are illegal and pernicious.

Ecclesiastical courts illegal.

“4. That levying money for or to the use of the crown, by pretence of prerogative, without grant of parliament, for longer time, or in other manner than the same is or shall be granted, is illegal.

Levying money.

“5. That it is the right of the subjects to petition the king, and all commitments and prosecutions for such petitioning are illegal.

Right to petition.

“6. That the raising or keeping a standing army within the kingdom in time of peace, unless it be with consent of parliament, is against law.

Standing army

“7. That the subjects which are protestants, may have arms for their defence, suitable to their conditions, and as allowed by law.

Subjects' arms

“8. That election of members of parliament ought to be free.

Freedom of election.

“9. That the freedom of speech, and debates or proceedings in parliament, ought not to be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of parliament.

Freedom of speech.

“10. That excessive bail ought not to be required, nor excessive fines imposed; nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

Excessive bail.

“11. That jurors ought to be duly impanelled and returned, and jurors which upon men in trials for high treason ought to be freeholders.

Juries.

“12. That all grants and promises of fines and forfeitures of particular persons before conviction, are illegal and void.

Grants of forfeitures.

“13. And that for redress of all grievances, and for the amending, strengthening, and preserving of the laws, parliaments ought to be held frequently.

Frequent parliaments.

“And they do claim, demand, and insist upon all and singular the premises, as their undoubted rights and liberties; and that no declarations, judgments, doings, or proceedings, to the prejudice of the people in any of the said premises, ought in any wise to be drawn hereafter into consequence or example.

“To which demand of their rights they are particularly encouraged by the declaration of his highness the Prince of Orange, as being the only means for obtaining a full redress and remedy therein.

“Having therefore an entire confidence, that his said highness the Prince of

STAT. 1 G. &
M. SESS. 2, C. 2.

Orange will perfect the deliverance so far advanced by him, and will still preserve them from the violation of their rights, which they have here asserted, and from all other attempts upon their religion, rights, and liberties:

Tender of the crown.

"II. The said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, assembled at Westminster, do resolve, that William and Mary, prince and princess of Orange, be, and be declared, king and queen of England, France, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, to hold the crown and royal dignity of the said kingdoms and dominions to them the said prince and princess during their lives, and the life of the survivor of them; and that the sole and full exercise of the royal power be, and be executed by the said Prince of Orange, in the names of the said prince and princess, during their joint lives; and after their deceases, the said crown and royal dignity of the said kingdoms and dominions to be to the heirs of the body of the said princess, and for default of such issue to the Princess Anne of Denmark, and the heirs of her body; and for default of such issue, to the heirs of the body of the said Prince of Orange. And the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, do pray the said prince and princess to accept the same accordingly.

New oaths of allegiance, &c.

"III. And that the oaths hereafter mentioned be taken by all persons of whom the oaths of allegiance and supremacy might be required by law, instead of them; and that the said oaths of allegiance and supremacy be abrogated.

Allegiance.

"I, A. B., do sincerely promise and swear, that I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance, to their majesties King William and Queen Mary. So help me God."

Supremacy.

"I, A. B., do swear, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable doctrine and position, that princes excommunicated, or deprived by the Pope, or any authority of the see of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do swear, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state or potentate hath, or ought to have, any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm. So help me God."

Acceptance of the crown.

"IV. Upon which their said majesties did accept the crown and royal dignity of the kingdoms of England, France, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, according to the resolution and desire of the said lords and commons contained in the said declaration.

The two houses
to sit.

"V. And thereupon their majesties were pleased, that the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, being the two houses of parliament, should continue to sit, and with their majesties' royal concurrence make effectual provision for the settlement of the religion, laws, and liberties of this kingdom, so that the same in the future might not be in danger again of being subverted; to which the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, did agree and proceed to act accordingly.

Subjects'
liberties to be allowed.

"VI. Now, in pursuance of the premises, the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, for the ratifying, confirming, and establishing the said declaration, and the articles, clauses, matters, and things therein contained, by the force of a law made in due form by authority of parliament, do pray that it may be declared and enacted, that all and singular the rights and liberties asserted and claimed in the said declaration, are the true, ancient, and indubitable rights and liberties of the people of this kingdom, and so shall be esteemed, allowed, adjudged, deemed, and taken to be, and that all and every the particulars aforesaid shall be firmly and strictly holden and observed, as they are expressed in the said declaration; and all officers and ministers whatsoever shall serve their majesties and their successors according to the same in all times to come.

William and Mary declared
king and queen.

"VII. And the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, seriously considering how it hath pleased Almighty God, in his marvellous Providence, and merciful goodness to this nation, to provide and preserve their said majesties and persons most happily to reign over us upon the throne of their ancestors, for which they render unto Him from the bottom of their hearts their humblest thanks and praises, do truly, firmly, assuredly, and in the sincerity of their hearts think, and do hereby recognise, acknowledge, and declare, that King James the Second and abdicated the government, and their majesties having accepted the crown and royal dignity as aforesaid, their said majesties did become, were, are, and of right ought to be, by the laws of this realm, our sovereign liege lord and lady, king and queen of England, France, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, in and to whose princely persons the royal state, crown, and dignity of the said realms, with all honours, styles, titles, regalities, prerogatives, powers, jurisdictions, and authorities to the same belonging and appertaining, are most fully, rightfully, and entirely invested and incorporated, united, and annexed.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. SESS. 2, c. 2.

“VIII. And for preventing all questions and divisions in this realm, by reason of any pretended titles to the crown, and for preserving a certainty in the succession thereof, in and upon which the unity, peace, tranquillity, and safety of this nation doth, under God, wholly consist and depend, the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, do beseech their majesties that it may be enacted, established, and declared, that the crown and regal government of the said kingdoms and dominions, with all and singular the premises thereunto belonging and appertaining, shall be and continue to their said majesties, and the survivor of them, during their lives, and the life of the survivor of them: and that the entire, perfect, and full exercise of the regal power and government be only in, and executed by his majesty, in the names of both their majesties during their joint lives; and after their deceases the said crown and premises shall be and remain to the heirs of the body of her majesty; and for default of such issue, to her royal highness the Princess Anne of Denmark, and the heirs of her body; and for default of such issue, to the heirs of the body of his said majesty: and thereunto the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, do, in the name of all the people aforesaid, most humbly and faithfully submit themselves, their heirs and posterities for ever; and do faithfully promise, that they will stand to, maintain, and defend their said majesties, and also the limitation and succession of the crown herein specified and contained, to the utmost of their powers, with their lives and estates, against all persons whatsoever that shall attempt anything to the contrary.

Limitation of
the crown.

“IX. And whereas it hath been found by experience, that it is inconsistent with the safety and welfare of this protestant kingdom, to be governed by a popish prince, or by any king or queen marrying a papist; the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, do further pray that it may be enacted, that all and every person and persons that is, are, or shall be reconciled to, or shall hold communion with, the see or church of Rome, or shall profess the popish religion, or shall marry a papist, shall be excluded, and be for ever incapable to inherit, possess, or enjoy the crown and government of this realm, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, or any part of the same, or to have, use, or exercise any regal power, authority, or jurisdiction within the same; and in all and every such case or cases the people of these realms shall be, and are hereby absolved of their allegiance; and the said crown and government shall from time to time descend to, and be enjoyed by such person or persons, being protestants, as should have inherited and enjoyed the same, in case the said person or persons so reconciled, holding communion, or professing, or marrying as aforesaid, were naturally dead.

Papists debarred the crown.

“X. And that every king and queen of this realm, who at any time hereafter shall come to and succeed in the imperial crown of this kingdom, shall on the first day of the meeting of the first parliament, next after his or her coming to the crown, sitting in his or her throne in the house of peers, in the presence of the lords and commons therein assembled, or at his or her coronation, before such person or persons who shall administer the coronation oath to him or her, at the time of his or her taking the said oath, (which shall first happen,) make, subscribe, and audibly repeat the declaration mentioned in the statute made in the thirtieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, ‘An Act for the more effectual preserving the King’s Person and Government, by disabling Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament.’ But if it shall happen, that such king or queen, upon his or her succession to the crown of this realm, shall be under the age of twelve years, then every such king or queen shall make, subscribe, and audibly repeat the said declaration at his or her coronation, or the first day of the

All kings, &c.
to take the declaration of 30 Car. 2,
St. II. c. 1.

If under twelve years old, to be done after attainment
thereof.

STAT. 1 G. &
M. SESS. 2, c. 2.
King's assent.

meeting of the first parliament as aforesaid, which shall first happen after such king or queen shall have attained the said age of twelve years.

"XI. All which their majesties are contented and pleased shall be declared, enacted, and established by authority of this present parliament, and shall still remain, and be the law of this realm for ever; and the same are by their said majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, declared, enacted, and established accordingly.

Non obstante's
made void.

"XII. And be it further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after this present session of parliament, no dispensation by non obstante's or to any statute, or any part thereof, shall be allowed, but that the same shall be held void and of no effect, except a dispensation be allowed of in such statute, and except in such cases as shall be specially provided for by one or more bill or bills to be passed during this present session of parliament.

Pardons expected before October.

Farther provision concerning succession of the crown, 12 Gul. 3, c. 2; 13 Gul. 3, c. 6.

"XIII. Provided that no charter, or grant, or pardon, granted before the third and twentieth day of October in the year of our lord one thousand six hundred eighty-nine, shall be any ways impeached or invalidated by this act, but that the same shall be and remain of the same force and effect in law, and no other, than as if this act had never been made."

STAT. 2 G. &
M. SESS. 1, c.
10.

XII. STAT. 2 GULIELMI & MARIE, SESS. 1, c. 10. A.D. 1690.

"An Act for the King's and Queen's most gracious General and Free Pardon"

[Robberies of churches; offences committed by Jesuits and seminary priests, convicted recusants; taking away of temporalities in time of vacation; arrears of first-fruits and tenths; adultery and other enormous crimes in clergymen, accepted from pardon (1).]

STAT. 3 G. &
M. c. 2.

XIII. STAT. 3 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 2. A.D. 1691.

"An Act for the abrogating the Oath of Supremacy in Ireland, and appointing other Oaths."

"Whereas by a statute made in Ireland in the second year of the reign of our late sovereign lady Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act restoring to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all foreign Power repugnant to the same,' the persons therein mentioned are thereby obliged to take the oath in the said act expressed:

The oath made
in Ireland,
2 Elis. c. 1,
abrogated.

What persons are bound to take the new oaths.

"II. Be it enacted, that from henceforth no person whatsoever residing in Ireland shall be obliged to take the said oath by force or virtue of the said recited statute, or any other statute whatsoever;

Penalty upon clergymen not taking the
oaths, &c.

Penalty upon other persons
offending.

"III. And be it further enacted, that the oaths appointed, intended, or required by this act to be taken, be taken by the persons herein and hereafter mentioned, and by every such other person and persons, as were appointed and required by the said recited act, or any other statute whatsoever made in Ireland, to take the said abrogated oath, before such person or persons, and in such court as hereafter in this act is expressed; And if any archbishop, or bishop, or any other person having any ecclesiastical dignity or promotion, or being a lecturer or curate, shall neglect or refuse to take the said oaths and make and subscribe the said declaration, as aforesaid, then he or they shall be ipso facto deprived, and is and are hereby adjudged to be deprived of his said office, dignities, and promotions ecclesiastical, and incapable to be lecturer or curate in any place or cure whatsoever: and all and every other person having any office, or receiving any pay, salary, fee, or wages, by reason as aforesaid, or being master, governor, head, or fellow of the said university or college, or master of any hospital or school, as aforesaid, that shall neglect or refuse to take the said oaths, and make and subscribe the said declaration, within the time, and in the manner aforesaid respectively, shall be ipso facto thenceforth adjudged

(1) Similar exceptions occur in Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 3, c. 29.

incapable and disabled in law, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, to have, occupy, or enjoy such office, pay, salary, fee, wages, mastership, governor's place, headship, fellowship, employment or employments, or any part of them, or any matter or thing aforesaid, or any profit or advantage appertaining to them, or any of them; and every such office and place shall be void.

STAT. 3 G. &
M. c. 2.

"V. . . . shall make, subscribe, and audibly repeat this declaration following:

"I, A. B., do solemnly and sincerely in the presence of God profess, testify, and declare, that I do believe, that in the sacrament of the Lord's supper there is not any transubstantiation of the elements of bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ, at or after the consecration thereof by any person whatsoever: and that the invocation or adoration of the Virgin Mary, or any other saint, and the sacrifice of the mass, as they are now used in the church of Rome, are superstitious and idolatrous. And I do solemnly in the presence of God profess, testify, and declare, that I do make this declaration, and every part thereof, in the plain and ordinary sense of the words read unto me, as they are commonly understood by protestants, without any evasion, equivocation, or mental reservation whatsoever, and without any dispensation already granted me for this purpose by the Pope, or any other authority or person whatsoever, or without any hope of any such dispensation from any person or authority whatsoever, or without believing that I am or can be acquitted, before God or man, or absolved of this declaration, or any part thereof, although the Pope, or any other person or persons, or power whatsoever, should dispense with, or annul the same, or declare that it was null and void from the beginning."

The declara-
tion.

"VIII. And be it enacted, that the oaths that are intended and required to be taken by this act, are the oaths in these express words hereafter following:

"I, A. B., do sincerely promise and swear, that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to their majesties King William and Queen Mary:

The new oaths.

"So help me God, &c."

"I, A. B., do swear, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable doctrine and position, that princes excommunicated or deprived by the Pope, or any authority of the see of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do declare, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate, hath, or ought to have, any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm:

So help me God, &c."

XIV. STAT. 3 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 3(1). A.D. 1691.

STAT. 3 G. &
M. c. 3.

"An Act for the better ascertaining the Tithes of Hemp and Flax."

XV. STAT. 3 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 14(2). A.D. 1691.

STAT. 3 G. &
M. c. 14.

"An Act for the Relief of Creditors against Fraudulent Devises."

XVI. STAT. 4 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 2(3). A.D. 1692.

STAT. 4 G. &
M. c. 2.

"An Act that the Inhabitants of the Province of York may dispose of their Personal Estates by their Wills, notwithstanding the Custom of that Province."

"Whereas by custom within the province of York, or other usage, the widows and younger children of persons dying inhabitants of that province, are entitled to a part of the goods and chattels of their late husbands and fathers, (called her and their reasonable part,) notwithstanding any disposition of the same by their husbands' and fathers' last wills and testaments, and notwithstanding any jointures made for the livelihood of the said widows by their husbands in their life-time, which are competent, according to agreement, whereby many persons are disabled from making sufficient provision for their younger children: for remedy whereof,

(1) Expired. Vide Stat. 6 Ann. c. 28. Gul. 4, c. 47.

(2) Repealed by Stat. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 (3) Vide Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 5.

STAT. 4 G. &
M. c. 2.

Persons within the province of York may dispose by will of all their personal estate.

"II. Be it enacted by the king's and queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that, from and after the six and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety and three, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, inhabiting or residing, or who shall have any goods or chattels within the province of York, by their last wills and testaments, to give, bequeath, and dispose of all and singular their goods, chattels, debts, and other personal estate, to their executor or executors, or to such other person or persons as the said testator or testators shall think fit, in as large and ample manner, as by the laws and statutes of this realm any person or persons may give and dispose of the same within the province of Canterbury, or elsewhere; and that from and after the said six and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety and three, the widows, children, and other the kindred of such testator or testators, shall be barred to claim or demand any part of the goods, chattels, or other personal estate of such testator or testators, in any other manner than as by the said last wills and testaments is limited and appointed; any law, statute, or usage to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

Freemen of York and Chester
excepted.
In part repealed
by 2 & 3 Ann.
c. 5.

"III. Provided always, that nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to the citizens of the cities of York and Chester, who are or shall be freemen of the said respective cities, inhabiting therein, or within the suburbs thereof, at the time of their death, but that every such citizen's widow and children shall and may have and enjoy such reasonable part and proportion of the testator's personal estate, as she or they might or ought to have had by the custom of the province of York, before the making of this act."

STAT. 4 G. &
M. c. 12.

XVII. STAT. 4 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 12. A.D. 1692.

"An Act to make Parishioners of the Church united Contributors to the Repairs and Ornaments of the Church to whom the Union is made."

17 Car. 2, c. 3.

"Whereas by an act of parliament made in the seventeenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, of blessed memory, provision was made for the uniting churches in cities and towns corporate: and forasmuch as it is highly reasonable that parishioners of parishes whose churches are demolished (1), and either before or afterwards united to other churches, should be contributors towards the repairs and other parochial charges of such other church, to which by virtue of the said act they are united:

37 Hen. 8,
c. 21.

If two churches
be united, and one of them down, the parishioners of that church
shall pay towards the repairs, &c. of the other.
21 Vin. 594.

"II. Therefore be it enacted by the king's and queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that where any churches heretofore have been, or hereafter shall be, united by virtue of the said act, and one of the said churches so united was, at the time of such union, or shall afterwards be demolished, that in all such cases, as often as the church which was or shall be made the church presentative, and to which the union was or shall be made, shall be out of repair, or there shall be need of decent ornaments for the performance of divine service therein, that the parishioners of the parish, whose church shall then be down or demolished, shall bear and pay, towards the charges of such repairs and decent ornaments, such share and proportion as the archbishop or bishop that shall make such union shall by the same cases direct and appoint; and for want of such direction and appointment, then one-third part of such charges of the repairs and decent ornaments, which shall be made as provided; and the same shall be rated, taxed, and levied, and in default thereof such process and proceedings shall be had and made against him or them, as if it were for the reparation and finding decent ornaments for their own parish church, if no such union had been made; any law, custom, usage, or opinion, to the contrary heretofore notwithstanding."

(1) Demolished:—"But if both churches are standing, then the repairs and ornaments shall be provided for, as they were at common law; that is, by the parishioners of each parish respectively." Gibson's Codex 919

XVIII. STAT. 5 GULIELMI & MARIE, c. 1(1). A.D. 1693.

STAT. 5 G. &
M. c. 1.

Act for granting to their Majesties an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound for One Year, for carrying on a vigorous War against France."

retories and vicarages not exceeding 30*l.* or 40*l.* per annum, not to be taxed; similar exemption occurs in Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 3, c. 3; Stat. 7 Gul. 3, c. 5; Stat. 8 Gul. 3, c. 6.]

XIX. STAT. 6 & 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 6(2). A.D. 1695.

STAT. 6 & 7
GUL. 3, c. 6.

Act for granting to His Majesty certain Rates and Duties upon Marriages, Births, and Burials, and upon Bachelors and Widowers, for the term of Five Years, for carrying on the War against France with vigour."

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person shall be tried at any place pretending to be exempt from the visitation of the bishop (diocese, without a licence first had and obtained, except the banns shall be read and certified according to law; and that every parson, vicar, and curate, shall marry any persons contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, or information, in any of his majesty's courts of record; one moiety whereof to the king, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the informer who shall sue for the same; and shall, for the second offence, be suspended ab officio for the space of three years."

Penalty upon vicar, &c. marrying in privileged place without licence. Extended by 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 35, s. 2, to places not exempt, &c. See 26 Geo. 2, c. 33, for making clandestine marriages void.

Rates upon burials:—archbishop, 50*l.*; archbishop's wife, 10*l.*; bishop, 20*l.*; bishop's wife, 5*l.*; dean, 10*l.*; dean's wife, 2*l.* 10*s.*; archdeacon, 2*l.* 10*s.*; archdeacon's wife, 1*l.*; prebendary, 2*l.* 10*s.*; prebendary's wife, 1*l.* Upon birth of dignified children, 20*s.* Upon marriage of archbishop, 20*l.*; bishop, 20*l.*; dean, archdeacon, 2*l.* 10*s.*; prebendary, 2*l.* 10*s.* Annual payments: archbishop, 12*l.*; bishop, 5*l.*; dean, 2*l.* 10*s.*; archdeacon, 12*s.* 6*d.*; prebendary, 12*s.* 6*d.*]

XX. STAT. 6 & 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 20(3). A.D. 1695.

STAT. 6 & 7
GUL. 3, c. 20.

An Act for the King's most Gracious, General, and Free Pardon."

XXI. STAT. 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 2. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1695.

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 2. [IR.]

"An Act for taking away the Writ De Heretico Comburendo."

Be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that the writ commonly called breve de heretico comburendo, with all process and proceedings thereupon, in order to the obtaining such writ, or following or depending thereupon, and all punishment by law in pursuance of ecclesiastical censures, be from henceforth utterly taken away and abolished; any law, statute, canon, constitution, custom, or usage to the contrary heretofore or now in force in any wise notwithstanding.

Eng. 29 Car. 2, c. 9. Writ de heretico comburendo, and all proceeding thereon, taken away.

II. Provided always, that nothing in this act shall extend or be construed to take away or abridge the jurisdiction of protestant archbishops or bishops, or any judges of any ecclesiastical courts, in cases of atheism, blasphemy, heresy, or any other damnable doctrines and opinions; but that they may proceed to punish the same according to his majesty's ecclesiastical laws, by excommunication, deprivation, degradation, and other ecclesiastical censures, not extending to the life, in such sort, and no other, as they might have done before the making of this act; anything in this law contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

Saving of ecclesiastical jurisdiction in atheism, &c.

but not to extend to death.

Expired.

4, c. 86.

Vide Stat. 32 Geo. 3, c. 146. Stat. 4, c. 76. Stat. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Gul. 4, ss. 20, 21, 22, 23. Stat. 6 & 7 Gul.

(3) Expired. Vide ante 646, Stat. 2 G. & M. Sess. 1, c. 10.

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 4. [Ir.]

XXII. STAT. 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 4(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1691.
"An Act to restrain Foreign Education."

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 6. [Ir.]

XXIII. STAT. 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 6. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1693.
"An Act for the better settling of Intestates' Estates."

Eng. 22 & 23
Car. 2, c. 10.

Ordinaries
upon granting administration shall take bonds with sureties, having respect to the value of the estate.

Condition of the bonds.

To make perfect inventory.

Exhibit it at a certain day,
truly administer,
make just account of administration,
pay and deliver residue.

If any will appears and approved, to deliver the letters of administration
upon request.

Such bonds
good and pleadable.
Ordinaries
may call administrators
to account;
and after debts
and funeral charges, distribute amongst wife and chil-

"Be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this presentment assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all ordinaries, as judge or judges of the prerogative court of the Archbishop of Armagh, time being, as all other ordinaries and ecclesiastical judges, and every having power to commit administration of the goods, chattels, and credits of persons dying intestate, shall and may upon their respective granting and one of administrations of the goods, chattels, and credits of persons dying after the feast of the purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, in this year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety five, take and require of every respective person or persons, to whom any administration is to be committed, sufficient bonds, with two or more able sureties, respect being had to the value of the estate, in the name of the ordinary, with the condition in manner following, mutatis mutandis, viz.:

"The condition of this obligation is such, that if the within bounden administrator of all and singular the goods, chattels, and credits of E. D. do make, or cause to be made, a true and perfect inventory of all and singular the goods and chattels, and credit of the said E. D. deceased, which have, or shall come to the hands, possession, or knowledge, of him the said A. B., or into the possession of any other person or persons for him, and the same to exhibit, or cause to be exhibited, in the registry of the said court, on the day of the next ensuing, and the same goods, chattels, and credits, and all other the goods, chattels, and credits of the said E. D. at the time of his death, which at any time hereafter shall come to the hands or possession of the said A. B., or into the hands or possession of any other person or persons for him, do well and truly administer according to law; and do make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of his said administration before the said court, on the day of the next ensuing, and all the rest and residue of the said goods, chattels, and credits, which shall be found remaining upon the said administrator's account, the same being first examined and allowed of by the said court, or judges for the time being of the said court, shall deliver and pay unto the said court, or persons respectively, as the said judge and judges, by his or their sentence, pursuant to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall appoint; and if it shall hereafter appear, that any last will or testament made by the said deceased, and the executor or executors therein named do not come into the said court, making request to have it allowed and approved, or if the said A. B. within bounden, being thereunto required, do not deliver the said letters of administration, approbation of such testament made, had and made in the said court, then this obligation to be void and of no effect, or else to remain in full force and virtue."

"Which bonds are hereby declared and enacted to be good in law, to all intents and purposes, and pleadable in any courts of justice; and also, that the said ordinaries and judges respectively shall, and may, and are enabled to process and call such administrators to account, for and touching the goods of any person dying intestate, and upon hearing and due consideration thereof, to make just and equal distribution of what remaineth clear after all debts, charges, and just expenses of every sort first allowed and deducted, among the wife and children, or children's children, if any such be, otherwise to the kindred to the dead person in equal degree, or legally representing the same, pro suo cuiq. jure, according to the law in such cases, and the rules and customs thereof."

(1) Obsolete.

hereafter set down, and the same distribution to decree and settle, and to compel such administrators to observe and pay the same by due course of his majesty's ecclesiastical laws: saving to every one, supposing him or themselves aggrieved, their right of appeal, as was always in such cases used.

accordingly by due course of ecclesiastical laws. Saving right of appeal.

"II. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all executors, administrators, and every other person, who by this act is enabled to make distribution of the surplusage of the estate of any person dying intestate, shall distribute the whole surplusage of such estate or estates in manner and form following; that is to say, one third part of the said surplusage to the wife of the intestate, and all the residue by equal portions to and amongst the children of such persons dying intestate, and such persons as legally represent such children, in case any of the said children be then dead, other than such child or children (not being heir at law) who shall have any estate by the settlement of the intestate, or shall be advanced by the intestate in his life-time by portion or portions, equal to the share which shall by such distribution be allotted to the other children to whom such distribution is to be made; and in case any child (other than the heir at law) who shall have any estate by settlement from the said intestate, or shall be advanced by the intestate in his life-time by portion, not equal to the share which shall be due to the other children by such distribution as aforesaid, then so much of the surplusage of the estate of such intestate to be distributed to such child or children, as shall have any land by settlement from the intestate, or were advanced in the life-time of the intestate, as shall make the estate of all the said children to be equal, as near as can be estimated; but the heir at law, notwithstanding any land which he shall have by descent or otherwise from the intestate, is to have an equal share in the distribution with the rest of the children, without any consideration of the value of lands which he hath by descent, or otherwise from the intestate. And in case there be no children, nor any legal representatives of them, then one moiety of the said estate to be allotted to the wife of the said intestate; the residue of the said estate to be distributed equally to every of the next of kindred of the intestate, who were in equal degree, and those who legally represent them.

If no children or their representatives, half to wife; residue to next of kin in equal degree.

"III. Provided that there be no representations admitted amongst collaterals, as uncles, nephews, and brothers' and sisters' children: and in case there be no wife, then all the estate to be distributed equally to, and amongst the children: and in case there be no child, then to the next of kindred in equal degree of or unto the intestate, and their legal representatives as aforesaid, and in no other manner whatsoever.

the children; if no child, the next of kin in equal degree.

"IV. Provided also, and be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, that and that a due regard be had to creditors, that no such distribution of the estate of any person dying intestate be made till after one year be fully expired after the intestate's death; and that such and every person, to whom any distribution or share shall be allotted, shall give bonds with sufficient sureties in the said county, city, or town, (which said bonds shall be likewise good in law, and pleadable in any court of justice,) that if any debt or debts truly owing by the intestate shall be lawfully sued for and recovered, or otherwise duly made to appear, that then in every such case he or she shall respectively refund and pay back to the administrator his or her rateable part of such debt or debts, and of the costs of suit and charges of the administrator by reason of such debt, out of the part and share aforesaid allotted to him or her, thereby to enable the said administrator to satisfy the said debt or debts so discovered after the distribution made as aforesaid.

"V. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in all cases where the ordinary hath used heretofore to grant administration testamento annexo, he shall continue so to do, and the will of the deceased in such testament expressed shall be performed and observed in such manner as it should have been if this act had never been made.

"VI. Provided always, that neither this act, nor anything therein contained,

STAT. 7 GUL. 3, c. 6. [1a.] children, &c., and compel administrator to pay right of appeal.

How and to whom the surplus distributed.

One-third to wife of intestate, residue equally among the children and their representatives, except a child (not being heir at law) advanced by intestate by a portion equal to the distributive share.

If such advancement not equal, to be made so out of the surplus.

Heir at law, notwithstanding lands by descent or otherwise, to have distributive share.

in equal degree.

No representation after brothers' and sisters' children.

If no wife, the whole among equal degree.

No distribution till after one year.

Bonds to be given to refund proportionably if debts afterwards appear.

Not to extend to administration cum testamento annexo;

Nor to estates

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 6. [12.]
of femes covert,
which shall go to the husband
as before.
Eng. 29 Car.
2, c. 3, s. 25.
Administrators
not to be cited
to account
otherwise than
by inventory,
unless at instance of a minor, creditor, or next of kin.
Eng. 1 Jac. 2,
c. 17, s. 6.
Brothers and sisters of a child dying intestate after death of the father without wife or children, share equally vis à la mother. Eng. 1 Jac. 2, c. 17, s. 7.

shall be construed to extend to the estates of femes covert that shall die intestate but that their husbands may demand and have administration of their real, credits, and other personal estates, and recover and enjoy the same, as they might have done before the making of this act.

"VII. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted, that no administrator shall from henceforth be cited into any of the courts in this act mentioned, to render an account of the personal estates of his intestate, otherwise than by an inventory or inventories thereof, unless it be at the instance or prosecution of some person or persons in behalf of a minor, or having a demand out of such estate as a creditor, or next of kin, and shall not be compellable to account before any the ordinaries or judges by this act empowered and appointed to take the same, otherwise than as is aforesaid.

"VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if after the death of a father, any of his children shall die intestate without wife or children, in the life-time of the mother, every brother and sister, and the representatives of them, shall have an equal share with her; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

"IX. And whereas it hath been heretofore used, that in case any executor or administrator to any person deceased, did obtain any judgment or judgments by law in any of his majesty's courts of record within this kingdom of Ireland, in or their own name or names, for any debt due unto him or their testator or intestate, and did happen to die before any execution sued forth by him or them upon such judgment or judgments, the effect or benefit of such judgment or judgments was wholly lost; and such person or persons to whom letters of administration of the goods unadministered to such first testator or intestate were committed, and not by the rules of law have any benefit or advantage of such judgment or judgments by scire facias, or otherwise, but were forced, for the recovering of such debt or duty, to sue forth a new original, to their great expence and delay: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from henceforth in all such cases it shall and may be lawful for any administrator or administrators of the goods unadministered of such first testator or intestate to sue forth any writ or writs of scir. fac. upon any such judgment or judgments so had and obtained in the name or names of such executor or administrator, and have the benefit and advantage of such judgment or judgments as fully to all intents and purposes as such executor or administrator himself might have had, if he or they had been living and sued forth such writ or writs upon any such judgment; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

"X. And whereas it has been held, that there is a certain custom within this kingdom of Ireland to the effect following, that is to say, that if any person be possessed of or entitled to any goods, things in action, or personal estate whatsoever; and having at the time of his death, a wife, or child, or children, in such case all the said estate is to be divided into three equal parts, whereof one third part belongs to the wife, another to the child or children, and the other third part only to be subject to the disposition of the party deceased by his last will or testament, in case he make any, or to go in a course of administration in case he die intestate; and if he leave a wife only, and no child or children, then the said estate to be divided into two parts, whereof the one moiety to go to the wife, and the other moiety only to be subject to his disposition by will as aforesaid, otherwise to go in a course of administration in case he die intestate, and in the same manner if he shall leave a child or children, and no wife: now it is hereby declared, that the said custom shall from henceforth be absolutely null and void in all intents and purposes whatsoever, and shall not be taken to be in force, or to be binding to any person or persons whatsoever.

"XI. And whereas the executors and administrators of such persons who have possessed themselves of considerable personal estates of other dead persons and converted the same to their own use, have no remedy by the rules of the common

Administrator
de bonis non,
&c. may sue scir. fac. upon judgment by executor or administrator.
Eng. 17 Car.
2, c. 8.

Custom of Ireland, by which
only one-third,
or a moiety of personal estate subject to the party's disposition by will,
or to go in course of administration if no will, made
void.

Executors and administrators
of executor in his own wrong,

law, as it now stands, to pay the debts of those persons whose estate hath been so converted by their testator or intestate, which hath been found very mischievous, and many creditors defeated of their just debts, although their debtors left behind them sufficient to satisfy the same with a great overplus: for remedy whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every the executors and administrators of any person or persons, who as executor or executors in his or their own wrong, or as administrator, shall, from and after the fifth day of November, in this present year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety and five, waste or convert any goods, chattels, estate, or assets of any person deceased, to their own use, shall be liable and chargeable to make good the same out of the assets of such testator or intestate."

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 6. [1a.]
or administrator wasting or converting, &c.
chargeable out
of the assets.
Eng. 30 Car.
2, c. 7.

XXIV. STAT. 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 9. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1695.

An Act for the more effectual suppressing of Profane Cursing and Swearing."

"Whereas it is found by experience, that an act of parliament made in the ninth and eleventh years of the reign of King Charles the First, intituled, 'An Act to prevent and reform Profane Swearing and Cursing,' hath proved ineffectual in the suppressing of those detestable sins, by reason of some deficiency in the said act: be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that if any person or persons shall, after the fifth day of November, in this present year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety and five, profanely swear and curse in the presence or hearing of any justice of peace of the county, division, or of the mayor, or other head officer or justice of peace, for any city or town corporate, where such offence shall be committed, or that shall be thereof convicted by the oath of one witness, or by the confession of the party offending, before any justice of the peace of the county, or mayor or bailiff, or other chief officer, or justice of the peace of such city or town corporate, where the said offence shall be committed; that then for every such offence, the party so offending shall forfeit and pay to the use of the poor of the parish, where such offence or offences shall be committed, the respective sums hereinafter mentioned: that is to say, every servant, day-labourer, common soldier, and common seaman, one shilling, and every other person two shillings: and in case any of the persons aforesaid shall after conviction offend a second time, such persons shall forfeit and pay double; and if a third time, treble the sum respectively by him or her to be paid for the first offence.

"II. And it is hereby further enacted, that upon neglect or refusal of payment of the said forfeiture, any justice of peace of the county, or mayor, or other head officer, or justice of peace of any city or town corporate where the said offence shall be committed, shall and are hereby authorized and required to direct and send his warrant to the constable, tything-man, churchwarden, or overseer of the poor of the parish where the offence shall be committed, or where the offender shall inhabit, thereby commanding them, or some one or more of them, to levy by distress and sale of the goods of the offender, the sum so forfeited for the use of the poor of the parish as aforesaid; and in case no such distress can be had, then every such offender, being above the age of sixteen years, shall by warrant under the hand and seal of the said justice of peace, or other officer as aforesaid, be publicly set in the stocks for the space of one hour for every single offence, and for any number of offences whereof he shall be convicted at one and the same time, then two hours; and if the party offending be under the age of sixteen years, and shall not forthwith pay the said forfeitures, then he or she shall, by warrant as aforesaid, be whipped by the constable, or by the parent, guardian, or master of such offender, in the presence of the constable.

"III. And be it further enacted, that if any justice of the peace or chief magistrate shall wilfully and willingly omit the performance of his duty in the execution of this act, he shall forfeit the sum of five pounds; the one moiety to the use of the informer, to be recovered by action, suit, bill, or plaint, in any of

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 9. [1a.]

Eng. 6 & 7
Gul. 3.
10 & 11 Car.
1, c. 1, defective.

Forfeitures of several degrees
of persons for swearing.

In presence or hearing of a justice, &c.

Conviction by oath of one witness or confession.

Forfeitures to poor of the parish.

Servants, day
labourers,
soldiers, and
seamen, 1s.
other persons,
2s.

Second offence,
double;
third, treble.

Levied by distress and sale,
upon warrant
to constable,
&c.

In default of distress, to be set in stocks, if above sixteen;

if under,
whipped.

Five pounds
penalty upon magistrates neglecting.

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 9. [1a.]

In suits for executing this act, defendants
may plead
general issue,
and may have treble costs.

Offenders to be prosecuted
in ten days.

The act to be read in churches four Sundays, on pain of 20s.

Convictions to be registered,
and certified to
the sessions.

his majesty's courts, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance granted.

"IV. And it is hereby further enacted, that if any action or suit shall be commenced or brought against any justice of peace, constable, or other officer or person whatsoever, for doing or causing to be done anything in pursuance of this act concerning the said offences, the defendant in such action may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence; and if upon such action verdict be given for the defendant, or the plaintiff become nonsuit, or discontinue his action, then the defendant shall have treble costs.

"V. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, that no person shall be prosecuted or troubled for any offence against this statute, unless the same be proved or prosecuted within ten days next after the offence committed.

"VI. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act shall be publicly read four times in the year in all parish churches and all public chapels, by the parson, vicar, or curate of the respective parishes or chapels immediately after morning prayers on four several Sundays; that is to say, the Sunday next after the fifth day of November in this present year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety-five; the fifth day of February following; the third day of May which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety-six; and the fifth day of August following, under the pain of twenty shillings for every such omission or neglect.

"VII. And be it further enacted by authority aforesaid, that the justices of peace, mayor, or other head officer, shall register in a book, to be kept for the purpose, all the convictions made before him upon this act, and the time of making thereof, and for what offence; and shall certify the same to the next general quarter sessions of the peace for the said county or place where the offences are committed, to be there kept upon record by the respective clerks of the peace, to be seen without fee or rewards."

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 14. [1a.]

XXV. STAT. 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 14(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1693.

"An Act declaring which Days in the Year shall be observed as Holy Days"

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 17. [1a.]

XXVI. STAT. 7 GULIELMI 3, c. 17(2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1693.

"An Act for the better Observation of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday"

Eng. 29 Car.
2, c. 7.

All persons to observe the Lord's day,
and exercise
duties of religion,
publicly
and privately.
No worldly labour or calling exercised,
works of necessity
or charity
excepted.

Penalty 5s. on offenders of age
of fourteen.
Goods cried or exposed to sale, forfeited.
No drover,
carrier, &c. to travel or come to his inn on Sunday, on pain
of 20s.

"For the better observation and keeping holy the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and every person and persons whatsoever shall on every Lord's day apply themselves to the observation of the same, by exercising themselves thereon in the duties of piety and true religion publicly and privately; and that no tradesman, artificer, workman, labourer, or other person whatsoever, shall do or exercise any worldly labour, business, or work of their ordinary callings upon the Lord's day, or any part thereof (works of necessity and charity only excepted): and that every person being of the age of fourteen years, or upwards, offending in the premises, shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of five shillings; and that no person or persons whatsoever shall publicly cry, shew forth, or expose to sale any wares, merchandises, fruit, herbs, goods or chattels whatsoever upon the Lord's day, or any part thereof, upon pain that every person so offending shall forfeit the same goods so cried, or shewed forth, or exposed to sale.

"II. And it is further enacted, that no drover, horse-courser, waggoner, cutter, butcher, higgler, their or any of their servants, shall travel, or come into or to their inn, or lodging, upon the Lord's day, or any part thereof, upon pain that each and every such offender shall forfeit twenty shillings for such offence.

(1) Obsolete.
(2) Vide Stat. 6 Geo. 1, c. 5. (1.) Stat. 27 Geo. 3, c. 35, s. 1. (1.)

STAT. 7 GUL.
3, c. 17. [In.]
treason, felony,
or breach of
peace.
Damages for the same as if done without any writ, &c.
Tavern keepers, &c. not to entertain or furnish liquors
during divine service, on pain of 10s.
except their own family;
they who enter
or remain there forfeit 5s.

Constables and churchwardens are frequently to enter taverns,
and apprehend offenders, and carry before a justice, before whom conviction or acquittal
final.

And the justice
to receive the penalty for use of the poor,
and in default
of payment commit offender to gaol.

Not to extend to persons in inns before,
and intending to abide there on Sunday.
Commencement of the act, 1 November, 1695.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 6.

Continued
further for seven years by 10 & 11 Gul.
3, c. 15, and perpetuated by 3 & 4 Ann.
c. 18, s. 1.

or executed, any writ, process, warrant, order, judgment, or decree, in cases of treason, felony, or breach of the peace;) but that the service of any writ, process, warrant, order, judgment, or decree, shall be void to all purposes whatsoever; and the person and persons so serving or executing the same shall be as liable to the suit of the party grieved, and to answer damages done thereof, as if he or they had done the same without any writ, warrant, order, judgment, or decree at all.

"VIII. And for the better preventing drinking and intemperance on Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, be it also enacted by the authority of the said Parliament, that no keeper of any tavern, ale-house, or public victualling-house, shall entertain, or permit to remain in his house, any person or persons of divine service, except those who are of their own family, or lodgers in his house; or furnish them with wine, ale, beer, or other liquor of any kind, on pain of forfeiting of ten shillings for every such offence, to be paid by the keeper of taverns, ale-houses, or public victualling-houses; and also five shillings, to be forfeited by every such person or persons, who shall remain in such taverns, ale-houses, or victualling-houses, contrary to the intent of this present act."

"IX. And for the better execution thereof, all constables and churchwardens of parishes, within the several cities and towns corporate within the county of Middlesex, and required frequently, and as often as they have reason to do, to enter into all taverns, ale-houses, and victualling-houses, within the parishes or districts, where they shall reasonably suspect any person to remain, contrary to the intent of this present act; and to apprehend such person, as they shall find, or reasonably suspect to be offenders against the intent of this present act, and the master or keeper of such house, where such offenders shall be found, and them in custody to carry before the next, or some other justice of the peace, at the place where such person shall be apprehended; which justice of the peace are hereby empowered to examine witnesses upon oath, touching the offence of this law; and after examination to proceed to a conviction or acquittal of persons accused, which shall be final to all parties; and if such justice of the peace shall, upon proof, convict the persons accused to have committed an offence against this law, the said justice of peace shall forthwith demand from such persons the penalties on them intended to be imposed by this act, and to receive the same, and in default of payment to commit the offender to the gaol of the county, till he shall have made payment of the same; which sum so paid shall be applied to the use of the poor of the respective parishes, where such offences have been or shall be committed."

"X. Provided nothing herein contained shall extend to persons who shall be in any inns before the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, and shall be there on Sunday; but it shall and may be lawful for such persons to remain in such inns and public houses, as if this act had never been made."

"XI. Provided always, that this act shall commence and take effect from the first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety-five, and not before."

XXVII. STAT. 7 & 8 GULIELMI 3, c. 6(1). A.D. 1695.

"An Act for the more easy Recovery of Small Tithes."

"For the more easy and effectual recovery of small tithes, and for the better satisfaction of the same, where the same shall be unduly subtracted and detained, which do not amount to above the yearly value of forty shillings from any one benefice, be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present assembly, and by the authority of the same, that all and every person or persons who shall henceforth well and truly set out and pay all and singular such small tithes, and compositions and agreements for the same, shall be as liable to the suit of the party grieved, and to answer damages done thereof, as if he or they had done the same without any writ, warrant, order, judgment, or decree at all."

(1) Vide Stat. 10 & 11 Gul. 3, c. 15. 15. Stat. 5 & 6 Gul. 3, c. 15. Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 127. Stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 7 Gul. 4, c. 71.

all offerings, oblations, and obventions, to the several rectors, vicars, and other persons, to whom they are or shall be due, in their several parishes within this Kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, according to the rights, customs, and prescriptions commonly used within the said parishes respectively; and if any person or persons shall hereafter subtract or withdraw, or any ways fail in the true payment of such small tithes, offerings, oblations, obventions, or compositions as aforesaid, by the space of twenty days at most after demand thereof, then it shall and may be lawful for the person or persons, to whom the same shall be due, to make his or their complaint in writing unto two or more of his majesty's justices of the peace within that county, riding, city, town corporate, place, or division where the same shall grow due; neither of which justices of peace is to be patron of the church or chapel whence the said tithes do or shall arise, nor any ways interested in such tithes, offerings, oblations, obventions, or compositions aforesaid.

"II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if hereafter any suit or complaint shall be brought to two or more justices of the peace as aforesaid, concerning small tithes, offerings, oblations, obventions, or compositions as aforesaid, the said justices are hereby authorized and required to summon, in writing under their hands and seals, by reasonable warning, every such person or persons against whom any complaint shall be made as aforesaid; and after his or their appearance, or upon default of their appearance, the said warning or summons being proved before them upon oath, the said justices of peace, or any two or more of them, shall proceed to hear and determine the said complaint, and upon the proofs, evidences, and testimonies, produced before them, shall, in writing under their hands and seals, adjudge the case, and give such reasonable allowance and compensation for such tithes, oblations, and compositions so subtracted or withheld, as they shall judge to be just and reasonable, and also such costs and charges, not exceeding ten shillings, as upon the merits of the cause shall appear.

"III. And be it further enacted, that if any person or persons shall refuse or neglect, by the space of ten days after notice given, to pay or satisfy any such sum of money, as upon such complaint and proceeding shall by two or more justices of the peace be adjudged as aforesaid, in every such case the constables and churchwardens of the said parish, or one of them, shall, by warrant under the hands and seals of the said justices to them directed, distrain the goods and chattels of the party so refusing or neglecting as aforesaid, and after detaining them by the space of three days, in case the said sum so adjudged to be paid, together with reasonable charges for making and detaining the said distress, be not tendered or paid by the said party in the mean time, shall and may make public sale of the same, and pay to the party complaining so much of the money arising by such sale as may satisfy the said sum so adjudged, retaining to themselves such reasonable charges for making and keeping the said distress, as the said justice shall think fit, and shall render the overplus (if any be) to the owner.

"IV. Provided always, and be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for all justices of peace, in the examination of all matters offered to them by this act, to administer an oath or oaths to any witness or witnesses, where the same shall be necessary for their information, and for the better discovery of the truth.

"V. Provided also, and be it enacted, that this act or anything herein contained, shall not extend to any tithes, oblations, payments, or obventions, within the city of London, or liberties thereof, nor to any other city or town corporate where the same are settled by any act of parliament in that case particularly made and provided.

"VI. Provided also, and be it enacted, that no complaint for or concerning any small tithes, offerings, oblations, obventions, or compositions, hereafter due, shall be heard and determined by any justices of the peace, by virtue of this act, unless the complaint shall be made within the space of two years next after the times that the same tithes, oblations, obventions, and compositions, did become due or payable; anything in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 6.
8 Vin. 564.
2 Burn. 498.

If small tithes not paid in twenty days after demand, lawful to complain to two justices not interested,

18 Edw. 3,
St. III. c. 7.
45 Edw. 3,
c. 3.
5 Hen. 4, c. 11.

who may summon the persons complained of, and on default of appearance determine the complaint, &c.

On refusal to pay in ten days after notice, the constables, &c. may distrain.

Justices to administer an oath.

Not to extend to London, &c.

No complaint to be heard, unless made within two years.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 6.

Persons aggrieved may appeal to the sessions.

If judgment
be confirmed,
justices to give
costs, &c.

Persons complained of, insisting on any composition,
&c., and giving security
to pay costs,
justices not to give judgment.

Judgment to be inrolled at the next sessions by the clerk of the peace, &c.

Persons removing, justices may certify the judgment, &c.

"VII. Provided also, and be it enacted, that any person finding themselves aggrieved, by any judgment to be given by any two justices of the peace, shall and may appeal to the next general quarter sessions to be held in the county, riding, city, town corporate, or division, and the justices of the peace then present, or the major part of them, shall proceed finally to hear and determine the matter, and to reverse the said judgment, if they shall see cause; and if the justices then present, or the major part of them, shall find cause to confirm the judgment given by the first two justices of the peace, they shall then do so by order of sessions, and shall also proceed to give such costs against the appellant to be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the said appellant to them shall seem just and reasonable; and no proceedings, or judgments, to be had by virtue of this act, shall be removed or superseded by writs of certiorari, or other writ out of his majesty's courts at Westminster, or any other court whatsoever, unless the title of such tithes, oblations, or obventions be in question; any law, statute, custom or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, that where any person shall be complained of for subtracting or withholding any small tithes, or any other dues, as aforesaid, shall, before the justices of the peace to whom such complaint shall be made, insist upon any prescription, composition, or modus decimandi, whereby he or she is or ought to be freed from payment of the said dues in question, and deliver the same in writing to the said justices, and subscribe the same by him or her, and shall then give to the party complaining, and sufficient security, to the satisfaction of the said justices, to pay the costs and damages, as upon a trial at law to be had for that purpose, in the said justices' or their majesty's courts having cognizance of that matter, shall be given against him or them, in case the said prescription, composition, or modus decimandi shall be allowed; that in that case the said justices of the peace shall forbear to give any judgment in the matter; and that then and in that case the person or persons so complaining shall and may be at liberty to sue the person or persons for their said subtraction in any other court or courts whatsoever, where he, she, or they might have sued before the making of this act, notwithstanding.

"IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any judgment, or any part thereof, shall be obtained, before any justices of the peace, for small tithes, oblations, obventions, or compositions, shall cause the said judgment to be inrolled at the next general quarter sessions to be held in the county, city, riding, or division; and the clerk of the peace for the county, city, riding, or division, is hereby required, upon tender of the same; and that he shall not ask or receive for the inrolment of the said judgment any fee or reward exceeding one shilling; and that the judgment shall be confirmed and satisfaction made by paying the same sum so adjudged, shall be a full and final conclusion to the said rectors, vicars, and other persons, from any other tithes, oblations, obventions, or compositions, for which the said judgment was obtained.

"X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons, against whom any such judgment or judgments shall be made, shall remove out of the county, riding, city, or corporation, after the said judgment shall be made, and before the levying the sum or sums thereby adjudged, the justices of the peace who made the said judgment, or one of them, shall certify the same, under his or their hands and seals, to any justice of the peace in any other county, city, or place, wherein the said person or persons shall be found; which said justice is hereby authorized and required, by warrant under his or their hand and seal, to be directed to the constables or churchwardens of the parish or parishes wherein the said person or persons shall be found, to levy the sum or sums so adjudged to be levied, as fully as the said person or persons might have done, if he, she, or they, had not removed as aforesaid; and the costs to be paid according to the said judgment.

Provided always, and be it enacted, that no vicar or other person shall remedy to recover small tithes, or other dues aforesaid, which became or before the making of this act, unless complaint be made to the justices in form aforesaid, before the first day of October, which shall be in of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety-six.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 6.

I. And it is hereby declared and enacted, that the said justices of the who shall hear and determine any of the matters aforesaid, shall have power costs, not exceeding ten shillings, to the party prosecuted, if they shall complaint to be false and vexatious; which costs shall be levied in manner in aforesaid.

Justices may give costs not exceeding 10s.

II. Provided also, and be it further enacted, that if any person or persons sued for anything done in execution of this act, and the plaintiff in such II discontinue his action, or be nonsuit, or a verdict pass against him, that any of the said cases, such person or persons shall recover double costs.

Double costs.

IV. Provided always, that any clerk, or other person or persons, who shall by suit for recovery of small tithes, oblations, or obventions, not exceeding of forty shillings, in his majesty's court of exchequer, or in any of the tical courts, shall have no benefit by this act, or any clause in it, for the utter for which he or they have so sued.

Suits for tithes
not exceeding
40s. to have no benefit by this act.

V. Provided always, and be it further enacted, that this act shall continue space of three years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer."

Act to continue
three years.
Farther provisions

respecting tithes, 11 & 12 Gul. 3, c. 16, which is made perpetual by 1

Geo. 1, c. 26.

XXVIII. STAT. 7 & 8 GULIELMI 3, c. 24(1). A.D. 1696.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 24.

Act requiring the Practisers of Law to take the Oaths, and subscribe the Declaration therein mentioned."

XXIX. STAT. 7 & 8 GULIELMI 3, c. 27 (2). A.D. 1696.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 27.

An Act for the better Security of His Majesty's Royal Person and Government."

XXX. STAT. 7 & 8 GULIELMI 3, c. 34 (3). A.D. 1696.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 34.

Act that the solemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an Oath in the usual form."

XXXI. STAT. 7 & 8 GULIELMI 3, c. 35 (4). A.D. 1696.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 35.

Act for the enforcing the Laws which restrain Marriages without Licence Banns, and for the better registering Marriages, Births, and Burials."

Whereas by an act of parliament made in the fifth and sixth years of the his majesty King William, and the late Queen Mary of blessed memory, ed, 'An Act for granting to their Majesties several Duties upon Vellum, ment, and Paper, for four Years, towards carrying on the War against it is amongst other things enacted, that a duty or imposition of five shillings shall be rated, levied, collected, and paid, for every piece of paper or parchment upon which any licence or certificate of marriage should be written or ed: and whereas by a clause in another act of parliament made in the sixth tenth years of his majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for granting to His certain Rates and Duties upon Marriages, Births, and Burials, and upon and Widowers, for the term of five Years, for carrying on the War France with vigour,' it is amongst other things enacted and provided, that

5 & 6 G. & M.
c. 21.

6 & 7 Gul. 3,
c. 6, s. 52.

Vide Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 6. Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 32. Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 49. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 77.

Vide Stat. 13 Gul. 3, c. 6.

Vide Stat. 13 & 14 Gul. 3, c. 4. (4) Vide Stat. 4 Geo. 4, c. 76. Stat. 6

Geo. 1, St. II. c. 6. Stat. 8 Geo. 1, & 7 Gul. 4, c. 85. Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 86.

Stat. 22 Geo. 2, c. 46, ss. 36, 37. Stat. 7 Gul. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 1. Stat. 7 Gul. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 22. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 72.

who, to avoid the said penalty of one hundred pounds, do substitute, and knowingly and wittingly suffer and permit, divers other ministers, great numbers of persons in their respective churches and chapels, publication of banns, or licences of marriage first had and obtained; and ministers so substituted, employed, permitted, and suffered to marry, have no benefices or settled habitations, and are poor and indigent, easily be discovered and convicted of the offences aforesaid: and ministers, being in prison for debt and otherwise, do marry in the many persons resorting thither for the purposes aforesaid, and in so lucre and gain to themselves; by all which means the duties and im- licences of marriage, as aforesaid, are greatly diminished and subverted, other great inconveniences do arise: for the remedying and preventing

Penalty on parsons marrying without banns
or licence;

"II. Be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after twentieth day of June, in the year of our lord one thousand six hundred and six, every parson, vicar, or curate, who shall marry any persons in or chapel, exempt or not exempt, or in any other place whatsoever, without publication of the banns of matrimony between the respective persons according to the statutes without licences for the said marriages first had and obtained, shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds.

and for permitting others
so to do.

"III. And for the more effectual preventing the abuses aforesaid, enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every parson, vicar, or curate, who shall substitute or employ, or knowingly and wittingly shall suffer any other minister to marry any persons in any church or chapel to such persons, or curate belonging or appertaining, without publication of banns of marriage first had and obtained, shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds; the aforesaid respective forfeitures to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his majesty's courts of record, without writ of habeas corpus, or protection of law, or any more than one imparlance allowed; one moiety thereof to his majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who shall inform or sue for the same.

Penalty on those married without licence
or banns.
See 26 Geo. 2,
c. 33, for

"IV. And, for the better ascertaining, levying, and collecting, the penalties on marriages and licences, as aforesaid; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety and six, every man so married without licence or publication of banns (1), as aforesaid, shall forfeit the sum of recovered, together with costs of suit, in manner as aforesaid, by any person shall inform or sue for the same; and likewise that every sexton, or parish

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 35.
making clan-

received, the spiritual court has a jurisdiction to proceed for a clandestine marriage. And, iii. Supposing they have a jurisdiction either way; whether that jurisdiction is away by the act of parliament, which acted the penalty of 10*l*.

As to the first of these, two things are possible: 1. Whether the laity are within the scope of those canons. 2. Whether there is proper authority to bind the laity, if they do extend to them.

As to the question, 'whether the law make them in;' those which any way touch this matter are the 62nd, 101st, 103rd, and 104th canons: in the four of which there are no words that affect the contracting. Indeed in the 104th words relating to the married persons they relate only to marriages under irregular licences, which is not

And therefore upon this point we are of opinion, that lay persons are not bound by the words of the Canons of 1603.

The next point is, whether the makers of the canons had a power to bind the laity. They were made by the bishops and convocation assembled, by virtue of a writ, and confirmed by his charter with great seal.

The general opinion has been, that these canons never received or confirmed in parliament, cannot bind the laity. And my friend, in his argument, seemed to be of opinion, that, by putting the case upon the foot of canon law; but as the other side argued on that side did not give way to be proper to settle it. And we are of opinion, that, proprio vigore, the canons of 1603 do not bind the laity: I say proprio vigore, because some of them are derogatory of the ancient canon law.

Those who look into Spelman's collection will find much matter in the ancient canons that may serve for illustration and example; but as those were often mixed with laws composed of the nobility, legation, and papal usurpation, little is to be said as to the merits of the question, whether the laity are bound or not.

The only proper way, therefore, is, to consider the question upon the foot of the constitution. No new law can be made here, but is the work, and has the consent, of the three estates of the realm: as declared in the Parliament Roll, 4 Hen. 2, No. 19. 12 Co. 74. 4 Inst. 1. They representing the whole realm, and being by representation a party. In making of canons, the royal assent is all that the legislature has in them: lords and commons are excluded, and are not represented. It was said indeed by Dr. Williams, that even in parliament there was no actual representation of all orders and degrees of men; there being more subjects than voters in elections, than who do vote. It does not make it cease to be a representation. It was impossible that all should be in the election; and therefore our constitution has fixed it in the more worthy, who have a right to bind the rest. The learned doctor indeed advanced a notion, 'that the parson represents the parish;' but how can that be, when we all know the parson is not elected by them? The writ is convocari facias totum clerum; and the premonition is, that archdeacons and deans shall come in person, and the rest by their representatives. 4 Inst. 382. These show plainly, that the clergy only are called, and that the proctors are chosen to represent the clergy only. Hence arises the distinction between canons made in ancient councils confirmed by the empire after it became Christian, and those made here. The Emperor, according to Justinian and the Digest, had a legislative power; and when they received his confirmation, they had their full authority. But that is not the case here: the crown has not the full legislative power; and it is therefore rightly said in Salk. (673,) 'The king's consent to a canon in re ecclesiastica makes it a law to bind the clergy, but not the laity,' and no one can say, that the consent of the people is included in the royal confirmation.

'Another argument is, 'that by our constitution taxes and new laws are co-extensive.' The parliament lay taxes on all the people; but the clergy never pretended to tax any but themselves. And it seems very absurd, that when they cannot raise money upon the laity, they should still have it in their power to enact new laws, whereby their liberty and property may be affected.

'In all the acts since the Reformation, for confirming forms of prayer, and other ecclesiastical constitutions, the preambles show, that the clergy in convocation were only considered as the propounders of them. It was said, that this did not give being to them as laws, to bind the laity; but was only to enforce them by the addition of civil penalties. But that is not the only reason, though it is one. The true use of these confirmations in parliament was the extension of them over the laity, who would otherwise not be bound. It has been said, 'that at least they should bind in re ecclesiastica,' but this proves a great deal too much. There are many things of an ecclesiastical nature, which no canon can touch; as the case of tithes, the degrees of consanguinity, and the operation of administrations: and if this argument would hold, they might overturn the common law as to the heirship of lands, and the division of personal estates, which would never be endured. These are matters that have always been regulated by the legislature: witness the statutes of 32 Hen. 8, c. 28 [ante 262]; 21 Hen. 8, c. 5 [ante 119]; and 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10 [ante 599]. If they were thought to have power in these matters, how came the bishops, at the time of making the Statute of Merton, c. 9 [ante 3], to apply for a declaration touching the legitimacy of children born before lawful marriage?

a conditio. And, after all, what is this more than a regulation of fees amongst themselves? 8 Co. 135 (a), is a report of the same case: and he says nothing of this. So that, at most, it is but a loose saying in an abridgment.

"In the statute law there is nothing express upon this point; but there are strong implications. The 25 Hen. 8, c. 19 [antè 150], empowers commissioners to inspect the canons; and in Rastal's statutes there are several acts subsequent for that purpose. And it is observable, that the statute of 25 Hen. 8 [antè 160], begins with the submission of the clergy in verbo sacerdotii; and though nothing is said as to the persons to be bound, yet it appears the clergy thought it proper to take along with them the consent of the laity, to abrogate and alter canons; and everybody must see, that if this authority had been executed, the system would have derived its binding force from the grantors.

"I come next to consider the judicial authorities. The first is the Prior of Leed's case, (20 Hen. 6, 12 (b); Brooke, Ordinary, 1,) where it is expressly laid down, that the ordinary has power to make holy-days, fasting-days, and constitutions provincial, de iure le clergy, mes nemy de iure le temporally.

"The next case, (Mich. 24 Edw. 4, 44 (b).) where though there is some difference in opinion upon the power of the convocation, yet as to the point now in question, it is agreed on both sides. In 5 Co. 32 (b), Candrie's case, my Lord Coke lays it down, that by general consent of the whole realm, canons may be made or altered.

"In Mo. 755; Plowd. 43; 2 Co. 37; the question proposed is, whether the deprivation of the puritan ministers was lawful: and the judges said it was, because the king had delegated them full power, as he might.

"That a parliamentary confirmation is necessary, see Carth. 485; Salk. 134. And I have seen two manuscript reports of that case in Carthew, by my Lord Raymond, (1 Raym. 447,) and Chief Justice Eyre, both of which agree with the report.

seems what is a law that bind the laity without it the contrary, in the very speaks of a canon as a parliament.

"And as the case in Vaughan says, though it is affirmed by parliament, yet which govern in ecclesiastical affairs that was only a dictum and was at the time expressed by Mr. Justice Tyrrell, in king and convocation with cannot make any canon bind the laity.

"Upon this state, there are arguments on each side of the question to see which preponderates; and I resolve all into the single Justice Vaughan, to which I rest, and lay it down as my opinion, that the Canons of prio vigore, bind the laity.

"The second point I propose was, whether laying abolished in 1603, the spiritual court is allowed, to proceed against a clandestine marriage. My opinion, that in this respect is well founded.

"It has been already received canons bind the laity, appears by our statute law, [antè 160], in the preamble c. 16 [antè 288], which of canons accustomed rests the ecclesiastical law. Hale, in a manuscript says it was first introduced and discipline allowed to, which introduced it, therefore only remains to the canons against clandestine been received or not. In 4, tit. 3, c. 3,) is one, which as appears by Limwood's hujusmodi contrahentes It was said that the

foresaid, shall forfeit the sum of five pounds, to be recovered with Stat. 7 & 8
 Gul. 3, c. 35.

whereas divers children who are born within this kingdom are not according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, and listened in private houses, nor are the parents of such children obliged mid act to give notice to their respective ministers, of the births of a; for want whereof an exact register of all persons born is not kept, reasons chargeable with the duties in the said act mentioned do thereby payment of the several sums due to his majesty, and charged upon them at, by reason of the births of such children: for remedy whereof be it the authority aforesaid, that from and after the four and twentieth day ch shall be in the year one thousand six hundred ninety and six, the Penalty on parents not giving notice

statute of Gul. 3, inflicted a upon the husband.

brings me to the third and last head to consider, which is, statute of 7 & 8 Gul. 3, has, by penalty, taken away the jurisspiritual court.

consider this, I would make has: i. That though this was time at first, yet it is continent laws, (the 8 & 9 Gul. 3, 8 Ann. c. 19, s. 36,) for nine-
 ii. That the penalty is only so that as to the woman, she remains subject to the ecclesi-
 tion.

all of opinion, that as to the jurisdiction was not taken entr. 41, it is held, that their was not taken away by the

So in 2 Lev. 222. Sir T.
 to teaching school. Indeed, there was a prohibition, upon mod nemo his puniri debet rem delicto. And that to be objection, if the penalty, and spiritual court, were eo nomine,
 the same.

a sort of middle case, where not given as the punishment
 but only to secure the payment duty. For it is introduced, 'and for the better collection, it is, therefore, a proceeding
 as upon the Statute of Arti-

tinger than the cases of fathers of bastards, on 18 Eliz. c. 3, a punishment for the act of yet the spiritual court prohibition for immorality.

jurisdiction punishes for the self, and the other for an in-upon the revenue.

it ordains the publication of it is confirmed by 1 Eliz. c. 2, 7, and the Act of Uniformity,
 c. 4 [ante 569]; the consequence is, that the Rubric binds

this a new point may arise,
 being the statute was a repeal jurisdiction, yet it can abrogate is confirmed by parliament.
 ly knows, a new penalty is no

repeal of a former, without express words of repeal: without these, both may stand, and the last be considered only as a further
 penalty.

"There is nothing of that in this statute,
 and therefore we may warrantably determine,
 that the 7 & 8 Gul. 3, has not abrogated the ancient jurisdiction in the case of a clandestine marriage.

"I have thus largely gone through the several questions which have arisen in this case, that as we are all sensible, the evil of clandestine marriages is a growing one, it may be clearly understood, upon what foot
 the remedy stands.

"And upon the whole we are of opinion, that there ought to go a consultation as to all the points of the suit below but one,
 which is the hour at which the marriage is alleged to have been had. Now, as the confining marriages to be between eight and twelve in the morning, is only a regulation introduced by the Canons of 1603, which we have determined do not bind in this case; it is of consequence, that the spiritual court be restrained from making that any ground of their proceedings; in this respect, therefore,
 the prohibition must stand, and a consultation must go for the rest."

(1) Costs:—After pronouncing this judgment, the plaintiff in the prohibition moved for costs, having prevailed in one point, and the statute of 8 & 9 Gul. 3, c. 11, s. 3, giving costs in all suits upon prohibitions to the plaintiff obtaining judgment, or any award of execution. And it was prayed, that they might be taxed from the time of the first motion, according to several determinations:
 and this last was acquiesced in, if the court should be of opinion for costs; as to which it was said, that the hour was not the "git" of the proceedings in the spiritual court, but only a circumstance amongst others to prove it a clandestine marriage; and that it would be very hard, that they who had prevailed upon the merits, should pay costs. Sed per cu- riam, "the words of the act are not to be got over, which give costs to the plaintiff, if he obtains any judgment: and this matter was under consideration in the House of Lords in Dr. Bentley's case, where the prohibition stood as to some articles, and there went a consultation for the rest; to be sure it will be considered in the quantum, but we cannot deny costs."

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 35.
in five days
after the birth of a child.

Distinct registers to be kept of children not christened, and parents to pay 6d. for registering.

parents of every child, which shall at any time be born after the said day and reg. and during the continuance of the said acts, or one of them, shall within five days after such birth give notice to the respective rector, vicar, curate, or clerk of the parish or place where such child was born, of the day of the birth of every such child: and in case any parent shall neglect to give such notice as aforesaid, he or she shall forfeit the sum of forty shillings, one moiety thereof to the king's majesty and the other moiety to the informer; the which said rector, vicar, curate, or clerk of the parish, or their substitutes, are hereby required, during the continuance of the said act, to take an exact and true account, and keep a distinct register of all and every person or persons so born in his or their respective parishes or parishes, and not christened; for doing which the parents of such child, or one of them shall pay to every such parson, rector, vicar, curate, or clerk of the parish, the sum of sixpence; and if any such rector, vicar, curate, parson, or minister, shall refuse or neglect to keep a true register thereof, as before is directed, such parson or minister, so offending, shall forfeit the sum of forty shillings, to be recovered by such persons, and in such manner, as in the said recited act the forfeitures there mentioned are appointed to be recovered; anything in the said law contained to the contrary notwithstanding."

[Expired.]

"Commissioners to administer oaths to the collectors. Parsons to produce once a year, to the commissioners, such licences, certificates, and registers. 4 Ann. 12, § 10, indemnifies omissions in this case. Parsons to give notice, within five days, of persons buried in their parishes."

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 37.

XXXII. STAT. 7 & 8 GULIELMI 3, c. 37. A.D. 1689.

"An Act for the Encouragement of Charitable Gifts and Dispositions."

9 Geo. 2, c. 36.

"Whereas it would be a great hindrance to learning, and other good and charitable works, if persons well inclined may not be permitted to found colleges and schools for encouragement of learning, or to augment the revenues of colleges and schools already founded, by granting lands, tenements, rents, or other hereditaments to such colleges or schools, or to grant lands or other hereditaments, to any bodies politic or incorporated now in being, or hereafter to be incorporated, for other good and public uses; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the king, our most gracious sovereign lord, and for his heirs and successors, when and as often, and in such cases as his majesty, his heirs or successors, shall think fit, to grant to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, their heirs and successors, licence to alienate in mortmain, and also to purchase, acquire, take, and hold in mortmain (1), in per-

The king may grant licences
to alien, or purchase in mortmain.

(1) Hold in mortmain:—The pretended power of suspending statutes by the royal authority, having, at the time of the Revolution, been declared illegal, and the interest of merne lords having at length been reduced almost to a shadow, it was thought prudent to confirm, by act of parliament, the king's power of granting licences in mortmain, in order, on the one hand, to prevent such licences from being confounded with a dispensation; and on the other, to remove all doubts, that might have been entertained of their validity.

Accordingly, it was enacted by Stat. 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 37, for the purpose of encouraging learning, and enabling such as should be so disposed, the more easily to endow new colleges and schools, or to increase the revenues of such as were already endowed, that the king, his heirs and successors, might grant, in such cases as they thought proper, to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, their heirs and successors, licence to alienate in mortmain, and also to purchase, acquire, take, or hold in mortmain, in perpetuity or otherwise, of lands, tenements, rents, or hereditaments, whatever, of whomsoever the same should be holden; and that no forfeiture should be carried by reason of such alienation or disposition.

This statute makes no reference to the writ of ad quod damnum, which formerly was thought an essential preliminary to a licence, in order that the king might see what prejudice would arise to himself or others, from granting it. Since the statute, writs of ad quod damnum, proceeding from the crown to alien or mortmain have not been usual, (the last being in 1711;) but in modern acts of parliament enabling corporations to hold lands, there is fully or otherwise, any lands, tenements, rents, or hereditaments whatsoever, of whomsoever the same shall be holden.

"II. And it is hereby declared, that lands, tenements, rents, or hereditaments, so aliened, or acquired and licensed, shall not be subject to any forfeiture, for or by reason of such alienation or acquisition."

Sec 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, restraining gifts in mortmain by will.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 37.

Lands so aliened not subject to forfeiture.

XXXIII. STAT. 7 & 8 GULIELMI 3, c. 38. A.D. 1696.

"An Act to take away the Custom of Wales, which hinders Persons from disposing of their Personal Estates by their Wills."

"Whereas in several counties and places within the principality of Wales, and Marches thereof, the widows and younger children of persons dying inhabitants therein, have often claimed and pretended to be entitled to a part of the goods and chattels of their late husbands or fathers, called her and their reasonable part, by virtue or colour of a custom or other usage within the said principality and Marches thereof, notwithstanding any disposition of the same by their husbands' and fathers' last wills and testaments, or by deed in their lives' time, and notwithstanding a competent jointure, according to the agreement made for the livelihood of the said widows by their husbands, which have often occasioned great troubles, disputes, and expenses, about and concerning such custom and usage, whereby many persons have been and are disabled from making sufficient provision for their families, younger children, and relations, and great disputes, troubles, and expenses have often happened concerning the same, to the great damage or ruin of many: for remedy whereof, and for preventing all questions, doubts, and difficulties, for the future, touching the said custom and usage, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 38.

Stat. Wallia,
12 Edw. 1.
27 Hen. 8.
c. 26.
34 & 35 Hen.
8, c. 26.
1 Edw. 6,
c. 10.
1 & 2 P. &
M. c. 15.
5 Eliz. cc. 25
& 28.
18 Eliz. c. 8.
27 Eliz. c. 9.
10 Car. 2, c. 5.
1 G. & M.
St. 1. c. 27.
5 G. & M.
c. 4.

usually a dispensation with that writ, as well as with the statutes of mortmain.

Thus, a dispensing power is given to renew lands without any licence of mortmain, or writ of ad quod damnum, by Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 11, s. 4, (authorizing gifts of land to the governors of Queen Anne's bounty;) by Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 107, Stat. 55 Geo. 3,
c. 147, Stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 66, (permitting corporations to sell lands and houses for parsonages and glebe;) by Stat. 43 Geo. 3,
c. 108, Stat. 51 Geo. 3, c. 115, (for building churches;) by Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 25, (allowing gifts of land to Greenwich Hospital;) and by Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 60, (for church purposes.)

None of the statutes of mortmain limit the extent to which a corporation may purchase lands; but the object of such statutes is to prevent a corporation from making any purchase without previous licence: with the King's licence, corporations may, in general, purchase lands to any extent they please;
but when corporations are erected by act of parliament, for some particular purpose, it is frequently thought prudent to prohibit them from purchasing lands beyond a certain
value.

The statutes of mortmain make no mention of personal property, and therefore the powers of corporations aggregate, in general,
to take such property, remains unlimited;
but many particular corporations, established by act of parliament for some particular purpose, are limited in this respect, as well as in their power to purchase lands.

But all corporations, except expressly restrained, have an unlimited control over their respective properties, and may alienate in fee, or make what estates they please for years, for life, or in tail, as fully as any individual may do with respect to his own property. Smith v. Barrett, 1 Sid. 162.
1 Kyd on Corporations, 108.

Charters of incorporation usually contain a clause, declaring, that the intended corporation shall be a body politic and corporate,
and, by the particular name given to it,
"have perpetual succession; and for ever thereafter be able and capable in the law, and have power to purchase, receive, and possess any goods and chattels whatsoever, and (notwithstanding the statutes of mortmain,) to purchase, hold, and enjoy, to them and their successors, any lands, tenements, and hereditaments whatsoever, not exceeding, at the time or times of purchasing such lands, tenements, and hereditaments respectively, the yearly value, at a rack rent, of [a certain sum specified] in the whole, without incurring the penalties or forfeitures of the Statute of Mortmain, or any of them."

The mode of obtaining a licence in mortmain is by petition to the queen, which will be referred to the attorney and solicitor-general, and upon the report of those officers,
the prayer of the petition will either be acquiesced in, or rejected, and if a licence be given, it will not be determined by the death of the sovereign who granted it. Co. Lit.
52 (b). Fitz. N. B. 513 (G). Wroth's (Sir Thomas) case, Plowd. 457.

STAT. 7 & 8
GUL. 3, c. 38.
Inhabitants of Wales may,
for the future,
dispose of their goods and chattels by will, &c.

the authority of the same, that from and after the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety-six, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, inhabiting or residing, or who shall have any goods or chattels within the principality of Wales, or marches thereof, by their last wills and testaments to give, bequeath, and dispose of, all and singular their goods, chattels, debts, and other personal estate, to their executor or executors, or to such other person or persons as the said testator or testators shall think fit, in as large and ample manner as by the laws and statutes of this realm any person or persons may give and dispose of the same, within any part of the province of Canterbury, or elsewhere; and that from and after the said twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety-six, the widows, children, and other the kindred of such testator or testators, shall be barred to claim or demand any part of the goods, chattels, or other personal estate of such testator or testators, in any other manner than as by the said last wills and testaments is limited and appointed; any law, statute, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Not to take away the right
of women already married, &c.

"II. Provided always, that nothing in this act contained shall extend to take away any right or title, which any woman now married, or younger children now born, may have to the reasonable part of their husbands' or fathers' estate, by virtue or colour of the said custom or usage."

STAT. 8 & 9
GUL. 3, c. 11.

XXXIV. STAT. 8 & 9 GULIELMI 3, c. 11(1). A.D. 1697.

"An Act for the better preventing Frivolous and Vexatious Suits."

Plaintiff obtaining judgment on an action of waste,
&c. to recover
costs.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the said five and twentieth day of March, in all actions of waste, and actions of debt upon the statute, for not setting forth of tithes, wherein the value or damage found by the jury shall not exceed the sum of twenty shillings, and in all suits upon any writ or writs of scire facias, and suits upon prohibition, the plaintiff obtaining judgment, or any award of execution after plea pleaded a demurrer joined therein, shall likewise recover his costs of suit; and if the plaintiff shall become nonsuit, or suffer a discontinuance, or a verdict shall pass against him, the defendant shall recover his costs, and have execution for the same in the manner as aforesaid."

STAT. 8 & 9
GUL. 3, c. 14.

XXXV. STAT. 8 & 9 GULIELMI 3, c. 14. A.D. 1697.

"An Act for the completing the building and adorning the Cathedral Church of Saint Paul, London, and for repairing the Collegiate Church of Saint Paul, Westminster."

STAT. 9 GUL.
3, c. 1. [IR.]

XXXVI. STAT. 9 GULIELMI 3, c. 1(2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1697

"An Act for banishing all Papists exercising any Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, and all Regulars of the Popish Clergy, out of this Kingdom."

[The mischiefs which the legislature were desirous of preventing by the statute, may be ascertained from the language of the first section, which is as follows:]

Mischief occasioned by the great number of Romish clergy in this kingdom,
settling in fraternities contrary to law,

"Whereas it is notoriously known, that the late rebellions in this kingdom have been contrived, promoted, and carried on by popish archbishops, bishops, jesuits, and other ecclesiastical persons of the Romish clergy; and furthermore, that the peace and public safety of this kingdom is in danger, by the great number of the said archbishops, bishops, jesuits, friars, and other regular Romish clergy now residing here, and settling in fraternities and societies, contrary to law, and to the great impoverishing of many of his majesty's subjects of this kingdom, who are

(1) Vide Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 21. Free Craft, Ibid. 1062. Gegge v. Jones, Ibid. (D. D.) v. Burgoyne, 6 B. & C. 538. Bate 1149.
v. Hodgetts, 1 Bing. 182. Haughton (Sir Harry) v. Starkey, Str. 82. Middleton v. Stat. 5 Geo. 4, c. 25.

(2) This statute was repealed in part by forced to maintain and support them; which said Romish clergy do not only endeavour to withdraw his majesty's subjects from their obedience, but do daily stir up, and move sedition and rebellion, to the great hazard of the ruin and desolation of this kingdom: for the prevention of all which mischiefs, his majesty is graciously pleased that it be enacted, and be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that all popish archbishops, bishops, vicars-general, deans, jesuits, monks, friars, and all other regular popish clergy, and all papists exercising any ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall depart out of this kingdom before the first day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety-eight; and if any of the said ecclesiastical persons shall be at any time after the said first day of May within this kingdom, they, and every of them, shall suffer imprisonment, and remain in prison, without bail or mainprize, till he or they shall be transported beyond seas, out of his majesty's dominions, wherever his majesty, his heirs or successors, or the chief governor or governors of this kingdom, for the time being, shall think fit; and if any person so transported shall return again into this kingdom, they, and every of them, shall be guilty of high treason; and every person so offending shall for his offence be adjudged a traitor, and shall suffer, lose, and forfeit, as in case of high treason."

STAT. 9 GUL.
3, c. 1. [1a.]
promoting rebellion,
impoverishing
the subject.

All popish
ecclesiastics
to depart before 1st of May,
1698, on pain
of imprisonment till transportation.
2 Ann. c. 3.
2 Ann. c. 6.
2 Ann. c. 7.
4 Ann. c. 2.
8 Ann. c. 3.
Returning
afterwards,
high treason.

XXXVII. STAT. 9 GULIELMI 3, c. 3(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1697.

"An Act to prevent Protestants intermarrying with Papists."

STAT. 9 GUL.
3, c. 3. [1a.]

XXXVIII. STAT. 9 & 10 GULIELMI 3, c. 32(2). A.D. 1698.

"An Act for the more effectual suppressing of Blasphemy and Profaneness(3)."

STAT. 9 & 10
GUL. 3, c. 32.

"Whereas many persons have of late years openly avowed and published many blasphemous and impious opinions, contrary to the doctrines and principles of the Christian religion, greatly tending to the dishonour of Almighty God, and may

(1) Vide Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 102.

(2) This statute was partly repealed by Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 160.

A person offending under Stat. 9 & 10 Gul. 3, c. 32, was held to be also indictable at common law. Rex v. Woolston, Str. 934. Fitzg. 64. This doctrine was considered in Rex v. Carlile, (3 B. & A. 161,) where a motion was made in arrest of judgment, after conviction on an information for a blasphemous libel, on the ground, that this statute had put an end to the common law offence: but the court considered, that the provisions of this statute were cumulative.

The provisions contained in Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 18, and Stat. 9 & 10 Gul. 3, c. 32, respecting the denial of the Trinity, were repealed by Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 160, but such statute did not alter the common law with respect to impugning the doctrine of the Trinity,—it only removed the penalties imposed on persons denying such doctrines by Stat. 9 & 10 Gul. 3, c. 32, and extended to such persons the benefits conferred on all other protestant dissenters by Stat. 1 G. & M. c. 18 (ante 633).

(3) Blasphemy and Profaneness.—Upon the trial of an information against the defendant for uttering expressions grossly blasphemous, Chief Justice Hale observed, "that such kind of wicked blasphemous words, were not only an offence to God and religion, but a crime against the laws, state, and government, and therefore punishable in the court of King's Bench: for to say, religion is a cheat, is to dissolve all those obligations whereby civil societies are preserved; and that Christianity is parcel of the laws of England, and therefore to reproach the Christian religion, is to speak in subversion of the law." Rex v. Taylor, Vent. 293. 3 Keb. 607. In Rex v. Waddington, (1 B. & C. 26,) where a publication stated, that Jesus Christ was an impostor, a murderer in principle, and a fanatic, a jurymen asked, whether a work denying the divinity of our Saviour was a libel; when Chief Justice Abbott answered, that "any publication in which our Saviour was spoken of in the language used in the publication for which the defendant was prosecuted, was a libel;" and the defendant was found guilty. Upon a motion for a new trial, on the ground that this was a wrong answer, the court held, that the answer was right, and refused the rule.

In a case where the defendant had been convicted for publishing several blasphemous libels, in which the miracles of our Saviour were turned into ridicule and contempt, and his life and conversation calumniated, it was moved, in arrest of judgment, that this was not an offence within the cognizance of the temporal courts at common law: but the court would not suffer the point to be argued, saying, that the Christian religion, so established in this kingdom, is part of the

STAT. 9 & 10
GUL. 3, c. 32.

Persons denying the Trinity, &c.
being con-

prove destructive to the peace and welfare of this kingdom: wherefore, for the more effectual suppressing of the said detestable crimes, be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person or persons, having been educated in, or at any time having made profession of the Christian religion within this realm, shall by writing, printing, teaching, or advised speaking, deny any one of law; and, therefore, that whatever derided Christianity derided the law, and consequently must be an offence against the law. Rex v. Woolston, Barnard. 162. Str. 834. Fitzg. 64. It was also moved in arrest of judgment, that as the intent of the book was only to show, that the miracles of Jesus Christ were not to be taken in their literal sense, it could not be considered as attacking Christianity in general, but only as striking against one received proof of his being the Messiah; to which the court said, that the attacking Christianity in the way in which it was attacked in this publication was destroying the very foundation of it; and that, though there were professions in the book that its design was to establish Christianity upon a true bottom, by considering these narrations in Scripture as emblematical and prophetic, yet that such professions were not to be credited, and that the rule is, allegatio contra factum non est admittenda. But the court also said, that though to write against Christianity in general is clearly an offence at common law, they laid a stress upon the word general, and did not intend to include disputes between learned men upon particular controverted points; and, in delivering the judgment of the court, Lord Raymond said, "I would have it taken notice of, that we do not meddle with any differences of opinion, and that we interpose only, where the very root of Christianity itself is struck at." Ibid. Fitzg. 66.

The doctrine of the Christian religion constituting part of the law of the land, was recognised in a later case, where the judgment of the court of King's Bench was pronounced upon a person convicted of having published a very impious and blasphemous libel, called Paine's Age of Reason. This libel was of the worst kind, attacking the truth of the Old and New Testaments; arguing that there was no genuine revelation of the will of God existing in the world; and that reason was the only true faith which laid any obligations on the conduct of mankind. In other respects also, it ridiculed and vilified the prophets, our Saviour, his disciples, and the sacred Scriptures. Mr. Justice Ashhurst said, "that although the Almighty did not require the aid of human tribunals to vindicate His precepts, it was nevertheless fit to show our abhorrence of such wicked doctrines, as were not only an offence against God, but against all law and government, from their direct tendency to dissolve all the bonds and obligations of civil society; and that it was upon this ground, that the Christian religion constituted part of the law of the land. That if the name of our Redeemer was suffered to be traduced, and his holy religion treated with contempt, the solemnity of an oath, on which the administration of justice depended, would be destroyed, and the law be stripped of one of its principal sanctions, the dread of severe punishments." Rex v. Williams, et al. 1 Russell on Crimes by Graves, 232. Vide etiam Rex v. Carlile, 3 B. & A. 182 and cases therein cited.

Contumely and contempt are what no establishment can tolerate; but, on the other hand, it would not be proper to lay any restraint upon rational and dispassionate discussions of the rectitude and propriety of the established mode of worship. 4 Black. 102. by Chitty, 51. It may not, however, be going too far to infer, from the principles and decisions, that no author or preacher who carelessly and conscientiously promulgates the opinions with whose truth he is impressed, for the benefit of others, is, for so doing, punishable as a criminal; but a malicious and dangerous intention is in such case the legal boundary between right and wrong, and that if it can be collected, from the excessive levity with which so serious a subject is treated, or from other circumstances, that the act of the party was malicious, then since the law has no means of distinguishing between different degrees of evil tendency, if the matter published contain any such tendency, the publisher becomes amenable to justice. 2 Starkie on Libel, 146.

Where a defendant was charged with publishing a libel upon a religious order, consisting of females, professing the Roman Catholic faith, called the Scorton Nunnery. Mr. Baron Alderson observed, a person may, without being liable to prosecution for it, attack Judaism or Mahomedanism, or even any sect of the Christian religion, save the established religion of the country; and the only reason why the latter is in a different situation from the other, is because it is the form established by law, and is therefore a part of the constitution of the country. For the same reason, any general attack on Christianity is the subject of a criminal prosecution, because Christianity is the established religion of the country. Any person has a right to entertain his opinions, to express them, to discuss the subject of the Roman Catholic religion, and its institutions, but he has no right, in so doing, to attack the character of individuals. Gathercole's case, 3 Leach C. C. 237.

As to the extent of this offence, and the nature and certainty of the words, it appears to be immaterial whether the publication is oral or written; though the communicating is a necessary matter to print or writing, and thereby affording it a wider circulation, would undoubtedly be considered as an aggravation, and affect the measure of punishment.

the persons in the Holy Trinity to be God, or shall assert or maintain there are more Gods than one, or shall deny the Christian religion to be true, or the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be of divine authority, and shall, upon indictment or information in any of his majesty's courts at Westminster, or at the assizes, be thereof lawfully convicted by the oath of two or more credible witnesses; such person or persons for the first offence shall be adjudged incapable and disabled in law, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, to have or enjoy any office or offices, employment or employments, ecclesiastical, civil, or military, or any part in them, or any profit or advantage appertaining to them, or any of them: and if any person or persons so convicted as aforesaid, shall, at the time of his or their conviction, enjoy or possess any office, place, or employment, such office, place, or employment, shall be void, and is hereby declared void: and if such person or persons shall be a second time lawfully convicted as aforesaid, of all or any the aforesaid crime or crimes, that then he or they shall from thenceforth be disabled to sue, prosecute, plead, or use, any action or information in any court of law or equity, or to be guardian of any child, or executor or administrator of any person, or capable of any legacy or deed of gift, or to bear any office, civil or military, or benefice ecclesiastical, for ever within this realm, and shall also suffer imprisonment for the space of three years, without bail or mainprize, from the time of such conviction.

"II. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person shall be prosecuted by virtue of this act, for any words spoken, unless the information of such words shall be given upon oath before one or more justice or justices of the peace, within four days after such words spoken, and the prosecution of such offence be within three months after such information.

"III. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any person or persons, convicted of all or any of the aforesaid crime or crimes, in manner aforesaid, shall, for the first offence, (upon his, her, or their acknowledgment and renunciation of such offence or erroneous opinions, in the same court where such person or persons was or were convicted, as aforesaid, within the space of four months after his, her, or their conviction,) be discharged from all penalties and disabilities incurred by such conviction; anything in this act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 9 & 10
GUL. 3, c. 32.
victed thereof,
disabled to
hold any office,
&c.

Further disabilities if a second time convicted thereof.

Limitation of prosecutions.

Offenders on renouncing
their opinions,
in four months
after conviction, shall be discharged
from penalty,
&c.

XXXIX. STAT. 9 & 10 GULIELMI 3, c. 35 (1). A.D. 1698.

"An Act for preventing Frauds and Abuses in the charging, collecting, and paying of the Duties upon Marriages, Births, Burials, Bachelors, and Widows."

STAT. 9 & 10
GUL. 3, c. 35.

XL. STAT. 10 GULIELMI 3, c. 6 (2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1698.

"An Act to encourage the building of Houses, and making other Improvements on Church Lands, and to prevent Dilapidations."

STAT. 10 GUL.
3, c. 6. [Ire.]

"Forasmuch as the mansion-houses of several archbishops, bishops, and other ecclesiastical persons, have been ruined and destroyed by the frequent wars and rebellions that have happened in this kingdom, whereby residence is become very difficult, and is like to continue so, unless due encouragement be given them to rebuild and repair their former houses, and to erect new houses, where it shall be convenient, and to keep them in good repair after they are built: be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that every archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical person whatsoever, that heretofore did since the year one thousand six hundred and ninety, or shall hereafter at any time, make, build, erect, add to,

8 Geo. 1, c. 11.
8 Geo. 1, c. 12.
12 Geo. 1, c. 10.
1 Geo. 2, c. 15.
9 Geo. 2, c. 13.
15 Geo. 2, c. 5.
17 Geo. 2, c. 8.
Mansion houses of
ecclesiastical persons destroyed by frequent wars.
Residence

(1) Expired. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 43. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 58.
(2) Vide Stat. 15 Geo. 2, c. 5. (1.) Stat. Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 67. Stat. 3 & 4 Gul.
7 Geo. 3, c. 9. (1.) Stat. 11 & 12 Geo. 3, 4, c. 37. Stat. 4 & 5 Gul. 4, c. 90. Stat.
6. 17. (1.) Stat. 40 Geo. 3, c. 82. (1.) Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 99. Stat. 6 & 7 Vict. c. 57.

STAT. 10 GUL.
3, c. 6. [1r.]

thereby become difficult, unless encouraged to rebuild.

Ecclesiastical
persons building or making necessary improvements on church lands shall have from next successor
two-thirds (necessary annual repairs
excepted).

Altered by 12
Geo. 1. c. 10.

Ascertained by certificate of chief governors
in case of an archbishop, &c.
Successor paying said two-thirds shall receive a moiety from
next successor.
Said sums to be paid on removal by four half-yearly payments;
by two in case of death. To be or repair any house, out-house, garden, orchard, or any other necessary improvement on his demesne, glebe, or mensal land, or in any other lands in his possession belonging to his see or church, that shall be certified in the manner hereafter mentioned in like cases to be fit and convenient, for the residence and habitation of him and his successors, which from thenceforth shall be deemed and taken to be part of the demesne, glebe, or mensal land of such see, dignity or benefice, and have and receive from his next and immediate successor, his executors or administrators respectively, two thirds of the sum or sums really and truly expended and laid out in such buildings, additions, repairs, and improvements, (necessary annual reparations only excepted,) which sum or sums shall be finally settled and ascertained by certificate under the hand and seal of the chief governor or governors for the time being, in the case of an archbishop, and of the archbishop of the province in the case of a bishop, and by like certificate of the bishop of the respective diocese in all other cases; and such successor as aforesaid, having paid the two thirds of the sum or sums certified as aforesaid, shall and may receive the moiety thereof; that is, one third of his first disbursement, from his next successor; which said sums shall be paid in all cases of removal or translation by four equal half-yearly payments, to be accounted from such removal or translation, and in case of death, by two equal half-yearly payments, to be accounted from the day of such death, and shall and may be recovered by the party who ought to receive the same, his executors or administrators, either by distress on any lands or tenements of such archbishopric, bishopric, living, or benefice, belonging to the successor hereby obliged to pay the same, or by sequestration of one third of the rents and profits of such see or benefice, which sequestration is to be made and granted by the chief governor or governors of this kingdom for the time being, in case of an archbishop, and by the archbishop of the province in case of a bishop, and by the bishop of the diocese in all other cases, who are hereby respectively required to make and grant the same, or by action of debt in any of his Majesty's courts of record in this kingdom, at the election of the party who sues for the same.

to be recovered by distress, or sequestration of a moiety, or by debt.

Ecclesiastical
persons may
with approbation purchase
in their diocese houses, &c. or lands fit for building for perpetual residence, to be part of their demesne, unalienable.

To be certified,
and repaid by successor, as before.

Bishop of Limerick may convey his house to use of him and his successors.
To be paid by successor as
before.

"II. And because it may happen that more convenient houses, or more commodious situations, may be found for the residence of some archbishops, bishops, and other ecclesiastical persons, than do yet belong to them; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful to and for any archbishop, by and with the approbation of the chief governor or governors of the kingdom for the time being, and for any bishop, by and with the approbation of the archbishop of his province, and for any other ecclesiastical person, by and with the consent of the bishop of his diocese, certified in writing under their respective hands and seals, to purchase to them and their successors respectively, within their respective diocese, houses already built, with conveniences thereunto belonging or lands and tenements fit for such buildings and conveniences, for the habitation and residence of them and their successors for ever, thenceforth to be part of the demesne, glebe, or mensal land respectively, unalienable, and not to be let or disposed of to any other use whatsoever; and that the purchase money for the same, and the charges and expense of buildings, additions, and repairs as aforesaid, being ascertained and certified as aforesaid, shall be repaid, as to two thirds thereof, to the next immediate successor, who shall have and receive from his next successor one moiety or half of what he pays, in like manner and with like remedy as aforesaid.

"III. And that it shall and may be lawful, to and for Thomas, Lord Bishop of Limerick, to convey his dwelling-house in Limerick with the appurtenances to the use of him and his successors, bishops of Limerick; and that in such conveyance shall be paid for his disbursements, in purchasing, building, improving and repairing the same, being first certified and ascertained as aforesaid, as to two thirds thereof, by his next immediate successor, who shall likewise have one moiety or half of his payment from his next successor, in like manner and with like remedy as aforesaid.

IV. Provided nevertheless, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the Lord Bishop of Elphin, for the being, to remove the timber and other materials from Elphin, to any other of the lands belonging to that see within his diocese and in his possession, he or they, with the approbation of the archbishop of the province, certified writing under his hand and seal, shall think fit, to build a manse house for the use of that see, pursuant to this act.

V. And that part of the lands of Magherilin, Killoglan, Ballymagin, and Mac Gingan, lying and being in the county of Down, and diocese of Dromore, containing about fifty-five Irish acres belonging to the said see, and now in possession of Tobias, lord bishop thereof, and by him purchased from the former bishop, and the house built thereon by him, with the out-houses and appurtenances, be ever hereafter added to the demesnes of the said bishopric of Dromore, and for ever deemed, reputed, and taken to be the manse house, and part of the lands of that see; and that the said Tobias, lord bishop of Dromore, his heirs and administrators, shall be repaid two third parts of the charge of purchasing the said leases, and making and erecting the buildings, plantations, and improvements thereon, the same being first ascertained by certificate of the archbishop of the province under his hand and seal as aforesaid, by his next and immediate successor, who shall likewise receive one moiety thereof from his next successor, in like manner and with like remedy as aforesaid.

VI. And for preventing dilapidations for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical person, or his heirs, shall suffer or permit his or their mansion house, or any or either of the buildings, out-houses, gardens, orchards, or other improvements, that now are or hereafter shall be built, made, or erected on their respective lands, glebes, or mensal lands, to decay, go to ruin, or be out of repair, that his next and immediate successor or successors shall and may commence his or their suit in the ecclesiastical court, against such archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical person, his or their executors or administrators, and have the full benefit of the ecclesiastical laws now in force in this kingdom in that behalf; or if they or their election may recover by action of debt against such archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical person, his or their executors or administrators, in his or their majesty's courts of record at Dublin, such sum or sums as shall be sufficient to put such houses and improvements in such good repair as they were in at the time during the incumbency of his or their predecessor, so suffering or permitting the same to go to ruin and decay; which sum or sums of money, so recovered, levied, and paid to such successor or successors, shall forthwith be laid out and expended in the amendment and reparation of the respective houses and improvements, for the which the same shall be recovered as aforesaid, and in satisfaction thereof, by the space of six months after recovery and payment as aforesaid, the archbishopric, bishopric, or other ecclesiastical living, or benefice of such ecclesiastical person, shall be sequestered in such manner and by such persons as is herein expressed, until such ecclesiastical person shall expend and lay out the said sums, so recovered and paid as aforesaid, in the reparation and amendment of the respective houses and improvements as aforesaid: and if the archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical person, so recovering as aforesaid, shall happen to die before the sum recovered and paid to him be laid out in reparation and amendment as aforesaid, that then his next and immediate successor or successors shall recover the sum, so recovered and paid as aforesaid, by action of debt in any of his or their majesty's courts of record at Dublin; unless such executors or administrators do voluntarily and without suit pay the same to such successor or successors, who is to expend and lay out the same in manner aforesaid, and under the penalties and forfeitures as aforesaid: and if any archbishop, bishop, or other ecclesiastical person, that already hath or hereafter shall suffer dilapidations or decay in his manse house or improvements, contrary to this act, shall hereafter by any deed, devise, conveyance, grant, lease, bequest, colourable sale, or gift

STAT. 10 GUL.
3, c. 6. [Ir.]

Bishop of Elphin, with approbation of archbishop,
may remove timber to build a manse house.

Lands purchased by Bishop of Dromore, and house built thereon, added
to the see.
Repaid by successor, as before.

Ecclesiastical
persons suffering mansion house or improvements to decay, successor may sue them, their executors, &c.
in ecclesiastical
court.

Or recover by action of debt,
sufficient to put into such good repair as at any time during incumbency of predecessor.

In default of
so laying out
the sum recovered in six months, the benefice to be sequestered.

If the person
so recovering
dies before the sum laid out,
successor to recover double from his executors, &c. by action of debt,
unless they voluntarily pay.
Successor to lay out the same under like penalty.

STAT. 10 GUL.
3, c. 6. [1r.]
Colourable
conveyances
of personal estate to defraud successor
of said remedy,
void.
Eng. 13 Eliz.
c. 10.

Leases, aliena-
tions, &c. of glebes for more than one year,
void.

Certificates required by this act shall be
first entered in registry of the diocese.
Exemplifica-
tion thereof evidence where original cannot be had.

Church of Kiltorke, in Leitrim, shall be built at the parish charge
in Carrick-Drumruske, on land set apart
by Sir George St. George, and be the parish church.

(without full consideration) of his personal estate, or any part thereof, with intent to defraud his successor of the remedy intended him by this act; that all such deeds, devises, conveyances, grants, leases, bequests, sales, and gifts, shall be null and void, and of none effect, against such successor or successors; any former act, law, matter or thing, to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VII. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the first day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety and eight, it shall not be lawful for any rector, vicar, curate, or incumbent, or other ecclesiastical person whatsoever, having a glebe fit and convenient to be built and improved upon for the habitation and residence of him and his successors, or whereon a manse house is already built, or shall hereafter be built, or which shall lie so near or contiguous to such house so built or to be built, as to be conveniently made use of for the same, to alien, set, let, or demise such glebe or any part thereof, to any person or persons whatsoever, for any longer term than one year from the making thereof, in possession, and not in reversion; that all alienations and leases, or contracts, or agreements for leases of such glebe, or any part thereof, for more than one year as aforesaid, shall be null and void to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

"VIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and singular the certificate and certificates, by this act required to be made in the several cases before mentioned, shall be entered at large in the registry of such diocese, to which the same relate, before any benefit or advantage to be made thereof; and that the exemplification of such certificate or certificates, so registered and entered as aforesaid, under the hand and seal of the archbishop or bishop of the said diocese, shall be as good and effectual in the law to all the intents and purposes of this act, to be produced at any trial at law or otherwise, as the original would have been, in case the said original shall at any time happen to be lost or mislaid, or so detained, that the party concerned cannot have the same to produce and make use of as aforesaid.

"IX. And whereas the ancient parish church of the parish of Kiltorke, in the barony of Leitrim, in the county of Leitrim, is situated in the most uninhabited part of the said parish, remote from any of the protestant inhabitants of the said parish: and whereas Carrick-Drumruske, in the said parish and barony, is an English corporation, and wholly inhabited by protestants, and is therefore convenient for the situation of the said parish church: be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said parish church shall and may be built at the charges of the said parish, in the town of Carrick-Drumruske aforesaid, in some convenient place in the said town to be set apart for that purpose by Sir George St. George, of Hedford, baronet; and that the said church so to be built, and no other, shall, from the time of its being so built, be and be deemed to be the parish church of the said parish of Kiltorke to all intents and purposes, and the land, to be set apart for the said church and church-yard thereof, shall be and appertain for ever to the said church, freed and discharged of and from all claims, demands, and estates of the said Sir George St. George, and of any person or persons whatsoever claiming or deriving from, by, or under him the said Sir George St. George, or under Sir Oliver St. George, late of Hedford, baronet deceased."

STAT. 10 & 11
GUL. 3, c. 15.

XLI. STAT. 10 & 11 GULIELMI 3, c. 15. A.D. 1600.

"An Act for continuing the Act [Stat. 7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 6] for the more Recovery of Small Tithes [for seven years]."

STAT. 10 & 11
GUL. 3, c. 16.

XLII. STAT. 10 & 11 GULIELMI 3, c. 16. A.D. 1621.

"An Act to enable posthumous Children to take Estates, as if born in the Fathers' Lifetime."

"Whereas it often happens, that by marriage and other settlements, estates are limited in remainder to the use of the sons and daughters, the issue of such persons ge, with remainders over, without limiting an estate to trustees to preserve the contingent remainders limited to such sons and daughters, by which means such sons and daughters, if they happen to be born after the decease of their father, are in danger to be defeated of their remainder by the next in remainder after them, if left unprovided for by such settlements, contrary to the intent of the parties who made those settlements; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that where any estate already is or shall hereafter, by any marriage or other settlement, be limited in remainder to, or to the use of the first or other son or sons of the body of any person lawfully begotten, with any remainder or remainders over to, or to the use of any other person or persons, or in remainder to, or to the use of a daughter or daughters lawfully begotten, with any remainder or remainders to any other person or persons, that any son or sons, or daughter or daughters of such person or persons lawfully begotten or to be begotten, that shall be born after the decease of his, her, or their father, shall and may, by virtue of such settlement, take such estate limited to the first and other sons, or to the daughter or daughters, in the same manner as if born in the life-time of his, her, or their father, although there shall be no open estate to be limited to trustees, after the decease of the father, to preserve the contingent remainder to such afterborn son or sons, daughter or daughters, until he, she, or they come in esse, or are born, to take the same; any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"II. Provided always, that nothing in this act shall extend, or be construed to extend, to divest any estate in remainder, that by virtue of any marriage or other settlement, is already come to the possession of any person or persons, or to whom the right is accrued, though not in actual possession, by reason or means of any afterborn son or sons, or daughter or daughters, not happening to be born in the life-time of his, her, or their father."

STAT. 10 & 11
GUL. 3, c. 16.

18 Vin. 408.
Estates limited in remainder to the lawful issue of the body of any person, son or daughter, born after the decease of the father, may take such estate as if born in his life-time, &c. although there be no limitation to trustees, &c.

XLIII. STAT. 10 & 11 GULIELMI 3, c. 24. A.D. 1699.

"An Act for making Billingsgate a free Market for sale of Fish."

"XIV. Provided nevertheless, that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to prohibit the importation of anchovies, sturgeon, botargo, or cavear, nor the selling of mackerel before or after divine service on Sundays."

STAT. 10 & 11
GUL. 3, c. 24.

XLIV. STAT. 11 & 12 GULIELMI 3, c. 4(1). A.D. 1700.

"An Act for the further preventing the Growth of Popery."

STAT. 11 & 12
GUL. 3, c. 4.

XLV. STAT. 11 & 12 GULIELMI 3, c. 16(2). A.D. 1700.

"An Act for the better ascertaining the Tithes of Hemp and Flax."

STAT. 11 & 12
GUL. 3, c. 16.

"Whereas an act made in the third year of the reign of his majesty and the queen, intituled, 'An Act for the better ascertaining the Tithes of Hemp and Flax,' was made to continue but for seven years, and to the end of the next session of parliament after such term ended, and is now expired: and whereas the said act hath by experience been found very useful and necessary; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the five and twentieth day of March which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred, all and every person or persons who shall sow or cause to be sown any hemp or flax in any parish or place in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall pay or cause to be paid to every parson, vicar, or

27 Hen. 8,
c. 20.
3 G. & M.
c. 3.

Ground sown with flax or hemp to pay 5s. per acre.

(1) Obsolete. Vide Stat. 3 Geo. 1, c. 18. (2) Vide Stat. 6 Ann. c. 28. Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 25. Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 71.

STAT. 11 & 12
GUL. 3, c. 16.

impropriator of any such parish or place, yearly and every year, the sum of ten shillings and no more, for each acre of hemp and flax so sown, before the same is carried off the ground, and so proportionably for more or less ground so sown for the recovery of which sum or sums of money, the parson, vicar, or impropriator, shall have the common and usual remedy allowed of by the laws of the land.

"II. Provided, that this act, or anything therein contained, shall not extend to charge any lands discharged by any modus decimandi, ancient composition, or otherwise discharged of tithes by law.

Not to alter
payment of tithes for ground sown with hemp or flax between 2nd February, 1684, and 2nd February,
1691.

"III. Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to make any alteration in the right or manner of payment of tithes of flax and hemp to any ecclesiastical person, incumbent of any parsonage, vicarage, or curacy, or to any impropriator or body corporate, having or having any impropriation, for such ground as hath at any time since the second day of February, one thousand six hundred eighty-four, and before the second day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety-one, been sown with flax or hemp, and paid tithe in kind to such incumbent, impropriator, or body corporate respectively, but that the same shall continue and be payable and paid, as aforesaid and in such manner as formerly; anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Act to continue
seven years.

"IV. Provided, that this law shall continue in force for seven years, to be accounted from the said five and twentieth day of March, and from thence to the end of the next sessions of parliament, and no longer."

STAT. 11 & 12
GUL. 3, c. 21.

XLVI. STAT. 11 & 12 GULIELMI 3, c. 21. A.D. 1700.

"An Act for the Explanation and better Execution of former Acts made touching Watermen and Wherry-men rowing on the River of Thames, and for a better ordering and governing the said Watermen, Wherry-men, and Lightermen, upon the said River between Gravesend and Windsor."

"XIII. And whereas great numbers of idle and loose watermen and lightermen work on the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, and exact large prices for passengers, whose necessary occasions oblige them to pass and repass the river of Thames, and generally spend such their gains in drunkenness and profaneness the succeeding week; for the prevention whereof,"

[The rulers may appoint forty watermen to work on Sundays between Vauxhall and Limehouse, for carrying passengers across the river at 1d. each; watermen so appointed shall pay the money received every Monday morning to the rulers, and be only allowed for their labour: and the overplus shall be applied to the use of the poor, aged, decayed, and maimed watermen and lightermen and their widows.]

STAT. 12 & 13
GUL. 3, c. 2.

XLVII. STAT. 12 & 13 GULIELMI 3, c. 2(1). A.D. 1700.

"An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown (2), and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject."

1 G. & M.
Sess. 2, c. 2

"Whereas in the first year of the reign of your majesty, and of our late most gracious sovereign lady Queen Mary, (of blessed memory,) an act of parliament

(1) The Bill of Rights having omitted some important matters, and new abuses having called for new remedies, caused the enactment of Stat. 12 & 13 Gul. 3, c. 2. Vide etiam Stat. 13 Gul. 3, c. 6. Stat. 5 Ann. c. 8. Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 13. Stat. 8 Geo. 1, c. 6. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 52, s. 5.

(2) Limitation of the Crown:—The settlement of the crown at the Revolution, extended only to the descendants of William and Anne. Upon the death of the Duke of Gloucester in 1700, it was determined in order to destroy the hopes of the Jacobites to make a new settlement of the crown on the Protestant line of Princes.

By the Act of Settlement, (Sess. 1 G. & M. Sess. 2, c. 2, cap. 642.) the sovereign will of parliament, all previous claims of inheritance to the throne of Great Britain save that of the issue of King James II. and the Princess Anne, were annulled, and the

"That no person who shall hereafter come to the possession of this crown, shall go out of the dominions of England, Scotland, or Ireland, without consent of parliament.

STAT. 12 & 13
GUL. 3, c. 2.

"That from and after the time that the further limitation by this act shall take effect, all matters and things relating to the well-governing of this kingdom, which are properly cognizable in the privy council by the laws and customs of this realm, shall be transacted there, and all resolutions taken thereupon shall be signed by such of the privy council as shall advise and consent to the same.

Repealed by
1 Geo. 1,
St. 11. c. 51.

"That after the said limitation shall take effect as aforesaid, no person born out of the kingdoms of England, Scotland, or Ireland, or the dominions thereunto belonging, (although he be naturalized or made a denizen, except such as are born of English parents,) shall be capable to be of the privy council, or a member of either house of parliament, or to enjoy any office or place of trust, either civil or military, or to have any grant of lands, tenements, or hereditaments from the crown, to himself or to any other or others in trust for him.

Repealed by 4 Ann. c. 8,
s. 24.

"That no person who has an office or place of profit under the king, or receives a pension from the crown, shall be capable of serving as a member of the House of Commons.

This clause extends not to persons naturalized at or before the accession of King George I to the crown.

"That after the said limitation shall take effect as aforesaid, judges' commissions be made quamdiu se bene gesserint, and their salaries ascertained and established; but upon the address of both houses of parliament it may be lawful to remove them.

Repealed by 4 Ann. c. 8,
s. 25.
6 Ann. c. 7.
1 Geo. 1, c. 56.

"That no pardon under the great seal of England be pleadable to an impeachment by the commons in parliament.

"And whereas the laws of England are the birthright of the people thereof, and all the kings and queens, who shall ascend the throne of this realm, ought to administer the government of the same according to the said laws, and all their officers and ministers ought to serve them respectively according to the same. The said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, do therefore further humbly pray, that all the laws and statutes of this realm, for securing the established religion(1), and the rights and liberties of the people thereof, and all other laws and statutes of the same now in force, may be ratified and confirmed, and the same are by his Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, and by authority of the same, ratified and confirmed accordingly."

All laws for securing the established religion, &c. confirmed. See farther, 13 Gul. 3, c. 6.

(1) Established religion.—The church of England became, at the Revolution, an authorized and paid establishment, supported by government, but rendered incapable of persecution; and its duties are to guard the spiritual concerns of the nation, by making us know our relative duties to God and our neighbour; in fact, the union of the church and state was not intended to make the church political, but the state religious.

The only difference in the "English catholic church," as it existed previous to the dynasty of the Tudors, and as it stood at the termination of the reign of William the Third, was, that certain ecclesiastical abuses had arisen, which were corrected by parliament and the clerical synods in convocation; but the identity of the "English catholic church" was never destroyed.

That sect which is now commonly called "Roman catholics," are nothing but a mere body of dissenters from the "English catholic church," and have never, constitutionally speaking, been arbitrarily deprived of a vested right. However numerous and respectable, they did and could dissent only in their individual and private, and not in any corporate or collective capacity, from the authoritative regulations and changes made by the legally-constituted powers, to whom alone belonged the right to decide on matters of doctrine and practice.

The church of Rome at the present day, cannot be identified with the church of England previous to the Reformation; the Roman catholic bishops in England and Scotland, are bishops of foreign sees, and neither they, nor those who have been schismatically consecrated for the sees in Ireland, which at the time were canonically filled, can trace any descent from the bishops of the ancient churches in these kingdoms: the now bishops of the church of England, being the only representatives by episcopal succession of the ancient Celtic and Anglo-Saxon churches; and the strongest illustration of this position is, that the votaries of the Roman catholic religion are distinguished by the adoption of a new creed, which the "English catholic church," at no one period of her existence, ever recognised. 1 De Lolme on the English Constitution by Stephens, 310.

STAT. 12 & 13
GUL. 3, c. 2.

Princess Sophia declared next successor to
the crown,

after the king
and Princess Anne of Denmark and their issue, &c.

and to the heirs of her body, being protestants.

Papists, &c.
incapacitated
from inheriting
the crown.

King and queen
to take the coronation
oath, 1 G. &
M. Sess. 1, c. 6,

and subscribe
the declaration.

Conditions for securing the religion, laws,
&c. in default of issue of the Princess Anne
and the king.

mine: therefore, for a further provision of the succession of the crown in the protestant line, we your majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, do beseech your majesty, that it may be enacted and declared, and be it enacted and declared by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the most excellent Princess Sophia, electress and duchess dowager of Hanover, daughter of the most excellent Princess Elizabeth, late queen of Bohemia, daughter of our late sovereign lord King James the First, of happy memory, be and is hereby declared to be the next in succession, in the protestant line, to the imperial crown and dignity of the said realms of England, France, and Ireland, with the dominions and territories thereunto belonging, after his majesty, and the Princess Anne of Denmark, and for default of issue of the said Princess Anne, and of his majesty respectively: and that from and after the deceases of his said majesty, our now sovereign lord, and of her royal highness the Princess Anne of Denmark, and for default of issue of the said Princess Anne, and of his majesty respectively, the crown and regal government of the said kingdoms of England, France, and Ireland, and of the dominions thereunto belonging, with the royal state and dignity of the said realms, and all honours, styles, titles, regality, prerogatives, powers, jurisdictions and authorities, to the same belonging and appertaining, shall be, remain, and continue to the said most excellent Princess Sophia, and the heirs of her body, being protestants; and thereunto the said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, shall and will, in the name of all the people of this realm, most humbly and faithfully submit themselves, their heirs and posterities; and do faithfully promise, that after the deceases of his majesty, and her royal highness, and the failure of the heirs of their respective bodies, to stand to, maintain, and defend the said Princess Sophia, and the heirs of her body, being protestants, according to the limitation and succession of the crown in this act specified and contained, to the utmost of their powers, with their lives and estates, against all persons whatsoever that shall attempt anything to the contrary.

" II. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, that all and every person and persons, who shall or may take or inherit the said crown, by virtue of the execution of this present act, and is, are, or shall be reconciled to, or shall hold communion with, the see or church of Rome, or shall profess the popish religion, or shall marry a papist, shall be subject to such incapacities, as in such case or cases are by the said recited act provided, enacted, and established; and that every king and queen of this realm, who shall come to and succeed in the imperial crown of this kingdom, by virtue of this act, shall have the coronation oath administered to him, her, or them, at their respective coronations, according to the act of parliament made in the first year of the reign of his majesty, and the said late Queen Mary, intituled, 'An Act for establishing the Coronation Oath,' and shall make, subscribe, and repeat the declaration in the act first above recited, mentioned, or referred to, in the manner and form thereby prescribed.

" III. And whereas it is requisite and necessary that some further provision be made for securing our religion, laws, and liberties, from and after the death of his majesty and the Princess Anne of Denmark, and in default of issue of the heirs of the said princess, and of his majesty respectively; be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same,

" That whosoever shall hereafter come to the possession of this crown, shall join in communion with the church of England, as by law established.

" That in case the crown and imperial dignity of this realm shall hereafter come to any person, not being a native of this kingdom of England, this person be not obliged to engage in any war for the defence of any dominions or territories which do not belong to the crown of England, without the consent of parliament.

"That no person who shall hereafter come to the possession of this crown, shall go out of the dominions of England, Scotland, or Ireland, without consent of parliament.

STAT. 12 & 13
GUL. 3, c. 2.

"That from and after the time that the further limitation by this act shall take effect, all matters and things relating to the well-governing of this kingdom, which are properly cognizable in the privy council by the laws and customs of this realm, shall be transacted there, and all resolutions taken thereupon shall be signed by such of the privy council as shall advise and consent to the same.

Repealed by
1 Geo. 1,
St. 11. c. 51.
Repealed by 4 Ann. c. 8,
s. 24.

"That after the said limitation shall take effect as aforesaid, no person born out of the kingdoms of England, Scotland, or Ireland, or the dominions thereunto belonging, (although he be naturalized or made a denizen, except such as are born of English parents,) shall be capable to be of the privy council, or a member of either house of parliament, or to enjoy any office or place of trust, either civil or military, or to have any grant of lands, tenements, or hereditaments from the crown, to himself or to any other or others in trust for him.

This clause extends not to persons naturalized at or before the accession of King George 1 to the crown.

"That no person who has an office or place of profit under the king, or receives a pension from the crown, shall be capable of serving as a member of the House of Commons.

Repealed by 4 Ann. c. 8,
s. 25.
6 Ann. c. 7.
1 Geo. 1, c. 56.

"That after the said limitation shall take effect as aforesaid, judges' commissions be made quamdiu se bene gesserint, and their salaries ascertained and established; but upon the address of both houses of parliament it may be lawful to remove them.

"That no pardon under the great seal of England be pleadable to an impeachment by the commons in parliament.

"And whereas the laws of England are the birthright of the people thereof, and all the kings and queens, who shall ascend the throne of this realm, ought to administer the government of the same according to the said laws, and all their officers and ministers ought to serve them respectively according to the same. The said lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, do therefore further humbly pray, that all the laws and statutes of this realm, for securing the established religion(1), and the rights and liberties of the people thereof, and all other laws and statutes of the same now in force, may be ratified and confirmed, and the same are by his majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, and by authority of the same, ratified and confirmed accordingly."

All laws for securing the established religion, &c. confirmed. See farther, 13 Gul. 3, c. 6.

(1) Established religion:—The church of England became, at the Revolution, an authorized and paid establishment, supported by government, but rendered incapable of persecution; and its duties are to guard the spiritual concerns of the nation, by making us know our relative duties to God and our neighbour; in fact, the union of the church and state was not intended to make the church political, but the state religious.

The only difference in the "English catholic church," as it existed previous to the dynasty of the Tudors, and as it stood at the termination of the reign of William the Third, was, that certain ecclesiastical abuses had arisen, which were corrected by parliament and the clerical synods in convocation; but the identity of the "English catholic church" was never destroyed.

That sect which is now commonly called "Roman catholics," are nothing but a mere body of dissenters from the "English catholic church," and have never, constitutionally speaking, been arbitrarily deprived of a vested right. However numerous and respectable, they did and could dissent only in their individual and private, and not in any corporate or collective capacity, from the authoritative regulations and changes made by the legally-constituted powers, to whom alone belonged the right to decide on matters of doctrine and practice.

The church of Rome at the present day, cannot be identified with the church of England previous to the Reformation; the Roman catholic bishops in England and Scotland, are bishops of foreign sees, and neither they, nor those who have been schismatically consecrated for the sees in Ireland, which at the time were canonically filled, can trace any descent from the bishops of the ancient churches in these kingdoms: the now bishops of the church of England, being the only representatives by episcopal succession of the ancient Celtic and Anglo-Saxon churches; and the strongest illustration of this position is, that the votaries of the Roman catholic religion are distinguished by the adoption of a new creed, which the "English catholic church," at no one period of her existence, ever recognised. 1 De Lolme on the English Constitution by Stephens, 310.

STAT. 13 GUL.
3. c. 6.

XLVIII. STAT. 13 GULIELMI 3, c. 6(1). A.D. 1701.

"An Act for the further Security of His Majesty's Person, and the Succession of the Crown in the Protestant Line, and for extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretenders, and their open and secret Abettors."

(1) Vide Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 13.
This statute, after reciting Stat. 1 G. & M. Sess. 2, c. 2 (ent 642), and Stat. 13 & 13 Gul. 3, c. 2 (ent 674), proceeds: "On which said acts the safety of your majesty's royal person and government, the continuance of the monarchy of England, the preservation of the protestant religion, the maintenance of the church of England as by law established, the security of the ancient and undoubted rights and liberties, and the true peace and tranquillity of this kingdom, &c. under God, entirely depend."

STATUTA ANNÆ.

A.D. 1702—1714.

	Page		Page
Stat. 1 Ann. St. I. c. 22	679	XXXII. Stat. 6 Ann. c. 16 [Ir.]	689
.... c. 30	679	XXXIII. c. 21	689
.... c. 31	680	XXXIV. c. 27	690
.... c. 32	681	XXXV. c. 28	691
.... St. II. c. 1	681	XXXVI. c. 33	692
.... c. 12	681	XXXVII. Stat. 7 Ann. c. 5	692
.... c. 17	681	XXXVIII. c. 14	692
Stat. 2 Ann. c. 3 [Ir.]	681	XXXIX. c. 18	694
.... c. 6 [Ir.]	681	XL. c. 20	694
.... c. 7 [Ir.]	681	XLI. c. 22	694
.... c. 9 [Ir.]	681	XLII. Stat. 8 Ann. c. 3 [Ir.]	695
.... c. 10 [Ir.]	681	XLIII. c. 13 [Ir.]	695
.... c. 11 [Ir.]	683	XLIV. c. 15	695
Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 4	683	XLV. Stat. 9 Ann. c. 12 [Ir.]	695
.... c. 5	683	XLVI. c. 22	695
.... c. 11	683	XLVII. c. 23	696
Stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 7	685	XLVIII. Stat. 10 Ann. c. 1	696
.... c. 18	685	XLIX. c. 2	696
Stat. 4 Ann. c. 2 [Ir.]	685	L. c. 5	698
.... c. 5 [Ir.]	686	LI. c. 7	698
.... c. 8	686	LII. c. 11	702
.... c. 14	686	LIII. c. 12	702
.... c. 16	686	LIV. c. 19	704
.... c. 26	686	LV. Stat. 12 Ann. St. I. c. 4	704
Stat. 5 Ann. c. 5	686	LVI. c. 17	706
.... c. 8	686	LVII. St. II. c. 6	706
.... c. 9	687	LVIII. c. 7	710
.... c. 24	687	LIX. c. 12	710
.... c. 25	689	LX. c. 14	711
Stat. 6 Ann. c. 7	689	LXI. c. 18	715
.... c. 14	689

I. STAT. 1 ANNÆ, ST. I. c. 22 (1). A.D. 1701.

STAT. 1 ANNÆ.
ST. I. c. 22.

to declare the Alterations in the Oath appointed to be taken by the intitled, 'An Act for the further Security of His Majesty's Person, the Succession of the Crown in the Protestant Line, and for extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretences, and their open and secret Abettors; and for declaring the Association determined.'

II. STAT. 1 ANNÆ, ST. I. c. 30. A.D. 1701.

STAT. 1 ANNÆ.
ST. I. c. 30.

to oblige the Jews to maintain and provide for their Protestant Children."

the end that sufficient maintenance be provided and allowed for the Jewish parents, who shall turn protestants; be it enacted by the queen's excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual, temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the force of the same, that from and after the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and two, if any Jewish parent (2), in order to the compelling his or her protestant child to change his or her religion, shall refuse to

Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 13.
rent:—In Vincent v. Fernandez, (12 Mod. 525,) it appeared, that the parent was dead, and had given his estate from his daughter to his son, and the daughter, who petitioned upon this statute, was married, and forty-four years old: upon such facts, Lord Chancellor Parker observed, "I strongly incline to think this case within the act." "Suppose the child of a Jew turns protestant, and the Jew, the parent, by will gives his estate

STAT. 1 ANN.
ST. I. c. 30.

allow such child a fitting maintenance, suitable to the degree and ability of such parent, and to the age and education of such child, then (upon complaint thereof made to the lord high chancellor of England, or lord keeper of the great seal, or commissioners for the great seal for the time being) it shall and may be lawful for the said lord chancellor, lord keeper, or commissioners, to make such order thereon, for the maintenance of such protestant child, as he or they shall think fit."

STAT. 1 ANN.
ST. I. c. 31.

III. STAT. 1 ANNÆ, ST. I. c. 31. A.D. 1701.

"An Act for making more effectual the Provision out of the forfeited Estates in Ireland, for the building of Churches, and augmenting small Vicarages in Ireland."

11 & 12 Gul.
3, c. 2.

"Whereas by an act lately made, intituled, 'An Act for granting an Aid to His Majesty by Sale of the forfeited and other Estates and Interests in Ireland, and by a Land Tax in England, for the several Purposes therein mentioned' it is enacted, that the trustees therein named, or any seven or more of them, should and might, and they are thereby required, after such a time, and in such a manner as is therein mentioned, to convey all and every the rectories impropriate, with the tithes, oblations, obventions, glebes, advowsons of vicarages, and other things thereunto severally and respectively belonging or appertaining, forfeited by reason of the rebellion therein mentioned, and therein before vested in the said trustees, to such person or persons, and their heirs, as the bishop of each respective diocese, wherein such rectories impropriate respectively are, shall nominate, in trust to the rebuilding or repairing parish churches, and for the perpetual augmentation of small rectories or vicarages in the kingdom of Ireland, in such manner as is therein mentioned: and whereas several such rectories impropriate, tithes, oblations, obventions, glebes, advowsons of vicarages, and other things thereunto severally and respectively belonging or appertaining, have been jointly charged or incumbered, or liable to the payment of some debts, charges, or incumbrances, together with other lands, tenements, or hereditaments, by the said act vested in the said trustees: wherefore for the making the before-mentioned trust more effectual and beneficial for the pious ends and purposes aforesaid, be it enacted that where any such rectories impropriate, tithes, advowsons, or other things, so vested in the said trustees, and directed to be conveyed in trust as aforesaid, are charged with, or liable unto any debts, charges, or incumbrances jointly with any other lands, tenements, or hereditaments, by the said act vested in the said trustees, such other lands, tenements, or hereditaments, in the first place be liable to, and shall answer and satisfy such debts, charges, and incumbrances; and the said trustees, or any seven of them, are hereby authorized and required, to make sale of such other lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or of a competent part thereof, for or towards the paying off, clearing, and discharging such debts, charges, and incumbrances: and as soon as conveniently may be, from and after such sale, and the clearing and discharging such debts and incumbrances, such rectories impropriate, tithes, advowsons, and other things, so vested in the said trustees and directed to be conveyed in trust as aforesaid, as are, together with such other lands, tenements, or hereditaments, jointly charged or incumbered, shall be conveyed, and the said trustees, or any seven of them, are hereby authorized and required to convey the same, to such person and persons, and in such manner, and to such uses, intents, and purposes, as in the said recited act is directed and appointed, freed and discharged of and from all such debts, charges, and incumbrances, be the same by matter of record, mortgage, or otherwise."

Where any rectories impropriate, forfeited by the late rebellion, are charged with incumbrances jointly with other lands, &c. such lands first liable to answer the debts, &c.
See farther, 5 Ann. c. 25.

to trustees, upon a secret trust, that if the child turn Jew, the child shall have the estate, and not otherwise: as this would be clearly within the mischief, so every one must wish it to be within the meaning of the act." "Then as to the refusal of the parent, it is not to be intended that the parent, the Jew, must make an actual refusal in words, for by that construction the statute might easily be evaded, and rendered useless. If the Jewish father does by any disposition all his estate from his child, this is to be a refusal; and unless some other reason be made appear, it shall be intended that the child was a protestant."

- IV. STAT. 1 ANNÆ, ST. I. c. 32. A.D. 1701. STAT. 1 ANN.
ST. I. c. 32.
Act for the Relief of the Protestant Purchasers of the forfeited Estates in Ireland."
- V. STAT. 1 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 1 (1). A.D. 1702. STAT. 1 ANN.
ST. II. c. 1.
Act for granting to Her Majesty a Land Tax, for carrying on the War against France and Spain."
[Residentaries of cathedral churches not to be taxed for their dividends.]
- VI. STAT. 1 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 12. A.D. 1702. STAT. 1 ANN.
ST. II. c. 12.
Act for finishing and adorning the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's, London."
- VII. STAT. 1 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 17. A.D. 1702. STAT. 1 ANN.
ST. II. c. 17.
Act for enlarging the Time for taking the Oath of Abjuration, and also for incapacitating and indemnifying such Persons as have not taken the same by time limited, and shall take the same by a time to be appointed; and for further Security of Her Majesty's Person, and the Succession of the men in the Protestant Line; and for extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretenders, and their open and secret Abettors."
- VIII. STAT. 2 ANNÆ, c. 3 (2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1703. STAT. 2 ANN.
c. 3. [Ir.]
An Act to prevent Popish Priests from coming into this Kingdom."
- IX. STAT. 2 ANNÆ, c. 6 (3). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1703. STAT. 2 ANN.
c. 6. [Ir.]
"An Act to prevent the further Growth of Popery."
- X. STAT. 2 ANNÆ, c. 7 (4). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1703. STAT. 2 ANN.
c. 7. [Ir.]
"An Act for registering the Popish Clergy."
- XI. STAT. 2 ANNÆ, c. 9 (5). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1703. STAT. 2 ANN.
c. 9. [Ir.]
"An Act for quieting Ecclesiastical Persons in their Possessions."
- XII. STAT. 2 ANNÆ, c. 10 (6). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1703. STAT. 2 ANN.
c. 10. [Ir.]
An Act for the Exchange of Glebes belonging to Churches in this Kingdom."
- Whereas several glebes in this kingdom lie at a great distance from the manors to which they belong, and some in other parishes, whereby the residence of incumbents on the said glebes is become either impracticable or less useful and fitting: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the queen's most excellent Majesty, and by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the
- 8 Geo. 1, cc. 11 & 12.
10 Geo. 1, c. 4.
1 Geo. 2, c. 15.
5 Geo. 2, c. 6.
23 Geo. 2, c. 8.
29 Geo. 2, c. 8.
- Expired.
Obsolete.
Vide Stat. 1 Gul. 4, c. 26, s. 2.
Obsolete.
Expired.
Vide Stat. 8 Geo. 1, c. 11. (I.) Stat. 1, c. 12. (I.) Stat. 12 Geo. 1, c. 10. (I.) Stat. 1 Geo. 2, c. 15. (I.) Stat. 3 Geo. 1. (I.) Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 13. (I.) Stat. 1 Geo. 2, c. 8. (I.) Stat. 31 Geo. 2, (I.) Stat. 7 Geo. 3, c. 9. (I.) Stat. 7 Geo. 3, c. 17. (I.) Stat. 11 & 12 Geo. 3, c. 17. (I.) Stat. 13 & 14 Geo. 3, c. 27. (I.) Stat. 15 & 16 Geo. 3, c. 17. (I.) Stat. 23 & 24 Geo. 3, c. 49. (I.) Stat. 25 Geo. 3, c. 21. (I.) Stat. 29 Geo. 3, c. 27. (I.) Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 19. (I.) Stat. 40 Geo. 3, c. 82. (I.) Stat. 54 Geo. 3, c. 117. Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 8. Stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 66. Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 43. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 58. Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 67.

STAT. 2 ANN.
c. 10. [12.]

31 Geo. 2, c. 11.

Rectors, &c.
may by deed
exchange
glebes, or part,
at a distance,
for lands of equal value
contiguous.

8 Geo. 1, c. 11.

Bishops, &c.
may exchange,
5 Geo. 2, c. 6, though not so near the church, 31 Geo. 2, c. 11, at any distance, with approbation of the patron.

Sheriff, at request of bishop, &c. to call a jury to inquire of value and quantity of the lands, and conveniency of exchange;

3 Geo. 2, c. 12; and return to bishop.

Said return and deeds of exchange recorded in Exchequer. Sheriff's fees 10s.

Remembrancer's, 6s. 8d.

The lands exchanged enjoyed as glebe for ever.

The old glebe to such uses as the other land formerly limited.

Bishop, dignitary, or prebendary, having land of the see, &c. convenient for a glebe for a church not endowed with twenty acres, may, with consent of dean and chapter, grant not above twenty acres to rector, &c. at a moiety of the present rent, or above.

Said rent payable by four portions.

This act to continue

same, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the several rectors, vicars, and other persons, having any cure of souls in this kingdom, by deed or deed of exchange such glebes as lie at a distance from the parish church, or any part of such glebes, with any archbishop, bishop, or other person, for lands of equal value, worth, and purchase, lying near and convenient to the said church; provided the bishop of the diocese, with his dean and chapter, under his and their common seals, and the patron of such church, or his lawful attorney, where the patronage is in any other than the bishop, under his hand and seal to such deed or deed of exchange, approve thereof; and where the patronage is in the crown, the governor or governors of the kingdom for the time being shall be and are hereby empowered to give consent to such deed or deeds of exchange in writing under his or their hands and seals.

though not so near the church, 31 Geo. 2, c. 11, at any distance, with approbation of the patron.

"II. And to avoid all fraud, covin, or mistake, in such exchange; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that before the sealing and perfecting of deeds of exchange, the sheriff of the county, where both or either of the lands to be exchanged as aforesaid shall be, at the request of the bishop, patron, and persons concerned, may call a jury of twelve good and indifferent freeholders, where notice shall be given at some preceding county court, and likewise of the time and place where and when the said jury is to meet; and the said jury shall inquire of the true value and quantity of the lands and conveniency of the exchange; and the said lands to be so exchanged, by the oaths of good, knowing, and substantial witnesses; and the said value and conveniency so found, together with the value and bounds thereof, shall return to the bishop, where both or either of the lands so to be exchanged are; who shall procure the said return and deeds of exchange to be recorded in the court of Exchequer, in the first remembrancer's office, for which inquest the sheriff shall receive by way of fees ten shillings, and the said remembrancer shall put the same on record, and for the recording the same, and the said deeds, shall receive six shillings and eight pence, and so more.

"III. And be it enacted, that the said lands so given in exchange for glebes, or any part thereof so exchanged, shall be held and enjoyed by such rectors or vicars, and their successors for ever, as glebe, notwithstanding the same do formerly belong to any archbishop, bishop, tenant for life, or entail, with the consent of the person immediately next in remainder; in all which cases such old glebe or the part of the said glebe so given in exchange, shall remain and be to be used as the land given for the same was formerly limited.

"IV. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful to and for every archbishop and bishop, dean, dignitary, or prebendary, having land belonging to their bishoprics, deanery, dignity, or prebend, near any church, and convenient for a glebe for the said church, not already endowed with twenty acres of glebe, by and with the advice and consent of his respective dean and chapter, to grant any quantity thereof, not exceeding twenty acres, plantation measure, to the rector or vicar, or other ecclesiastical person having the actual cure of souls, or their successors, at the moiety of the present yearly rent per annum, or of a greater sum; which rent shall be paid by such rectors or vicars, and other ecclesiastical persons having the actual cure of souls, and their successors, to the bishop, dean, dignitary, or prebendary, and their respective successors for ever, in four equal portions, (that is to say,) at the feast of the Annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, the feast of St. John Baptist, the feast of St. Michael the Archangel, and of the Nativity of our blessed Lord and Saviour; and in case of non-payment that it shall be lawful for the said bishop, dean, dignitary, or prebendary, his or their successors, to distrain or sue for the same, and all arrears thereof.

Liberty to distrain or sue. Said twenty acres taken as glebe.

"V. And be it enacted, that the said twenty acres, or lesser quantity of land so granted as aforesaid, shall be reputed and taken as the glebe of the parish.

incumbent and successors it is granted; this act to be in force for one and years, and no longer." STAT. 2 ANN. c. 10. [IR.]

same years. Further, by 10 Geo. 1, c. 4; 5 Geo. 2, c. 6; 23 Geo. 2, c. 8; 29 Geo. 2, c. 8; 17 & 18 Geo. 3, c. 36, s. 1, for twenty-one years, &c.

XIII. STAT. 2 ANNÆ, c. 11. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1703.

STAT. 2 ANN. c. 11. [IR.]

Act for building several Parish Churches in more convenient Places."

Churches of Fanlobbus, Kimacomoge, Drumaul, Finvoy, Kilead, to be united by name of Churches of Kilcommon, Robeen, and Tokeen, to be united by name of Church of Hollymoath: Churches of Aglish, Ilanedin, and Drumrany, inter- with Breaghwy and Tarlogh in Tuam, to be united by name of Aglish or Church of Ballywater, Ballyhabbert, and Inishargy, in Down, to be Church to be built in Inishargy: Abbey of Arcklow may be converted parish church.]

XIV. STAT. 2 & 3 ANNÆ, c. 4(1). A.D. 1703.

STAT. 2 & 3 ANN. c. 4.

Act for the public registering of all Deeds, Conveyances, and Wills, that shall be made of any Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, within the West Riding of the County of York, after the Nine and twentieth day of September, One thousand seven hundred and four."

XV. STAT. 2 & 3 ANNÆ, c. 5. A.D. 1703.

STAT. 2 & 3 ANN. c. 5.

Act to repeal a Proviso in an Act of the fourth Year of King William and Queen Mary, which prevents the Citizens of the City of York from disposing of their Personal Estates by their Wills, as others inhabiting within the County of York by that Act may do."

XVI. STAT. 2 & 3 ANNÆ, c. 11(2). A.D. 1703.

STAT. 2 & 3 ANN. c. 11.

Act for the making more effectual Her Majesty's gracious Intentions for Augmentation of the Maintenance of the poor Clergy, by enabling Her Majesty to grant in perpetuity the Revenues of the First-fruits and Tenths; and also for enabling any other Persons to make Grants for the same purpose."

Whereas at a parliament holden in the six and twentieth year of the reign of Henry the Eighth, the first-fruits, revenues, and profits for one year, upon nomination or appointment to any dignity, benefice, office, or promotion of, within this realm, or elsewhere within the said king's dominions, and perpetual yearly rent or pension, amounting to the value of the tenth part of revenues and profits belonging to any dignity, benefice, or promotion whatsoever, within any diocese of this realm, or in Wales, were granted to the King Henry the Eighth, his heirs and successors; and divers other statutes have been made touching the first-fruits and annual tenths of the clergy, and ordering thereof: and whereas a sufficient settled provision for the clergy, in parts of this realm, hath never yet been made, by reason whereof divers and stipendiary preachers are in many places entertained to serve the cures, create there, who depending for their necessary maintenance upon the good liking of their hearers, have been, and are thereby under temptation of not complying and suiting their doctrines and teaching to the humours than the good of their hearers, which hath been a great occasion of faction and contempt of the ministry: and forasmuch as your majesty, taking into princely and serious consideration the mean and insufficient maintenance of the clergy in divers parts of this your kingdom, hath been most graciously pleased, out of your most religious and tender concern for the church of

Vide Stat. 5 Ann. c. 18.

10. Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 107. Stat. 7 Geo.

Vide Stat. 5 Ann. c. 24. Stat. 14, c. 66. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 20.

St. 11. c. 10. Stat. 3 Geo. 1, c.

STAT. 2 & 3
ANN. C. 11.

The queen may erect a corporation, and settle on them and their successors, their first-fruits and tenths, for augmentation of the maintenance of the meaner clergy. By 3 Geo. 1. c. 10, a collector is to be appointed. 1 Ann. St. I. c. 7.

All statutes, &c. relating to first-fruits and tenths to continue in force.

Act not to avoid any grant, &c. heretofore made of any the said revenues.

England (whereof your majesty is the only supreme head on earth) and poor clergy thereof, not only to remit the arrears of your tenths due to the poor clergy, but also to declare unto your most dutiful and loyal council, by royal pleasure and pious desire, that the whole revenue arising from the first-fruits and tenths of the clergy might be settled for a perpetual augmentation of the maintenance of the said clergy, in places where the same is not already provided for: we your majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain, in parliament assembled, to the end that your majesty's most gracious intentions may be made effectual, and that the church may receive a lasting advantage from your majesty's parting with so great a branch of the revenue, towards the better provision for the clergy not sufficiently provided for, and to the intent your majesty's singular zeal for the support of the church, the honour, interest, and future security of the church, as by law established, be perpetuated to all ages, do most humbly beseech your majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall be lawful for the queen's most excellent majesty, by her letters patents under the great seal of England, to incorporate such persons as her majesty shall nominate or appoint, to be one body politic and corporate, to have a continuous and perpetual succession; and also at her majesty's will and pleasure, by her or any other letters patents, to grant, limit, or settle, to or upon the said corporation, and their successors for ever, all the revenue of first-fruits, and of the first and second tenths of all dignities, offices, benefices, and promotions spiritual, to be applied and disposed of, to and for the augmentation of the maintenance of such parsons, vicars, curates, and ministers, officiating in any church or chapel within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, where the liturgy and rites of the church of England, as now established, are or shall be used and observed, with such lawful powers, directions, limitations, and appointments, and under such rules and regulations, and in such manner and form, as shall be therein expressed: made in the first year of her said majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for the Support of Her Majesty's Household, and of the Honour and Regal Rights of the Crown,' or any other law to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"II. Provided always, and it is hereby declared, that all and every statute, ordinance, provision, and proviso, touching or concerning the ordering, levying, and payment, or qualification of the said first-fruits and tenths, or the charge, discharge, or alteration of them, or any of them, or any matter relating thereto, which were in force at the time of making this act, shall remain, and continue in their full force and effect, and be observed and executed according to the tenours and purports of the same, and every one of them, for such intents and purposes nevertheless, as shall be contained or expressed by the said letters patents.

"III. Provided also, that this act, or anything therein contained, shall not extend to avoid, or any way to impeach or affect any grant, exchange, or incumbrance, at any time heretofore made, of or upon the said revenues, first-fruits and tenths, or any part thereof; but that the same shall, during the continuance of such grant, exchange, alienation, or incumbrance respectively, remain of and in such force and virtue, and no other, to all intents and purposes, as if this act had not been made.

"IV. And for the encouragement of such well-disposed persons as shall follow her majesty's royal example, be moved to contribute to so pious and charitable a purpose, and that such their charity may be rightly applied; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every person and persons, having in his or their own right any estate or interest in possession, reversion, or contingent remainder, in any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any property of or in any chattels, shall have full power, licence, and authority, at his, her, or their will and pleasure, by deed enrolled, in such manner, and within such time, as statute made in the twenty-seventh year of the reign of King Henry the 8th, for inrolment of bargains and sales, or by his, her, or their last will or testament in writing, duly executed according to law, to give and grant to, and to the said corporation, and their successors, all such his, her, or their estate, real or property in such lands, tenements, and hereditaments, goods and chattels, any part or parts thereof, for and towards the augmentation of the maintenance of such ministers as aforesaid, officiating in such church or chapel, where the service and rites of the said church are or shall be so used or observed as aforesaid, and having no settled competent provision belonging to the same, and to that purpose applied according to the will of the said benefactor, in and by deed inrolled, or by such will or testament, executed as aforesaid, expressed: in default of such direction, limitation, or appointment, in such manner as by His Majesty's letters patents shall be directed and appointed as aforesaid: and such corporation, and their successors, shall have full capacity and ability to purchase, take, hold, and enjoy, for the purposes aforesaid, as well from such persons as shall be so charitably disposed to give the same, as from all other persons as shall be willing to sell or aliene to the said corporation any manors, lands, tenements, goods, or chattels, without any licence or writ of ad quod damnum; the contrary of mortmain, or any other statute or law to the contrary notwithstanding. Provided always, that this act or anything therein contained, shall not be to enable any person or persons, being within age, or of nonsane memory, or covert, without their husbands, to make any such gift, grant, or alienation of anything in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

I. And whereas four bonds for four half-yearly payments of the first-fruits, and one are rated, and also a fifth bond for a further value or payment, in default of the same first-fruits, have been required and taken from the clergy, to the great and unnecessary burden and grievance; for remedy thereof, be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the twenty-fifth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and four, there shall only be given or required for the four payments of the first-fruits; which said first-fruits, as well as the tenths payable by the clergy, hereafter be answered and paid by them according to such rates and proportions only as the same have heretofore been usually rated and paid: and no such bond already given shall, from and after the said twenty-fifth day of March in the year one thousand seven hundred and four, be sued or recovered."

STAT. 2 & 3
ANN. c. 11.
27 Hen. 8,
c. 16.
Persons may give lands, tenements, or goods, &c. to the said
corporation;

or sell or aliene
any manors,
lands, &c.

Persons excepted from making such gifts, &c.

One bond only to be taken for the four payments of
the first-fruits.

XVII. STAT. 3 & 4 ANNÆ, c. 7. A.D. 1704.

Act for the effectual securing the Kingdom of England from the apparent dangers that may arise from several Acts lately passed in the Parliament of Scotland."

XII. Provided always, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that the commissioners to be named in pursuance of this act, shall not, by virtue of such commission, treat of or concerning any alteration of the liturgy, ceremonies, discipline or government of the church, as by law established in this realm."

STAT. 3 & 4
ANN. c. 7.

Commissioners
not to treat of altering the liturgy or government of the church of England.

XVIII. STAT. 3 & 4 ANNÆ, c. 18. A.D. 1704.

Act for making perpetual an Act [7 & 8 Gul. 3, c. 6, ante 656,] for the more easy Recovery of Small Tithes. . . ."

STAT. 3 & 4
ANN. c. 18.

XIX. STAT. 4 ANNÆ, c. 2(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1705.

Act to explain and amend an Act, intituled, 'An Act for registering the Popish Clergy.'"

STAT. 4 ANN.
c. 2. [Ir.]

(1) Obsolete.

STAT. 4 ANN.
c. 5. [IR.]

XX. STAT. 4 ANNÆ, c. 5(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1705.
"An Act for Relief of Creditors against fraudulent Deceits."

STAT. 4 ANN.
c. 8.

XXI. STAT. 4 ANNÆ, c. 8(2). A.D. 1705.
"An Act for the better Security of Her Majesty's Person and Government of the Succession to the Crown of England in the Protestant Religion."

STAT. 4 ANN.
c. 14.

XXII. STAT. 4 ANNÆ, c. 14(3). A.D. 1705.
"An Act for the better collecting Charity Money on Briefs, by Letters, and preventing Abuses in relation to such Churches."

STAT. 4 ANN.
c. 16.

XXIII. STAT. 4 ANNÆ, c. 16(4). A.D. 1705.
"An Act for the Amendment of the Law, and the better Advancing Justice."

STAT. 4 ANN.
c. 26.

XXIV. STAT. 4 ANNÆ, c. 26. A.D. 1703.
"An Act for making effectual a Grant of their late Majesties King and Queen Mary, of the Town and Lands of Seatown, to the Archdeacon of Dublin, and for restoring the same to the said See."

STAT. 5 ANN.
c. 5.

XXV. STAT. 5 ANNÆ, c. 5(5). A.D. 1706.
"An Act for securing the Church of England as by Law established."

STAT. 5 ANN.
c. 8.

XXVI. STAT. 5 ANNÆ, c. 8. A.D. 1706.
"An Act for an Union of the two Kingdoms of England and Scotland."

Sec 3 Bur.
1317.

"MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN: Whereas Articles of Union were agreed upon the twenty-second day of July in the fifth year of your majesty's reign, by commissioners nominated on behalf of the kingdom of England, under your great seal of England, bearing date at Westminster the tenth day of last past, in pursuance of an act of parliament made in England, in the sixth year of your majesty's reign, and the commissioners nominated on the behalf of the kingdom of Scotland, under your majesty's great seal of Scotland, bearing date the twenty-seventh day of February, in the fourth year of your majesty's reign, in pursuance of the fourth act of the third session of the present parliament of Great Britain, to treat of and concerning an union of the said kingdoms: and an act hath passed in the parliament of Scotland, at Edinburgh, the sixth day of January in the fifth year of your majesty's reign, wherein 'tis mentioned that the estates of parliament considering the said Articles of Union of the two kingdoms had agreed to and approved of the said Articles of Union, with some explanations, and that your majesty, with the advice and consent of the parliament, for establishing the protestant religion and presbyterian government within the kingdom of Scotland, had passed in the said parliament an act, intituled, 'An Act for securing of the Protestant and Presbyterian Church Government,' which by the tenour thereof was declared to be inserted in any act ratifying the treaty, and expressly declared to be a material and essential condition of the said treaty or union in all times to come, the tenour of which articles, as ratified and approved of, with additions made by the said act of Parliament of Scotland, follows:

Succession to the monarchy.

"ART. II. That the succession of the monarchy to the United Kingdom of Great Britain, and of the dominions thereto belonging, after her

(1) Repealed by Stat. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Gul. 4, c. 47.

(2) Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 13. Stat. 1 Geo. 2, St. II. c. 23.

(3) Repealed by Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 47.

(4) Vide Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 47.

(5) Expired. Vide Stat. 3 Ann.

ty, and in default of issue of her majesty, be, remain, and continue, to the excellent Princess Sophia, electress and duchess dowager of Hanover, and the of her body being protestants, upon whom the crown of England is settled (act of parliament made in England in the twelfth year of the reign of his majesty King William the Third, intituled, 'An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject:') that all papists, and persons marrying papists, shall be excluded from, and for incapable to inherit, possess, or enjoy, the imperial crown of Great Britain, the dominions thereunto belonging, or any part thereof; and in every such the crown and government shall from time to time descend to, and be enjoyed by a person being a protestant, as should have inherited and enjoyed the same, if such papist, or person marrying a papist, was naturally dead according to the provision for the descent of the crown of England, made by another act of parliament in England, in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, 'An Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and settling the Succession of the Crown.'"

STAT. 5 ANN.
c. 8.

12 & 13 Gul.
3, c. 2.
Papists
excluded.

1 G. & M.
Sess. 2, c. 2.

XXVII. STAT. 5 ANNÆ, c. 9. A.D. 1706.

Act for rendering more effectual an Act passed in the first Year of Her Majesty's Reign, intituled, 'An Act for the better preventing Escapes out of the Queen's Bench and Fleet Prisons.'"

STAT. 5 ANN.
c. 9.

II. And be it declared and enacted, that it is and shall be lawful to apprehend and take, upon the Lord's day (1), any person or persons by virtue of any writ or warrants granted in pursuance of this or of the said former act [Stat. 11. c. 6]."

Persons may be apprehended
by warrant on a Sunday.

XXVIII. STAT. 5 ANNÆ, c. 24 (2). A.D. 1706.

Act for discharging small Livings from their First-fruits and Tenths, and all Arrears thereof."

STAT. 5 ANN.
c. 24.

Whereas, pursuant to an act of parliament made in the second year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for the making more effectual her Majesty's Intentions for the Augmentation of the Maintenance of the poor Clergy, enabling her Majesty to grant in perpetuity the Revenues of the First-fruits and Tenths, and also for enabling any other Persons to make Grants for the same use;' the queen's most excellent majesty, by letters patents, bearing date the 10th day of November, in the third year of her majesty's reign, did make, appoint, constitute, and establish certain persons and officers therein named, to be jointly politic and corporate, by the name of 'The Bounty of Queen Anne, for Augmentation of the Maintenance of the poor Clergy;' and did thereby give warrant to the said governors all the revenues of first-fruits and yearly perpetuities of all dignities, offices, benefices, and promotions spiritual whatsoever, pay to her majesty, her heirs and successors, by virtue of an act of parliament made in the twenty-sixth year of the reign of King Henry the Eighth, or by virtue of an act of parliament made in the first year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, for restitution of first-fruits and tenths to the crown, or by virtue of any other act or acts of parliament whatsoever, and all arrears of the said first-fruits and tenths then due and undischarged (except as herein excepted) to be paid and disposed of to and for the augmentation of the maintenance of such vicars, curates, and ministers, officiating in any church or chapel within the Kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, and the liturgy and rites of the church of England, as now by law established, to be used and observed, under such rules, restrictions, and directions, and in such manner and form, as should be established pursuant to those letters patents: whereas it is thought that the payment of first-fruits and tenths for small

2 & 3 Ann.
c. 11.

26 Hen. 8,
c. 3.
1 Eliz. c. 4.

(1) Lord's day: — Vide Sir William v. Jameson, 5 T. R. 25. Ant. 537; 614.
(2) Vide Stat. 6 Ann. c. 27.

STAT. 5 ANN.
c. 24.

Benefices not exceeding 50*l.*
per annum,
discharged
from firstfruits, &c.
Enforced by 6 Ann. c. 27,
and 1 Geo. 1,
St. II. c. 10.

Bishops, &c.
to certify into Exchequer the clear yearly value of small benefices with cure of souls
within their dioceses, &c.

Not to discharge tenths of benefices
granted for ever.

First-fruits
once applied
&c. to continue
so for ever.

Minister, &c.
to receive the
same.

Public act.

Not to diminish pensions

livings with cure of souls, is a very heavy burden upon the poorer clergy, for which her majesty's unparalleled bounty was designed; and that the immediate discharge of the said first-fruits and tenths, and the arrears thereof, of the said small benefices, will be a present proper augmentation of the same (several whereof by reason of the said charges are now held in sequestration by temporary curates, without being regularly filled with institution and induction). Be it therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all ecclesiastical benefices with cure of souls, not exceeding the clear yearly value of fifty pounds by the improved valuation (the same, (the tenths whereof are by the said recited charter vested in the augmentation, and the incumbents thereof for the time being, and every of their respective heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and sureties, shall be lawfully clearly discharged and acquitted for ever of and from the said first-fruits or tenths, of and from all arrears of the same.

"II. And for the ascertaining of the clear improved yearly valuation of the said ecclesiastical benefices with cure of souls, intended by this act to be exempted from payment of first-fruits and tenths; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the respective bishops of every diocese, or the guardians of the same, sede vacante, and the ordinaries of peculiars, and places of exempt jurisdictions, shall and are hereby empowered and required, as well by virtue of the said act, or more credible witnesses, (which they or others duly commissioned by them, under their hands and seals, are hereby empowered to administer,) as by the usual lawful ways and means, to inform themselves of the clear improved yearly value of every benefice with cure of souls, within their respective dioceses and jurisdictions, the clear improved yearly value whereof doth not exceed fifty pounds, and on or before the five and twentieth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, under their respective hands and seals, or seals of their respective offices, to certify into her majesty's Exchequer at Westminster, the clear improved yearly value of every such benefice with cure of souls, the clear improved yearly value whereof doth not exceed fifty pounds; and such certificate being made, and filed in the said court of Exchequer, shall ascertain the clear yearly value of the benefice with cure of souls intended by this act to be discharged from first-fruits and tenths.

"III. Provided always, and it is hereby declared, that this act, or anything herein contained, shall not extend to discharge any benefices with cure of souls, the tenths whereof were granted away by any of her majesty's predecessors, or by any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, in perpetuity, before the said day of November, in the third year of her majesty's reign.

"IV. And whereas the said former act was intended for the augmentation of the maintenance, not only of parsons and vicars, but also of curates, and other ministers officiating in churches or chapels, as is therein mentioned; now for preventing all doubts touching the capacity of such ministers to take any part of the estate to them and their successors, of or in any part or portion of the first-fruits and tenths, as shall to them be allotted or applied; be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that when any part or portion of the first-fruits or tenths remaining to be applied or disposed of by virtue of the said former act, shall annually or otherwise applied or disposed of for or towards the maintenance of any minister officiating in any church or chapel as aforesaid, such part or portion shall from thenceforth for ever be in like manner continued to the minister or ministers so officiating in the same church or chapel; and every such minister, whether parson, vicar, curate, or other minister for the time being, so officiating in such church or chapel, shall and may from time to time take and receive the same by virtue hereof, and shall be entitled to have and enjoy the same for ever.

"V. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that this act shall be taken and accepted in all courts and places whatsoever, as a public act.

"VI. Provided nevertheless, that this act, or anything herein contained, extend, or be construed to extend to avoid or diminish any annual sum, stipend, or annuity now in being, which hath heretofore been granted to any person or persons, body politic or corporate, and charged upon the said revenues of first-fruits and tenths, or any part thereof; but in case it shall so happen that by paying such small livings, or benefices with cure of souls, as afore-mentioned, the payment of first-fruits and tenths, and all arrears thereof, the first-fruits and tenths, which hereafter shall be collected in any diocese or dioceses, shall not be sufficient to pay and satisfy such annual sums as they now stand respectively charged with, then the whole revenues arising from the first-fruits and tenths, throughout the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be liable to make good all such deficiencies; and the said deficiencies shall, out of the said revenues (during the continuance of such grants, from the time as any such annual payments shall become due) be paid and satisfied to such person and persons as shall in any wise be entitled to receive the same, in the proportions as are limited and appointed in such respective grants."

STAT. 5 ANN.
C. 24.

&c. heretofore granted out of
first-fruits.

Whole revenues, &c.
liable to payment of such,
&c.
See farther,
3 Geo. 1, c. 10,
which appoints
a collector of the perpetual yearly tenths.

XXIX. STAT. 5 ANNÆ, c. 25 (1). A.D. 1706.

Act for making the Acts more effectual for appropriating the forfeited appropriations in Ireland, for the building of Churches, and augmenting the same for Vicarages there."

STAT. 5 ANN.
C. 25.

XXX. STAT. 6 ANNÆ, c. 7(2). A.D. 1707.

Act for the Security of Her Majesty's Person and Government, and of the Succession to the Crown of Great Britain in the Protestant Line."

STAT. 6 ANN.
C. 7.

XXXI. STAT. 6 ANNÆ, c. 14. A.D. 1707.

Act for the better Security of Her Majesty's Person and Government."

STAT. 6 ANN.
C. 14.

XXXII. STAT. 6 ANNÆ, c. 16 (3). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1707.

Act for the more effectual preventing the taking away and marrying Children against the Wills of their Parents or Guardians."

STAT. 6 ANW.
c. 16. [Ir.]

XXXIII. STAT. 6 ANNÆ, c. 21. A.D. 1707.

Act for the avoiding of Doubts and Questions touching the Statutes of divers Cathedral and Collegiate Churches."

STAT. 6 ANN.
c. 21.

1. Whereas several doubts and questions have arisen, and may hereafter arise, relation to the validity and force of the statutes of divers cathedral and collegiate churches founded by King Henry the Eighth, of famous memory, which doubts and questions have been occasioned, partly by a temporary act of parliament made in the first year of the reign of Queen Mary the First, in relation to such statutes made by the said late King Henry the Eighth, and in order to defeat the true ends and designs of the said foundations, and partly by reason of the known many records and evidences during the late rebellion in this kingdom : and as the said doubts and disputes may in time not only turn to the great disadvantage and prejudice of the said foundations, but may prove a manifest obstruction to the peace, order, good government, and discipline of the church, unless some effectual remedy be provided ; be it therefore enacted and declared by the said most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, by the authority of the same, that in all cathedral and collegiate churches founded by the said King Henry the Eighth, such statutes as have been received and practised in the government of the same respectively, since

1 Mar. 1,
Sess. 3.

Statutes of cathedral and collegiate churches practised since the restoration of King Charles

repealed by Stat. 1 Geo. 2, St.
Stat. 10 Geo. 4, cc. 25 & 52.
much as makes it felony for Roman catholic clergymen to celebrate marriages between protestants, repealed by Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 102, s. 1.

provided nevertheless, that the certificates by the proper ordinaries into a court of Exchequer at Westminster, of the yearly valuation of such lands by this act to be discharged from the payment of first-fruits, may any time before the twenty-fourth day of December, which shall be in our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight; anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding.

STAT. 6 ANN.
c. 27.

And whereas by the said act of parliament made in the said fifth year of the reign, the time limited for certifying into the court of Exchequer any of such livings intended by the said act to be discharged from the payment of first-fruits and tenths is found not sufficient with respect to some places; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such certificates which shall be made into the said court of Exchequer, of the yearly valuation of such livings intended to be discharged from the payment of first-fruits by the said act of parliament, at any time before the said twenty-fourth day of December which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, shall be as good and effectual for the purposes by the said act intended, as if the same were made and certified on or before the twenty-fifth day of December one thousand seven hundred and eight; anything in this or the said act to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that the same shall be taken and accepted in all courts and places whatsoever as a public

And whereas it has been usual for the kings and queens of England, by letters under the great seal, to allow the archbishops and bishops four years time for the payment of their first-fruits to the crown, by way of instalment, which, since the said act has been graciously pleased to give the first-fruits and tenths for the support of the poor clergy, cannot now be done: and whereas the first-fruits of archbishoprics and bishoprics amount to near the full annual value thereof, and the charges of coming into archbishoprics and bishoprics are very great: and archbishops and bishops have not the profits of their bishoprics from the time of their predecessors, as rectors and vicars have, but from the time that the benefices are conferred upon them: and whereas no provision has been made for the payment of the first-fruits of archbishoprics or bishoprics, as there is for rectors, in case of death or removal, within the times allowed for the payment of first-fruits: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every archbishop and bishop shall have four years allowed him, when he or they shall come to the said benefice, for the payment of his first-fruits, which shall commence from the time of restitution of his temporalities; and that in every year he shall pay the fourth part of the whole sum: and if it shall please God he shall die, or be removed, before the full term of four years shall be expired, he, his heirs, executors, and administrators, shall be discharged of so much as did not become due at or before the time or times of his death or removal, in like manner as rectors, and administrators of rectors and vicars are authorized to do.

Four years allowed to archbishops
and bishops to pay their
first-fruits.
Proviso in case
of death.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all deans, archdeacons, and other dignitaries, shall compound for their respective benefices in such manner and form as rectors and vicars have been accustomed to do in case of death or removal within the time usually allowed to rectors for payment of their said first-fruits, they the said deans, archdeacons, and other dignitaries, shall be in the like condition, and have the same time as is allowed to rectors and vicars by the statute made in the first year of the late Queen Elizabeth, intituled, 'An Act for the Restitution of First-fruits to the Crown.'

Deans, &c. to compound for first-fruits, &c.

1 Eliz. c. 4.

XXXV. STAT. 6 ANNÆ, c. 28 (1). A.D. 1707.

STAT. 6 ANNÆ.
c. 28.

For continuing the Act [11 & 12 Gul. 3, c. 16] for ascertaining the Tithes of Hemp and Flax."

(1) Vide Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 26.

STAT. 6 ANN.
c. 35.

XXXVI. STAT. 6 ANNÆ, c. 35. A.D. 1707.

"An Act for the public registering of all Deeds, Conveyances, Wills, Incumbrances that shall be made of, or that may affect any Honourable Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, within the East Riding of the County of York, or the Town and County of the Town of Kingston-upon-Hull, the Nine and twentieth Day of September, One thousand seven hundred and eight; and for the rendering the Register in the West Riding complete."

STAT. 7 ANN.
c. 5.

XXXVII. STAT. 7 ANNÆ, c. 5 (1). A.D. 1708.

"An Act for naturalizing Foreign Protestants."

STAT. 7 ANN.
c. 14.

XXXVIII. STAT. 7 ANNÆ, c. 14. A.D. 1708.

"An Act for the better Preservation of Parochial Libraries in the Great Britain called England."

In every parish where a library shall be erected, it shall be preserved for the uses to which it is given, &c.

Incumbents, &c. before they use the library, shall give security to preserve it.

If any book be taken away, &c. the incumbent may bring trover, and shall recover treble damages, to the use of the library.

The ordinary, &c. may inquire into the state of the library, and amend the defects; and appoint persons to inspect the library;

"Whereas in many places in the south parts of Great Britain called England and Wales, the provision for the clergy is so mean, that the necessary books for the better prosecution of their studies cannot be defrayed by the ordinary means; whereas of late years, several charitable and well-disposed persons have made charitable contributions erected libraries within several parishes and parishes in England and Wales; but some provision is wanting to preserve the same, and such others as shall be provided in the same manner, from embezzlement, therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that in every parish where such a library is or shall be erected, the same shall be preserved for the uses and uses, as the same is and shall be given, and the orders and regulations of the founder and founders of such libraries shall be observed and kept.

"II. And for the encouragement of such founders and benefactors, that no person intent they may be satisfied that their pious and charitable intent be not frustrated; be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person, rector, vicar, minister, or curate of a parish, before he shall be permitted to use and enjoy such library, shall enter into such security by bond or otherwise, for the preservation of such library, and due observance of the rules and orders made in relation to the same, as the proper ordinaries within their respective jurisdictions shall think fit; and in case any book or books belonging to such library shall be taken away and detained, it shall and may be lawful for the incumbent, rector, vicar, minister, or curate for the time being, or any other person or persons, to bring an action of trover and conversion, in the proper ordinaries within their respective jurisdictions; whereupon treble damages shall be given with full costs of suit, as if the same were his or their own book or books, which damages shall be applied to the use and benefit of the library.

"III. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the proper ordinary, or his commissary or official, or the archdeacon, or the archbishop, or by his direction his official, or the archdeacon, if the said archdeacon be not the incumbent of the place where the library is, in his or their respective visitation, to inquire into the state and condition of the said libraries, and to amend and redress the grievances and defects concerning the same, as to him or them shall seem meet; and it shall and may be lawful to and for the proper ordinary, from time to time, as often as he shall think fit, to appoint such person or persons, as he shall think fit, to inquire into the state and condition of such libraries, and the said ordinaries, archbishops, or officials respectively, shall have free access to the same at such times as they shall respectively appoint.

(1) Partly repealed by Stat. 10 Ann. c. 5.

"IV. And be it also further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that where any library is appropriated to the use of the minister of any parish or place, every rector, vicar, minister, or curate of the same, within six months after his institution, induction, or admission, shall make or cause to be made a new catalogue of all books remaining in, or belonging to such library, and shall sign the said catalogue, thereby acknowledging the custody and possession of the said books; which said catalogue so signed, shall be delivered to the proper ordinary within the time aforesaid, to be kept registered in his court, without any fee or reward for the same.

STAT. 7 ANN.
C. 14.

To make a catalogue of the books to be delivered to the ordinary, and registered without fee.

"V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that where there are any parochial libraries already erected, the incumbent, rector, vicar, minister, or curate of such parish or place, shall make or cause to be made a catalogue of all books in the same, thereby acknowledging the custody and possession thereof; which catalogue so signed, shall be delivered to the proper ordinary, on or before the ninth and twentieth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and nine; and where any library shall at any time hereafter be given and appropriated to the use of any parish or place, where there shall be an incumbent, rector, vicar, minister, or curate in possession, such incumbent, rector, vicar, minister, or curate, shall make or cause to be made a catalogue of all the books, and deliver the same, as aforesaid, within six months after he shall receive such library.

Where libraries are already erected, such catalogue to be made, &c. before 29th September, 1709.

And where any shall be erected within six months after.

"VI. And to prevent any embezzlement of books upon the death or removal of any incumbent, be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, that immediately after the death or removal of any incumbent, rector, vicar, minister, or curate, the library belonging to such parish or place shall be forthwith shut up, and locked, or otherwise secured by the churchwarden or churchwardens for the time being, by such person or persons as shall be authorized or appointed by the proper ordinary, or archdeacon respectively, so that the same shall not be opened again, till a new incumbent, rector, vicar, minister, or curate, shall be inducted or admitted into the church of such parish or place.

Upon the death or removal of any incumbent, the churchwardens shall lock up the library.

"VII. Provided always, that in case the place where such library is or shall be kept, shall be used for any public occasion for meeting of the vestry, or otherwise, for the dispatch of any business of the said parish, or for any other public occasion, for which the said place hath been ordinarily used, the place shall nevertheless be made use of as formerly for such purposes, and after such business dispatched shall be again forthwith shut and locked up or otherwise secured, as is before directed.

The vestry, &c. may meet in such libraries, if they did so formerly.

"VIII. And be it also further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that for the better preservation of the books belonging to such libraries, and that the benefactions given towards the same may appear, a book shall be kept within the said library for the entering and registering of all such benefactions, and such books as shall be given towards the same, and therein the minister, rector, vicar, or curate of the said parish or place, shall enter, or cause to be fairly entered, such benefactions, and an account of all such books as shall from time to time be given, and by whom given.

The incumbent shall enter the benefactions and books.

"IX. And, for the better governing the said libraries, and preserving of the same, it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the proper ordinary, together with the donor of such benefactions (if living), and after the death of such donor, for the proper ordinary alone, to make such other rules and orders concerning the same, over and above, and besides, as not contrary to such as the donor of such benefactions shall in his discretion judge fit and necessary; which said orders and rules so to be made, shall from time to time be entered in the said book, or some other book to be prepared for that purpose, and kept in the said library.

The ordinary and donor may make orders concerning the library;

which shall be entered as aforesaid.

Books not to be alienable without consent of the ordinary.

"X. And it is further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that none of the said books shall in any case be alienable, nor any book or books that shall hereafter be given by any benefactor or benefactors shall be alienated, without

XLII. STAT. 8 ANNÆ, c. 3(1). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1709.

STAT. 8 ANN.
c. 3. [IR.]

Act for explaining and amending an Act, intituled, 'An Act to prevent the further Growth of Popery.'"

XLIII. STAT. 8 ANNÆ, c. 13. [IRELAND.] A.D. 1709.

STAT. 8 ANN.
c. 13. [IR.]

Act for dissolving the Union of the Parishes of Tynan and Derrynoose, and for building several Parish Churches in more convenient Places in the Diocese of Armagh."

XLIV. STAT. 8 ANNÆ, c. 15. A.D. 1709.

STAT. 8 ANN.
c. 15.

Act for explaining and enlarging an Act of the Sixth Year of Her Majesty's Reign, intituled, 'An Act for the Security of Her Majesty's Person and Government.'"

XLV. STAT. 9 ANNÆ, c. 12(2). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1710.

STAT. 9 ANN.
c. 12. [IR.]

Act for uniting several Parishes, and building several Parish Churches in more convenient Places."

Union of Kilkeevin, Baelick, and Ballintobber, in Elphin; the church at Baelick to be the parish church: Union of Oran and Drumtemple in Elphin; the church at Oran to be rebuilt: Union of Tullomagymagh, Ballynecarrig, Ballynecarrig, and Kelly's Town, in Leightlin; by name of Staplestown: Parish church of Staplestown in Cloyne to be removed to more convenient place: Union of Ballynecarrig, Mogely, and Cahirulton, in Cloyne, by name of Castlemarter, and a new church to be built, the ground by Henry Boyle: Parishes of Inistar, Mathy, Garrynecarrig, and Granagh, in Cloyne, for some time united, may be divided into two parishes, and another church built: A new parish church to be built in more convenient place in Aghada, in Cloyne; and in Kilwatermoy, in Waterford; and a new church in parish of Carrowgallen, in Kilmore; and in parish of Drungagh, in Kilmore; and in parish of Shankill, in Dromore; and in the parish of Kilcomin, in Meath: The church at Coote Hill to be the parish church of Drungoone, in Meath: Union of Kiltullagh, Knockamagh, Becan, Aghamore, and Templetoog, in Tuam, by name of Kiltullah, and a new church at Ballinlough: Lands conveyed by Jos. Mitchell, saving to queen and archbishop: Union of Kilnichan, Killmechue, and Killkavan, in Ferns, by name of Newborough: Church of Lamenagh to be the parish church of Ennis-Mac-faint, in Clogher: New church to be built in parish of Slane, in Meath: Union of Cain and Kiltome, in Meath; the church to be built at Miltonpass; land conveyed by Luke Dillon, and John and John Kelly: Union of Kilbegnet, Ballynekill, Kileronan, and Kileronan, in Elphin, or &c., by name of Donamon: New church to be built on Ballynecarrig, in Elphin, by name of Castlebackney, alias Killosohan; conveyance of Robert Blackney: Union of Ballymackward and Clonkeen, in Clonfert, by name of Ballymackward: Church of Killpatrick to be the parish church of the parish of Drakestown, Killpatrick, and Knough, in Meath: The church at Gerstown, alias Castlebellingham, to be the parish church of Kilsaran, in Armagh: The ancient church-yards to be kept fenced at charge of the parishes: Materials of the old churches may be used for the new: This a public act: Patrons of the union may agree as to right of presentation: Said agreement to be made in Chancery, and conclusive: Saving to the queen.]

XLVI. STAT. 9 ANNÆ, c. 22. A.D. 1710.

STAT. 9 ANN.
c. 22.

Act for granting to Her Majesty several Duties upon Coals, for building new Churches in and about the Cities of London and Westminster, and the Suburbs thereof, and other Purposes therein mentioned."

Obsolete. Vide Stat. 3 & 4 Geo. 4. (2) Partly repealed by Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 58.

Every such person to make oath the next term after admission into any office, or at the quarter session, &c., that he hath conformed, &c. Oath to be made of the offence within ten days, and prosecution within three months, &c. This act shall not vacate any office of inheritance, so as a sufficient deputy be appointed to execute it.]

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 2.

“VII. And it is hereby further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that the toleration granted to the protestant dissenters, by the act made in the first year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary, intituled, ‘An Act for exempting their Majesties’ Protestant Subjects, dissenting from the Church of England, from the penalties of certain Laws,’ shall be, and is hereby ratified and confirmed, and that the same act shall at all times be inviolably observed for the exempting of such protestant dissenters as are thereby intended, from the pains and penalties therein mentioned.

The toleration granted to protestant dissenters by 1 G. & M. Sess. 1, c. 18, confirmed.

“VIII. And for the rendering the said last-mentioned act more effectual, according to the true intent and meaning thereof; be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that if any person dissenting from the church of England, (not in holy orders, or pretended holy orders, or pretending to holy orders, nor any preacher or teacher of any congregation,) who should have been entitled to the benefit of the said last-mentioned act, if such person had duly taken, made, and subscribed the oaths and declaration, or otherwise qualified him or herself, as required by the said act, and now is or shall be prosecuted upon or by virtue of any of the penal statutes, from which protestant dissenters are exempted by the said act, shall at any time during such prosecution, take, make, and subscribe the said oaths and declaration, or being of the people called Quakers, shall make and subscribe the aforesaid declaration, and also the declaration of fidelity, and subscribe the profession of their Christian belief, according to the said act, or before any two of her majesty’s justices of the peace, (who are hereby required to take and return the same to the next quarter sessions of the peace, to be there recorded,) such person shall be, and is hereby entitled to the benefit of the said act, as fully and effectually as if such person had duly qualified himself within the time prescribed by the said act, and shall be thenceforth exempted and discharged from all the penalties and forfeitures incurred by force of any the aforesaid penal statutes.

If any dissenter (not in holy orders, &c.), who would have been entitled to the benefit of that act, &c. shall be prosecuted, and shall, during such prosecution, take the oaths, &c., he shall be entitled to the benefit of the said act.

“IX. And whereas it is or may be doubted whether a preacher or teacher of any congregation of dissenting protestants, duly in all respects qualified according to the said act, be allowed, by virtue of the said act, to officiate in any congregation in any county, other than that in which he so qualified himself, although in a congregation or place of meeting duly certified and registered as is required by the said act; be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any such preacher or teacher, so duly qualified according to the said act, shall be and is hereby allowed to officiate in any congregation, although the same be not (1) in the county wherein he was so qualified; provided that the said congregation, or place of meeting, hath been, before such officiating, duly certified and registered or recorded according to the said act; and such preacher or teacher shall, if required, produce a certificate of his having so qualified himself, under the hand of the clerk of the peace for the county or place where he so qualified himself, which certificate such clerk of the peace is hereby required to make; and shall also, before any justice of the peace of such county or place where he shall so officiate, make, and subscribe such declaration, and take such oaths as are mentioned in the said act, if thereunto required.

A dissenting teacher, qualified according to the said act, may officiate in any other county than where he was qualified.

“X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that on or before the fifteenth day of June next, all advocates, writers to the signet, notaries public, and other members of the college of justice, within that part of her majesty’s kingdom of Great Britain called Scotland, shall be and are hereby obliged to take and sub-

All advocates, &c. in Scotland, shall take the oath appointed by

(1) Although the same be not:—It was adjudged in Reg. v. Peach, (2 Salk. 572,) that a licence in one county would not warrant a dissenting minister to officiate in another county; and, probably, that judgment occasioned this clause.

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 2.

6 Ann. c. 14.
Further provisions relating hereto, 10 Ann. c. 32, s. 2.

Refusing, &c.
shall be judged

None shall be admitted to the employment of advocate, &c. till he hath taken the said oath. See

1 Geo. 1, c. 13.

scribe the oath appointed by the act of the sixth year of her majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for the better Security of Her Majesty's Person and Government,' before the lords of session of the aforesaid part of her majesty's kingdom; except such of the said persons who have already taken the same; and if any of the persons aforesaid do or shall neglect or refuse to take and subscribe the said oath, as aforesaid, such person shall be ipso facto adjudged incapable, and disabled to use to have, enjoy, or exercise in any manner his said employment or practice.

"XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in all time coming no person or persons shall be admitted to the employment of advocate, writer to the signet, notary public, or any office belonging to the said college of justice, until he or they have taken and subscribed the aforesaid oath, in manner as is above directed."

L. STAT. 10 ANNÆ, c. 5. A.D. 1711.

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 5.

"An Act to repeal the Act of the seventh year of Her Majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for Naturalizing Foreign Protestants,' except what relates to the Children of Her Majesty's natural-born Subjects born out of Her Majesty's Allegiance."

7 Ann. c. 5.

"Whereas an act of parliament was made and passed in the seventh year of her majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for naturalizing foreign Protestants;' and whereas divers mischiefs and inconveniences have been found by experience to follow from the same, to the discouragement of the natural-born subjects of the kingdom, and to the detriment of the trade and wealth thereof; be it therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the before-mentioned act, and all the matters and things therein contained, (except so much of the said act by which the children of all natural-born subjects born out of the allegiance of her majesty, her heirs and successors, are to be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be natural-born subjects of this kingdom,) shall be, and is hereby repealed, annulled, and made void, to all intents and purposes whatsoever; provided nevertheless, that such repeal shall not in any sort prejudice or impeach the naturalization of any persons who have been or shall be naturalized at any time before the fourth day of February, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eleven, pursuant to the directions of the before-mentioned act."

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 7.

LI. STAT. 10 ANNÆ, c. 7(1). A.D. 1711.

"A et to prevent the disturbing those of the Episcopal Communion in the part of Great Britain called Scotland, in the Exercise of their Religious Worship, and in the Use of the Liturgy of the Church of England; and for repealing the Act passed in the Parliament of Scotland, intituled, 'An Act against Irregular Baptisms and Marriages.'"

"Whereas since the abolishing of episcopal government in Scotland, those of the episcopal persuasion there have been frequently disturbed and interrupted in their religious assemblies, and their ministers prosecuted for reading the English service in their congregations, and for administering the sacraments according to the form and manner prescribed in the liturgy of the Church of England, be it therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall be free and lawful for all those of the episcopal communion in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, to meet and assemble for the exercise of divine worship, to be performed after their own manner by pastors ordained by a protestant bishop,

It shall be free for those of the episcopal communion in Scotland, to

(1) Vide Stat. 10 Geo. 2, c. 38. Stat. 21 Geo. 2, c. 34. Stat. 32 Geo. 3, c. 61.

and who are not established ministers of any church or parish, and to use in their congregation the liturgy of the Church of England, if they think fit, without any let, hindrance, or disturbance, from any person whatsoever; and all sheriffs of shires, stewards of stewartries, and magistrates of boroughs, and justices of the peace, are hereby strictly required to give all manner of protection, aid, and assistance to such episcopal ministers, and those of their own communion, in their meetings and assemblies for the worship of God, held in any town or place, except parish churches, within the extent and jurisdiction of that part of Great Britain called Scotland.

“II. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that none shall presume to exercise the function of a pastor in the said episcopal meetings and congregations, except such as shall have received holy orders from the hands of a protestant bishop; and that every person who shall be called or appointed to be a pastor or minister of any episcopal congregation or assembly, before he take upon him to officiate as pastor of the said congregation, be hereby obliged and required to present his letters of orders to the justices of peace, at their general or quarter sessions to be held for the shire, stewartry, city, town, or other place in which the said episcopal congregation is or shall be; and that the said letters of orders be there entered on record by the register or clerk of the said meeting of the justices, for which there shall be no greater fee or reward taken than the sum of one shilling.

“III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all ministers of the established church of Scotland, and all and every person and persons, who are or are pastor or pastors, minister or ministers of any episcopal congregation in Scotland, shall be obliged, and are hereby required, on or before the first day of August next, to come to take and subscribe the following oaths, in such manner, and under such penalties, as all officers, civil and military, in Scotland, are obliged to take the oath recited in the fourteenth act of the sixth year of her majesty's reign, intituled, ‘An Act for the better Security of Her Majesty's Person and Government;’ and that all ministers of the established church of Scotland, hereafter to be admitted into their respective churches or benefices, and all and every person and persons, who shall hereafter be pastor or pastors, minister or ministers of any episcopal congregation, shall, before such admission or exercise of their respective functions, be obliged to take and subscribe likewise the following oaths, in the same manner and under the same penalties above mentioned.

“I, A. B., do sincerely promise and swear, that I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance to her majesty Queen Anne: So help me God.”

“I, A. B., do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify, and declare in my conscience, before God and the world, that our sovereign lady Queen Anne is lawful and rightful queen of this realm, and of all other her majesty's dominions and countries thereunto belonging; and I do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I do believe in my conscience, the person pretended to be Prince of Wales, during the life of the late King James, and since his decease pretending to be, and taking upon himself the style and title of King of England, by the name of James the Third, or of Scotland, by the name of James the Eighth, or the style and title of King of Great Britain, hath not any right or title whatsoever to the crown of this realm, or any other the dominions thereunto belonging; and I do renounce, refuse, and abjure any allegiance or obedience to him. And I do swear, that I will bear faith and true allegiance to her majesty Queen Anne, and her will defend, to the utmost of my power, against all traitorous conspiracies and attempts whatsoever, which shall be made against her person, crown, or dignity. And I will do my best endeavour to disclose and make known to her majesty, and her successors, all treasons and traitorous conspiracies which I shall know to be against her, or any of them. And I do faithfully promise, to the utmost of my power, to support, maintain, and defend the succession of the crown against him the said James, and all other persons whatsoever, as the same is and stands settled by an act, intituled, ‘An Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and settling the Succession of the Crown,’ to her present majesty, and the heirs of her body being

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 7.

assemble for divine worship
after their own manner, &c.

21 Geo. 2,
c. 34.
And see further,
26 Geo. 2, c. 29.

Ministers of the established church, and of the episcopal
congregations,
to take the
oaths, &c.
6 Ann. c. 14.

Farther provisions relating hereto, 10 Ann.
c. 32.

The oaths.

1 Geo. 1, c. 13.
5 Geo. 1, c. 29,
s. 3.

1 G. & M.
c. 2, s. 2.

STAT. 10 ANN.
C. 7.

12 & 13 Gul.
3, c. 2.

Episcopal meetings to be held with doors
not locked, &c.
and persons frequenting them not exempted from tithes, &c.

The act made in 1695 repealed; and none shall incur
any penalty for resorting to episcopal
meetings, &c.
Episcopal
ministers may preach, &c.

Children
christened by episcopal ministers
registered
where the parents reside.
No episcopal minister shall marry any whose banns
have not been published, &c.
Ministers of churches
obliged to publish the banns.
All laws against immorality,
&c. shall be in force.

This act shall not give any case, &c. to
papists, &c.

protestants; and as the same, by one other act, intituled, "An Act for the better Limitation of the Crown, and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject," is and stands settled and entailed after the decease of her majesty, and in default of issue of her majesty, to the Princess Sophia, electress and dowager dowager of Hanover, and the heirs of her body, being protestants. And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and swear, according to the express words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever. And I do make this recognition, acknowledgment, abjuration, renunciation, and promise, heartily, willingly, and truly, upon the true faith of a Christian.

So help me God!

"IV. Provided always, that the assembly of persons for religious worship at the episcopal meetings, be held with doors not locked, barred, or bolted, during such assembly; and that nothing herein contained shall be construed to exempt any of the persons frequenting the said episcopal congregations from payment of tithes or other parochial duties to the church or minister of the parish to which they belong, and in which they reside.

"V. And whereas since the establishment of the Presbyterian government in Scotland, some laws have been made by the parliament in Scotland against the episcopal clergy of that part of the United Kingdom, and particularly an act passed in the parliament held in the year one thousand six hundred ninety-five, intitled, 'Act against irregular Baptisms and Marriages,' by which all episcopal ministers who were turned out of their churches, are prohibited to baptize any children, or to solemnize any marriage, upon pain of perpetual imprisonment or banishment; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said act above-mentioned be hereby repealed and annulled; and that in all time coming no persons shall incur any disability, forfeiture, or penalty whatsoever, upon account of his or their resorting to the said episcopal meetings held for the worship of God; and that it shall be free and lawful for all the subjects in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, to assemble and meet together for Divine service, without any disturbance, and to settle their congregations in what towns or places they shall think fit to choose, except parish churches, and for the episcopal ministers, not only to pray and preach in the episcopal congregations, but to administer the sacraments, and marry, without incurring any pain or penalty whatsoever, by law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VI. Provided always, that the parents who have their children christened by episcopal ministers, be hereby obliged to enter the birth and christening of the children in the register books for christenings belonging to the respective parishes in which they live: and provided likewise, that no episcopal minister or ministers residing within that part of the United Kingdom called Scotland, presume to marry any persons but those whose banns have been duly published three several Lord's days in the episcopal congregations which the two parties frequent, and in the churches to which they belong as parishioners, by virtue of their residence; and that upon the same pains and punishments as are already inflicted by the laws of Scotland in cases of clandestine marriages; and the ministers of the parish churches are hereby obliged to publish the said banns; and in case of neglect or refusal, shall be sufficient to publish the said banns in any episcopal congregation also, by law, statute, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

"VII. Provided always, and it is the true intent and meaning of this act, that all the laws made against profaneness and immorality, and for the frequenting of Divine services on the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, shall be still in force, and executed against all persons that offend against the said laws, or shall do so, either to some church, or to some congregation or assembly of religious society allowed and permitted by this act.

"VIII. Provided likewise, that neither this act, nor any clause, article, or thing herein contained, shall extend, or be construed to extend to give any benefit, or advantage to any papist or popish recusant whatsoever, or to any person that shall deny, in his preaching or writing, the doctrine of the blessed Trinity.

"IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person or persons, at any time after the twenty-fifth day of March next to come, shall willingly, and of purpose, maliciously or contemptuously come into any congregation or assembly of religious worship, permitted by this act, and disquiet or disturb the same, or give any disturbance to the said congregation at the doors or windows, or misuse any minister or pastor of such congregation, such person or persons, upon proof thereof before two justices of the peace, by two or more sufficient witnesses, shall find two sureties to be bound by recognizance in the penal sum of fifty pounds sterling, for his or their appearance at the next general or quarter sessions, or before the court of judicatory, or other judge or judges competent, and in default of such sureties shall be committed to prison, and upon conviction of the said offence, at the said general or quarter sessions, or before the said court of judicatory, or other judge or judges competent, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds sterling; one moiety thereof to the informer, the other to be disposed of for the use of the poor of the parish where such offence shall be committed; and if the magistrates of any town or place, or others pretending to have authority or jurisdiction anywhere in Scotland, shall, in contempt of this law, forbid or hinder those of the episcopal persuasion from meeting or assembling together for divine worship, in the places subject to their jurisdiction, or shall shut up, or cause to be shut up, the doors of the houses, or other places where such episcopal assemblies are held, or intended to be held, such magistrates and others so offending, upon proof thereof before the court of judicatory, by two or more sufficient witnesses, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds sterling, to be distributed as aforesaid.

"X. And be it further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no civil pain or forfeiture, or disability whatsoever, shall be in any ways incurred by any person or persons, by reason of any excommunication or prosecution in order to excommunication by the church judicatories in that part of Great Britain called Scotland; and all civil magistrates are hereby expressly prohibited and discharged to force or compel any person or persons to appear, when summoned, or to give obedience to any such sentence when pronounced; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

"XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every minister and preacher, as well of the established church in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, as those of the episcopal communion protected and allowed by this act shall, at some time during the exercise of the Divine service in such respective church, congregation, or assembly, pray, in express words, for her most sacred majesty Queen Anne, and the most excellent Princess Sophia, electress and duchess dowager of Hanover, while living, and all the royal family: and every such minister or preacher neglecting so to do, shall for the first offence forfeit the sum of twenty pounds sterling, to be recovered and distributed in such manner as touching the other penalties in this act is herein before directed; and for the second offence every minister of the established church in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, being thereof convicted by the oaths of two sufficient witnesses before the lords of judicatory, shall be ipso facto deprived, and declared incapable of any church or ecclesiastical living, during the space of three years; and every episcopal minister allowed and protected by this act, being thereof in like manner convicted, shall from thenceforth forfeit and lose the benefit of this act, and be declared incapable of officiating as pastor of any episcopal congregation, during the space of three years.

"XII. Provided always, that no minister or preacher offending herein, shall suffer such penalties, or either of them, unless he be prosecuted for the same within the space of two months after the offence is committed."

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 7.

Punishment of
such as shall disturb any congregation of religious worship:

and of magistrates hindering those of the episcopal
congregations
to meet, &c.

No forfeiture,
&c. shall be incurred by reason of any excommunication by the church judicatories, &c.

All ministers,
&c. to pray for
the queen, &c.

Forfeiture for
first offence, 20l.; for the second, every minister of the established church to be deprived, &c.
And every episcopal
minister to lose the benefit of this act, &c.

Prosecution to be within two months after
the offence.

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 11.

LII. STAT. 10 ANNÆ, c. 11. A.D. 1711.

"An Act for enlarging the Time given to the Commissioners appointed by Her Majesty, pursuant to an Act for granting to Her Majesty several Dues on Coals, for building fifty new Churches in and about the Cities of London and Westminster, and Suburbs thereof, and other Purposes therein mentioned; and also for giving the said Commissioners further Power for better effecting the same; and for appointing Monies for rebuilding the Parish Church of St. Mary Woolnoth in the City of London."

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 12.

LIII. STAT. 10 ANNÆ, c. 12. A.D. 1711.

"An Act to restore the Patrons to their ancient Rights of presenting Ministers to the Churches vacant in that part of Great Britain called Scotland"

"Whereas by the ancient laws and constitutions of that part of Great Britain called Scotland, the presenting of ministers to vacant churches did of right belong to the patrons, until by the twenty-third act of the second session of the first parliament of the late King William and Queen Mary, held in the year one thousand six hundred and ninety, intituled, 'Act concerning Patronages,' the presentation was taken from the patrons and given to the heritors and elders of the respective parishes; and in place of the right of presentation, the heritors and life-renters of every parish were to pay to the respective patrons a small and inconsiderable sum of money, for which the patrons were to renounce their right of presentation at all times thereafter: and whereas by the fifteenth act of the fifth session, and by the thirteenth act of the sixth session of the first parliament of the said King William, the one intituled, 'An Act for encouraging of Preachers at Vagabond Churches be-north Forth,' and the other intituled, 'Act in favour of Preachers be-north Forth,' there are several burdens imposed upon vacant stipends, to the prejudice of the patron's right of disposing thereof: and whereas that way of calling ministers has proved inconvenient, and has not only occasioned great animosities and divisions among those who by the aforesaid act were entitled and authorized to call ministers, but likewise has been a great hardship upon the patrons, whose predecessors had founded and endowed those churches, and who have not received any compensation or satisfaction for their right of patronage from the aforesaid heritors and life-renters of the respective parishes, nor have granted renunciations of their said right on that account; be it therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commoners in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the aforesaid act made in the year one thousand six hundred and ninety, intituled, 'Act concerning Patronages,' in so far as the same relates to the presentation of ministers by heritors and others therein mentioned, be and is hereby repealed and made void; and that the aforesaid fifteenth act of the fifth session, and the thirteenth act of the sixth session, of the first parliament of King William, be and are hereby likewise repealed and made void; and that in all time coming, the right of electing every patron or patrons to the presentation of ministers to churches and benefices, and the disposing of the vacant stipends for pious uses within the parish, be restored, settled, and confirmed to them, the aforesaid acts, or any other act, statute, or custom to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding: and that from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, it shall and may be lawful for her majesty, her heirs and successors, and for every other person or persons, who have right to any patronage or patronages of any church or churches whatsoever, in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, (and who have not made and subscribed a formal renunciation thereof under their hands) to present a qualified minister or ministers to any church or churches whereof they are patrons, which shall, after the said first day of May, happen to be vacant, and the presbytery of the respective bounds shall and is hereby obliged to receive and admit in the same manner such qualified person or persons, minister or ministers."

The rights of patrons restored.

Crown, and others who have right to patronages, may present qualified ministers, and the presbyteries shall receive them.

shall be presented by the respective patrons, as the persons or ministers presented before the making of this act ought to have been admitted.

STAT. 10 ANN.
c. 12.

"II. Provided always, that in case any patron or patrons have accepted of, and received any sum or sums of money from the heritors or life renters of any parish, or from the magistrates or town council of any borough, in satisfaction of their right of presentation, and have discharged or renounced the same under their hand, that nothing herein shall be construed to restore such patron or patrons to their right of presentation; anything in this present act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Not to restore the right to patrons who have sold the same.

"III. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in case the patron of any church aforesaid shall neglect or refuse to present any qualified minister to such church that shall be vacant the said first day of May, or shall happen to be vacant at any time thereafter, for the space of six months, after the said first day of May, or after such vacancy shall happen, that the right of presentation shall accrue and belong for that time to the presbytery of the bounds where such church is, who are to present a qualified person for that vacancy tamen jure decoluto.

Patron not presenting in six months, the right shall accrue to the presbytery.

"IV. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that the patronage and right of presentations of ministers to all churches which belonged to archbishops, bishops, or other dignified persons, in the year one thousand six hundred eighty-nine, before episcopacy was abolished, as well as those which formerly belonged to the crown, shall and do of right belong to her majesty, her heirs and successors, who may present qualified ministers to such church or churches, and dispose of the vacant stipends thereof for pious uses, in the same way and manner as her majesty, her heirs and successors, may do in the case of other patronages belonging to the crown.

Patronages which, before episcopacy was abolished, belonged to archbishops, &c. shall belong to her majesty, &c.

"V. Declaring always, that nothing in this present act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to repeal and make void the aforesaid twenty-third act of the second session of the first parliament of the late King William and Queen Mary, excepting so far as relates to the calling and presenting of ministers, and to the disposing of vacant stipends in prejudice of the patrons only.

How far the statute of 1 G. & M. Sess. 2, c. 23, shall be repealed.

"VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every patron and patrons, who have not taken, or shall not take, at any time before his or their presenting a minister or ministers to any church or churches aforesaid, the oath appointed to be taken by persons in public trust, by an act made in the sixth year of her majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for the better Security of Her Majesty's Person and Government,' shall, and are hereby obliged, at their signing such presentation, to take and subscribe the aforesaid oath before the sheriff of the shire, steward of the stewartry, or before any two or more justices of the peace of the county or place where such patron resides; and in case such patron or patrons, who have not formerly taken the aforesaid oath, refuse or neglect to take the same at the signing of such presentation, that the same shall be and is hereby declared to be void, and the right of presentation, and of the disposing the vacant stipends for that time, shall belong to her majesty, her heirs and successors, who may present a qualified person to such church or benefice, at any time within the space of six months after such neglect or refusal; anything in this present act, or in any other act, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Patrons to take the oath in 6 Ann. c. 14.

Refusing the presentation shall be void, and the crown shall present.

"VII. And whereas the right of patronage of churches may belong to papists, be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any person or persons, known or suspected to be papists, and who have a right of presenting ministers, shall be obliged, at or before his or their signing any presentation, to purge himself of popery, by taking and signing the formula contained in the third act of the parliament of Scotland, held in the year one thousand seven hundred, intituled, 'An Act for preventing the Growth of Popery;' and in case such popish patron or patrons shall refuse to take and subscribe the formula aforesaid, the same being tendered to him or them by the sheriff of the shire, steward of the stewartry, or any two or more justices of the peace within their respective jurisdiction, who are Known or suspected papists shall take the formula before they present, otherwise the presentation shall be void, and her majesty, &c. may present.

STAT. 10 ANN. c. 12. hereby empowered to administer the same, the presentation, and the right posing the vacant stipends, shall for that time belong to her majesty, her successors, who may present any qualified person or persons within six months after such neglect or refusal; anything in this present act, or any other act, contrary notwithstanding."

STAT. 10 ANN. c. 19.

LIV. STAT. 10 ANNÆ, c. 19(1). A.D. 1711.

"An Act for laying several Duties, &c."

Clause to prevent clandestine marriages. See farther, 26 Geo. 2, c. 33.

"CLXXVI. And whereas great loss hath happened of the duties already upon stamped vellum, parchment, and paper, and other inconveniences daily from clandestine marriages; for remedy thereof for the future, be it enacted the authority aforesaid, that every parson, vicar, or curate, or other person in holy orders, beneficed or not beneficed, who shall, after the four and twentieth of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, marry any person in any church or chapel, exempt or not exempt, or in any other place whatsoever, without publication of the banns of matrimony between the respective parties according to law, or without licence first had and obtained from the proper ordinary for the marriage, shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, to be recovered with full costs of suit, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of her majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no common, petition, or wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed; one moiety thereof to the queen, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or her who shall sue for the same; and if such offender shall be a prisoner in any gaol or gaol (other than a county gaol) at the time of such offence committed, he shall be duly convicted of such offence, by action or information, as aforesaid, then upon oath made of such imprisonment before any judge of her majesty's courts of record at Westminster, and upon producing a copy of the record of the conviction, to be likewise proved upon oath before the said judge, (which oath the said judge is hereby empowered to administer,) the said judge is hereby required to grant his warrant to the keeper of the gaol or prison where such offender is a prisoner, (which warrant such keeper is hereby required to obey,) to remove the offender to the gaol of that county where such offender is a prisoner, there to remain charged in execution with the penalty inflicted by this act, and with all the causes of his former imprisonment; and if any gaoler or keeper of any prison shall be privy to, or knowingly permit, any marriage to be solemnized in his said prison, before publication of banns, or licence obtained, as aforesaid, he shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, to be recovered and distributed, as aforesaid.

Salvo for archbishops &c. jurisdiction.

"CLXXVII. Saving nevertheless to all archbishops, bishops, archdeacons, and other ordinaries, their vicars general, commissaries, and officials, the free exercise of all ecclesiastical jurisdiction, and full power and authority of inflicting all pains and censures for this or any other crime or crimes, as they might have done if this act had not been made.

Not to extend to Scotland.

"CLXXVIII. Provided always, that the said provision for marriage do not extend to that part of Great Britain called Scotland."

STAT. 12 ANN. St. 1. c. 4.

LV. STAT. 12 ANNÆ, St. 1. c. 4. A.D. 1713.

"An Act for making Inclosures of some part of the Common Grounds in the West Riding of the County of York, for the endowing poor Vicarages and Chapelries, for the better Support of their Ministers."

"Whereas in the West Riding of the county of York there are divers parcels of great extent, and very populous, which hath occasioned the erecting of many

(1) Superseded by Stat. 4 Geo. 4, c. Gul. 4 & 1 Vkt. c. 22. Stat. 3 & 4 Vkt. 76; Stat. 6 & 7 Gul. 4, c. 85; Stat. 7 c. 72.

chapels of ease for the benefit of the inhabitants: but there being very small or no settled provision made for the maintenance of the ministers that perform divine offices in those chapels, or for the vicars of many of the parish churches within the said West Riding; and there being large commons or waste grounds, within many of the said parishes, which yield little or no profit or advantage to any person, it would be a great advantage and encouragement to the vicars and ministers there, if they might, by inclosing some parts of the said commons and waste grounds, improve the same for the benefit of themselves and their successors: may it therefore please your most excellent majesty, at the humble suit of the justices of the peace, gentlemen, clergy, freeholders, and other inhabitants of the said riding, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, a parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the one and twentieth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, it shall and may be lawful for any of the inhabitants of any parish in the West Riding of the county of York, wherein any such chapels of ease, as aforesaid, now are, or hereafter shall be erected or built, and wherein there are large wastes or commons, with the consent of the lord or lords of the manor wherein such waste ground lies, (and if there be above two lords of such manor, then with the consent of the major part of them,) and with the consent of three parts of four of all freeholders and others, who have any right of common therein, according to their number, and the value of their respective estates, to inclose any part of the waste or common grounds within such parish (or chapelry therein) not exceeding sixty acres, or a sixth part of such common land, where the said sixth part shall not exceed sixty acres, and to settle the same in trustees and their heirs, for the benefit, and as a maintenance and support of such ministers as shall not have a settled provision of above forty pounds per annum for their maintenance; and shall reside within the same parish or chapelry, and perform divine offices in the parish church or chapel therein, according to the usage of the church of England, and be licensed by the Archbishop of York, or the guardian of the spiritualities, (sede vacante,) any former law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

"II. Saving always, and reserving unto all lords of manors, and other owners and proprietors of royalties within the said riding, their heirs and assigns, all and full manner of mines and quarries of stone, coal, and ore, and other mines, with full power, and free liberty to dig, get, and sough for the same, in and through any such inclosures that shall be made pursuant to this act; and the same so got, with carts, wains, and carriages to take, lead, and carry away.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that after any such inclosure and settlement, it shall not be in the power of any trustee or minister, or any other person whatsoever, to alienate and employ any of the profits of such inclosed lands to any other use or uses, but only for the support and maintenance of the vicar or minister who shall serve the cure, (if it belong to a vicarage,) and to the minister that performs divine service in the chapel, according to the usage of the church of England, (if it be appropriated to any chapel,) and not otherwise.

"IV. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for any of the said trustees and their heirs, from time to time, by any writing or writings under their hands and seals, with the consent of the vicar or minister, for whose use such inclosure is made, to be testified by his being made a party to, and signing and sealing such writing, to demise or lease any common or waste grounds, or any parcel or parcels thereof, that shall be inclosed by virtue of this act, for any term or number of years not exceeding one and twenty, so as upon every such demise or lease there be reserved, payable half-yearly, during the said term, as much rent as shall, at the making such lease, be really gotten for the same; and that such rent be made payable to or for the only use and benefit of such vicar and minister of such vicarage or chapelry, and their successors, and so as no fine, income, or other consideration be taken for the same.

"V. And it is hereby enacted, that all leases made of such inclosures in any

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. 1. C. 4.

After 29th September, 1713, the inhabitants of the West Riding of Yorkshire, where there are chapels of ease, may, with the consent of the lords of manors, &c. inclose part of the wastes, and settle the same in trustees for the support of ministers who have not a settled provision of above 40l. per annum.

Saving to lords of manors all mines, &c.

No trustee, &c. shall alienate the profits of such inclosed lands to any other use but for support of the minister. Trustees, &c. with consent of the minister, may lease the grounds so inclosed for twenty-one years, reserving rent payable half-yearly for the use of the minister.

Lease otherwise made, void.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. I. c. 4.

General issue.

other manner, shall not be good or available in the law, but shall be void.

"VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any suit, or information, shall be commenced or prosecuted against any persons, for anything that he or they shall do or cause to be done in pursuance of this act, such person or persons so sued in any court whatsoever, and may plead the general issue of not guilty; and upon any issue joined this act and the special matter in evidence; and if in any such suit the prosecutor shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or suffer a discharge, or if a verdict shall pass against him upon a demurrer, then in any of these cases, the defendant or defendants shall recover full costs, for which he shall have the like remedy as is allowed in any case where costs are recovered by any former law.

Public act.

"VII. And be it further enacted, that this act shall be taken and all courts within this kingdom, as a public act.

Waste of manors belonging to the queen may be inclosed with consent of the crown, and settled in trustees for the said uses.

"VIII. And whereas some manors within the said West Riding do belong to her majesty in right of the crown; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that by and with the consent of her majesty, her heirs and successors, the consent of three parts of four of the freeholders and others, who have common therein, according to their number, and the value of their estates, it shall and may be lawful to inclose any part of the waste or grounds of such manors not exceeding sixty acres, or a sixth part of such land where the said sixth part shall not exceed sixty acres; and to settle the same in trustees and their heirs, for the charitable purposes aforementioned; and to make any statute to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. I. c. 17.

LVI. STAT. 12 ANNÆ, ST. I. c. 17. A.D. 1713.

"An Act to vest in the Commissioners for building Fifty new Churches about London and Westminster, and Suburbs thereof, as much of the land near the May Pole in the Strand in the County of Middlesex as shall be sufficient to build one of the said Churches upon; and for restoring the Principal and Scholars of King's Hall and College of Brasen Nose in the University of Oxon, their right of Presentation to Churches and Chapels in Stepney Parish."

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 6.

LVII. STAT. 12 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 6. A.D. 1713.

"An Act for taking away Mortuaries within the Dioceses of Bangor, St. David's, and St. Asaph, and giving a Recompense therefore to the Clergy of the said respective Dioceses; and for confirming several Letters Patent granted by Her Majesty, for perpetually annexing a Prebend of Oriel to the Mastership of Pembroke College in Oxford; and a Prebend of Rochester to the Provostship of Oriel College in Oxford; and a Prebend of Norwich to the Mastership of Catharine Hall in Cambridge."

21 Hen. 8,
c. 6, s. 7.

"Whereas by an act of parliament passed in the one and twentieth year of the reign of the late King Henry the Eighth, intituled, 'An Act whereunto should be paid, for what Persons, and how much, and in what case now, and by a proviso or clause therein contained, it is provided (among other things) that it shall be lawful to the Bishops of Bangor, Landaff, St. David's, and St. Asaph, to take such mortuaries of the priests within their dioceses and jurisdictions, as they tofore had been accustomed; and the bishops of the said dioceses for the time being have accordingly used to demand and take, and continue to demand and take, mortuaries upon the death of any clergyman within their said dioceses and jurisdictions; which said mortuaries, consisting of several of the best goods of the deceased, do oftentimes amount to a very considerable part of his estate, and the payment thereof does very much lessen that small provision which good clergy of those dioceses are able to make for the support of their families, and to the great impoverishing of the same: for the remedying whereof for the time being, and for abolishing and taking away all mortuaries or corse-proceeds, and the usage of taking and paying mortuaries or corse-presents upon the death of clergymen within the said dioceses and jurisdictions: and to the end a reasonable recompense and satisfaction for the same may be provided and established for the bishops of the said dioceses for ever; be it therefore enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the said proviso or clause in the said act, and all and every proviso or clause in the same act, so far as the same do or doth relate to the taking any mortuary or corse-present upon the death of any clergyman within the said respective dioceses or jurisdictions, shall immediately, from and after the respective times herein after-mentioned, that is to say, within the said diocese of St. Asaph, from and after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and within the said diocese of Bangor, immediately from and after such time any rectory sine cura shall next happen to be void and be in the collation of the present bishop of the said diocese of Bangor, or of any of his successors; and within the said diocese of Landaff, immediately from and after such time as the treasurerhip, with the prebend thereto annexed, founded in the cathedral church of Landaff, shall next happen to be void, such treasurerhip and prebend being in the collation of the bishop of the said diocese of Landaff; and within the said diocese of St. David's, immediately from and after such time as the prebend of Langamarch, founded in the collegiate church of Brecon, now enjoyed by John Medley, archdeacon of St. David's, shall next happen to be void, the same being in the collation of the Bishop of St. David's, stand and be absolutely repealed, annulled, and void, and all and every such custom, and usage of and for paying, demanding, or taking any mortuary or corse-present, or any goods, thing or things, for or in the name of a mortuary or corse-present, upon the death of any clergyman within the said respective dioceses or jurisdictions, shall, from the respective times aforesaid, for ever, be absolutely abolished and void; and no mortuary or corse-present, or sum or sums of money for or in lieu of the same, or in the name thereof, shall be yielded, paid, answered, or satisfied, or be due or payable by any person or persons to any bishop or either of the said dioceses, or other person or persons claiming by, from, or under any such bishop: and that from and after the respective times aforesaid, it shall not be lawful to or for the respective bishops of the said dioceses, or any of them, their or any or either of their successors, farmers, bailiffs, or lessees, or any of them, or any other person or persons whatsoever, claiming by or under such bishops, or any or either of them, to take, receive, or demand of any person or persons, any manner of mortuary or corse-present, or any sum or sums of money or other thing, for or in the name, lieu, or stead of any mortuary or corse-present, or to convene, cite, sue, or prosecute any person or persons before any judge spiritual, or in any of her majesty's courts of law, or other court whatsoever, for the recovery of, or for, touching or concerning any mortuary or corse-present, or anything in lieu thereof, for or by reason or on account of the death of any priest or clergyman within the said respective dioceses or jurisdictions, at any time after the respective times aforesaid; anything in the said recited act, or any law, custom, or usage whatever to the contrary notwithstanding.

"II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in recompense and satisfaction to the Bishop of St. Asaph and his successors, for such mortuaries as might arise or become due or payable to the said Bishop of St. Asaph, or his successors, by virtue of the said recited act, upon the death of any priest or clergyman, the rectory, sine cura, which shall first after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, happen to be void, and be in the collation of the bishop of the said diocese of St. Asaph, or any of his successors, shall immediately upon such vacancy, and from thenceforth be annexed and united to the said bishoprick of St. Asaph for ever, and all and every the profits, rights, dues, benefits, and advantages whatsoever, of the same rectory, or thereto in any wise belonging or appertaining, shall or may be had, received, taken, and enjoyed by the bishop of the said diocese and his successors for ever.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. 11. c. 6.

The clause in the recited act, so far as it relates to the taking any mortuary in the dioceses of Bangor, Landaff, St. David's, and St. Asaph, repealed.

And the bishops of the said dioceses shall not take any mortuaries after the times limited above.

Recompense to the Bishop of St. Asaph and his successors for such mortuaries.

STAT 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 6.

Recompense to
the Bishop of Bangor, &c.

The Bishops of St. Asaph and Bangor shall not lease the rectories united to their bishoprics for any longer term than they continue
bishops.

Recompense
to the Bishop of Landaff.

To the Bishop
of St. David's.

The queen's
letters patents
to the master of Pembroke College, and to the provost of Oriel College, in Oxon,
and to the warden of Catharine Hall,
in Cambridge,
confirmed.

"III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in recompense and satisfaction to the Bishop of Bangor and his successors, for such mortmain as might arise or become due or payable to the said Bishop of Bangor or his successors, by virtue of the said recited act, upon the death of any priest or clergyman, the rectory, sine cura, which shall next happen to be void, and be in the possession of the bishop of the said diocese of Bangor, or any of his successors, shall immediately upon such vacancy, and from thenceforth be annexed and united to the said bishoprick of Bangor for ever; and all and every the profits, rights, dues, benefits, and advantages whatsoever, of the same rectory, or thereto in any wise belonging or appertaining, shall or may be had, received, taken, and enjoyed by the bishop of the said diocese of Bangor and his successors for ever.

"IV. Provided always, that nothing in this act shall extend to enable any bishop in either of the said dioceses of St. Asaph and Bangor, to demise, let, sell, and that it shall not be lawful to or for the bishops of either of the said dioceses, or any of their successors, to demise, lease, set, or let to farm, or otherwise, any of such rectories, sine cura, annexed and united to the respective bishoprics of St. Asaph and Bangor, as afore-mentioned, or any of the rights, dues, benefits, or profits thereof, for any longer time than such bishop, by whom any lease or other of the said rectories, sine cura, shall be made, shall continue bishop of the said diocese; any statute, law, or usage whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

"V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in recompense and satisfaction to the Bishop of Landaff and his successors, for such mortmain as might arise or become due or payable to the said Bishop of Landaff, or his successors, by virtue of the said recited act, upon the death of any priest or clergyman, whensoever the treasurer'ship, with the prebend thereto annexed, in the cathedral church of Landaff, shall next happen to be void, the said treasurer'ship and prebend shall, immediately upon such vacancy, and from thenceforth be annexed and united to the said bishoprick of Landaff for ever; and all and every the profits, rights, dues, benefits, and advantages whatsoever, of the said treasurer'ship and prebend, or thereto in anywise belonging or appertaining, shall or may be had, received, taken, and enjoyed by the bishop of the said diocese of Landaff and his successors for ever.

"VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in recompense and satisfaction to the Bishop of St. David's and his successors, for such mortmain as might arise or become due or payable to the said Bishop of St. David's, or his successors, by virtue of the said recited act, upon the death of any priest or clergyman, whensoever the said prebend of Langamarch shall next happen to be void, the said prebend shall, immediately upon such vacancy, and from thenceforth be annexed and united to the said bishoprick of St. David's for ever; and all and every the profits, rights, dues, benefits, and advantages whatsoever, of the said prebend, or thereto in any wise belonging or appertaining, shall or may be had, received, taken and enjoyed by the bishop of the said diocese of St. David's, or his successors for ever, in as full and ample manner as the said John Mordaunt hath or enjoyeth, or might or ought to have and enjoy the same.

"VII. And whereas her majesty has been graciously pleased, by her letters patents under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster the eleventh day of November, in the twelfth year of her reign, to incorporate William Brickenden, doctor in divinity, the master of Pembroke College in the University of Oxford, and his successors, masters of the same college, by the name, or title of Master of Pembroke College in the University of Oxford; and did then grant to the said master and his successors, masters of the same college, for the better support and maintenance, that canonship or prebend in the cathedral church of the holy and undivided Trinity of Gloucester, which should first happen to be void, and in the gift of her majesty, her heirs, and successors, from and after the date of the said grant; to have and to hold the said canonship or prebend, with the house of the said Collwell Brickenden, master of the said college, and his successors, masters of the same college, of her majesty, her heirs, and successors, in pure and perpetual service, for and during his and their respective continuance in the said master'ship.

did thereby likewise unite such canonship or prebend, as aforesaid, to the said corporation for ever; and whereas her majesty has been also graciously pleased, by her letters patents under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster the fourteenth day of January, in the twelfth year of her reign, to create George Carter, doctor in divinity, the provost of Oriel College in the city of Oxford, and his successors, provosts of the same college, by the name, and title of Provost of the House of the blessed Virgin Mary, in Oxon, commonly called Oriel College, of the foundation of Edward the Second, some time of England, of famous memory; and did thereby grant to the said provost, and his successors, provosts of the same college, for their better support and maintenance, that canonship or prebend in the cathedral church of Christ, and of the blessed Virgin Mary, of Rochester, which should first happen to be void, and in the gift of her majesty, her heirs, and successors, from and after the date of the said grant; saving always the right of the archdeacons of the said church for the said canonship, to one of the said canonships, by virtue of a former grant; to have and to hold the said canonship or prebend, to the said George Carter, provost of the said college, and his successors, provosts of the same college, of her majesty, her heirs, and successors, in pure and perpetual alms, for and during his and their continuance in the said provostship; and did thereby likewise unite such canonship or prebend, as aforesaid, to the said corporation for ever: and whereas her majesty has been further graciously pleased, by other her letters patents under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster the six and twentieth day of March, in the thirteenth year of her reign, to incorporate Thomas Sherlock, doctor in divinity, master or warden of St. Catharine's College or Hall in the city of Cambridge, and his successors, masters or wardens of the same college or hall, by the name, style, and title of Master or Warden of St. Catharine's College or Hall in the University of Cambridge; and did thereby grant to the said master or warden, and his successors, masters or wardens of the same college or hall, for their better support and maintenance, that canonship or prebend in the cathedral church of the holy and undivided Trinity in Norwich, of the foundation of King Henry the Sixth, which should first happen to be void, and in the gift of her majesty, her heirs, and successors, from and after the date of the said grant; to have and to hold the said canonship or prebend to the said Thomas Sherlock, master or warden of the said college or hall, and his successors, masters or wardens of the same college or hall, of her majesty, her heirs, and successors, in pure and perpetual alms for and during his and their continuance in the said mastership or wardenship; and did thereby likewise unite such canonship or prebend, as aforesaid, to the said corporation for ever; as by the said several and respective recited letters patents (relation being thereunto had) may more fully and at large appear: therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said several and respective letters patents, and all and singular the clauses, articles, and things therein respectively contained, shall be and are hereby ratified and confirmed, and the said canonships or prebends shall be, from time to time, for ever, lawfully enjoyed, according to the true intent and meaning of the several and respective letters patents above recited.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. C. 6.

III. And be it further enacted, that this act shall be taken and allowed in force within this kingdom as a public act.

A public act.

And saving nevertheless, and always reserved unto her majesty, her heirs, and successors, all and singular first-fruits and tenths, in anywise due or payable to her majesty, her heirs, and successors, for or in respect of such rectories sine cura, and canonships, and prebend thereunto annexed, founded in the cathedral church of Ely, and the said prebend of Langamarch, and all such right and title, as her majesty hath in or to such first-fruits and tenths, or any of them, and which shall continue to be levied and paid in like manner as heretofore; anything herein to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Saving to the crown all first-fruits, &c. for such rectories, &c.

And saving also to the queen's majesty, her heirs, and successors, and to the lessee or lessees of the said treasurership and prebend thereunto annexed, in the cathedral church of Landaff, and to the said prebend of Langamarch,

Another saving to the lessees, &c.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 6.

See 28 Geo. 2,
c. 6, for taking away mortuaries in Chester.

and to all and every other person or persons, all such estate, right, title, and interest, in, to, or out of the said treasurership and prebend thereto annexed, and the said prebend of Langamarch, as any such lessee or lessees, or other person or persons, have or might have or claim, in, to, or out of the said treasurership and prebend thereunto annexed, and the said prebend of Langamarch, if this act had not passed."

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 7.

LVIII. STAT. 12 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 7 (1). A.D. 1713.

"An Act to prevent the Growth of Schism, and for the further Security of the Churches of England and Ireland, as by Law established."

13 & 14 Car.
2, c. 4.

"Whereas by an act of parliament made in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of public Prayers, and Administration of Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies; and for establishing the Form of making, ordaining, and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, in the Church of England,' it is, amongst other things, enacted, that every schoolmaster keeping any public or private school, and every person instructing or teaching any youth in any house or private family, as a tutor or schoolmaster, should subscribe, before his or their respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, a declaration or acknowledgment, in which, amongst other things, was contained as follows, viz., 'I, A. B., do declare, that I will conform to the liturgy of the church of England, as it is now by law established;' and if any schoolmaster, or other person instructing or teaching youth in any private house or family, as a tutor or schoolmaster, should instruct or teach any youth as a tutor or schoolmaster before licence obtained from his respective archbishop, bishop, or ordinary of the diocese, according to the laws and statutes of this realm, for which he should pay twelve pence only, and before such subscription and acknowledgment made, as aforesaid, then every such schoolmaster and other instructing and teaching, as aforesaid, should, for the first offence, suffer three months' imprisonment, without bail or mainprize, and for every second and other such offence should suffer three months' imprisonment without bail or mainprize, and also forfeit to his majesty the sum of five pounds: and whereas notwithstanding the said act, sundry papists and other persons dissenting from the church of England, have taken upon them to instruct and teach youth, as tutors or schoolmasters, and have for such purpose openly set up schools and seminaries, whereby, if due and speedy remedy be not had, great danger might ensue to this church and state: for the making the said recited act more effectual, and preventing the danger aforesaid, &c."

See farther,
23 Geo. 2,
c. 28.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 12.

LIX. STAT. 12 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 12 (2). A.D. 1713.

"An Act for the better Maintenance of Curates within the Church of England; and for preventing any Ecclesiastical Persons from buying the next Avoidance (3) of any Church Preferment."

"Whereas the absence of beneficed ministers ought to be supplied by curates that are sufficient and licensed preachers, and no curates or ministers ought to serve in any place without the examination and admission of the bishop of the diocese, or ordinary of the place, having episcopal jurisdiction: but nevertheless, for want of sufficient maintenance and encouragement of such curates, the cures within that part of Great Britain called England, have been in several places meanly supplied: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any rector or vicar (4) having cure of souls shall, from and after the

(1) This statute was repealed by Stat. 5 Geo. 1, c. 4; it has however been inserted, because references have been made to its provisions.

(2) Vide Stat. 36 Geo. 3, c. 83. Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 149. Stat. 57 Geo. 3, c. 99. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 106. Stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 49.

(3) Buying the next avoidance—Vide ante 447-460.

(4) Any rector or vicar—Stat. 12 Ann. St. II. c. 12, is understood as only prohibiting clergymen from purchasing livings for themselves.

nine and twentieth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, nominate and present any curate to the bishop or ordinary, to be licensed or admitted to serve the cure of such rector or vicar in his absence, the said bishop or ordinary, having regard to the greatness of the cure, and the value of the ecclesiastical benefices of such rector or vicar, shall, on or before the granting such license, appoint by writing under his hand and seal a sufficient certain stipend or allowance, not exceeding fifty pounds per annum, nor less than twenty pounds per annum, to be paid or answered at such times as he shall think fit, by such rector or vicar, to such curate, for his support and maintenance; and if it shall appear to the bishop or ordinary, upon complaint or otherwise, that any curate of such rector or vicar, licensed or admitted before the said nine and twentieth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, hath not a sufficient maintenance, it shall be lawful to and for the said bishop or ordinary to appoint him a certain stipend or allowance in like manner as before mentioned; and in case any difference shall arise between any rector or vicar and his curate, touching such stipend or allowance, or the payment thereof, the bishop or ordinary, on complaint to him made, shall summarily hear and determine the same; and in case of neglect or refusal to pay such stipend or allowance, may sequester the profits of such benefice, for or until payment thereof.

"II. And whereas some of the clergy have procured preferments for themselves by buying ecclesiastical livings, and others have been thereby discouraged; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any person, from and after the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, shall or do, for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or advantage, directly or indirectly, or for or by reason of any promise, agreement, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, of or for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit whatsoever, directly or indirectly, in his own name, or in the name of any other person or persons, take, procure, or accept the next avoidance of, or presentation to any benefice with cure of souls, dignity, prebend, or living ecclesiastical, and shall be presented or collated thereupon, that then every such presentation or collation, and every admission, institution, investiture, and induction upon the same, shall be utterly void, frustrate, and of no effect in law, and such agreement shall be deemed and taken to be a simoniacal contract; and that it shall and may be lawful to and for the queen's majesty, her heirs, and successors, to present or collate unto, or give or bestow every such benefice, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical, for that one time or turn only; and the person so corruptly taking, procuring, or accepting any such benefice, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon, and from thenceforth, be adjudged a disabled person in law, to have and enjoy the same benefice, dignity, prebend, or living ecclesiastical, and shall also be subject to any punishment, pain, or penalty, limited, prescribed, or inflicted by the laws ecclesiastical, in like manner as if such corrupt agreement had been made after such benefice, dignity, prebend, or living ecclesiastical, had become vacant; any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 12.

Bishop, &c.
to appoint a stipend to curates not exceeding 50*l.* per annum, nor less than 20*l.*

Penalty of taking for any sum of money,
&c. the next
avoidance, &c.
31 Eliz. c. 6.
1 G. & M.
St. I. c. 16.

LX. STAT. 12 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 14 (1). A.D. 1713.

"An Act for rendering more Effectual an Act made in the third year of the Reign of King James the First, intituled, 'An Act to prevent and avoid Dangers which may grow by Popish Recusants;' and also of one other Act made in the first year of the Reign of their late Majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, 'An Act to vest in the two Universities the Presentations of Benefices belonging to Papists;' and for vesting in the Lords of Justiciary, Power to inflict the same Punishments against Jesuits, Priests, and other trafficking Papists, which the Privy Council of Scotland was empowered to do by an Act passed in the Parliament of Scotland, intituled, 'An Act for preventing the Growth of Popery.'"

"Forasmuch as by an act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of King James the First, intituled, 'An Act to prevent and avoid Dangers which

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 14.

3 Jac. I, c. 4.

(1) Vide Stat. 11 Geo. 2, c. 17.

STAT. 12 ANN.
 ST. II. c. 14.
 1 G. & M.
 SESS. 1. c. 26.

Papists, &c.
 disabled to present to any benefice, &c.
 5 Jac. 1, c. 6.
 25 Car. 2, c. 2.

And the two universities
 shall have the presentation,
 &c. in the respective counties, &c.
 mentioned in
 3 Jac. 1, c. 5.

When any presentation is brought to any archbishop,
 &c. he may tender to the person, if present, the declaration in 25 Car. 2, c. 2.

If absent, summon him
 to appear.

may grow by Popish Recusants,' and also one other Act made in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, 'An Act to vest in the two Universities the Presentations of Benefices belonging to Papists (1);' the presentation, nomination, collation, and donation, of and to benefices, prebends, or ecclesiastical livings, schools, hospitals, and donatives, belonging to popish recusants, and other persons thereby disabled to present, collate, or nominate, are given to the two universities; but they are so given only where such persons are and stand convicted by such ways and means as in the said recited acts are mentioned and provided; which acts do nevertheless prove ineffectual for such purposes, by reason such patrons are not convicted, or not in such manner as the said acts do direct and appoint; therefore, for making the said laws more effectual, and for the speedier and easier vesting the presentations to such benefices in the two universities, according to the intention of the said laws, be it enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that every papist or person making profession of the popish religion, and every child not being a protestant, under the age of one and twenty years, of every such papist or person professing the popish religion, and every mortgagee, trustee, or person any ways intrusted, directly or indirectly, mediate or immediately, by or for any such papist or person making profession of the popish religion, or such child, as aforesaid, whether such trust be declared by writing or not, shall, from and after the tenth day of July, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, be disabled, and is hereby made incapable to present, collate, or nominate to any benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living, school, hospital, or donative, or to grant any avoidance of any benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living; and that every such presentation, collation, nomination, and grant, and every admission, institution, and induction, to be made thereupon, shall be utterly void and of no effect, to all intents, constructions, and purposes whatsoever; and that in every such case the chancellor and scholars of the University of Oxford, and the chancellor and scholars of the University of Cambridge, by what name or names soever they or either of them are incorporated, shall respectively have the presentation, nomination, collation, and donation, of and to every such benefice, prebend, or ecclesiastical living, school, hospital, and donative, set, lying, and being, in the respective counties, cities, and other places and limits in the said act of the third year of King James mentioned, as in and by the said act is directed and appointed in the case of a popish recusant convict.

"II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the said tenth day of July, when and as often as any presentation to any benefice or ecclesiastical living shall be brought to any archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, from any person who shall be reputed to be, or whom such archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, shall have cause to suspect to be a papist, or trustee of any person making profession of the popish religion, or suspected to be such, it shall and may be lawful to and for such archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, and he is hereby required to tender or administer to every such person, if present, the declaration against transubstantiation, set down and expressed in an act of parliament made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from Popish Recusants,' to be by such person made, repeated, and subscribed; and in case such person shall be absent, the said archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, shall, by note in writing to be left at the place of habitation of such person, appoint some convenient time and place when and where such person shall appear before such archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, or some persons to be authorized by such archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, by commission under his or their seal of office; and upon such appearance the said archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, or such commissioners, shall tender or administer the said declaration to the person making such presentation; and in case such person shall neglect or refuse to make, repeat, and subscribe such declaration, when the same shall be so tendered, as aforesaid, or shall neglect or refuse to appear before such archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, or such commissioners, upon such notice as aforesaid, that then such presentation shall be utterly void and of none effect; and in every such case, such archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, shall, within ten days next after such neglect or refusal, send and give a certificate under his or their seal of office of such neglect or refusal to the vice-chancellor for the time being, of that university to whom such presentation would of right belong, if such person so presenting had been a popish recusant convict; and it shall and may be lawful, to and for the chancellor and scholars of such university to present a person qualified according to the said act, to such benefice or ecclesiastical living; and the presentation to such benefice or ecclesiastical living, for that turn only, is hereby given unto, and vested in them for that purpose; any matter, clause, or thing contained in either of the said former recited acts to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

(1) Presentations of Benefices belonging to Papists.—Where a protestant and a catholic are co-patrons of an advowson, the right of presentation is in the protestant alone. Edwards v. Fowler (Bishop of) 1 Bing. N. C. 652. Anti 529.

"III. And for the better discovery of all secret trusts and fraudulent conveyances made by papists or persons making profession of the popish religion, of their advowsons and right of presentation, nomination and donation, to any benefices or ecclesiastical livings; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that when the presentation of any person presented to any benefice or ecclesiastical living, shall be brought to any archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, the said archbishop, bishop, or ordinary is hereby required, before he give institution, to examine the person presented, upon oath, whether to the best and utmost of his knowledge and belief, the person or persons who have made such presentation, be the true and real patron or patrons of the said benefice or ecclesiastical living, or made the said presentation in his, or her, or their own right, or whether such person or persons so presenting be not mediately or immediately, directly or indirectly, trustee or trustees, or any way intrusted for some other, and what person or persons by name, who is or are papists, or make profession of the popish religion, or the children of such, or for any other and what person or persons, or what he knows, has heard, or believes, touching or concerning the same; and if such person or persons so presented shall refuse to be so examined, or shall not answer directly thereto, then and in every such case such presentation shall be void.

"IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful for the chancellor and scholars of the respective universities, to whom the presentations to such benefices and ecclesiastical livings should belong, in case the rightful patrons had been popish recusants convict, and their presenters or clerks, for the better discovery of such secret and fraudulent trusts, had, done, made, and created, by or for such papists or persons professing the popish religion, and their children, as aforesaid, to exhibit their bill in any court of equity against such person or persons presenting, and such person or persons as they have reason to believe to be the cestui que trust of the advowson of such benefice or ecclesiastical living, or any other person who they have cause to suspect may be able to make any other or further discovery of such secret trusts and practices; to which bill the defendants therein named, being duly served with the process of the court in which the said bill shall be exhibited, shall forthwith directly answer to the facts charged and inquired in the said bill, at the discretion of the court where such bill shall be exhibited; and in case the defendants, or any of them, shall refuse or neglect to answer the said bill in such reasonable time as shall be for that purpose allowed and appointed, by discretion of the said court where the said cause shall be depending, (the distance of place and the circumstances of the defendant or defendants considered,) that then and in such case the said bill shall be taken pro confesso, and be allowed as evidence against such person so neglecting and refusing, and his trustee or trustees, and his and their clerk: provided that every person having fully answered such bill in such court of equity, and not knowing anything of any such trust for a papist or other person disabled

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. 11. C. 14.

Refusing to make the declaration, or to appear, the presentation shall be void; and the archbishop, &c. shall certify such refusal to the university, who shall present, &c.

Bishop, &c. to examine persons presented on oath.

Refusing to be examined, the presentation shall be void.

University may exhibit bills in chancery for the discovery of fraudulent trusts.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. C. 14.

When any
quare impedit
is depending,
the court may administer an oath to discover
any secret trust.

The answer of such patron,
&c. to be allowed as evidence.

Persons making such discovery, liable
only to the loss of the presentation.

If such bill be exhibited by the university,
no lapse shall incur, &c. till three months after the answer put in, &c.

The university
may sue any writ of quare
impedit, &c.

as aforesaid, shall be entitled to his costs, to be taxed according to the course of the court.

“V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful for the court where any quare impedit shall be hereafter depending, at the instance of either of the said chancellors and scholars, or their clerk, being plaintiffs or defendants in such suit, by motion in open court, at their discretion, to make any rule or order requiring satisfaction, upon the oath of such patron and his clerk, who in the said suit shall contest the right of the said university to present such benefice or ecclesiastical living, by examination of them or either of them, in open court, or by commission under the seal of such court for examination of them or either of them, or by affidavit, as the said court shall find most proper, in order to the discovery of any secret trust, frauds, or practices, relating to the said presentation then in question; and in case it appear to the court, upon the examination of such patron and clerk, or either of them, that the said patron is but a trustee for some other person or persons, that then the said patron and his clerk shall discover who such person and persons are, and where he, she, or they live or inhabit; and upon their refusal to make such discovery, or to give such satisfaction, as aforesaid, they shall be punished as persons that are guilty of a contempt to the said court; and in case such patron or his clerk shall discover the person for whom the said patron is a trustee, that then and in such case the said court, upon motion made in open court, shall make a rule or order, that the person or persons, for whom the said patron is a trustee, shall, in the said court, or before commissioners to be appointed for that purpose, under the seal of the said court, make, repeat, and subscribe the declaration against transubstantiation herein before-mentioned, and likewise, on pain of incurring a contempt against the said court, give such further satisfaction upon oath, touching or relating to the said trust, as the said court shall think fit; and such person so required to make, repeat, and subscribe the said declaration, and refusing or neglecting so to do, shall be esteemed as a popish recusant convict, in respect of such presentation.

“VI. And be it further enacted, that the answer of such patron and patroness, and the person for whom he or they are any ways intrusted, and his and their clerk, or any of them, and his and their or any of their examinations and affidavits taken, as aforesaid, by order of any court where such quare impedit shall be depending, or by any archbishop, bishop, or other ordinary, or the commissioners, as aforesaid, (which examinations shall therefore be reduced into writing, and signed by the party examined,) shall be allowed as evidence against such patron so presenting, and his clerk.

“VII. Provided always, that no such bill, nor any discovery to be made by any answer thereunto, or to any such examination, as aforesaid, shall be made use of to subject any person making any such discovery, or not answering such bill, to any penalty or forfeiture, other than the loss of the presentation then in question.

“VIII. And it is hereby further enacted, that in case of any such bill or bills of discovery, as aforesaid, exhibited in any court of equity by the chancellor and scholars of either of the said universities, or their presentee, no lapse shall incur, nor plenarily be a bar, against such chancellor and scholars in respect of the benefice or ecclesiastical living, touching which such bill shall be exhibited, till after three months from the time that the answer to such bill shall be put in, or the same be taken pro confesso, or the prosecution thereof deserted; provided that such bill or bills be exhibited before any lapse incurred.

“IX. And whereas it hath been doubted whether any writ of quare impedit brought by the respective universities, for any presentation, nomination, collation or donation, pursuant to the said recited acts, or either of them, may be brought by them, in or by the name of chancellor and scholars, or ought to be by their true name of incorporation respectively; it is hereby declared, that the said respective chancellor and scholars of the said universities are by this act, and were by the said former acts, entitled to sue any writ of quare impedit by the name of chancellor and scholars of the university of Oxford, and chancellor and scholars of the university of Cambridge respectively, or by their respective proper names of incorporation, at their election.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 14.

"X. And be it further enacted, that in case of any trust for any papist, or person professing the popish religion, confessed or discovered in and by any answer to such bill, as aforesaid, or such examination, as aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful for the court where such discovery shall be made, and such court is hereby enabled, to enforce the producing of the deeds creating and relating to the said trusts, by such methods as they shall find proper.

The court may enforce the producing of deeds relating to trusts.

"XI. Provided always, that nothing herein before contained shall extend to that part of Great Britain called Scotland.

Not to extend to Scotland.

"XII. And whereas by the determination of the late privy council of Scotland, the punishments contained in an act of the parliament of Scotland, passed in the eighth session of the first parliament of King William, intituled, 'An Act for preventing the Growth of Popery,' cannot be fully put in execution against jesuits, priests, and other trafficking papists, who disguise and shelter themselves under borrowed names, to avoid the penalty of the law; it is therefore hereby enacted, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the lords of her majesty's judiciary in Scotland be hereby empowered to inflict the same punishments against jesuits, priests, and other trafficking papists, which the privy council of Scotland was empowered to do by the aforesaid act of parliament."

The lords of judiciary may inflict the same punishment on jesuits, &c. which the privy council of Scotland was empowered to do by an act passed in that kingdom. Farther provisions relating hereto, 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 55; 3 Geo. 1, c. 18; 11 Geo. 2, c. 17; 33 Geo. 2, c. 13.

visions relating hereto, 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 55; 3 Geo. 1, c. 18; 11 Geo. 2, c. 17; 33 Geo. 2, c. 13.

LXI. STAT. 12 ANNÆ, ST. II. c. 18. A.D. 1713.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 18.

"An Act for the preserving all such Ships and Goods thereof, which shall happen to be forced on Shore, or stranded upon the Coasts of this Kingdom, or any other Her Majesty's Dominions."

"Whereas by an act made in the third year of the reign of King Edward the First, concerning wrecks at sea, it is enacted, that where a man, a dog, or a cat, escape quick out of the ship, that such ship, nor barge, nor anything in them, shall be adjudged a wreck, but the goods shall be saved, and kept by view of the sheriff, coroner, or the king's bailiff, and delivered into the hands of such as are of the town where the goods were found; so that if any sue for those goods, and after prove that they were his, or perished within his keeping, within a year and a day, they shall be restored to him without delay, and if not, they shall remain to the king, or to such others to whom wreck belongeth; and he that otherwise doth, and thereof be attainted, shall be awarded to prison, and make fine at the king's will: and whereas by another act made in the fourth year of the reign of the said King Edward the First, intituled, De officio Coronatoris, concerning the wreck of the sea, it is enacted, that wheresoever it be found, if any lay hands of it, he shall be attached by sufficient pledges, and the price of the wreck shall be valued, and delivered to the town: and whereas great complaints have been made by several merchants, as well her majesty's subjects as foreigners, trading to and from this kingdom, that many ships of trade, after all their dangers at sea escaped, have unfortunately near home run on shore, or been stranded on the coast thereof; and that such ships have been barbarously plundered by her majesty's subjects, and their cargoes embezzled, and when any part thereof has been saved, it has been swallowed up by exorbitant demands for salvage, to the great loss of her majesty's revenue, and to the much greater damage of her majesty's trading subjects: for remedy whereof be it enacted by the queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the sheriffs, justices of the peace of every county, or county of a city or town, and also all mayors, bailiffs, and other head officers of corporations and port-towns near adjoining to the sea, and all constables, headboroughs, tithingmen, and officers of the customs in all and every such places, shall, upon application made to them, or any of them, by or on the behalf of any commander or chief officer of any ship or vessel of any of her majesty's subjects, or others being in danger of being stranded or run

3 Edw. 1, c. 4.

4 Edw. 1.
St. II.

Sheriffs, mayors, &c. and custom-house officers, to summon men to assist ships in distress.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. C. 18.

All ships to assist;

on forfeiture
of 100*l*.

Reasonable
salvage to be
made.
By 5 Geo. 1.
c. 11, s. 13,
goods saved
from stranded
ships are to pay custom.

Three justices
to adjust the quantum.

Goods not claimed in twelve months
to be sold,

and the monies
transmitted
into the Exchequer, &c.

on shore, or being stranded or run on shore, are hereby empowered and command the constables of the several ports within her majesty's dominions to the sea coasts where any such ship or vessel shall be in danger, as aforesaid, to summon and call together as many men as shall be thought necessary to assistance and for the preservation of such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, and their cargoes; and that if there shall be any ship or vessel, either merchant's ship, belonging to her majesty, or any of her subjects, riding near the place where such ship or vessel is in distress or danger, as aforesaid, the officers of the customs, and constables above-mentioned, or any of them, shall be empowered and required to demand of the superior officers of such ship or vessel so riding at anchor, as aforesaid, assistance by their boats, and such hands as they can conveniently spare, for the said service and preservation of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid; and that in case such superior officer of such ship or vessel riding at anchor, as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to give assistance, he shall forfeit for the same the sum of one hundred pounds, to be levied by the superior officer of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, with their costs of suit, in any of her majesty's courts of record, by bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed.

"II. And for the encouragement of such persons as shall give their assistance to such ships or vessels so in distress as aforesaid, be it further enacted, that the collectors of the customs, and the master or commanding officer of any ship or vessel, and all others who shall act or be employed in the preserving of any ship or vessel in distress, as aforesaid, or their cargoes, shall within six calendar months after the service performed be paid a reasonable reward for the same, by the commander, master, or other superior officer, mariners or owners of the ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or by the merchant, whose ship, vessel, or cargo shall be so saved, as aforesaid; and in default thereof, the said ship, vessel, or cargo so saved, as aforesaid, shall remain in the custody of such officer of the customs, or his deputy, until such time that all charges shall be paid, and until the satisfaction of the several parties that are to receive the same: and the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, and the said master or other superior officer, mariners or owners of the ship or vessel, and all others so employed, as aforesaid, shall be reasonably satisfied for their said assistance and trouble, or good security given for that purpose: and after such salvage, the commander or other superior officer, mariners or owners of such ship or vessel so saved, as aforesaid, or merchant whose goods or cargo shall be so saved as aforesaid, shall disagree with the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, touching the monies deserved by any of the persons so employed, as aforesaid, shall be lawful for the commander of such ship or vessel so saved, or the merchant, or the goods, or the merchant interested therein, and also for the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, to nominate three of the neighbouring justices of the peace, who shall thereupon adjust the quantum of the monies or gratuities to be paid to the several persons acting or being employed in the salvage of the said ship or vessel, or goods; and such adjustments shall be binding to all parties, and shall be veritable in an action at law to be brought in any of her majesty's courts of record, by the respective persons to whom the same shall be allotted by the said justices of the peace; and in case it shall happen, that no person shall appear to make claim to all or any the goods that shall be saved, that then and in such case the said officer of the customs of the nearest port to the place where the said ship or vessel was so in distress, as aforesaid, shall apply to three of the nearest justices of the peace, who shall put him or some other responsible person in possession of the said goods, such justices of peace taking an account in writing of the said goods, and signed by such officer of the customs; and if the said goods shall not be claimed within the space of twelve months next ensuing, by the right owner thereof, then public sale shall be made thereof, and if perishable goods, they shall be sold, and after all charges deducted, the residue of the monies arising from the sale, with a fair and just account of the whole, shall be transmitted to the Exchequer, there to remain for the benefit of the rightful owner, when upon affidavit or other proof made of his or their right or property thereto, to the satisfaction of one of the barons of the coife of the Exchequer, shall upon his receipt receive the same out of the Exchequer.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 18.

III. And it is hereby also enacted, that if any person or persons whatsoever, as those empowered by the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, and the ables, as aforesaid, shall enter or endeavour to enter on board any such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, without the leave or consent of the commander, or his superior officer of the said ship, or of the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, or of the said constable, or some or one of them employed for the service of the preservation of the said ship or vessel, as aforesaid; or in case any person shall molest him, them, or any of them, in the saving of the said ship, vessel, or goods, shall endeavour to impede or hinder the saving of any such ship, vessel, or goods, when any such goods are saved, shall take out or deface the marks of any such goods, before the same shall be taken down in a book or books for that purpose directed by the commander or ruling officer, and the first officer of the customs, as aforesaid, such person or persons shall, within the space of twenty days, make satisfaction to the party grieved, at the discretion of the two next justices of the peace, or in default thereof, shall by such justices of peace be sent to the next gaol of correction, where he shall continue and be employed in hard labour by the space of twelve months then next ensuing; and that it shall be lawful for any commander or superior officer of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or the said officer of the customs, or constables on board the same ship or vessel, to repel by force any such person or persons as shall, without such leave or consent from the said commander or superior officer, or the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, or such constables, as aforesaid, press on board the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, and thereby molest them in the preservation of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid.

Persons entering ships without leave,

or hindering the saving of the ship, to make double satisfaction.

Masters may repel pressers into the ship.

IV. And it is hereby likewise enacted, that in case any goods shall be found on board any person or persons, that were stolen or carried off from any such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, he, she, or they, on whom such goods shall be found, shall immediately, upon demand, deliver the same to the owner thereof, or to any person by such owner authorized to receive the same, or in default thereof, shall be liable to pay treble the value of such goods, to be recovered by such owner in any action at law to be brought for the same.

Goods carried off, to be immediately delivered up.

Penalty treble the value.

V. And it is hereby moreover enacted, that if any person or persons shall molest, or be assisting in the making any hole in the bottom, side, or any other part of any ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or shall steal any pump belonging to any ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or shall be aiding or abetting in the taking of such pump, as aforesaid, or shall wilfully do anything tending to the destruction of such ship or vessel, such person or persons shall be deemed and are hereby made guilty of felony (1), without any benefit of his, her, or clergy.

Making holes in the ship, &c. felony.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any action, suit, or information, shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person or persons for anything that he or they shall do, or cause to be done, in pursuance of the powers and authorities, or any of the orders or directions therein mentioned, all and every person and persons so sued in any court of law, shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special verdict in evidence; and if in any such suit the plaintiff or prosecutor shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or discontinue the suit, or if a verdict shall pass against him, or judgment be given against him upon a demurrer, then in any of the said cases, the defendant or defendants shall recover full costs, for which he shall have the like remedy as where costs by law are awarded; and this remedy shall be taken and allowed in all courts within this kingdom as a public act,

General issue.

Public act.

Notes:—Such enactments of Stat. 12 Ann. c. 18, ss. 4 & 5, as relate to the case of a ship or vessel upon whom any goods stolen or carried off from any vessel in distress shall be found, and to the several offences touching vessels in distress which are thereby made capital felonies, have been repealed by Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 27.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. 11. C. 18.

All ships to assist;

on forfeiture
of 100*l*.

Reasonable
salvage to be made.
By 5 Geo. 1.
c. 11, s. 13,
goods saved
from stranded
ships are to pay custom.

Three justices
to adjust the quantum.

Goods not claimed in twelve months
to be sold,

and the monies
transmitted
into the Exchequer, &c.

on shore, or being stranded or run on shore, are hereby empowered and required to command the constables of the several ports within her majesty's dominions, nearest to the sea coasts where any such ship or vessel shall be in danger, as aforesaid, to summon and call together as many men as shall be thought necessary to the assistance and for the preservation of such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, and their cargoes; and that if there shall be any ship or vessel, either man of war or merchant's ship, belonging to her majesty, or any of her subjects, riding at anchor near the place where such ship or vessel is in distress or danger, as aforesaid, the officers of the customs, and constables above-mentioned, or any of them, are hereby empowered and required to demand of the superior officers of such ship or vessel so riding at anchor, as aforesaid, assistance by their boats, and such hands as they can conveniently spare, for the said service and preservation of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid; and that in case such superior officer of such ship or vessel riding at anchor, as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to give such assistance, he shall forfeit for the same the sum of one hundred pounds, to be recovered by the superior officer of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, together with their costs of suit, in any of her majesty's courts of record, by action, debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed.

"II. And for the encouragement of such persons as shall give their assistance to such ships or vessels so in distress as aforesaid, be it further enacted, that the said collectors of the customs, and the master or commanding officer of any ships or vessels, and all others who shall act or be employed in the preserving of any such ship or vessel in distress, as aforesaid, or their cargoes, shall within thirty days after the service performed be paid a reasonable reward for the same, by the commander, master, or other superior officer, mariners or owners of the ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or by the merchant, whose ship, vessel, or goods shall be so saved, as aforesaid; and in default thereof, the said ship, vessel, or goods so saved, as aforesaid, shall remain in the custody of such officer of the customs, or his deputy, until such time that all charges shall be paid, and until the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, and the said master or other officer of the ship or vessel, and all others so employed, as aforesaid, shall be reasonably gratified for their said assistance and trouble, or good security given for that purpose, to the satisfaction of the several parties that are to receive the same: and that in case after such salvage, the commander or other superior officer, mariners or owners of such ship or vessel so saved, as aforesaid, or merchant whose goods shall be so saved as aforesaid, shall disagree with the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, touching the monies deserved by any of the persons so employed, as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the commander of such ship or vessel so saved, or the owner of the goods, or the merchant interested therein, and also for the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, to nominate three of the neighbouring justices of the peace, who shall thereupon adjust the quantum of the monies or gratuities to be paid to the several persons acting or being employed in the salvage of the said ship, vessel, or goods; and such adjustments shall be binding to all parties, and shall be reversible in an action at law to be brought in any of her majesty's courts of record, by the respective persons to whom the same shall be allotted by the said justices of peace; and in case it shall happen, that no person shall appear to make his claim to all or any the goods that shall be saved, that then and in such case, the chief officer of the customs of the nearest port to the place where the said ship or vessel was so in distress, as aforesaid, shall apply to three of the nearest justices of the peace, who shall put him or some other responsible person in possession of the said goods, such justices of peace taking an account in writing of the said goods, to be signed by such officer of the customs; and if the said goods shall not be legally claimed within the space of twelve months next ensuing, by the rightful owner thereof, then public sale shall be made thereof, and if perishable goods, forthwith to be sold, and after all charges deducted, the residue of the monies arising by such sale, with a fair and just account of the whole, shall be transmitted to her majesty's Exchequer, there to remain for the benefit of the rightful owner, when appearing.

who upon affidavit or other proof made of his or their right or property thereto, to the satisfaction of one of the barons of the coife of the Exchequer, shall upon his order receive the same out of the Exchequer.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. 11. c. 18.

“III. And it is hereby also enacted, that if any person or persons whatsoever, besides those empowered by the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, and the constables, as aforesaid, shall enter or endeavour to enter on board any such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, without the leave or consent of the commander, or other superior officer of the said ship, or of the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, or of the said constable, or some or one of them employed for the service and preservation of the said ship or vessel, as aforesaid; or in case any person shall molest him, them, or any of them, in the saving of the said ship, vessel, or goods, or shall endeavour to impede or hinder the saving of any such ship, vessel, or goods, or when any such goods are saved, shall take out or deface the marks of any such goods, before the same shall be taken down in a book or books for that purpose provided by the commander or ruling officer, and the first officer of the customs, as aforesaid, such person or persons shall, within the space of twenty days, make double satisfaction to the party grieved, at the discretion of the two next justices of peace, or in default thereof, shall by such justices of peace be sent to the next house of correction, where he shall continue and be employed in hard labour by the space of twelve months then next ensuing; and that it shall be lawful for any commander or superior officer of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or for the said officer of the customs, or constables on board the same ship or vessel, to repel by force any such person or persons as shall, without such leave or consent from the said commander or superior officer, or the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, or such constables, as aforesaid, press on board the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, and thereby molest them in the preservation of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid.

Persons entering ships without leave,

or hindering the saving the ship, to make double satisfaction.

Masters may repel pressers into the ship.

“IV. And it is hereby likewise enacted, that in case any goods shall be found upon any person or persons, that were stolen or carried off from any such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, he, she, or they, on whom such goods shall be found, shall immediately, upon demand, deliver the same to the owner thereof, or to such person by such owner authorized to receive the same, or in default thereof, shall be liable to pay treble the value of such goods, to be recovered by such owner in an action at law to be brought for the same.

Goods carried off, to be immediately delivered up.

Penalty treble the value.

“V. And it is hereby moreover enacted, that if any person or persons shall make, or be assisting in the making any hole in the bottom, side, or any other part of any ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or shall steal any pump belonging to any ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or shall be aiding or abetting in the stealing of such pump, as aforesaid, or shall wilfully do anything tending to the immediate loss or destruction of such ship or vessel, such person or persons shall be and are hereby made guilty of felony (1), without any benefit of his, her, or their clergy.

Making holes in the ship, &c. felony.

“VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any action, suit, or information, shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person or persons, for anything that he or they shall do, or cause to be done, in pursuance of this act, and executing any of the powers and authorities, or any of the orders or directions therein mentioned, all and every person and persons so sued in any court whatsoever, shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if in any such suit the plaintiff or prosecutor shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or discontinue the suit, or if a verdict shall pass against him, or judgment be given against him upon a demurrer, then in any of the said cases, the defendant or defendants shall recover full costs, for which he and they shall have the like remedy as where costs by law are awarded; and this act shall be taken and allowed in all courts within this kingdom as a public act,

General issue

Public act.

(1) Felony.—Such enactments of Stat. 12 Ann. St. 11. c. 18, ss. 4 & 5, as relate to any person upon whom any goods stolen or carried off from any vessel in distress shall be found, and to the several offences touching vessels in distress which are thereby made capital felonies, have been repealed by Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 27.

STAT. 12 ANN.
ST. II. c. 18.

Custom-house officer abusing his trust, to forfeit treble
damages, and disabled.

Act to commence 1st August, 1714,
and to be read four times in the year on Sundays in sea-port towns.

Claims to wreck saved.

Continuation.

and all judges and justices are hereby required to take notice thereof as such without special pleading of the same.

“VII. Provided nevertheless, if any officer of the customs, or his deputy so empowered, as above, shall, by fraud or wilful neglect, abuse the trust so hereby reposed in him, as aforesaid, and shall be convicted thereof in due form of law, such officer, or his deputy, shall respectively forfeit treble damages to the party grieved, to be recovered in any action or suit to be brought in any court of record, and shall from thenceforth be fully disabled and rendered incapable of the same, or any other employment relating to the said customs (1).

“VIII. And it is hereby further enacted, that this act, and the several clauses herein contained, shall take effect from and after the first day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and that for the better observing the same, this act shall be read four times in the year in all the parish churches and chapels of every sea-port town, and upon the sea-coast in this kingdom upon the Sundays (2) next before Michaelmas-day, Christmas-day, Lady-day, and Midsummer-day in the morning, immediately after the prayers, and before the sermon.

“IX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, that neither this act, nor anything herein contained, shall any ways extend to deprive, or any ways prejudice her royal majesty, her heirs or successors, or any claiming under them, or any of them, or any patentee or grantee of the crown, or any lord or lords of any manor or manors, or other person whatsoever, of or in relation to any right which they, or any of them respectively have, or shall have, or lawfully may claim to any wreck or wrecks, or any goods that are or shall be flotsam, jetsam, or lagan, but that such respective rights shall be enjoyed in as full, ample, and beneficial a manner, in every respect, as if this act had never been made.

“X. Provided that this act shall continue in force for the space of three years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer. [Made perpetual by Stat. 4 Geo. 1, c. 12.]”

(1) Customs:—So much of Stat. 12 Ann. St. II. c. 18, as relates to the revenue of customs, was repealed by Stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 105, s. 61.

(2) This act shall be read four times in the year, in all the parish churches and chapels of every sea-port town, and upon the sea-coast in this kingdom, upon the Sundays:—Whether Stat. 7 Gul. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 45, has affected the provisions of Stat. 12 Ann. St. II. c. 18, s. 8, is very questionable.

STATUTA GEORGII I.

A.D. 1714—1727.

	Page		Page
I. Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 5	719	XXIII. Stat. 5 Geo. 1, c. 29	742
II. c. 6	719	XXIV. Stat. 6 Geo. 1, c. 5 [Ir.]	742
III. c. 10	721	XXV. c. 11 [Ir.]	742
IV. c. 13	732	XXVI. c. 13 [Ir.]	742
V. c. 23	732	XXVII. c. 14 [Ir.]	743
VI. c. 29	732	XXVIII. Stat. 7 Geo. 1, c. 29	744
VII. c. 47	732	XXIX. Stat. 8 Geo. 1, c. 11 [Ir.]	744
VIII. c. 50	732	XXX. c. 12 [Ir.]	747
IX. c. 55	732	XXXI. c. 15 [Ir.]	749
X. Stat. 2 Geo. 1, c. 14 [Ir.]	732	XXXII. c. 29	749
XI. c. 15 [Ir.]	737	XXXIII. Stat. 9 Geo. 1, c. 13	749
XII. c. 24 [Ir.]	737	XXXIV. c. 24	749
XIII. Stat. 3 Geo. 1, c. 3	737	XXXV. Stat. 10 Geo. 1, c. 4	749
XIV. c. 10	738	XXXVI. c. 6 [Ir.]	750
XV. c. 18	740	XXXVII. c. 7 [Ir.]	753
XVI. c. 19	740	XXXVIII. c. 8 [Ir.]	753
XVII. Stat. 4 Geo. 1, c. 5	741	XXXIX. Stat. 11 Geo. 1, c. 12	753
XVIII. c. 14	741	XL. Stat. 12 Geo. 1, c. 3 [Ir.]	753
XIX. c. 14 [Ir.]	741	XLI. c. 9 [Ir.]	753
XX. Stat. 5 Geo. 1, c. 4	741	XLII. c. 10 [Ir.]	755
XXI. c. 6	742	XLIII. Stat. 13 Geo. 1, c. 29	760
XXII. c. 9	742	XLIV. c. 35	760

I. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 5(1). A.D. 1714.

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, ST. II. c. 5

"An Act for preventing Tumults and riotous Assemblies [pulling down churches], and for the more speedy and effectual punishing the Rioters."

II. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 6(2). A.D. 1714.

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, ST. II. c. 6.

"An Act for making perpetual an Act of the Seventh and Eighth Years of the Reign of His late Majesty King William the Third, intituled, 'An Act that the solemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an Oath in the usual Form;' and for explaining and enforcing the said Act in relation to the Payment of Tithes and Church Rates; and for appointing the Form of an Affirmation to be taken by the said People called Quakers, instead of the Oath of Abjuration."

"Whereas an act made in the seventh and eighth years of his late majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act that the Solemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an Oath in the usual Form,' was made to continue for seven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, which act would have expired at the end of the next session of parliament after the two and twentieth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and two; which session began the ninth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and three, and ended the third day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and four; but by another act of parliament made in the thirteenth year of his said late majesty's reign, intituled, 'An Act for continuing an Act, intituled, An Act that the Solemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an Oath in the usual Form,' was continued for the term of eleven years after the determination of the said act, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament: and whereas the said several acts will expire at

7 & 8 Gul. 3,
c. 34.13 & 14 Gul.
3, c. 4.

(1) Repealed by Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 27. Geo. 3, c. 53. Stat. 53 Geo. 3, c. 127, s. 6. Stat. 3 & 4 Gul. 4, c. 49. Stat. 1 & 2 Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 8.

(2) Vide Stat. 8 Geo. 1, c. 6. Stat. 6 Vict. c. 77.

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, ST. II. c. 6.

The act 7 & 8
Gul. 3, made
perpetual.
8 Geo. 1, c. 6.

Clause for the recovery of
tithes, &c.
from quakers, 7 & 8 Gul. 3,
c. 34.
Sec 1 Bur.
485.

Concerning the solemn affirmation to be taken by quakers instead of the abjuration oath.
6 Ann. c. 23.

The affirma-
tion.

the end of the next session of parliament after the third day of April, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen: now for the further avoiding of the inconveniences in the said first recited act mentioned, to the people called Quakers, and their families, be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, that the said first recited act, and all the clauses and powers therein contained, shall continue and be in force for ever, as to all oaths by law required, or hereafter to be required, other than and except as in the said first recited act is excepted.

"II. And whereas by the said act made in the seventh year of the reign of King William the Third, a remedy is provided for the recovery of tithes and church rates, where any quaker should refuse to pay the same: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that such remedy shall be and is hereby extended, and the like remedy shall and may be had and used against any quaker or quakers for the recovering of any tithes or rates, or any customary or other rights, dues, or payments belonging to any church or chapel, which of right by law and custom ought to be paid for the stipend or maintenance of any minister, or curate officiating in any church or chapel; and any two or more justices of the peace of the same county or place, other than such justice of the peace as is patron of any such church or chapel, or any ways interested in the said tithes, upon complaint of any parson, vicar, curate, farmer, or proprietor of such tithes, or any churchwarden or chapelwarden, or other person who ought to have, receive, or collect any such tithes, rates, dues, or payments as aforesaid, are hereby authorized and required to summon in writing, under their hands and seals, by reasonable warning, such quaker or quakers, against whom such complaint shall be made, and after his or their appearance, or upon default of appearance, the said warning or summons being proved before them upon oath, to proceed to hear and determine the said complaint, and to make such order therein, as in the said act is limited or directed; and also to order such costs and charges, as they shall think reasonable, not exceeding ten shillings, as upon the merits of the cause shall appear just: which order shall and may be so executed, and on such appeal may be reviewed or affirmed by the general quarter sessions of the county or place, with such costs and remedy for the same, and shall not be removed into any other court, unless the titles of such tithes, dues or payments, shall be in question, in like manner as is and by the same act is limited and provided.

"III. And whereas several disputes have arisen concerning the effect of the abjuration to be taken by the people called quakers, upon their solemn affirmation, as directed by an act of parliament made in the sixth year of her late majesty's reign: now for preventing the like inconveniences for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in all cases wherever the effect of the said abjuration oath may be legally tendered, or required of the said people called quakers, or any of them, he or they shall take the effect thereof in the following words, (that is to say,)

"I, A. B., do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify, and declare, in the presence of Almighty God, the witness of the truth of what I say, that King George is lawful and rightful king of this realm, and of all other his dominions and countries thereunto belonging. And I do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I do believe the person pretended to be the Prince of Wales, during the life of the late King James, and since his decease, pretending to be, and taking upon himself the style and title of the King of England, by the name of James the Third, or of Scotland, by the name of James the Eighth, or the style and title of King of Great Britain, hath not any right or title whatsoever to the crown of this realm, nor any other the dominions thereunto belonging; and I do renounce and refuse any allegiance or obedience to him. And I do solemnly promise, that I will be true and faithful, and bear true allegiance to King George, and to him will be faithful against all traitorous conspiracies and attempts whatsoever, which shall be made against his person, crown, or dignity. And I will do my best endeavour to disclose and make known to King George, and his successors, all treasons and treaious conspiracies which I shall know to be made against him, or any of them. And I will be true and faithful to the succession of the crown against him the said James, and all other persons whatsoever, as the same is and stands settled by an act, intituled, "An Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and settling the Succession of the Crown," to the late Queen Anne, and the heirs of her body, being protestants; and as the same, by one other act, intituled, "An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject," is and stands settled and entailed, after the decease of the said late queen, and for default of issue of the said late queen, to the late Princess Sophia, electress and duchess dowager of Hanover, and the heirs of her body, being protestants. And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge, promise, and declare, according to these express words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever. And I do make this recognition, acknowledgment, renunciation, and promise, heartily, willingly, and truly.'

"IV. Provided always, that so much of this act as relates to the affirmations to be made by the people called quakers, shall be extended to that part of Great Britain called Scotland for ever, and to the plantations belonging to the crown of Great Britain for five years, and to the end of the next session of parliament after the said five years, and no longer."

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, ST. II. c. 6.
1 G. & M.
SESS. II. c. 2.
12 & 13 GOL.
3, c. 2.

This act, as to the affirmation, to extend to Scotland for ever, and to the plantations for five years, and thence to the end of the next session of parliament.

III. STAT. 1 GEORGH I, ST. II. c. 10(1). A.D. 1714.

"An Act for making more effectual Her late Majesty's gracious Intentions for augmenting the Maintenance of the Poor Clergy."

"Whereas it is necessary for the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne, for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, in order to the more regular making proper augmentations, to be informed, as exactly as may be, of the clear improved yearly value of the maintenance of all such parsons, vicars, curates, and ministers, officiating in any church or chapel within that part of Great Britain called England, the dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, where the liturgy, and rites of the church of England, as now by law established, are or shall be used and observed, whose maintenance is intended to be augmented: be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the respective bishops of every diocese, and the guardians of the spiritualities sede vacante, shall be and are hereby empowered and required, from time to time, as they shall see occasion, and as may best serve the purposes of the said bounty to the poor clergy, as well by the oath of two or more credible witnesses, (which they, or others commissioned by them under their hands and seals, are hereby empowered to administer,) as by all other lawful ways and means, to inform themselves of the clear improved yearly value of every benefice with cure of souls, living, and curacy, and of the clear improved yearly value of the maintenance of every parson, vicar, curate, and minister, officiating in any such churches or chapels, as aforesaid, within their several dioceses, or within any peculiars or places of exempt jurisdiction within the bounds and limits of their respective dioceses, or adjoining and contiguous thereunto, although the same be exempt from the jurisdiction of any bishop in other cases, and how much yearly values arise, with the other circumstances thereof, and the same, or such of them whereof they shall have fully informed themselves, from time to time, with all convenient speed, to certify under their respective hands and seals,

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, ST. II. c. 10.

2 ANN. c. 11.
5 ANN. c. 24.
7 ANN. c. 27.
The bishops shall inform themselves of the yearly value of every benefice, &c.

and certify the same to the governors.

1. Vide Stat. 36 Geo. 3, c. 83, s. 3. Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 113, s. 76. Stat. 4 & 5
Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 107. Stat. 45 Geo. 3, c. Vict. c. 39.
Stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 66. Stat. 11 Geo. Provisions of a similar nature to those 1 & 2 Gul. 1, c. 65, s. 25. Stat. 1 & 2 Gul. which are embodied in Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. 11.
c. 45. Stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 31. Stat. 1 c. 10, have been enacted for Ireland by Stat.
2 & 3 Vict. c. 107, s. 14. Stat. 2 & 3 Vict. 10 Geo. 1, c. 7. (1.)
49 Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 20, ss. 1 & 3.

STAT. 1 GEO.
I. SE. II. c. 10.

Certificates
returned into the Exchequer,
by 5 Ann.
c. 24, and 6
Ann. c. 27,
shall ascertain the value of livings not exceeding 50*l*.
per annum.

All rules, methods, &c.
agreed on by
the governors,
and proposed
to his majesty,
and approved
under his sign manual, shall be valid.

or seals of their respective offices, to the said governors of the bounty of Queen Anne, for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, for their better information in the premises.

"II. (1) Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that where by certificates duly returned into her majesty's court of Exchequer at Westminster, pursuant to an act made in the parliament held in the fifth year of the reign of her said late majesty, intituled, 'An Act for discharging Small Livings from their First-fruits and Tenths, and all Arrears thereof,' and one other act made in the sixth year of the reign of her said late majesty, intituled, 'An Act to enlarge the time for returning the Certificates of all Ecclesiastical Livings, not exceeding the yearly value of Fifty Pounds: as also for discharging all Livings of that value from the Payment of First-fruits; and for allowing time to Archbishops and Bishops, and other Dignitaries, for Payment of their First-fruits,' or either of them, or made good by this act, the yearly value of any livings, not exceeding the clear yearly value of fifty pounds, are particularly and duly expressed and specified, such certificates shall ascertain the yearly values of such livings, in order to their being augmented by the said governors, and no new or different valuation thereof shall be returned to the said governors by virtue of this present act.

"III. (2) And whereas by her late majesty's letters patents under her great seal, bearing date the third day of November in the third year of her reign, incorporating the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne, for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, the said governors were authorized to consider, consult, advise, agree upon, draw up, prepare, and propose in writing to her said majesty, her heirs and successors, such proper and necessary rules, methods, directions, orders and constitutions, as the said governors, or any seven or more of them, with such quorum as is therein directed, should in their discretion judge most convenient to be observed, for and towards the better rule and government of the said corporation and the members thereof, and the receiving, accounting for, and managing all and every the revenues thereby granted, or mentioned to be granted, and all arrears thereof, and also for and concerning the distributing, paying and disposing of the same, and all other gifts and benevolences that should or might be given or bequeathed to the said corporation for the charitable ends in the said letters patent mentioned, for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy aforesaid; and such rules, methods, orders, directions, and constitutions, as should be so proposed, and should be approved, altered, or amended by her said late majesty, her heirs or successors, and such as should be made by her said majesty, her heirs and successors, and so signified and declared by her, her heirs or successors, under her or their great seal, her said late majesty thereby willed should be the rules, methods, directions, orders, and constitutions, by which the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne, for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy and their successors, should receive, manage, govern, apply, and dispose her said late majesty's royal bounty, and other gifts and benevolences which should or might after that time be given or bequeathed to the said corporation (where the donors thereof should not particularly direct the application thereof) to and for the increase of the maintenance of such parsons, vicars, curates, and ministers officiating in any church or chapel within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, where the liturgy and rites of the church of England, as then by law established, were and should be used and observed, for whom a maintenance was not then sufficiently provided: and whereas pursuant to the said letters patent of incorporation, the said governors did agree upon, prepare, and propose to her said late majesty, certain rules and constitutions for the better rule and government of the said corporation, and her said late majesty, by letters patent under her great seal, bearing date the fifth day of March, in the twelfth year of her reign, did establish the said rules and constitutions, reserving to herself, her heirs and successors, power, from time to time, under her

(1) This section was partly superseded by Stat. 43 Geo. 3, c. 24, s. 1.

(2) This section was confirmed by Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 20, s. 1.

grant and to alter the same, and to give and make in like manner such laws and constitutions, according to the true intention of the said letters of incorporation, as to her said majesty, her heirs or successors, should seem and without a more expeditious and easy method of making and altering the same, for the better rule and government of the said corporation, and for the advancement of the said charity: be it enacted and declared by her said majesty, that all such rules, methods, orders, directions, and constitutions shall from time to time, be by the said governors agreed upon, prepared and sent to his majesty, his heirs and successors, according to the true intention and letters patent of incorporation, and by his majesty, his heirs and successors, approved under his or their sign manual, shall be as good, valid, and effectual, as if the same were made or established under the great seal of his said majesty or successors.

And whereas her said late majesty's royal bounty to the poor clergy seems to extend, not only to persons and vicars who come in by presentation, election, institution, and induction, but likewise to such ministers who come in otherwise, or are only stipendiary preachers or curates, officiating in any church or chapel where the liturgy and rites of the church of England, are now by law used, and shall be used and observed, most of which are not corporations, and are not perpetual, and therefore are incapable of taking a grant or conferring such perpetual augmentation as is agreeable to her said late majesty's bounty, and in many places it would be in the power of the impropriator, parson, or vicar, to withdraw the allowance now or heretofore paid to such a minister serving the cure, or, in case of a chapelry, the incumbent of the church might refuse to employ a curate, or permit a minister duly called or licensed to officiate in such augmented chapel, and might officiate himself, and take the benefit of the augmentation, though his living be above the value of those which are intended to be first augmented; and the maintenance of such a minister would thus be sunk instead of being augmented; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such churches, curacies, or chapelries, which shall at any time hereafter be augmented by the governors of the said Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, and are hereby declared and established to be, from the time of such augmentation, perpetual cures and benefices, and the ministers duly nominated and inducted, and their successors respectively, shall be, and be esteemed, as such bodies politic and corporate, and shall have perpetual succession by such names as in the grant of such augmentation shall be mentioned, and shall be a legal capacity (2), and are hereby enabled to take, in perpetuity, to their successors, all such lands, tenements, tithes, and hereditaments, as are granted unto or purchased for them respectively by the said governors of the said Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, or other persons contributing with the said governors as benefactors; any statute to the contrary notwithstanding: and that the impropriators or owners of any augmented churches or donatives, for the time being, and their rectors and vicars of the mother churches whereto any such augmented curacy or chapel doth appertain, and their successors, shall be and are forever excluded from having or receiving, directly or indirectly, any profit or benefit by such augmentation, and shall from time to time, and at all times, hereafter such augmentation, pay and allow to the ministers officiating in such augmented church and chapel respectively, such annual and other pensions, salaries, and all wages, which by ancient custom, or otherwise, of right, and equity, ought to be by them respectively paid and allowed, and which they

Stat. 1 Geo.
1. St. II. c. 10.

All augmented churches, &c. shall be perpetual benefices.

and the ministers shall be bodies politic.

and shall be enabled to take in perpetuity such lands, &c.

Impropriators, &c. of augmented churches, &c. and the rectors, &c. of the mother churches, are excluded from the benefit of such augmentation, and shall

This section was confirmed by Stat. 1 Geo. 1. c. 10.

Legal capacity.—The perpetual curacy of a parochial chapelry, and the power to maintain trees in the church and entering the chapel and destroying the pews. James (Clark) v. Ellis, 2 Y. & J. 265. But a chapel-warden of a parochial chapelry, has not, by virtue of his office, any authority to enter the chapel and remove the pews, without the consent of the perpetual curate. Ibid.

STAT. 1 GEO.
I. ST. II. c. 10.
allow the usual
pensions, &c.
to the ministers
officiating.

No rectors,
&c. of mother churches to be discharged
from care of souls.

Augmented
cures remaining void six months, shall lapse to the bishop, &c.

might, by due course of law, before the making of this act, have been compelled to pay or allow to the respective ministers officiating there, and such other yearly sum or allowance as shall be agreed upon (if any shall be) between the said governors and such patron or impropriator, upon making the augmentations, and the same are and shall be hereby perfectly vested in the ministers officiating in such augmented church or chapel respectively, and their respective successors.

"V. (1) Provided always, that no such rector or vicar of such mother church, or any other ecclesiastical person or persons, having cure of souls, within the parish or place where such augmented church or chapel shall be situate, or his or their successors, shall hereby be divested or discharged from the same; but the cure of souls, with all other parochial rights and duties, (such augmentation and allowances to the augmented church or chapel as aforesaid, only excepted,) shall hereafter be and remain in the same state, plight, and manner, as before the making of this act, and as if this act had not been made.

"VI. And for continuing the succession in such augmented cures, hereby made perpetual cures and benefices, and that the same may be duly and constantly served; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that in case such augmented cures be suffered to remain void by the space of six months, without any nomination within that time of a fit person to serve the same (by the person or persons having the right of nomination thereunto) to the bishop or other ordinary, within that time, to be licensed for that purpose, the same shall lapse to the bishop or other ordinary, and from him to the metropolitan, and from the metropolitan to the crown, according to the course of law used in cases of presentative livings and benefices, and the right of nomination to such augmented cure may be granted or recovered, and the incumbency thereof may and shall cease and be determined, in like manner, and by the like methods, as the presentation to, or incumbency in, any vicarage presentative may be now respectively granted, recovered, or determined.

"VII. Provided always, that in case the person or persons entitled to nominate in such augmented cure shall suffer lapse (2) to incur, but shall nominate before

(1) This section was repealed by Stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 49, s. 1.

(2) Lapse:—Lapse is a devolution of patronage from the patron to the bishop, from the bishop to the metropolitan, from the metropolitan to the king; i. e. to the bishop, as ordinary; to the metropolitan, as superior, and to the king, as patron paramount. In which course, the law of the land varies somewhat from the canon law, as it is laid down in the council of Lateran, (A.D. 1179,) so far as concerns prebends and offices: "Cum prebendas ecclesiasticas, seu quolibet officia, in aliquâ ecclesiâ vacare contigerit, non diu maneant in suspensio; sed infra sex menses personis quæ dignè administrare valeant, conferantur. Si autem episcopus, ubi ad eum spectat, conferre distulerit, per capitulum ordinetur: quod si ad capitulum pertinerit, et infra prescriptum terminum hoc non fecerit, episcopus secundum Deum hoc cum religiosorum virorum consilio exequatur: vel, si omnes fortè neglexerint, metropolitanus de ipsis secundum Deum absque illorum contradictione disponat." Extra. l. 3, t. 8, c. 2, can. 8. And in a decretal epistle of Pope Alexander the Third, about the same time, "Illas autem ecclesias, de quarum patronatu controversa fuerit, si infra sex menses, postquam vacaverint, non fuerit controversa terminata; licetum tibi sit de personâ idoneâ ordinare." Extra. l. 3, t. 38, c. 22.

My Lord Coke, (2 Inst. 361,) makes these canons (one or both) the first foundation of lapses; and affirms, that before, the bishop was to provide one to serve the cure in the mean time; and the patron might present when he would. Reactor 114, when alluding to process upon writ of quare impedit, and quare non presentat, gives this reason why they should be used compendiously, since the Lateran council, thus before; because, "Ante concilium Lateranense nullum curabat tempus contra presentantes;" and where mention is made of lapses, in the ancient cures to be met with in our ecclesiastical records, the right of presenting thereupon is frequently said to be "auctoritate Lateranensis concilii," and "secundum Lateranensis concilii statuta." But the Register of Writs, (a book of great authority,) speaks of the lapse of six months, as the ancient common law of the realm.

"Rex, venerabili in Christo patri R. Episcopo London' et ejus officio ac curie commissar' salutem. Quia secundum legem a cons. regni nostri Angl' episcopi per omnes diocesan' ecclesias seu alia beneficia de quorum patronatu curant, infra sex menses suam vacantia, per lapsus tempore ante sex menses à tempore vacationis eorundem transactas, vacante non debent nec conferre consueverunt aliquibus temporibus retractatis; vobis premissa significamus ut ulterius in causis que ad causam hanc inter l. presentatum ad rectorem de M. per B. et dilectum clericum nostrum R. de W. age taken thereof by the ordinary, metropolitan, or crown, respec- STAT. 1 Geo.

such nomination shall be as effectual as if made within six months, 1, St. II. c. 10.

in, et Rich. et S. de B. cui chiepiscopus dictam ecclesiam temporis contulit, ut dicitur, se-dere valeatis. T. &c." Reg.

mention made of lapse to the
the foregoing constitution of the terran, i. e., where the bishop of a prebend, &c. though it is yet traces of the practice are in England, in the times of Winchelsea and Archbishop Rey-1312, the former of whom,
to a lapse from the Bishop of ells, states, (Reg. f. 55 (a).)
ab hoc collatio ad suum capita-3" and, they neglecting to pre-limitata sibi à jure tempora,— vice collatio canonice devoluta."
gister of Archbishop Reynolds, ains the following entry: "Ad onem [i. e. of the archbishop] am et negligentiam venerabilis ai Henrici Dei gratia Lincoln' becani et capituli ecclesie Cathedra' devolutam."

for space, in which title by lapse cessively to the forementioned six months. The canon law action between lay-patrons and the; appointing four months in the first, and six in the case of "Verum licet patronus laicus
andum tempus habeat quadri-stat: ecclesia tamen, vel monasfacta est à laico juris patronatus ipsum habet semestre. Et omnino presentationem pertinet, non ut us, sed ut patronus debet eccle-parari." 6 Decret. l. 3, t. 19, c.
from the body of the canon law, (de Jur. Patron. c. Cum. sec. v.)
delivers the same doctrine,
word Devolutatur: "Per lapsum
in patronatu clerici; aliis qua-rum, ubi laicus est patronus."
council of Lateran made no such
to the common law of England not, but gives ecclesiastical and trons an equal title to present at thin the six months.

with my Lord Coke, (2 Inst. 361.)
his computation doth concern the is great reason, that it shall be tiding to the computation of the rich churchmen do best know.
re the computation shall be made
p the kalendar, for one half year, counting twenty-eight days to the so was it resolved in the court Pleas, in the time of Edward 2 8, as in the said case it appear-has also been resolved by divers ents; that the day the church id, is not to be taken into the Lutesby v. Peterborough (Bishop
tr, Cro. Jac. 141. Yelv. 100.
we, 6 Co. 62 (a).
g the time from which the six months are to commence, (not to mention

what the statute law hath determined in Stat.
13 Eliz. c. 12 (antè 428), Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6 (antè 447), Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 4 (antè 569), in the case of deprivations ipso facto,) the rule of the canon law, in all cases, was, "Semestre tempus non à tempore vacationis, sed notitiæ ipsius, volumus computari," (Extra.
l. 3, t. 8, c. 5; Ibid. l. 1, t. 10, c. 3. 5; 2 Rol. Abr. Presentment (Q), 363;) and so it is held in some of the old books. But, because that was attended with great uncertainty, the common law hath made this distinction: that where the avoidance is occasioned by an act between the ordinary and incumbent, (as in case of deprivation and resignation,) lapse shall incur from the notice given by the bishop, or (if he die) by his successor; but where it is occasioned by the hand of God, (as in case of death,) or by the act of the incumbent, (as in case of cession,) no notice need be given, but the patron is bound to take notice of it; and so lapse shall incur from the time of death or cession.

But where a clerk is refused for want of abilities, or morals; though the patron ought to have notice, that he may present another in due time, yet if he neglect, the lapse shall incur from death or cession. And in this case, where a spiritual person presents an illiterate clerk, it hath been adjudged, that lapse incurs without any notice, because the law supposes such to be a judge of the abilities of the clerk, and that therefore an insufficient clerk ought not to have been presented. 2 Rol. Abr. Presentment (Q), 364.
Hele v. Exeter (Bishop of), 4 Mod. 140.
Keil. 49(b).

It hath also been held, in Servien v. Lincoln (Bishop of), (Noy, 65,) that though no lapse shall incur, if no notice be given, yet, if in such case a stranger present, and his clerk be instituted and inducted, and the patron give no disturbance within the six months, he has no remedy for that turn; because induction is a notorious act, of which he was bound to take notice.

The canon law supposes a case, in which the six months may expire, and yet no lapse incur, and that is, where the patron is under an incapacity to present; as in the case of a bishop who is suspended from collating;
and, generally, the rule of the canon law is,
"Non currit legitime impedito;" and, "Si
impeditus fuerit, non currit ei tempus, quia impeditus non differt." 6 Decret. l. 1, t. 6,
c. 6, v. Distulerit. The law referred to, is as follows: "Quia diversitatem corporum, diversitas sæpe sequitur animorum: et infra
conquereretur inter cætera Eboracensis Archiepiscopus, quod cum ad eum in ecclesia Eboracensi, et aliis suis ecclesiis collatio pertineat præbendarum, tempore suspensionis ipsius, et postmodum etiam, quidam præter ejus auctoritatem se intruserunt in ipsas:

"Mandamus, quatenus eos, qui præbendas,
vel dignitates ecclesie Eboracen. vel aliarum

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, SECT. 11. c. 10.

although so much time be before elapsed, as that the title of lapse be vested in the crown.

ad donationem ejus spectantes, præter auctoritatem acceperunt ipsius, ad eas resignandas monitione præmissâ per excommunicationis sententiam, et subtractionem aliorum beneficiorum, non obstante confirmatione à sede Apostolica obtentâ sub forma communi, quæ confirmat beneficia, et præbendas, sicut justè, et pacificè possidentur, appellatione remotâ compellas: nisi forte aliqui ea vel ex speciali mandato Apostolicæ sedis, vel auctoritate Lateranensis concilii ab Eboracensi capitulo sint adepti: sic tamen, ut tempus suspensionis in sex mensibus nullatenus computetur: cùm illa Lateranen. concilii constitutio, contra negligentem tantum fuerit promulgata: et tunc si voluerit, non tamen valuerit archiepiscopus ipse in conferendis præbendis uti propriâ potestate, à qua et si fuerit sua culpa suspensus, non tamen ad ipsum capitulum ex illa culpa præbendarum erat donatio devoluta: sed ad illum tempore suspensionis illius præbendarum donatio pertinebat, qui præter ejus desidiam, et negligentiam, poterat præbendas donare. Tempus etiam, quo ad apostolicam sedem accessit, et apud illam permansit, vel recessit ab illa, intra sex menses nullatenus computetur. Semestre autem tempus, non à tempore vacationis præbendarum, sed notitiam ipsius potius volumus computari." Extra. l. 3, t. 8, c. 5.

Lapse will incur, or not incur, according as it doth or doth not happen through default of the bishop; and according as he is named or not named, in the quare impedit. 2 Rol. Abr. Presentment (U), 365. So, if he will not award a jure patronatus, when required; or will not examine the clerk, or refuse him without cause; and the church become litigious: in such cases lapse will not incur; but if he do what is his duty, upon a presentation made to him, and refuse with good cause, and be not named in the quare impedit; or if no presentation be made, and yet a quare impedit be brought against patron and ordinary: the lapse will incur, and his collation thereupon will be good. Nor will it avail the plaintiff in the quare impedit, that he recovers within the six months, unless within such term, the bishop receives the writ; nor that he brings a writ of error, unless, within the six months he also bring a writ of quare incumbit against the bishop. Lancaster v. Loece, Cro. Jac. 93. Brickhead v. York (Archbishop of), Hob. 200.

Title by lapse can never accrue to the metropolitan, or to the king, unless it hath first accrued to the immediate ordinary. Ibid. 2 Rol. Abr. Presentment (R), 365. This is agreed on all hands, even though the lapse be lost by default of the ordinary; as, for want of giving notice, or the like. And for the same reason, if a clerk be instituted, and remain eighteen months without induction; though institution is no plenary against the king, yet being so against the bishop, no title by lapse will accrue to the king. Ibid. (Z), 367.

Although the bishop is patron and ordinary, he has not a double time to present in, but only six months, before title by lapse accrues to the metropolitan. This is plain, as well from the rule laid down in the council of Lateran, as from the known practice of this nation. And though such council did not suppose any lapse to the crown, yet since, with us, it goes from the metropolitan to the crown, there is a parity of reason for its passing to the king from the metropolitan in six months, though he be also patron and ordinary, (as in the dioceses of Canterbury and York it often occurs,) namely, that the title by lapse is in the nature of a trust, and not of an interest; and the selfsame patron who hath neglected that trust, and kept the church destitute of a pastor for one six months, ought not, in equity, to have it in his power to keep it vacant for six months more. To this purpose there is a remarkable case in the body of the canon law. The archdeaconry of Richmond was vacant: and the archbishop not collating to it, the devolution was to the chapter, according to the rule of the Lateran council; and, they also neglecting, a question arose, whether the right was devolved to the Pope? In this case, the determination was, "Si voluit euentuari archidiaconatum Richmondiam vacans per annum (tempore semestri, quo vel ad antepiscopum, vel ad capitulum, donatio pertinebat, non à vacatione, sed à notitiâ computato) cùm pro eo quod Eboracensis Archiepiscopus alium superiorem non habet, extunc fuerat ad non donatio devoluta, atque super eo silentium imponitur." Extra. l. 1, t. 10, c. 3. Which supposes, that the Archbishop of York, though patron, and ordinary, and metropolitan, was understood to be entitled only to six months.

If title by lapse have accrued to the bishop, and he die, or if he be translated or deposed, before he take the benefit of it, the devolution is to the metropolitan, — because he is guardian of the spiritualities, and this being a mere spiritual trust. For although it is laid down in an ancient writ, as a thing notorious, that churches which belonged to the collation of bishops while they lived "pertinere debent ad nos, ratum custodire tempore vacationis;" (React. l. 5, f. 40, s. 10; 2 Rol. Abr. Presentment (Z), 367) yet this relates only to such vacancies as belong to the bishops in their own right, and, as to lapses, Noy 169 is clear and express, that in such cases, the lapses belong to the guardian or guardians of the spiritualities, whoever they be.

If lapse accrue to the bishop in a metropolitanical visitation, he will not lose the benefit of it. This was adjudged, and said to be agreed to by the civilians, in the reign of King Charles the First. And the reason of it is plain; because, though he is under inhibition during that time, yet such inhibition reaches not his right of patronage, but only suspends his right of institution and collation; and therefore, the only difference is

"VIII.(1) And inasmuch as by the said rules established by her said late Majesty, under her great seal, for the management of the aforesaid royal bounty, her said late majesty was pleased to manifest her gracious intentions to invite

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, St. II. c. 10.

that, instead of collating by his own authority, he is to present his clerk to the archbishop for institution. 2 Rol. Abr. Presentment (Z), 367.

After lapse to the ordinary, or to the metropolitan: if patron present to the ordinary before the church be filled by institution, he is bound to receive his clerk. In which doctrine, all the books agree, upon this reason, that the end of the lapse being only to prevent a long voidance of the church, this end is answered by the patron's presenting his clerk to the immediate ordinary. But this point is otherwise solved by the canon law, in the case of election, and the same reason holds in the case of presentation. "Quis nobis constitit à salamantano decano et ejus sequacibus, post elapsum sex mensium spatium, infra quod episcopus et capitulum (propt communiter spectabat ed eos) procedere ad electionem cantoris neglexerant, electionem supradicti P. minus canonicè celebratam; eandem decernimus irritam et inane: et appellationem à decano et suis fautoribus interpositam, factum archiepiscopi, (ad quem jam erat eligendi auctoritas devoluta,) nequissimè quatenus impedire." "Mandamus, quatenus nisi dicto G. aliquod canonicum obviet: electionem de ipso factam, sublato appellationis obstaculo confirmetis." Extra. l. 1, t. 10, c. 5. And the point is solved the same way by our English canon law, where we find a question put by Lignardood, (de Jur. Patr. c. 2, v. Injuria.) "Quid si ordinatio ecclesiæ sit devoluta ad episcopum per lapsum temporis, cum tamen episcopus nondum ordinavit de personâ ibidem instituendâ, si patronus post lapsum evincat jus patronatus, ut presentet ad ecclesiam adhuc vacantem, nunquid episcopus teneatur talem presentatum admittere, vel alias poterit libere uti jure sibi devolutum?" And the answer is: "Puto quòd in hac causa episcopus non tenetur admittere presentatum talis, in exclusionem juris sibi acquisiti per lapsum. Ratio est, quia jus episcopo quesitum, sine facto suo non debet ab eo auferri: potest tamen episcopus collationem suam etiam ad presentationem talem patroni admittere." Of the same tendency, with regard to the titles being fixed in the bishop, so as to be under no obligation to receive the patron's clerk, is, what we read in Fitcherbert, (N. B. f. 83.) that a ne ad-mittas shall not go after the six months, because then the bishop may present for lapse; and therefore it is in vain then to sue this writ, because the title to present is then devolved unto the bishop. But if the patron might present, and the bishop (not having collated) were obliged to receive his clerk after the six months: then the ne ad-mittas after the six months was not in vain.

However, as previously stated, all the law books agree in the patron's right to have his clerk admitted. In Golt and Glover v. Chawley & Lichfield (Bishop of), (Hob. 157:

Moore (Sir F.), 900.) it was held, that such right was devolved to the king: but the later opinions, (2 Rol. Abr. Presentment (B), 368; Boeton v. Rochester (Bishop of), Hutt. 24.) are, that after the lapse comes to the king, the crown cannot be divested of it, but that the patron is wholly disabled from presenting; and if he do present, and his clerk be instituted and inducted, the king may remove him by quare impedit. And this power is (in effect) the same that the Pope claimed and exercised; as appears by the direction given to his legate in this very case, which became part of the body of the canon law: "Si beneficia vel dignitates, (speaking of such as were lapsed to him, and filled by the patrons notwithstanding such lapse,) noveritis personis idoneis assignatas, eas de patientiâ permittatis ab ipsis pacificè possideri: alioquin personas amoventes prorsus ab ipsis, eas de personis idoneis, auctoritate nostrâ suffulti, non differatis quantocius ordinare." Extra. l. 1, t. 10, c. 4. But if, in such case, the patron's clerk be suffered to die incumbent, or be deprived, the king's turn is served, and he hath lost the advantage of the lapse. Upon which head, all the books are clear in cases of death, and most of them as to deprivation; but many of them will not allow the same reason, in cases of resignation, because there is room to suspect fraud and covin.

There is no lapse from the king, for although (as hath been observed) the words of Stat. 17 Edw. 2, St. 1. c. 8 (ante 40), do plainly imply a lapse, they are not allowed to be express enough, to destroy or limit that known maxim in favour of the crown, "Nullum tempus occurrit regi." If the Reformatio Legum had been confirmed by authority of parliament, as was designed, the law in this particular had been otherwise: "Et si nobis etiam, (saith the king,) ex quo id novimus, sex menses effluxerint, sacerdotum vacuum non collocantibus; ad patronum rursus jam suum devolvetur: et sic in eodem semper orbe circumferatur, illis quæ nominavimus personis, (viz. patron, bishop, metropolitan, and king,) mutuo sibi succedentibus, donec tandem aliquis eorum prescripto tempore jus collocationis exequatur." Ref. Leg. f. 29 (b). But as the law is, there is no remedy against a neglect in the crown to fill vacant churches, but only the ordinary's sequestering the profits of the church, and appointing a clerk to serve the cure.

Where a doubt was, whether the living had not lapsed to the king, and the clerk took out a presentation from the crown ad corroborandum, he was obliged by the archbishop, as patron, to declare that he took not that presentation on any other account, but that of the doubtfulness of the lapse. Baner. 284 (a, b). 2 Whig. 348 (b). Gibson's Codex, 768, 769, 770.

(1) This section was confirmed by Stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 20, s. 1.

STAT. 1 GEO.
I, ST. II. c. 10.

All agreements with benefactors touching the patronage of augmented
cures, shall be good in law;

and the advow-
son, &c. shall be vested in such benefactors.

Agreements of guardians shall bind infants,
&c.

Such agreements shall be effectual for supplying vacant cures.

The estate vested for

private contributions towards augmenting the maintenance of the poor clergy, by ordering, amongst other things, that to encourage benefactions from others, and thereby the sooner to complete the good that was intended by her said late majesty's bounty, the said governors may give the sum of two hundred pounds (which is the stated sum allowed to each cure which shall be augmented) to cures not exceeding thirty-five pounds per annum, where any person or persons will give the same or greater sum or value in lands or tithes: and inasmuch as the right of presentation, or nomination to small livings, is of inconsiderable value, and yet it may be a great inducement to such benefactions, if the benefactors may have some right of presentation or nomination to the cure which himself contributes to augment; be it therefore further enacted, that all agreements with such benefactor or benefactors, with the consent and approbation of the said governors, touching the patronage or right of presentation or nomination to any such augmented cure, made or to be made for the benefit of such benefactor and benefactors, his, her, or their heirs or successors, by the king's most excellent majesty, his heirs and successors, under his and their sign manual, or by any bodies politick or corporate, or by any person or persons being of the full age of twenty-one years, having an estate of inheritance either in fee-simple or fee-tail in their own right, or in the right of their churches, or wives, or jointly with their wives, made before coverture, or after, or having an estate for life, or for years determinable upon his and their own life and lives, with remainder in fee-simple or fee-tail to any issue of his or their own bodies, in such patronage, or right of presentation, or nomination in possession, reversion or remainder, shall be respectively good and effectual in the law against his majesty, his heirs and successors, or against all and every such bodies politic and corporate, or against the persons so agreeing, their wives, heirs and successors respectively, and every of them, and against all and every their issue, and against every other person and persons claiming in remainder and reversion after such estate-tail, as aforesaid, according to the form of such agreement; and the advowson, patronage, and right of presentation and nomination to such augmented churches and chapels shall be vested in such benefactors, their heirs and successors, as against his majesty, his heirs and successors, or the said bodies politic and corporate, and their successors, or the said respective persons as aforesaid, as fully, and in like manner and form, as if the same had been granted by his said majesty, his heirs or successors, under his and their great seal, and as if such bodies politick or corporate had been free from any restraint, and as if such other persons so agreeing had been sole seized in his and their own right of such advowson, patronage, right of presentation and nomination, in fee-simple, and had granted the same to such benefactors, their heirs and successors respectively, according to such agreements.

"IX. (1) And be it further enacted, that the agreements of guardians for and on behalf of infants or idiots under their guardianships, shall be as good and effectual to all intents and purposes, as if the said infants or idiots had been of full age, and of sound mind, and had themselves entered into such agreements.

"X. Provided always, that in case of any such agreement, as aforesaid, by any parson or vicar, the same shall be with the consent and approbation of his parson and ordinary.

"XI. Provided also, that in case of any such agreement, as aforesaid, made by any person seized in right of his wife, the wife shall be a party to the agreement, and shall seal and execute the same.

"XII. And inasmuch as such benefactors are to be considered, in some degree, as founders and patrons of churches; be it further enacted, that such agreements so made, as aforesaid, shall be as effectual for the supplying cures vacant at the time of such augmentation made or proposed, as for the advowson or nomination to future vacancies.

"XIII. (2) And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful, with the concurrence of the said governors of the house of

(1) This section was repealed by Stat. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Gul. 4, c. 65, s. 25.

(2) This section was extended by Stat. 4 Geo. 3, c. 107, s. 2.

Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, and the incumbent, patron, and ordinary of any augmented living or cure, to exchange all, or any part of the estate settled for the augmentation thereof, for any other estate in lands or tithes, of equal or greater value, to be conveyed to the same uses.

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, 8r. II. c. 10.
augmentation may be exchanged.

“XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all such donatives which are now exempt from all ecclesiastical jurisdiction, and shall be augmented by virtue of the powers given by this act, shall be subjected to the visitation and jurisdiction of the bishop of the diocese wherein such donative is, to all intents and purposes of law whatsoever.

Augmented donatives to be visited by the bishop.

“XV. Provided always, that no donative shall be augmented without the consent of the patron or patrons in writing, under his or their hands and seals first had and obtained.

“XVI. Provided also, that where it shall fall to the lot of any donative, curacy, or chapelry, to receive an augmentation from the said bounty, according to the rules already established, or hereafter to be established, it shall and may be lawful to and for the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, and they are hereby empowered, before they make the same augmentation, to treat and agree with the patron of any donative, improprator of any rectory impropriated without endowment of any vicarage, or parson or vicar of any mother church (as the case shall happen to be) for a perpetual yearly, or other payment or allowance to the minister or curate of such augmented donative, curacy, or chapelry, and his successors, to be made in all succeeding times by such patron, improprator, parson, or vicar, and his and their heirs and successors, and for charging and subjecting the impropriate rectory, or the mother church, or vicarage therewith, and thereunto, in such manner, and with such remedies as shall be thought fit; and such agreements made with the king's most excellent majesty, his heirs and successors, under his or their sign manual, or with any bodies politic or corporate, or any other person or persons having any estate or interest, in possession, reversion, or remainder, in any such impropriate rectory in his or their own right, or in right of his or their churches or wives, or with the guardian or guardians of any person or persons having such estate or interest, or with any parson or vicar of any mother church, shall be as effectual to all intents and purposes with respect to such charges, as agreements made with his majesty, his heirs and successors, or with the same person or persons, bodies politic or corporate respectively, touching the patronage or right of presentation or nomination to the same cures, touching which such agreements shall be respectively made; and in case such improprator, other than the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, and such parson or vicar, will not or shall not make such agreement with the said governors of the bounty of Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy; it shall and may be lawful to and for the said governors to refuse such augmentation, and to apply the money arising from the late queen's said bounty, which ought to have been employed therein, for augmenting some other cure, according to the rules then in force.

The governors may agree with the patron, &c. of any donative, &c. for an allowance to the minister of such augmented donative, &c.

And if such improprator (other than the king) will not agree, the governors may refuse such augmentation.

“XVII. And whereas the before-mentioned acts of parliament, of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of her said late majesty, were, for the diocese of Chichester, not executed in due time, and in many dioceses not with that exact certainty of the yearly values and distinction of medieties in the certificates, as regularly ought to have been; and some small prebends in cathedral churches were, by reason of their being dignities, omitted in some certificates, although they have the cure of souls thereto annexed, and are therefore livings with cure of souls within the words and meaning of the said acts: for supplying the defects in the execution of the said former acts of parliament; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the certificate for the diocese of Chichester, dated the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and eight, which was received in the court of Exchequer at Westminster, and is now remaining there, shall be as effectual, to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been sealed and returned into the said court of Exchequer, within the times limited by the said respective acts of parlia-

The certificate for the diocese of Chichester, remaining in the Exchequer, shall be as effectual as if it had been returned in due time.

SECT. I. GEO.
I. ST. II. C. 10.

And the governors may certify into the Exchequer the prebends under the yearly value of 50*l*. though not named in any former certificate.

Living not certified, which the bishops may certify before March 25, 1716; and they shall have the benefit of the acts of 5 Ann. c. 24, and 6 Ann. c. 27.

ment in that behalf made; and also that all and every the churches, vicarages, and livings, in and by the said certificate, or in and by the certificates made and returned in due time, or any of them, certified to be under fifty pounds per annum, and each mediety therein, shall be entitled to, and have the benefit of the said respective discharges by the said several acts of parliament, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the precise yearly value had been expressed, and the mediety distinguished in such certificate and certificates: and further, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the said governors of the bounty of Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, under their common seal, to be affixed at a court of the said governors, and under the hands of the governors then present, to certify into the court of Exchequer the names of such prebends in cathedral churches, under the yearly value of fifty pounds, the prebends whereof have the immediate cure of souls of the respective parishes whereof such prebends are denominated, although the same were not named in any former certificate; and such certificate and certificates of the said governors, being returned into the said court of Exchequer, shall be as effectual to all intents and purposes of the said two before-mentioned acts of parliament, as if the prebends therein named had been duly certified within the times in the said acts limited, and by the persons and in the manner therein directed.

"XVIII. And whereas notwithstanding the utmost diligence of the bishops to inform themselves of, and certify into his majesty's court of Exchequer, all the livings in their respective dioceses under the clear improved yearly value of fifty pounds, in pursuance of the said acts, the several livings within the respective dioceses hereafter named, though supposed to be under the value of fifty pounds per annum, have either not been certified, or, if certified, the certificates of them have been lost, or not duly entered, or by some other mistakes it has so happened that the said livings have not yet had the benefit designed them by the said acts: he it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall and may be lawful for the bishops of the said dioceses, at any time before the twenty-fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to certify into the court of Exchequer the livings following, or such of them as shall appear to the respective bishops to be under the value of fifty pounds per annum, (viz.) in the diocese of York, the rectory of Saint Michael apud Pontem de Ouse in the city of York, the vicarage of Skipwith, the vicarage of Kilham, the vicarage of North Levington, the vicarage of Norwell Overhall: in the diocese of Bangor, the vicarage of Lanunda, the vicarage of Llanfair Igher, the vicarage of Llanor, the vicarage of Nevin, the vicarage of Abererch, the vicarage of Conway, the vicarage of Dwygyfylche: in the diocese of Carlisle, the rectory of Kirkbride, the rectory of Dufton, the vicarage of Ederhall: in the diocese of Chichester, the vicarage of Sels, the rectory of Beate Marie in Westout Lewis, the rectory of Chalton, the rectory of Winchester, the vicarage of Bemehill: in the diocese of Saint David's, the vicarage of Merchir, alias Mather, the vicarage of Saint Winock, alias Saint Twinnella: in the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, the vicarage of Hartington, the vicarage of Saint Mary's in Lichfield, the south mediety of Darleigh, the vicarage of Glosop: in the diocese of Lancaster, the rectory of Bellow, alias Hellow, the vicarage of Elsham, the rectory of Neumanby, the rectory of Snarford, the vicarage of Buckingham, the rectory of Ulkney, the vicarage of Mentmore, the vicarage of Mismenden Magna, the vicarage of Stanburn: in the diocese of Norwich, the vicarage of South Walsam, the rectory of Framlingham, the vicarage of Burnham-Overy, the vicarage of Scarning, the vicarage of Nectona, the vicarage of Melton Parva, the rectory of Repham Melton and Altera Medietas, the vicarage of Thurston, the vicarage of Colkirk, the rectory of Catfields, the vicarage of Henly, the rectory of Newborn, the rectory of Cople, the rectory of Dunwich Johannis, the rectory of Pakefields, the rectory of Market Longa, the vicarage of Finborow Parva, the rectory of Willingham, alias Elough, the rectory of Bromeswell in Wilford: in the diocese of Oxford, the vicarage of Stanton Harcourt: in the diocese of Peterborough, the vicarage of Cranley: in the diocese of Winchester, the vicarage of Shalford, and the vicarage of Edington: and the said livings so certified, shall have the benefit of the two before-mentioned acts of parliament, as effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if they had been duly certified within the time limited by the said acts.

"XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the courts and committees of the said governors of the bounty of Queen Anne, for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, shall have power and authority, and are hereby authorized and empowered, from time to time, to administer an oath to such person and persons as shall at any time give them information, or be examined of or concerning any matter or thing relating to the execution of this or the said former acts of parliament, or any way concerning the trust in them reposed.

"XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all the augmentations, certificates, agreements, and exchanges hereafter to be made, by virtue of or in pursuance of this act, shall be carefully examined and entered in a book to be provided and kept by the governors for that purpose, the said entries being approved at a court of the said governors, and attested by the governors then present, shall be taken to be as records, and the true copies thereof, or of the said entries, being proved by one or more credible witnesses, shall be deemed, taken, and adjudged to be good and sufficient evidence in law⁽¹⁾, touching the matters contained therein, or relating thereto.

"XXI. And to the end that churches and chapels may at all times be capable of receiving augmentations for the maintenance of the ministers thereof; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne for the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy, shall by any deed or instrument in writing under their common seal, allot or apply to any church or chapel, any lands, tithes, or hereditaments, arising from the said bounty of her said late majesty, or from private contribution or benefaction, or from all or any the ways aforesaid, and shall declare, that the same shall be for ever annexed⁽²⁾ to

STAT. 1 GEO.
1, ST. II. c. 10.

The governors empowered to administer
oaths.

Augmenta-
tions, &c.
to be entered,
and the entries
to be taken as records; and attested copies thereof good evidence.

Lands, &c. allotted to any
church, &c.
by deed under
the governors'
seal, shall go
in succession,
&c.;

(1) Evidence in law:—Proof of a curacy augmented, is established by showing an order for its augmentation, entered in a book and signed by the governors, according to Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 10, s. 20; and it is not requisite to prove that the money was afterwards laid out in land, and allotted by deed under the corporation seal of the governors of Queen Anne's bounty, to be annexed to the curacy, and that such deed was enrolled within six months after its execution, according to Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 10, s. 21, and Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 36.

Where an old mortgage term of 1000 years, created in 1727, was recognised in a marriage settlement of the owner of the inheritance in 1751, by which a sum was appropriated to its discharge; and no further notice was had of it till 1802, when a deed, to which the then owner of the inheritance and the representatives of the termors were parties, reciting that the term was still subsisting, conveyed it to others to secure a mortgage: it was held, that it could not be presumed to have been surrendered against the owner of the inheritance, who was interested in upholding it. Doe d. Graham (Clerk) v. Scott (Clerk), 11 East, 478.

(2) Annexed:—Land which has been annexed to a perpetual curacy of a parish by the governors of Queen Anne's bounty, under Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 10, ss. 4, 21, cannot be leased by the curate so as to bind the successor, if the patron only consent, and not the ordinary; although conveyed to the curate and his successors for ever, and allotted and applied by the governors to the church and annexed thereto, to go in succession with the church; thus, in Doe d. Richardson v. Thomas, (9 A. & E. 556,) Lord Denman observed, "I doubt much whether the perpetual curate has any fee simple at all; and, if he has not, he is not within Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28, s. 1 (ante 262). Next, even if he has, I doubt whether it be in right of the church, for he gets his fee, if at all, by force of Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 10, ss. 4, 21. But, if he has a fee-simple in right of the church, does he not fall within sect. 4 of Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28? It is said, that the act did not contemplate the case of land given to the perpetual curate in succession: if it had, it would have included the case in sect. 4. But, if the estate can be brought within sect. 1, can we not also bring it within sect. 4? The curate is not the rector; he has not the great tithes: nor can he be called the parson, which implies a peculiar character, but he appears to be a vicar: for he serves the church in that capacity. Jenkinson q. t. v. Thomas, (4 T. R. 665,) certainly seems opposed to this view; but the court was there construing a penal statute. The clause in the present case must receive a more liberal construction. I am therefore of opinion that, if a perpetual curate be within sect. 1 of Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28, he is also within sect. 4. His power is, therefore, no more than it would have been before that statute; and the lease is void as against the successor, for want of the ordinary consent."

In the foregoing case, Mr. Justice Little-dale thought, that the curate was one of the

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, ST. II. c. 10. such church or chapel, then such lands, tithes, and hereditaments, shall from thenceforth be held and enjoyed, and go in succession with such church and chapel for ever; and such augmentation so made shall be good and effectual, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, whether such church or chapel, for which such augmentation is intended, be then full or vacant of an incumbent or minister; provided such deed or instrument be enrolled in the high court of Chancery within six months after the day of the date thereof. [Vide 3 Geo. 1, c. 10.]

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, ST. II. c. 13. IV. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 13(1). A.D. 1714.

"An Act for the further Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, and the Succession of the Crown in the Heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being Protestants; and for extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and his open and secret Abettors."

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, ST. II. c. 23. V. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 23. A.D. 1714.

"An Act for making Provision for the Ministers of the Fifty new Churches which are to be built in and about the Cities of London and Westminster, and Suburbs thereof; and for rebuilding and finishing the Parish Church of St. Mary Woolnoth, in the said City of London."

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, ST. II. c. 29. VI. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 29(2). A.D. 1714.

"An Act for allowing a Time for Two Hundred and Thirteen Families of Protestant Palatines, now settled in Ireland, to take the Oaths, in order to entitle them to all the Benefits intended them by the Act of the seventh year of His late Majesty's Reign, for naturalizing foreign Protestants."

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, ST. II. c. 47. VII. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 47. A.D. 1715.

"An Act for the more effectual and exemplary Punishment of such Persons who, being Papists, shall enlist themselves in His Majesty's Services in Great Britain or Ireland, or in the Islands of Jersey or Guernsey."

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, ST. II. c. 50. VIII. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 50(3). A.D. 1715.

"An Act for appointing Commissioners to inquire of the Estates of certain Traitors, and of Popish Recusants, and of Estates given to Superstitious Uses, in order to raise Money out of them severally for the Use of the Public."

STAT. 1 GEO. 1, ST. II. c. 55. IX. STAT. 1 GEORGII 1, ST. II. c. 55(4). A.D. 1715.

"An Act to oblige Papists to register their Names and real Estates."

STAT. 2 GEO. 1, c. 14. [1a.] X. STAT. 2 GEORGII 1, c. 14(5). [IRELAND.] A.D. 1715.

"An Act for real Union and Division of Parishes."

10 Geo. 1, c. 6, explained and amended. "Whereas parishes are in some parts of this kingdom so little, that five or six lie together within a mile or two, whereby the subjects are like to be much bur- persons whose leases were made valid by Stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 28, s. 1; but Mr. Justice Coleridge dissented. The whole court, however, agreed, that if he be within sect. 1, he was within the restriction of sect. 4.

(1) Vide Stat. 1 Geo. 1, St. II. c. 55. Stat. 10 Geo. 1, c. 4. Stat. 2 Geo. 2, c. 31. Stat. 9 Geo. 2, c. 26. Stat. 16 Geo. 2, c. 30. Stat. 6 Geo. 3, c. 53. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32.

(2) Expired.

(3) Expired.

(4) Repealed by Stat. 3 Geo. 1, c. 16. Stat. 10 Geo. 1, c. 4. Stat. 21 Geo. 3, c. 51. Stat. 31 Geo. 3, c. 32. Stat. 63 Geo. 3, c. 30. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.

(5) Vide Stat. 10 Geo. 1, c. 6. (1.) Stat. 1 Geo. 2, c. 19. (1.) Stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 43. Stat. 10 Geo. 4, c. 56. Stat. 2 & 3 Gul. 4, c. 67.

Sect. 1, 2, 5, 6, repealed by Stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 73, s. 1.

dened with unnecessary charge of building and repairing so many churches, and the means also are so small, that sundry of them will not serve for the sustentation of one incumbent; and in some places parishes are so vast and extended in length, that it is difficult for the parishioners to repair to their parish churches, and return home the same day, and many times so inconveniently divided, that the parishioners of one parish may with more convenience repair to another parochial church than to their own, and all parties by an indifferent exchange may be better accommodated: and whereas churches are often most incommodiously seated at the uttermost bounds and limits of a great parish, or in some small island, and the glebes provided for the habitation of the incumbent are often remote from the parish church, and bishops' lands are in several places contiguous, or near adjoining to the parish church, and cannot by one general law be equally determined: and whereas for remedying the evils aforesaid an act was made in the fourteenth and fifteenth years of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, 'An Act for real Union and Division of Parishes, and concerning Churches, Free Schools, and Exchanges,' which is since expired; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from the twenty-fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, for and during the term of ten years from thence next ensuing, it shall and may be lawful for the chief governor or governors of this kingdom for the time being, with the assent of the major part of the privy council in council assembled, six at least consenting, and with the advice and approbation of the archbishop of the province and the bishop of the diocese, certified under their hands and archiepiscopal and episcopal seals, with the consent of the respective patrons and incumbents, certified under their hands and seals, attested by two or more credible witnesses subscribing thereunto, to divide old parishes, or separate any parish, or part of a parish of late united, and to unite parishes one to another, or part of a parish to another parish, or part of a parish, in perpetuity, and to erect such divided or united parishes, or part of parishes, into new parishes, with all parochial rights: and also to unite or appropriate any benefice or benefices, having actual cure of souls, to a dignity or prebend without cure, saving to the dean, dignitary, prebend, and incumbent, at the time of such union, during their respective incumbency, and to their respective patrons and ordinaries, all their right, title and interest, in and to the said united or appropriated benefices; and saving, also, all rights to the dean and chapter of each cathedral church, and to the prebendary of the prebend, to which any benefice with cure of souls shall be united or appropriated.

"II. Provided always, that no dignitary or prebendary, to whose dignity or prebend such benefice with cure of souls shall be united, shall be discharged of residence in the church united to such dignity or prebend; but that they shall be obliged to such residence as the incumbent of such church with cure of souls was obliged to before the making of such union, and shall also be and remain subject, as a dignitary or prebendary of the said cathedral church, to all jurisdictions, duties, and penalties, in like manner as the said dignitary or prebendary was subject at the time of making such union; and all and everything, that shall be done in pursuance of this act, shall be good to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been particularly and specially recited and hereby enacted.

10 Geo. 1, c. 7. Incumbent succeeding shall

"III. And be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall be lawful to and for the lord lieutenant, lord deputy, lords justices, or other chief governor or governors of this kingdom for the time being, with the assent of the major part of the privy council assembled in council, six at least consenting as aforesaid, and with the advice and approbation of the respective archbishop and bishop, in whose respective province and diocese such parishes are lying and being, upon examination of witnesses (whom they and each of them are hereby empowered to examine upon oath) or any other lawful means, to direct and order new churches to be built in more convenient places, with the consent of the patron

STAT. 2 Geo.
1, c. 14. [1a.]

13 Geo. 2, c. 4,
made perpetual.

21 Geo. 2, c. 8.

31 Geo. 2, c. 5.

Inconvenient
division of parishes,
and situation
of churches.

Recital of 14 &
15 Car. 2, c. 10,
expired.

Chief governors and six of the council,
with approbation of the bishop and consent of patrons, may for ten years,
from 24th
June, 1717, divide or unite
parishes,
7 Geo. 2, c. 7,
and glebes.

9 Geo. 2, c. 12.

And appropriate benefices with cure
to dignities
without cure;
and by 10 Geo.
1, c. 6, to dignities with cure, benefices
without cure.
21 Geo. 2, c. 8.

Saving all right and interest to the dean,
&c.

Dignitary
obliged to residence, as incumbent before such union,
and subject to all jurisdictions, &c. as dignitary.

pay first-fruits.

Chief governors, &c. may direct new churches to be built in more convenient places, with consent of parishioners in vestry, &c.

10 Geo. 1, c. 6.

Stat. 2 Geo.
1, c. 14. [14.]

Protestant
parishioners.

1 Geo. 2, c. 19.

19 Geo. 2, c. 16.

Persons empowered to grant one acre

for the site.

Expense as-

essed at vestry.

Notice of vestry.

10 Geo. 1, c. 6.

Chancel repaired by such persons as before liable.

Right of patronage not altered by removal.

On union, the patronage

divided by turns, according to value of the parishes.

Consent of

each patron

first had, and entered.

Such settlement final.

Reserving dues

payable.

But the king,

where entitled,

shall have the first presentation.

Owner of rectory appropriate shall not, by only presenting

in turn to any union, be judged to dis-

appropriate his rectory, unless expressly so

signified in the presentation.

Such unions,

divisions, and

appropriations,

to be enrolled

in six months.

Fee, 13s. 4d.

Clause to that purpose in the instrument.

Bishops, digni-ties, &c., by consent, may or patrons, proprietor or proprietors, upon whose lands such new church is to be erected; and also of the incumbent, and churchwardens, and parishioners of the parish or parishes to be assembled in vestry, or the major part of them, and of the proprietor and proprietors of the lands within such parishes, or the major part of them, testified by their petition or petitions to the chief governor or governors of this kingdom, and the council thereof; the expense of building which said churches shall be assessed and apportioned on the respective parishes by act of vestry, and such church, so newly erected as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be the parish church of the parish, wherein the same shall be built, when so intended and declared by such order as aforesaid; and the chancel thereof shall be repaired by such persons as were liable to repair the chancel of the old parish church.

